The annual Women's Auxiliary convention for the Deanery of Leeds will take place in the school room of Christ Church, Athens, on Wednesday, October 20th, beginning at 10.15 a.m. with a celebration of the Holy Communion, with Rural Dean Smith of Lyndhurst officiating.

The Ladies Guild of Trinity Church, Oak Leaf, and of Christ Church, Athens, met at the rectory on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons of last week respectively and were entertained at the tea hour by Mrs. V. O. Boyle.

Miss Edna C. Henderson returned home last evening after spending the past two weeks in Kingston a guest of her sister, Mrs. G. G. Richardson.

Mrs. M. A. Johnston left on Saturday last to take up residence in Montreal with her son Douglas, who is attending university there.

Mrs. A. W. Johnston, we are sorry to report, is in a poor state of health this week.

Miss Jacqueline Moulton is home from New York for a visit with her mother.

The anniversary services in the Methodist Church on Sunday last were largely attended and were of a very helpful nature. The decorations were really fine and those responsible should be congratulated on the appearance of the church.

The Baptist Church anniversary services were held on Sunday and Tuesday evening. All services were well attended and the lecture on Tuesday evening was enjoyed by a good audience. The Smiths Falls Male Quartette and Mr. Staff, the blind singer, were much enjoyed, and also Miss Edgar, elocutionist, Brockville.

The church known as St. Paul's Presbyterian Church will be opened on Sunday, October 17th, at 2 p.m., by the Standard Church of America. The doors will be open for all classes of people, irrespective of creed or belief. The preaching will be energetic, biblical, historical and much to the necessity of humanity. The efforts will be impartial, the invitation universal.

JAMES P. LAMB, OF ATHENS, SUCCUMBS TO SHORT ILLNESS

Prominent Man in Village and Former Reeve.

WAS LEADING FREEMASON

In Early Life Practised Dentistry in Central New York State.

Saturday morning at 4 o'clock the county of Leeds lost one of the best known and most highly respected residents in the person of Mr. James P. Lamb, Athens.

The deceased was in his usual good health until about four weeks ago when he suffered a stroke of paralysis. It undermined his fine constitution and he gradually grew weaker until the end when he passed peacefully away.

James P. Lamb was born in Elizabethtown, near New Dublin, and was in his 79th year. His grandfather was Jesse Lamb, U. E. Loyalist, who settled in Elizabethtown in 1802. His father was Simon Lamb, and the subject of this sketch was born on the farm which his grandfather received from the crown as an original patent. He was educated at the Tin Cap school, an institution with a fine reputation for the earlier days of education in this province. At the age of 15 he secured a certificate by examination and taught school at Addison, having as one of his pupils the late Hon. John P. Wood, later M. P. for Brockville, and Minister of Customs. On giving up teaching he studied dentistry with the late Dr. Maybee and for several years practised the profession at Central, N. Y. Returning to Ontario he went to Farmersville, where he purchased the drug store of the late Dr. Giles, and had continued the business very successfully for a long period. He also practised dentistry in Athens, disposing of his practice to Dr. C. B. Lillie.

THE LATE JAMES P. LAMB.

In 1872, Mr. Lamb was married to Selina Alguire, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harmonius Alguire, of Athens. She passed away on March 31, 1911. Shortly afterwards Mr. Lamb took up residence with his son, Mr. S. C. A. Lamb, who for some years has been associated with his father in business.

The late Mr. Lamb was a public spirited man and one who took a deep interest in all that appertained to his place of residence. He was for some years a member of the public and high school boards, and was reeve of Athens. In such capacity he represented the village in the counties council. He was a splendid member of these bodies. He was a man of sound judgment and had a clear vision. In 1898 he was appointed treasurer of Athens and held it until his death with great satisfaction to all. In politics he was a staunch Liberal. He was a prominent member of the Masonic order, and was Past Master of Rising Sun Lodge, Athens. He was also a member of the A.O.U.W.

In 1881 Mr. Lamb, with the late James Ross, erected the Central block, the finest business place in Athens. The death of Mr. Lamb is a distinct loss. There was no finer character in this county, and no man more generally respected. He had a fine, robust, strong personality, and his word was as good as a bond. His death is deeply mourned. His only son, Mr. S. C. A. Lamb, has the sympathy of the community in the great loss sustained.

PEDIGREE IN ANIMALS. (William Toogood, Southampton, in Sheffield, Eng., Independent.)

The dictionary meaning of pedigree is lineage, the record of the animals which have in succession entered into the breeding of the individual, so that any animal—good, bad or indifferent—may have a pedigree; but to the practical breeder the word is associated with the fixation of certain characters in a family. It represents to him not merely a string of meaningless names written on a paper, but a powerful hereditary force showing itself in the animal and in its offspring; and he values a pedigree in proportion as it shows that the majority of the animals mentioned in it possessed the qualities sought. He recognizes that pedigree is open to abuse, that the best of pedigrees is worth little without reasonable degree of individual merit in the pedigreed animal, recorded pedigree is no guarantee of purity of breeding or of value—that the variegated mongrel may number in its lineage the names of such and such famous prizewinners, of animals sold for such-and-such fabulous sums, and of other bred by such-and-such noble or celebrity; but he does not in consequence undervalue pedigree. On the contrary, he studies it carefully, as is his road to uniformity—his means of ascertaining whether the family of the pedigreed animal has systematically bred to one type. Granted that it has, the pedigree the better, for the family has been judiciously fixed to one standard or ideal, the closer it will have approached it, and the less really exist and merits detailed information about the ancestors for six generations backwards is highly desirable, though often unobtainable from ordinary pedigrees.

regarding propinquity, the influence of an indifferent parent or grand-parent will more than outweigh that of respectively an excellent grandparent of great-grandparent, and also that an ancestor of five or six generations backwards contributes relatively very little to the total heritage of the offspring. It must not, however, be assumed that an ancestor, so far removed has no influence, and so can be absolutely disregarded. Though its influence is comparatively small by that of a near progenitor, it none the less really exists and merits detailed information about the ancestors for six generations backwards is highly desirable, though often unobtainable from ordinary pedigrees.

BACKWARDS AND FORWARDS Pedigree is valuable only to the extent that it guarantees what the pedigreed animal can do. It is the breeder's guide to selection. From it he gauges the reasonable likelihood of the chosen individual transmitting to its progeny the qualities for the perpetuation of which he selects it. If he trusted to his eye alone, he might choose an animal owing its excellence only to one good descent, and therefore likely to betray in its progeny the inferiority of its remoter ancestors. Without pedigree the best animals cannot be depended on to reproduce themselves, excepting in occasional instances. An animal need not necessarily be highly bred to win prizes; but it is more likely to do so if it comes of a family bred for prize-winning, for the standard of quality maintained by its more immediate ancestry is the best indication of what an animal may be reasonably expected to do.

Thousands of women have testified in the last 15 years regarding the efficacy of DR. MARTEL'S FEMALE PILLS. ply this solution to the windshield by means of a saturated piece of gauze wiped over the glass, all strokes downward. The moisture, unless so cold that it freezes upon the glass, will drop off. Sawdust on account of its high absorbent power for liquids is much more valuable for bedding than straw. It is not rich in plant food constituents, but its subsequent decomposition in the soil gives rise to much humus-forming material. It should be used in sufficient quantity to absorb completely all the urine. Horse manure from stables using sawdust heats very rapidly, especially if left in the pile, and excessive fermentation that may take place will seriously injure the manure. Such manure should be mixed with that from the cow barn. If the manure cannot be spread at once, the heap should be kept moist and compact, as in the case of manure made with straw. The sawdust of hardwoods decomposes more readily and is richer in potash and phosphoric acid than that of pines and conifers generally.

breaths through that channel as well as the nostrils. The horse can perspire through all the pores of its body, such as a man, and cattle do the same to a limited extent, but the hog never. His escape valves are confined to the orifices upon the inside of his legs. People often wonder why it is that the hog dies so suddenly when he runs rapidly of takes quick and violent exercises by heating. But when it is considered the few escape pipes, their small capacity, and remoteness from the cavity where the heat is generated, the wonder is not that he dies quickly when overheated, but that he lives as long as he does when heated up.

FARM NEWS AND VIEWS. Colts cannot develop good bone and muscle on grass alone. Some grain must be fed daily when they are turned on pasture. Feed as much oats twice a day as the colts will clean up in about one-half hour. If oats are not available, equal parts of corn and bran will give good results. The exact amount of grain that a colt should receive cannot be definitely mentioned. The feeder must use care and good judgment in providing enough feed to keep the colts in thrifty growing condition. When pastures are short as they frequently are in the latter part of the summer, more grain and perhaps some bright hay must be fed.

An Ohio gardener practices a novel way of moistening the soil for transplanting in dry weather. The ground is marked and along the trace a continuous row or manure is laid, about a foot wide and three inches thick. This checks evaporation, and the soil soon becomes so moist that plants are set with the dibble without greatly disturbing the mulch. They make a rapid growth, and, after a rain, fairly jump.

According to tests made by the Missouri College of Agriculture, it will require 3.4 hours or man labor and 9.3 hours of horse labor to plow an acre. The farmer is often compelled to drive his automobile in the rain, and the moisture that condenses on his windshield obstructs his view. The following treatment is recommended: To one ounce of water and two ounces of glycerine add one dram of salt. Apply this solution to the windshield by means of a saturated piece of gauze wiped over the glass, all strokes downward. The moisture, unless so cold that it freezes upon the glass, will drop off.

ONE WOMAN'S EXPERIENCE Of Interest to Childless Women. Toronto, Ontario.—"I suffered for a long time from a female weakness, inflammation, and a terrible backache caused by that condition. One day one of your booklets was left at my door, and I read how other women with troubles like mine had been made well, so I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a package of Sanative Wash, and it helped me wonderfully, and I now have the finest little baby boy that any mother could want. I want to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any woman who has female troubles."—Mrs. JOSEPH LA BELLA, 773 Shaw Street, Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

Chats with the Doctor

Over and over again I receive letters from readers stating that they have been out of sorts for many months, often for many years, and that innumerable remedies have been tried to no purpose. The trouble remains. Hence that recurring little prescription I have already mentioned, whose details you must know by heart and are probably a little weary of. It is a condensed form of much that I have expressed at greater length in the column itself. "He advises walking!" you may say a little impatiently in reply. "Fresh air, regular exercise, washing, attention to bowels, and so on!" And you may go on to say that you have tried these things, too, and are little the better for them; or that advice of that kind isn't what you want. In the majority of cases that kind of objection is frankly untrue. If I were to tell you to do something more difficult or unusual, to swallow nauseous mixtures, to abstain from food, to repeat some mechanical and nonsensical charm, have your heads shaved or be fayed, such advice would stand a better chance of being taken seriously. But because the advice is so simple, so lacking in mystery, it defeats its own end. What most people who are out of condition need is not a magical remedy but ordinary, commonsense conditions of life.

CULTIVATE HEALTH. My profession does not let me forget for very long together that there is a great deal of real sickness in the world; and my experience as a doctor has taught me that a good deal of it is due to a simple cause, namely, wrong habits of life. People simply will not give themselves a chance to be well and to keep well in the world; and my experience as a doctor has taught me that a good deal of it is due to a simple cause, namely, wrong habits of life. Liked Her Mother. Six-year-old Margaret often played with Nellie, a neighbor's little girl. One rainy day, the two were just starting across the clean kitchen floor at Margaret's home when the latter's mother, seeing their muddy shoes, headed them off and sent them out to play on the porch. After a moment Nellie remarked: "My mother don't care how much I run over the kitchen floor." There was quite a long interval of silence. Then Margaret said: "I wish I had a nice, dirty mother like you've got, Nellie."

BRIGHT LAD. (Boston Transcript.) A tire company in Indianapolis was giving away toy balloons to children, and one little fellow asked if he might have two. "Sorry," said the man in charge, "but we only give one balloon to each boy. Have you a brother at home?" "No," replied the truthful youngster, "but my sister has, and I want it for him."

HORNETS MAKE PAPER.

Interesting Discovery Made by French Scientist.

That a hornet is both a maker of paper and an able builder was known even before insect science was systematized. But the processes by which the paper is made and the elaborately planned nest its built were shrouded in mystery until they were studied by Charles Janet, a French man, whose investigation of insect life has attracted much attention.

Prof. Janet found that a hornet's paper-making methods will bear comparison with those of ordinary paper mills. The hornet seeks some rotting tree, removes a piece of wood and chews it till he produces a ball of pulp about a quarter of an inch in diameter. Laden with this he flies to the nest. The search for a suitable piece of decayed wood and the chewing of it have consumed not more than six minutes, and perhaps only two. Clinging to the comb with his middle and hind feet, the worker juggles the ball of pulp with his forefeet, chewing it continuously to make it more plastic and adhesive. After sufficient chewing he disposes of the ball in repairing or in building additions. Selecting a suitable part of the nest, he attaches the ball and then drags it, leaving behind a narrow strip of paper.

As the ball of pulp is ureted it is shaped by the insect's jaws, and by incessant tamping along the joint it is glued to the sheet to which it is to form a part. When the ribbon has reached a length that varies from half an inch to an inch and a half the hornet returns nearly, but not quite, to the point of beginning, and deposits a second strip, soon after that a third and so on to completion. After a certain stage in this singular work of construction has been reached the queen of the hive emerges from her royal seclusion and performs a most astonishing operation. Carrying a ball of pulp of her own, she spins around one leg as a radius and deposits a circular ribbon of paper. Less agile than the workers, who complete their labors in two or three minutes, the queen requires at least five minutes for her spin.

Instead of building annexes to the hive, the hornet may use half the ball of pulp in cell building, although whole balls of very fine pulp are gathered for this special purpose. In principle, cell building is exactly like the process described, but the paper used is finer and the work is carried on with greater care. Like a good artisan, the worker retouches the moist cell after completion, smoothing down inequalities and finishing the walls with exquisite attention to detail.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR DANDRUFF. There is no wealth but life. Life, including all its powers of love, of joy, and of admiration. That country is the richest which nourishes the greatest number of noble and happy human beings.—Ruskin.

Why the Sky is Blue. What makes the blue sky and the glorious hues of sunset? Prof. Bragg has given the answer in a lecture on "Sounds of the Country" at the Royal Institution, London. The blue sky, he explained, was due to the interception by particles in the atmosphere of the blue rays which form a part of white light of the sun. The parts of white light conveyed by longer red and yellow light waves managed to jump the many substances in the atmosphere and were seen at sunset.

He showed a disc of light on the screen which, passing through a bowl of water, became gradually redder as the water got cloudier. Till at last, after an imitation of the sun in a November fog, it faded away. Another clever experiment showed how the wind made sounds in the trees. A stick put into a revolving bowl of water set up little whirlpools behind it. In the same way, the wind rushing past trees formed whirlwinds on a small scale, and these caused those sounds so admirably described by the imitative word "sounding." Similar sounds are set up by telegraph wires.

A Woman's Trouble

Stratford, Ont.—"I do think Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription one of the best medicines I have ever known for the ailments of women. I had for quite a long time been having woman's trouble which caused me to become all run-down, weak and nervous. I doctored but nothing seemed to give me relief until I began taking 'Favorite Prescription.' This medicine gave me such wonderful relief that I am glad to recommend it to others."—MRS. A. GODWIN, 66 Prant St.

NERVOUS AND RUN-DOWN

Brampton, Ont.—"A few years ago I was in a nervous and run-down condition and felt greatly in need of a tonic. A friend who was being helped by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery advised me to try it, too. It helped me more than I could have expected. It restored me to perfect health. I feel it a pleasure to praise the 'Golden Medical Discovery' very highly and take pleasure in recommending it to all those who are at all nervous, weak, or run-down."—MRS. ESTLER PEATSON.

Dr. Pierce's medicines are made of vegetable growths that nature surely intended for backache, headache, pains, irregularities, and for the many disorders common to women in all ages of life. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is made of lady's slipper root, black cohosh root, unicorn root, blue cohosh root, Oregon grape root and Viburnum. Women who take this standard remedy know that in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription they are getting a safe woman's tonic so good that druggists everywhere sell it in liquid or tablet form. It is without alcohol.

HOG'S LEGS PERFORM A FUNCTION.

The legs of a hog perform a function not known to any other animal, and that is an escape pipe or pipes for the discharge of waste matter or sweat not used in the economy of the body. These pipes are situated upon the inside of the legs, above and below the kneed joints in the hind legs, but in the latter they are very small and the functions are slight. Upon the inside of the forelegs they are, in a healthy hog, always active, so that moisture is always there about the healthy hog. The holes in the legs and breathing in the hog are his principal and only means of ejecting an excess of heat above normal, and when very warm the hog will open the mouth and

SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson III. Oct. 17, 1920. Jesus Begins His Ministry.

Commentary. The Prophecy fulfilled (vs. 12-17). 12. When Jesus had heard...

13. Leaving Nazareth—Jesus went to His home, preached in the synagogue at Nazareth...

14. Sat in darkness—The prophet was portraying the condition of the people when Christ should appear.

15. Calling disciples (vs. 18-22). 18. Walking by the sea, Jesus had for a time carried on his Galilean ministry alone.

19. Follow me—Jesus had need of them and they had need of him. The time had now come for them to be permanently with him as fellow workers.

20. Straightway—At once, immediately, left their nets—Luke says, "They forsook all" (5:11).

21. Other two brethren—There were two sets of brothers among the disciples. These also had been his followers, and were prominent among the apostles.

22. Left the ship and father—The sacrifice expressed here is greater than that mentioned in the case of Peter and Andrew.

23. Preaching and healing (vs. 23-25). 23. All Galilee—This was Christ's first tour of this country. It denotes great activity and effort to bring the truths of the new kingdom to the knowledge of all teaching in their synagogues.

24. Fame—The reputation gained by what he had done. All Syria—A region of somewhat indefinite extent reaching to the Mediterranean on the west and far to the north and east.

25. Departed into Galilee—Galilee was the northern of the three divisions of Palestine. It lay south of Mount Lebanon and between the Mediterranean Sea on the west and the Jordan and the Sea of Galilee on the east.

26. Christ's early ministry. The public ministry of Jesus should commence at Jerusalem as equally in keeping with the fitness of things and the expectations awakened by prophetic declarations.

27. Christ's early ministry. That the public ministry of Jesus should commence at Jerusalem as equally in keeping with the fitness of things and the expectations awakened by prophetic declarations.

The Spirit of Worship

Those who remember the eighth day of October of this year, will remark of it as being an ideal autumn day. Taking advantage of the fair weather to build a foundation for a shelter at my prospective island home (in the company of a fellow workman), I took passage in a row-boat across the western waters of Ontario's prettiest lake; and though tired from the labor of previous days, I became deeply, though favorably impressed with the spirit of worship, due largely to the beautiful and varied scenes that opened to our view, as we slowly wended our way in the direction of the White Hills.

I had been across these waters many times before; both in storm and sunshine, alone and in company, rowing and in the tow of motor craft, but on no previous occasion did the thought of reverence and worship so fasten itself to my mind. The sun was shining as brightly as ever I saw it shine. The air was cool and bracing. The wind was blowing steadily, but softly, from the southwest. The lofty, blue encircled mountain peak to the south, seemed to smile as it stood out in bold relief on the horizon; did ever so bright a sky look down into so enchanting a lake.

But lest one becomes overjoyful in the presence of such marvellous beauty, a tinge of sadness comes to us. Why! Looking shoreward, we notice that the singing birds are congregating for departure to a warmer climate. The leaves of the forest, once a modest green, though not yet fallen, have changed to red brown and yellow, a sure indication of the retreating fear, dead nature laid out in state.

Inspiration is a divine gift, and comes to the mind through various avenues and circumstances. To the thoughtful, well balanced mind, the mind imbued with high ideals and a definite purpose, always has "that" within him, or given him from time to time, which enables him to not only recognize the source of his inspiration but to graciously acknowledge it; in other words, he realizes that the fountain head lies beyond the finite, and concludes that it must be in the realm of the Infinite; therefore he humbly bows before the Creator, the divine, satisfied that He and He alone, is the giver of all good and perfect gifts, too wise to err and too good to be unkind.

These fine thoughts, these contrite feelings, this deeper conception, this heavenly attuning of the mind, either escape, or at least have no effect upon the ordinary, or average, 20th century mind for various reasons; chief of which is indifference.

The mind is a divinely strung instrument of marvellous capabilities, but if we neglect to keep it properly attuned, open and receptive, it soon becomes dulled to the finer senses, content to feed upon and associate with the lower or worldly environments; the sure course of the unregenerated nature.

The spirit of worship and the sustaining influences of Divine, are the exalted privilege of every man, regardless of the number of talents that he may possess; but if he allows his mind to become occupied and satisfied with the material, the things that perish, he never can hope to rise into that nobler and better sphere of usefulness and devotion designed by the great author of his being.

Sooner or later we must all pass the way of the autumn leaf, the retreating year, through the agonies of dissolution. Let us then act wisely, ever alert to catch the finer sounds, the sweeter melodies of Divine tuition; so that we shall, not only come to the full enjoyment of the life that now is, but also that which is to come, forever associated with Him that sitteth on the throne.

BODY OF AGED MAN FOUND IN A WOODS NEAR CHARLESTON

John Spence, 82, Had Wandered From Home.

LAST SEEN SEPTEMBER 29

In His Enfeebled Condition He Was Unable to Withstand Nights in the Open.

After he had been ten days missing from his home near Charleston, the dead body of John Spence, aged 82, a retired farmer, was found Sunday by searchers in a wood near Sheatown, two and a half miles east of Charleston. Dr. J. F. Harte, of Athens, who was summoned, decided that an inquest was unnecessary and the funeral was held Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The late Mr. Spence was a man well known in Charleston and vicinity. On Sept. 29 he left home and when he did not return a searching party was organized. Their efforts proved unavailing until yesterday when James Keyes and David Spence, of Charleston, found the old man's body in a wood belonging to Joseph Morris, located near Sheatown. He had evidently wandered from his home and in his enfeebled condition was unable to withstand the nights in the open. The body was somewhat decomposed.

Dr. J. F. Harte, Athens, was summoned and after making an investigation decided that an inquest was not necessary, death having very evidently been due to natural causes.

The deceased spent almost his entire life in the vicinity of Charleston. Surviving are four sons and two daughters, Thomas, Charleston; Samuel, Sheatown; Robert, Brockville; William, Dobbs' Settlement; Mrs. Allan Kavanagh, Sheatown, and Mrs. Davison, Sheatown.

Paint Protection vs. DECAY

Any surface that is covered with Glidden Endurance Paint is well covered and will not decay easily, for Glidden protection is good protection and saves the cost of frequent repairs.

Glidden Endurance Paint prevents decay, keeps out moisture from the wood and resists wear from changing weather conditions without scaling or cracking.

Glidden Endurance Paint stays fresh and bright for a long time, wears well and looks well—and because of its durability is the cheapest paint you can buy.

For everything about the home or farm that needs to be painted, stained, enameled, varnished or finished in any way, there is a Glidden product made especially for that purpose.

WHY IT IS GOOD TO BE BRITISH.

"Trifling Day," October 31, will be celebrated in every school in the province, and the Navy League of Canada is offering $100 in prizes for the four best stories written on "Why It is Good To Be British." The particulars of the competition are: Prizes—1st, $50, for pupils of the High School and of Upper Schools, also for boys and girls who are educating themselves through home lessons. 2nd, $25, for pupils below the High School grades in public and private schools. 3rd, $15, for pupils below the High School grades in public and private schools. 4th, $10, for pupils below the High School grades in public or private schools. Not less than 200 and not more than 500 words. Read carefully the last paragraph of Archbishop Cody's address to the annual meeting of the Ontario Division of the Navy League, May 12, 1920. This appears on page 10 of the printed reports, a copy of which you may have upon request. Study carefully chapter 21 of the Navy League Reader, "Flag and Fleet" (Wood). This reader is endorsed for school!

reading by the Ontario Department of Education. Its value is best expressed by Admiral Earl Beatty, who says: "To read Colonel William Wood's 'Flag and Fleet' will ensure that the lessons of centuries of war will be learnt, and that the most important lesson of them all is this, that as an empire, we came into being by the sea, and that we cannot exist without the sea." This will help you to understand a little of what Archbishop Cody means when he speaks of "world peace and world freedom." Now write a short story of not less than 200 and not more than 500 words, telling in your own way what event in the "Flag and Fleet" Chapter you think best explains "Why It is Good To Be British." That will be the title of your story. You will find many such events mentioned in the chapter as: The breakup of Algerian slavery. The protection of the Greeks from Turkish murderers. The safety of Canada's coasts and the freedom of her shipping. The guardianship of British citizens in foreign lands. The saving of India and Egypt, etc., etc. Remember, it is not the boys and girls who say the most, nor who tell their story in the nicest way, who are sure to win the prizes. The prize winners will be those whom the judges consider feel most sincerely what they write, and who take the most pains to express themselves clearly and accurately.

His illness is reported in this issue. Mrs. C. Howson, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Hunter and children, from Smiths Falls, were Sunday visitors at Mrs. Mulvanna's. Mrs. W. Crozier has recovered from her long illness so as to be able to return to her home at the Outlet. W. G. Crozier is away on a hunting trip. W. McKernan has returned to Queen's university, Kingston. "O hear us when we cry to Thee For those in peril on the sea!"

Have you ever been at sea in a storm and seen the clouds lowering, the wind rising and the waves running mountains high, decks treacherous and the crew anxious? Unless you have, you cannot imagine its awful majesty, or the courage it calls up and the spirit it commands in men.

Many Canadians Have Never Seen the Sea—

Yet the sea is Canada's World-Trade highway. The sea and the Merchant Sailors make us prosperous. But the Merchant Seaman's life is hard and perilous. He wages continuous battle against the forces of nature. The real sailor is not the deck steward or attendant on comfortable ocean liners. His ship is no floating palace. His voyage no pleasure trip.

The Real Sailor's Ship is the Tramp Steamer—

or Windjammer, beating against gales—decks awash—sleep a stranger for days and nights on end. Frozen in winter, dodging icebergs in spring, groping through fogs off treacherous banks, beating round the Horn, fighting through typhoons, or becalmed in the Yellow Sea. Tough going all the way.

Death Always Hovers Over the Wheel—

Is it any wonder, then, that the Navy League wants to make life comfortable for our sailors when ashore? After all, Canada is their home; and the home, while they are here, of the sailors of other lands. The Navy League endows, maintains or assists in maintaining every Sailor's Home, Institute and Welfare Society in Canada. And every dollar subscribed for the maintenance of these Homes and Institutes will be money well invested, and redound to our national prosperity.

The Sea is Our Heritage and Our Strength—

In proportion as we develop this Sea-Conscious Spirit so shall we advance in world civilization and trade. We can only develop our Sea-Conscious Spirit, by making life more endurable to Canadian Sailors. And it is for this purpose that a portion of the Navy League's Fund is set aside. To carry on its work next year, the Navy League must have $760,000. This money must be raised next week. It is not a large amount and borne in proportion from Coast to Coast it must surely be subscribed.

The Navy League of Canada

SAILORS' WEEK CAMPAIGN
October 18—23. Dominion Objective $760,000.

The work of the Navy League is—

- to enlighten people upon the importance of the sea; so that Canadian products may be shipped, through Canadian ports, in Canadian ships, officered and manned by trained Canadians.
- to encourage and to undertake the training of Canadian lads to man Canada's Navy and Mercantile Marine.
- to formulate a fundamentally sound policy for the training of our present sea-faring population, to meet an emergency, so that Canadian overseas commerce will be adequately protected.
- to support facilities for making the Sailor's life ashore endurable.
- to provide for dependents of those who died to protect Canada, Nationally, Imperially and Commercially.
- These objects can only be achieved through an organization representative of public responsibility and outside party politics.

W.C.T.U. Convention

The provincial Women's Christian Temperance Union convention was held in Smiths Falls last week, from October 4 to 9 inclusive. There were over 200 delegates from all over the province. Ottawa sent 31, Toronto 15, Brockville 9, Pembroke 7, Kingston 4. Many came from western Ontario and as far north as Kitchener and North Bay. About the convention there was an atmosphere of great earnestness and buoyant hope, the result doubtless of the success which in the past few years has crowned their arduous labors of many preceding decades. Those occupying the presidential chair for the last 30 years were all present, and also the Dominion President, Mrs. Gordon Wright.

Greetings were extended from all the sister societies of the town, and all the protestant churches helped to banquet and entertain the visitors, and the delegates will not soon forget their splendid entertainment. All the sessions were well attended and there were many committee meetings and conferences in the interests of the work held between sessions. Those from this district were Mrs. Mackie, Miss Wood and Miss Howarth from Hard Island, and Mesdames Newton, H. R. Knowlton, Slack and B. H. Brown from Athens. All returned Friday afternoon reporting a pleasant and profitable time, except Mrs. Brown, who joined her husband at Perth and motored with a party of friends to Clayton and Carleton Place, returning on Monday.

Philipville

Mr. and Mrs. W. William Livingston of Frankville, and Mr. and Mrs. McGilvray, of North Dakota, formerly of Smiths Falls, Mr. and Mrs. S. Bullie, of Winnipeg, Mr. and Mrs. Palmer and Aunt Lucy Bullie, of Plum Hollow, were guests of Mrs. July Dawson.

Mrs. Percy Alford will be the guest of Mrs. Putnam for a few days.

Mrs. Garrett handed your correspondent a bunch of raspberries picked from her garden, and a number of them were ripe.

Mrs. H. C. Davison is spending a week with her father, W. B. Phelps. The corn husking bee at H. Coon's called out a large number of young people of both sexes, and the dance that followed was enjoyed by all present.

L. N. Phelps, wife and daughter, Mrs. H. Howard, visited his daughter, Mrs. E. A. Whitmore, on Saturday. Owing to illness this is his first visit in nearly three years.

A number from here attended the funeral on Monday of the late J. P. Lamb at Athens.

TOLEDO.

Mr. Hiram Nichol and his niece, Mrs. William Hull, have returned home from visiting Ottawa friends.

Mr. William Hull is busy these days drawing potatoes to Smith Falls at $1 per bushel.

A large number from here attended the W.C.T.U. convention held in Smiths Falls the last few days.

Mr. Archie Donaldson made a business trip to Massena, N.Y., recently.

At the annual school fair held at Plum Hollow recently, Toledo came through with honors, winning the shield for this year, getting first in the school parade and gathering in cash prizes to the amount of over $22.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Woods, of Lombardy, spent Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. W. Hull.

Miss Anna Hull was a recent visitor of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Parker.

Men will begin shortly drawing gravel, stone and cement to make the base for the soldiers' memorial to be erected on the village green, although the monument proper will not be put in place until a later date. All honor to our brave boys who lived true to their convictions, and it should be a very fitting remembrance. If Toledo could also procure a trench mortar or some other war trophy to be placed beside the memorial shaft.

Wedding bells will ring in this village the early part of this coming week, Toledo losing one of its most popular young ladies, Miss Anna

NEW SCHEME OF ROUTE TO SEA

Would Be An All-Canadian Route, And Joint Body Cannot Consider It.

Ottawa, Oct. —The proposal to provide a route for ocean-going ships from Montreal to the Great Lakes, by way of the Ottawa River to a short distance below Ottawa and then through a deep water canal across to the St. Lawrence at Cardinal, was laid before the International Joint Waterways Commission when it opened its session here this afternoon. The members of the commission present were: Hon. A. Powell, St. John, N.B., acting chairman; Sir William Hearst, representing Canada; Senator C. Gardner and Senator C. D. Clarke, representing the United States. The plan was submitted by John Bingham, president of the Ottawa Board of Trade, and Noulan Cauchon, consulting engineer.

The advantage claimed for this route as against deepening of St. Lawrence River canal system, are that it would be much less expensive; there will be no great engineering difficulties to be overcome; there would be fewer locks, and it would reclaim 2,000 square miles of farm lands in Eastern Ontario now in swamps. These advantages, it was claimed, would more than offset the greater distance the boats would have to travel.

It was further argued that it would be an all-Canadian route, free from international complications. It was estimated that it would be cheaper by nearly $100,000,000 than the St. Lawrence River scheme.

In regard to the power possibilities of the St. Lawrence route, it was claimed that Canada could not make use of it at present, and consequently it would be conveyed to the United States. It would be better to develop the St. Lawrence power from time to time as it was required. The commissioners were deeply interested in the proposal, but pointed out that as it was a purely Canadian project, the international body was hardly the right one to consider it.

WHEAT AND CORN AGAIN IN SLUMP

Reach New Low Levels On Chicago Market.

Corn Slump Carries Down Hog Prices.

Chicago, Oct. —Wheat and corn to-day repeated yesterday's tendencies and declined three to six cents more a bushel to new low levels on the Chicago market. Oats, barley and rye also declined, but to no great extent.

Coincident with the wheat reductions came announcement from Minneapolis of further reductions in the price of quotations. Corn declined $10.90 to $11 a barrel, in carload lots. Corn declines carried down the price of hogs—"finished corn"—and the top was $16.85, with the average nearer $15.

December delivery of wheat closed to-day at $1.99 1-2, compared with yesterday's $1.95, and December corn ended the day with 84 3-8, compared with 86 cents yesterday, and $1.11 7-8 a year ago.

Corn for October delivery closed at 89 1-2, a cent and a half under yesterday, and far below the $1.40 quoted a year ago.

VENGEANCE GANG IS FOUND GUILTY

Egyptian Anti-British Murder League Tried.

Blamed for Many Assassinations.

Cairo, Oct. —Twenty-five members of the so-called "Vengeance Gang," alleged to be an anti-British society organized to conduct assassinations of political personages, have been convicted of conspiracy by a court before which they had been on trial for several weeks. The sentences will be promulgated later. Four of the accused persons were acquitted. Among those convicted was Abdul Rahman Bey Fahmy, former Provisional Governor, and at one time a servant of the executive. He was charged with being a member of the "Vengeance Gang," and also with incitement to murder.

Numerous assassinations and attempted murders are credited to the society, which had an elaborate organization and worked with great secrecy. The objects of the society are alleged to have been the deposition of the Sultan and his assassination, together with the Ministers and other persons who did not receive the approval of the society. It was charged that the organization also preached sedition and distributed arms.

CUBA'S CANE CROP

Havana, Cuba, Oct. —Prediction that Cuba's cane crop would be inferior to the one of 1919, and that its product would not reach the market before February 1922, was made in a bulletin issued last night by the sales commission which represents holders of a considerable portion of this year's uncut crop.

SNIPING FROM DUBLIN CHURCH

Soldiers Shooting at Him Alarm Neighbors.

Dublin, Oct. —Roused by the sharp cracks of rifles and machine guns, residents of Cork, near the Capuchin Church, hustled from the upper rooms of their homes into the cellars early to-day as bullets sang overhead. The fire was directed against the church by soldiers who had spotted a sniper. An official statement said that the soldiers were fired upon and merely returned the fire. The church itself bears the marks of many bullets.

The soldiers made raid after raid in Dublin to-day. One of the places broken into was the Redmond headquarters—There were no arrests. No arms nor ammunition were found. At Wexford, the Mayor, the Registrar and a merchant were arrested in a military raid on a Sinn Fein Arbitration Court.

The Freeman's Journal is authority for the statement that Chief Inspector Smythe, of the Royal Irish Constabulary, has gone to Belfast to organize the Ulster Volunteers.

On the arrival in Dublin this morning of the mails from the provinces, and from England, a military party entered the central sorting station and carried away all the letters. Business men, inquiring for their mail, were informed that the military authorities had all of it, but that delivery would take place after the letters had been examined. A similar method of obtaining information already has been employed by the Government in other Irish centres.

Another sensational raid was conducted in the city during business hours to-day, when armed men held up and robbed the Richmond street branch of the Provincial Bank. They carried off £2800 and escaped.

The residents of Cork had another terrifying experience early this morning. The cause of the trouble, was a brush between the military and unidentified persons, who fired on curfewpatrols. The patrols replied with heavy fusillades of machine guns, sweeping all areas with searchlights.

Armed bands attacked the police barracks at Skibberin last evening, taking prisoner 15 policemen and seizing arms and ammunition. The barracks was burned. There were no casualties.

ISOLATES GRIP; TO GIVE REMEDY

Paris, Oct. —Dr. Du Jarric de le Riviere told the Paris Council of Public Hygiene and Health to-day that he has practically isolated the microbe of grip. He describes it as an ultra-microbe of filtering virus organism not larger than a ten-thousandth of a millimetre and so small that the most powerful microscopes cannot detect it in the liquids in which it lives.

By a process of successive filtrations, Dr. Du Jarric has isolated the microbes without seeing them in the blood of sick people, and has re-infected monkeys. He says he expects to have a definite cure before winter, when an epidemic similar to that of 1918 is predicted.

FARM CONDITIONS

New Fall Wheat Fair—Threshing Results Good.

The following is a summary of the weekly reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

The milk flow was somewhat reduced by the unusually warm weather of the latter part of September, but is about normal for the season.

Little pigs are bringing from $16 to $18 a pair in Brant. The recent action of a number of milk powder plants in western Ontario, which have shut down or have changed operations in handling their milk, has caused dairy farmers to again look upon swine raising with favor. Bacon hogs are now selling at from $20 to $25.50 a cwt.

The new fall wheat is said to be looking in fair condition, generally speaking. All grains except spring wheat continue to show well in the threshing—better than was estimated at harvesting. The quality is also good as a rule.

A man told the Willedeen magistrate that out of a wage of £3 Os, 4d, he gave his wife £3 and kept the fourpence for himself.

Call Down Germany Over Aid to Poland

Paris, Oct. —The Council of Ambassadors yesterday despatched a note to Germany demanding the immediate release of the ships loaded with munitions for Poland which are being held in the Kiel Canal by the German authorities. The note specifically mentions the Danish ship Dorrit, but there are two other ships which also are being held.

Germany has taken the position that she is neutral in the Russo-Polish war, and that therefore she could not permit the passage of the ships, which are destined for Danzig. The Ambassadors point out in their note that Germany's attitude constitutes a direct violation of the treaty of Versailles, inasmuch as the treaty specifies that the Kiel Canal is a free waterway for all nations of the world.

The note is couched in the strongest terms, and leaves no room for further discussion on the part of Germany.

THINK BURNING OF BISMARCK A BIT OF GERMAN TREACHERY

Inter - Allied Commission Will Probe Loss of Giant Ship.

Paris, Oct. —The Inter-Allied Commission in Berlin will be requested to investigate the circumstances of the burning at Hamburg of the German steamship Bismarck, which was building at a shipyard in the port of Hamburg, and was to have been delivered to the Allies under the terms of the peace treaty. Berlin despatches on Tuesday announced the burning of the Bismarck which was to have been a steamer of 56,000 gross tons, nearly 2,000 more than the tonnage of the Vaterland, now the Leviathan, which would have made her the world's largest steamer, and added that no explanation was given in the Hamburg advices as to the cause of the fire.

The Bismarck had been virtually completed and would have been surrendered to the Inter-Allied Naval Commission within a few weeks, according to the provisions of the treaty of Versailles.

The French Government will also ask Germany for explanations regarding the burning of the Bismarck, the foreign Office stated to-day.

SOVIETS EAGER TO GIVE TERMS

Moscow Ready to Meet All Demands.

Famine Ahead Far Worse Than Recent One.

Paris, Oct. —In comment to-day upon the successes of the Poles and General Wrangel against the Russian Soviet troops, the opinion was expressed by the French Foreign Office that the situation of the Soviet Government had never been so precarious as it was at present.

The Soviet authorities, it was declared, had never been as ready as now to make concessions, as was shown by their present eagerness to fulfill the agreement entered into at Copenhagen between the French Government and the Moscow Government for the repatriation of French citizens from Russia. Previously great reluctance has been displayed by the Moscow officials to carry on the undertaking.

The French Government, while the Polish drive was at the height of its success, however, informed Moscow that it would take such measures as it deemed necessary if all French subjects were not permitted to leave Russia before October 1st. Several hundred of these reached Paris last night on a special train, and 600 more crossed the Finnish frontier yesterday.

In interior Russia, the Foreign Of-ice advices showed, it was said, that the situation was desperate owing to the threatened famine, which it was predicted would make the two previous winters seem to have been seasons of abundance by comparison.

PLAN TO CLIMB MOUNT EVEREST

London, Oct. —A plan to climb the highest mountain peak in the world, Mount Everest, is under consideration by a committee of the Royal Geographical Society and the Alpine Club. The mountain's height is 29,002 feet.

To ascend Mount Everest it probably will be necessary for the party to approach the mountain by way of Tibet and thus reach a side of the peak that can be ascended part way at least. Exploration by white men is not permitted in Nepal, which surrounds part of the base of the mountain.

A JEWEL IN THE ROUGH

"I could love him immensely," she said, stretching out her arms. "Oh, he could have such a love from me if he wanted it: but as it is, I don't see much use in my staying with him. I feel I'd like to go back to my old life and forget I ever married him."

"I am the only person who has power or authority to give a lease on these claims," returned Talbot, in a short, hard voice. The men hesitated. Talbot looked pretty tough himself as he stood there facing them, clothed in buckskin from head to foot, his head nearly touching the lintel of the door-way above him, his revolver in his side, and behind him looming the tunnel, a gaping mouth of blackness.

"Do you think he would care?" she said, opening her eyes to her turn. "I'm sure he would," Talbot answered, with so much emphasis and decision that the girl sat silent and impressed for some seconds. "Why is he not more amiable, then?" she asked.

The men shuffled their feet on the snow and grinned at each other uneasily. It did not seem they could work the game of bluff here that they had thought out in the town. "Well, that's your opinion," returned the leader, in a bantering tone, while the others closed in nearer the threshold in a jeering circle; "but a lease from General Marshall is good enough for us, and I guess we're coming in."

"They're fools," replied Katrina, archly, while the lot tears fell thickly to her lap. Stephen came in at the moment and though Katrina made no attempt to conceal the fact that she was crying, he took no notice of her, but began talking to Talbot about the wood.

"You'd better try it," returned Talbot, and he slammed the heavy door in their faces, and fastened it on the inside. He expected them to force it, and he hastily dragged together some sacks of rich dirt that were lying in the tunnel and piled them up, forming quite a respectable barricade. Behind these he took his stand, his revolver in his hand. With six against one he felt they must win in the end, but he thought he could put a bullet through half of their number as they advanced, and he'd sell his claim and his life dearly.

"Can I come with you?" asked Katrina, looking at him with her soft pathetic eyes still brimming with tears. "Why—yes—I suppose so," returned Stephen, slowing opening the stove and looking in.

He waited some moments, but nothing happened. There was silence outside, and a duffer a second or two he stepped back to his sitting-room and looked out of the window. A council of war was taking place seemingly: The men had withdrawn to a little distance, where there was some tin pipping. They had seated themselves on this, and were now in earnest conversation. Talbot stood at the window and watched them with a dry smile. He could tell their talk almost from their expressions and their gestures. It was one thing to come up and bluff a man out of his property, and walk in and take it as he walked out, and another to force a narrow tunnel against the straight, steady fire of a fearless devil like this. They could overpower him in the end, there was no doubt of that; but then when they walked in it would be over his dead body, that was clear, and several others beside him, for he was known to be the quickest, straightest shot in the district, and could certainly get away with some of them. It was this part they did not like, for each man felt he might be the one to be picked off and stretched stiff in the tunnel. So there was considerable parleying and hesitation among them, and Talbot stood motionless at the window watching them, as they sat there, and noting the length of their six-shooters that dangled down the sides of their legs. At last there was a concerted movement among them—they got up with one accord, and without another glance at the cabin walked slowly away across the plateau in front of the house and round the corner of it toward the town trail, the way they had come. Talbot watched them disappear in the gray light of the dusk with surprise, and then drew a deep breath. He hardly knew whether he felt relieved or disappointed. His blood was up then, and he would have liked to send a bullet through a few of them. He roamed about restlessly for some time, and went to the back of the house to a little square window, and from there watched the last of them mount the trail and disappear from the gulch. Then all was silence and solitude again in the swiftly falling darkness. He turned into his sitting-room, and stirred the fire into a blaze and lighted up the lamps—his lamps always burned well and brightly, being kept scientifically clean and "I don't know. It's a confounded nuisance having to leave the claims a whole afternoon, I think."

Katrine got up suddenly from where she was sitting and walked into the next room without a word. Her tears were dried, her smile—killed. The following day was clear and bright, and a cold, pinky-looking winter sunlight filled the air. Katrina and Stephen started early, and Talbot did not expect them back till dark. He was out on the claims all morning, and came into his lunch late and did not go on: again immediately. It was a day for a half-holiday, and all his men left early, the claims were deserted, and Talbot found himself in solitary possession of the gulch. He felt restless and unsettled, and walked about his little bare room in an aimless way quite unusual to him, and the early part of the afternoon had passed away before he realized it.

In one of his walks he went up to the window and stood looking out. The gulch always impressed him. It had a solemn, melancholy majesty and desolate grandeur that is not easy to define in words—an icy splendor by moonlight, and a horrible gloomy beauty toward the fall of the day. It was at this time that Talbot stood looking out at its rugged edges and the snow-drifts turning gray as the sunlight left them, and listening with a sort of mechanical tension to the unbroken and impressive stillness round him, when his eye caught sight of a man's figure moving slowly toward the house. It had appeared so suddenly where for hours there had reigned unbroken silence and loneliness, that Talbot started a little with sheer surprise, and then another appeared, and another. They were coming, one behind the other, singly, round the corner of the house, and as they emerged into view on the level platform in front of it, Talbot looked them over and saw at a glance to what order they belonged.

"As though a crowd of claim-jumpers as I have seen," he murmured to himself as he watched their movements. They did not seem very decided or certain, nor well agreed among themselves. They were six in all, and they advanced toward the house in a loitering way, pausing once or twice to talk with each other, and glancing over the cabin. They were all dressed alike, in large slouch hats, thick boots and high leggings, and short coats with a belt round the waist, from which depended their enormous six-shooters. As they finally in their loitering fashion neared the door, Talbot walked to it, threw it wide open, and asked them what they wanted, and then one said he had a lease on the claims from General Marshall.

trimmed with his own hands—then he flung himself into a chair and sat there gazing into the flames; his revolver beside him on the table. He half expected the men to return, and his ears remained attentive to the slightest sound without. But there was nothing, absolute stillness reigned all round him: not a crackle of the fire, not a sound nor the fall of a leaf broke the grave-like silence.

FREQUENT HEADACHES A DANGER SIGNAL

THE VICTIM NEARLY ALWAYS SUFFERS FROM WEAK WATERY BLOOD.

There are few ailments that cause more genuine misery than nervous or sick headaches. Only those who have endured the suffering, sometimes for days at a stretch can realize the agony of the victims. Noises increase the pain, food is unthought of, for it only adds to the distress. When the attack is on there is little to be done until it passes away. These headaches are nearly always a danger signal that too frequently pass unheeded. They are the symptoms of many maladies, such as anaemia, constipation, indigestion, etc., and when these are cured the headaches permanently disappear.

PRIZE HOG AS HOTEL'S GUEST

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. —In Iowa nothing is too good for the hog. Baby "Hawkeye Giant," an eight-months-old junior champion porker, weighing 350 pounds, and valued at $10,000, arrived at a prominent downtown hotel in an expensive automobile yesterday, "walked into the hotel lobby on carpets spread especially for his visit, was registered for by W. J. Carmichael, secretary of the National Swine Show, posed for a picture, and then snorted his way laudably into the elevator and rose to a tenth floor, corner front room, where he spent the night."

HENNA-SHADED SUITS FOR MEN

Latest Design of Tailors of America. Coats Longer Next Year—No Belts.

Chicago, Oct. —The only shocking thing in the latest styles for men is by inference only. A henna-shaded suit is being exhibited by the Merchant Tailor Designers' Association.

That doesn't sound significant until you remember the increasing popularity of that hue as applied to women's hair. Now, if this color is being used because necessity is the mother of invention, wives might demand an investigation of some kind or another. No doubt they will do the probing themselves every day after hubby gets up wearing the suit. Tailors announce that this new shade is "the berries." Otherwise the suit is rather tame. Coats will be longer next year than they were this season by at least two inches. There will be no pads in the shoulders. The general effect of the coat will be slimmish, as the three buttons will hold it soberly together in front.

Overcoats are going to be large and boxy. The belt will be banished. It's a relic of the war. Half-belts, however, will be permissible in ulsters and ulsterettes. W. R. Stansbury, of Detroit, has promised one innovation. He is designing a waistcoat for fat men that will give the heavies who wear them the lithesome appearance of a French corsage. CHEAP HOMES.

Using the Material Already on the Site.

The way to own a home at a minimum of expense is to build it of material already on the site. Earth for instance. The requisite earth may be had for the digging, and there is nothing to pay for transportation. In England this idea is being taken up, with the exception that the building of rammed-earth dwelling houses on an extensive scale will help importantly to solve the housing problem, bricks being scarce and expensive. We have our own housing problem in this country, and it is daily becoming more serious. Why not use rammed earth for building?

A house of this material costs one-fifth as much as a brick house of the same size. It is quickly erected, and, being finished with plaster, is handsome. Furthermore, it is an enduring structure, and is rat-proof and mouse-proof. There are in European countries many such buildings that date actually from prehistoric times. In parts of France and Spain this simplest of all methods of house construction has long been practised, and recently it has been adopted with great success in South Africa and other British dominions. Planks are set up on edge to form a mold, and the space between is filled with earth, which is then rammed as tight as possible. The ramming, of course, can be done much more advantageously and cheaply by machine; likewise the digging. If the subsoil be clay, the latter, mixed with straw and "puddled," furnishes a first-class material, utilisable in the same way. This is what is called in England "cob building." The birthplace of Sir Walter Raleigh was a cob house, and it is in as good condition as ever to-day.

ATHENS CITIZENS PAID TRIBUTE TO MEMORY J. P. LAMB

Business in Classic Village Suspended Monday Afternoon.

SERMON BY REV. NEWTON
Members of Rising Sun Lodge, A. F. & A. M., Conducted Last Rites at Grave.

Amid a scene of profound sorrow all that was mortal of James P. Lamb was laid to rest in the cemetery at Athens on Monday afternoon. Out of respect to the memory of the oldest business man in the village, all of the stores were closed during the time of the obsequies.

At 2 o'clock the body was removed from his late residence, Main street, and the cortege which proceeded along Main, Victoria and Church streets, was one of the largest ever seen in that part of Leeds county. The members of Rising Sun Lodge, A. F. and A. M. attended in a body.

The services at the Methodist church were in charge of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Newton, assisted by Rev. Mr. Nicholl, of the Athens Baptist church. Rev. Mr. Nicholl led in prayer after which Hymn No. 548 was sung. Messrs. Eaton and Hornefield sang a duet.

The sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. Newton. He prefaced his discourse by paying a splendid eulogy to the memory of the departed. He said that it was unnecessary for him to make any extensive reference to the late Mr. Lamb. For the people of Athens and vicinity knew him better than the speaker. He had met the deceased on assuming the pastoral charge at Athens last June. He had ministered to him in his last illness. He referred to the fact that Mr. Lamb, who was so attentive to business during his long and useful life, was stricken while in the discharge of duty. Continuing the speaker traced the life of the deceased from the time he was a school teacher, from that to a dentist and subsequently a druggist. His life was before the public in the different spheres in which he lived and he was most highly spoken of by all as a splendid neighbor and a good citizen. He had heard one old and near neighbor say of Mr. Lamb that if the latter could not say a good word of a person, he certainly would not utter evil or anything harmful. He exhorted others to take a leaf out of the note book of the deceased and practice the same kind of Christian charity of speech and action. Reference was made by Rev. Mr. Newton to the fact that Mr. Lamb was a great Bible student and that up to March 20, last, he read the New Testament some 20 times and the Old Book several times. He urged on all to read the scripture as it is an exercise good for old and young. He said that any person having a love for the scriptures salvation was assured. With the mind filled with the precious truths contained in the Bible, there is a much better chance of passing through the pearly gates than otherwise. For those who do not show a regard for the scriptures it is hard to grasp the essentials of God's truth. Mr. Lamb had averred that he always found something new in the Bible. He would encourage all others to go and do likewise. He said that it did not matter whether the person accepted Christian salvation or not, a reading and studying of the scriptures would find the truth and be food from day to day.

In closing his personal tribute Rev. Mr. Newton referred to the large congregation present, the sacred edifice being filled to capacity, as an evidence of the esteem in which Mr. Lamb was held by all classes in Athens and the surrounding country. He took occasion on behalf of all to offer the deepest sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. S. C. A. Lamb and other relatives.

Taking as text, "Therefore being justified by faith we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ," Romans, Chap. 5, verse 1. Continuing Rev. Mr. Newton preached a powerful sermon on "Faith." He defined the true significance of faith, and showed how in the age it is more needed than ever in every walk of life. Faith, he mentioned, is the basic principle and should be manifested in the church, in science, and in every walk of life. He said that faith is not an intellectual creed, a mathematical axiom, but is the faith revealed in the New Testament of Jesus Christ the Saviour. Those possessing true faith will manifest in every action of life.

Interment was made in the cemetery adjoining the church. Rev. Mr. Newton conducted the service assisted by Rev. Mr. Nicholl. The Masonic service was conducted by Rising Sun Lodge, Athens.

The total tributes were very impressive of the high regard felt for the deceased in this life.

SYMPATHY FOR REV. MR. WRIGHT

Funeral of Mrs. Wright in Kingston Friday Afternoon Largely Attended.

Kingston, Oct. 11.—A memorial service was conducted in St. Luke's Church after the funeral of the late Mrs. J. de P. Wright on Friday afternoon. The church was crowded to the doors by members of the congregation and other friends of the deceased, whose kindly interest and sympathy won for her a warm place in the regard of all with whom she had at any time been associated, whether in church circles where her many estimable qualities were highly appreciated, or in social matters that won her warm attachment at all times. Tender sympathy was shown too in the profuse decoration of the church with flowers. The chancel and altar were banked with beautiful floral tributes and the pew which Mrs. Wright had occupied bore evidence of loving remembrance.

The service was conducted by Dean Starr, assisted by Archdeacon O. G. Dobbs and Canon J. W. Jones. The choir sang "Thy Will Be Done," "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say," and "Peace, Perfect Peace." Mrs. Horton, soprano, sang "Crossing the Bar." Dean Starr gave a brief address, expressing the sympathy of the clergy and the people with the bereaved husband, Rev. J. de P. Wright, and the family, and directed attention to Christ as an example for Christian faith in such a calamity. To the deceased it meant rest, gain and victory in Jesus Christ, and to the bereaved triumph in the hour of adversity and sorrow.
