BY ALICE DANNER JONES Be strong to bear, O heart of mine: Faint not when sorrows come. The summit of these hills of earth Touch the blue skys of home. So many burdened ones there are So many burdened ones there are, Close journeying by thy side;
Assist, encourage, comfort them,
Thine own deep sorrow hide.
What though thy trials may seem great,
Thy strength is known to God;
And pathways steep and rugged lead
To pastures green and broad.

Poetry.

"Be Strong."

Be strong to love, O heart of mine!
Live not for self alone,
But find, in blessing other lives,
Completeness for thine own.
Seek every hungering heart to feed;
Each saddened heart to cheer;
And when stern justice stands aloof,
In pity, draw thou near.
Kind, loving words and helping hands
Have won more souls for heaven
Than all the dogmas and the creeds
By priests and sages given.

Be strong to hope, O heart of mine! Look not on life's dark side; For just beyond these gloomy hours, Rich, radiant days abide. Rich, radiant days abide.

Let hope, like summer's rainbow bright,
Scatter thy falling tears;
And let God's precious promise
Dispel thy anxious fears.

For every grief a Lethe comes;
For every toil, a rest,
So hope, so love, so patient bear,
God doeth all things well.

A Novice in the Art.

There was nothing amateurish in Evelyn's ay of travelling. Her father had always been given to whisking her off on unexpected ourneys, from that momentous one to Ban-ury Cross, on which her little head had ollided so vigorously with the corner of the ibrary desk, to this present trip to California of whose consequences she was yet as ignorant as you are, unless, indeed, you are the kind of reader that looks ahead. I should be sorry, however, to accuse anyone of taking such an unfair advantage of an author and spoiling the little surprises he has so carefully planned. vince of four or five thousand dollars for the session, an expense somewhat out of proportion with the benefits from such publication, it seems to us. The debates of the House of Assembly or Legislative Council are of no more direct interest to the people than are those of our Municipal Councils; yet none of these latter bodies have ever thought it necessary or advisable to employ shorthand reporters and spend a lot of money in taking down and publishing all the speeches, wise and otherwise, therein made. It seems a sheer waste of money to publish the speech. Council. This means an expense to the pro-vince of four or five thousand dollars for the down and publishing all the speeches, wise and otherwise, therein made. It seems a sheer waste of money to publish the speeches of the Legislative Councillors, at any rate, whatever may be said in favor of the Assembly debates, as we fancy that few ever take the trouble to wade through them. For some years past only a condensed report of the Assembly proceedings was published, and we believe that arrangement proved satisfactory. It would be interesting to know why the House has gone back to the old method again.

Special Train for Mass Meeting.

To accommodate all persons attending the Mass Temperance Meeting, to be held at Lawrencetown on Friday afternoon, an arrangement has been made for a special train to leave there at 10.30 local time for Annapolis and intermediate stations. Parties attending should buy a return ticket, which entitles them to passage on special.

decision is to the effect that the dominion parliament has the power of granting to the Catholics of Manitoba a remedy for the injuries they sustained by the free school act of the legislature of that province. The dispute is one of long standing and there have been at least two appeals taken to the Privy Council over it, in both of which, by the way, the latter court reversed the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada. Now it is finally decided that the rights guaranteed the Roman Catholics of the prairie province by the act of union have been violated by the provincial legislature, and that the federal parliament has the power to interfere and restore those rights.

The schools of Manitoba are precisely like those of this province, free and non-sectarian, and outside of the 20,000 Roman Catholics the people of that province will resist bitterly any interference with their school affairs by the federal authorities; and in this they will undoubtedly have the sympathy of the orange and other ultra-protestant factions of Ontario. On the other hand the Roman Catholics of Manitoba and Quebee especially, as well as of the rest of the dominion, will after the general election is over. This is doubtless the earliest time upon which the elections could be run upon the new lists, which will then be fully revised and completed.

In the upper provinces the campaign appears to be already under full swing, as large meetings are being held almost daily by the leaders of both parties, and a good deal of enthusiasm is being worked up. In many constituencies, too, candidates have already ERNST-HUGHES.

We would find it difficult to believe that the members of the Fruit Growers' Association, outside of the few who are getting this rebate in freights, are satisfied with the present condition of things or are willing to see it continued. The freight on a barrel of apples from Halifax to London is just about double what it is on a cask of oil from New York to Germany. immediate family. What shall be the course of study, what school is best, what garments are suitable to wear and the most nutritions embroidered in a pattern as intricate as a food, are matters that engross a good share of the attention of many heads of families, but it is rare indeed that thoughtful and nscientious consideration is given to the election of proper associates for children. The youngsters go out, meet comrades of all sorts and form acquaintances and friendships utterly without advice and restraint from their parents. If some boy or girl is particularly bad, the children are forbidden th mpanionship. Very many times this prohibition amounts to absolutely nothing, for the forbidden friend is pretty sure to be on hand on all occasions. Then there is punishment that seems unjust and therefore is the source of irritation, and often means more ersistent clinging to the child who is object ted to. There is a much stronger element of seem to imagine. If they are told to avoid one of their playmates, they must have a reason for it and a good one. If the objection does not strike them as well taken, they are apt to let matters run on pretty much as ment by declaring they cannot help it, for the child will come into their play and there is no way for them to do except stay out of prostration and various other diseases, many of which they cannot account for. It is unquestionably the fact that the feet and eyes are responsible for more suffering than any other portions of the human body. Possibly it is because they are the worse treated, and there may have been acquired or inherited tendencies toward weakness. One would hardly think of attempting to change the shape of the head, but it we ld be no more absurd than the practice o cramping the feet out of all symmetry and putting the nerves under a strain that cannot fail to prove disastrous to the entire physical economy.

The Pompous Man.

HIS POMPOSITY COST HIM ONE HUNDRED AND It was during the holiday season, and he was a very prosperous man. As he walked through the finest and most expensive store in town his air and manner seemed to say that he owned it-but he didn't, as everybody knew. At length he found himself in was the display there.

The little clerk raised her voice timidly: "Excuse me, sir, but I don't think you want half a dozen pair of these; they are—"
The pompous individual interrupted her with a crushing look. "Presume to dictate to me. I said half a

The late Metropolitan of Canada, the Ven. Bishop Medley, never wearied of telling the experience of his early years of service. In those days the roads were in a very primitive condition and the country sparsely populated, rendering the journey from one woods settlement to another an unpleasant, not to say dangerous undertaking. The Bishop, however, made periodical visits to the most outlaying parishes of his diocese in all seasons, and in the most inclem ent weather. On one occasion, a violent storm being 1 progress, he was compelled to halt for the night at a log cabin by the roadside. A rough but hearty welcome was accorded him by the inhabitants, to whom he was un known. The man of the house at once busied himself with the care of the horses, while the woman set about the preparation of the tably by the fire, his thoughts were of his mission to that lonely neighborhood. "My good woman," said he, "are there
