TEACHERS MEET AT CHATHAM.

Thirtieth Annual Teachers' Institute Held at Grammar School
Thursday and Friday.

GOOD ATTENDANCE

Many Interesting Papers Read and Discussions on Live
Topics.

The thirtieth annual meeting of the Northumberland County Teachers' Institute opened in the Grammar school Thursday morning with an enrolment of about seventy members. Mr. B. P. Steeves, president, was in the chair, and in the absence of the secretary Mr. W. T.
Denham was appointed to the office
pro tem.

On the motion of Inspector Dixon the report of the Audit Committee, Miss Estelle Carruthers, Mr.
James McIntosh, and Dr. Cox, that the treasurer's report was correct,
was accepted.

Mr. B. P. Steeves, Inspector Dixon and Dr. Cox urged all members to take part by asking questions
or making remarks.

Mr. B. P. Steeves gave an address on "Spelling Reform." He dealt with words that have more than one authorized form of spelling and suggested that the simpler form always be adopted. In the text-books there are over one hundred and eighty of these. The same form should be used in all the schools. The speaker had hundreds of words on a blackboard, illustrating different recognized forms of spelling. The address was listened to with deep attention.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON.
Dr. Cox spoke at some length on Spelling Reform. He referred to many efforts that had been made along this line and to the very slow progress made, and expressed himself as being heartily in accord with Mr. Steeves. The following resolution, moved by Dr. Cox and seconded by Inspector Dixon, was adopted by the meeting.

That the Institute recommends all the teachers of the county to teach but one form, the simpler or more phonetic; of the endings or our, to prefer the first; to prefer x to s in such words as organize and criticize, and not to double the final consonant before a suffix
beginning with a vowel, and generally to prefer in all cases the shorter and more phonetic form;
and further resolved that this institute urge upon the educational authorities of the province the necessity of adopting the simpler form in any new editions of the texts that may from time to time
be made.

Next in order was a paper on "Composition in grades VII. and VIII." by W. T. Denham, B. A.
The writer dealt with the subject
under the following heads—1st,
How do we find the pupils prepared when they enter grades VII.
and VIII.; 2nd, what are we supposed to give them? He thought the work should be slow but progressive, and that each exercise should be corrected. The pupils unconsciously will take advantage of such training and will form their style in maturer life. The paper was interesting and instructive. A discussion was opened on the subject by Mr. James McIntosh, who expressed his appreciation of the way Mr. Denham had dealt with the subject and emphasized the fact that the foundation should be well laid in lower grades. He strongly advocated such practice in this subject, persistent correction of mistakes, and the using of composition
as a means of reviewing other subjects.

Dr. Cox said that he considered composition the most important subject in our schools. By it scholarship was brought to a test. For instance a biographical sketch, a description of some place, its climate, products, people, and industries, etc. The pupil's efforts are entrained on one subject and he puts forth his best efforts. Tests were often made in other subjects
than in composition and he feared its importance was not fully recognized in the New Brunswick schools.

FRIDAY FORENOON.

Miss Laura A. Mills read an interesting and carefully prepared paper on Patriotism. The writer thought that the spirit of patriotism could be successfully inculcated into the minds of the pupils by lessons on the lives of such pioneers as Champlain, D'Aulnay, the Loyalists, etc. They should also be

NEW LEAGUE FOR PEACE.

Great Britain, France and Italy
Have Formed Defensive Alliance.

STRONG COMBINATION.

Brought About by Russia's Defeat
—King Edward's Work—
Peace League.

New York, Oct. 27.—A London despatch to the Sun says that the close secrecy which for a considerable time has surrounded an event of the first magnitude in international politics was broken by an announcement that a military convention, which in effect amounts to a full defensive alliance has been made between Great Britain France and Italy. This momentous instrument has not nominally come into effect as yet, but in reality it is already an almost dominating factor in the European situation. It becomes operative whenever the triple alliance between Germany, Austria-Hungary and Italy, or rather the three treaties usually grouped under that designation, shall expire, "either by expiration of time
or by other cause."

This regrouping of great powers
is a natural outcome of the destruction of the balance of power in Europe consequent upon the paralysis of Russia in the Japanese war.
It is said to be an important step in the formation of a league of the great of which King Edward has labored to achieve ever since he came to the throne of Great Brittain. It has behind it the cordial support of Spain and Portugal.
There is good reason for believing that it commands, also, the sympathy of the United States government, which has been well aware of its inception and purposes.

The creation of this new international compact has been accompanied and followed by serious difficulties and even dangers. First and obviously was the fact that Germany would regard it not only with natural resentment, but as a direct menace. It was negotiated on the eve of the Algeiras conference, and it can hardly be denied that it was designed to some extent to act in restraint of Germany at that time. Its purpose, however, in every respect is non-aggressive, and it was and is impossible for the German Emperor to criticize it except by abandoning his oft-professed love of peace. The political situation in Europe, as a whole, is more satisfactory to-day
than it has been for several years.
Pessimists point to the fact that the death of the Sultan must be expected within a few months and that the demise of Emperor Francis Joseph may create a crisis at any time. But the safeguards of peace grow stronger day by day.
King Edward's league of peace
should be able very soon to bear any strain that may be put upon it.

London, Oct. 27.—The reports
published to the effect that a military convention had been arranged between Great Britain, France and Italy are officially declared to be baseless.

Mr. Colin C. Tyrer, a representative of the firm of Smith & Tyrer, lumber dealers of England, who was in Fredericton last week, said that the British lumber market is apparently weakening owing to excessive fall shipments. Unless there are heavy winter shipments he expects, however, to see the market steady again by the time the spring trade opens. Mr. Tyrer makes his headquarters at Halifax.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Moses of Tilton, N. H., who have been on a hunting trip to the headwaters of the Little Southwest-Miramichi with Henry Braithwaite as guide returned to Fredericton by the noon train Wednesday. They brought with them the heads of two moose and two caribou, as trophies of what has been to them a very enjoyable outing. The caribou heads are the best brought to the city this season and the moose heads have an antler spread of upwards of fifty inches. Mr. and Mrs. Moses are naturally much delighted with their trip and speak in the highest words of "Uncle Henry," as a companionable and competent guide.

JUDGE UPTON'S EXPERIMENT.

Judge Upton of Keene, N. H., was a strict prohibitionist, and was long noted for the severity of the sentences he imposed on those raigned before him for intoxication.

Discouraged by his failure at diminished intemperance in his jurisdiction, he one day determined to ascertain what there was about spirituous liquor that made it so attractive to its votaries. Accordingly, he obtained a supply of Medford um, and before retiring for the night he drank a generous amount of the liquor, intending to record the effect carefully.

The next morning those who were present in court were surprised to see the drunkards promptly discharged, while all other defendants received their due punishment.

At the close of the session the prosecuting officer ventured to inquire why the court had so completely reversed his usual attitude toward the "drunkards."

Judge Upton raised his head, which had been bowed upon his throbbing temples, replied, indignantly: "Poor devils! Let them go they are punished enough."

Mr. Charles D. Butler of Pittsfield, Mass., who shot a moose on the Duganovon a few years ago with an antler sored of over sixty two inches is on his way to the woods. He will again hunt on the ungarnovon with Mr. Dan Munn of Boiestown as guide.

JUMPING WITH NERVE PAIN.

That's how you feel with neuralgia. But why lie awake at night, grumble or complain—get busy with a bottle of Nerviline. It does not like magic, sends out the pain and destroys it. Harmless and certain, instant in effect, nothing so popular as Nerviline for aches and pains of all kinds. Try it for lameness, test it in rheumatism, prove it in neuralgia, pleurisy or colds. You'll soon acknowledge that Poison's Nerviline beats them all. Sold everywhere in large 25c. bottles.

The tag system adopted here two years ago, as a means of keeping a record of big game animals shot in the province, seems to be a dead failure. This is not so much the fault of the system as it is administered. Each person when purchasing a license is furnished with two printed tags, one of which he is supposed to fill out (if his hunting trip is successful) and forward to the crown land office and the other is attached to the game head.

It is a well known fact that upwards of three hundred moose have been shot this province so far this season, but only ninety-eight tags, have been received at the crown land office.

Rome, Oct. 25.—Dr. Lapponi this morning found that the Pope's condition had been improved. The swelling of his foot had almost disappeared, the pains had ceased, and his temperature was normal. Although languid and pale, his general condition seemed satisfactory.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

ACCIDENT ON THE CANADA EASTERN BRANCH

Fredericton, Oct. 26.—The mixed train from Loggieville over the Canada Eastern branch of the Intercolonial Railway yesterday was delayed by an accident fourteen miles from this city, in which four cars left the rails. At Van Horne's Bluff the accident occurred, and three freight cars left the rails. One of the freight cars was loaded with flour; while the other two contained way freight. The accident was caused by the light rails on the curve having been torn up, but fortunately the cars were canting over the upper side of the track, while if they had gone off on the other side of the track they would probably have rolled into the Nashua River below. There were ten male passengers and one lady in the conductor's van when the accident occurred, and they were brought to the city in the locomotive tender. The first section of the train arrived here three-quarters of an hour late. From Gibson a wrecking train was sent out, and the four cars were put back on the rails, the necessary repairs made, and the rest of the train got in about 3 o'clock this morning, so that the track was all cleared for traffic today.

When the Liver is out of Order

calomel, cascara, salts, strong liver pills and purging mineral waters won't do any permanent good.

When a person is bilious, the liver is not giving up enough bile to move the bowels regularly—and some of the bile is being absorbed by the blood. In other words, the liver is in a weakened, unhealthy condition.

Now, purgatives don't act on the liver at all. They merely irritate the bowels, and afford only temporary relief. But FRUIT-A-TIVES are the one true LIVER TONIC. They act directly on the liver—strengthen and invigorate this vital organ—and put it in a normal, healthy condition.

FRUIT-A-TIVES also stimulate the glands of the skin—and regulate the kidneys and sweeten the stomach. When skin, liver and kidneys are normally healthy, there can be no biliousness, no constipation, no kidney trouble, no impure blood, no headaches.

No other medicine known to science is so reliable and so effective in curing Biliousness as these fruit liver tablets.

FRUIT-A-TIVES are fruit juices with tonics added—and are free from alcohol and dangerous drugs. 50c. a box or 6 for $2.50. Sent on receipt of price, if your druggist does not handle them.

means merit. No house would offer to refund money, unless they were sure you would not want to have it refunded. When a house with a well-earned reputation says, "your money back if you are not satisfied with our goods," you may be sure the goods are right. We have such implicit confidence in the virtues of

We KNOW they WILL CURE all Kidney Troubles—strengthen weak Kidneys, and relieve pain in the back, dull headaches and all other distressing symptoms of Kidney Disease.

That is why we make this emphatic offer. It's worth going to be relieved of the agonizing pains—its worth $2 or even $2.50 to be completely cured. And we refund the price if they fail. NEWCASTLE, OCTOBER 31, 1906.

Dorchester's industrial awakening had a spasm because the "ing," says a despatch, "will not include the woodworking factory, the foundry and electric lighting systems, but also the paint works and a complete water system." It is pleasing to note that progress in manufacturing is being made in several of the smaller towns of the province.—Ex.

A significant amendment made to the constitution of the Knights of Pythias marks the growth of sentiment against the liquor traffic. A despatch says: "The new statute is intended to bar from entrance to the order wholesale liquor dealers and all hotel keepers who run bars in connection with their hotels. It includes professional gamblers, saloon-keepers, bartenders or dealers in spirituous or malt liquors."

THE LOCAL PAPER.
The local paper is an important factor to any town. In this day of hustle and push it plays a very important part in the advancement of the community in which it is issued. Do its readers always realize this? We are afraid not. Read what a well known Montreal man has to say of the local paper, then profit by it.

A local newspaper does more for the community for less money than any institution or agency in the town. Every resident ought to buy and support his local paper, not only because of the direct value he receives but because a good newspaper is the best asset a small town can possess. An enterprising newspaper cannot thrive in a negative community. A prosperous local paper is at once evidence that its citizens are enterprising and have "go."

MECHANICS SCARCITY.
Why is it that good mechanics are hard to find and still harder to keep? At the present time the supply of good men does not nearly keep up to the demand, and everywhere in this province we hear of work being delayed by the scarcity of skilled labor.

In the publishing business this lack of help is being severely felt and many offices are only turning out a small percentage of their capacity. In Newcastle both publishers are looking for men, and the rate of pay is as high, considering circumstances, as that paid in the cities, yet is almost impossible to get help, or after it is procured, keep it. Here surely is a chance for some of the boys with brains to learn a profession which is not already overcrowded, and which will eventually pay better than many positions we could name.

The action, or rather want of action, on the part of Chief Justice Tuck to resign his position has caused provincial politicians to alter their tactics, and it now looks as though there would be no change in the personnel of the provincial government until after the general elections. A well informed North End man told the writer that his best information was that the provincial legislature would be dissolved soon after the next sitting of the Legislative Assembly, and that the provincial government would go to the country as it is at present constituted, with Premier Tupper as leader. The same authority stated that Mr. Tupper is now more confident than ever that his government will be able to win and is much encouraged with the result of the better terms conference.—New Freeman.

The editor of the Leader last week had a spasm because the Chatham World credited to the Ad- only include the woodworking factory, the foundry and electric lighting systems, but also the paint works and a complete water system." Monday night, when the members of Castle Northumberland, with banner and flag flying, marched into the hall there were not many visitors present. A few more came later on, but before the evening was over we felt sorry for those others who didn't come.

What constitutes a good time? Good will, love, and harmony? Well we had all that with some apples and candy thrown in. There is no clamoring for promotion now. The boys are finding out, it means something to be a Page, even, in the court of King Arthur, and to reach a higher degree one must show himself worthy in the first.

Mr. Rice emphasized this fact in his talk to the boys on "The requirements of a Page." In the course of his remarks he said, "The organization known as 'The Knights of King Arthur' is, according to the constitution, an ideal order." He was only sorry he had not the chance to belong to one when he was a boy.

Breathes there a man with soul so dead
Who never to himself has said

Well is such a man had been present last night, that stirring patriotic recitation about Canada, by Mr. McGruar would certainly have roused him from lethargy and made him feel that no one born under such a flag and with such a heritage should dare to be mean or craven hearted. Then the tender character sketch he gave, for the encore, of the brave engineer, who, that all the passengers might be saved, stood at duty till the flames wrapped him to death, showed us to what heights of love and unselfishness it is possible to rise.

Mrs. Troy gave some helpful words of counsel.
This is not the season for fruit but there seemed to be an abundance at this gathering. Among the rest black and white currants, were very much in evidence. This was during intermission of course.

TEACHERS' MEETING.

made acquainted with the past and present of the British Empire and Canada's relation to it, and be taught to love and reverence their flag.

Inspector Dixon was much pleased with the very practical paper and considered the subject of patriotism to be one of great importance. The whole Dominion was a great country, but in the rush to the West it was well to remember that in our province there were better chances for advancement than ever before. Pupils should be taught to believe their own province, and indeed their own district, just a little better than any other place.

Dr. Inch spoke in the highest terms of the paper read by Miss Mills. The style was faultless, the matter good, and the reading all that could be desired. The subject was a most important one. In every colony of the British Empire the observance of Empire Day had been established. While he recognized the greatness of the West, which was part of our heritage, and did not censure those who went there still we only heard of the successful and not of the many who had failed there. Never before did educational matters hold so high a place as now. Think of what such men as Carnegie and Sir William Macdonald were doing with their fortunes. Some did not approve of the way Sir William's money had been gained, but he had no sympathy with people who talked of tainted money. Money could not be tainted. Use money for good when it comes honestly to you from people who contribute it for that purpose.

He referred to the increased grant to the province, part of which Premier had promised to use for educational purposes. In a memorial to the Board of Education the Provincial Teachers' Association had asked that the issuing of local licenses be discontinued and that the regulation in re third class licenses be not relaxed. Dr. Inch explained that only when he trustees and inspector found it impossible to secure a licensed teacher that local licenses were issued, but thought the memorial should have been accompanied by a pledge from the teachers to teach in such districts if the salary be guaranteed. As it now is the schools in some districts would have to remain closed if the granting of local licenses were prohibited.

Dr. Cox gave an address on the Progressive Teacher, in which he strongly advocated the reading of educational works, the study of the mind, the developing and strengthening of the faculties by encouraging spirit of pride in their work, the changing of methods and comparing of results in work from time to time. Teachers of primary schools need as good if not a better mental equipment than those of higher classes. In our schools there is too much mental and drill work in many cases the instruction is too mechanical. A progressive teacher never tells a pupil what he can find out for him self; they do not cram, but seek to encourage them to make his best efforts, give the word of approval as freely as that of censure. Dr. Cox also criticized the methods of instruction adopted in some Normal Schools.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

Mr. W. J. Young gave an interesting lesson to pupils of Grade VIII. on Trade Winds.

The subject was discussed by Dr. Cox and W. T. Denham. A number of questions were answered and the usual votes of thanks were passed.

The place of next meeting was left to the executive, $2 was voted the caretaker of the building, and the institute adjourned after the election of the following officers:—

James McIntosh, President; Miss K. I. B. McLean, Vice-President; W. M. Young, Sect-Treasurer; Miss Maribel Ellis and W. T. Denham, additional members of the executive.

Antelope Chooses the Open.

The antelope lives always in open country, unlike members of the deer family, which invariably prefer a thick, dense forest. They cannot be driven into timber cover or thickets of brush, but will literally turn about and run over a prairie, if necessary, rather than be forced into cover. If they are ever obliged to pass by or through such places for food and water, they take a great deal of time to do so, as if they were determined to see everything that could be seen en route.—H. H. Cross in Century.

The Great Lakes.

Lake Superior is the deepest of the great lakes, showing by soundings 1,006 feet in at least one place. Michigan stands second, with 300 feet less. Huron and Ontario are about 750 in the deepest parts, while Lake Erie is but 204. Vast areas of Lake Erie will not show a depth exceeding 80 feet. The bottom of Lake Michigan is 400 feet above sea level.

An Odd Verdict.

A jury in Lindsey, Lincolnshire, England, after being out some time on a case of alleged false pretenses, returned to court and said, "We can't bring him in guilty and don't like to say he is not guilty." They were sent back and in fifteen minutes reached this verdict, "We find him guilty, but not with intent." The prisoner was discharged.

Blackmail.

"Mamma," said five-year-old Margie, "I'll make a bargain with you."
"What kind of a bargain, dear?" asked her mother.
"If you'll give me a penny every day to buy candy with," replied the small diplomat, "I'll not tell any one you have false teeth."

The Use to Be Frowned.

"No," said Peckham, "we never have boiled ham at our house any more."
"Why," replied Newitt, "I thought you were very fond of it."
"So I am, but my wife's got dog won't eat it at all."

ATLANTIC CITY RAILROAD HORROR.

Three Electric Cars Run off Trussle into Deep Water.

EIGHTY DROWNED.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 28.—A railroad accident that was even worse than the meadow wreck of July, 1896, sent about eighty people to a sudden death this afternoon, catching them like rats in a trap. The cars of the electric shore Railroad lines due here at 2.30 jumped the trestle bridge over the "thoroughfare." The trestle is about 15 feet above water.

The accident was due to a rail "turning in." It appears that the rail, which was an outside one, on the inbound track, must have been out of plumb about an eighth of an inch. The sharp flange of the electric train caught this and twisted it inwards. This twist threw the first car off the rails and into the water. The second and third cars were dragged with one at the head of the train and while the third car was falling the rear portion struck a piece of abutment, hung for a short time and then slid into the water. The brief stop saved several lives. A number of men and a few women leaped out of the windows and rear door and were saved. From eighty to a hundred passengers were aboard, the majority crowded into the first and second cars. Persons in the first two cars were sent into the water and were engulfed.

The Adventurers

By H. R. MARRIOTT WATSON

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

There came a deep silence, and then, just as I began to find my position intolerable and was thinking of changing my feet, a twig cracked in the forest, and there came a noise as of feet among the dry leaves.

"What's that?" I asked.

To say the truth, I had no idea, but it was plain that if we had been seen, concealment was of no further use, and if we had not, that the spy could not now discover us through the undergrowth. So we resumed our path, rather speedily, and caught up with Sheppard. He came to meet us in a state of excitement, laying his arms upon our shoulders and drawing our heads together.

"Hood, as I live!" he cried in a whisper.

"Did you see him?" we both spoke at once.

"Yes, he came from behind me and crossed just in front. I had barely time to fall, and the light just took him in the eyes. We're safe now."

Our hearts were full of triumph, and we pushed on with no more talk. It was possible that he had not seen us, but I doubted that. If he had, he would throw his party forward with greater speed. We were now, however, upon his track, and we were satisfied, and each man loosened his pistol and girt himself for the eventual encounter. That Hood would show fight I had no doubt, and it was more than probable that he would endeavor to trick us. We must be on the watch for treachery. We wound along the track for the better part of an hour, now getting news of the enemy and again leaving space for them to get away from our neighborhood seemed in peril of discovery. We had agreed to postpone the attack until the party reached its goal. If Hood had not seen us (and I was now disposed to believe that he had not) that goal would eventually be the hiding place of the treasure. This was how we comforted ourselves, and upon this faith our spirits rose to a high pitch.

By this time we had lost count of our direction in the innumerable windings of the path, but apparently we were now mounting a hill, and I judged that it lay somewhere to the south of the castle and toward the southern threshold of the Gwent. We were proceeding with our customary diligence and precautions when a noise of feet stamping on the earth assailed us, and round a corner came a posse of men and fell upon us. I drew back and lifted my revolver. Already Montgomery's rang out on my right—and then the light of the moon shooting through the trees, which in those parts were sparse, fell upon the face of Jones!

"Jones!" I said, in a voice in which dismay, fury, and disappointment blended.

The man in front of me dropped his hand.

"You, Mr. Greator?" he asked sharply. "How do you come here?"

"God knows," I replied angrily. "And what are you doing?" I stopped suddenly, for the next face that came into my line of vision was the black, impassive face of Hood.

"May I ask, sir, what brings you out tonight on this expedition?" asked Jones, pulling out his execrable pocket-book.

I was silent, but Sheppard broke in. "We have no objection, Mr. Jones, to give you our confidence, if you will be equally liberal with us. We were hunting for Captain Sercombe."

"Ah!" said Jones, making a note under the stars. "Then it is lucky I met you, gentlemen, for I am doing the same."

I began to see.

"Mr. Hood," said Sheppard, with a polite gesture of his hand, "was guiding you?"

"Mr. Hood had an idea," responded Jones sourly.

"Ah, Mr. Hood's ideas are very valuable," said Sheppard quickly. "Pray treasure them."

"I think, Mr. Sergeant," I interrupted, being at length come to myself, "that we have been both badly deceived, and if I were you I should go home."

Jones hesitated. I think he had had enough of it. Wherever Sercombe was, it was certain to me that he was very far from the place into which Hood had decoyed the police.

"I give you the same advice, sir," replied Jones, "and with your permission I will accompany you."

"I wish for no better escort than so seasoned an officer," I answered, with some bitterness.

Jones spoke a word with Hood, and that done, we retraced our steps through the forest in a mutual and ill-bittered silence.

I think there was little conversation between us on our journey back. The sergeant used us very curiously, as if he would imply that we were defendants upon a trial. But one thing he did say, and that, as Sheppard remarked afterward, without giving us the customary warning.

"I should like to ask you, Mr. Greator," he said, "what you want with Captain Sercombe?"

"I want a good deal," I answered bluntly. "I want to warn him that he is wanted on a fatuous charge by a very obstinate and blind-eyed officer."

"I don't think he needs that warning, sir," said Jones after a pause and somewhat dryly.

"Besides, you forget, Ned," put in Sheppard, "that he owes me £20."

"Ah!" said the sergeant in a tone which implied that he was not to be startled by anything that Sercombe said.

"And now," I said, in my turn, "you will perhaps be good enough to tell me how you came to find us?"

"Mr. Hood heard you," he answered, civilly enough this time.

"It was good of Mr. Hood—very sharp of Mr. Hood," I returned, "and I take leave to thank Mr. Hood and to wish that he had discovered us a little sooner. Maybe you and I would have been spared a useless tramp."

If we slept soundly that night it was owing more to the labors of the expedition than to any peace of mind or satisfaction of spirit. We were thoroughly out of tune with ourselves, and for the next two days our tempers came near to snapping. Even Montgomery looked sour and morose, but, to give him his due, he was all the more set on pursuing the adventure to an end; and it was in this manner that we spent the last day before our culmination of this strange and tragic history.

The first event in that continuous chain that drew us henceforward forthright to the dreadful close fell that evening and when we were the least expecting so odd a turn to the affair. We had spent the night hunting Sercombe, and so, too, had Jones. We were now to find him. It was some time after 6 o'clock of a very black and ominous day that I spied him from the windows of my library crossing the drawbridge and passing under the archway of the guardroom. As I stepped pointed out to me the face of a man-looking from the bushes, and just upon that comes in Montgomery with the tidings that a police officer was waiting for the gates.

"What the deuce does he want?" I growled. "I'll let them know better than to trespass on my grounds."

"I thought I knew the face," said Sheppard. "Let's settle him. It means that we're watched."

We hurried out, but the picket was gone. I had no doubt he had already exceeded them.

Six o'clock, as I say, had struck, and it must have been twenty minutes later when Sercombe came up the drive. I ran down the stairway to meet him, with the one thought in my head that he had escaped the police by a few minutes. I wanted to warn him of his danger. I have never to this day believed that Sercombe had any hand in Williams' death nor that he was privy to it. In fact, I am quite certain that neither he nor Hood knew anything about the assassination and that they were equally startled with ourselves and perhaps quite as much put about. The Greeks alone were responsible.

As the man drew near me I saw for the first time the change upon his face. The color, which was always high, had fallen sickly and presented either a ghastly green or pallid redness to the eye. His great mustache was ragged and blew in wisps about his mouth. His clothes, which he was wont to wear in excellent style and condition, were dusty, torn and soiled. He had, of my astonished eyes, the air of a drunken lunatic, and his stuttering outbursts and his uncertain gait deepened the impression on me. He came up to the door and put out a hand, as if groping for the bell; but, though I stood by, he did not seem to notice me.

"Sercombe!" I called in amazement. He passed his hand across his eyes. "Is that you, Mr. Greator? Excuse me, sir; I see badly. My eyes—Get me in, for God's sake!" he concluded, almost in a whisper.

I took his arm and assisted him into the nearest room, when he sank into a chair, breathing his exhaustion.

"I'll tell you what, Mr. Greator," he said presently, staring about him, "you're a good sort—if that's news. But what price would you put upon Hood now?"

The man was plainly beyond himself with fatigue or pain, or both, and so I produced a glass and some brandy from the cupboard and poured out a dose. I seemed to see at a bound the color jump into his discolored face. It swung back into his cheeks, and his bloodshot eyes beamed on me.

"I feel better for that," he said gallantly. "I could do with some food too."

"You shall have it directly," I said.

"I think there was little conversation between us on our journey back. The sergeant used us very curiously, as if he would imply that we were defendants upon a trial. But one thing he did say, and that, as Sheppard remarked afterward, without giving us the customary warning."

answered. "It is preparing now. But see here, Captain Sercombe. I must warn you that you are in danger."

"Danger?" he echoed and appeared to start in his chair. I could see that the man's nerve was altogether broken.

"Yes; the police have a warrant out for you. Something to do with Williams, I believe."

Sercombe's head dropped on his knee. "I see it now," he muttered. "That was his game." He looked up at me and cursed his mustache with his fingers.

"Well, I fancy, Mr. Greator, that I've come from greater danger than that. I can't quite count the police. Oh, no!" And he laughed a little.

"They are outside keeping guard upon the castle," I explained, and I moved to the window and looked out. "I cannot think how you escaped them."

"What! Are you, too, in disgrace?" laughed Sercombe in his old fashion; then, more quietly: "I tell you, I'm not afraid of the police. What have I done? I defy them to pin a suspicion on me."

"I don't think you are," I said, "but I am sure you are not as you were. You are now a man who is in danger."

you make no terms with us you have as little chance of that name heard as ourselves."

"Very well, sir," he said cheerily. "Then isn't it obvious to you that we should find a compromise?"

"I agree," I said, "and upon these terms only—that you stand in to take your part—a quarter and no more."

He struck out his hand as if he were presenting a pistol.

"Done!" he said, and there was a note of satisfaction in his voice. "And, gentlemen, if I needed witnesses, here are you three."

The note of eagerness in his usually equitable tones surprised me, and I knew all of us were agog with excitement to learn the meaning of this curious piece of treachery. But as there could be no doubt now as to our right to enlightenment, since we were all committed to a common cause, I put the question bluntly.

And here I set down the story that Sercombe had told as nearly as may be in the words in which he told us that evening as we sat round the table.

CHAPTER XX.

YOU will remember," said Sercombe, "that the last time I saw you was when we rode to the Woodman with that cart."

"Yes," we all answered, "we know well enough what was there. Well, I didn't even inquire if you were well. I guess I know a smart man when I see him, and Mr. Greator, I took off my hat to you on that same occasion—the more particularly as you served me to a nicety. I was near done on that event—as close a shave it was as I have ever seen. I thought I had my eyes sharply set in my head, and I think I have, but Mr. Hood needs four eyes on him, and one in the middle besides. He had me in the half light, and I found he meant to bolt for it. We got those trinkets out by the passage, and a nasty job it was."

"Well, Hood nearly got away that time, and if he had we might have whistled for him long enough. It isn't as if I didn't know the man. He was a trait to me ten years back. I took him through Chile, and we were together in the Italian trouble. That's how he got the notion of using me. We've been in some tight corners before, but I never saw him at his worst till now. Hood's a gem. He's a special creation. By thunder, gentlemen, your notion of Hood is that of a month old child! I know him, and I wish to know no more of his kidney. We no use to dwell on that. You'll see I had reason."

"One thing, captain," I interposed. "How did Hood know of this treasure?"

"Know?" said Sercombe. "Why, he wouldn't be a day in Jerusalem without smelling out some mystery. He has a nose like a pointer's. He routed out a page of the old gentleman's diary, and Hood's way is not to leave to others what he can take for himself."

I told you that he hung on to the old chap day by day; until it got too hot for him and he was sacked, but even then old Kesteven kept his tongue quiet. It wasn't to his interest to speak the truth, and Hood and he, as I understood, were as civil as oranges. Mr. Greator, he'd have got what he wanted even if he had had to stab the old man to his reins. But that failure threw him back, and that was when he wrote to me and I beat up the Greeks."

"Well, Hood fetched the cart up."

In a Class by Itself

It is quite true FERROL is an emulsion of Cod Liver Oil and a particularly good one at that. But it combines Iron and Phosphorus with the Oil, and these are just what are needed to make the emulsion perfect, and they are just what all other emulsions lack.

FERROL

is unique because it combines Iron and Phosphorus with Cod Liver Oil.

It is pleasant to take and easy to digest. It holds the record for increasing the weight (95% lbs from the use of 25 bottles).

The formula is freely exposed and its bona-fides are vouched for by eminent analysts in Canada, the United States and Great Britain.

It is endorsed by prominent physicians of all schools. It is used in all the leading Hospitals, Sanatoriums and other Public Institutions.

The London (Eng.) Lancet, after careful analysis in its own laboratory, fully endorses it.

We are prepared to substantiate all the above statements. FERROL is the embodiment of health, strength and vitality, and went outside to look at the morning I reckon I fell asleep.

"At that he looked rather strangely at me and was silent. He moved off a bit and peered into the cavern through the bushes; then he came back. 'They sleep pretty soundly,' he said and again gave me an odd glance."

"What is it?" I asked, for I knew his ways and that there must be something underneath.

"The Greeks are a nuisance," he observed, watching me. "We can do well enough without them."

"I thought I began to see now, and said: 'I am not in much need of them, myself, but how can we give them the slip? We can't fetch out the cart and harness and get away without waking the whole brood.'

"No," said he softly; "I wasn't thinking of that."

"Well, let's have it," said I.

"He stared at me a moment. 'We don't want any evidence against us, and we don't want partners,' he said."

"There's another way out," he said, with his furtive eyes upon me.

"Suddenly the whole business flashed upon me. And, gentlemen, what do you suppose he was proposing? Nothing less than the murder of those poor devils as they lay in their sleep. You think I judged too quickly. Wait a bit. The thing came upon me in an illumination. I believe it was his eyes that did it. But I said nothing of what I felt; what I said was this:

"There's no other way out that I can see, and if there was another way I wouldn't take it. And I looked at him very closely, so that he should see what I meant. He dropped his eyes."

"All right," he said. "You'd better go and lie down. I'll think it out."

"I went for I was pretty sleepy, and besides, I thought I had disposed of that work in his head. And presently I returned and grouped together a little way off. But when I approached they sat silent and gave me no answer till, getting beyond toleration, I seized two and cracked their heads together. But, upon that, up leaped one of the secondaries, and drew his knife on me. I stepped back, but Stamboulis, a dirty thief, took him by the arm and whispered in his ear, and there were noddings all round the party."

"Hello, sonny!" said I in surprise, but without reply they all vanished into the wood and left me staring after them with a mouth wide open. What had come to them? I asked myself and gaped for an answer.

But when I approached they sat silent and gave me no answer till, getting beyond toleration, I seized two and cracked their heads together. But, upon that, up leaped one of the secondaries, and drew his knife on me. MANY LIVES LOST
IN KANSAS CITY FIRE

Building Burned in Which Were 200 Occupants.

NO RECORD ON HAND.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 25.—More than a score of lives are believed to have been lost in a fire that destroyed the four-story Chamber of Commerce building, in the Riverview district of Kansas City, Kansas, early to-day. When the fire broke out 200 persons were asleep in the building, the three upper floors of which were occupied by families and lodgers. The walls of the building were of brick and stone, but the floors and partitions were of wood. No register of the occupants was kept, and it is not known exactly how many persons were in the building. The only person who knows the actual number of occupants of the building is the janitor, who is missing and is believed to be under the great mass of debris that is piled high inside
the bare wall of the destroyed structure.

Sick Women
Made Well.

Thousands Find the Way
Back to Health
Through Ferrozone

No need for so many sick girls
and women.
Their ills are curable if they give them proper treatment.
Nutrition must be supplied, blood
must be enriched, nerves strengthened, and additional power given to digestion.

Ferrozone does this and more; it cures such cases as Mrs. N. E. Peabody, of Trenton. She was a wreck—never thought medicine
was made that could restore her,
yet Ferrozone was successful.

Among her troubles were:
Headaches, Nervousness, Palpitation,
Dizziness, Spells, Weariness, Weakness, Loss of flesh, Poor appetite.

HER STATEMENT.

"I was stricken with nervous
disease of the heart and stomach.
Violent headaches made life a torture. I was so nervous and weak
I could scarcely walk. Work was impossible. I couldn't eat or digest anything. When completely wrecked Ferrozone restored me. To-day
I am vigorous and strong and well."

If you lack power of either mind
or body it's an evidence you need Ferrozone.

If you have nervous spells, feeling of weakness in the limbs, tiredness in the morning, you are sure of cure with Ferrozone.

Think of it, Ferrozone gives back
the energy of youth, restores vital stamina and creates a surplus of vigor simply because it supplies the concentrated nourishment your system needs. 50c. per box or six for $2.50 at dealers.

JESSE JAMES
HAS RETURNED.

Masked bandits held a crowd of excited citizens at bay for three hours at Sawyer, Dakota, while companions blew open a safe in the Sawyer State Bank and took from it $2,400. Over three hundred shots were fired. The robbers escaped on horseback.

"How did you get to know your wife?"
"Ran over her with my motor car; was convicted and fined 10-00 marks and rather than pay it married her."

Great Specialists in Stomach Catarrh.
Though often they fail to give even temporary relief, Mr. W. Seymour of Hamilton, Ont., cured himself with Ferrozone. "My trouble," he says, "was chronic catarrh of the stomach. There was constant bad taste in my mouth, I was constipated and usually nau-sated before and after meals. I also had a gnawing sensation in the stomach. Ferro-zone gave me great relief, and I also used Catarrh Remedy which is good for Catarrh.
Although it took a number of boxes of Ferro-zone, I got back my health and today am quite well." The stomach catarrh, indigestion and "burned" sensation which excels Ferrozone. In a thousand cases it has proved a wonderful success. Try it yourself

Arms of Cuban Insurgents Thrown into the Sea.

Havana, Oct. 24.—A statement made by Secretary of War Taft on the eve of his departure from Cuba
that he would put all arms surrendered by the insurgents where they would do no further harm, was verified today, when a company of the Cuban artillery spent the afternoon throwing these weapons into the sea from the outer bastion of Moro Castle. Thousands of rifles and carbines were sunk in thirty fathoms of water.

INTERCOLONIAL SURPLUS.

Receipts for Past Fiscal Year Were $200,000 Over Working Expenses.

Ottawa, Oct. 23.—The operation of the Intercolonial Railway for the fiscal year ending on the 31st of June, last, shows a surplus of receipts over working expenses of about $200,000.

The present fiscal year terminates on the 31st of March. The minister's expectation is that, providing the winter is an average
one, the surplus on the nine months will be upwards of $100-000.

The increase for the present quarter of the year has been more than was anticipated.

NEWFOUNDLAND
AGAIN ANGRY.

Ill Feeling Aroused by Action of American Naval Tug Potomac
Conveying Fishing Vessels

St. John's Nfld., Oct. 25.—A great degree of ill-feeling was aroused yesterday by the action of the American Naval tug Pettaquam which accompanied three American fishing vessels on Monday to a point outside territorial waters and later accompanied 100 Newfoundland fishermen who went to join these vessels.

On Tuesday the Potomac returned to St. John's towing the three American vessels, and forty small boats, which Newfoundlanders had taken out from St. John's for fishing purposes. The local press holds that this action is an evasion of the spirit of Ambassador Reil's despatch, accepting the Modus Vivendi.

WOMEN WHO CHARM

HEALTH IS THE FIRST ESSENTIAL

It Helps Women to Win and Hold Men's Admiration Respect and Love.

Woman's greatest gift is the power to inspire admiration, respect, and love.
There is a beauty in health which is more attractive to men than mere regularity of nature.

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband,
should be a woman's constant study.
At the first indication of ill-health, pains, or irregular periods, headaches or backache, secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begin its use.

Mrs. T. E. Gillis, Windsor, N. S., describes her illness, and cure, in the following letter:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham—
When I commenced to take Lydia E.
Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was suffering with weakness and would trouble
headaches, backaches, and that worst thing, irregular periods. I have only taken the Vegetable Compound a few short weeks, and it has made me well, strong and robust. I believe that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is without equal for female troubles.

Women who are troubled with painful
or irregular periods, backache, bloating, (or flatulency), inflammation or disorder, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, or nervous prostration may be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

DUELS IN WHICH MEN WERE REALLY HURT.

Havana, Oct. 26.—Two duels, in which three of the combatants received injuries which disabled them,
were fought in Havana yesterday.
City Councillor Ramon Mondaca,
who acted as aide-de-camp to General Leonard Wood during the first period of American intervention,
has sent a challenge to Eduardo Alonso, an editorial writer on El Mundo, alleging offensive editorial expressions. The two men fought with broadswords and each sustained a severe cut in the arm. Dr.
Mandel Secades, a former surgeon
officer, had challenged Captain Peay, who was at one time aide-de-camp to ex-President Palma, because of an alleged personal insult during a political discussion. In this fight Captain Peay was badly wounded by a sword thrust in the leg.

they prevent and absolutely cure.
Thank us for it and you will have the system cleared and purified by Dr. Hamilton's Pills! A sure action, a sure cure, no delay and while you are in one action, they will do you good. I feel and
