EVENING TELEGRAM FASHION PLATES.

The Home Dressmaker should keep a Catalogue Scrap Book of our Pattern Cuts. These will be found very useful to refer to from time to time.

8720.
A Practical Apron.
A serviceable work apron such as the one here shown, not only protects the entire dress, but is very becoming as well. It may be made with very little difficulty, and the ease with which it may be slipped on and off is a feature that will recommend it at once to the busy housewife. The bib is cut circular and slips on easily over the head requiring no pins or buttons to hold it in place. A generous size pocket is a useful addition that will be appreciated by the wearer. Such a garment as this could be successfully made from linen, gingham, madras and percale. The medium size will require 3 1/2 yards of 36 inch material for the making. Sizes for small, medium and large.
A pattern of this illustration will be mailed to any address upon receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

8804. A Practical Model showing New and Attractive Ideas.

This comfortable model has several excellent features, but its strong-point is the centre back closing that extends to the lower edge of the skirt, and is a great saving of trouble in laundering. The waist may be finished with a standing collar, or with the sailor collar. Deep shoulder plaits give breadth and lend fullness to the design. The skirt may be plaited or gathered. The design is adapted for woolen materials, and also for gingham, chambrays, percale or repp. The pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 6, 8, 10, 12, 14 years. It requires 4-5-8 yards of 24 inch material for the 8 year size.
A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RIVER CAMERON

If the government ever feels that it would like a mother and daughter to act as spies in its secret service department, I can recommend two women who are qualified for the position by a long course of home training.

I don't know that there is an examination for spies, but if there is, the fine tooth comb inspection of the neighbourhood which these two women carry on daily from their living room window, certainly ought to make them able to pass with flying colors.

I made a call at their home the other day and this is a sample of the conversation.

Please punctuate scantily with a few general remarks and liberally with sauciness at the window.

"Oh, mother, look out the window quick and see if you think that's a new coat Ruth Blakely has on or her old caracul trimmed up with lynx."

"Lucy, do you know who that mar going by with Madge Holbrook is? Is he the one she went to the theatre with Wednesday? No, that one was light haired. This must be another one. My dear, this is the fifth man we have seen that girl with since she got back from her vacation. I think it's positively scandalous. I don't see why her mother doesn't forbid her to make such a show of herself."

"There goes Mrs. Norton off to her 'New Thought' lecture. Yes, she goes every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and stays so late that her husband often has to get his own supper."

"If that isn't the Holbrook's maid starting out all dressed up. It isn't her afternoon off either. I don't see how Mrs. Holbrook can let her gad so. Why, she had two afternoons and two evenings last week. Mrs. Holbrook spoils her terribly."

"My dear, do you know who that girl is going down the other side of the street with the brown corduroy suit on. She came out of the Blakeley's I think. She is one I never saw before."

Pause, while the two ladies stare the luckless stranger out of sight, taking in every detail of her costume. I am sure if you should call and ask them to-day, they could tell you whether she wore button boots or laced and just how much the plumes on her hat cost and whether her puffs were really her own or 'made in Germany'."

"There's the doctor's automobile at Mrs. Rice's. My dear, that's the fifth time this week and yet Mrs. Rice isn't even sick ahead. I always used to like her, but I certainly don't think this looks well. The doctor is such a fascinating man and Mr. Rice is away so much. Really, someone ought to warn him. You don't believe Mrs. Rice could do anything wrong? Oh, my dear, you haven't seen as much of the world as I have."

No, I haven't, thank goodness, and I trust I never shall. At least not the way she sees it."

I happened to visit elsewhere in that neighbourhood and I know how the people who live within eyeshot of that argus-eyed widow, actually skulk out of their back doors sometimes to avoid its scrutiny."

I know how they even plan their goings and comings so that 'Mrs. M' and Lucy won't see me and try to find out what I'm doing."

Not because they are doing anything wrong, but merely because they resent this perpetual spying."

I think these people are foolish. In allowing themselves to be disturbed by the two spy women's littleness of mind, they place themselves almost on the same level.

I think they should good-naturedly ignore the scrutiny instead of actually letting it influence their actions.

But as for the spy-women themselves—well, I'm just sorry for them. Don't you think it must be terrible to have so few real interests, so few resources within yourselves that you are reduced to perpetually spying upon your neighbours for food for thought?

I do.

The Tenderfoot Farmer

It was one of these experimental farmers, who put green spectacles on his cow and fed her shavings. His theory was that it didn't matter what the cow ate so long as she was fed. The questions of digestion and nourishment had not entered into his calculations.

It's only a "tenderfoot" farmer that would try such an experiment with a cow. But many a farmer feeds him- self regardless of digestion and nutrition. He might almost as well eat shavings for all the good he gets out of his food. The result is that the stomach grows "weak," the action of the organs of digestion and nutrition are impaired and the man suffers the miseries of dyspepsia and the agonies of nervousness.

To strengthen the stomach, restore the activity of the organs of digestion and nutrition and brace up the nerves, use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is an un-failing remedy, and has the confidence of physicians as well as the praise of thousands healed by its use.

In the strictest sense "Golden Medical Discovery" is a temperance medicine. It contains neither narcotics nor poisons, and is as free from alcohol as from opium, cocaine and other dangerous drugs. All ingredients printed on its outside wrapper.

Don't let a dealer delude you for his own profit. There is no medicine for stomach, liver and blood "just as good" as "Golden Medical Discovery."

Fads and Fashions.

There is a call for rich gold braids, which will most likely find their position in the latest millinery or upon handsome evening garments for outer wear.

Many of the handsome laces are shown in sets, which include edgings, bands, founcings and allover, after the plan now prevalent in embroidery lines.

A pretty feature of a new costume is a wide white lace collar turning on to a velvet coat, edged with fur, with cuffs to match. It is extremely elegant.

Separate blouses of chiffon cloth, chiffon voile and nets are elaborated with embroideries of the porcelain beads. This effect is remarkably dainty.

For plain wear belts are of silk, elastic, satin ribbon, black, white, red, blue or tan patterned leather. White linen, pique and madras buckles are not large.

Brilliant cerise tones velled in contrasting and softening colors finish the color scheme for some charming if rather audacious dinner and theatre frocks.

Little black satin sandals, with white stockings, are the latest cry for evening costumes. More often the allupper for evening is of satin the color of the dress.

Many handsome ornaments are shown in certain braid lines. They are intended for closing and decorative purposes and are especially rich in design and effect.

Rich buttons for fur coats include medallion effects. Imitation gems, combinations of metals with such gems or stones and beautiful carved or scroll effects in various materials.

For afternoon cashmires in fine weaves is mounting to the top. Then to show how the pendulum swings in the opposite direction for tailored suits, the roughest weaves are used.

Corded silks are making a bid for favor in connection with handsome street suits, the fine cord apparently finding more than the Ottoman, although one sees the latter here and there.

It is interesting to note that the court train is to have considerable vogue in the winter gala dresses. Its revival is due doubtless to the prospective coronation ceremonies of England's new King.

MAGIC BAKING POWDER

Does not contain Alum

ALUM is put into inferior baking powders because it is cheap. You cannot detect it, because all baking powders look alike. Alum is a dangerous mineral acid condemned by food experts as unfit for use in any food preparation, because it works havoc with the stomach and digestive organs and causes certain harm to the entire system.

Your baking results will be the best with MAGIC and you have the certain knowledge that your bread, biscuits and pastry will be light, healthful and delicious. There is no substitute for MAGIC and it is a medium priced baking powder and the only well-known one made in Canada that does NOT contain alum.

A Scientist's Error.

It is said that when Sir William Siemens, the founder of the famous firm of engineers, arrived in London from Germany, poor and friendless, hoping to dispose of a patent for improved electroplating, his imperfect knowledge of English led him into committing a droll mistake. Seeing "undertaker" written over a shop door, the youth imagined that this name indicated a person who "undertook" enterprises and who, therefore, might be inclined to purchase or finance his invention. It was only after a long interview, equally perplexing to both parties, that the German inventor was referred by the funeral furnisher to Messrs. Elkington, to whom he finally sold his patent.—London Mail.

Northern Notes.

Twillingate Sun.
By last week's mail Rev. J. L. Brodie received a cheque for £40 sterling, being the amount of the legacy left by Mrs. Edmunds to St. Peter's Church, less death duties. The total legacy was £100. It is proposed to devote all or part of it to repairing the stiles of the tower of St. Peter's which are in a very bad condition.

A new school chapel is in course of erection in Frost's Cove, Norton's Hill, and will be a great credit to the Church of England people there when completed.

Mr. W. Roberts, son of Mr. Thos. Roberts, of Wild Cove, sustained serious injury by falling over the pier at Sleepy Cove. His head was seriously cut and he was rendered for a long time unconscious. Fears are entertained for his recovery.

The total output of this year at the Tilt Cove mines to date is 45,000 tons of ore, which have been exported.

"LIFE!"

Life is but to me a pleasure, thinking Of things which seem to be in easy reach; Planning for the future, though I'm sinking, I only wish that someone me would teach The way that I should make this life a pleasure— If ever waves of fortune on me smile, To enjoy the future happiness with leisure. The only thing that nature would beguile.

Life is just whatever way you make it, I think it over and it will remain; To travel on and never mind but take it, Which means 'till help you onward just the same.

All Red-Route Plans.

Proposed Railway Going to Carry Trains to Holyhead Pier.
London, Nov. 9.—At a meeting of Holyhead Town Council, the clerk stated the all-red route line that it proposed building a pier at Holyhead, all traffic for Canada to be carried as far as Galway, whence a railway would be built to Kingstown. It also contemplated the construction of a steamer large enough to convey a train from Dublin or Kingstown to the new Holyhead piers as to connect with the railway there.

WANTS HER LETTER PUBLISHED

For Benefit of Women who Suffer from Female Ills

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I was a great sufferer from female troubles which caused a weakness and broken down condition of the system. I read so much of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other suffering women I felt sure it would help me, and I must say it did help me wonderfully. My pains all left me, I grew stronger, and within three months I was a perfectly well woman."

"I want this letter made public to show the benefit women may derive from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. JOHN G. MOLDAN, 215 Second St., North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials like the above prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made exclusively from roots and herbs.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. She will treat your letters strictly confidential. For 20 years she has been helping sick women in this way, free of charge. Don't hesitate—write at once.

Forbidden to Marry.

Hungarian Princess Must Not Wed Her German Prince.
The Hungarian Princess Sulkowska, daughter of a Prince owning property worth near $8,000,000, has been forbidden by her official Hungarian guardians to wed her German fiance, Count von Schmettow, on the ground that the latter is a pauper, though his father's fortune amounts to $1,250,000. Prince Sulkowska's extravagance led to himself and his daughter becoming wards of the Court which manages property cases. Count Schmettow has exhausted his own portion of his patrimony, and receives no more until his father's death. Thus, two heirs of nearly ten millions between them haven't funds enough to start the simplest house-keeping, and the wedding, which was to be a big social event, has been stopped. However, big German bankers have arranged for the finances of the Count sufficiently for him to hope to overcome the Court's objections, and to enable the loving couple to unite.

An Exile's Life.

A Visit to the Former Russian Chief of Police in Siberia.

Two Germans who have been travelling in Siberia give the following account of the life of exile led by M. Lapoukhine, formerly Chief of Police in Russia.

For many years M. Lapoukhine was one of the most influential men in the Russian Empire, a favorite at court, the confidant of Cabinet Ministers and a favorite of St. Petersburg society. While at the height of his popularity he was suddenly exposed as a treacherous servant of the Czar, dismissed from the Government service and sentenced to life long banishment to Siberia.

It was alleged against him that he organized plots against the Czar in order that he as Chief of Police might have the glory of discovering them and saving his imperial master's life. He was also guilty of many other irregularities.

The two travellers found M. Lapoukhine living in Dantlovka, a small village some 500 miles from the railway station, which can only be reached by a carriage journey of seventeen days through a desolate region. The ex-police chief, who formerly occupied a palatial official residence in the Russian capital, now lives in a little log hut consisting of four rooms, badly lighted, insufficiently ventilated and too loosely built to afford adequate protection against the rigors of the Siberian winter.

The exile himself is now a broken down, feeble, unhappy man, a wreck of his former self. He has done his best to make one of his rooms resemble in some degree a study, and on the wall he has hung in large printed letters, "Thy Will Be Done." Nearly all the inhabitants of Dantlovka are political exiles, and M. Lapoukhine enjoys a privileged position among them by reason of the fact that the Governor of the province when making his occasional rounds shakes hands with him.

Big Brotherliness in New York.

One of the most helpful movements in the uplift of the bad boy in New York grew out of a discussion of conditions between Ernest K. Coulter and the Rev. Dr. W. Merle Smith, of the Central Presbyterian Church, and took form four years ago in the organization of the Big Brothers, some twenty young men connected with the church club agreeing to play that part for as many "little brothers" who had been paroled in the Children's Court. Today there are a thousand Big Brothers connected with a score of different churches in the city, and a like number of small boys who have been in trouble under their protection. The idea is not to give financial aid except in extreme cases, but to make the "little brother" understand that some one has a real sympathetic interest in him; and it is almost the universal experience among the young men who are taking part in the movement that, no matter how vicious a boy may be, once his confidence is obtained, he is as clay in the hands of the potter. The Big Brother finds out where the other lives and makes the acquaintance of the family, more often than not in a slum tenement; he intercedes for the boy with parents who are unnecessarily harsh; he asks permission to take the boy to a ball game or a theatre; he lends him the right kind of books and encourages him to study, and one evening of each week is set apart for athletic work, the Young Men's Christian Association allowing the use of the gymnasium for this purpose. Last summer the Big Brothers established a camp in the country where each of the "little brothers" spent a happy fortnight. A. H. Hoeckley, in Leslie's Weekly.

Across Africa.

Two Germans Will Motor From North to South.

Two energetic, young Germans, Lieutenant Schumde, of the Artillery Guards, and Dr. Ludwig Muller, a scientist, have planned another trans-African motor car expedition, which has received the August patronage of the Crown Prince. They will not travel from east to west, as Lieutenant Graetz did two years ago, but from north to south, along the projected line of the Cape-to-Cairo railway. Their object is to take measurements and to investigate the possibility of a regular motor car service in various regions adjacent to the line. In German East Africa they will undertake some special wireless telegraph experiments, besides engaging in scientific research all along the route. The young men will leave Naples in February, equipped with a powerful car, specially built for rough going and for camping purposes, with sleeping accommodation at the top.

The shore train arrived from Carbonara at 12.10 p.m. to-day bringing: Miss McCarty, Miss Butler, J. H. Dawson, Mr. Hicks, and J. Hamey, 55 second class.
