From the Front

The following letter was received by Mrs E. M. Fair from her brother, Rev R H. Stenov, Senior Chaplain with the first Canadian contingent:— On Tuesday morning I took a motor ear and went out to the 2nd Battallion co celebrate the Holy Communion. We had seventy-six communicants; one officer, Capt. O'Flinn, Belleville, Ont, and another officer, Capt. Currie, Brockville, Ont., were there. It was a lovely service, out in an open field, the sky full of aircraft, a captive baloon over us, and all these brave lads there by their own free will. Last night I was just going to bed when a fight started, so Canon Almond and I hustled out to see what we could It did not last long. We blew up a German trench. The way it is done is very simple: We start away back, dig down deep, then start an underground ditch or tunnel, and work over into their territory and under their trenches, put in powerful explo-sives, and everything is ready. When we are ready for the attack we set off this mine, blow up the German trench, rush forward, kill what are left and take the trench, dig ourselves in and fight the Germans if they make a counter attack in the hope of regaining the lost ground.

I am not with the Clearing Station low. The war office allowed us more Chaplains so I put three on the Clearing Station and confined my efforts to the Divisional Headquarters and management of the work of the Chaplains I have such a splendid staff of Chap-lains, grand soldiers of God and the King, Barton of B. C., Payne of Moose Jaw, Wells, Woods, Beattle and Whitsker of Manitoba, Gordon of Kingston, Pringle of N. S., Canon Scott of Quebec, McGreer and Canon Almond of Montreal, Warner of N. S. and many others. They are all doing great work and I am proud of them. We all work in peace and harmony. The R. C.'s are fine fellows, and so loyal to me in every way.

W. A. Brown, Lyndhurst, and Others Hurt

Thursday morning of last week four men while driving in the stage between Lyndhurst station and the village had an experience they do not care to have repeated very soon. The stage had met the morning C.N.R. train from Brockville and was returning to the hotel in the village. All went well until the top of the steep hill just east of the village was reached when a whiffletree suddenly snapped in two and the horses immediately bolted. In the rig at the time were W. A. Brown, driver, and three travellers, J.

A. Traversy, Brockville; Wm. Lead-bea'er, Lyndhurst, and L. Smith of Seeley's Bay. The horses in making the getaway came in contact with an electric light pole. The force of the impact freed the animals, and the driver, Mr Brown, was thrown from the rig and striking the pole with great violence received several cuts about the head. His side and a knee were also injured. The travellers escaped by jumping and were more or less shaken up. Mr Brown was picked up and conveyed to the hotel, which is conducted by his son-in-law, A. M. Sweet. Dr Young, of Seeley's Bay was called and attended him. For a time his injuries looked serious, but it is now thought that he will be alright in a few days. The horses once free of the rig, made a furious gallop through the main street of the village, but were captured before any more damage was done, In the wagon at the time was a consignment of roofing.

Dear Aunt and Uncle,-Everything s O. K. and expect to be at the front before this letter arrives but write just the same as it will be forwarded to Somewhere in France." Ross is still here but expects to go with the artillery as the dental men are all sent to the different battalions to yank out molars from the men. However I am glad that we have been together for a couple of weeks for if this war lasts for any time there is very little chance for the infantry man. We had our photos taken together and I had on my kilt. It is a heathen arrangement for a windy day. Well I have joined the bomb or grenade throwers, commonly called the uicide squad as their work is extreme ly dangerous and there are no wounded for should an accident happen the funremembered as a happy event and a eral director need not call but a guy with dust pan and brush. But isn't it better to be blown to pieces than come back minus a limb and a nuisance to everyone. The bomb throwers carry anywhere from a dozen bombs upwards when going into action and should there be faulty workmanship or bum fuse his lite pays the price. A time bomb cannot be thrown more than 30 35 vards so vou s sure to fire. We also act as wire cutters. In a charge the bomb throwers go with the infantry men throwing hand grenades and are supposed to go farther than the bayonet men and hold back the enemy until the communication trenches are blocked. But I thought I could do more damage in this than with a rifle and my right arm was always a good wing only you throw a bomb with a stiff arm motion as they weigh about two pounds each.

There are two theories as to the object of the church in the vacation season. One is to shut up shop on the excuse that people won't flock to church in summer anyway. The other is to keep open and make the service so attractive that it is bound to bring a congregation. Many fallacious ideas have grown up with vacation time. One is that "everybody is out of rown." The fact is that the vast majority of the people are here at home, right on the job throughout July and August as well as the other ten montas of the year. Another is that "it's too bot to go to church." Church attendance in summer is, on the whole, much more comfortable and convenient than in winter, when after wading through snow and slush one too often has to sit for an hour and a half in an ill-ventilated auditorium swapping grip and cold in the head germs with one's neighbors. A 'Dird fallace is that religion is a good deal like an overcoat; to be put away carefully for the summer and brought out gand in the fail. If it hasn't been eaten up in the meantime by moths. POTATO ROT

Many Parts of Ontario Report the Trouble.

Ontario Agricultural College has ent out the following bulletin regarding diseased vines being found in the Province:

During the last few days we have eceived from various districts in the Province of Cntario samples of diseased young potato vines, with requests for information regarding the nature, cause and cure of the disease We had just previously noticed the same disease amongst the potato crops both on the experimental grounds and in the general crop of potatoes on the College farm. As the disease appears to be fairly wide spread this season, we have deemed it advisable to issue a circular letter respecting it.

In the growing crop an affected plant will have a wilted appearance, being dull dirty green in color, the stems flaccid, the leaves will have a tendency to curl. The stems near the ground and below will be blackened, and in the various stages of decay from a soft wet root. On digging out the seed potato it will be found to be soft and pulpy, and when broken open, the inside is usually slimy and gives off an offensive odor. This soft rot of potatoes is a bacterial disease. Its development in ground where it has not been before is nearly always due to diseased seed potatoes having been used for planting. As long as affected potatoes are kept dry, the disease will not spread, but as soon as they become moist the soft rot develops as the bacteria which cause it have then a chance to develop rapidly. An affected seed potato in which the disease has been checked by drying out will have brown or black ish discolorations which are easily seen on cutting. The rot may be seen on cutting. The rot may be present in varying degrees, but as it has dried out it may look like a dry rot. When such affected potatoes are planted the moist conditions in the soil which are necessarily for growth. soil which are necessarily for growth, are favorable for the further development of the disease. Some of the eyes of the potato will send up their shoots, but these are usually weak and spindly. As the disease continues to rot the seed tuber it enters the ng shoots and rapidly passes wards, causing the stems to blacken and rot near the surface of the ground, then the top wilts and topples

Treatment—Spraying of any kind is of no direct use with this disease. The treatment is preventive rather than curative. As pointed out above, the disease develops in the first place from affected seed tubers. But when once it is established in a crop it may be spread from the diseased plants to neighboring healthy plants by the cultivator, hoe or other imple-ment used getting contaminated by coming in contact with a rotting plant and then with a healthy plant. Biting insects, as the potato bug, also pread the disease to some extent, and it is only by spraying for these that spraying is helpful in preventing the pread of the disease.

As the lines were almost in far advanced in the tuber, the affected part may be cut off and the rest used for food. If any of these affected tubers get into the seed pile to be used the following year, they will either rot during storage and cause those around them to rot also if they are not kept dry, and if they are kept dry, the disease will be checked until they are planted, when they will rot and destroy the plant that springs

A GLARING INJUSTICE. (Exchange)

Barbers' rates unquestionably require revision. What is needed, however, is bot a norizontal change, but an adjustment in accordance with the services rendered. Every bald-headed man, for linstance, feels a burning sense of injust when he pays 25 cents for 'a hair-cut, and sees the tousled poet or musician in the adjoining cnar, whose head is covered with an almost impenetrable jungle, lay down a quarter as the reward of the bold and persevering explorer who had lopped off the tops of the dense undergrowth. It is conservatively estimated that ten bald men can be trimmed in a tonsorial parlor in the time it takes to cut the hair of one football player. If barbers' rates were adjusted scientifically, each customer would pay for his hair cut in accordance with the number of square inches of productive surface on his cranium. As it is, the bald-heads are paying excessive charges for services rendered to other people. "Inard's Liniment Cures Colds, Etc.

PESSIMISTS REBUKED. (Ottawa Evening Journal)

"The art of Motherhood is lost." laments a noted American woman-educationist to the International Purity Contionist to the International Purity Congress being held at San Francisco. We fear the good lady belongs to the evergrowing class of invincible pessimists. The art of Motherhood is not lost, in feat we know that it's being improved. Despite the United States with its divorce record, despite the quack moralist grocers of a so-called new but in fact ageold philosophy of society that is victous, there are more good men and true women to-day than ever before, and Motherhood is as sacred as at any time in nineteen hundred years. Stenographers may be interested in learning that there is a new sort of typewriter which has just been in-vented by a young student in the en-sineering department of New York University. The machine is different from the typewriters familiar to the average operator in several respects. For instance, the "standard" keyblard For instance, the "standard" keybard has twenty-six letters and in most cases about a dozen keys devoted to figures and punctuation marks, while the new machine hes 4,200 characters in all and only three keys. One of the three keys is a back spacer, another the space key and the third is the key with which the 4,200 characters are struck. It is possible, according to the inventor, to make more than 4,200 characters by combinations of "radicals" or base characters. About 50,000 characters can be made by the machine, the inventor says.

That stenographers ambitious to

That stenographers ambitious to operate the new typewriter will find their task a little difficult at first, at least, was indicated by the fact that it required two hours to write that it required two hours to write the first letter typed by the machine. This letter contained approximately 100 words, but the operator was unfamiliar with the 4,200 keys.

The machine is said to be the first Chinese typewriter ever invented. Heuen Chi, the student inventor conceived the idea that a typewriter could be made to write Chinese while he was at his home in Southern China three years ago, he said. He went to the United States as a Government student and, on the prompting of Chinese officials who had become interested in his scheme, took up the study of engineering at New Yark University and continued to work on the invention. He completed the model a short time ago, and has patented it in China and Japan, for it also writes Japanese, which, he said, is quite similar to Chinese.

BRITISH PRESS ON RUSS LOSS

Eastern Ally Wonderfully Patient Under Circumstances

In Not Complaining at Inactivity of Western Forces

London Cable - "That the Russians, in sore extremities, have been waiting with the most intense expectation news of some move on the part of the allies in the west to relieve the relentless pressure, is perfectly natural, under the circumstances," comments the Post. "If the circumstances had been reversed, had it been the Franco-British front the Germans were pressing, we may be pretty sure public opinion in the western countries would have been calling urgently enough for prompt action on the pare of Russia to relieve the strain.

'All things considered, the Aussian public has been wonderfully patient and uncomplaining in the circumstances, but there nevertheless are signs that the Russians are not satisin the campaign. Their exemplary attitude doubless rests on the benefit, which is our security for confidence as well as theirs, that the general staffs of the three countries are acting in full harmony, and with complete knowledge of each others' position and purposes. From this promise one may reach the conclusion that, after all, things cannot be very dark when the leaders can take the situation so caimiy, not to say passively."

The Chronicle says in an editorial: ess. "It must be conceded frankly that on as a military operation the combined hen movement of the German armies on the eastern front in the past month seems likely to rank very high in the history of warfare. In scale it was the biggest thing ever attempted and, considering the distances and the natural obstacles to be surmounted, its rapid progress was very remark-able."

The Standard declares the fall of Warsaw, while likely to prolong the gade artillery, for great gallantry and resource from 22nd April to the 4th of May in repairing telephone wires speaking of the course of events. Speaking of the enormous sacrifices and the Cormonicallies it says:

"Lost legions cannot be replaced and meanwhile there is formidable work for the survivors. Unless a real decision is obtained by the destruc-tion or forced surrender of the main Russian armies, Germany will be lit-tle better off than before."

Pan-American Conference is Meeting in Washington.

Washington Report .- The conference between Secretary of State Lansing and six pan-American diplomats, 8th at Hooge Chateau. After his trench had been abandoned, Corp. President Wilson in his plan to res whose co-operation was sought by tore peace in Mexico, was continued to-day.

No announcement of the conclusion of the series of conferences, begun yesterday, is looked for until a pro-gramme has been perfected. Te conferees decline to discuss the proceedings, as the conferences declared informal and confidential. Whatever plan of action is agreed upon will be submitted to all of the pan American nations for approval. though it is understood they already have pledged support to concerted act

It is considered likely that one of the first results of the conference will be a final appeal to all the Mexican factional leaders to accommodate their differences and restore peace. This probably will be sent in a few days, and will be intended especially for the Carranza element, which all along has declined to participate in a peace conference.

The party, which consisted of Mr. Henry R. Alley and his son, Fred Alley; Miss Elizabe: M. Lawson and her two nephews, louglas and Angus Lawson, and the two sons of Mr. Charles Swabey, of Toronto, and Beverley and Harold Swabey, were all guests at the Cliff House, Port Sydney. They set out in an automobile owned and driven by John Clarke, of Utterson, to make a trip in the country. The lake just west of Utterson is crossed by a floating bridge about 200 yards long, and a driving rainstorm had come up just as the au-tomobile was crossing it. The car when nearing the shore apparently skidded to one sige and crashed through the railing, plunging into 30 feet of water. Clarke and the two older boys, Harold Swabey and Douglas Lawson, managed to free them-selves and reach the bridge, but the the other five were trapped in the car and sank to the bottom of the lake.

A search party was formed by the farmers and villagers and an effort was made to recover the bodies. Albert Bell, of Huntsville, a soldier recently invalided from France, dived down and located the bodies and the car. The body of Angus Lawson was recovered after an hour, and then the auto was recovered, after which the other remains were also all bound by 6 o'clock. Dr. Porter, of Huntsville, who was passing at the time, spent an hour or more trying to resuscitate the first body recovered, but to no avail. Coroner MacDonald, of Huntsville, arrived in time to see the four boaies recovered, and ordered all four bodies recovered, and crawn Hall the remains placed in the Town Hall at Utterson and an inquest begun, which was adjourned until Monday

Whole Provinces Devastated and People Massacred.

Germans, in Control, Furthering the Barbarities.

London Cable-The Daily Chronicle says this morning:

"A tragic episode of the war in the east is the wholesale massacre of Armenians in the eastern Vilayets of Asia Minor by the Turks and Kurds. Regarding the terrible scale of these massacres, greater than any which occurred under Abdul Hamid, there is now no room for doubt, and the statements made on the subject last week by Lord Bryce in the nouse of Lords were officially corroborated by Lord Crewe, "In certain cases the Armenians have successfully defended themselves. At the town of state, for instance, to which ther rasha stat his proiner-in-law with a commission of exermination, the victims fore after the massacre had begun, parricaded the Armenian quarters, and held out against the Turks for four weeks unth relieved by the advent of the the reflected by the autempt of the Russian army. But outside this, and some similar exceptions, they have been poweriess. Tens of thousands, probably hundreds of thousands, have been deported by road hunareds of miles to western Anatolia, under conditions amounting to slow extermination.

The Germans, who are masters of the central Ottoman administration, have, to their everlasting shame, not only permitted, but rather encouraged, these horrors. The allied powers have notified the Turkish officials that they will hold them personally responsible and at this stage they can do no more. There is perhaps room for an effective American protest, but we have not yet heard of one."

The Chronicle concludes by making an appeal to British private charity, citing the following terrible account of ruin and devastation, following the Turkish massacres in north-eastern Armenia, telegraphed by Ayvadian, the Archbishop of Van, and Aram, the Governor of Vam, to the Honorary Secretary of the Armenian

Policy Too Weak.

Berlin, via London Cable-A sharp conflict is in progress within the leading circles of the National Liberals, owing to the action of a wing of the party in conducting a private and public campaign of attack against Dr. Theobald von Bethmann-Hollweg, the imperial Chancellor.

The campaign centres around the upposed attitude of the Chancellor on the question of annexation of terri-tory and the final settlement of the war, his assailants assuming that he is not ready to go to the lengths in this direction which they and their backers consider proper and justified. backers consider proper and Justilied.

This wing, according to the newspaper, holds that "the public utter-ances of the Chancellor afford no ground for the assumption that he is pursuing a weak policy, based on illusions, and is not serving the inter-ests of the Empire."

It declares that the attacks upon the Chancellor merely serve to injure his prestige abroad, and hamper him in exactly that vigorous policy which is demanded from him.

Sir Walter Raleigh, on returning from his South American voyage in the early part of the 17th century, reported to his sovereign that a landing party from his ship had been ating party from his ship had been attacked near the mouth of a wonderful river by a swarm of women warriors and he accordingly suggested the name "Amazon" for the stream. Now comes Dr. Algot Lange, the archaeologist, who believes he has discovered evidence of this lost tribe described by Raleigh, a tribe wherein the burden of war and industry was borne entirely by the females Dr. was borne entirely by the females. Dr. Lange has just returned from a pro-longed voyage of investigation for the Brazilian Government, during which he discovered on the headwaters of the Boju, a tributary of the Amazon, a hitherto unknown tribe, the Araz-andewara Indians, a peaceable, semi-agricultural group of 100 or more stark-nude savages, who had never seen a white man before and stood in terror of the explorer and his party. party.
"The most significant thing about "The most significant thing about the tribe," says Dr. Lange, "was the entirely Semitic character of the physiognomy. This was no resemblance to which imagination was necessary, but a striking likeness that could not be overlooked by the most radimentary observer. It was as appropriate the property of the same and the property of the same as a property o rudimentary observer. It was as apparent in the handsome young men and women as in the old, and it gave me distinctly the sense of looking upon an Asiatic people."

But the most interesting of Dr.

But the most interesting of Dr. Lange's discoveries were at the mouth of the Amazon, on a big, flat island, browsed on by vast herds of cattle in the dry season and washed over by the sea in the wet. This is the island of Marajo, of about 120 by 100 miles. The Amazon, which is over 200 miles wide at this point, has built the island there from its mighty store of alluvial deposits, and the sea, fighting to hold its own, is underwashing the island, even as the river builds it.

"The island is never more than a few inches out of the water," Dr. Lange explains. "At high tide it shrinks considerably, and when the Amazon is at flood no island is visible and the shrinks of the shrinks." save for the mounds. One of these excavated pretty thoroughly and found the bones and pottery of a tribe which has struck me as distinct-ly Asiatic. Moreover, the pottery I dug up on this mound has another and stranger characteristic. The vases and idols, burial urns and bowls— all are decorated with feminine symbols. The absence of male figuration is striking, and there are other evidences in the mounds to indicate that on this flat island more than a thousand years ago there existed a civilization dominated by the women.
Whether or not all of the bones found in the mound are those of females will be determined by local anthor-pologists to whom I shall submit various skeletons brought along for the purpose."

This funeral mound, according to the explorer, rises island-like from a tropical swamp in the centre of the great island of Marajo. It is about 15 to 20 yards wide and 100 yards long, and appears to be one mass of ancient pottery, much of it in fragments and some reduced to powder, but overtiles but quantities still in good preservation.

The explorations disclosed 12 holes in the ground, and these on investiga-tion proved to be the mouths of as many great funeral urns. Each was four or five feet high and globe or pear-shaped, filled with the bones of the dead Amazons, with pottery of many kinds and with the bones of many kinds and with the bones of the sea cow. Evidently this primi-tive race had hunted these big ani-mals and used them as food, leaving quantities of the flesh in the funeral urns to feed the awakening dead:

THE CALL.

The following poem from the pen of a Canadian soldier with the first contingent is reprinted from The London Daily Mirror.]

I hear the clear note of the bugle And the roar of the calling drum, And I feel the swing of the marching men,

And a deep, deep voice says, Come. For the arrow of duty points forward, Tho the heartstrings quiver and break, Yet the voice of my calling country Is one I may not forsake.

For my manhood heeds and listens
And bends an attentive ear,

And the war's alarm may bring he My road lies plain and clear.

Death of Mrs. O. O. Stowell

The death occurred in the City Hos pital at Watertown, N. Y., on Tuesday morning, of Josephine Evangeline Bishop, Dr O. O. Stowell, formerly of Addison. Mrs Stowell had been ill over a year due to cancer of the liver. She had been in a serious condition for the past four or five months, and four ago her condition became so critical that she was removed to the city hospital. Her death was unex-

Mrs Stowell was born in Antwerp, N. Y., January 12, 1847, the daughter of the late Oscar and Sarah Hildreth Bishop. When ten years of age she removed with her parents to Copenhagen, where she resided until her removing to Watertown in 1892. She was a graduate of the White Seminary, Clinton. She was married to Dr O.O. Stowell, of Copenhagen in 1872. Sine was a life-long member of the Episcopal church, attending the Trinity Episcopal church during her residence in Watertown. Mrs Stowell was an enthusiastic worker of the Pomona Grange, of which she was a member, and also of the Women's Federation of Clubs. She was prominent in social and club life in Watertown.

Besides her husband she leaves two ons, Dr Harold B. Stowell, Watertown, and Royal O. Stowell, New York City. Cyrenus Stowell of H. M.'s customs, Brockville, is a brother-

Bodies of 200 Babies Found in Sewers

Human life has been destroyed in wholesale quantities in Toronto during the past two years. The city sewers have during that time given up the bodies of 200 prematurely born babies. The awsome information was given in a statement by Works Commissioner Harris yesterday. Even 200 is a small estimate of the number of slaughtered innocents, as the number found is only those caught in the screens at the sewage disposal plant at Morley avenue. No estimate of those that have gone through can be made.

The Commissioner of Works stated that the discoveries were reported to the Chief Coroner, with a view to the matter being taken up by the police. However, such a course was considered useless, as there were no clues present ed. The sewage comes from all parts of the city, and therefore it would be impossible to ascertain where the bodies were deposited.

The statement means that at least 100 babes are destroyed a vear in Toronto. The police, however, have nothing to work upon, and the Chief Coroner can do nothing. The present average number found shows little decrease from any time during the two

Mrs. David Thompson Dead

The death occurred at Brockville suddenly on Monday, Aug. 9, 1915, of Mrs David Thompson of Athens. She went to Brockville Satuaday morning at 11 o'clock to visit her daughter, Mrs Joseph H. Morrison, King street west, and later was seized with paralysis. Her husband died on Tuesday, July 27th, and it is thought that the shock of his demise brought on the fatal attack. The deceased was born in Ire-Her maiden name was Mary Hewitt, coming over to Canada fifty years ago as a bride and settled with her husband in Kitley township. Later they removed to Spring Valley Mr Thompson followed the occupation of a farmer. They were very successful and after twenty years residence at Spring Valley they removed to Athens where they have since lived retired.

Six sons and five daughters survive, viz.: John Thompson, Carthage, N.Y.; Joseph Thompson, Athens; William Thompson, Houghton, Sask; James Thompson, M.P.P., East Peterboro; Thomas D. Thompson, Winnipeg; Gordon Thompson, London; Mrs H. Mooney, Toronto; Mrs W. H. Irwin, Soperton; Mrs H. Rowsom, Lyn; Mrs J. H. Morrison, Brockyille and Mrs F. E. Latimer, Lyn.

The funeral service will be held this afternoon at 1 o'clock at the residence of Mrs J. H. Morrison, King street west, Brockville, by Rev S. S. Burns. Interment will be made in Athens.

Liberals Win In Manitoba

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 7.—T. C. Norris led the Liberal party in Manitoba to an overwhelming victory at the polls yesterday and will have behind him in the next Legislature over forty members out of the forty-nine who will sit there.

Forty six members were elected, of whom the straight Liberals number 38; Independent Liberals 2; Dixon in Ceutre Winnipeg and Ferley in Gimli; social Democrat 1; and Conservatives

There are three deferred elections and if these follow precedent they will return government supporters. The only member of Sir Rodmond

Roblin's ministry who sought re-elec-tion, George Lawrence, ex-minister of agriculture, who ran in Killarney was defeated.

Sir James Aikens, Conservative leader, and W. H. Sharpe, his Lieutenant, who resigned seats in the Domin ion Perliament to enter provincial provincial politics, were defeated in Bra don and Manitou respectively.

Brockville Business College

On the east side of the Fulford Block, Court House Avenue, Brockville, is a large sign bearing the words BROCKVILLE BUSINESS COLL-EGE. This sign last year needed repainting and a sign Painter offered to do same for $10.00 per word or a total of $30.00. This sum Principa Rogers thought too much, so the painter made the following offer: To paint the first letter for one cent and the price was to be doubled on each succeeding letter of the three words BROCKVILLE BUSINESS BOLLEGE, i.e., that is the doubling process was to go on for 24 times after the first letter. To this the principal agreed. When the painter sent in his account the principal was alarmed and thinking there was a mistake sat down and worked it out. Finding that the account had, been rendered correctly the business college manager sent the painter a check for $30.00. If the painter insists on his own proposal, how much is coming to him?

T. T. SHAW, EDITOR AND PROPRIETO

During last night some one acci dently or maliciously threw a stone, or something else, that cracked the large plate glass in Mr. H. H. Arnold's store on Main street. This accident only demonstrates to us more vividly the necessity of having our streets light ed and the only proper system to our mind, is the Hydro-Electric. If we had it accidents of a malicious nature would be obliterated.

"What is the matter with Athens," is the question we hear asked repeatedly by many people. Athens recently held a celebration on Labor day each year and large crowds attended it and thoroughly enjoyed the outing. Why don't we have it now? We are told by some that Brockville coralled that day and they let them have it. If this the case surely there are many other days that would be suitable. We are told that over $100 is in the treasury to the credit of the celebration committee. There is time to have a big day yet this year. Say we have one. Will Reeye Holmes call a meeting and see what can be done with re gard to holding one?

Sudden Death of Aged Farmer.

Mr. Albert Robinson, a well known farmer residing about two miles from Oxford Mills, fell from a load of grain one day last week and was picked up dead. The deceased, a man seventy three years of age, was being assisted by his son-in-law, Mr. Henry Mc-Farlane in drawing the grain to the barn. Mr. Robinson was driving the team, and Mr. McFarlane walking on the road behind when he saw the deceased fall from the load to the road. By the time help was got, it was found that Mr. Robinson was dead, death being attributed to heart failure. The funeral took place to Oxford Methodist church and interment was made in Oxford Mills cemetery.

A very pretty wedding took place atthe home of Mr. Isaac Kinch, Newbliss, on July 28th, 1915, when their second youngest daughter, Miss Emma Pearl was united in matrimony to Wesley Connell, a prosperous young farmer of Greenbush, by the Rev. S. F. Tackaberry of Jasper, rector of Kitley parish. The young couple were attended by the bride's sister, Miss Annie Kinch, and Mr. Louis Tackaberry, cousin of the groom. The bride wore a dress of blue silk trimmed with silk embroidery and net lace, while the bridesmaid was dressed in a very pret ty dress of white embroidered voile, with a girdle-belt of blue silk. The ceremony was performed under an arch tastefully arranged, to which the bride was led by her father, while Miss Eva Colborne of Greenbush play ed the wedding march. About eighty guests were present and the long list of gifts indicate the popularity of the young couple, the green's gift to the bride being a gold bracelet.

They would continue to worship the God of Israel, and Jerusalem was the true centre of that worship. He was wise enough not to attempt to establish at once a new religion although he knew that the repeated visits of his people to Jerusalem for worship as the law required (Deut. 16:16) would be likely to win them back to the parent kingdom. II. Idolatry introduced (vs. 28-30.) 28. Took counsel-He surely did take counsel of God. In such an im-portant matter he wished others to share the responsibility, and consult ed those who were his supporters in the kingdom. It is a fatal mistake to leave God out of one's counsels. Made two calves of gold—It is worthy on note that the images made by Jero boam were like that made by Aaron in the wilderness (Exod. 32: 1.) Both men were familiar with the image of the ox from their acquaintance with the religion of Egypt, and Jeroboam may have been influenced by that knowledge in making the golden calves. It is more probable that the golden calves were suggested by the exen in the temple upon which rested the molten sea. It is too much for the molten sea. It is too much for you to go up to Jerusalem—Jeroboam lesired to make the people feel that to was acting in their interest, and wished to make religion convenient. If this had been his real metive, his sin would have been great, for whoever makes his religion a matter of convenience loses sight of the nature of true religion. The real object, how-

V.) and there Samuel judged Israel (1 Sam. 7 16.) The city was situated about fifteen miles outhern part of Jerobeam's kingdom. Dan lay in the e xtreme northern part thus giving all the people of the or the other of these shrines. Dan had also a history as a religious centre.

scendants of Moses (Judg. 18: 27-30.) 30. Become a sin—Whatever may have been the design of Jeroboam, the outcome was such as might reasonably have been expected. The worship at these shrines became idolatrous, and both the first and the second commandments were broken. Even unto Dan—It is probable that, since Bethel was so well known and easy of access, it was not considered ne-cessary to mention that place, and it is stated definitely that the people went to Dan, which was far away.

III. God's Laws broken (vs. 31.33). 31. House of high places—It was cus-tomary to erect idolatrous shrines up-on the tops of hills. Jeroboam built a house of worship at Bethel and one at Dan, while God had declared that the temple at Jerusalem was the true place of worship. Lowest of the people—"Among all the people."—R. V. Instead of employing the Levites as priests according to God's arrangement, Jeroboam took any that pleased him for the purpose. The Levites would not wish to officiate at idolatrons altars and went in large numbers. trous altars and went in large num-bers to Rehoboam's kingdom. 32. Feast in the eighth month—The king wished to provide a feast for his people to correspond to the feast of Tabernacles, but in order to make it un-like that feast he appointed it in the eighth month instead of the seventh. He offered upon the altar—Either personally or through the priests of his own appointing he sacrificed to the golden calves of his own making. 33. Devised of his own heart—The king left God out of his counsels. He "said in his heart" (v. 26), and "devised of his own heart" an order of worship which was not pleasing to the Lord.

Questions.—What cities did Jeroboam build, and why? What did the king say in his heart? What is meant by the house of David? At what cities did Jeroboam establish places of worshin? What reason did he give for worship? What reason did he give for setting up the golden calves in those places? What was the real reason for appointing those two places of wor-ship? Whom did he make priests? What feast did he appoint, and how did it differ from the feast in Judah? What commandment did Jeroboam violate? What warning was sent "to him?

Topic.-Jeroboam's policy.

Caused a breach in national unity.

Led to a violation of divine law. I. Caused a breach in national unity Jeroboam's policy perpetuated and multiplied in Israel the evils of which the rending of the kingdom had at first been the renalty. The ordained and fully deserved penalty of Solo mon's transgression was the place-ment of another than his sen upon mon's transgression the throne of a divided kingdom Seated at last on his throne, Jeroboam was face to face with the opportunity of his life. Having adopted his policy, Jeroboam had to device suitof setting up the golden calves able means for carrying out the same In his procedure he ignored the uni th the people of Judah they might and effect. Four important measures inclined to turn from him and go | received by lerusalem, fearing that in associating versal law of consequences, of cause turn from him and go received his immediate attention, capital, a plan of worship, a festival and a priesthood. Having fortified some of the chief cities of his realm less believed that the people would vership the true God, while considering the golden calf as a mere symbol which led to a division in the Jewish which led to a division in the Jewish church. His policy revealed his utter distrust of God. He took advantage of the jealousy of the tribes. He hid his zeal for his own safety under the 29. In Both-el. Dan—Bothel means plea of seeking the comfort and connouse of God." It was a sacred venlence of the people. He acted lace. Abraham had built an altar craftily upon the religious sentiments of the people, to serve his own ambi-tious designs. He took advantage of the sacred associations of Bethel and Dan. In every step Jeroboam took he was sealing his own doom and that of

Jeroboam knew that and also that the division of the kingdom was to make no difference as to the oneness or the An idolatrons graven image had been the one place of incense and sacrifice, set up and was presided over by dein consolidating his kingdom, Recognizing as he did the religious tendencies of his people, he foresaw that the national assemblies for worship in the temple at Jerusalem would eventually reunite the twelve tribes under one king. To suit the exigencies of the case, God's ordinances were overturned, other places of worship were set up, the commandment against image worship was broken, the national con nection with the religion which God had ordained was broken off. Herein was his fatal mistake. True policy would have been to have left mat ters of religion unchanged. Jeroboam had been called to the throne for poli-tical purposes. He made use of the church to serve his political ambitions He did not openly reject Jehovah, but he corrupted his worship. It was probably his boast that he with the people worshipped the one true God in a more rational and primitive way. De-vices to lighten the stress of duty and to give a liberal interpretation to moral obligations became popular. The introduction of old errors indulged their idolatrous propensities. A servile priesthood aided in accomplishing the enslavement of the people. The one centre of unity gave place to three centres of division. The one ritual of divine obligation was travestied by rites and cermonies of human appoint-ment. The one feast of Tabernacles, appointed of God, was supplanted by a feast devised by man. That feast, the most joyous of the year, had once been the greatest manifestation of re ligious unity which Israel afforded. Jeroboam made a rival feast. The worship of the people was a matter of greatest concern in the establishment of his kingdom. The ten tribes must be brought to renounce Jerusalem as the orly place of acceptable worship. They must be persuaded to accept a new order of priests if the division of the kingdom continued. Under his pretense to reestablish the old worship Jeroboam was able to conciliate those who were proud of past history. His policy was shrewd and singly He used policy was shrewd and sinful. He used his authority for the furtherance ungodiness. He placed politics fore religion. He chose convenience instead of duty.-T. R. A.

TURNIPS AND RUTABAGAS.

Turnips and rutabagas will yield a arger amount of nutritious food for stock, on the same space, than any ounce of seed will sov. 150 feet of drill; one to one and a half pounds will sow an acre. It is better to drill turnip seed than to broadcast it, as by the former method the seed is more leenly sown turnip thrives best in highly enriched sandy, gravelly or light loamy soil. They are generally sown in drills from twelve to fifteen inches apart, and thinned out early to six or eight inches in the rows. Rutabaga turnips are extensively are close-grained, very hard, and will erdure a considerable degree of cold without injury. Sow from June 20 to middle of July, in drills two feet apart and thin out to eight inches.

The land should be plowed level, harrowed crosswise and lengthwise, so as to get it into fine tilth. Then plow shallow furrows two and a half feet apart; in these furrows spread the manure or fertilizer.

In using a seed drill to sow the seed it should be adjusted now to sow less than three pounds to the acre, if rows as above.

It is best to mix the seed with ashes, whether sown broadcast or drilled, which latter method is to be preferred. If rain comes so as to noisten the ground, and the plants get a vigorous growth, they will he likely to escape the ravages of the fly. If the ground is very poor it would be well to sow plaster on it, after the seed is harrowed in.

In about two weeks after the turpips come up, go through them with lioe and cut out the weeds, and also thin the turnips.

Cows fed on turnips give a much greater quantity of milk than if fed on hay or corn, but it is necessary to position of the sanctuary. He was repeatedly reminded that Jerusalem was made from them will have a peculiar taste. Cattle may be fed during wir ter, and even fattened, on when fed to cattle or cows it is neces sary to cut them in pieces with a liatchet or some other instrument, as instances are known of cattle swallowing turnips while and thereby getting choked.

If attacked by the fly, sow dry ashes on them while the dew is on. Fresh slacked lime or soot is also recom-mended for this purpose.

One of the prime essentials in growing a root crop of any kind is to have a good seed bed. The land should be rich in potash and lime, with large quantities of available nitrogen. This helds good with all root crops, with possibly the exception of the sugar beet. Cultivation should begin with the plowing. No furrow should be thrown over flat. In sowing turnip seed, aim to do so before the ground gets too dry. It is a mistake to sow turnips the last of all crops, but rather sow them early and as a result you will find yourself thinning them, while your neighbor is waiting for his to grow. Force the growth by cultivation and thereby avoid attacks of lice and woody roots. Land that is set aside for the turnip field should be cultivated frequently before planting, so as to conserve moisture and give the seed quick germination and the growing plant plenty of moisture. Sow the seed in drills 30 inches apart on good, fertile soil, allowing two pounds of seed per acre, covering to a depth of one inch.

Where fertilizers are applied, they should be well worked into the soil. Cover the seed with a spring-toothed harrow turned wrong side up. This will spread the seeds in the row and permit the thinning later. Harrow a couple of times before the plants are up, always harrowing in the direction of the row and not across; then roll hard. On heavy land, rolling should not be done. We do not advocate scwing turnip seed broadcast. Cultivate thoroughly to save the moisture.

When plants have the third leaf
they are ready to be thinned. Do this with a sharp noe; avoid injuring roots; thin so that the plants will be 14 inches apart.

FARM NEWS AND VIEWS.

Timothy has a good effect on the At the North Dakota Experiment Station the four crops of wheat following two crops of timothy were increased 22 4-5 bushels above the yield from four crops of wheat following wheat. So that nearly as much wheat was raised in the four years following the two years of timothy as in the six years of all wheat.

It is a mistake to judge a dairy ration on the basis of protein, as some feeds with less protein mixed with come other ingredients make a more satisfactory feed. Alfalfa has no more food value than clover, but it has the advantage of being a soil renovator, besides furnishing from three to five crops a season.

Alsike is the best clover for wet lands and should be sown in mixtures for moist lands. As the seed is small, it requires about half the amount used in seeding red clover. It mixes well with timothy, but does not grow as large as red clover, and it is not profitable to grow on land where red clover does well.

FEED RATION AND EGGS. One of the factors which determine egg production is the feed ration, not merely the quantity of feed given, but the elements contained therein. Many questions are asked as to what a balanced ration for egg production is and how to balance the ration. In order to determine more fully the effect of certain rations a number of experiments are in progress at Mountain Grove, Missouri, experiment station. Each pen contains twelve hens.

The test with a wide ration, containing elements which would produce three yolks for each white, laid 379 eggs in the first six months. The test with a narrow ration, containing elements which would produce two whites to each yolk, produced 269 eggs. The test with a ration containing equal yolk and white material, but without minerals to produce the shell, produced 161 eggs. The test where the tation contained elements necessary to produce equally all parts of the egg produced 1,603 eggs in the same time. This ration is called balanced ration for egg production. The yolk is principally carbohydrates, the white protein, and the shell minerals. Thus the three parts of the egg are made from three kinds of food.

The ration used is fairly well balanced for egg production. Instead of using the terms "carbohydrates" and "protein," the terms "yolks" and "whites" have been used. All fractions are omitted. Therefore the table is only approximately correct:

The basis for computing the num ber of yolks and whites produced by each kind of feed was that one pour of carbohydrates would produce 3 1 yolks; one pound of protein would produce 16 2-3 whites, this being th rate of the average hen here at the station.

It will be seen that from 150 pounds Hogs, f. o. b. 840 11 00 Calves 500 11 00 of corn 382 yolks and 198 whites are produced, therefore it is not a balanced ration. The extra yolks are built into fat. In this way hens fed on corn alone get extra fat, and we hear the old expression that the "hen is too fat to lay." The expression should be changed to read: "The hen can't lay is the reason she gets too fat." A simple ration may be made as follows: Yolks. Whites. 150 lbs. cracked corn.. 382 746 Total 772

He was low of stature, and dark of eye, with clear-cut features of singular beauty, and his hands were white and effeminate, for Brother Jocelin, as a limner, was free from those menial tasks which fell to the lot of the uneducated monk. He wore the usual dress of the Benedictines—the loose black robe with its obtuse, oval hood and plain scapular; and, as the sun-light streamed upon him through the narrow casement, he seemed to absorb all its brightness; his picturesque figure strangely at variance with its bare environment; for the Scriptorium of St. Edmund's Abbey was scantily furnished with a carved desk and stool and naught else, save a great ebony crucifix on the wall, inscribed, "Beholde my meakness, chylde, and leave thy pryde. Beyond the walk stretched a coloniade extending the Abbev's the grim, gray walls of Bury St. Edmunds, with many an arch, rounded belfry, deep-set window and grim gargoyle, massive, stern and strong —a testament in stone of the power of Rome in England.

The Abbey lay along the eastern slope of the town of St. Edmunds, a town of no mean size in itself. Its embattled walls, with four grand gate-ways, enclosed fully sixty acres, con-taining many buildings and courtyards besides gardens and cemeteries. The buildings, including three chapels, the Chapter house, the Ambulatory and the Infirmary, huddled about the church, like small children at a mother's knee, Behind these, to the west was the empty house of the Master of Horse; for once the Abbay had main.

The revenues of the Abbey were great, and her' holdings formed a whole county in themselves, yet, insatiable, she stretched her fingers into other Hundreds, and her scattered carucates of land were many, while fifty advocates, or feudal knights, with their hundreds of vassals, did her hemage, headed by the renowned Adam ie Cokefield.

But it was not of the wealth or seatness of the Abbey, nor of the fair see ne before him, that Brother Jocchia ght. He had forgotten it and his astic life in remembering his early ildhood, in St. Edmand's town. When Jocelin was eight years old, being accustomed to running in and out of the Abbey kitchen for the soup and bread on which they existed; what with having lived among wandering friars, inferior clergy, and the monks of Bury, his head was full of legends of angels and saints. And one night, or angels and saints. And one night, lying on his little pallaisse, he dreamed that Satan, with black wings spread wide, descended before a great stone building to fly off with him. Then he cried to St. Edmund for help, and the good saint appeared and took him by the hand, whereupon the devil flew by the hand; whereupon the devil flew away. His cries awoke his mother, and she pondered on the awful dream through the night. On the morrow, being a devout woman, she took him to St. Edmund's shrine, that she might pray over him and ask guidance of the monks.

"It was just here that St. Edmund touched me, mother," said Jocelin, as they passed through the Abbey gate. After some talk with the Prior, the child was admitted into the Abbey and left by his mother, as was young Samuel of old; thus, at the age of eight renouncing the world, the flesh and the devil.

"Ah," mused Brother Jocelin, leaning his head on his hand, "such a dream was easily interpreted by the monks. Otherwise, I might now have been bearing arms under Sir Adam, a right valiant squire, instead of dreaming over an antiphonary, and who knows if fortune and St. Edmund had not interfered with my fate, but I might have borne my grandsire's crest upon a knightly shield?"

"But" (hastily crossing himself as he glanced at the crucifix with its warning text), "doubtless the brethren were right. Diabolus, with outspread wings, was the pride of life, the pleasures of this vain world, 'Voluptates, hujust soeculi,' which would have borne me—who knows whence, if St. Edmund and the Prior had not made a monk of me!" And he, sighing, laid by his work, for the shadows had lengthened, and ere he had set his painting tray to rights the refectory bell sum-moned him to the evening meal. CHAPTER II.

The refectory was a noble wains-cotted hall, lighted from above, with a stone bench around two sides. In front of the arched door, above the wainscoting, was a pictured Christ, to which, on entering, Jocelin made obeisance. At the left of the hall was the ambry, where stood the massive golden grace-cup, and nearby was the niche, wherein were kept the ewer and basin in which the novices layed the hyethers's bands laved the brethren's hands.

A great table stood in the centre of the room, with a smaller one near the window, through which food was passed from the kitchen. On one side was the Bible-stand where, as Jocelin moved to his place near the head of the table, a blushing young novice was reading the evening lesson in very bad Latin.

Lent was over, and the table was bountifully spread with caten cakes, wine and huge trenchers full of a ther's knee, Behind these, to the west was the empty house of the Master of Horse; for once the Abbey had maintained several score of fighting horsemen. The humble cots of Cellarer, Seneschal and Clerk were near by, in front of the long, low line of stables along the southern wall; and enclosing a spacious courtyard was Bradfield, "A certain solemn mansion," the residence of the Abbott, and often used by the King himself.

This completed the Abbott settlement, save for a high tower which stood far down by the northern wall, overlooking a forest. It stood there grim and mysterious, with its low, iron-spiked door, widely placed ollietts and deep-set, narrow windows high utorture house. Dark tales were whispered of it in St. Edmund's town, and the solitary herdsman passing on his way home at twi. smoking stew.

The meal was presided over by an aged monk, directing the novices in their serving, and when they had passed the trenchers and filled the cubs, seated at their own table they supped of what remained in the dishes.

The Sub Prior, a pretentious ignor-mus, conversed with Jocelin about he flowers he was painting, frequent-y confusing their hotonical names, ty confusing their botanical names, and Jacelin answered him absently, but the Sub-Prior was satisfied with displaying his own erudition, and did not notice the inattention. When he had concluded, Jocelin roused himself, to inquire and the safe t self to imquire about Abbot Hugo, who, grown blind and old, kept his chamber in Bradfield house.

"My young frere, he grows no bet-ter," answered the Sub Prior, "and I fear me things fall worse and worse for our house. Debt increases. The Jews refuse to advance more moneys Jews refuse to advance hose it (save at ruinous rates), and alas, it seemeth to me that those of the seemeth to me that those of the Father's household are but flattering time-servers, who begulleth him with lies, profit by his infirmities."

In a lower voice he continued: "We lose our power in St. Edmondsbury our own Stowe. Ar, by our Lady, 'twas only yesterLiorn when our Cellerarius, trying vainly to collect the repselver, was forced to seize throughout all the town stools, kettles, or household wares, in lieu of the refused reaping penny. Yea, we are coming upon bad times, as thou may'st see; though certes on thy young shoulders falls little of the burden which resteth on mine!" And weavers pay but a small tithe of their den which resteth on mine!" And the Sub Prior nodded his head, and squared his shoulders pompously, though, in fact, he had nothing whatever to do with the administration of the Abbey affairs; his duties being limited to a certain guardianship of the Scriptorium, and the seneschalship of buttery, kitchen and refractory, shared in common with palsied old Hugh, the third Prior. "Has Brother Samson not yet return?" asked Jocelin.

"Yea, the Norfolk Barrator! He lies in the tower where our Lord Abbot hath sent him. Didst not know that he failed in his mission to Rome, and that Geoffrey Ridel hath been given the Woolpit Church. He sits there in foot gyves awaiting the Abbott's pleas ure, and there are whispers of banishment to Acre."

The Sub Prior detailed this news with peculiar relish, for Brother Samson was unpopular with most of the easy-going, careless monks, being an austere, taciturn person, who exhorted them to less self-indulgence, and condemned openly, as many did in secret, the ruinous policy of the Abbot. Hugo had tried in vain to overawe this stern critic, punishing him more than once to subdue his haughty spirit. Then, to placate him, he made him Sacristan, and finally Librarian, but Samson, perfect in the performance of these functions, neither thanked him, nor ceased denouncing the ed him, nor ceased denouncing the bankruptcy of the Abbey.

"A doubtful man," querulously said the Infirm old Abbot to the Prior.
"Severity cannot break, nor kindness soften him." So they sent him to Rome, and having falled in his mission, he was purished in the entry. sion, he was punished in the arbitrary manner of the times. But whatever he might be to Abbot and monks he was Jocelin's believed master, and he received the Sub Prior's news with lowering brow, eating no more of his goodly food. As soon as the meal was over, and the monks had marched from the refectory, singing a psalm, he seized his unemotied cup, and pour-ed the wine into his flask; then placing it with some food in his wallet he went into the garden. Taking his way furtively in the flower-scented twilight falling about the great buildings (where bats flitter in and out of the turrets, and owns hooted softly from far-off bell towers). Jocelin walked for some time, and then climb-ing cautiously, mounted the Abbey wall, and, some yards farther, came to the prison. The vesper bell had be-gun to toll, as he swung himself lightly against the tower, by getting a peri lous foothold on projecting aided by a sturdy creeper aided by a sturdy creeper which creathed its front, and he at length raised himself to the level of a deep-

"Brother Samson," he called, but there was no answer, save the deep breathing of a sleeper, which told that the worn-out traveller had thus forgotten failure and punishment ing the food and wine from his wal-let, Jocelin pushed them through the grating, and scrambling down, was soon back in the Abbey chapel, lead ing the droning vesper chant; his mellow notes rising high and clear above the rougher tones of the breth-ren in the "Ave Maria."

The inmates of the Abbey, roused from their slumbers by the tolling of bells, were assembled in their various chapels of the Nocturnal service. The rain was falling heavily, drearily, out side, and the drone the sleepy chanters mingled with the low rumble of thunder. As the last "Kyrie" was sung in the chapel of our Lady, the big Abbey bell boomed out solemn and deep. The praying monks rose from their knees, and stood looking at one another with whitening faces. It was not an alarm, nor a call to the church Slowly, slowly, it tolled, ringing sadness to every heart, and they by its sound that in the stately man-sion of Bradfield, the soul of their sion of Bradfield, the father Abbot had passed out into the stormy night.

To one man, far off in the cold darkness of the prison tower, the Abbot's death knell brought many and varied thoughts. Erother Samson had small respect for his superior, for the Athot was a weak man, of little learning, who owed his Abbotship to the favoritism of King Henry, and who who for many years had governed nost inefficiently. Samson had no love for weaklings; of Norfolk breed, he was possessed of a sturdy strength of character that no cowl could subof character that no cowl sound sub-due. Early entering St. Edmunds as a novice, on becoming a monk he had departed to the great schools of Paris, and from thence to Rome, in both centres of learning winning faire for his Abbey and commendation for him-

Rents remained uncollected; no horsemen were maintained; the whole estate evidencing the direct neglect and abuse. While the Abbot, like a frightened hen in charge of ducklings, tried valuly to rule his idle, rebellious monks finally retiring to Bradfield. monks finally retiring to Bradfield, whence he held lax sway over the dis-organized Abbey. Deeply in debt to the Jews, who were clamoring for their rights at the very gates, the Abbot and Prior signed paper after paper, reduc-ed the living fund of the Abbey, and borrowed more and more each su

So while the bell tolled, the Norfolk monk thought bitterly upon these things. "Roger, the Prior, will make such another Abbot as Hugo, and doubt not it is on him the choice will fall: an' were I out of this vile prison, wherein I am so unjustly confined!—But of the dead naught but good!" he nurmured, and checked his angry musings with a prayer for the repose of old Hugo's soul.

renose of old Hugo's soul.

Loving his Abbey, and jealous of its fame, of aggressive nature with great executive ability. Samson was feared and nicknamed "Barrator," or, "Quarreler." The monks long since had reached the conclusion; by arguing from occasional empty stomachs, and knowledge of the increasing Abbey debt. that if things were allowed tocontinue on the same basis, no roof continue on the same basis, no roof would be left to cover them, and, forc-ed to become friars, they would have to wander over the country, precarlously living on alms: and the most of them realized that it would take a strong hand and clear brain to set things right. And so already the tide was turning in Samson's favor, when Prior Roger summoned the Sub Prior, Jocelin, and some of the other breth-ren to the Abbot's house before Noc-turnal, with the news that the Prolate was dying.

GUN-FLINTS.

Their Making Still a Big Industry in Britain.

It is interesting at the present time, writes Wilfred Mark Webb in Knowledge, when the manufacture of cartridges and shells is of the utmost importance to the nation, to remember that the production of gun-flints still goes quietly on. Thousands are exported every year, particularly to tropical countries, where more primitive methods linger, or are found to the more convenien; or, again, where the British Covernment sees to it that modern firearms do not get into the hands of the natives.

There seems little doubt but that the maker of gun-flints, or the flint-knapper, as he is called, is carrying on an industry which has continued unbroken from very early prehistoric times, when man first began to fashon implements of stone and only half of the Advocates true to halfled on at Brandon, in Suffolk, in their allegance. The monks feasted briefly this: The fiints are taken out and caroused; eating flesh and break of pits, as surface material is refractory and of little use. The picks used, though now made of iron, show by their shape that they have been incdeled upon the primitive deer antler picks which havebeen found in pre-historic workings. The large flints are broken up with a heavy nammer in-to convenient sizes, a process which is called "quartering." From the lumps thus made flakes are struck off with a light haromor, which are in every way comparable to the flakes struck off by the prehistoric man from one stone with another.

It is possible to produce a flake with one ridge running down the middle and two sharp edges, or by removing the whole of one facet and part of the two on either side a flat flake with two sharp edges may be obtained. obtained.

To the student of flint implements, who is astounded sometimes to see the minuteness of the flakes which have been removed from the edgos of a flint knife or arrowhead, and won-ders how the work was done, it may be pointed out that one blow of the knapping hammer may make dozens of these; and it is safe to surmise that the pre-historic artificer was no less clever than his modern representative, and much of the beauty of finish was obtained by ish was obtained by a few well-directed blows, and not by much laborious clipping.

Gun-flints are also made in France, and these, as a rule, have one end rounded. Strike-a-lights are also rounded. Strike-a-lights are also made, as flint and steel are still used instead of matches in some parts of the world, and during the Boer war many tinder-boxes were sent out to the British soldiers in South Africa.

Amateur Truce Makers.

Toward the end of the last siege of Paris by the Germans in 1870-71, the custom grew up of observing an in-formal armistice of about an hour's duration at sundown, when the hun-gry citizens, or some of them at all events, used to come out and purchase sausages from the Prusstans and Ba-varians in the advanced trenches at about ten times their normal price. After awhile, nowever, the custom came to the knowledge of Von Moltke, who effectually and promptly put a stop to it by shooting some half dozen or more of the amateur trace makers. -Pearson's Weekly.

Our Boys are in the trenches. But we Canadians have a man's work to do,—right here at Home.

We are threatened by cowardly enemies. From these we must protect ourselves.

The Peabodys Overall Factory (Walkerville, Ontario) was bombed on the night of June 20th, because of its activity in making uniforms for Lord Kitchener's Army. The Windsor Armoury's destruction was attempted the same night because soldiers were sleeping there. The same enemy agency attempted to blow the C. P. R. Bridge at Port Arthur, also the Welland Canal. Attempts to kill and destroy in this cowardly manner have been made all over the Dominion.
