MR. BLAIR IN QUEENS.

The reports from Queens county are to the effect that Mr. Blair is being well received wherever he goes; his canvass is a very popular one, the people of the county being evidently pleased with the idea of having the leader of the government as their representative.

The St. John Globe, in last evening's issue, attempts to give its readers an idea of the situation in Queens county. For a well informed journal the Globe seems to be grossly ignorant of the true state of affairs in that county.

Mr. Pitts and some of his satellites are in Queens raising the religious (?) cries that they made of such effective use in York. They endeavored to get a candidate but failed in inducing several whom they approached to take an active part against Mr. Blair and to lead in a crusade that puts neighbor against neighbor.

Mr. Pitts is denounced by many of the Orangemen as a hot headed and weak brained fanatic, and many of his immediate followers are the same. True, there are men behind him who let him do the dirty work while they reap the benefit, yet he is the head and as such the people regard him. It is not too much to expect that the people of Queens will return such a reply that these dealers in scurrilous and inflammatory circulars will shrink from the light of day.

It seems that bill stitching and circular distributing have their natural home on York street. For years Boyd Hamilton, one of the colored gents of that thoroughfare had a monopoly of the business. He covered all the posts and fences of the city with his glaring samples of the printers' art, but the exodus took him from us. A greater than he has arisen in Herman Hamelton Pitts. Not only can he personally stick more than Boyd did, literally and figuratively, but he has an army of assistants who are adept at the business. In a fortnight or less he can bill the county thoroughly and now he has gone down to Queens for a practice spin.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL.

The people of Queens are called on to decide between the hon. A. G. Blair and J. DeVeber Neales on the 22d inst. There can be little difficulty in deciding as to whom the electors should choose. One has shown himself to be the foremost candidate in the province has ever produced, and all will allow that New Brunswick has sent some able men into the arena of politics.

York feels the mistake she made and though people are very slow to admit that they have gone wrong, yet the statement is publicly made on the streets of this city to-day that were the election to be run again, the hon. A. G. Blair would carry a majority such as never before fell to the fate of a candidate in York. York cannot remedy the mistake but Queens should take advantage of the opportunity and secure the benefits that York has thrust beyond her reach.

If it is the duty of the electors, as all will grant, to send the strongest man to the legislature that they can find, then they will not question as to whom Queens county will place at the head of the poll.

If the people decide to put themselves into the hands of a ring showing neither ability, honesty nor common decency then they will support the candidate put up by Pitts and his gang.

DAIRYING PROSPECTS.

Butter has been advancing steadily in price as the result of the establishment of the creamery at Kingsclere. Although for months there was a difference of ten cents between the home-made and creamery article, now there is but a difference of two or three cents.

Induce the farmers of Stanley, Southampton, Dumfries, in fact all large parishes throughout the county and province to erect factories and go about the work in the most economic way. Prof. Robertson and the men sent out by the local government have done much. A prominent farmer of Mannors-Burton, who manages a grange store said that he had known before the visit of the experimental dairy, butter to sell as low as nine cents per pound, but since that time, almost a year, butter had never fallen below fifteen cents. Those visits, he said, have been worth to this district alone $1500.

Not only then has the creamery enriched the people by increasing the price of butter but the lectures and explanations given have increased the value from nine to fifteen cents per pound in one district, and similar results must have been obtained in others. The better the price paid for the farmers' products, the more advantage is reaped by all.

It has been said that Mr. Blair and his government deserve no credit for this that these results would come of themselves. Perhaps no more childish arguments have been made than this. It is only the beginning of a better state of things for the farmers and despite all arguments to the contrary the farmers regard that the government under Mr. Blair has been the first to come to their rescue.

AROUND THE WORLD.

The Week's Events in Brief - The Ocean of our Embrace.

Stambul again takes the world's station record. He went a mile in 3.08 flat. The clock of Makhbor was found dead in Blenheim Palace Wednesday morning.

The trial of rev. Dr. Charles A. Briggs, New York, charged with heresy by the Presbyterian church, has been adjourned by the presbytery until Nov. 28.

Details of an election affray at Holdard's store precinct Anderson county, S. C., on Tuesday, show that three men were killed, and several wounded; all whites. It grew out of a political dispute.

It is reported that there are fourteen blocks of snow at Rev. du Loup, and that a snow plough had to be placed in front of a train between that place and St. Jean Port Joli on Saturday morning.

Thomas McTaggart, a Charlottetown toper, perjured himself to save a liquor-seller from punishment, and has been sentenced to six years imprisonment in Dorchester penitentiary.

Advices from Hayti tell of an attempted uprising at Cape Haytien. Hippolyte was on the alert, however, and nipped the revolution in the bud. There were many arrests, and it is said some executed.

Mr. J. M. Raddock, of Chatham, purchased the Miramichi brewery on Friday last. He has a number of men at present employed putting it in thorough repair and expects in a few weeks to be prepared to fulfil all kinds of orders.

Probably the largest financial winner on the election is Mike Dwyer, the well-known turfman. It is said on good authority that he will pocket a gain of nearly $80,000. Mr. Dwyer placed his money in every conceivable way.

The mills in and about St. John are, with one or two exceptions, still running, and it looks as if they will continue in operation for some time. There is an ample supply of log for the mills which all winter and for the early spring sawing.

Mr. Watson, the woman poisoner Neill's counsel, has moved for further respite on the ground that he expects more affidavits from America bearing on the prisoner's insanity. It is, however, expected that the law will take its course, and that Neill or Cream will be executed next Tuesday.

An I. C. R. employe named Levi Clark died quite suddenly Saturday night at Moncton. On his way home in the evening he was seized with a fit or fainting spell and fell and injured his brain to such an extent that he died within a few hours later. Deceased leaves a wife and an infant.

A despatch received on Saturday announces the death of Mr. Andrew Corbett, which took place at Eureka, Humboldt county, California. Mr. Corbett was a native of Petersville, Queens County, and for many years carried on an extensive lumbering business around the Nepesin Mountains.

A despatch from Columbus, Ohio, says that governor McKinley, when asked as to his opinion of the republican riot, said: "Oh, I don't know, I have not had time to study the result. It is a great surprise to me. The governor does not conceal his opinion, he feels over the verdict against the tariff law."

Tuesday morning a collision took place between two I. C. R. freight trains at Nappan station, No. 16 freight, bound east, colliding with the tail end of Broad's special, bound west. Both cars and van were derailed and badly damaged. The line was cleared about five hours later by a special from Moncton.

Edmund Roney, a young man 17 years of age, while at work on the Moncton bridge Wednesday afternoon, lost his balance and fell into the river and was drowned. At the time of the accident Roney was standing the tower a few feet below the floor of the bridge, being engaged in handling plank handed him from above.

Information from California that Barney Dunning, an inmate of the city poor farm at Pittsburg, Pa., for twenty-two years, has fallen from an estate valued at $300,000. The fortune was bequeathed to Dunning by his brother, William, who went to California in 1849, accumulated large wealth and recently died, leaving the estate to his brother, Barney, of this city.

Victor Rainal, legal adviser to the Austrian imperial family, has voluntarily surrendered himself to the police, confessing that for a number of years he has embezzled from the trust funds in which he is sleeping. He says he lost the money in founding an American coal company. Rainal's high position led many persons to entrust money to him. The amount of his stealings is not known.

A peculiar accident, which unfortunately had a tragic ending, occurred on Saturday at Johnston, Queens county. A young woman named Emaline C. Miles, a cripple, was talking a cow. In some one she slipped and fell forward under the cow, and the ends of a scarf she wore tied over her head and about her neck got tangled in the animal's forefeet. She tried hard to get free, but was strangled to death.

THE MCMICHAELS.

The McMicheals, father and son, are passing a very quiet existence in the jail, and do not appear to be very anxious as to their fate. The old man laughs as heartily as though years in the penitentiary were not before him, while the youth, if he realizes his position, is as stolid and unconcerned as possible.

The elder has the appearance and the name of a very "bad nigger," and his reputation throughout the province and state of Maine is bad. He has led a wandering life, a few days in a village or town and then the people would desire him to move on. Only a few weeks ago the St. Andrews Beacon published details of his life at that place. It appears from that that confagurations were frequent—so frequent that the people requested McMicheal, in not very pleasant terms, to leave. While there he was arrested and tried for murder, a man being found in his residence with his skull broken in. There was not enough evidence to convict, and so he was acquitted. He has a bullet wound in his cheek, said to be from the pistol of a man at Princeton, whom McMicheal was attempting to stab.

HARVEY STATION.

Nov. 10.—Miss Minnie Glendening, who is in charge of the school at Tracyville, Sumner county, is home on a visit. She returns to her school on Monday.

Allan Robison, who is attending business college, St. John is also spending a few days at home.

I. G. Edgar, of Westfield, was here last Sunday visiting friends.

Miss Maggie Smith has gone to St. John to spend Thanksgiving with friends there.

The young people of the Station held a pound party in the Grange hall on the evening of the 9th, an enjoyable time was spent.

We are glad to learn that Kenneth Wilson, who has been very sick, is now improved and good hopes are entertained of his recovery.

Charles Robinson has gone to McAdam, having got a position in the railway works there.

If rumor is to be relied on we will hear the sound of wedding bells in the near future.

DURHAM.

Mrs. William Jenkins with three of her children left the 1st inst. for Red Deer, Alberta. Her husband has been there about a year and a half and is very much pleased with the country and has made himself a home out there. They are very much regretted by friends and neighbors here.

Mrs. Jed. Haines has gone to Boston to spend the winter with her two daughters, Mrs. George Allen and Mrs. Bernard Cook.

Mrs. John Parker, from Parker's Ridge, was with us last week, also Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walker and their three boys from Pennac.

Miss Chas. Eady, of Maryville, was visiting her sister, Mrs. Eliza Haines, this week.

Our enterprising agent John Haines left this morning for Edmonton.

Miss Eliza Johnstone who has been visiting her old home here, has returned to Boston. We all hope she will soon come again to stay.

Abraham Lincoln

When leaving his home at Springfield, Ill., to be inaugurated president of the United States, made a farewell address to his old friends and neighbors, in which he said, "Famous men have come and gone, but their words come with us as much force today as when they did thirty years ago."

Up in the Northwest is a great empire waiting for young and sturdy fellows to come and develop it and "grow up with the country." All over this broad land are the young fellows, the boys that Lincoln referred to, seeking to better their condition and get on in life.

Here is their chance! The country referred to lies along the Northern Pacific R. R. Here you can find pretty much any kind of soil. In Minnesota, and in the Red River Valley, or the North Dakota, the soil is particularly fitted for wheat and grain, or as well diversified farming. In Western North Dakota, and Montana, are stock ranges limitless in extent, clothed with the most nutritious grasses.

If a fruit farming region is wanted there is the whole state of Washington to select from.

For scenic delights the Northern Pacific Railroad passes through a country unparalleled in crossing the Rocky, Bitter root and Cascade mountains, the greatest mountain scenery to be seen in the United States from the car window is found. The wonderful bad lands, wonderful in graceful form and glowing color, are a poem. Lakes Pend d'Oreille and Clear d'Alene, are alone worthy of a transcontinental trip, while they are the fisherman's Ultima Thule. The ride along Clark's Fork of the Columbia river is a daylight dream. To cap the climax this is the only way to reach the far-famed Yellowstone Park.

LOCAL NEWS.

ILL.—Dr. Atkinson, ex-M. P., is lying ill at his home in Bristol, Carleton county.

SHORT FIRE.—On Wednesday the firemen had a short practice spin. They were called out on account of a slight fire in Alex. Thompson's paint shop, Brunswick street.

THANKSGIVING SUPPER.—The ladies of the Methodist church held a very successful supper at the church on Thursday evening. There was a large attendance considering the weather.

BELOW TOWN.—Hale & Murchie's mill will continue sawing till the new year. Mr. Morrison will run all winter; thus the people of this locality will have a good winter's work.

GENERALLY OBSERVED.—Thanksgiving day was very generally observed here. There were services at most of the churches, and sociables at several places during the evening. Most of the stores were closed.

INCREASING THE FUND.—Several of the Williamsburg youths were up before a local magistrate and had to increase the county fund by from eight to twelve dollars each, for their doings of Halloween.

INAUGURAL ADDRESS.—Prof. Davidson will deliver an inaugural address at the college on Thursday evening next, subject: "The relations of politics to political economy." All are cordially invited to attend.

THE C. E. R.—John May has been over the route of the C. E. R., and reports all the bridges in first-class shape. The cars, being newly painted, and the road and its equipment is in excellent condition.

THE DRAINAGE.—It is rumored that the dredges now working at the terminus above will be brought here to work at the wharves about the first of December. There will be more ice cutting than mud digging at that time.

IN KENT.—Hon. O. J. LeBlanc was chosen as the liberal candidate for Kent at the approaching federal election. The convention which met on Monday was well organized and felt very hopeful as to Mr. LeBlanc's success.

AMICABLY ADJUSTED.—The trouble between the publisher of Progress and the printers will, it is thought, come to an amicable adjustment and that enterprising journal continue to find its way to its thousands of readers.

AT CHATHAM.—Rev. Bishop Kingston went to Chatham on Tuesday to attend a meeting of the denizens at that place. There was an annual church union service in St. Mary's chapel on Thursday. A sermon was preached by Rev. Canon Roberts.

HE OWENS.—Private Anderson, a deserter from Ontario, who joined the school here, has been sentenced to forty-five days jail but objects to go. He is still at the guard house and it appears the officers are in a quandary as to what to do with him.

FOOTBALL.—The U. N. B. football team met more than they had expected at Sackville, where the ball was kept all the time in the rear neighborhood of their goal, and the result was seventeen points for Mount Allison and a goose egg for our boys.

OVER PRODUCTION.—The pulp mill and extract works at Miramichi are closed down on account of an overstocked market. However, there will be plenty of work for the men engaged at these works, as a greater amount of spruce logs will be cut this winter than for several years past.

FOR QUEEN.—J. DeVeber Neales has allowed himself to be selected as a sacrifice in Queens county. He will oppose the Hon. A. G. Blair. It is not yet announced what he has demanded but he has always been a supporter of the government and a close holder. He is to be slain on the 23d.

THE BRIDGES.—Beside the Woodstock bridge work is going on rapidly at present, the bridge there over the Pettaucodee being about completed. Work is also being done at Killam's mills and Elgin corner, Albert county. The Blackville bridge, Northumberland county, is making good progress.

AT BLACKVILLE.—Mr. Gibson's Blackville mill has ceased sawing for the season and large crews are being sent to the Blackville mill to cut new lumber woods. It is expected that next season will be a brisk one. The grist mill there is in charge of Harry Steele of Gibson, a good miller and very obliging.

SPASMIC.—It is wonderful to witness the spasmodic efforts made by some of our local newspapers to declare themselves liberal though run by conservative money, printing and influence and truckling to the demands of that party. They were liberal once but it would take a very fine microscope to find anything liberal about them at present.

CONSERVATIVE NOMINEE.—The result of Monday night's conservative convention at St. John was the appointment of George Robertson as standard bearer. George McLeod was first chosen, but as this did not appear to suit the party wisely, George Robertson was then put up. The meeting showed that the party in St. John is not in a very cohesive state.

THREE YEARS MORE.—The bass fishing has, as all are aware, been prohibited during the past three years, but to add to the agony three years more are set apart as a time when no bass may be caught. Along the Miramichi this is felt to be an injustice and people are loud in their complaints. The minister of marine and fisheries comes in for many choice epithets.

INSPECTION.—On Monday afternoon General Herbert, commander-in-chief of the Canadian forces, inspected the Infantry school and men here. He pronounced himself very much pleased with the condition of the barracks and with the military precision and skill of the men. One of the rooms was severely condemned and there will likely be a change made.

FOUND GUILTY.—The result of the trial of Sir Sidney Welton, C. B. Welton and Dr. Randall, in St. John, was a disagreement of the jury in the case of the former, while C. B. Welton and the doctor were found guilty. The jury stood eight to four in favor of convicting the reverend gentleman and he has been held awaiting another charge. It is a sad blow to the friends of the convicted men as their acquittal was expected.

A WORD TO THE WISE.—A certain sergeant of the Infantry force in this city has made himself rather conspicuous during the late election and at several subsequent opposition gatherings. It would appear that he is going outside his place, having no vote should not concern him. It is his duty to prevent strife not to take a part in what he knows may create disorder. It is not necessary to name him, but his conduct will have to change or there will be a report that will not be very pleasing to him. A word to the wise is sufficient.

MORE BONES.—Circulars were in character that those used in York are now being sent to Queen's county in the interests of the opposition. Is it not a creditable state of affairs that men should try to get into power by defaming their neighbors and by inciting menacing villainous character. A man who stirs up religious strife will think or burn a building should be held necessary, and the people of the province should frown down such scoundrels. We see the beginning but cannot say what the end may be. One thing is plain: Freedom is not to please a place to live in, but to prevent and religious strife in the increase.

A POLITICAL ATTACK.

The Health of the City Never in a Better Condition.

It would appear that some of our contemporaries are making a great mistake in spreading abroad to the world the fact, as they express it, of the great prevalence of typhoid fever and other contagious diseases in this city at the present time. In the first place the city has been almost free from disease the past summer—a majority of the deaths occurring being that of aged people.

Again, the city for the hottest months, ranked the lowest in Canada respecting deaths—some months only six deaths occurring in a population of about seven thousand, or one in over a thousand.

Among the guests were: Capt. Howe, Miss S. Howe, J. E. Sisson and wife, Jas. Howe, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Thoburn, John A. Humble, Miss E. Evans, Mrs. Gill Pringle, Mr. and Mrs. R. Kelley, D. Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. E. Ashford, Mr. and Mrs. McNaughton, T. Currie and wife, Harry and Miss Crotty, David Douglas and son, M. McKinnon and daughter, C. R. Merrill and wife, Geo. and Miss Annie McKinnon, Stanley Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brewer, T. Douglas and wife.

The wedding gifts were very beautiful and included: silver pickle dish, Alex. Forbes; fruit dish, Albert Sutherland; dressing case, Miss E. M. Sanson; Mary Crotty; Annie Hurley; Moore's, C. McLeod; Thos. Buchanan; photo album, Mr. and Mrs. R. Brewer, John and James White, H. Crotty, James Crotty; water pitcher, D. Douglas, D. Douglas and wife; card receiver, Miss Mary and Ethel Sanson; Mr. and Mrs. John Sanson; dozen Rogers knives, Frank Strickland, M. A. Tweedale, city; china cup and saucer, Miss Kitty Elden, Stanley Douglas; cross stand, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Grievie, city; patent rocker, easy chair, dinner set, dozen cups and saucers, hanging hall lamp, large hall lamp, Stanley Douglas and friends; tea set, Mr. and Mrs. A. Douglas, Dr. and Mrs. Moore, Charles Patchell, H. Malone; toilet stand, H. Douglas; half dozen cane seat chairs, Malcolm McKinnon and sons. Space forbids the naming of many others attesting the esteem of friends.

Prof. Sam. Weary and Sanford Bartlett provided excellent music while the tables were under the supervision of Mrs. Logan who all know as the ever-remembered Stanley in fair time is a host in herself.

SILVER WEDDING.

A Fingerpost in Married Life Royally Celebrated.

On Tuesday evening a large gathering of the Stanley people met at Harry Turner's to celebrate his silver wedding. He had just got his new hotel finished and put in excellent shape, so beside the wedding the affair took also the shape of a house warming. It was an enjoyable time.

The result of the presidential contest on Tuesday will be gratifying to most of our readers, as it is a very apparent fact that a majority of the residents of central New Brunswick preferred the four years of Cleveland rule to the four of Harrison's.

The Intercolonial.

The feeling here respecting the proposed transfer of the I. C. Railway to the C. P. R. is about evenly divided. If the C. P. R. will guarantee to run the road with no increase in rates—thus taking a heavy burden of taxes off the people—the change will meet with the favor of Fredericton. If however, it will be the means of increasing the rates and crushing out the C. E. R., it will prove a disaster to the people of York and Northumberland. It must be said however, that a majority in the counties mentioned are in favor of the road remaining as it is; and they say that they have as much right to low tolls as the people of the upper provinces have to canal and large public works that they are taxed for and from which they derive no benefit. It is believed though that the deal is made.

Scott Act War.

Inspector Menzies, of Chatham. Scott act inspector, received a very bad blow on the face from a flat iron in the hands of Annie Conway at Chatham on Thursday. It appears that he and constable Hill went to Conway's to look for liquor. He found the street door of the bar fastened and a guard on hand. He broke the door in and it was again closed, but a plank prevented its complete closing. James Conway stood at the bar with an axe threatening slaughter. Bottles and other missiles were freely exchanged. The constable was scalded by hot water thrown by one of the women. The inspector charged through the breach, club in hand, but was met by the flat iron which smashed his nose and cheek. War is now declared.

Pitt's Candidate.

Respecting the nomination of J. DeVeber Neales the Telegraph of Friday says: "It is understood that the opposition party in Queens discouraged the putting up of any candidate. George F. Baird was present and worked the convention along these lines and says, to-night, that Mr. Baird's election is assured in his own mind. Pitt and some of his gang were there and they practically nominated Neales. Mr. Baird says Neales' nomination, under the circumstances will make it impossible for the opposition to take him up as it is practically an Orange nomination and the opposition could not commit themselves to that. Our advice to-night from Gagetown are that the better class of oppositionists are entirely opposed to Neales' political reputation."

Representation.

A project is on foot to reduce the representation at the city council board, allowing only one alderman from each ward, and each candidate to be elected by a city instead of by a ward vote. It is believed that this will expedite matters, will lessen friction, and may be more in the interests of the city. Instead of any practical work, much time is spent with trivial matters, while the burden of taxation keeps increasing without any limit. The council may make it impossible for the opposition to take him up as it is practically an Orange nomination and the opposition could not commit themselves to that. Our advice to-night from Gagetown are that the better class of oppositionists are entirely opposed to Neales' political reputation."

Douglastown Brigade.

The Miramichi Advance says: The contract for the sub-structure of the proposed iron bridge at Douglasstown, tenders for which were advertised for in the Advance, has been awarded to Mr. Lawrence Doyle. The contract price is understood to be about $2,400 for the stone abutments. The job will be a permanent one. The government treats Douglasstown pretty well, considering that its elections are so largely influenced by specious canvases to vote plumpers in the opposition interest. They ought to get tired of being so often induced to oppose their best friends.

THAT ROBBERY.

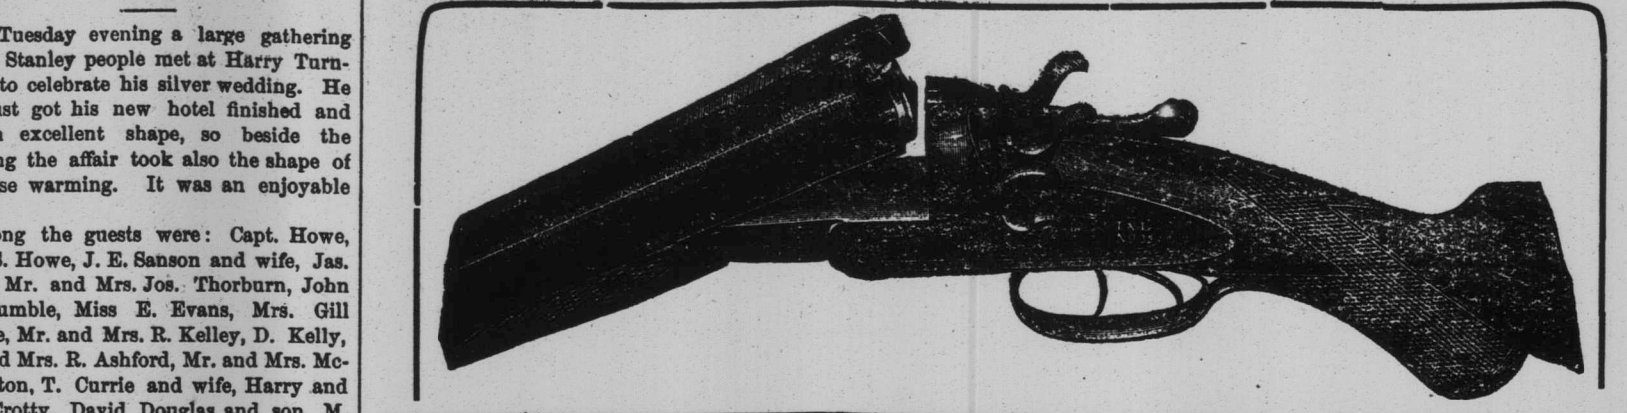

A young man from Miramichi, going to the west, was robbed here of $80 while intoxicated, about a fortnight since, a notice of which appeared in a former issue. There has been an attempt to show that the robbery was committed in one of the hotels. Such is not the case, as the young man was found on the street sleeping, and when found by his friends the money was gone. He was taken to the hotel and the case given to the police, with no clue as yet.

APPOINTMENTS.

In the county of Northumberland the following appointments have been made: Joseph Willison, James Syme and George Legge to be justices of the peace; Maurice O'Donnell to be alms house commissioner for the parish of Ludlow, in room of John Campbell, deceased; Romaine Bay to be labor act commissioner in room of Vital Allen.

POETRY.

THE CATTLE BELLS.

Far down the brown autumn haze—
High on the peak is snow—
Cattle that smell the winter days
Tinkle their bells as they go.

Out of a thick veil drawn to save
The sky's face from the blue,
Those tiny bells, as fairies wave
Their wand, evoke the past.

That music once I heard,
But then the notes were glad,
Carolling like a careless bird—
Ah, why now is it so sad?

Upon this brow now crowned by care
My love a garland laid;
We hear the bells, now here, now there,
Dead as the leaves and maid.

Mayhap for happier maid and man
Their tender music swells;
And I will smile while yet I can
List to the cattle bells.

SELECT STORY.

COUNT OF MONTE-CRISTO;

OR THE—

REVENGE OF EDMUND DANTES.

CHAPTER X.

THE BEGGAR.

The evening passed on; Madame de Villefort expressed a desire to return to Paris, which Madame Danglars had not dared to do, notwithstanding the unpleasantness she experienced. On his wife's request, M. de Villefort was the first to give the signal of departure. He offered a seat in his landau to Madame Danglars, that she might be under the care of his wife. As for M. Danglars, absorbed in an interesting conversation with M. Cavalcanti, he paid no attention to anything that was passing. While Monte-Cristo had begged the smiling count of Madame de Villefort, he had remarked the approach of Villefort to Madame Danglars, and he soon guessed all that had passed between them, though the words had been uttered in so low a voice as hardly to be heard by Madame Danglars. Without opposing their arrangements, he allowed Monte-Cristo, Chateaubriand, and Debray to leave on horseback, and the ladies in M. de Villefort's carriage. Danglars, more and more delighted with Major Cavalcanti, had offered him a seat in his carriage. Andrea went to the door, in every respect a caricature of the English fashion, was standing on tiptoes to hold a large iron gray horse. Andrea had spoken very little during dinner; he was an intelligent man, and he feared to utter some absurdity before so many grand people, amongst whom he saw with dawning eyes the king's proctor. Then he had been seized upon by Danglars, who, taking a rapid glance at the stiff-necked old major and his modest son, and taking into consideration the hospitality of the count, made up his mind that he was in the society of some nabob come to Paris to finish the worldly education of his only son. He contemplated with unspeakable delight the large diamond which shone on the major's little finger; for the major, like a prudent man, in case of any accident happening to his bank-notes, had immediately converted them into articles of value. Then, after dinner, on the pretext of business, he questioned the father and son upon their mode of living; and father and son being previously informed that it was through Danglars the one was to receive his 40,000 francs and the other 50,000 francs annually, they were so full of affability, that they would have shaken hands even with the banker's servant, so much did their gratitude need an object to expend itself upon. One thing above all the rest heightened the respect, nay, almost the veneration of Danglars for Cavalcanti. The latter, faithful to the principles of honor and integrity, had contented himself in proving his knowledge by saying in what language the best lampen were caught. Then he had eaten some without saying a word; Danglars, therefore, concluded that these kind of luxuries were common at the table of the illustrious descendant of the Cavalcanti, who most likely in Lucca fed upon trout brought from Switzerland, and lobsters sent from England, by the same means used by the count to bring the lamproys from the Lake Fusaro, and the sturgeon from the Volga. That was a small politeness of manner that he heard Cavalcanti pronounce these words, "Tomorrow, sir, I shall have the honor of waiting upon you on business."

"And I, sir, said Danglars, shall be most happy to receive you." Upon which he offered to take Cavalcanti in his carriage to the Hotel des Princes, if it would not be depriving him of the company of his son. To this Cavalcanti replied, by saying that for some time past his son had lived independently of him; that he had his own horse and carriage, and that not having come together, it would not be difficult for them to leave separately. The major seated himself, therefore, by the side of Danglars, who was more and more charmed with the ideas of order and economy which ruled this man, and yet who, being able to allow his son 50,000 francs a year, might be supposed to possess a fortune of 600,000 or 800,000 francs.

As for Andrea, he began, by way of showing off, to scold his groom, who, instead of bringing the tibrary to the steps of the house, had taken it to the center door, thus giving him the trouble of walking thirty steps to reach it. The groom heard him with humility, took the bit of the impatient animal with his left hand, and with his right held out the reins to Andrea, who taking them from him, rested his polished boot lightly on the step. At that moment a hand touched his shoulder. The young man turned thinking that Danglars or Monte-Cristo had forgotten something which he wished to tell him, and had returned just as they were starting. But instead of either of these, he saw nothing but a strange face, sunburnt, and encircled by a beard, with eyes brilliant as carbuncles, and a smile upon the mouth which displayed a perfect set of white teeth, pointed and sharp as the wolf's or jackal's. A red handkerchief encircled his gray head; torn and filthy garments covered his large bony limbs, which seemed as though, like those of a skeleton, they would rattle as he walked; and the hand which he leaned on the young man's shoulder, and which was the first thing Andrea saw, seemed of a gigantic size. Did the young man recognize that face by the light of the lantern in his tibrary, or was he merely struck with the horrible appearance of his interrogator? We cannot say; but only relate the fact that he shuddered and stepped back suddenly. "What do you want of me?" he asked.

"Pardon me, my friend, if I disturb you," said the man with the red handkerchief, "but I want to speak to you."

"You have no right to beg at night," said the groom, endeavoring to rid his master of the troublesome intruder.

"I am not begging, my fine fellow," said the unknown to the servant, with so ironical an expression of eye, and so frightful a smile, that he withdrew; "I only wish to say two or three words to your master, who gave me a commission to execute about a fortnight ago."

"Come," said Andrea, with sufficient nerve for his servant not to perceive his agitation, "what do you want? Speak quickly, friend."

The man said in a low voice: "I wish—I wish you to spare me a dinner as you have, I can scarcely support myself. The young man shuddered at this strange familiarity. "Tell me," he said, "tell me what you want?"

"Well, then, I want you to take me up in your fine carriage, and carry me back. Andrea turned pale but said nothing. "Yes," said the man, thrusting his hands into his pockets, and looking impudently at the youth; "I have taken the whip into my hand; do you understand, Master Benedetto?"

"At this name, no doubt, the young man reflected a little, for he went towards his groom saying, 'this man is right; I did indeed charge him with a commission, the result of which he must tell me; walk to the barrier, there take a cab that you may not be too late.' The surprised groom then retired.

"Let me at least reach a shady spot," said Andrea.

"Oh! as for that, I'll conduct you to a splendid spot," said the man with the handkerchief; and, taking the horse's bit, he led the tibrary to a place where it was certainly impossible for anyone to witness the honor that Andrea conferred upon him.

"Don't think I want the honor of riding in your fine carriage," said he; "oh, no, its only because I am tired, and also because I have a little business to talk over with you."

"Come, step in," said the young man. It was a pity this scene had not occurred in daylight, for it was curious to see this rascal throwing himself heavily down on the cushion beside the young and elegant driver of the tibrary. Andrea drove past the last house in the village without saying a word to his companion, who smiled complacently, as though well pleased to find himself travelling in so comfortable a vehicle. Once out of Anteuil, Andrea looked around, in order to assure himself that he could neither be seen nor heard; and then, stopping the horse and crossing his arms before the man, he asked, "Now tell me why you come to disturb me?"

"Let me ask you why you deceived me?" When he pointed at the Pont du Var, you told me that you were going to travel through Piedmont and Tuscany; but instead of that you come to Paris."

"How does that vex you?"

"It does not; on the contrary, I think it will answer my purpose."

"So," said Andrea, "you are speculating upon me?"

"What fine words he uses!"

"I warn you, Master Cadrouse, that you are mistaken."

"Well, well, don't be angry, my boy; you know well enough what it is to be unfortunate; and misfortunes make us jealous. I thought you were earning a living in Tuscany or Piedmont by acting as factotum or courier; and I pitied you sincerely as I would a child of my own. You know I always did call you my child."

"Come, come, what then?"

"Patience! patience!"

"I am patient, but go on."

"All at once, you pass through the barrier with a good tibrary, and find new clothes on you. You must have discovered a mine, or else become a stockbroker."

"So that, as you acknowledge, you are jealous."

"No, I am pleased—so pleased that I wished to congratulate you; but as I am not quite properly dressed, I chose my opportunity, that I might not compromise you."

"Yes and a fine opportunity you have chosen!" exclaimed Andrea; "you speak to me before my servant."

"How can I help that my boy? I speak to you when I can catch you. You have a quick horse, a light tibrary, you are naturally as slippery as an eel; if I had missed you to-night, I might not have had another chance."

"You see, I do not conceal myself."

"You are lucky; I wish I could say as much. I do conceal myself; and then I was afraid you would not recognize me, but you did," added Cadrouse, with his unpleasant smile. "It was very polite of you."

"Come," said Andrea, "what do you want?"

"You do not speak affectionately to me, Benedetto, my old friend; that is not right, take care, or I may become troublesome before my servant."

"How can I help that my boy? I speak to you when I can catch you. You have a quick horse, a light tibrary, you are naturally as slippery as an eel; if I had missed you to-night, I might not have had another chance."

"Good!" said Cadrouse.

"Apply to the steward on the first day of every month, and you will receive the same sum."

"There now, again you degrade me."

"How so?"

"By making me apply to the servants, when I want to transact business with you alone."

"Well, be it so, then. Take it from me then, and so long at least as I receive my income, you shall be paid yours."

"Come, come; I always said you were a fine fellow, and it is a blessing when good fortune happens to such as you. But tell me all about it?"

"The fact is, I have found my father."

"What! a real father?"

"Yes, so long as he pays me—"

"You'll honor and believe him—that's right. What is his name?"

"Major Cavalcanti!"

"Is he pleased with you?"

"So far I have appeared to answer his purpose."

"And who found this father for you?"

"The Count of Monte-Cristo."

"The man whose house you have just left?"

"Yes."

"I wish you would try and find me a situation with him as grandfather, since he holds the money-chest."

"Well, I will mention you to him. Meanwhile, what are you going to do?"

"I?"

"Yes, you."

"It is very kind of you to trouble yourself about me."

"Since you interest yourself in my affairs, I think it is now my turn to ask you some questions."

"Ah, true! Well, I shall rent a room in some respectable house, wear a decent coat, shave every day, go wearing the papers in a safe. Then in the evening I will go to the theatre; I shall look like some retired baker. This is my wish."

"Come, if you will only put this scheme into execution and be steady, nothing can do better."

"Do you think so, saint? And you—what will you become? A peer of France?"

"Ah!" said Andrea, "who knows?"

"Major Cavalcanti is already one, perhaps; but then hereditary rank is abolished."

"No politics, Cadrouse! And now that you have all you want, and that we understand each other, jump down from the tibrary and disappear."

"No; just think for a moment; with this red handkerchief on my head, with scarcely any shoes, no papers, and ten gold napoleons in my pocket, without reckoning what there was before—making in all about two hundred francs; why, I should certainly be arrested at the barriers. Then, to justify myself, I should say that you gave me a rapid glance at this would cause inquiries; it would be found that I left Tonlon without giving proper notice, and I should then be reconducted to the shores of the Mediterranean. Then I should become simply No. 206, and good-bye to my dream of resembling the retired baker! No, no, my boy; I prefer remaining honorably in the capital."

Andrea scowled. Certainly, as he had himself owned, the reputation of Major Cavalcanti was a willow before. He drew up for a minute, threw a rapid glance around him; and after doing so his hand fell instantly into his pocket, where it began playing with a pistol. But meanwhile Cadrouse, who had never taken his eyes off his companion, passed his hand behind his back, and clasped a long Spanish knife, which he always carried with him, to be ready in case of need. The two friends, as we see, were worthy of and understood one another. Andrea's hand left his pocket, and he said, "I was carried up to the red mountain, which it played with for some time. 'Good Cadrouse,' he said, 'how happy you will be!'"

"I will do my best," said the innkeeper of the Pont du Gard, reclosing his knife.

"Well, then, we will go into Paris. But how will you pass through the barrier without exciting suspicion? It seems to me you are in more danger riding than on foot."

"Wait," said Cadrouse, "we shall see. He then took the great-coat with the large collar, which he had behind him left behind in the tibrary, and put it on his back; then he took off Cavalcanti's hat, which he placed upon his own head; and finally assumed the careless attitude of a servant whose master drives himself."

"But tell me," said Andrea, "am I to remain here?"

"Pooh!" said Cadrouse; "it is so windy that your hat can easily appear to have blown off."

"Come, come, enough of this," said Cavalcanti.

"What are you waiting for?" said Cadrouse. "I hope I am not the cause."

"Hush!" exclaimed Andrea. They passed the barrier without accident. At the first cross street Andrea stopped his horse, and Cadrouse leaped out.

"Well!" said Andrea, "my servant's coat and my hat?"

"Ah!" said Cadrouse, "you would not like me to risk taking cold?"

"But what am I to do?"

"You! you are young, whilst I am beginning to get old. So long as I am running into a court he disappeared."

"Aha!" said Andrea, sighing, "one cannot be completely happy in this world!"

CHAPTER XI.
A CONJUGAL SCENE.

At the Place Louis XV, the young people separated—that is to say, Morel went to the Boulevard, Chateaubriand to the Font de la Revolution, and Debray to the Quai. Most probably Morel and Chateaubriand returned to their "domestic hearths," as they say in the galleries of the Chamber in well-tutored speech, and in the theatre of the Rue Richelieu in well-remembered phrases; but it was not the case with Debray. When he reached the wicket of the Louvre, he turned to the left, galloped across the Couronne, passed through the Rue-Saint-Roch, and, issuing from the Rue de la Michodiere, he arrived at M. Danglars' door just at the same time that Villefort's landau, after having deposited him and his wife at the Faubourg St. Honoré, stopped to leave the baroness at her own house. Debray, with the air of a man familiar with the house, entered first into the court, threw his bridle into the hands of a footman, and returned to the door to receive Madame Danglars, to whom he offered his arm, to conduct her to her apartments. The gate once closed, and Debray and the baroness alone in the court, he asked, "What was the matter with you, Hermine? and why were you so affected at that story, or rather fable which the count related?"

"Because I have been in such shocking spirits all the evening, my friend," said the baroness.

"No, Hermine," replied Debray; "you cannot make me believe that; on the contrary, you were in excellent spirits when you arrived at the count's. M. Danglars was disagreeable, certainly; but I know how much you care for his ill-humor. Some one has vexed you; I will allow no one to annoy you."

"You are deceived, Lucien, I assure you," replied Madame Danglars; "and what I have told you is really the case, added to the ill-humor you remarked, but which I did not think it worth while to allude to." It was evident that Madame Danglars was suffering from that nervous irritability which women frequently cannot account for even to themselves; or that, as Debray had guessed, she had experienced some secret agitation that she would not acknowledge to any one. Being a man who knew that the former of these symptoms was one of the elements of female life, he did not press his enquiries, but waited for a more appropriate opportunity when he should again interrogate her, or receive an avowed proprio moto. At the door of her apartments the baroness met Mademoiselle Cornelle, her confidential lady's maid. "What is my daughter doing?" asked Madame Danglars.

"She practiced all the evening and then went to bed," replied Mademoiselle Cornelle, her confidential lady's maid. "What I think I heard her piano."

"It is Mademoiselle Louise d'Armillay, who is playing while Madame Danglars is in bed."

"Well," said Madame Danglars, "come and dress, then, if they entered my bedroom. Debray stretched himself upon a large couch, and Madame Danglars passed into her dressing room with Mademoiselle Cornelle. "My dear M. Lucien," said Madame Danglars, through the door, "do not let me hear of your coming to see me, unless you have something to tell me that will address a word to you."

"Madame," said Lucien, playing with a little dog, who recognizing him as a friend of the house, expected to be caressed, "I am not the only one who makes similar complaints; I think I heard Mademoiselle Cornelle say that she could not extract a word from his fiancée."

"True," said Madame Danglars; but yet I think this will all pass off, and that you will one day see her enter your study."

"My study?"

"Yes, that of the minister."

"To ask for an engagement at the Opera. Really, I never saw such an infatuation for music; it is quite ridiculous for a young lady of fashion." Debray smiled.

"Well," said he, "let her come, with your consent and that of the baron, and we will try and give her an engagement, though we are very poor to pay such talents as hers."

"Go, Cornelle," said Madame Danglars, "I do not require you any longer."

COVERDALE.

Our young people seem to have caught the matrimonial fever here. Last week John Hill brought home his bride and was treated to quite a noise in the evening. We wish them all happiness in their journey through life.

Miss Jennie Adair has returned to her home in Lowell, Mass.

Mrs. George Mueller has returned home to spend the winter with her mother, Mrs. John Adair.

Mrs. Sandy Jones has gone to Keswick to spend the winter with friends.

The place was visited by quite a heavy snowstorm, but the weather being warm it quickly disappeared leaving the roads very muddy.

The men, both old and young have all gone to the lumber woods, making it quite lonesome here at present.

Hiram Good is doing quite a business stacking beams. Being an old hunter he knows just where to find them.

Fred Grant and family are preparing to move to Lowell, Mass.

Not very much stir since election, but still we live in hopes of some of the promises being fulfilled concerning roads and bridges; but perhaps they will do for here until next election.

CONSUMPTION

is oftentimes absolutely cured in its earliest stages by the use of that wonderful Food Medicine, Scott's Emulsion which is now in high repute the world over.

RACKED WITH RHEUMATISM.

Dear Sirs,—For ten years I suffered with rheumatism in spring and fall. I have been confined to bed for months at a time, but since using B. B. B. I have not suffered from it at all. I also suffered from the dyspepsia, which has not troubled me since using the B. B. B., and I therefore think it a splendid medicine.

RHEUMATISM CURED IN A DAY.—South America Rheumatic Cure for rheumatism and neuralgia radically cures in 1 to 3 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. It removes at once the cause of the disease, immediately dissipates the pain. The first dose gives benefit. 75 cents. Warranted by Davies, Staples & Co.

IT BEATS JACK FROST.

Dear Sirs,—We have used Haggard's Yellow Oil in our family and know it is a sure cure for lumbago and frosts. My wife was so bad with lumbago that she could not straighten herself, and Yellow Oil completely cured her. It has become a fortune to us.

OLIVER ALLEN, Owen Sound, Ont.

Is it the testimony of all men who have tried it that "Myrtle Navy" tobacco has the most delicious taste of any tobacco in the market, and that it leaves none of the unpleasant effects in the mouth that most tobaccos do. The reason for this is the high and pure quality of the leaf, which is the finest known in Virginia, and the absence of all deleterious matter in the manufacture.

When a man pictures a heaven for himself he always has his own mansion right in the centre of it.

When the system is run down, a person becomes at once prey to Consumption or Scrofula. Many valuable lives are saved by using Scott's Emulsion as soon as a decline in health is observed.

Young mother—I wonder why the baby always wakes up crying? Young father (wearily)—I suppose he's mad because he's been making no trouble.

Itch, mange and scratches of every kind, on human or animal, cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Warranted by Davies, Staples & Co.
