Look. Read. Realize!

We cater to the men's trade, and no other. If you were sick you wouldn't call to see a Tailor, or a Blacksmith, about the condition of your health. Of course not; you would call to see a Doctor.

If you wanted a Suit or an Overcoat would you go to see a Doctor, or a Shoemaker? Not at all. You would go to see a First Class Tailor.

WELL, there's where we shine!!!
We study the business. We know what suits a young man

we know what suits a middle-aged man, and we know what suits the old gentleman—both in goods and in style. It does not make any difference whether you want your clothes Ready-to-Wear, or Made-to-Order. We are equally in a position to suit you. We do not let a suit or overcoat leave our establishment until it suits and fits the man who is buying. Our prices are always right when you take the quality into consideration.

Do not forget that we are sole agents for the famous W H Leishman & Co., Wholesale Custom Tailors. We have an elegant stock of Overcoats to show you at the present time.

Overcoats, Made-to-Order-from... $30.00 to $48.00

Overcoats, Ready-to-Wear..... $15.00 to $36.00

Success Is a Habit

Our habits make us. We are creatures of habit. Whether we are a success or a failure is a question of how we do things without thinking. To Save is the only way to success

Gloves

We have just the kind of Gloves you need, lined and unlined. Also Wool Gloves for this time of year. Suedes and Tans—both combination.
Price..... $1.00 to $4.00

MONEY TO LOAN

Example of Devout Christian Mother

On the Missouri and Pacific train out of Kansas City some time ago was a mother and four children—three girls and one boy. They had left Chicago the day before on their way to the Far West, where the husband and father had a claim, which was to be their new home. The eldest girl appeared to be about fourteen, and from that age they ranged down to the only boy, a chubby little fellow about five. Their dress and manners showed that they had not been reared in the midst of luxury; but withal they were modest children and scrupulously clean. The mother was thin, her face haggard from the worry of the long trip and the care of her precious little flock, for there were seven or eight long hours yet before the journey's end. It was after bedtime when the train left Kansas City, and the children were yawning and scarcely able to stay awake. In fact the boy, the pet of the family, had closed his eyes and was fast approaching "shut-eye town," while the next older tugged at him as she looked appealingly to her mother with an expression that was pitiful. He mustn't go to sleep yet, the others began whispering among themselves, and then the mother, regarding the curiosity of the other passengers, who sat in wonderment as they tried to divine the cause of so much whispering and strenuous effort to keep the little one awake, gathered her children around her. They occupied seats in the rear end of the car, holding a long seat which runs along the smoking compartment.

Presently the cause of all this excitement was made plain—it was bedtime and then they had said their prayers. Quietly, modestly, without ostentation or display, yes, even timidly, the mother and her children knelt together at the long seat. They made the sign of the cross and said their evening prayers. Just for a few minutes and then they arose; the children were made as comfortable as possible for the night, and soon all but the mother were asleep, while the traveling men with their grips, the business man with his worries, the women whose curiosity had been aroused, paid a silent tribute to the religion of all ages—the Catholic Religion.

Wisdom of The Ignorant

At first sight the above title may cause a haughty smile, but an afterthought may convince even the most doubtful that there is, at least, some truth in the statement, writes Lordman. Just as the ignorance of the educated very often proves to be a stumbling block for those who are less educated, so the wisdom of the comparatively ignorant is very often a revelation for the highly educated.

Refinement, culture and education, if not the same thing, are at least ultimately related. We generally expect an educated man to be cultured and refined; mere cleverness may be extremely repellent.

A certain amount of respect for the opinion of another is generally the most characteristic mark of distinction found in a refined, cultured and educated man. He will "sit" his opinions without using direct "verbal fists."

Constipation Headaches.

When your liver gets sluggish and inactive, your whole health suffers. Your bowels become constipated, head aches, tongue coated, breath bad, spots float before your eyes, you are liable to have heartburn, water brash, jaundice, etc.

Use Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills to make the liver resume its proper functions by removing the bile that is circulating in the blood and poisoning the system. Mr. Le Roy Allen, Springfield, N. S., writes:—"I desire to express my thanks for the relief Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills have given me. I had been suffering from constipation for three years, and had had headaches. I tried all sorts of remedies, but got no relief, until my grandfather told me about your pills. I tried them and soon got relief, and now would not be without them in my opinion."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are small and easy to take, do not gripe, weaken or clog the bowels, and are perfectly safe.

that we were not traveling on passes, but the United States Government was paying our expenses. The food given us was terrible; in fact after a few days out the only things eatable were the cookies and sweets bought in the canteen. The stewards aboard went amongst us selling food, and they did a big business because we were half starved all the time. One day I bargained with a steward to bring me a roast chicken, for which I was to pay four dollars. Ten minutes later I saw him coming along the passage way with the chicken on the tray. I stepped into a side-gangway, and as he was about to pass I reached out my leg and tripped him, grabbed the chicken, hit him in the back of the ear and ran. Now the question I want to ask, chaplain, is this—was that stealing?"

The "question had so many ramifications that it is still unsolved.

Sacred Heart Will Reward Generous

The whole world is aware that millions of men, women and children in the northern provinces of China are dying of starvation. Appeals for the sufferers have been sent broadcast, and the United States Government has instituted relief committees whose duty it is to collect and distribute funds. Our missionaries are sending heartrending letters beseeching the aid of Catholics for the poor Christians that crowd at their doors begging for a few grains of rice to save them from perishing. Shall we deny their appeals?

Bishop Massi, O. F. M., of Central Shensi, China, says in regard to the dreadful conditions prevailing in his Vicariate, and for the relief of which he begs even the smallest alms:

"I have supreme confidence in the goodness of the American Catholics. If they could view with their own eyes the present distress of the inhabitants of North China they would see horrors that are beyond their wildest imagination. Truly the Sacred Heart will recompense those who come to the aid of a people He has seen fit to afflict so heavily."

Is This Stealing?

The following incident is not a story but a fact of human interest brought out of the World War:

A Catholic priest chaplain was sitting one Sunday afternoon in his billet in France, and his only company was a private soldier who sat quietly in a corner of the room smoking and dreaming of his Powder River ranch down in the southwest corner of Montana, for he was a cowboy. He was a good representative of that type of western phisician who was short on conversation but long on action. Suddenly the silence was broken and he requested the chaplain to elucidate the morality of stealing. This is the case for which he sought a solution, as he told it himself:

"We came over here on board an English transport. We knew Minard's Liniment for Dandruff

At The Federal Capital

Parliament re-assembled, after the Easter recess, on Tuesday, March 29th. When the Commons came to order at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, the attendance was far from complete, as quite a number had not yet returned from their homes, where they had gone to enjoy the Easter holidays. Tuesday is always a day of Government business, and on the motion to go into committee of supply, which was the first order of the day after the usual routine, Hon. Mr. Ballantyne, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, took occasion to present to the House his general statement, relative to the operations of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, briefly stating that the fleet of Merchant Marine ships operating to date numbers forty-seven ships, having a total dead weight tonnage of 259,783 tons. In addition to these there still remain to complete the original programme, 16 ships more, that are now in the course of construction. These will have a total dead weight tonnage of 114,470 tons. When these are afloat and the total building programme completed, the fleet of Canadian Government Merchant Marine ships will total 63, with an approximate dead weight tonnage of 374,254 tons. There are a number of interesting details in connection with this presentation which cannot be given in this correspondence, but these few facts may be interesting. Seven of these ships are being equipped with fuel installation and thirteen of them are equipped with refrigerator spaces. A brief outline of the financial statement may be presented as follows: The fixed assets, consisting of ships, plant, equipment, and so on, less depreciation, as on December 31, 1920, is placed at $49,242,604.70. The credit assets, including cash in banks and on hand, accounts receivable, interest, insurance claims, Dominion Victory Bonds, etc., amount to $3,525,653.97. The total assets $52,768,258.67. The liabilities figure out of course in the usual form against the assets, but apart from this general statement the operations of the ships and what they have been doing from the financial point of view for the year have to be taken into account. This part of the financial statement in brief shows that the net earnings of the fleet for the year 1920 amounted to $781,460.09. Under all the circumstances, considering the unfavourable conditions of trade, in many cases, and in consequence of the transition state through which we are passing, this is a very creditable showing for these ships during the past year. Of course these figures are but a mere outline, and further details and particulars of the operations and everything else in connection with the ships, will be detailed at a later date, when the Minister presents his estimates for consideration in the House.

After the Minister of Marine and Fisheries had completed his statement the Leader of the Opposition, in accordance with a notice which he had sent to the Prime Minister early in the afternoon, availed himself of the motion to go into the committee of supply to introduce another want of confidence amendment. His grievance on this occasion was the serious injury, according to him, that is done to a few of the constituencies in Canada whose members have died within a brief space. The Leader of the Opposition expressed feigned regret that the electors living in these several vacant districts were unrepresented in the House of Commons during the most important legislation that goes on there from time to time, during this onerous session of Parliament. As usual he worked himself up into a most tremendous fit of indignation over the imaginary constitutional disabilities inflicted on these people. He thought that the functions of parliament had been very grievously interfered with in not having by-elections immediately. He wound up his characteristic tirade by moving an amendment that writs for elections in the several constituencies named should be issued forthwith. It is not unlikely that Mr. MacKenzie King, Leader of the Opposition, imagined that as there was rather a slim House of Commons on this occasion, inasmuch as a very considerable number of the members had not returned from vacation, he might have some chance of placing the Government at a disadvantage in division by reducing the majority to a very low figure; but the result proved that he was just about as wide of the mark on this occasion as he has always been, and that his vision was just about as unreliable and silly as is usually the case; for after the matter had been discussed for some time the division was taken, with the result that the Government had a majority of thirty-one. It did not take the Prime Minister, the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, very long to puncture the inopportune and silly bubble that the Leader of the Opposition had thrown into the discussion. He pointed out the provisions made in a special Act of Parliament, introduced a couple of sessions ago by a member of the Opposition, and accepted by the Government and passed into law, whereas it provided that writs for by-elections should be issued within six months of the time the vacancies occur. In the cases referred to there was not one of them where a vacancy existed more than one half the time. Consequently, all the vapouring and all the assumed indignation of the Leader of the Opposition were as futile and inconsequential as are all of his statements when he undertakes to discuss a constitutional question. As said above, after the matter had been pretty well discussed and the untenable position of the Leader of the Opposition had been fully demonstrated by the Prime Minister and other members on the Government side of the House, a division was taken, with the result that the Leader of the Opposition mustered fifty-eight votes for his amendment, while the Government had eighty-nine, showing, as above stated, a majority of thirty-one for the Government. It will be apparent by adding these two sets of figures together that a considerably reduced representation were in the chamber at this time. Thus, once more Mr. MacKenzie King, Leader of the Opposition, exhibited himself in an extremely silly light before the public. After the division the motion to go into a committee of supply carried, and some estimates were passed, when progress was reported and the House adjourned.

Wednesday, the 30th, was private members' day, and, as usual, a number of resolutions on the order paper, in the name of one private member or another, were introduced and discussed during the whole afternoon. That is to say, from 2 to 6 o'clock, which have been the sitting hours on Wednesday up to the present; but this Wednesday, the 30th, was the last day on which the House will meet at 2 o'clock for the present session, and on all succeeding Wednesdays the sittings will be the same as on other days, 8 to 6 o'clock, and 8 to 11. Nothing of a very extraordinary character occurred during the discussion of the several resolutions promoted by private members, and, as usual, they were nearly all withdrawn after a pretty full discussion had taken place.

Friday, April 1st, was devoted to consideration of estimates of supply during the whole afternoon and evening sittings, after the usual routine on the opening of the sitting. The estimates considered and supplies voted on this day were altogether in the Department of Trade and Commerce. The veteran Minister, Sir George Foster, stood by his guns all day and evening, and with the greatest patience politely answered a fusillade of questions that came at him, from all corners of the Opposition side of the House especially, and when midnight had arrived he had all but completed his very numerous estimates of supply for the session. As previously stated, more than once in this correspondence, the voting of a supply in committee is taken advantage of to heckle the Ministers and to ask all manner of questions, whether sensible or not, by the Opposition members. Of course a great many of the members of the Opposition are disposed to be unreasonable in their demand for information. They do not perhaps grasp what is quite legitimate in this regard; but there are always a certain number who do not consider that they have any responsibilities except to render themselves as "troublesome" as possible to the Government and as obnoxious as it is possible for any one to be and remain within the rules of the House. As a matter of fact, very frequently and for the greater part of the time this brigade of trouble-makers are outside of the rules. Great leniency is generally manifested by the Deputy Speaker, who presides always when the House is in committee. But to his credit it must be said, that when matters get to a stage where some are altogether unreasonable he brings them to order very suddenly and insists on the rules of debate being observed.

English Strike Unsettled

London, April 8.—The general strike of the Triple Alliance will start on Tuesday morning unless negotiations for settlement of coal strike are reopened, it was announced by Union leaders today. London, April 8.—Leaders of the National Federation of Transport Workers and of the National Union of Railwaymen have voted to support the miners in the great coal strike. They decided this morning upon a strike by the two Unions; this brings the entire power of the Triple Alliance of Labor.

This may precipitate the great industrial controversy in England for many years. Representatives of the mines this afternoon refused to accept Prime Minister Lloyd George's invitation to meet owners of the mines on the conditions proposed, which were that the return of pumpmen and engineers to the pits would be the first matter settled at the conference. The mine owners conditionally accepted the Premier's invitation but stipulated that the matter of the pumpmen returning to work must be the first question settled at the proposed conference. The miners based their refusal of the Premier's invitation on this stipulation. The owners put in an appearance at the Board of Trade conference chamber at the hour set but left after waiting an hour for the miners. Government officials were anxious over conditions in Wales and Scotland. Violence was common there and most outbreaks were revolutionary in tone. A hopeful feature is that Messrs Clyne and Henderson and Thomas have all expressed their disapproval of the flooding of the mines and it is understood they are bringing pressure on the miners for the resumption of safety work.

London, April 8.—Prime Minister Lloyd George announced in the House of Commons this afternoon that an early proclamation will call up Army and Navy reserves. He also said that it is the intention of the government to issue an appeal and other essential services in view of the prospective Triple Alliance strike. For the first time in the history of the nation, Lloyd George declared it is confronted by an attempt to coerce it into capitulating by the destruction of its resources. Protection must be provided for the vital assets of the community and nation, he declared.

London, April 8.—Considerable opposition to the Triple Alliance strike amongst the Rail and file of the railwaymen appeared here today, the Liverpool Union telegraphed to J. H. Thomas, M. P., General Secretary of the Railwaymen's Union, declaring the Liverpool men would not strike unless a ballot of men favored such action.

Mr. J. R. Booth, of Ottawa, is surely the Dean of Lumber Kings. Not only that, but he is one of the most remarkable men in his generation. He celebrated his 94th birthday on April 5th.

In reply to a question in the British House of Commons on April 4th, Premier Lloyd George stated that the amount of reparations money received from Germany was about one hundred million pounds sterling.

Intelligence from across the Atlantic intimates that a second Stimpson Tunnel between Switzerland and Italy will be completed in July. It was begun before the war, although it is evident not very many people knew much about it. The disturbance simply halted its progress. As one writer remarks, "The Alps bored the Ancients. We bore the Alps."

France lost approximately 5.7 per cent of her population since 1911 census, according to the returns of 1921 census. In one quarter of the populated area, including the city of Paris and eighteen departments, three departments showed a total gain of forty thousand, while fifteen departments lost six hundred and seventeen thousand. Paris, which was believed to have greatly increased, was found to be losing steadily.

Word comes from Fort Smith, Texas, that James Elisinger, aged fifty-four, who had been asleep for nearly three years, awoke in the county hospital a few days ago, yawning, and then went back to sleep again. The nurse said he did not speak but was awake. He had entered the hospital in 1914 a sufferer from Pelagra, physicians say. In August, 1918, he fell into a sleep, which was broken for the first time, as indicated above.

In Toronto, on April 4th, a tailor named Longbottom had been charged in the Police Court with receiving stolen goods and remained on $10,000 bail. He was re-arrested on the same day and held on a charge of theft, as the police had searched his house and found in the cellar $20,000 worth of pure melted gold and a number of gold and pearl rings. Since his first arrest, on April 2nd, the police have recovered from his domicile $35,000 worth of gold.

This information comes from Cochrane, Ont., and it shows that it takes more than a missed train to damp the spirits of athletic ladies of that town. The members of the Cochrane Ladies' Hockey Team went to Iroquois Falls to play with their sisters there, but the captain arrived too late to accompany the other members of the party. Nothing daunted the young lady walked to Porquois, a distance of twenty-eight miles, got a train, and arrived at the Falls and helped her team to win by scoring the only goal of the game.

Recent intelligence from London indicates that there is a very strong desire among the statesmen, some of them at least of Great Britain to inaugurate in one way or another a system of protective tariff. Resolutions are up for discussion in the British House of Commons which are intended to form the basis of the Government's proposed 'Safe Guarding of Industries' bill. It is stated that the resolutions provide for five years customs duties of 33 1/3 per cent, ad valorem on importations into the United Kingdom of optical instruments, scientific glassware, porcelain and instruments, and a long list of other articles. It is also stated that there will be a similar duty in addition to any existing customs duty on any articles which the Board of Trade, under the Act, will have the power to specify on the ground that the articles have been sold or offered in the United Kingdom at prices below the cost of production or owing to exchange depreciation of the prices at which they can be profitably produced for in Great Britain, thereby tending to bring about unemployment. Surely this information will be a great shock to Dr. Clarke of Red Deer and some other public men with which Free Trade is a fetish.

Recent intelligence from Athens indicates that former Premier Venizelos has gone to Japan to be the guest of the Mikado, who will ask him to arbitrate difficulties pending between Japan and United States.

Her many friends will be very sorry to learn that Miss Lucy Blanchard, of this city, was obliged to undergo an operation for appendicitis in the Charlottetown Hospital. At last reports she was progressing favorably.

At Saskatoon eggs were selling on the first of April for 22 1/2 cents a dozen and travellers reported at Saskatoon that the farmers in the country districts were selling them at 15 cents a dozen. In consequence of this great reduction in hen fruit, egg breakfasts are being served to prisoners in the cells there.

A pleasing affair took place in the hall at Egmont Bay on Thursday, when a welcome was extended to the new parish priest, Father Gallant, formerly of Bloomfield, and Rev. Richard St. John, who has had charge for several months, was given a farewell. An address of welcome in French to Father Gallant was read by Mr. Joseph Arseneault, and an address in French to Father St. John was read by Mr. Peter Gallant, and in English by Mr. Thomas McNally. During the happy event the hall was filled to capacity by people from all over the parish.

At Ossining, N. Y., where a State penitentiary is conducted, an operation was performed by Dr. Wm. L. Chapman, a Brooklyn Brain Specialist, on an invalid prisoner by which he removed a bullet from his brain. That the operation was successful was manifested by the fact that the patient immediately recognized a fellow convict whom he had not seen for two years and a half. During this time it was known that the prisoner's mind did not function at all. It was a perfect blank, but on the removal of the bullet at once he manifested indications of normality. The strongest evidence was his recognition of those around him whom he had not noticed from the time he had been afflicted with the bullet on the brain. It is said that the physicians are confident that he will recover.

On Saturday, March 19th, the feast of St. Joseph, the novitiate of the Sisters of St. Joseph, in St. Paul, was the scene of a beautiful religious ceremony. On that occasion twenty-eight postulants, received the habit of the congregation, while ten sisters pronounced their final vows. The Mass was said at 9.30 a. m., by Rev. Virgil Nichel, G. S. B. His Grace, Archbishop Dowling, presiding at the various ceremonies. The postulants, one of whom was Mary Lamb, of Emerald, P. E. I., were beautifully attired in their bridal robes, and carried shower bouquets of roses. During the procession the choir of sisters rendered appropriate musical selections. After blessing the religious habits the Most Rev. Austin Dowling, D. D., delivered an eloquent sermon on the religious life. The postulants kneeling at the sanctuary rail expressed the desire to change the robes of the worldly pleasures for the holy habit of the Sisters of St. Joseph. Having obtained the desired permission from the presiding prelate, the Most Rev. Archbishop, they withdrew from the chapel. Miss Lamb now takes the religious name of Sister Mary Almada, and her career will always be followed with interest by her P. E. I. relatives and friends.

Bank in London Ontario, Robbed

London, Ont., April 12.—At noon yesterday four armed but unmasked bandits shot and killed Russell Campbell, aged 25, a citizen of Melbourne Village, 25 miles from here as he attempted to prevent them from robbing the home bank in that village. The hold up and murder was committed while Manager McCandless and two young women were in the bank. The bandits drove up to the bank in a large touring car and in real western fashion swept into the village bank with their guns ready for action. Campbell attempted to grapple with one of the men. He was shot by the companion of the robber, dying in a few minutes from a bullet wound in the abdomen. Other villagers were soon on the scene and managed to capture three of the robbers who are being brought to London Jail.

More Cures in Charlottetown

Charlottetown, April 5, 1921. Dear Sir.—I feel sure that the Farador is the best remedy in existence, for on many occasions it has been used in my home with splendid results. Last December three of my children were sick with measles and the Farador restored them to health within a week. On previous occasions when they had pneumonia, the Farador did grand work, controlling the fever and effecting speedy cures. It also cured my daughter of heart trouble, causing the pain and fluttering to cease and did much to build up her health. I had a very sore leg for a long time. The Farador gave the first relief. It quickly reduced the swelling, making a complete cure of it in fifteen days. For these reasons I always recommend the Farador to any who need health.

Mother's Way

Of within our little cottage, As the shadows gently fall, While the sunlight touches softly, One sweet face upon the wall, Do we gather close together, And in hushed and tender tone Ask each other's full forgiveness For the wrong that each hath done.

Should you wonder why this custom At the ending of the day, Eye and voice would answer; "It was once our mother's way."

If our love be bright and cheery, If it holds a welcome true, Opening wide its door of greeting To the many—not the few; If we share our Father's bounty With the needy day by day, 'Tis because our hearts remember This was ever mother's way.

Sometimes when our hands grow weary When our burdens look too heavy, And we deem the right all wrong; Then we gain a new fresh courage, And we rise to proudly say: "Let us do our duty bravely— This was our dear mother's way."

Thus we keep her memory precious, While we never cease to pray, That at last, when lengthening shadows Mark the evening of our day, They may find us waiting calmly To go home our mother's way. —Rev. A. J. Ryan.

In Peril

Continued.

Well, a scene between the friends was inevitable. One afternoon in late November, Davis was seated at his desk, musing over this strange something that possessed his friend. A knock aroused him, and Naughton entered. Davis arose with a merry welcome. The peculiar hunted expression on his friend's face checked the words of reproach that naturally sprang to Davis' lips. He knew a struggle was waging within the citadel of his friend's soul, and he desired to learn its full import. Davis' eyes searched Naughton's countenance. Finally he spoke.

"You have something on your mind, Frank. What is it?" Naughton laughed in a nervous jerky manner.

"Don't you know? You were always good at reading my thoughts," he said. He was silent for a minute then turned upon his friend in a burst of spirit.

"Ah! I am disgusted with books, religion and everything. Boah, it all seems like humbug. My soul aches and I am going to take my fun where I find it."

He paused for a moment, but his friend deigned no answer.

"But something material is bothering me now. I need money, and my good, dear father refused to give me more than my allowance. But I'll get it from some one else or from him in some way."

He bit off these words and hurled them savagely from his lips. His brow furrowed and a dark scowl overspread his face.

"Don't resort to any low means to obtain your end," Davis said. "Has our friendship fallen to naught that you will not seek my aid?"

Naughton caught his friend by the shoulders and their eyes met. "Chester, you are always my good angel, and you have the mind of an angel; for my thoughts are as an open book to you, and you can even detect the scars on my soul. Will you lend me the money?"

Their hands met in a knowing grasp. "You know I will, Frank. But tell me, why not drop that crowd of rotters?"

"Don't Chet. I hate preaching. Oh, what difference does it make? I'm sick of the milk of life; I am going to see and taste something stronger."

A pained expression crossed Davis' face. Naughton arose and clutched his friend's arm. "Forgive me, Chester. Before his friend could respond, he hurried from the room."

"The money he had received from his friend put Naughton in gay spirits and for a week Davis lost sight of him, except during class hour. Chester knew the course Frank was running, but he could do nothing to stop him."

Aching Joints

In the fingers, toes, arms, and other parts of the body, are joints that are inflamed and swollen by rheumatism—that acid condition of the blood which affects the muscles also.

Sufferers dread to move, especially after sitting or lying long, and their condition is commonly worse in wet weather.

"I suffered dreadfully from rheumatism but have been completely cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, for which I am deeply grateful." Mrs. JACQUES SMITH, Trenton, Ont.

"I had an attack of the grip which left me weak and helpless and suffering from rheumatism. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and this medicine has entirely cured me. I have no hesitation in saying it saved my life." M. J. McDONALD, Trenton, Ont.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Removes the cause of rheumatism—no outward application can. Take it.

Friday evening came and Naughton with a band of gay spirits went to the city bent upon pleasure. That day Davis had not attended classes, he was confined to his bed with chills and fever. Of course he was unaware of his friend's movements.

The lively crowd sallied to the city and sought a quiet cafe, where they could eat and drink to their hearts' content. Frank Naughton was the liveliest of them all, and he drank with the happy abandon of a bacchanal.

In the midst of the gaiety and song some one suggested a trip to a place nearby, whose reputation cried out against it. The party assented with shouts of tipy joy. Not so Naughton. The very mention of that name froze the blood in his veins, and a thousand hideous pictures warped his imagination. His boon companions noticed his sudden change and heaped their sneering remarks upon him. He tried to struggle to his feet, but the liquor had deadened his muscles, and he sank back into the chair with a low moan. A shout of exultation went up from the others upon whom the drink had taken less effect.

"We will carry him. He can't resist, for he is a jolly good fellow, they cried."

The hideousness of their dire intent slowly filtered through his brain. His head fell on the table and the world seemed to be sinking from beneath him. He had sunk low enough, but they would drag him lower. He had a faint realization of his powerless condition for he was in the clutch of drink, and almost within the fingers of passion. Three pictures flashed before his mind, his mother's face, his little sister's and the countenance of Chester Davis.

"If Chester were only near him, all would be well. In his anguish he whispered a prayer to his angel guardian, and his very soul cried out for the strong, guiding hand of his friend. A glass of liquor was pushed towards him, but he refused to touch it. His companions surrounded him, bent upon this new sport of forcing him to drink."

As the afternoon drew into evening, Chester Davis grew restless and quit his bed. A variety of thoughts harassed him. Naughton's words came back to him with telling force and his friend's face constantly flashed before his eyes. He could not account for it. Unable to bear the strain any longer, he went down the hall to Frank's room and knocked. There was no response, so he pushed open the door. The place was empty.

Chester went back to his room troubled and unsatisfied. Where is Naughton? he asked himself; and something seemed to say to him; he is in trouble, and needs your help. He could not drive this from his mind, and his own name 'Davis, Davis,' rattled against his poor tired brain insistently.

Davis arose from his chair and muttered 'If this does not cease I'll go mad.' Flinging up the window, he plunged his feverish face into the cool night air, as eagerly as a sun-scorched traveller dips his brow into a cooling stream. A shower of sleet drove against him, and he hastily withdrew, closing the window. His mind had formed a plan; he would seek Frank. But where? And the answer came—in the gilded cafes he had learned to love.

Davis hurried into his coat and hat, and went out into the howling wind and cutting sleet. His head pounded fiercely and his body shook with intermittent fever. He swung on a car and in ten minutes alighted at South Square. Instinctively he turned into Fay street and entered Lee's Cafe.

A scene met his eyes that will linger forever in his memory. Frank Naughton, leaning heavily against a table, was fighting off his crowd of tormentors. A faint stream of blood trickled down his face, and his left hand, held before him in defence, was cut and bleeding. In a dash Davis was beside him, scattering the revellers to right and left. He flung his arm around his friend and before the stupefied men could realize the situation, he hurried Frank into the street. They took a cab and drove into the night.

WHOOPIING COUGH Her 3 Children Had It.

This disease begins like a simple cold in the head that rapidly goes to the chest. The cough is at first short and sharp, but gradually increases in severity and occurs in sudden spasms.

Often vomiting follows a severe attack of coughing, and sometimes there is no blood.

Mothers should never neglect the treatment of whooping cough as it is much more serious than most people think, as it may be followed by some grave lung trouble, such as bronchitis, pneumonia or consumption, since the sufferers power of resistance are often greatly weakened by the violent and exhausting cough.

On the first sign of a "whoop," Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup should be administered as it helps to clear the bronchial tubes of the collected mucous and phlegm.

Mrs. Burton Leopold, New Ross, N.S., writes:—"My three children had the whooping cough so bad last winter, I thought they would choke. I tried many different remedies, but none of them seemed to help. At last I got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and I was greatly surprised to see how quickly it helped them. I shall always recommend your wonderful remedy to others."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is 25c. and 50c. a bottle at all druggists and dealers. Put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
