QUESTION :

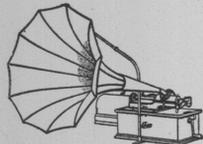

For Shoes, where do you intend to buy them? Do you know, or have you ever figured your shoe expense? You pay big prices for your shoes; do you know why you pay so much? If you don't know we will tell you. You pay for the name of the shoes, and not because they last longer or have any special style for you.

WHY !

We have the same styles, the same shapes, and looks the same; and they will wear just as long or perhaps longer. In every class of shoes, for men, women and children, high shoes, low shoes, laced, button, or elastic sides; in black leather, patent leather, tan, chocolate or ox blood. The prices are so low you will ask yourself: "Is it possible?" Ladies' Low Cuts from 98c to $2.50, Children's from 50c to $1.45, and the prices of all the stock in general are lower than one can imagine.

The New Hotel.

Its name is Victoria, its proprietor is Lawrence Murray. It is located in the midst of the town and yet it is just far enough away from Main street to be in a quiet section. Situated as it is near the fresh water it affords fine opportunities for boating and fishing. "A motor boat run to Lake Utopia" will be a favorite phrase among tourists this summer.
The hotel opened to public on Monday May 2nd and already several have been registered. All boats and trains are met by a "hack" from the hotel.
The furnishings are very suitable and everything has a very neat and new appearance; the hotel is equipped with all modern conveniences with a lively in connection.
Although late in starting Mr. Murray has furnished the hotel in a remarkably short time.
There are eighteen spacious sleeping rooms and the dining room is capable of seating fifty.
The hotel will be a fine asset to the town. St. George never had a real summer hotel before; it is an experiment worth trying and we can assure Mr. Murray of his success.
It will give our town a better name and will be the means of building up a more extensive tourist trade. It is to our interests to help Mr. Murray out in every way. In writing to our friends let us not be bashful about mentioning the fact that St. George now has an up-to-date summer hotel. Success to the Victoria.

Odds and Ends.

Anyone who would take in the New York water front would travel a distance of 341 miles.
The first ticket for the Jeffries-Johnson fight on July 4 will be presented to Colonel Roosevelt.
The statistics of the American Railway Association show that the net surplus of freight cars on the railways of the country on February 16th was 14,309, as against 24,975 on February 2nd; 26,844 on January 19; and 38,416 on January 9th. The increased demand for box cars and coal cars has been sufficient to call into service all idle rolling stock of that kind.
Promoters for Athletes.
First class time for the 220 yard hurdle race is 24 1/2 seconds; good time is 25 1/2 seconds, and fair time is 26 1/2 seconds. Excellent time for the 120 yard hurdle is 16 seconds; good time, 17 seconds; fair time, 18 seconds. For an athlete under 20, 19 seconds is good. All bruises sprains and strains should be taken care of, as they interfere with speed if neglected.
We are delighted to announce that the condition of Mrs. Church Gillmor who has been ill with congestion is much improved.
Dr. Wilson and family accompanied by Miss Jessie Wilson arrived from St. John last week, and are preparing to move into their new house.

Local fishermen report trout to be very plentiful this spring. Be a sport and take a day off, and fetch home a spring. It won't break you.
The town council has been asked to contribute a sum of money towards the support of the Band. By all means let the council do so! A good band is one of a live town's best assets.

And much too fat,
Just walk three times each morn around

"Do you think they approve of my sermon?" asked the newly-appointed rector, hopeful that he might make a good impression.
"Yes, I think so," replied his wife.
"They are all nodding!"
The sum of $2,700 has been voted for our wharf. Mr. Jesse Milliken has the contract of repairing the wharf and will begin operations at once.
The recommendations of Commander Wakeham for the shortening of the lobster fishing season has been rejected by the fisheries committee of the Canadian house of commons, on the ground that it would too seriously disturb the industry.

General News.

Springhill Mines, N. S., April 29--Some little excitement has been caused here by the news of the discontinuance of the miners strike in Glace Bay. However when the news first arrived it was looked upon as a rumor, and was not taken seriously by many until official messages were received. Just in what way the outcome of events in Cape Breton will effect the situation here is impossible to predict at present. There are many conjectures but they can be classed as only street rumors. The streets have been thronged all day by men who are anxiously awaiting any news giving fuller details of the conditions in Glace Bay; Joseph Moss, who has been connected with the strike at Cape Breton was expected here tonight and a meeting is understood, was planned to hear the full news but a message was received this evening to the effect that it was impossible for him to get here.
It is said that E. S. McCallough who is to address a meeting in Westville tomorrow evening will arrive here the first of the week and address the miners. Everything is quiet and there is no change in the situation of either the men or the company.
Smith Falls, Ont., May 1--A shocking murder was committed here this morning when Mrs. Rufus Weedmark was choked to death by her husband who is under arrest. The couple had lived very unhappily together and Weedmark had often threatened to take his wife's life. Weedmark is a laborer 52 years old, but had fallen into dissolute habits and instead of supporting the family had to be supported a good deal of the time by them. The couple had five daughters two of them were at home last night. The father was quarreling with the mother most of the night they say, and this morning they heard the mother screaming. When they came down stairs Weedmark had his wife on the floor choking her. The daughters at once gave the alarm but when the neighbors came the woman was quite dead. Weedmark talked freely of crime and boasted of having done a good job with his wife this time. The coroner's inquest is now going on.
Montreal, Que., May 1--Instructions have been received from the other side to the effect that the railway from Port Daniel to the Port of Gaspe, 200 miles from Campbellton, N. B., must be completed by the end of the year.
The line will be completed to Grand River fifty miles from Gaspe by the first of July and on the remaining fifty miles most of the grading and bridging has been completed, so if there is not too much delay on the steel superstructure the line will be finished to Gaspe Basin by Christmas day.
At the harbor of Gaspe a terminal wharf is to be built by DuSault of Quebec at a cost of $500,000, which will be six hundred feet long and giving forty feet of water for the largest steamships.
New York, May 2--Cutting his way through a living mass of 20,000 cheering people, his white locks bared to the breeze and his shuffling feet keeping time to the strains of the Star Spangled Banner, Edward Payson Weston brought to a triumphal finish today his ocean-ocean walk. He ascended the steps of the city hall at 3.10 p. m., completing the trans-continental journey of 3,483 miles in seventy-seven walking days, a feat without parallel in the annals of pedestrianism. He was presented with a gold championship belt and $400 at the city hall.
Lunenburg, April 29--Word was received here this morning that the sciz. J. S. Young, Capt. Albert Himmelman, was ashore at South Point, Magdalen Islands. The schooner which was owned by John B. Young, was launched only a year ago and was taking bait at the Magdalens when the accident occurred. The Douglas H. Thomas has been sent from North Sydney to assist in the floating of the schooner.
"And you will find a fine pump."

new medicinal preparation for the relief of conditions of nervous exhaustion, and who meant to ask for the free sample offered, may still obtain same upon request to the undersigned.

The sample contains sufficient to definitely establish the value of this preparation in your case.

ASAYA-NEURALL

(TRADE MARK)
IS RECOMMENDED

when a person, young or old, through overwork, worry, intense excitement, grief, alcoholic or other excesses, or from other recent or known causes, has overstrained and exhausted the nervous system, and as the result, does not sleep well, wakes up tired, is depressed, tearful, inclined to perspire at the least irritation, has indigestion, lack of appetite, and is, to sum up in a phrase, entirely unstrung.
Such conditions are evident to everyone, and are common in every family, and can by early treatment of brief duration by this preparation, with its threefold effect of feeding the nerve tissue, enabling sleep to be obtained and food to be desired and digested, be quickly overcome.

LARGE BOTTLES, $1.50

One bottle, taken three times a day according to directions, affords treatment for about 40 days, all that is usually required for ordinary derangements of the nervous system.

Samples and regular size bottles may be obtained from the following:

Training for the Half-Mile

To be successful at a half-mile, a runner should have both speed and endurance. His training therefore should be directed accordingly. For the first couple of weeks, a mile should be jogged in say, 6:00, every alternate day, and a good five-mile walk taken, at a brisk pace, the remaining three days of the week. Then the real work may be begun, by running a fast quarter three days of the week, and from a half to a mile, at three-part speed, the other three days, taking a couple of sprints—ranging anywhere from 50 to 150 yards—daily.

This will be found a very good system, as it will be seen, both speed and endurance have received due attention, which is necessary.

In the case of those who can't stand training every day, and who generally content themselves with exercising but three days a week, as many do, and who, it may be here remarked, improve just as fast, and indeed, it may be even faster a good quarter one day; a stiffish 600 m. other; and the full distance, at three-quarter speed, for the last run of the week, will be found about the right work to take.

The sprints are to be taken as usual, and a good brisk five-mile walk on days on which no running is done, would help materially in getting the runner fit.

The old instructions to rest, sleep, etc. apply with equal force here.

"I've got to go to Philadelphia," said the hurried traveller, who was fumbling for his pocketbook. "Well," answered the New York ticket seller, "are you buying transportation or just telling your troubles."

Success in Smiles

We often win success with the weapon of a smile. The road to a man's heart and to a woman's fortune sometimes lies in the light of a smile. A new cult teaches that one has only to sit up and look pleasant to obtain pretty much everything worth while possessing in life. Health and happiness which elude the utmost endeavors of many of us to hold in thrall, we are assured may be won and kept by a smile.

Advancement in business is measured by the quality and variety of our smiles. A fellow being can be cheered to living and one may prolong his own life by merely smiling. These and many other facts are brought out relative to a school for smiling established in Paris.

The Frenchwoman is nothing if not practical. It took a Frenchwoman to reduce to a practical science, with a commercial value, the gentle art of smiling. There is much to learn about this pleasing little contortion of visage. A grin is not synonymous with a smile, nor does a sinner rank in the same category or convey the same meaning. A widening of the mouth has not the significance one seeks in a smile, and laughter is a thing often associated with but distinct from it. One is an irresistible expression of excited mirth, the irrepressible overflow of mirth, or a vocalization of anger, irony or contempt. It is a product of the emotions. The other is more deeply seated in the feelings and when spontaneous certainly serves as an index to character. It is not always spontaneous. Alas, it may never be so again!

The school for smiling consciously instructs in methods of producing smiles adapted to all purposes and suitable for every occasion. Unconsciously perhaps it inculcates deception and upon necessity in the smile of its graduates deceit is as likely to lurk as mirth, tenderness, pleasure or sympathy. The dimpled tradition which betokens a gay, untroubled mind has almost the charm of the smile that belongs to happiness, and both are invariably the possession of youth. Older people are wont to take their joys more soberly, unaware that the outward and visible sign of a smile is as necessary to their well being as sunshine is to that of a flower. There are organisms which can exist only in the light. Within us are organisms whose presence is necessary to health. These need the illumination of a smile and the exercise of laughter to keep them in healthy condition.

The stranger—Was the new candidate much put out when they threw the stale eggs at him?
Nattie—He was, sure. He was awful decomposed!

New Temperance Bill.

Briefly stated, the principal provisions of the new temperance bill introduced in the Nova Scotia legislature on the 12th are as follows:

The new law, which is modeled after the P. E. Island prohibition law, is to go into effect in all counties where the Scott Act is not in force. The city of Halifax has special consideration.

The Scott Act may be repealed by popular vote, when the new law will come into force.

Provision is made against the shipping of liquor into counties where the Act is in force from counties where it is not in force.

Inspectors are to be appointed by the municipalities to carry out the law. The government may appoint and pay a chief inspector to supervise and assist the local inspectors (including those working under the Scott Act).

Penalty for violation of the Act, first offence $50, or one month's imprisonment; second offence, $100 or two months imprisonment; third offence, four months imprisonment without the option of a fine.

Regarding the city of Halifax, after the expiration of the present licenses the number granted shall not exceed 70, and after the census of 1911 one license only may be granted for every thousand residents.

A board of license commissioners is to be appointed to deal with applications for licenses. Two members to be appointed by the government and three by the city council.

Provision is made for the taking of a plebiscite for or against the granting of licenses in Halifax and on a majority voted against it, the licenses then in force shall expire.

"I understand, Miss Araminta," said the professor, "that you are inclined toward literature."

"Yes," said the blushing spinster. "I wrote for the Bugle Magazine last month."

"Indeed! May I ask what?" asked the professor.

"I addressed all the envelopes for the rejected manuscripts," said Araminta proudly.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN.

Arrowroot is excellent for thickening sauces made of fruit juices as it neither clouds the mixture nor destroys the flavor of the fruit.

The small jars in which candy sometimes comes should be saved for picnic use and lunches, as they are excellent for carrying salad and sauces.

For almond cake filling, blanch and pound a pound of almonds, add two eggs, a cupful of sugar and a teaspoonful of vanilla and spread between layers.

Cooked beets, hollowed out and pickled in spiced vinegar, may be filled with minced celery and apple and served on lettuce leaves with oil and vinegar.

A delicious flavor is added to the maraschino cherries used in or as a decoration for fruit or other salad by stuffing them with pecan nuts, chopped rather coarse.

A few drops of alcohol rubbed on the inside of lamp chimneys will remove all trace of greasy smoke when water alone is of no avail.

A little muriatic acid added to the rinsing water after a blue or white fire rug is scrubbed with soap and water will help restore the color.

A perforated rubber mat is almost an essential when the drain board of the sink is of porcelain. It saves many an ugly chip on fine china.

Cushion covers, especially designed for piazza use, come stencilled in most artistic designs, and may be had in a variety of colors. They are in denim, crash, burlap, men's cloth and linen.

Boiled raddishes are dainty. Cut them into rounds about half an inch thick, boil ten minutes in slightly salted water and fry in butter until tender. They should be highly seasoned.

If the colored candles used for guest tables and other festive occasions become soiled before they are used, they can be nicely washed with a soft brush, white soap and warm water.

Fringed napkins look worn because the fringe is thin and uneven, cut it off, draw a few threads and hemstitch the napkins. They will make very attractive doilies and will last a long time.

If You are Going to Move.

If you are going to move, before you begin to pack make a clear plan of operations.

Decide what you mean to keep, and do not commit the blunder of having to pay cartage on mere truck and rubbish. Cut down your possessions mercilessly rejecting all those that have no values except association. Find some poor person to whom your cast-offs would not be worthless and bestow them freely or else throw them away.

Do not start packing too long before you intend to move. There is no sense in turning the house upside down for a week or so before you leave it.

There are plenty of small out of sight tasks that may be done. Pack trunks with clothing that is not in use, with boxes of odds and ends to be found in every bureau. Save yourself trouble in unpacking by affixing to the inside of the top of the trunk a general list of contents.

When you begin to dismantle the house attack brick-a-brac first, then the pictures and draperies. Beat and brush the latter and wipe off the books.

Have plenty of clean strong boxes, with good tops, ready for the reception of the contents of bookcases and cabinets choosing small boxes rather than large ones as they are easier to handle.

Do all the packing in one room if you can.

Have your carpets lifted and beaten. Draw the tacks from the matting, brush and roll them, tying them securely that they may not slip. If the matting is at all stained or spotted wipe it off with a cloth dipped in a solution of salt and water. You will probably have more time for this now than if you wait until it is put down in your new home.

A Scottish clergyman got into conversation in a railway carriage with a working man, who informed him that he had been a coupler on a railway for several years. "Oh," said the minister. "I can beat that. I have been a coupler for over twenty years." "Aye," replied the workman, "but I can't couple, and you can't!"

Quick and Permanent Relief from Rheumatism

It is not exposure to cold or wet that is the real cause of rheumatism—it is bad kidneys. So long as the kidneys are doing their work properly, filtering from the blood all the Uric Acid formed there from the waste products of the body, rheumatism cannot exist. It is only when the kidneys fail, and the blood becomes loaded with this Uric Acid, that the slightest exposure stiffens up the joints or muscles and causes agony.

Father Morriscy's No. 7 Tablets promptly relieve and permanently cure rheumatism by putting the kidneys into perfect shape for their work. Once the strengthened, invigorated kidneys get the Uric Acid cleared out of the blood the rheumatic pains disappear. If they ever show symptoms of returning a few No. 7 Tablets will tone the kidneys up again and keep you free from the dreaded rheumatism.

Father Morriscy's No. 7 Tablets have proved their value in hundreds of cases where other remedies have failed entirely.

Advertising and Its Uses

"Do you find the prisoner guilty or not guilty?"

For the moment the foreman of the jury swayed as he stood, and then, in a voice that had in it more than a tremble of emotion, he replied, "Not guilty!"

The frail girlish figure, with the worn face of anxiety, seemed upon the point of fainting; still a smile played about her lips.

There was an uproar of enthusiasm in court. It seemed indeed, as if the judge himself might applaud.

Miranda Clive, an entirely unknown semi-provincial actress, had been found not guilty of the murder of a fellow actor in a squalid lodging in Providence.

Her trial had made her the greatest celebrity in America.

She had received innumerable offers of marriage, depending, of course, upon the proviso that she should be acquitted.

One had come from an upholsterer, who had offered her his hand and heart (as soon as he became a widower.) Another was received from a government clerk.

She was the heroine of the moment. No paper was complete without her portrait.

The street outside was thronged. All sorts of false witness had been given during the case against her.

The result of the prosecution was regarded by the police as a triumph of the person over the police.

Eminent actors, authors and people in swift society had struggled to obtain seats at the trial. One of the most interested spectators had been that eminent leader of fashion, young George Gordon, who had watched the girl as though fascinated by the anguish of her position and the pallor of her cheeks, and the pathos of her large gray eyes.

Outside, the mob—a huge mob of thin-lipped, evil-faced men and bedraggled women, many of whom had been defeated by the police, they themselves struggling with the criminal law—regarded the little actress' triumph as, in a measure, a triumph of their own. Even after the most exciting election, such an enthusiastic mob, such cheering, such invitations to stand drinks, had rarely been known.

Through a almost impassable sea of humanity she eventually escaped in her motor car with her solicitor.

Within a few days she was earning a thousand a week at a New York theatre. Within two months she was seated in the Cote d'Azur speeding to Monte Carlo at her husband's side.

"Tell me, my darling," murmured George Gordon in her ear, "did you really commit that murder?"

The girl started. The question had to be asked some day, but she had not expected it so soon.

For a moment she dallied—to adjust the minute hand of the baby watch deftly concealed in third ring on the fourth finger. Then she turned to her husband.

His eyes were hungry. He wore the hunted look of the dyspeptic man who finds himself seated next the guest of honor and compelled to sample every course of the banquet. He seemed grimly to prepare himself for disappointment.

She shot a questioning glance at him, but, conscious of his great love, she told the truth.

"No," she answered.

A slight pallor came into the young man's face.

He gasped: "What was the real truth?"

His bride told him, with minute details, the story, which may briefly be set down thus—

"I was living in theatrical lodgings in Providence. It was a very small house. One morning the landlady and the maid went out to buy the day's food. I was alone in the house with Bob MacVicar."

He had the worst room in the place, because he was miserably hard up.

We were playing in the same company—and you can call it playing.

"I didn't like him, and he didn't like me, still, there was that sort of camaraderie that exists between people in the profession." I remember we used to have awful rows, sometimes even before the landlady.

"One row—which came out at the trial—was because I would not lend him a revolver which had belonged to my father. The management of the theatre only propped him up that way. He had to pay with a miserable instrument, and this was a fine, shining revolver, and his personal vanity would have been gratified if I had lent it to him for stage purposes. The rest is very simple.

"On the morning—that fatal morning—I was sitting in the parlor. I heard a pistol shot and rushed upstairs and I found him dead on the floor of his bed room, bleeding from pistol shot wound. My pistol was in his hand. He had taken it out of my drawer."

"My first idea was to faint, but it was a bad idea. A better idea immediately came into my head. What a splendid advertisement it would be if I were tried for murder! Instinctively I unclashed the hand and threw the pistol a yard or two away. Then I went back to the parlor and sat down as if nothing had happened."

"Well, darling," she said, casting a sweet glance, "you know the rest. Are you very disappointed?"

"Yes, my sweet," he replied. But the loyal fellow pressed her hand.

"Let it be our secret," he whispered.

—Review.

One night, two months after the receipt of Reil's check, a stranger arrived at Trout's Hotel. Peloo, who was behind the counter, noted with grim interest that as the man raised his eyes from signing the register they fell over the framed check and lingered there long enough to read its attached history.

The guest asked quietly, "Is this Mr. Meekins in Silver City now?"

"That's him, an' he one of the most influential citizens of this town." Peloo answered, indicating Reil, who was sitting by the stove.

As Peloo turned the register he gave a gasp and looked at the check behind him. It carried the same signature as that which was written in the book, "Peter Moody."

Moody had crossed over to Reil. He held out his hand, saying, "I owe you a debt of gratitude, sir, for saving my son's life. I am Mr. Moody."

"Oh, I just happened along," Reil replied in deprecating voice. "How's he doin', Mr. Moody? Did he lose all his toes?"

"He's crippled physically, but in other ways he's better than he ever was. As you saved his life, I can hardly regret the experience."

Moody drew from a pocket a small leather case, and added, "I brought with me a little token of my gratitude and appreciation, hoping I might find you here."

He opened the case, lifted out a massive gold watch and chain, and passed it to Meekins with the back of the case open, saying, "When you've read what is inscribed there I hope you will accept this too meagre gift from me."

On the case Meekins read, "Presented to James Meekins for his heroic contact in saving the life of my son."

PETER MOODY.

"I want to speak of that on the watch," Moody said presently. "I have been away and know nothing of that matter. The check was signed by my deputy. It was only on my return that I had the story from my son's lips."

Meekins had sat reading over and over the inscription in the watch. There was a burr in his voice as he said, "Any of the fellows would have done all that I done, mister; but it's mighty nice of you to give me that watch an' what's writ in it. You mus' tell your son when you go back I hope he's gettin' on all right."

"I'd like to take that check back to the department," Moody said. "I'd take the matter up yourself."

"If you'll excuse me a minute, mister; I got to say a word to Peloo," and Reil, stepping over to the counter, "Jus' hand me down that check, Peloo."

Trout complied, saying, "I knowed he'd want to buy it; but don't take no promises—get the cash. Stick him for all he'll stand!"

Meekins returned to his seat, saying, "I got kinder tired secin' that thing up there."

Meekins hastily put a hand, crumpling. "Why, you are tearing it, Mr. Meekins!"

"One o' dem," Reil answered quietly, "cause me an' you an' the Coventer is all quits now."

Halley's Monster Comet

Approaches

On May 18th many of our earth beings will witness a sight the like of which has never before been seen by men, at least since men have kept a written history of events. On that day for over three hours we shall be viewing the sun through the great blazing head of a comet.

Of a sudden our earth, swinging through space at 65,400 miles per hour, will plunge into the tail of Halley's comet, close to the neck of it. The tail will have been whipped against us at its own speed of 105,000 miles an hour.

Thus this globe will drive through the luminous haze at a total speed of 170,000 miles per hour, 47 miles per second, the earth entirely immersing herself in the celestial mist in less than three minutes, yet so thick is the tail at the point of perforation—600,000 miles—that we shall be nearly three hours and a half passing through.

What will happen? No two scientists agree in detail. They are however, practically certain there will be no harm done to any creature of the earth, save the harm which fear does. But the superstitions are almost certain to be stricken with mortal terror during that three hours.

For those three hours will show to men the most sublime, awe-inspiring display of heavenly fireworks this earth has witnessed since space roared with the primordial flames of creation, the astronomers say.

But the chances are it will be nothing but light—terrific, but harmless. For our sunlight during those 205 minutes will be filtered through the comet's head or nucleus (the head will be eclipsing the sun) and that head will have just come from a bath in the very flames of the sun. This gaseous head, 51 times as big as our earth and only 14,000,000 miles away (a mere step compared even with the distance to the sun) will be boiling, fuming, exploding, blasting, in titanic convulsions of heat after its recent experience.

And it is through such a lens our sunlight must come filtered for three hours and a half May 18th.

We did, indeed, have one slight previous experience with the tail of a comet. On June 30th, 1861, we snipped through part of the tail of Tebbet's comet. But it was a mere wisp of tail—just a thread at the extreme end of the tail's 24,000,000 miles of length—a hair, a scant 3,000 miles thick.

Yet, for the experience of seeing that hair several times the French astronomer Liais journeyed to Rio de Janeiro and set up his instruments.

The moment came. Suddenly Liais saw the sky turn like blood at midday.

Then there was a rapid plunge into a lurid, translucent yellow and almost instantly the sky darkened to a coppery green, as if a tornado were approaching. And, next instant, before the observer could realize it, the sun shone serenely.

again, the earth's minute for passing through the 3,000 mile thick hair was up and Liais packed his instruments and went home.

"We'll be in Halley's comet tail over three hours. Will the effect be proportionately awful?"

Scientists all over the world are warning people to be prepared for strange sights, but not to be frightened. For, as the saying goes, the whole 62,000,000 miles of its tail, condensed, "might be packed in a trunk."

Says Andre, director of the Lyons observatory: "You must not be astonished if it shows an aspect as strange and stranger than anything ever seen before."

What effect the adventure will have upon the earth is disputed. Comets are little understood. There are instruments which can detect their weight and composition, but beyond those known facts each scientist has a different explanation.

A recent theory is that the comet nucleus or head is simply an enormous gas lens, and what appears to be a tail is in reality, only the pencil of concentrated sunlight such as proceeds from an ordinary searchlight. Outside of this pencil we can see its length. But once in it, we would observe only an increase in the heat and brilliancy of the sunlight.

Under this theory the only effect that will be noticed May 18th will be that the sunshine will fairly burn one. (But in the shade it should be fairly comfortable.)

If the comet's tail is of gas, at least the gas is much diluted. Some observers fear the delay oxygen gas, which, if thick, would strangle all breathing things at once. Diluted, such as gas might turn the whole world very sick to its stomach for two or three hours.

Some predict a display of electrical phenomenon, tremendous but harmless as the aurora borealis. Deslandres, a Frenchman, says the tail is made up of cathode rays, which, touching our atmosphere, would become X-rays upon air is to wring the water out of it. So we may be soaked with deluges of rain during our comet bath.

Some believe the comet's tail is intensely hot. But this heat must be thinly distributed, owing to the filmy character of the tail. Moreover, the earth has an enveloping blanket of cool air to save it. The foundryman can wet his finger and plunge it safely into molten iron. The air blanket would act like a water jacket.

There is a chance yet that we won't touch the tail at all. The full observations have not yet been taken. The final calculations may show that the tail will miss the earth by a few thousand miles—a microscopical distance in space—but still enough so that we would pass the tail in blissful ignorance of its nearness.

At any rate there seems little danger of any harm to come over the earth. The thing to do is to hold tight, don't lose courage, and keep your eyes open. For you are likely to see things you can tell about to your grandchildren.

Read the pain formula on the box of Pink Pain Tablets. Then ask your Doctor for them. Better one. Put me in Congress. Local pressure somewhat. Dr. Sherris Pink Pain Tablets (the best) is the only one in the world where everyone can see the doctor's name all over it.

Risk Something Win Something

If one will pause for a moment and study the career of what we call our greatest men, he will discover the fact that for the most part they came to their greatness by way of defeat. They risked and lost. Again they risked and won, profiting by the experiences of the former defeat. They recognized that a campaign consists of more than one battle, and that a general may be defeated in one or more battles and yet win the campaign. Their final successes have been moderate or magnificent according as they learned the lessons of former defeats, poorly or thoroughly. The majority of men go through life without risking much, and consequently without doing anything which is worth recording. All honor to the man who risks much even though he fails in his attempt. We would judge him not by the single battle but by the campaign. What has been said above concerning men may be said of towns or cities, these are made up of men of the classes, those who are willing to risk something for the good of the town or city, and those who are unwilling to venture beyond what they can see, and it may be taken for granted that a town or city composed of men who risk nothing will amount to but little. Apply this principle to any town or city you may, and see if it be not a true one. Why St. John is coming to be the city it is bound to be is because her citizens have been willing to risk something. Apply the principle to towns near at hand and see if it does not hold good. Apply it to our own town and see how it holds. What has St. George ever risked? Is it a town of electric lights or water service? Would her citizens be willing to risk (and it would be no risk) $50,000 for the introduction of a light and water system? With water power and good water so convenient, these conveniences could be run at a cost much less than any town we know of. A Kerosene Oil and Town Pump Town, will not attract outside capital. Electric light and water system will. It pays to be up to date. To be so we must be willing to risk something.

Booming Baseball.

The St. George B. B. A. held a second meeting last Friday evening to receive the report of the organization committee.

In the absence of President McGee, Vice-President George Frauley presided.

After the meeting was called to order Artie Frauley, chairman of the organization committee read the report of the committee.

The report consisted of the recommendation of a copy of by-laws which the committee compiled. They also reported that they had solicited subscriptions around the town and that the sum of sixty-eight dollars had been subscribed. Also that they had interviewed Mr. Geo. McCallum regarding the rental of the field. Mr. McCallum agreed to rent the field for a term of three years to the Association.

The report was discussed clause by clause and with a few additions and alterations was adopted.

The following officers which the organization committee recommended were appointed:—

Geo. E. Frauley—Manager of St. George Baseball Team

Edward J. O'Neill—Sec. Treas.

of the Association. Messrs. Geo. E. Frauley, Edward O'Neill, and G. S. Lord—managing committee of the team. The latter committee will assume the duties of picking out the first team and captain. It was resolved to fix the fee for admission to the association at one dollar, and to have membership cards printed at once. The meeting then opened for admission of members; a number then produced the necessary and became members of the association for the season of 1910. The meeting then adjourned as the band was waiting to practice. About twenty were present and the meeting was a very enthusiastic one. As the officers were appointed each one responded fittingly in a few words, and expressed their thanks for the honor done them and assured the association that they would do all in their power to further the interests of baseball in St. George. All in the town interested in baseball are expected to join the association whether they purpose attending meetings or taking an active part in the field or not. There will be a great many games played this summer and any person holding a membership ticket will be admitted to all games free of charge. Each member of the association will be given a number of tickets to dispose of and all who want to see St. George produce the best ball team in New Brunswick will procure a ticket and thus help to make the diamond one of the best in the province. The field is perfectly level and will be fixed up in first class shape. Never before were the prospects for a successful season in baseball in St. George so bright. The association will start out strong financially and with a good diamond. The material will be developed as the season advances. Let us all take an interest and show our friends in other towns that the little town of St. George can produce a champion baseball team.

Report of the Swine Commission.

The report of the Commission sent last year by the Dominion Government to Europe to study the swine rearing industry has been issued. It consists of a pamphlet of sixty pages of printed matter and a large number of striking illustrations.

The countries visited were England, Scotland, Ireland, Denmark and Holland. Denmark and Ireland being the competitors of Canada in the British market, received most attention. The report described clearly how the hogs are bred and reared, and the various steps taken to develop the export bacon trade. The far famed co-operative system as applied by the Danes to the breeding and rearing of the swine, the packing and marking, is fully described. Co-operative feed buying, which involves the purchase of over six hundred million pounds of grain, oil cake, etc., a year is fully dealt with.

A valuable feature of the report is the attention given to the methods followed in the different countries for maintaining harmony between packers and farmers, and the securing of a uniform supply of pigs. Co-operation not only between farmers, but between packers and farmers, is credited with excellent results. This is especially true in England in bacon curing vicinities.

After dealing with the various phases of production in the different countries, a chapter is devoted to the English bacon trade and another to lessons for Canadian farmers and packers. The report is comprehensive and practical, and therefore of value to every swine raiser in Canada. Copies may be procured free by writing the "Live Stock Commissioner" at Ottawa.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

Can there be read weekly by over 7000 people. Does not an ad. in its columns benefit and increase your business?

Mr. James Maxwell is moving into the Young block and will occupy the apartments recently vacated by Wm. Gallant.

Have you tried Estabrook's Red Rose Coffee? Some people who are using it say they have never tasted as good coffee before. Not even in the States.

Get the habit of drinking Red Rose Coffee for breakfast. Red Rose Tea can be bought for the same price as teas of poorer quality. Red Rose Tea is "Good Tea."

An "ice-cream social" will be held in the Graniteville school house tonight. The proceeds will be in aid of the Sunday School. In case of inclement weather it will be held on the following five evenings.

Mrs. Samuel Proie has sold her property in Pennfield to Mr. Arthur Justason of that place. It is understood that Mr. Ralph Justason will reside on the place.

St. George is affording better hotel accommodations than ever before. Three hotels are now attending the trains. The hotels now represented are the Carleton House, Victoria and Boyd's Hotel. There is room for more hotels.

Don't subscribe for a paper and after it has run for a year or more "swell up" and say you never subscribed for it. Come in pay up your arrears. It takes money to run a paper. Subscribers in arrears please bear this in mind.

The heaviest rainfall of the year took place last week. It is a God send to the lumbermen who are getting their lumber from the head of the streams. The farmers also welcome the rain in the absence of the late winter snows.

The strike was declared off on Friday between the Dominion Coal Co. and miners at Glace Bay. The men went back to work unconditionally. The Company has spent $1,250,000 fighting the strike, and in the mean time the men lost over $3,000,000 in wages. Four hundred skilled miners are now on their way from the old country to work in the collieries at Glace Bay.

John D. Rockefeller has given away during his life time, some $133,000,000. Under the new proposal, the Rockefeller Foundation, he will give some $1,500,000. This last benefaction is to be world wide and the influence of the money, in doing good is to all creeds, all nations, and away down through the centuries yet to be. It will be the greatest benefaction the world has ever known. Mr. Rockefeller's fortune is put at $250,000,000. --Truro News.

The trim little gasoline launch "Oak Leaf" owned by Mr. Rigby of St. Andrews brought a party from that place to St. George on Sunday. The party consisted of about fifteen several of whom were St. George people. Among them were Messrs. Melley and Otto Kennedy, McDougall and two sons, Fred Woodbury formerly of Greetings staff, Herbert McCracken, and Robinson. They left for home about eleven o'clock. St. George is getting to be a popular place for such excursion parties.

The St. Mark's Sunday school is booming; a new library consisting of 170 books has been placed in the Sunday school. The opening of the Sunday school at 9.45 prior to the morning service has proved a decided success. Last Sabbath the attendance was 61, which is nearly the average attendance. It is understood that the other schools are to adopt the change of hour.

From the Maritime Mercantile... H. S. Terris & Co. of Springhill, N. S. do not seem to be afraid of mail order houses. They have placed on their counter catalogues from the leading mail order houses in Canada, and freely invite their customers to look over them, make comparisons with values they offer themselves, and say to their customers that if the comparison is not in their favor, not to buy from them. "Value for your money or we don't want your business," they say. Continuing, they say: "If you can do as well in your own town, don't send your money to those who contribute nothing towards the support of the town in which you live." It seems to us that Messrs Terris & Co. are working along the "right lines."

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

The roads in the country are gradually drying up, and with good roads business should be brighter.

Changes of air. Frauley Bros., Real Rose Tea, D. Bessen, Maritime Steamship Co., John Dewar & Sons.

The St. George Corners Bros. arrived on Monday evening and discharged freight, clearing on Tuesday morning's tide.

J. Smith, C. P. R. baggage master at Fredericton Junction, died on Friday morning from blood poisoning caused by the bite of a pet dog. He was 35 years of age.

Before buying a Hat or Cap for yourself or the boy, it will pay you to look at the great variety of popular priced lines, Frauley Bros. are showing this spring. This firm reports a big increase in their business so far this year. The reason is plain.

The New St. George Cornet Band intend having an entertainment on or about the 24th inst., for which they are making preparations. An engaging evening is promised, so look out for further announcement and plan on being there.

On the whole fish have been scarce during the past few days. A few were taken at Boobee yesterday morning and around Back Bay and L. Blaine and Fife's Island the fishermen report small catches. We hope reports will be more favourable next week.

For best results in Workingmen's Shirts, there is no line on the market today that will compare with the H. E. K. Big Shirt. Frauley Bros. have just received 25 dozen of this brand in black, black and blue stripes, blue and other colors. Every Shirt is guaranteed.

A party consisting of Wm. Merseman, George and David Maxwell enjoyed an outing at the head of the lake this week. They succeeded in landing 84 speckled beauties, all of a respectable size. They report trout to be plentiful. Some more of our local sports are going to try their luck next week. We wish them luck.

Frauley Bros.' New Shoe Store is now in the hands of the painters and will probably be open for business in about 10 days. Women's, Misses and Children's Footwear, Hosiery, etc., will be carried in this store, which will make it a most attractive place for the ladies.

It is an undisputed fact that the highest grade Fertilizers are those that give the best results are the Provincial Chemical Fertilizer Company's Brands. Frauley Bros. are still local agents for this Company. In connection with the Fertilizers this firm also has a small quantity best quality garden seeds, which are being sold at low prices to clear.

The Boston Post, whose sporting editor is Arthur Duffy, at one time one of the fastest sprinters the States has produced, says the following regarding Cameron, the plucky little Amherst Marathoner:-- "Maxor Fitzgeralds lanqueting of young Fred Cameron is a step in the right direction for the encouragement of local sport. There has been far too great neglect of athletics in the past by high public officials, especially in the Hub, the home of champions. I am of the opinion that a champion in any branch or sport, particularly a Marathon, is worthy of such due recognition. Any young fellow who gives up his time? outside of business hours, and by hard ticks and perseverance works his way to the front, outclassing all his competitors, is worthy the recognition."

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS.

Our Busy Rich

About 76,000 Farmers Now Own Automobiles.

Ever been to Hays City, Kansas? Well, when you go there just ask for farmer Thomas Keldie. He'll give you true Scotch welcome, and he'll be glad to tell you how last spring he decided that he had made his farm yield enough to entitle him and his wife to take a trip abroad in his own automobile. He'll tell you how he shipped his car from Kansas to Glasgow, and how he saw more in two days in Scotland by means of this car than he remembered to have seen in the first 25 years of his life, which were spent in Scotland. There's the new American farmer for you! Wall street brokers, pork packers and trust magnates are not the only ones that tour Europe in their own automobiles.

The number of automobiles is growing rapidly. Out of 10,000 automobiles in Iowa, 5,000 are owned by farmers. Kansas farmers spent $3,200,000 for automobiles during 1909, and $2,750,000 in 1908. In one Nebraska town of 800 population, 40 automobiles were sold last year to farmers in town. Careful estimates of the number of automobiles owned by farmers in the entire United States is 76,000. Nowadays there is no more cry about lack of opportunity on the farm. Sixteen automobile makers are advertising automobiles to the farmer in the 450 farm papers of the country, and most of them are arguing that the automobile will keep the boy on the farm, and make life more livable for the wife, whose dreary round of labor has been the pity of the country.

Now the farmer with an automobile can take his family for an evening call, or lecture, without using his horses. He can go to church on Sunday more regularly; he can visit distant relatives and friends more frequently; he can go to town oftener and more quickly. One Dakota farmer who is extremely fond of hunting, but lives 40 miles from the game district, takes his son with him on Saturday during the season and comes back Sunday night with a deer or two slung across the radiator and babbling over tales of his luck.

There are 48,000,000 people living on farms and in towns of less than 4000 in this country. This means that over half of our population is practically in the country. About 25,000,000 of these are just as keen for pleasure as young people anywhere else. That is one big reason for the automobile on the farm. Ten or fifteen years ago farmers bought organs for their daughters and buggies for their sons. A great many of them today are buying automobiles for the whole family. An entirely new meaning has been given to the village social life in consequence - From Travel.

The Ailments of Women.

Great benefit and certain cure is guaranteed for all women who use Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Lord Kitchener.

See whiz!
What a quiet man he is!
He goes around
Without any sound,
And he never blows
About what he knows,
And he cuts no capers
In the newspapers,
And he doesn't try
To tell people how to live or die,
And he doesn't want to show
The whole world how to go,
And he doesn't fight
To get into the limelight,
And - and - oh, say,
What kind of a great man is he any way?

Where is his paraphernalia?
Where is his glittering brass?
Where are his banners and cohorts?
Where is his glory? Alas!
He keeps them away from the public,
His record is hidden from view,
And nobody hears him telling
Of what he has done or will do,
And yet by gum!
He is not dumb,
And he's been going some
Along several ways
That count in these strenuous days,
Wow!
Why doesn't he kick up a row?
Why doesn't he paw the earth
And cavort
And snort
And champ his bits
And show us what
A great man he is Right on the spot?
Say
We're used to that way,
And Kitchener should emulate
Our Truly Great,
See?

The disappointed victims of poor Catarrh remedies should read the statement of J. R. Smith, of Lake Stream, N. B. In Catarrh he found an absolute cure and says: "Last winter my little girl of eight caught cold which lodged in her ears in the form of Catarrh. She became sick and deaf and nothing helped. By inhaling Catarrhose she got relief and gradually the discharge went away. She was cured perfectly of Catarrh. Personally I can recommend Catarrhose for coughs and throat irritation; it's a wonderful medicine." Sold everywhere, 25c. and $1.00.

Summer Homes.

In few respects have the customs of the American people more rapidly changed within the memory of living men than in references to the summer outing. It is only within the last generation or two that people have generally left the cities for summer homes in the country, by the seashore or in the mountains. Not only has the custom of maintaining two regular homes practically come in, but the way in which the year is divided between the two has very greatly changed in the last half century. The country season is steadily growing longer. All this is the logical outcome of the growth of our cities, as well as the growth of wealth and of public taste. The old Boston of seventy years ago was almost as rural in its access to the fields and the seashore as are many of the places in which Boston people now maintain their establishments. The time has gone by when an unwritten law of duty or custom compelled even the wealthy to choose between staying in the city during the heated term or seeking what repose could be found in a few approved watering places whose mammoth hotels were usually congested. Yet the time when revolution in thought that impelled the city countryward in the summer began is not so long gone by that the middle-aged, or the man or woman in the forties, cannot recall the curiosity which inspired them to doubt whether the closed shutters on urban residence streets meant that the family was actually away.

Coughs that are tight, or distressing, tickling coughs, get quick and certain help from Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. On this account Druggists everywhere are favoring Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. The tender leaves of a harmless lung-healing mountainous shrub give to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its curative properties. Those leaves have the power to cure the most distressing cough, and to soothe, and to soothe and heal the most sensitive bronchial membrane. Test it once yourself and see!

Good! Very good! However, for the very reason that some people, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Contains especially the Dr. Shoop package with others and goes the difference. Peruna contains among other things, golden seal, powerful to its effect upon the mucous membranes. Codron seed, a rare medicine and unsurpassed tonic. A Middle-Aged Romance Tranmark met Fanny Belton several months before he really noticed her. This need not be taken to imply that Miss Belton was not in the least lacking in charms and perfections. The fact is that Tranmark secretly moored in the haven of his club and hardened by 42 birthdays, had lost the habit of making interested observations.

He first really saw her the evening he shook hands with her when the little theatre party he'd him a light farewell apropos of his two weeks' trip on business. To his surprise, when his cap pulled up at the club he forgot to get out because he was still considering his sensations when Fanny Belton had shaken hands with him. In 42 years a man gets used to the handclasp various—the clinging, the sympathetic, the frozen the dignified. That was why he had noticed her especially. It had been such a friendly, humanly wholehearted firm handclasp that it was pleasant to recall.

Tranmark's amazement grew when he recalled also that in that instant he had discovered that she had gray eyes that darkened around the edge of the iris and gazed out at one frankly and sweetly; that her lips were clear-cut and arched; that her nose was ideal and the one of her head was vigorous and graceful. Altogether, Fanny Belton had such an impression on him of wholesome freshness that he thought out her a good deal, for Tranmark using his trip.

He went over to call the second evening after he got back. It was so long since Tranmark had deliberately, of his own free will gone to call on a young woman except in the line of stern duty as represented by party and dinner calls that felt foolishly conscious.

Miss Belton, however, did not seem to regard his feat as anything alarming or of necessity prophetic. Tranmark felt a little aggrieved that she took his presence so much as a matter of course.

'As if she was used to having a lot of men calling all time!' he told himself. Later on he arrived at the conclusion that perhaps she was used to men calling. In fact, the longer he knew her the plainer it became to him that there was no reason she should think his calls extraordinary. All that puzzled him was why anybody with two feet, a car fare and a decent suit of clothes stayed away at all. Naturally it took him some time to reach his state. Where he had arrived there he himself was quite ignorant of the fact. What brought him to the realization of where he had drifted was a comment.

'I had lived at the club nearly as long as Tranmark felt privileged.' 'I'd like to speak for your room at the when you move out,' he said in all earnestness. 'It has a bay window and ne hasn't. What? Oh, you aren't!' by Grinly said that from all indications you were going to give up all the forts of a home here and commit matrimony. Are you sure you aren't like that room?'

ell, why not? This was the question comforted the disturbed Tranmark. Only it must be love that led him to y Belton's three and four times a that made him so happily comforted i her presence. It was a proof of genes of soul that he did not mind men he constantly encountered it was a proof of his wisdom.

He was not alone in his fondness for her society. That first startled impression he had got of her the evening she had shaken hands and she bade him farewell, only increased. She was a charming, lovely girl. Yet—

Tranmark loved his club. He liked the quiet peace, the magic appearance of things at the mere pressing of a button, the care-free comfort. No matter how lovely a man's wife, household cares would intrude on a man. He had dim and horrible recollections of caicis with cooks and bills and visits from unpleasant relatives by marriage in the lives of several married friends. Then he would remember Fanny's eyes, with their frank friendliness, and her infectious laugh, and he would go to see her in the hope of getting light on his perplexity.

She attracted him as no other woman had done since he was callow collegian. Yet he felt he was quite contented as things were, for he had his club as well as the pleasant evenings at her house.

One day the horrible suspicion shot into his mind that if Larkin or Field or Jones, who were there frequently as himself, should decide to marry Fanny and she agreed, it would cut him out of her calls. No man is going to stand for even an old friend bobbing in four times a week. It nerved Tranmark to desperate action.

The day he resolved to sacrifice his every day preferences and propose to Miss Belton he ate dinner in a grave frame of mind. Afterward he would rarely take dinner there at the club with Francis at his elbow. To him there was something pathetic about it. Not that he should not be in great luck to marry Fanny—only a man hates changing the habits of a lifetime.

He picked up the evening paper while he waited for his cheese and when he had turned the first page he came upon something very startling. It was a formal announcement by Miss Belton's parents of her engagement to Larkin. After he had got over the shock, Tranmark heaved a sigh. He looked around the familiar room as a man who had been deprived. In the distance Francis was coming with the cheese, toasted exactly as he preferred it.

Tranmark did not even know who or what the cook was. He never would have to know.

'Perhaps,' Tranmark murmured with decorous cheerfulness, 'perhaps it's all for the best.'—Chicago News.

The only luncheon his coiliness pursue Affords to them the means, Is a tasteless meal of boneless cod, With a dish of stringless beans.

He smokes his oily tobaccoless pipe, And laughs a mirthless laugh When papa tries to coax her back By wireless telegraph.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop's first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription—Dr. Shoop's Restorative is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments—the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then these organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see! Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all druggists.

Red Rose Tea Dinner

The Toronto staff of Red Rose Tea on Saturday night celebrated the removal of the Ontario branch, into one of the largest warehouses in the city at 7 Front Street east. Every member of the staff was present and most of their wives, and at 6.30 forty sat down in the board-room to a very enjoyable banquet, laid by Coles. The toast list, after "Our King and Country," included "Mr. Estabrooks," "The Tea Itself," "The Travellers," "The House Staff," and "The Ladies." The manager, Mr. George H. Campbell, president, and the proceedings were very spirited, and jolly. Mr. T. H. Estabrooks, proprietor of Red Rose Tea, was unable to come up from headquarters in St. John N. B., and sent a telegram complimenting the staff upon increased business for March and wishing them a thoroughly enjoyable evening. About 10 o'clock the company adjourned to the spacious offices and a programme of games and musical and literary numbers made a fitting and very entertaining conclusion to the evening's enjoyment. The hit of the evening was a Red Rose Tea song composed by Mr. N. W. Williams, one of the Toronto travellers, which he sang to the tune of "The Golden Wedding Day." It described the remarkably rapid growth of Red Rose Tea in Ontario in a very few years from a new comer to a leader in the package tea business. The menu and programme was designed as a souvenir. The front cover was a decorative design of a tea plant and on the back cover was a picture in colors of the St. John warehouse. The first page was a photograph of the Toronto Warehouse and was followed by an excellent picture of Mr. Estabrooks, facing the motto. "A heart to resolve, a head to contrive and a hand to execute." The menu was followed by a humorous sketch from "Pickwick Papers," that satirized admirably, and the toast list was enlivened with quotations descriptive of those taking part. After the programme, and to conclude, came a couple of pages of "Tea Talk," bits of tea trade history. Miss Estabrooks, who is in the city was to have been present, but was indisposed, and a very pretty engraved bar pin, prepared for her as a memento, was sent to her. The evening altogether was one of bright augury for the Red Rose Tea business in Ontario.

Jokers Column

'If you please, sub,' said the colored citizen, 'I come for my freedom papers.'

'Your freedom papers?'

'Yes, sub, ain't you the man what married me?'

'I'm the man; but what do you want me for now?'

'Well, sur, I ain't got no edification nuffter say it lak de law say it, but I want you to unmarry me—unjoin me—put me asunder—make me one again, not two, an sen' me on my freedom honey-moon!'

A lady and a little boy entered the car, but the boy squirmed and fidgeted so much on his seat that at last one of the other passengers postulated:

'For goodness' sake, keep your child still, madam!'

'I am very sorry,' said the mother, 'but the truth is until I get to the hospital I shall not be able to quiet him.'

'Dear me! What's the matter with him?'

'He swallowed a teaspoon yesterday, and ever since he's been on the stir.'

Marion, who had been taught to report her misdeeds promptly, came to her misdeeds promptly, came to her mother one day, sobbing patiently.

'Mother—I broke a brick in the fire-place.'

'Well, that is not very hard to remedy. But how on earth did you do it, child?'

'I pounded it with father's watch.'

'I am very glad to have been of any comfort to your poor husband, my good woman; but what made you send for me instead of your own minister?'

'Well, you see, sir, his typhus as my poor husband's got, and we didn't think as or it would be right to let our own dear minister run the risk.'

'You ought to have a burglar alarm system in your house,' said the electric supply agent, so that you will be awakened if a burglar raises one of the windows or opens a door at night.'

'No burglar can get in here while we are peacefully sleeping,' replied Mr. Newpop. 'We are wearing our baby!'

A little girl from the city was enjoying her first experience of suburban life. Out in the garden, under the trees, she was watching the cook plucking a chicken. Finally her curiosity got the upper hand, and she exclaimed:

'Do you take off their clothes every night?'

'Are you still taking a cold plunge every morning?'

'No; I quit doing that to save time.'

'Why, a cold plunge doesn't take but a minute or two?'

'I know, but I used to spend three-quarters of an hour curled up in bed hesitating.'

'First Lady in the Street Car—I'm sure that man sitting across from us is a poet.'

Second Lady with Her—He doesn't seem to have long hair.'

First Lady—No, but I just heard him refer to me as a perfect poem, and now he is scanning my feet.'

'So you don't guide hunting parties any more?'

'Nope,' said the guide. 'Got tired of being mistook fer a deer.'

'How do you earn a living now?'

'Oh!de fishin' parties. So fer nobody ain't mistook me fer a fish.'

'How can I tell, asked the customer, 'whether I am getting tender meat or not?'

'There's only one sure way, ma'am,' said the butcher, 'an' that's by eatin' of it.' 'But I have to buy it before I can do that.' 'Yes'm; that's the beauty of the prescription.'

'You are unreasonable,' declared the physician.

'Why so, doc?'

'You stuff yourself with forty kinds of rich grub, and then you kick because you have to take two kinds of medicine.'

'Charlie, dear,' queried the fair maid at the ball park, 'why does that man behind the bitter wear such a big bib?'

'That,' explained Charlie, 'is to keep his shirt from getting mussed when the ball knocks his teeth out.'

'I think that telegraph operator is the freshest thing I ever ran across.'

'What did he do?'

'Read over the message I was sending to my husband.'

'Do you believe,' queried the fair widow, 'that universal peace will ever be established?'

'Not unless people quit getting married,' growled the old bachelor.

'Does Mr. Smith live here?'

'No sir.'

'Does he live on this street?'

'Yes, sir.'

'Do you know his number?'

'No, sir, but you'll see it on his door.'

'It costs nothing to be polite.'

'You're wrong. While I was politely picking up a glove for a lady yesterday my new $4 hat blew off and rolled in front of a passing trolley car.'

Helen—The friends of the bride-elect are going to give her a linen shower.

Harold—What's a linen shower?'

Helen—It's a shower in which the rain comes down in sheets.

'That's a well-bred child.'

'You bet she is. Never corrects parents' quibbles, no matter what the exigencies of the case may be.'

'What makes you so sure that suffragette club is in for serious trouble?'

'My wife has just joined it,' replied Mr. Meekton.

A Clean Man

Outside cleanliness is less than half the battle. A man may scrub himself a dozen times a day, and still be unclean. Good health means cleanliness not only outside, but inside. It means a clean stomach, clean bowels, clean blood, a clean liver, and new, clean, healthy tissues. The man who is clean in this way will look it and act it. He will work with energy and think clean, clear, healthy thoughts.

He will never be troubled with liver, lung, stomach or blood disorders. Dyspepsia and indigestion originate in unclean stomachs. Blood diseases are found where there is unclean blood. Consumption and bronchitis mean unclean lungs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

prevents these diseases. It makes a man's inside clean and healthy. It cleans the digestive organs, makes pure, clean blood, and cleans healthy flesh.

It restores tone in the nervous system, and cures nervous exhaustion and prostration. It contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs. Constipation is the most unclean uncleanliness. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure it. They never gripe. Easy to take as candy.

A Great Welcome for Fred Cameron

Amherst, April 27—Fred Cameron, winner of the Boston Marathon, and his trainer, Tom Trenholm, reached home last evening and the town was Cameron mad.

The great welcome was met at Moncton by a number of Amherst people and the party remained in the Railway City until the evening. At Moncton, by the way, as well as at St. John, Cameron was honored by delegations of citizens who complimented him and cheered him.

Sackville Cameron was serenaded by the Citizens' Band and was greeted by a number of the citizens and by a crowd of the Mount Allison University boys who bounced him.

Arrived at Amherst the Cameron party found the station massed by hundreds on hundreds of cheerful men and women. A procession was formed and headed by a band the shouting hundreds marched through the streets to the Auditorium where a great mass meeting was held with Mr. Curry in the chair. The magnificent trophy awarded Cameron was given a prominent place on the platform.

Mayor Curry made a brief speech and presented Cameron with a gold watch and Trenholm with a well filled purse of gold. Both Cameron and Trenholm made suitable replies. During the evening Cameron's father, an Advocate man, was introduced and spoke briefly. Speeches were also made by H. J. Logan and C. R. Smith, and Dr. C. M. Avar.

An election in South Edinburgh, on Friday, will not give the tariff reformers much hope of improving their prospects in Scotland. The liberal candidate was returned by a majority of 2,327, only seven less than the liberal candidate's majority a few months ago, although three thousand less votes were polled.

OBITUARY.

MRS. ROBERT TAYTE
In the death of Mrs. Robert Tayte, which occurred early Saturday evening at her residence St. George has lost one of its most respected residents. The deceased was in poor health for some little time and finally succumbed to heart failure. Mrs. Tayte was 74 years of age and is survived by three sons Anthony, George and Edna, all of this town and four daughters Gertrude, and Mrs. Rannie O'Brien of this town; Mrs. Robert Southwick of Salem, Mass., and Mrs. Jas. McC. Lynn. Her husband died two years ago. The deceased was a different person from the one who was laid to rest on yesterday and was very largely respected. The Greetings joins with the entire community in offering our sincerest sympathy to the bereaved family.

MR. HUGH MURRAY

There took place at his home in St. George on Thursday the death of Mr. Hugh Murray. The deceased gentleman had been ailing for some time past, but the immediate cause of his death was the infirmities of old age. He was an adherent of the Roman Catholic faith and a respected citizen of the town. He is survived by a wife, two sons Edward and Hugh at home, and six daughters, Julia, Margaret, Laura and Winnifred of Boston, Margaret and Josephine of Cedar Rapids and Mrs. Toman of Augusta, Me. The funeral took place yesterday morning from his late residence and interment was made at the Roman Catholic cemetery. Much sympathy in the community is expressed for the sorrowing ones.

MR. HAVELOCK STEWART

The death occurred at Mascarene on the 7th of April of Havelock W. Stewart, second son of John Stewart of Mascarene. Deceased was 24 years of age, and very popular with young and old. The great esteem in which he was held was manifested in the large attendance at the funeral services which were conducted at the home and church by Rev. Mr. Buchanan of St. George. The pall bearers were George Chambers, Oscar Matthews, William Leland and Rosco Pangars. They were many beautiful floral tributes, interment in the cemetery near the church.

CAPT. SAMUEL ACKERLY

A cloud of sadness was cast over Penfield on Friday when it became known that death claimed as its victim Capt. Samuel Ackery in the 59th year of his age. The deceased had been in poor health for the past few months and finally passed away on Friday with cancer of the stomach. In his removal the community has lost an ever ready and obliging neighbor and an honest and upright man. He leaves a widow and several children to mourn his loss. His funeral took place on Sunday last.

WALLACE MATTHEWS.

The death of Wallace Matthews of Letete occurred on Friday after a severe illness. The deceased is survived by a wife and nine children. He was born at Letete and passed the greater part of his life there. Mr. Matthews was fifty-seven years old. The funeral was held on Sunday from his late residence and was largely attended.

Sensible Advice.

The habit of indulging in the use of profane or obscene language is one of the most nonsensical habits a human being ever acquired. No man or youth ever raised himself in the estimation of saint or sinner by the use of foul language. Purity of thought and speech are valuable virtues. And yet it is our honest opinion that the man who unwittingly "cusses" a little now and then, is not half so big a sinner as the fellow who continuously thinks evil and speaks evil of his neighbors, and refuses to pay his honest debts. If the pulpits of the land would "go after the fellows who refuse to pay their honest debts and to love their wives and their fellowmen—go after them as vigorously as they go after the fellows who "cuss and chew tobacco," the true reformation of the race might be nearer at hand.

An Easy Victory

Both armies met in deadly combat, but Red Rose Tea with its reliable quality and reasonable price stormed the enemies stronghold and swept everything, winning a splendid victory. The list of dead and wounded shows 1500 lbs. of bulk tea which was swept off the field before the fierce fire of Red Rose. Towards the close of the battle substitute reserves were led forward but these too failed and Red Rose remains on the field an easy victor.

The Local Paper.

The local paper exists, says an exchange, for the primary object of publishing local happenings. Consequently every district in its constituency should be represented in its columns, and there should be in each district several live and intelligent individuals who will strive to keep the district in the public view by telling what happens in it.

It will be better for all to make as much use as possible of the local paper. It will be better for the paper because it will increase its usefulness, better for the whole community because it will bring about reform, and by discussion help to dispel prejudice and to raise the standard of intelligence. Help yourself, your neighbor your district by helping the paper to reach and maintain a good standard.

Did you ever hear any one say they could not get good coffee except in the States?

I have heard it, scores of times, and it's one of the reasons that made me decide to go into the Coffee business.

Of the Americans who visit us in summer, hundreds take home a supply of Red Rose Tea because they have never used such good tea before. I determined to put up a coffee that would make for itself just as good a reputation. It has not been easy, but I am sure I have succeeded.

Estabrooks' Red Rose Coffee, put up in sealed tins is well, it's good coffee. You and your American friends will say so.

A good combination is Estabrooks' Coffee for breakfast and Red Rose Tea for other meals

PAINT PAINT

INVESTIGATE BEFORE YOU BUY!

In these days of sharp competition, it is well to know that you get what you pay for. There are so many brands of house paints on the market, now-a-days, advertised as "pure" (but little better than "dope"), that a man ought to investigate what he intends to buy. We suggest to those about to paint, to make a practical test and convince themselves. Buy a small can of

The Martin-Senour 100 Per Cent Pure Paint, and one of any other brand with which you may have been favorably impressed, selecting about the same colors, and paint a few feet. Carefully measure the paint, so that you use no more of one than you do of the other. Thus, with the conditions the same, you can determine for yourself which paint has the better body or covering capacity which is the easier brushing out and has the better finish. If you do not decide in favor of The Martin-Senour 100 Per Cent Pure Paint, we will return the money paid for the can of the Pure Paint used in making the experiment. We have no doubt as to your decision, and are prepared to supply you with the BEST PAINT on the market.
