FIGHTING THE LAND BILL. CLAUSE 7 TO BE ATTACKED IN THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

The London correspondent of the Man-chester Guardian says it is understood the Marquis of Lansdowne (Liberal) will pro-pose in the house of lords the amendment moved by Lord Edmund Fitzmaurice, which was rejected in the house of commons, re-stricting the benefit of clause 6 to all tenancies valued under £100. It is stated, tenancies valued under £100. It is stated, however, that Gladstone has resolved not to give way on the point. It is probable the government will accept modifications of Heneage's (Liberal) amendment exempting estates managed on the English system from some of the prove stringent provisions of the bill of the bill.

The committee's report on the bill was considered to-day. Mr. Parnell moved to The committee's report on the bill we consider a to-day. Mr. Parnell moved to add to clause 4 the proviso that whenever an action for rent is pending at the same time as an application for fixing judicial rent the former be suppended until the latter is determined. The attorney-general for Ireland assented to the principle of the amendment. Mr. Gladstone said the government was considering the best form of introducing an amendment limiting the lim power of staying actions only so far as to prevent the sale of tenancy, and providing that the clause should apply to every oase where this form of action is brought. The solicitor-general for Ireland suggested that the amendment would come better on clause 53, whereupon Mr. Parnell's amendment was withdrawn, and Mr. Parnell moved an addition to clause 53 providing that wherever, within six months after the passage of the bill, an action for debt is brought or pending against a tenant, before or after the application to fix judicial rent, the court-should have power to stay sale under any writ of execution of to stay sale under any writ of execution of enancy until the termination of proceedings on application. It was carried by 209 to 76. The committee's reprrt was finished and the third reading fixed for Friday. FRANCE AND ENGLAND.

A Cordial Understanding in Relation to Affairs at Tripoll—Advice for the Turk.

London, Jr., 28.—The correspondence between England and France relating to affairs in Tripoli has been issued. A despatch from Lord Granville, foreign minister, to Lord Lyons, ambassador to France. on patch from Lord Granville, foreign minister, to Lord Lyons, ambassador to France, on the 15th instant, states that in view of the unquestioned incorporation of Tripoli in the Turkish empire, as well as its proximity to Egypt, her majesty's government could not regard interference, of whatever description, on the part of France in Tripoli in the same manner as they did the occurrences at Tunis.

Lord Lyons having laid the substance of the despatch before St. Hilaire, the French foreign minister, was assured by him that France regarded Tripoli as indisputably part of the Ottoman empire, and had no intention whatever either of invading it or attempting to establish exclusive or prepart of the Ottoman empire, and had no intention whatever either of invading it or attempting to establish exclusive or predominent influence in that country. The remonstrances addressed to the porte, he said, had been mild and friendly, and had not been made till France had very good reason to believe that Turkish emissaries from Tripoli had been stirring up disaffection at Tunis. The porte had been warned of the danger which must ensue if a fire was lighted in Tripoli which would spread to Tunis; and it had been assured that if, contrary to her hopes and wishes, France was driven to military measures, she would take defensive measures only, and the French troops would not cross the frontier of Tripols. The French minister declared it would be a great sorrow to him if anything should occur to weaken the close and cordial understanding between France and England in regard to Egypt.

The correspondence concludes with a

To close the library and readingroom or greatly curtail their efficiency is the proposition now before the directors. Perhaps, the hall or opera house could be turned into profitable recreation rooms, as has been done in Toronto.

W. Scott, an effort has been made to get one upon whom both could agree.

The Reformers held, a convention and resolved to propose Mr. Cox, of the Midland railway, as such a man. The Conservatives met, drew up a platform, spoke very strongly of the necessity of running a party candidate, rejected Mr. Cox, named seven men of their own party, and appointed a

A few weeks ago I received a letter from Frank James acknowledging the receipt of a copy of my late publication, "Border Outlaws," which I sent to him by a relative. This letter has already been published. Shortly after its receipt this same relative, who is known to be in communication with moneys; he too has got off scot free by sacrificing his friends, and through them restoring the money which he had embezzled.

It is high time that such leniency to dishonest men cersed. That is not the way to check official dishonesty, and if the law allows it the law allows of "Border Outlaws," and issued ion of "Border Outlaws," and issued contemporaneously with the first newspaper reports, thereby creating a largely increased demand for the book. Of course there ap-peared so much doubt involved in this singular proffer that it was rejected with little consideration of the probability of a rob-bery such as was declared about to take tions then made assume an interest which

Montreal Stock Market. The next day Jones was arrested for the murder of Mrs. Jeffs.

On the 1st of January some of the people accustomed to call daily at the house in Montague place came as usual, but could get no answer to their ringing. Mr. Dett had left his house solely in charge of the old woman, who was a confidential servant. had left his house solely in-charge of the old woman, who was a confidential servant.

Being unable to obtain admission, the people became alarmed, and they effected an entrance into the house through the window. The old woman was found lying on the floor with her throat cut and her body stained, as if she had struggled desperately with her murderer. The windpipe was divided, and the wound was not such a one as the deceased could have inflicted upon herself. Her eyes were open, her hands clenched, and there was a strong expression of horror upon her countenance. There were marks of knuckles on her left collar-bone, and on her left cheek what appeared to be the dirt from the sole of a middy shoe, as if a foot had been pressed upon her when she was dying. There were bloody finger marks on other portions of her body. One of her pockets had been urned inside out, the other seemed to have seen overlooked and had a sovereign in it. Her watch was missing, and near the body was found the lower part of a razor case. There was a great quantity of blood on the floor—all in one particular spot.

Although everything in the house had been ransacked, no property belonging to Mr. Dett had been taken, although there was much that was portable and valuable. When Jones was arrested for the murder he had a blue coat on, which appeared to have been recently sponged in the sleeves, inside and out, between the hand and the elbow, and in front, but he claimed that the person who loaned it to him must have sponged it. He said his fingers had been cut in cutting wood with a knife. In taking off the coat to search him, Jones remarked:

"You see what a situation Lam in! I have not a shirt to my back.

On the trial Mrs. Williams could not identify the razor as the one she lent Jones.

That Jones had heard of the death of his On the trial Mrs. Williams could not identify the razor as the one she lent Jones. That Jones had heard of the death of his father without being in communication with his family was presumptive evidence against him. It was argued that he had a cone to visit Mrs. Jeffs on the evening of the 31st of December, and from he had heard of his father's death—that she had a caller that night was taken as conclusive from the lact that she ordered a double quantity of beer from the little potboy who served beer at the various houses at that period—a custom no longer in vogue in London. In giving her evidence, Charlotte Berry fainted several times, as she was greatly attached to the prisoner, and could not be brought to believe in his guilt When the evidence for the prosecution had all been taken, Mr. Justice Bailey informed Jones that the time had now come when it he had any remarks to make he might make them. Upon which Jones read a a x r he had himself prepared, showing that he was

Clerk Had to Say—Another Letter.

A well-known lawyer met a World representative yesterday and said he thought the game has been redeemed. "A vicer match was never played;" "the best men were applasted all through the game;" "the rubber moved in graceful curves;" "all was fair and gentlemanly to the end." The inference is that the Torontos are responsible for all the bad play heretofore, and that Ross Mackenzie is a terror.

in one of our law firms explained what he knew about it. He averaged eight or nine protests a day. They were liberal in their treatment of delinquents, though other firms were much more insistent. The first step was to send the note to where it was payable and ascertain if there were funds. If not, he returned and the protest was issued. Sometimes it was quite a tramp to the place of payment—for instance, to the branch banks in the west end. NIGHT LIGHTS ON THE BAY. It is a fine sight to stand on the end on the wharves on a night like last night an watch the lights on the bay and island. The night was black and dark clouds banded the heavens, revealing only the brightest of the stars. Just out from the wharf was the Chicora like a floating mansion, making a long sweep to strike her dock; away to the left was the reflection of a camp-fire of Ward's island and the lights of the cottag there; in the centre were the island light other cottages, Meal's, the two red beacon of the yacht club, and then on down to the BAIL FOR GAUTHREAUX. Gauthreaux is at last to be released on bail. His brother and Mr. Naigly arrived in town on Wednesday night with the necessary funds to procure his release. The amount fixed by Judge Galt is two sureties in $1000 each and Gauthreaux himself in $500. It is probable the final bail proceedings will be closed to-day. A World reporter saw Gauthreaux in the county gad yesterday evening. He looks thoroughly-broken down, and was lying on his back apparently unable to move one way or the broken down, and was lying on his back apparently unable to move one way or the other. A rumor has been circulated that when he is released his friends intend to send him to Europe or somewhere outside of the Dominion. His friend Mr. Naigly, after complaining bitterly about the manner in which some of the Toronto papers have coupled his name with Gauthreaux's all-ged crime, assured our reporter that the prisoner would positively appear at the trial when called upon, and he will not leave Canadian soil.
