Which Was The Heir?

CHAPTER XXIV.

“I know! I know!” she broke in. “Oh, I’m glad we shall be married properly. And—and when it is to be, Sidney?”

“As soon as you like,” he replied. His voice was rather hoarse, and his cigar still seemed to require a good deal of attention. “You could go up to town in a day or two and meet me at the rooms I have taken—”

“I see,” she said thoughtfully. “I could tell my grandmother that I am going back to college—”

“Just so,” he said, clearing his throat, and pressing her to him. “And I would go up the same day. Nobody knows, or would suspect anything; and—and almost before we knew it we should be married.”

“Yes; man and wife!” she murmured. “Oh, Sidney!” and she nestled closer to him, her red-barred eyes glittering with love and anticipatory triumph.

CHAPTER XXV.

It may be stated as an incontrovertible fact that no man commits his first crime without a certain amount of nervousness and misgivings; afterwards the criminal career appears to be easy enough, for men seldom stop at one crime; indeed, one nearly always leads to another; and so we get that interesting specimen of humanity—the habitual criminal.

Sidney Bassington was by no means easy in his mind when he contemplated the piece of villainy which he was about to perpetrate; but he was not shrinking so much from the crime as from the possible consequences. To be a really satisfactory villain a man needs more courage than ordinary, and courage was not Master Sidney Bassington's point.

Twitching of the Nerves

Wonderful cure brought about by DR. A. W. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD.

It is only by watching the symptoms of nervous exhaustion and applying restorative treatment that you can ever hope to ward off locomotor ataxia and paralysis.

Mrs. E. J. Vanderburgh, of Eastern Welland Ave., St. Catharines, Ont., states:—“For twenty-one years I was badly afflicted with heart trouble, nervousness and cramps in the limbs, also twitching of the nerves and nervous headaches. I became weak, debilitated and emaciated. My condition was distressing and I was made worse through worry and loss of sleep.

“I tried a hundred remedies in vain. After having used half a dozen boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, my old trouble had entirely vanished, and I was enjoying better health than I had since girlhood.”

Such cases as this prove the wonderful efficiency of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food. It cures in Nature's way by enriching the blood and for this reason is lasting. 50 cts. a box, all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Toronto.

But two things kept him on his evil course—his passion for Rachel, and the influence which the man White had gained over him. It was an ordinary, seeing how short a time they had been acquainted, that such a man should have gained so firm a hold up on Sidney; and yet, when one considers it, the person who panders to our self-indulgence is always the master and holds us in slavery. Sidney knew that the man was an arrant scoundrel, but he had found him a congenial companion, and had at once yielded to the temptation which “Captain White's” proposal had presented.

The thing looked so easy; no one would know anything about it; and for Rachel—well, after all, what right had she, a mere nobody, and the daughter of a convict, to expect that he, the heir to Starborough, should marry her? It seemed preposterous when he came to think of it. And, of course, he would act generously by her; she should have a good time, and plenty of money, not only now but in the future. He would provide for her most handsomely, and—oh, it would all be right enough!

But, as this was his first crime, he did not feel at all easy; and if Rachel had not been so intoxicated by her dreams of future wealth and glory, she would have noticed that her lover was embarrassed and uncomfortable; but Rachel was in the seventh heaven of anticipation, which the wise tell us is the keener joy. She spent hours before her glass, looking at it over her shoulder as she paced up and down, practising what she considered the gait of a lady, fanning herself with a languid air, and aping the natural grace which she had remarked in Miss Rashleigh!

Why, very soon she would be that young lady's equal, nay, her superior, for she would be a countess! She pictured herself reigning at the castle as its mistress; the mistress of that pompous old Yates, and the sneering, supercilious Goodley, of all the servants and horses and carriages. It was an intoxicating vision!

Of course her grandmother would have to leave the cottage; she would not have such a perpetual reminder of her former low estate living within the shadow of her lordly castle. She would send her grandmother to an asylum for the aged blind!

Yes; that would be the best thing to do with her. It was really lucky that there was no father or mother to be disposed of. Of course it would be some time before the people would forget that she was Mrs. Farren's granddaughter; but they would do so in time; for Rachel resolved that she would be a very popular countess; one of the fashionable ladies whose doings are recorded in the daily and society papers; she would give fine dinners and garden-parties; and have swell people to stay with her. Her brain swam as she thought of it all; and she felt almost really in love with her future husband.

As there was no reason for delay, and she was dying with impatience, she fixed the marriage for a certain Wednesday, about a week after Sidney's return, and she employed the interval purchasing some necessary things for which Sidney had given her the money.

“I shouldn't buy very much,” he advised her, “because, you see, you will get most of the things better in London or Paris—we may go on there; and you don't want to attract attention.”

She agreed with him—oh, the thought of shopping in London and Paris—but she could not resist the temptation of spending some money with the drapers of Starborough, where she gave herself all the airs of a future countess, slightly amused the tradespeople, who, however, while they laughed behind her back, were outwardly very attentive and respectful.

Naturally enough, Sidney, during those days of waiting, rather avoided the Rashleigh's.

Rachel, who appeared to do all the thinking required for the business, suggested that it would be better that Sidney should go up to London a day or two before her, so that no suspicion should be aroused; and on the Tuesday evening Sidney and Captain White were sitting in the dining-room of Berry Street making the final arrangements.

Now, Sidney had not fully confided in his friend, and White did not know his accomplice's name, or the name of the girl they had schemed to entrap; and, as a matter of fact, Captain White was not at all curious on these points. He had spent or gambled away the money he had possessed, and the hundred pounds which Sidney had agreed to pay him had become entirely necessary; and the money was all he cared about.

The whiskey decanter and the glass were on the table, and Sidney was helping him pretty freely; but though his sallow face was flushed, and his eyes bright, the latter had a restless and uneasy expression, and he looked from right to left every now and then with a covert air of fear and suspicion.

“Six o'clock to-morrow, then?” said the captain, as he tossed off his last glass and rose to go.

Sidney nodded, and glanced at his confederate half-sullenly.

“Yes, I suppose there—there isn't any risk, any danger, is there?” Captain White laughed and shrugged his shoulders, his small, evil eyes resting on the downcast face with barely concealed contempt.

“Of course there is,” he said; “that is what you're paying me the hundred pounds for, isn't it?”

“But—but I was thinking of myself—said Sidney. “If it was found out—”

“You'd be in a bit of a hole,” said the captain—the might have said more truthfully, “you'd be in one of his Majesty's jails”—“but who's to find it out? After the ceremony I shall clear off, and you won't see me again. You won't want to, I suspect, eh? Besides, I've got other fish to fry—I don't mind telling you. And as to the girl, how is she to guess there's anything wrong, until—well, until you tell her? But that won't be perhaps, for ever so many months, if at all; and, of course you can square her. Women can always be squared, especially women of that class, don't you know. I suppose, from the little you dropped that night you were screwed, she's some kind of servant or dressmaker—anyhow, a girl below your class, eh, Richards?”

Sidney nodded and shut his lips.

“Oh, I ain't curious. It's no business of mine; and after I've played my little part I shall forget all about it. Little did I know I was a bit of a factor, did you? You wait until you see how well I'll do the parson to-morrow. Why, I should deceive the Archbishop of Canterbury. There!” he laughed, sardonically. “Keep your pecker up! Why, it's a little game that's played every day in the week by fellows who are in the know. What's the use of tying a noose round your neck that you can't get out of for the rest of your life? Got a cigar? You'll have the notes ready for to-morrow? I shall want 'em.”

NATURE'S REMEDY

Dr. Debovel's Herb and Gum Salve is Nature's ideal skin cure and healer; it is free from the objectionable features of ordinary salves, ointments and embrocations, to produce it, medicinal plants and herbs were taken, and from them were extracted gums and juices possessing considerable healing and curative powers. Costly experiments at last secured the right blending of these juices, and to the final product, a preparation virtually capable of growing new healthy skin, the name of Dr. Debovel's Herb and Gum Salve was given.

Unsurpassed as a remedy for Eczema, and Salt Rheum, Pimples and Blackheads, Old Sores and Red Sores, Chilblains and Frost Bites, Itching, Ringworm, etc.

For sale by all druggists and dealers, or from BOVEL MFG. CO., St. John's, Nfld., or Montreal, Can.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

No one, of course, has very much use for the man or woman who is continually saying unpleasant things about other people.

But there is another kind of person that I, at least, have considerably less use for.

And that is the man or woman who repeats these unpleasant things to the people about whom they are said.

There are people who do that sort of thing in every community.

Oftentimes they put on a cloak of virtue, and cite their desire that you should realize that John Jones or Susan Smith, who said this hateful thing about you, is only a hypocritical friend of yours, as their very righteous motive for telling you these unkind things that John Jones or Susan Smith said.

Three cheers for the person who sees through them, and even while he is listening to them, knows enough to distrust them rather than the people they are tattling about.

And three times three and a tiger for the person who has the courage and common sense to absolutely refuse to listen to them, and to tell them to go about their business and tattle no more.

It usually troubles me very greatly when anyone in our office is "fired."

No matter how incompetent or lazy or anything else he is I am almost always so heartily sorry for him.

But a man was discharged the other day at whose downfall I actually rejoiced.

For his services were dispensed with simply and solely because he was continually tattling to the editor about the shortcomings of his fellow reporters.

"What he said was often true," said the editor, "and he was an exceptionally good reporter, but I had rather have less competent and more honorable men in my office than a tattler, however good a newspaper man."

I think that is the stand every employer and every teacher and every father and mother should take.

I know a girl who has grown up into a catty woman of the species I described in my first paragraphs, largely, I think, because her mother encouraged her to tattle continually upon her younger sisters.

Boys, the most genuine of human beings, hate nothing more than a tattler.

I heard Judge Lindsey, the creator of the Juvenile Court, tell how none of the little boys who came before him would ever "tell on" the rest of the gang.

"It's a law of boydom," he said, "that any boy who 'snitches' gets his head pounded off."

"And I don't think it's such a bad law either," commented the Judge with a twinkle in his eye.

Neither do I and I don't think being socially ostracized would be such a bad grown up substitute for the juvenile "getting one's head pounded off."

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heart-burn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at these will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of native American medicinal forest plants. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Fads and Fashions.

Border materials are still favorites in the productions for spring and summer gowns.

In nearly all new styles, whether it be for outside or general wear, the belt is in evidence.

One of the innovations among the designs of new embroidery is the simulation of soutache patterns.

Many young girls wear the head braid-crown with the natural hair pulled softly around the face.

In the white silk braid dress trimming one finds a touch of colour added by means of coral beads.

Gloves of kangaroo kid similar in appearance to suede, but a little heavier, are in demand in Paris.

Hats of leather trimmed with ribbon are among the smart accessories the tailored girls wear this spring.

Every gown must have a bit of gold or silver or steel or copper braid or trimming in its composition.

German val and Irish crochet in combination are used on most fetching lingerie dresses of sheer batiste.

Braids in diamond, Titan and crimped varieties in gold, and also in silver are in large demands for belts.

Coats of velvet are being worn over foulards; the coat being lined with the same material as the gown.

The pins worn in hats accompanying the tailored suits this spring have much smaller heads than formerly.

Among the beaded nets for trimming evening gowns are applique designs, done in gold and soft pastel shades.

The fabric gloves that closely resemble the kid ones in appearance are to be had in a wide range of colours.

Wash buttons are made in white, ecru and white mixed with fashionable colors in embroidered designs.

"Baby" Irish retains its popularity and some effects of point Venise, otherwise lightweight laces are worn.

White muslin curtains with ruffles of colored muslin are among the pretty room furnishings being shown this spring.

Vellings of marquisette, or silk voile, will wash infinitely better than those of chiffon and will be very becoming.

Voiles of plain color made up over figured foulards, with a satin stripe, are usually attractive for dressy gowns.

The Norfolk coat is one of the prominent revivals this spring that has returned as a coat for girls and suit for boys.

Children wear patent leather belts or those of the dress fabric; in the latter case a buckle is made of the same goods.

The Dresden patterns in ribbons are not confined to ribbons of taffeta and morie, but may be found in velvet as well.

Many a foulard which did duty last season may be furnished to look decidedly up to date by the addition of a tunic of silk voile.

The Paramount Topic.

We do not know what Nineteen Ten Will bring to cheer us on our way. We do not know what headlines large Will catch our eyes, from day to day.

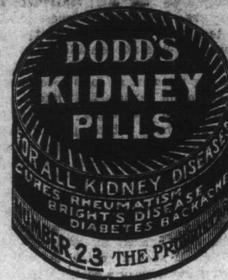

But, as we scan the paper o'er, The while we drain our breakfast cup, This much we're pretty sure to read: "The cost of living's going up."

Some say too many live in town, And not enough stick to the farm; And others say we eat too much— 'Tis gluttony that does the harm; Men differ when they argue o'er The price we pay for bite and sup, But always comes this sad refrain: "The cost of living's going up."

Those hard night coughs of the children! What shall you give them? Just what your mother gave you, and just what her mother gave her! In some families, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has been the only cough medicine for seventy years. Once in the family, it stays. Keep it on hand.

Stop Cough

Ask your doctor if he endorses Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for the coughs and colds of the children. Do as he says. Lowell, Mass.

Raising a Wreck That Caused a War.

The United States Government are proposing to set aside a sum of £100,000 to raise the wreck of the battleship Maine, which lies embedded in the mud of Havana harbour.

It is just now over twelve years since the battleship was blown up as it rode at anchor in the harbour. Its movable armament, guns, and so on were recovered soon after the explosion, but the battleship itself has remained as it sank, and the present action has been taken as a result of various protests that the wreck is a menace to navigation.

It is scarcely an exaggeration to say that the blowing up of the Maine was the cause of the Spanish-American War, for it has always been recognized that the outrage inflamed public feeling in America to such an extent that it precipitated a crisis that made war inevitable.

Taken to a Special Mooring.

The original cause of the Maine being at Havana was, of course, that the lives of American residents in the town were considered to be in danger by the fighting between the Spanish authorities and the Cuban insurgents. The United States Government decided to send a warship to Havana so that, in an emergency, the Americans might seek shelter on board.

The Maine arrived in the harbour towards the end of January, 1898, and she was taken by the official Spanish pilot to a special mooring buoy, a buoy that, according to the testimony afterwards given before the United States naval court of inquiry, "was apparently reserved for some purpose not known."

Her commander, Captain C. D. Sigbee, understood that the Spanish authorities resented the presence of the battleship in the harbour, and he did all in his power to give an impression of the visit being a friendly call.

The usual salutes and ceremonial visits were exchanged, but he found that beyond those the Spaniards would not go. They expressed themselves as being quite willing that he should pay them visits that were purely social and unofficial, but they declined to visit the Maine more often than was required by the strict demands of international courtesy.

There were no public demonstrations when Captain Sigbee appeared in the town, but at the same time he noticed that the attitude of the Spanish citizens towards him and his officers was one of sullen gloom.

Things went on in this slightly uncomfortable manner until the night of February 15th.

Captain Sigbee was in his cabin writing, when suddenly there came a sound like a shot. He glanced towards the deck, and saw the bow rise a little. A few seconds later came the explosion—"a terrible mass of fire and explosion"—that sent a million pounds' worth of steel to bottom, and caused the deaths of over 250 men.

At the instant of the second explosion the electric light went out, and Captain Sigbee found his cabin plunged in darkness. He groped his way to the entrance. Here he cannoned against an orderly, who will go down to fame as having, in that awful moment, calmly apologised for almost knocking down his commander. He then saluted and briefly reported that there had been an explosion.

Captain Sigbee went on deck at once, and one of the first things he noticed was the sound of many voices from the shore, suggestive of cheers.

The battleship settled down very quickly, and it was only after every other living soul had left it that Captain Sigbee stepped into the ship's boat and was rowed to the neighbouring American liner.

Two commissions of inquiry were held—an American and a Spanish—and both came to diametrically opposite conclusions. The Spanish commission, which was not thought to be very thorough, declared that the explosion originated in the interior of the warship, and was the fault of the Americans themselves.

The American commission came to the conclusion that the Maine was blown up by some agency outside the vessel, and it was, of course presumed that the person or persons unknown had the tacit approval of the Spanish authorities. The facts will most probably all be known some day, but in the meantime it is interesting to know that Captain Sigbee's private opinion agreed with the finding of the American commission.

The Rival Reformers.

Yesterday we discussed, so far as information was available, the Rosebery proposal of modifying the composition of the House of Lords. We pointed out that this remedy was no remedy, as it did not touch the disease, that it could not cure it, and would serve to aggravate it. The complaint from which the House of Lords suffers is partisanship. This diagnosis is admitted by the Tory Lords themselves. The Upper Chamber does not revise, delay, or reject the measures of Tory administrations. When the Tories are in power the House of Lords is passive and its powers dormant. When Liberals are in power, the House of Lords is active, and aggressive in the exercise of the powers of amendment, delay and rejection. Although the majority of the peers are prepared to give up their right to be legislators, hitherto inherent in every male peer of the United Kingdom, they propose to set up another House of Lords in which the magnates of the nation shall be more strongly entrenched than they have ever been before. They propose to take away from the Crown by statute its unlimited prerogative of creating members of the Upper Chamber, and by so doing render it impossible for the Crown and Ministry to bring the House of Lords into line with the will of the People, even after there has been a plain unmistakable declaration of that will. Lord

BLACK AND RICH

Is the Way Postum Should Be.

A liquid food that will help a person break a bad habit is worth knowing of. The President of one of the state associations of the W. C. T. U., who naturally does not want her name given, writes as follows:—
"Whenever I was obliged to go without coffee for breakfast a dull, distracting headache would come on before noon. I discovered that, in reality, the nerves were crying out for their accustomed stimulant.
"At evening dinner I had been taught by experience that I must refrain from coffee or pass a sleepless night. While visiting a physician and his wife I was served with a most excellent beverage at their dining and elegant table and, upon inquiry, discovered that this charming beverage was Postum and that the family had been greatly benefited by leaving off coffee and using Postum.
"I was so in love with it, and so pleased with the glimpse of freedom from my one bondage of habit, and so thoroughly convinced that I ought to break with my captor, that upon my return home I at once began the use of Postum and have continued it ever since.
"I don't know what a sick headache is now, and my nerves are steady and I sleep sound, generally eight hours. I used to become bilious frequently and require physic; now seldom ever have that experience.
"I have learned that long boiling is absolutely essential to furnish good Postum. That makes it clear, black and rich as any Mocha and Java blend. Please withhold my name, but you may use the letter for the good it may do."
Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."
Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

The Green Half Door.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I should feel obliged if you would republish the following letter which appeared in yesterday's Chronicle, and also the reply thereto:—

"The Green Half Door."

Editor Chronicle.
Dear Sir,—I notice that last evening's Telegram gave Mr. Goodland the credit of unearthing, as it calls it, the song "Green Half Door," written by the late Mr. St. George. Mr. Goodland, as far as I am aware, has not been the first to have it sung in public, but I assure you that I gave it publicity eight years ago. First in five hundred copies in a book containing one hundred pages in 1902, again in the fall of the same year I published it in a book of one thousand copies of one hundred and twelve pages, and again in 1904 in a book of one hundred pages.

Those books have gone to all quarters of the globe and to all parts of Newfoundland as well. Therefore, Mr. Goodland cannot be given the credit of being the first to unearth it. I do not write this to take the honor that Mr. Goodland is deserving, but merely to show that the song has been before the public this past eight years in the manner stated above.
Yours faithfully,
JAMES MURPHY.

Isolated paragraphs from lectures, like isolated passages of Scripture, are very apt to open them to the construction which the reader often puts upon them. I should like therefore to give a short history of the poem of the late Mr. St. George, entitled "The Green Half Door," referred to by my friend Mr. Murphy in the aforesaid letter.

The late Mr. St. George, whose pen name was "Eros Wayback," has bequeathed to us some exquisite poetry, and it would be a graceful tribute to his memory if these poems could be collected and printed in book form. His "Green Half Door," a literary gem, in composition, melody and pathos "equals anything from distant Australia." This poem has been in my possession for twenty years. How long it had been composed before that time I am at a loss to say. But I obtained it from the Evening Herald, to which paper it was sent by a contributor over the non de plume "A Girl of the Period." The clipping from the Herald is very interesting, because of the graceful introduction to it, and it has been in my possession ever since. It is evident, however, that the late poet was either too modest, or that he didn't think the poem of sufficient merit, to sign it.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR SALE EVERYWHERE.

Over eleven years ago (1898) the verses were republished from my album in an edition of five thousand copies of Christmas Bells under its proper head, and this sub-head, viz. "A Gem from a Scrap Album." Then Mr. Murphy published it. A few years after it must have wandered back to Mr. St. George, because when next I saw it in print it was signed "Eros Wayback," which, it is well known, was the deceased gentleman's pen name. A foot note this time informed the reader that the poem had been revised. I read this bit of information with regret, because it seemed to me it could not be improved by revision. I compared it with my old copy, and found that the revision consisted only in the transposition of a few of the verses. This time, if my memory serves me, it appeared in the Nfld. Quarterly, but not a word was altered from the original copy.

I introduced the poem in my lecture "Rambles in St. John's," to illustrate a feature of architecture conspicuous in some of our localities in the last century. And I am glad I did so, for I know of nothing which has been so well received as this certainly was when it was sung for the first time to a St. John's audience in the British Hall on Monday, April 11th.

I have long been an admirer of Mr. Murphy's enterprise. Himself a poet and a connoisseur of our local literature, he always introduces what he publishes with a bit of history, which is very useful. I feel sure this explanation will serve a two-fold purpose. First, to enhance his interest in "The Green Half Door," for which, like myself, he seems to have a veneration; and second, that he will be convinced on a careful perusal that I am entitled to the little honor which the Telegram has accorded me in giving me credit for being the first to unearth it and cause it to be sung.

Yours truly,
W. H. GOODLAND.

Girl Sent Home.

The domestic in a city residence to whom we alluded a couple of days ago, and who threatened to suicide, was sent to her friends at the Northward by the Bellaventure. She left the residence of her employer and the police were detailed to find her. They had considerable difficulty in persuading her to return home.

CHOIR PRACTICE.

The members of Cochrane Street Choir will please meet in the Choir Room at a quarter to nine, sharp.

P.S.—There is one other reported item in my paper which is likely to have a wrong impression, and that is with regard to the old Post Office. I give the extract in extenso: "Perhaps nowhere can the progress which has been made during the last century be better gauged than in the growth of the mail service in St.

The Wharfinger and the Wharf.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Sir,—I beg to call the attention of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to the fact of a neglect of duty on the part of the St. Lawrence County Council. The public wharf which has been in constant use the past four years is now badly in need of repair. The expenditure of $150.00 would put it in first-class condition. The attention of the Chairman of the Council has been called time and again to the matter, more than that he has been notified in writing by the wharfinger on two occasions of the urgent need of repairs. The wharfinger has asked for about two dollars worth of new manilla rope to replace the tackle now in use and worn out, and it has been refused. A letter in reply from the Chairman himself says that the fees collected by the wharfinger are to go towards the repairs of the wharf. Now the fees collected amount to about $120.00 per year. There is no Government salary and I write to ask the Hon. Mr. Piccott is this reply of the Chairman of the St. Lawrence Council correct, and if so what is to pay the wharfinger for his labour in handling heavy shipwrecks day and night, rain or shine, as there is no Government salary allowed.

Is our Mother Earth going to be swept by a strange tail? We say No! This may be the end of the beginning; but it is certainly not the beginning of the end. So you can still get your clothing, dry goods and furniture, for Cash or Credit at B. FRIEDMAN, 201 Water Street. P. O. Box 5; Phone 546.

The Cry of the Little People.

Mr. Richard Le Gallienne thus voices "The Cry of the Little Peoples" in his "New Poems"
The cry of the Little Peoples went up to God in vain;
The Czech, and the Pole, and the Finn, and the Schleswig Dane.
We ask but a little portion of green, ambitious earth;
Only to sow, and sing, and reap in the land of our birth.
We ask not cooling stations, nor ports in the China seas;
We leave to the big child-nations such rivalries as these.
We have learned the lesson of time, and we know three things from birth—
Only to sow, and sing, and reap, in the land of our birth.
O leave us our little margins, waste ends of land and sea;
A little grass, and a hill or two, and a shadowing tree.
O leave us our little rivers that sweetly catch the sky.
To drive our mills, and to carry our wood, and to ripple by.
Once, long ago, as you, with hollow pursuit of fame,
We filled all the shaking world with the sound of our name;
Eut now we are glad to rest on battles and boasting done.
Glad just to sow, and sing, and reap in our share of the sun.
Of this, O will ye rob us, with a foolish, mighty hand;
Add, with such cruel sorrow, so small a land to your land?

Supper at Wood's.

An enjoyable supper was held at Wood's West End Restaurant last night. Mr. P. H. Collins occupied the chair and did the duties assigned to him in a pleasing manner. Songs were interspersed in the toast list and were well given by Messrs. Vinnicombe, Roberts, Score, Crocker and Comerford. The following toast list was rendered:—
"The King"—God Save the King.
"The Land We Live In"—Prop. A. E. Bernard; resp. W. J. Higgins.
"Seafishery"—Prop. L. Chafe; resp. H. Harvey.
"Trade and Commerce"—Prop. H. E. Outerbridge; resp. R. Dowden.
"The Ladies"—Prop. J. Vinnicombe; resp. B. J. McGrath.
"The Press"—Prop. F. B. Wood; resp. Representatives.
"Chairman"—Prop. W. J. Higgins; resp. Chairman.

London Press and Mark Hambourg.

"Mr. Hambourg's fine playing at Queen's Hall.—Nothing could have been greater in the highest sense than his interpretation of Cesar Franck's 'Freude Aria and Finale.' The intellectual power and consummate command of all the effects the piano is heir to shown in this noble work placed Mr. Hambourg at once amongst the greatest of living pianists.—Evening Standard.
"Had a very large audience, probably the largest drawn by any piano recital this year. The audience was enthusiastic throughout."—The Star.

CHOIR PRACTICE.—The members of Gower Street Choir are reminded of the practice which takes place to-night at 9 o'clock in the Church. All members are particularly requested to attend.

SEALER AT CHANNEL.—Yesterday the schr. Frances, C. Martin, master, arrived at Channel, hailing for 73 young harps after a week's work in the Gulf. The vessel did not find many seals about. She reported no ice in the Gulf latterly and saw no sign of the Labrador and Kite.

PATIENT FOR HOSPITAL.—The ambulance was at the station last evening when the train arrived to take William Cull, of Bay de Verde District, to the Hospital. He had his leg cut at Glenwood last week. He will undergo an operation at the Hospital.

NEW MAIL STEAMER.—The str. Fortuna, which has been purchased by Crosbie & Co., will shortly leave Glasgow for this port and will do the Fogo mail service in place of the s.s. Louise, which did the work last year. She is said to be a fine boat, has been thoroughly renovated and will have excellent accommodation for passengers.

STOWAWAYS ON BELLAVENTURE.—Stowaways seem to have a great appreciation for the Bellaventure, and 22 were in her at the ice-fields. When she returned from the Northward last night 12 young chaps walked ashore from her after having had a pleasure trip from this port and return. The presence of these boys on board is very annoying to the officers of the ship.

Bob Dunbar's Opinion.

Bob Dunbar, in the Boston Post, says: "A number of letters have reached me asking an opinion on the coming Jeffries-Johnson fight. To me it looks like a question of condition upon the part of the white man. The night that Jeffries knocked out Jim Corbett in the second contest, he could have beaten Jack Johnson the best day the negro ever saw or may hope to see. "Jeff" cannot hope to regain his former superb condition, but from all reports is working hard to get into the best possible shape. Johnson is fox enough to see that he will be in perfect condition July 4, but if Jeffries is in first class shape when he enters the ring he should outgame and outfight his colored opponent.

GLEE SINGERS MEET.—The Glee Singers of St. Thomas's Church meet at 8.45 this evening. A full attendance is requested.

BITTEN BY A DOG.—Miss Jean McDonald was attacked by a dog when passing McBride's Hill last evening. She went to a doctor and had the wound cauterized. Only for J. Janes drove off the dog so quickly the affair would be worse.

FOOTBALLERS' MEETING.—This evening a meeting of the Old Fieldian footballers will take place in their rooms, Board of Trade Building. The election of officers and other business will be gone through and a good gathering of members is requested.

Solid Comfort Boys' BOOTS.

An excellent school Boot, being strong and durable. Sizes from 7 to 5, and prices range from $1.25 to 2.00 according to size.

They are the most remarkable in the city, as comparison has proved.

Veto Resolutions PASSED BY THE COMMONS.

ASQUITH INTRODUCES BILL — WILD SCENES IN HOUSE AND LOBBIES.

Special to Evening Telegram. LONDON, April 14. Amid scenes of intense excitement hardly paralleled since the Gladstonian Home Rule debate the House of Commons to-night by a majority of 103 recorded its approval of Premier Asquith's resolution dealing with the veto power of the House of Lords and heard the Premier's declaration of policy for carrying them into statutory effect. Having formally introduced amid loud cheers his bill embodying the resolutions, Mr. Asquith said that they were confronted by an exceptional and perhaps a unique case. The Governments effective existence depended upon the passing of the resolutions into law. If the House of Lords failed to accept or declined to consider their policy the Government would feel it their duty to advise the crown as to what steps were necessary to ensure their policy receiving statutory effect. It would not be the right, he continued, for him to disclose the terms of that advice but unless the Government found themselves in a position to give their policy statutory effect they would either resign from office or recommend dissolution, but in no case would they advise dissolution except under such conditions as would insure that in new Parliament the judgment of the people as expressed at the elections would be carried into law. The Premier's statement was interrupted by cheers and counter cheers. There was much laughter from the Conservative benches when he said he could not disclose the terms of his intended advice to the King. Mr. Balfour rose amid a considerable amount of applause and presented the important statement representing the culmination of long negotiations with the Irish party. The Nationalists had agreed to swallow the Budget, their aversion to which they had never concealed in order to get Home Rule. The negotiations seemed to him to have left both parties rather poorer than they were, and, the Government, he declared, was paying a monstrous price for the Budget. Then in what position had the Premier put the Crown? The announcement months before hand that to meet certain undefined conditions the Government would suggest what was nothing short of destruction of the constitution was beyond the idea of duty as ascertained by any predecessor of the Premier who had bought the Irish vote at the price of dignity of his office and the great tradition of which he of all men ought to be the custodian. The Speaker having adjourned the House an uproarious scene ensued. There were hisses and calls of "Dynamite Traitor" and similar names, while Mr. Redmond the Irish leader, appeared to be trying to reach a Conservative member who had used offensive expression. Nothing serious occurred but the demonstrations were renewed in the lobbies where the members especially the Nationalists lingered in excited discussion until the lights were extinguished. The Irish members appeared to be highly pleased with Mr. Asquith's statement.

Mark Twain Ill.

Special to Evening Telegram. NEW YORK, April 14. Samuel Clemens, better known as Mark Twain, returned to New York from Bermuda to-day far from a well man. It was said when the steamer arrived that he was confined to his berth suffering from heart trouble and he had been indisposed during the entire trip. The sudden death of his daughter last winter, died severely on him. He went to Bermuda early in the year in the hope of regaining his health. He had complained on his arrival from the Island a short time before when he came to spend Christmas at his home of a continued pain in his breast. He had hardly recovered from the shock of his daughter's death when he again went to Bermuda, admittedly far from well.

Budget Debate Next.

Special to Evening Telegram. LONDON, April 14. Premier Asquith's resolution to be proposed next Monday allocating the time for the consideration of the Budget provides that all stages of the legislation must be completed on April 27th. The fate of the Government depends upon the attitude of the Irish members. The fact that the Premier has decided to dispose of the Budget measure before a decision by the Lords on the Veto Resolutions will have assumed a final form indicates that a deal has been effected between the Cabinet and the Redmondites and that the latter have determined to support the Budget.

Report Untrue.

Special to Evening Telegram. ROME, April 14. A report that the Pope had struck off the names of American candidates from the list of candidates for Cardinals has been upon investigation found to be wrong. It was authoritatively denied to-day and the idea that such a step had been taken because Theodore Roosevelt did not visit, the Pope was characterised as ridiculous.

Death Penalty Relaxed

Editor Evening Telegram. ST. PETERSBURG, April 14. Premier Stolypin in a speech in the Duma last night announced that the Emperor had personally ordered that the death penalty and administrative measures for the preservation of order should be limited as strictly as possible. The exceptional measures that it was found necessary to enforce during the revolutionary days have been relaxed in nearly all parts of the Empire.

I. O. G. T.

The Juvenile Templars held a most successful meeting at the Oddfellows Hall, last evening, many visitors were present, including representatives from the C. of E. Band of Hope and the Women's Christian Temperance Union. The programme rendered by the Juveniles were most interesting, especially the recitations of Master Edgecombe and his tiny sister and little Violet England and Violet Maunder. The bigger girls also did well. The Rev. Jas. Bell on behalf of himself and visitors expressed the pleasure it gave them of being present, and congratulated the officers and members on their large numbers. Mrs. Pippy and Mrs. Benedict also spoke words of encouragement. The Grand Supt. on behalf of self, Supts. and Monitors, thanked the visitors for their presence and the kind words spoken, and regretted that many were unavoidably absent through other engagements, but hoped that at a future meeting a larger number of visitors would be present.

Arrested for Larceny.

Saturday morning, a man who was boarding at the S. A. food depot had a pair of boots stolen from his room. Suspicion rested on a fellow boarder, the police were informed and Const. Tobin arrested the man last evening. The owner of the stolen property confronted him at the police station, last night, when the man admitted the theft. The stolen boots were on his feet, and he had to take them off and return them to the owner.

Meeting Last Night.

The St. John's Mutual Improvement Association met last night in the Congregational Lecture Room and elected the officers for the year. H. E. Cowan, President; J. E. Ray, Vice-Pres.; J. A. Barnes, Sec.-Treas.; F. Cross, J. Currie and P. H. Cowan, Committee. The membership of the Society is now forty. The reports submitted showed that the session had been successful.

A Notable Event.

Grand Opera has never been heard in St. John's, but the public will have an opportunity of getting some idea of it from the renditions by the Choral and Orchestral Society of selections from Faust, Gounod's beautiful and most tuneful Opera introducing Magarita, Siebel and Mephistopheles and a selection from Wagner's grand and most popular Opera Tannhauser. This large organisation under the conductorship of Messrs. Hutton and Mawer are sparing no pains to give the public a rare musical treat. We have no doubt from the sale of tickets that the society will be greeted by large audiences; the public are not slow in showing their appreciation of the efforts of any of our musical directors to elevate the taste for good music, and further a society which will be a permanent good to the community.

Good sign of herring in this vicinity; herring still plentiful all around the Bay. Nipper's Harbour—Moderate, west wind, dull; Bay clear. Sound Island—Moderate, N. W. wind and fine. Birchy Cove—Wind West, strong. Lark Harbour—Wind W., fine and clear.

REID FLD. CO.

The Argyle left Placentia at 1 a.m. to-day on the Red Island route. The Bruce arrived at Port aux Basques at 7.15 a.m. to-day. The Gloucester left St. Jacques at 5.15 p.m. yesterday going west, and left Hermitage Cove at 2 a.m. to-day.

Killing Plenty of Seals.

The schr. Ellinor E., Skipper Drogge, arrived here yesterday afternoon from Random, T.B., and made a fine run to port. Seals are very plentiful at Trinity, Random and Ireland's Eye, and at the former place boats captured from 9 to 10 bedlamers daily last week and this week. At Ireland's Eye they took as high as 20 and 30 some days. It is estimated that there are over 1,000 seals ashore at Trinity, and at Ireland's Eye about 600. People have their traps out already but there is yet no sign of codfish. There are immense schools of herring about and big hauls are being made.

C.L.B. Notes.

The C. L. B. will hold their first Sunday parade on the 17th, when they attend Divine service at St. Mary's, South Side, at 2.30 p.m. There will be a large gathering of the lads. 'Native' Replies 'to S.W. Arm.'

Crow Head Demands a Representative on Road Board.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—In the columns of the Sun of the 2nd inst. appears an item signed "S. W. Arm," purporting to be a reply to "Native's" letter, which appeared in the Evening Telegram on the 21st ult.; but as the scribbler made no particular reference to points in my letter, I shall make no further comment any more than to exonerate a gentleman to whom he referred in such caustic and grotesque terms—a person who had nothing to do with the letter in question. Certainly that egotistical and pompous individual in his little circumscribed sphere imagines that there is no one in Twillingate who can do anything but those in his own little circle. No doubt he paid a very high compliment to "Native" when he made the assumption that a certain gentleman, who is regarded as the most brilliant and ablest, if not the ablest, statesman that ever Newfoundland produced, wrote the letter signed "Native." For the present I shall leave him in his somnolent condition. Perhaps he may have another vision, then he might disclose his identity, as he is identified by others. With your permission, sir I wish to briefly state that the hydro-head monster, Toryism, is not dead yet. It is like the ostrich, it may hide its head but a portion of the body is visible. Crow Head, which is situated near Long Point, Twillingate, has upwards of fifty voters, and strange to say (and yet not strange after all, for it is characteristic of the Tory faction) this locality has no representative on the Road Board from its own harbour. A certain man residing near the coastal wharf, a distance of two miles from Crow Head, has the expending of the money and putting the men to work. The people are very indignant over the matter, so much that some would not submit to the conditions of the Board, consequently they refused to perform any work on roads last fall. When the Road Board was formed there could not be found one Tory voter to take a seat on the said Board, hence the reason, so the People's Party (?) they had to appoint a man two miles distant from the Cove. Under the Bond administration they had a member on the Board, Back Harbor has two members with a population not much larger than Crow Head. The people there represented the matter to the Government, but no action was taken. They said (if not by words they said by their actions), "You are on the wrong side. You are an intelligent, prosperous, thriving and energetic people. You pay more taxes we believe, than most people in Twillingate; but we do not permit free and independent electors to exercise their free will against our interests without being punished." Of course Crow Head as well as eight-tenths of the electorate of Twillingate will answer to the query in no uncertain sound. During the winter several

Change Island Notes.

A few bedlamer seals have been killed here during the past few weeks.

Owing to the mildness of the past winter, and the lovely spring weather which we are now enjoying, the ice-bridges, which have spanned the Tickle for a short time, have broken, and the ferry has had to take up its regular work much earlier than usual.

On Tuesday evening, 5th inst., a most successful sociable was held by the members of the L. O. A., in their capacious hall, under the able management of Mr. S. D. Cook. A splendid tea was served, to which the members of the order and their friends did full justice. After tea games of various kinds were indulged in, of which the most exciting was the clothes pin contest. It would not do for me to describe the games in detail; but suffice it to say that they were kept up with unusual interest and vim until 12 p.m., when supper was served. There was not a dull moment from start to finish, and Mr. Cook and his associates, who took so much trouble to make the affair a success, are to be complimented on the result achieved.

Your correspondent and others of Change Islands wish, through your columns, to tender our heartiest congratulations to Capt. Kean, and the other successful commanders of the sealing fleet of 1910, and to convey our sympathy to those who were less fortunate.

If the present weather conditions prevail we trust to have the pleasure of seeing two of the most successful Vikings of the sealing fleet again in charge of the good ships Prospero and Clyde on their regular route in the near future.

CORRESPONDENT.

MISS M. J. DAWE.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—A death which has caused universal sorrow visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Dawe, on Friday morning and removed their only daughter, Mary Jane, aged 25 years. She was ill but two weeks, the cause of death being internal hemorrhage. Great sympathy is felt for Mr. and Mrs. Dawe in their bereavement. Maimy, as she was familiarly called, was a good and affectionate daughter, possessing a bright and pleasing disposition which had won for her a host of friends. She bravely bore her affliction with Christian fortitude, and being fully resigned to God's will her end was all a true Christian could desire. Her last hours was a fitting terminal to a life of obedience and fidelity, as with Divine inspiration she pleads with her sorrowing parents and brother, imploring them not to weep for her, but to prepare to meet her in heaven. She was quite conscious to the last, and with a happy smile upon her face she passed peacefully away at one o'clock on Friday morning. Interment took place at Hopewell Cemetery, on Sunday afternoon, when an unusually large number of friends paid their last token of respect to all that was mortal of poor Maimy.—R. H. Lower Gullies, April 13th, 1910.

RAISED TO THE PEERAGE.

THE COST OF ADMISSION TO THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

Although titles cannot be bought in this country in the open market, as they can in many Continental countries by merely paying so much gold "over the counter," Mr. Herbert Gladstone and Mr. Ivor Guest will not get into the House of Lords for nothing. They will both have to pay pretty heavily for their peerage in stamp duties, Crown Office fees, and Home Office fees—the total in each case running into several hundred pounds, and all fees are collected strictly in advance.

As a viscount Mr. Gladstone will be charged £467 4s. 6d., the amount being made up as follows:—Stamp duties, £200 12s.; Crown Office fees, £229 16s.; Home Office fees, £37 2s. 6d.

A viscount is, of course, the fourth degree in the British Peerage, the first being a duke, whose rank is inferior only to princes of Royal blood.

After a duke comes a marquis, and then an earl. Viscount was anciently the name of him who held the chief office under an earl. The latter being often at Court, the viscount was his deputy to look after the affairs of the country. In the reign of Henry VI. the title became a degree of honor and was made hereditary.

The coronation robes of a viscount are the same as an earl's with the exception that he has only two and a half rows of ermine, his cap is the same, and the golden circle of his coronet is surmounted by sixteen silver balls.

The robe of a viscountess has two and a half inches of miniver, and two and a half bars of ermine, a yard and a quarter train, while the coronet is the same as her husband's.

Mr. Herbert Gladstone can thank his lucky stars that he was not given one of the higher ranks of the Peerage, for the duke has to pay fees amounting to £809 12s., while a marquis has to pay up £691 12s., and an earl a sum of £573 12s.

Mr. Ivor Guest, having only been made a baron, gets let off with a mere £260 17s. in fees—quite enough, however, for an empty title, especially if the House of Lords is soon to be abolished altogether! The sum is made up as follows: Stamp duties, £150 12s.; Crown Office fees, £179 10s.; Home Office fees, £30 15s.

The coronation robes of a baron have but two rows of ermine; in other respects they are the same as those of other Peers. King Charles II. granted a coronet to the barons, who until his reign wore only a plain circle of gold. It is formed of six silver balls set at equal distance on a circle of gold bordered with ermine.

A baroness has two inches of miniver and two bars of ermine on her coronation robe, which has a train a yard long. She wears a coronet the same as that of the baron.

It will be remembered that when Lord Roberts was made an earl he strongly objected to paying the bill of more than £1,750 with which he was presented.

The reason why the fees were considerably in excess of those quoted above was that, having no son to succeed him, he wished to have what is called "a special remainder" to his daughters. All "extras" of this description have to be paid for.

In addition to all the fees enumerated above, there are many more charges that a newly-fledged Peer must pay before he takes his seat in the House of Lords. There is the licence for the coronet on his carriage and notepaper, and, if he wishes them, the expensive coronet and robes of his new dignity.

It may, however, be whispered in confidence that not every Peer possesses his own coronet and robes. In the case of the older families, of course, these are treasured family heirlooms, but in the case of new creations, they have been known to be borrowed or hired for the occasion.

Some people appear to think that the British Peers habitually wear their coronets in the House of Lords or on grand occasions. As a matter of fact, the only occasions on which Peers put on these symbols are at a State Coronation of the Sovereign, or when they wish to have their portrait painted or to be photographed "in State." A few years ago a newly created viscount was so fond of his coronet that he had it emblazoned on everything—even his luggage. The result was that, when travelling in Spain, he was mistaken for the Prince of Wales.

For a long time he could not make out why he was treated with such extraordinary ceremony and charged such wonderful prices. It was only when the Mayor of a certain town proposed to offer him an address that the mystery came out.

A baronet has to pay £294 9s. 6d. for the privilege of seeing "Sir" in front of his name and Bart. behind it.

Jack Gleason, one of the promoters of the Jeffries-Johnson fight, who is in New York, says the tickets for seats in the Emeryville Arena will be printed by a local firm and will be placed on sale at the offices of the various railroad companies, to be announced later. He says there will be eight prices of admission: $5, $10, $20, $25, $30, $35, $40 and $50. Each priced ticket will be a certain color, to be presented at an entrance similarly painted, a scheme that will prevent confusion.

Steadfast Mission Band

The entertainment held by the Steadfast Mission Band at the Cochane Street basement last night was well attended. The costumes worn represented the United States, Ireland, England, Scotland and all the other European nations—Japan and China. Tea, cake and icecream were served by Mrs. A. Marshall and her assistants. The programme will be repeated to-morrow afternoon.

Personal Notes.

Messrs. B. J. McGrath and M. L. Farrell who had been at Montreal and New York in connection with timber business the past two months, arrived by the Bruce express yesterday.

Mr. F. C. Snelgrove, of Catalina, arrived here by the S. S. Bellaventure last evening.

Good Time?

Last night—eating big dinner is often the maker of a BAD TODAY. Why not? Over-eating means extra work for the stomach and bowels. You've got to suffer if you don't help nature to unload with CASCARETS. "They work while you sleep"—you're O.K. in the A.M. To-night's the night to take care of to-morrow.

Fell Forty Feet, But Was Uninjured.

Springing from her bed in the Women's Hospital on Mountain Street, just before 6 o'clock in the morning, Mrs. Bernicky jumped out of a window on the third storey, and fell thirty-five or forty feet into the back yard. Strange to say she was apparently uninjured by her fearful leap, and showed no ill effects except a slight dizziness which passed off in a few minutes.

Mrs. Bernicky is a young Polish woman, who has been in Montreal about a year. Six days ago she gave birth to a child in the Women's Hospital, and had been making satisfactory progress until this morning, when she suddenly developed suicidal symptoms.

She had been lying quietly in bed, and had done nothing to attract the particular attention of the nurses. They were taken completely by surprise when they found that she had disappeared through the window. Rushing downstairs, expecting to find her mangled corpse in the yard they were equally surprised to find her able to stand, and as far as they could see, none the worse for her adventure.

The woman was clad in nothing but her nightdress, and it is a remarkable thing that she pitched on her bare feet on the only soft spot of earth in the yard. She had fallen between a rail and a big stake, and had she fallen a few inches more either to the right or the left she must inevitably have sustained fearful injuries.

The woman was immediately carried back into the institution, where she was attended by Dr. Reddy, the medical superintendent, who found that she had suddenly gone insane. After she had rested awhile an ambulance was summoned and she was conveyed to the Longue Pointe Asylum.

"Don't put this down as another remarkable case of sleep walking," said Dr. Reddy, in discussing the occurrence afterwards. "It is simply a sudden attack of puerperal insanity. It is a marvel to me that the woman

Death of Mr. Whitten.

Mr. Robert Whitten, formerly of this city, died last Sunday at Halifax, in his 59th year. He had been ill all winter. Deceased was formerly chief steward and purser on the S. S. Newfoundland when she ran the winter mail service between St. John's and Halifax. He was highly esteemed by all who knew him. Later he settled down in Halifax and went into the commission business on Water Street. He leaves a daughter and a sister to mourn their loss.

Boy Seriously Injured.

While a lad named Stephen Guest of the South Side, was proceeding to cross the Long Bridge near the railway track at 4.30 p.m. yesterday he fell as a horse attached to a box cart was rapidly driven along, and before he could get to his feet or the driver check the animal, the wheels went over his legs and he was badly hurt. Messrs. Peter Byrne and J. Moore, of the Reid Nfd. Co., were quickly on the scene and found that the boy's left leg was badly cut, some of the leading veins being severed. They applied a tourniquet above the knee to stop the bleeding and quickly summoned Dr. Chaplin who after doing all possible for him ordered him to hospital. Besides being cut the boy's leg was also badly crushed; he was cut about the head also, and he narrowly escaped being killed.

TO PREVENT TROUBLE.—Last night Const. Stamp found a young man who was well under the influence of drink going down Duckworth St., and put him under arrest. This is the man who stabbed a young man named March last fall, and fearing that he might commit himself again last night the officer thought it prudent to lock him up.

was not killed. Instead of that she seems quite strong and was talking away at a great rate when she left here for the asylum." He added that the woman's body was in excellent health.

Once before in the history of this institution a patient jumped from the top story of the building, and she also was not only unhurt but was so lively that it took the united strength of three men to carry her back into the hospital. This was another case of puerperal insanity.

The Comet Programme

To-day the comet rose 50 minutes before the sun; on the 16th of the month it will rise an hour and a half before it, on the 24th an hour and fifty-five minutes before it, on May 6th two hours and ten minutes before it, and on May 10th two hours and twenty minutes before it. Beginning to return toward the sun, the comet on May 14th rises just two hours ahead of the sun, and on the 16th one hour and a half ahead. By this time it is getting hard to see again. Then it swings over to the evening sky.

On May 22nd it will set two hours and forty-five minutes after the sun sets, on May 24th three hours and twenty minutes after it, on the 26th three hours and fifty minutes, and on the 28th four hours and five minutes after sunset. By this time the comet should stand out brightly in the dark sky. Then it begins another dash at the sun, setting on the 30th of the month only three hours and fifty minutes after it.

HOW CAN WE COUNTER-ACT THE INCREASED COST OF LIVING?

A second's reasoning will supply the answer. Beef and pork are dear and getting dearer all the time, and the cost is out of proportion with their food-value.

EAT MORE BREAD.

There is more nourishment in a shilling's worth of bread than a shilling's worth of beef or pork. But the problem is not done with yet. The shilling's worth of bread is not always the same value. Breadmade from contains more nourishment than any other, because it contains the greatest amount of gluten, the health-giving nutriment of wheat.
