A WESTERN MEMORY.

A Poem in Pictures.

"While the golden orb sinks slowly,
Sinks slowly in the West;
I'll be waiting, waiting, waiting
For the one I love the best."

Beautiful in conception, theme and execution, this Idyll of the Western States is without question one of the finest subjects of its kind ever shown at the Nickel. The poetic nature of the picture is brought out touchingly amidst some of the most picturesque rugged setting of the West. Its human appeal can only be appreciated by seeing it.

The Little Cripple.
An interesting little story of modern incidents, which gives a considerable insight into the daily life of New York Institution, for injured children.

A powerful Drama of the Western Forests,
The Backwoodsman's Suspicion.

The tale of a great wrong.
This is a very vivid virile study of character. A capital film of its kind—full of action, life and dramatic interest—the sensational-adventurous. The dashing chase across country is most thrilling and gripping.

WHAT'S BRED IN THE BONE.

CHAPTER VI.

"Who is there?" I called coldly.
"Only I—Let me in, Miss Bernard!"

It was Sir Richard's voice that answered me!

"You—you!" I gasped, standing with my back against the door, as if the bars and bolts were not strong enough to keep him out. "What do you want? I can't let you in. Go away, go away!"

As my voice was husky with horror and fright, he fortunately did not hear me.

"Can't you undo the bolts?" he called out presently. "Go and fetch some of the servants, like a good girl. I've been here for the last ten minutes. What has happened to them all?"

I saw it was of no use, and two minutes later he was standing in the dim light of the hall lamp, and gazing down at me in amused astonishment.

"What does it mean? Where are they all? What are you doing with the child, Miss Bernard?"

"They are all—the servants—at the ball of the Beef Gras. When I heard the bell I thought you were a robber—a murderer; I was running down to the cellar to hide with the child!"

He burst out laughing, and, taking the sleepy burden from my arms, walked up the stairs to the salon, which was brightly lighted; in fact, I had lighted the gas in all the rooms and passages to keep up my spirits and courage. I followed him silently, cudgeeling my brains how to save her even now—how to keep him in the salon until she returned, and I could let her in quietly, smuggle her and the child to bed, before he found out anything.

"And so they are all at this Carnival ball? he said, turning to me with a frown. "Do you mean the men, too, Miss Bernard—Jacobs and William? They have left you and Lady Nesbitt unprotected like this, because I happen—"

"No, no," I interrupted eagerly—"they have not. Lady Nesbitt wished—gave them all leave to go out for a couple of hours. It was not their fault; and there was nothing to be afraid of—I don't know what came over me. Won't you sit down, Sir Richard? Let me stir the fire for you; the night has grown quite chilly, hasn't it? And now—with a ghastly attempt at sprightliness—'please account for your sudden change of plans, monsieur. Tell me what we owe the honor of your presence to-night?"

"I got my business all over yesterday, and there being nothing particular going on in town, I was thinking of whiling away the time by a run home, when, not receiving a letter from my wife this morning, I became a little anxious, and so made up my mind to return and escort her home myself, as I had originally intended. She was looking far from well the day I left—did you notice, Miss Bernard?—so heavy and listless, quite unlike herself."

Your anxiety was needless. Lady Nesbitt grew better after you left; in fact, became—became quite herself again; I floundered on wildly. "She went out for a drive with Madame Des Trous on Sunday and seemed to enjoy the Carnival greatly. Certainly it was tell me all the servants were out at the ball? Did not Louise go too?

It was only making matters worse, but something urged me on; I could not stop myself.

Louise? N—no; she did not go.

He laid his hand upon my shoulder and drew me toward the light.

What is the matter with you, lead? You do not seem yourself tonight, somehow. Has the Carnival upset that sober little mind of yours, Marie?

It was the first time I had ever heard him call me by my Christian name, though his wife had fallen into the habit during the first month of our confidential friendship.

"I—I don't know whether it has or hasn't," I answered, withdrawing nervously from the touch of his hand, the meanness and almost ingratitude.

I—I suppose I am a little upset, excited, like every one else. Why shouldn't I be? Then, when your coming in like that, when nobody expected you, Sir Richard, and ringing so suddenly, put all sorts of foolishness into my head."

You are tired out. Go to bed, go to bed, Miss Bernard. I'll apologize to you for my transgressions to-morrow."

I'm not tired; I don't want to go to bed. I'm too restless to sleep; I returned eagerly, laying my hand upon his arm to lead him back to the salon. "And—and the proof is I was going to ask you to sit up with me for half an hour or so. I am so weary of my own company, I want some one to talk to me, to exercise the—ha, ha!—the demon of dissipation that you perceive has taken possession of me to-night."

Why Not be Well and Strong

When weak and run down DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD will help you back to health.

This letter tells of two women who have proven this.

Mrs. D. Stott, Cobourg, Ont. writes: "After recovering from typhoid fever I was left in a very low state of health, and I had to give up work. A friend of mine, Mrs. G. M. Brown, had used DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD and told me that it benefited her wonderfully. I took courage and began the use of the medicine. After taking the first box I began to feel an improvement in health and now after using four boxes I am completely well and feel like myself once more and believe that I can attribute the cure to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

Get a 25 Cent Bottle Now and Forever Stop Falling Hair, Itching Scalp and Dandruff

If you Wish to Double the Beauty of your Hair in Ten Minutes surely Try a Danderine Hair Cleanse

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, making sure it stands at a right angle. This will clean the hair of dandruff and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

A delightful surprise awaits particularly those who have been careless, whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

Try as you will, after one application of Danderine you cannot find any dandruff or a loose, or falling hair, and your scalp will never itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair sprouting all over the scalp. Danderine makes the hair strong, shiny and durable and you can prove it. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any druggist or toilet counter, and just try it.

Three Lose Their Lives

Ice Bridge at Niagara Falls Broke, Carrying with it Eldridge Stanton, His Wife and a Boy.

Niagara Falls, Feb. 4.—The great ice bridge that has choked the river channel between the cataract and the upper steel bridge below the falls for the last three weeks broke its anchorage just at noon to-day and went down the river, taking with it to their death a man and woman said to be Mr. and Mrs. Eldridge Stanton, of Toronto, and Burhill Heacock, 17 years old, of East 117 street, Cleveland, O. The bridge was considered perfectly safe. For weeks the great fields of ice had been coming down the river, piling up against the barrier until it was from 60 to 80 feet thick, and under the influence of zero weather the great mass had become firmly anchored to the shore. The jam was about 1,000 feet in length and in some places a quarter of a mile in breadth.

For two weeks it had offered safe passage to the hardy, and to-day an immense crowd of excursionists came to view the winter wonder of the river. Had the accident happened an hour later in the day hundreds would have lost their lives, for the crowd was moving down on Prospect Park in the elevators that run down to the cliff for the purpose of venturing out upon the ice.

On the bridge at the time it tore free from the shore, besides the three, were Munro Gilbert, of No. 1108 Grove Avenue, this city; Ignatius Roth, of No. 2114 Fulton Road, Cleveland; Heacock's companion; Wm. Hill, an old riverman, who had a shack on the ice; Wm. Labelond, a riverman, and an unidentified Italian. When Hill heard the grinding and crushing of the ice he ran towards the Canadian shore, calling to the others, to follow him; Labelond gave the warning that safety lay in that direction. Gilbert and the Italian followed their lead but the others became alarmed. By the time they regained their composure the bridge was moving fast down the river.

The man and woman started first towards the American shore, but they were stopped by a lane of open water. Back they ran towards the Canadian side, turned about and made for the American side. When hardly more

A BROKEN-DOWN SYSTEM. This is a condition (or disease) which few of these really know, and many names, which few of them really understand. It is simply weakness—a break-down system, of the body, and it is caused by its causes (for they are almost innumerable), symptoms are much the same; want of appetite, want of energy, depression of spirits and want of energy for all the ordinary affairs of life. It is a disease of the body, and it is not caused by increased vitality—vigor.

It is innocuous, and safe for all ages, and conditions, in either sex; and it is difficult to imagine a case of disease or derangement, which it does not benefit, and permanently benefit by this never-failing restorative essence, which it does not fail to do.

It is remarkable that what precedes it for this wide-spread and numerous class of human ailments.

was no more seen; he was swallowed up in the spume.

Heacock's failure was witnessed by the man on the other floe. The woman, apparently, dared not look. The man appeared calm as he in turn prepared to make a play against death, as caught by a down river current the floe moved into the course Heacock had gone. As the couple swung under the Cantilever bridge the man grasped a rope and tried to put it about the woman's waist. The force of the current was too much for the rope. It parted, and the man waved the torn end toward the crowd. There was still another chance, the rope that was dropped from the lower steel arch bridge by the Niagara Avenue firemen. As the floe went into the swift drift the man caught it and grimly hung on. He was given slack and he tried to wind it around the woman's waist. He fumbled in his agony of effort as if his hands were numb. The rush of ice in the stream was overpowering.

When he could not tie the rope around the woman he let it go. There apparently was no thought of himself. He raised the woman to her feet, kissed her and clasped her in his arms. The woman made a sign as if to cross herself, then sank to her knees. The man knelt beside her, his arms clasped close about her. So they went to their God. The ice held intact until it struck the great wave. There it was shivered, there the gallant man and the woman at his side disappeared from view.

Diamond Cutting

The Secret That Was Revealed to Berquem in a Dream.

The first cutting of a diamond was done four centuries ago. The ancients knew nothing of the hidden beauty of the stone called by Seneca "The sage whose impenetrability nothing can conquer." But even in the rough the diamond won the favor of the prince, and very gradually experiments revealed some of its fires. Until the fourteenth century enameled buttons were the chief articles of jewelry.

In the beginning of the fourteenth century, when the price of enamels fell so low as to bring the decorated buttons within the reach of all purposes, enameling lost the favor of the fine world and buttons of gold and silver ornamented with pearls, diamonds and colored stones took the place of the enamels. The finest of the stones then known was a diamond—a formless mass the size of a pigeon's egg.

"My father then took me thirty days to see a well-known doctor. He photographed the arm and hand. This photograph was sent to a New York hospital to the specialist; but they word they could do nothing further for me, and I was in despair.

"One day a friend asked me if I had tried Zam-Buk. I said I had not, but I got a box right away. That first box did me more good than all the medicine I had tried up to that time, so I continued the treatment. Every box healed the sores more and more until, to make a long story short, Zam-Buk healed all the sores completely. Everybody in this place knows of my case and that it is Zam-Buk alone which cured me."

Minister corroborates—The Rev. W. M. Parker, of Caledonia, Miss Doliver's minister, writes: "This is to certify that the testimonial of Miss Doliver is correct as far as my knowledge goes. I have known her for a year and a half, and her cure effected by Zam-Buk is remarkable."

Wherever there is ulceration, blood poison, sores, cold-cracks, abscesses, ulcers, burns, bruises, or any skin injury or disease, there Zam-Buk should be applied. It is also a sure cure for piles. All druggists and stores sell at 25c. per box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., St. John's, Nfld., for price. Use cheap and harmful imitations and substitutes.

The Village Blacksmith

Under a costly canopy

The village blacksmith sits;

Before him is a touring car

Broken to little bits—

And the owner, and the chauffeur, too,

Have almost lost their wits.

The village blacksmith smiles with glee

An he lights his fat cigar—

He tells his helpers what to do

To straighten up the car—

And the owner, and the chauffeur, too,

Stand humbly where they are.

The children going home from school,

Look in at the open door;

They like to see him make his bills

And hear the owners roar—

And the chauffeurs weep as they declare

They ne'er paid that before.

He goes each morning to the bank,

And salts away his cash;

A high silk hat and long frock coat

Help him to cut a dash—

But the owner, and the chauffeur, too,

Their teeth all vainly gnash.

"Three days after the first application the frozen flesh dropped off and the boy's foot began to improve and was saved."

Special to Evening Telegram. LONDON, Feb. 27.
An early settlement of the dispute in the coal trade is apparently more likely than not, but no date has been definitely announced. The Executive Committee of the Miners' Federation has agreed to meet representatives of the owners, with some members of the Government and Representatives of the Board of Trade. This series of discussions, with ministers in the effort to smooth away the rough places, is confidently regarded as foreshadowing the termination of what promised to be the greatest industrial struggle of modern times in this country. The clearing-up conference followed a conference between Premier Aspinwall and some of his colleagues, with members of the Executive Committee of the Miners' Federation, 160 of whom discussed the situation with the Premier for nearly two hours this afternoon. Mutual concessions will form the basis of the expected settlement of the dispute. Until a broad basis of agreement has been reached by the executive and committee and the coal-owners, nothing can be done to resume the notices to quit. For the reason, many thousands of miners, whose notices expired to-day, have laid down their tools.

Government Cattle Jobbing.

It may be remembered that last November we directed attention to the Government's venture in cattle jobbing. On the 18th of that month we had the following, among other matters:

The story runs that the Government in its magnanimity bought a number of heads of cattle in the Burin District. The cattle were brought to the Government farm in St. John's, and a sale was determined on. Instead of proceeding in the usual way and engaging an auctioneer, and advertising the sale in the newspapers, so that farmers and all other persons interested in cattle would know of it, a quiet and less public procedure was decided on.

In the House of Assembly yesterday, Mr. Gear was supplied with some details in reference to this transaction. Twenty-five head were bought by the Government at the Burin exhibition at a total cost of $1,022.50. It cost $100 to transport them to St. John's. Some butchers were invited to the Government farm to buy them. Seven of them accepted the invitation and purchased the cattle at a total cost of $660.50. The Government lost on the deal $467, and the Premier declared in the House of Assembly a few days ago that the loss was a mere bagatelle. The remark was characteristic of the wanton way in which useless expenditure is made by the present Government.

Government Sanitoria.

In the House of Assembly yesterday Sir Edward Morris, the Premier, moved the House of Assembly into a Committee of the Whole to consider certain resolutions in regard to the subject of the Prevention and Treatment of Tuberculosis. These resolutions were in short as follows:

1. It shall be lawful for the Governor in Council, out of moneys which may be appropriated by the Legislature for such purposes, to construct, equip, manage and operate hospitals, sanatoria or dispensaries for the treatment of inhabitants of this Colony suffering from tuberculosis, and may accept, take over, manage, operate and control any hospitals, sanatoria or dispensaries which may be erected by any person or corporation in this Colony.

2. Regarding Notification.

3. Regarding disinfection of bedding, clothing and other infected articles.

4. Regarding Committee of Management.

5. Providing that no loss of franchise shall ensue from use of facilities.

5. Regarding appointments of Medical Superintendents, nurses and other attendants.

6. Empowering the Governor in Council to make rules to prevent the spread of tuberculosis.

7. Regarding disinfection of chamber occupied by consumptive.

8. Regarding Medical Officers duties in regard to disinfection of such chambers.

9. That any person violating any of the provisions herein contained shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars, to be recovered in a summary manner upon complaint before a Stipendiary Magistrate.

10. That a Bill be introduced to give effect to the foregoing Resolutions.

The "Irish Night" will be held on the 18th March, and a dance will be given at Easter, while a sale of work will be held in November next. Rev. Dr. O'Callaghan will lecture during the present Lenten season in aid of the Association funds. A deal of business was done before the meeting adjourned.

"Catholic" and "Citizen."

Editor, Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—I cannot help saying, that the letter signed "Citizen" is the best, the very best, commercial exposition of what spirituality should be, that has ever been written, but as "My Kingdom is not of this World" (John xviii, 36) It cannot be accepted as a serious treatise dealing with Eternal Salvation.

Probably it is not intended this way, rather is it fashioned on the very pleasant scheme of the many salaried making—monetary—scriptural—social—social-distinction, reprobate—qualifying, missionary expeditions. As Egypt, Greece, even Rome—mind you—were once wealthy, strong, and pagan nations—mind you again—persecuted weak and that fashionably despised penurious Christians, it follows, I suppose, that paganism was the voice of Jehovah? And, further, that the lowly and meek Nazarene suffered death on the Cross because he was not a potentate governing nations, armies and commerce. Maybe that is why he suffered the martyrs of the catacombs to suffer, because their task-masters were heathens and believed in "private judgment" or because they could too easily go through the eye of an needle—camel like.

Was the Protestantism of Holland true in the seventeenth century when she did the carrying trade of Europe and false now in the period of her decline? Was the Catholic Church true when Spain ruled the world at the beginning of the sixteenth century, and false now when she is a mere European cypher? Was the Catholic Church true when Henry VIII acknowledged the supremacy of the Pope, and the same doctrines false now to the belief of his Royal descendant?

Is the soul of the millionaire secured to grace by letters patent, and he who shovels the muck ticketed "be gone ye into everlasting fire"? May be this is all truly so, but as I cannot find any scriptural proofs for believing it to be so, I should like "Citizen" to tell me where he finds them.

George Washington has become immortalized in the annals of this country as the first white male child in America who refused to lie in order to save his face and other portions of his anatomy.

George's father was a stern man, and when he saw what George had done, he called him into the parlor bedroom for a brief season of pious meditation.

Resting one arm with careless grace on the family Bible and slowly shaking the folds out of a blacksnake whip with the other, Mr. Washington invited George to come across.

After ascertaining that the two bricks which he had thoughtfully deposited in the rear apartment of his trousers were still in place, George did so, and leaped into fame at one bound.

History relates that he also executed a few leaps before getting out of the room.

George's father came of pious ancestry and never whipped any of his slaves unless they voted a split-ticket.

The Washington family lived in a back-plastered residence which is kept in a fine state of preservation by two-bit offerings from tourists who look at George's hatchet and weep.

The house was warmed by open fireplaces which filled the room with cheer and cottonwood smoke, and is re-shingled every few years at the expense of a grateful people.

George was a good boy in school and never punctured the teacher with a moist paper wad unless her back was turned.

After graduating he took up surveying being the only surveyor in Virginia who could run a fine fence without instigating bloodshed and several jury trials.

Health permitting, we shall speak to-morrow of George's career as a soldier and statesman, a career which makes T. Roosevelt's look about as bloodthirsty as Godey's Lady's Book.

Sir Robert Bond

On the Tuberculosis Resolutions
Yesterday in the House of Assembly.

Right Hon. Sir Robert Bond said any previous Government in reference that these Resolutions which had to the spread of tuberculosis. He just been put into the hands of hon. members were exceedingly important, but he had not had an opportunity of reading them over. He had been so intent on listening to his learned friend, the leader of the Government, that he had not ventured to direct his attention to the perusal of the Resolutions themselves. He hoped, however, that before the leader of the House passed the measure, the members of the House would be afforded an opportunity of giving these Resolutions the attention they deserved. They were introduced by the Premier in a dispassionate manner, for which he (Sir Robert) congratulated the Premier. It would be impossible for the most captious critic to offer any objection whatever to the manner in which his learned friend had dealt with this important subject. He (Sir Robert) would, however, with the permission of the Committee, Venture to Criticize One or Two of the Statements Made by the Premier.

The observations which he (the Premier) had made this afternoon were calculated to give the impression that nothing whatever had been done by of New York, President of the Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis. Some 2,000 or 3,000 copies of this excellent publication were placed in the hands of the clergy, teachers and principal inhabitants of the various outports of the country.

So That It Could Not be Said With Accuracy the late Government had not Made This Matter One of Study or Action, But on the Contrary, Something Was Done.

Then after that Hon. John Harvey took up the matter in a manner most commendable, with a good deal of energy, a vast amount of patience, and associated with him certain gentlemen, who proceeded on the same lines, viz., the distribution of literature especially prepared, dealing with the subject and distributed amongst the people, and supplementing that by hygienic instruction by doctors specially called in to lecture, and by retaining the services of nurses in various places in the outports. That excellent work was done by the A. P. C. Society, of which Hon. Mr. Harvey is the President. The next move in the matter was a notification from the present Government through the lips of His Excellency the Governor on the opening day of the present Parliament, which (Sir Robert) had the honour of leading.

Called Upon Dr. Tait, an Excellent Authority on the Disease,

To prepare a pamphlet on the subject, and this was distributed amongst the clergy, the school teachers and leading people of the outports and amongst the intelligence of the country. Some 3,000 were printed for the Public Health Commission and the distribution of literature especially prepared, dealing with the subject and distributed amongst the people, and supplementing that by hygienic instruction by doctors specially called in to lecture, and by retaining the services of nurses in various places in the outports. That excellent work was done by the A. P. C. Society, of which Hon. Mr. Harvey is the President. That It Was the Duty of the State to Take Hold of This Matter

She was taken by her husband to Dr. Allibone, of London, put under his treatment, and in a few brief months was restored to perfect health. One of the world's most celebrated men in medicine was thus deceived in these three tests which he (Sir Robert) had referred to. If he could err in them, what value could be placed on the diagnosis of teachers or clergymen in outports? Two-thirds of those returns sent from outports were certified by those whose evidence would not be taken in a court of law as worthy of credence, and yet they were asked to depend upon the reports submitted by people who were incompetent from lack of training and information on tuberculosis. They could not therefore place implicit reliance on the statistics furnished by the Registrar; because they were given by those incompetent to pronounce an opinion on the matter. Premier Morris had said that the greatest reliance should be placed on the reports of the Commissioners. Taking him at his own estimate of the value to be placed on these reports, Sir Robert found that those very gentlemen to whom attention had been drawn

Had Declared That They Could Not Advise the Erection of Sanatoria Throughout the Island.

They averred that statistics from the outports were not as they might be. They also said the city was the hotbed of consumption. They emphasized this, and if he (Sir Robert) read correctly between the lines, they were not slow in recognizing the fact that out of the city may proceed that pollution which caused such a deadly disease as tuberculosis. Would it not be better to confine their efforts to the city at the present moment—to go to the fountain head first and deal with that? Was it not possible that from the filth, dust and dirt, the lack of sanitation in the city, they might have spread all over the Colony that disease which they so greatly dreaded? Was not our outport life an ideal life for health and vigor if they gave the people proper food, clothes and houses to live in? Was it not true that outports were the ideal places to live in, swept as they were by the breezes from the ocean?

And Bringing Down Upon Them the Ozone from God's Heaven.

With the best expert we can command, and leave him to determine as to that which is best in the premises. There was a conflict of ideas in the suggestions. If their course was to make provision for procuring an expert, and that nothing can be said or done till his advice is had, then were they not going too fast in asking the Committee to resolve on 17 Sanatoria. However, they were the Government, the responsible people, and if it appeared well to them that an expert was to be secured at any cost, then why did they ask the House to pass Resolutions approving of 17 Sanatoria in this Island?

One Thing Conflicted With the Other.

They were anticipating what this learned man might say. He might be totally opposed to the erection of Sanatoria over the country, and did, not the Government know that some of the leading lights on this question were entirely opposed to Sanatoria.

Sir Wm. MacGregor was quoted as an authority on the question of tuberculosis.

He was quoted by the Premier on Constitutional Law, and he (Sir Robert) feared that his Constitutional Law was very much like the Premier's, not of much value.

Sir William was quoted as an authority on tuberculosis.

Admitting then that he was what he was what did he say? He said in his reports in one place that he would warn them against the bare idea of establishing sanatoria in this country.

He, Sir Robert, gathered from the Premier's remarks that his action in this matter is based upon what he termed "vital statistics." These were as he (Sir Robert) had pointed out the other day unreliable as they were compiled from information advanced by persons not Qualified to Give an Opinion on the Subject.

No disease was more deceptive than this. It required the most minute diagnosis. Those who furnished the statistics could not be capable of diagnosing consumption. Sir Robert gave an interesting description of the three methods of diagnosing the disease and ridiculed the idea of the compilers of information being able to apply them. But even with these tests, Sir Robert continued, the most eminent physician may err. In the year 1902 a most interesting correspondence took place in the London Times by Sir Wm. Broadbent and Colonel La Poer Trench, the former famed the world over and President of the Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis. He had diagnosed the case of Mrs. Trench, wife of the Colonel, which it was stated the Government doing everything in its power to stamp out consumption if it existed to any alarming extent in our midst. The question was as to the means, that should be adopted to accomplish that end. The Premier contended in the Resolutions before the Committee that that should be done by the introduction of seventeen Sanatoria throughout the country, and almost in the same breath, he had said that we should dreaded? Was not our outport life an ideal life for health and vigor if they gave the people proper food, clothes and houses to live in? Was it not true that outports were the ideal places to live in, swept as they were by the breezes from the ocean?

And Bringing Down Upon Them the Ozone from God's Heaven.

Here in the city we mortals were filled with villainous odors that arose from the gutters and streets. Not so in the outports. Might not the conduct of the sealfishery have something to do with it? Some years ago he (Sir Robert) introduced a Bill in reference to the overcrowding of sealing steamers, where men breathed an awful atmosphere, packed as they were like sardines in a box, all calculated to undermine their health and transmit disease to their progeny, and begetting a race not like the men of old times when sealing vessels went from outports, but an inferior race by reason of physical degeneration. Was not that another aspect of the question as to the propriety of permitting 300, 400 or 500 men, except under special regulations, to crowd together in these steamers? He contended recently that if they came to their conclusions and based them upon the experience of other countries.

Dear Sirs.—Nearly one year ago I had my first order of Mathieu's Syrup from you. It was not long in getting to me, and gave satisfaction to several families whom I know would like it. After a few weeks I began to have a call for it, and trade has increased wonderfully since. I have not the least doubt but that it will soon be the best selling remedy for coughs, colds, etc., on the market. In my store here sales are good and our people ask for it. Several stores in this country now keep stock and report sales increasing. I have been doing so since August 16th, 1907, 4 Gross and have only three dozen on hand at this date and which I am holding for retail trade in my store. Yours truly,

The Evening Chit-Chat

By MARY CAMERON

One of the prettiest touches I have ever seen in a guest room was in a new bride's home. In the folds of the big puff on her guest bed were tucked a dainty pair of negligee slippers. This little personal touch seemed to treble the charm of the whole room.

In another home, the house mother always keeps a few books and magazines on a little reading table by the guest's bed.

In still another home, if the guest be a close friend or relative, and is away any length of time, the hostess makes a point of hunting up all the pictures she possesses of her guest's family and friends, and putting them on the visitor's table.

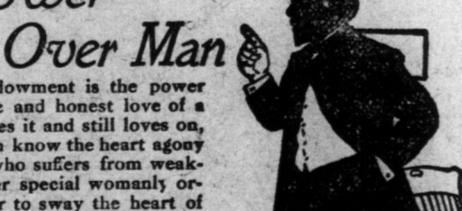

Surely, any young couple who have found themselves liberally provided with French clocks and cut glass dishes for every possible article of food, but without a hammer and screw driver with which to uncrate their goods and put down their carpets will appreciate the value of such a gift.

Indeed the lack of household tools is not confined to newly married folks. I know one couple who have been married six years and yet do not own a screw driver and have to borrow one when need of that article arises.

By the way, we have had liner showers, kitchen showers, stocking showers, bag showers and many other varieties which I can't recall just now. But I never did hear of a tool shower. Now why wouldn't that be an interesting and novel function for the girl who likes to do original things to give her engaged friend?

Woman's Power Over Man

Woman's most glorious endowment is the power to weep and hold the pure and honest love of a worthy man. When she loses it and still loves on, no one in the wide world can know the heart agony she endures. The woman who suffers from weakness and derangement of her special womanly organism soon loses the power to sway the heart of a man. Her general health suffers and she loses her good looks and attractiveness, her spirituality and her power and prestige as a woman. Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N.Y., with the assistance of his staff of able physicians, has prescribed for and cured many thousands of women. He has devised a successful remedy for woman's ailments. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive specific for the weaknesses and disorders peculiar to women. It purifies, regenerates, strengthens and heals. Medicine dealers sell it. No honest dealer will advise you to accept a substitute in order to make a little larger profit.

The Mother Was Arrested

Mrs. McCarron Charged With Killing Her Six Weeks Old Girl Baby—She Confessed to the Crime and Was Reprieved Until Next Monday.—The Belief Is That the Defendant Was Not Responsible for Her Act. At Halifax, on Feb. 3rd, a report was made to the Chief of Police Rudland that the young child of Mr. and Mrs. James McCarron had mysteriously disappeared from its cradle at their home 38 Gerrish Street, and although Detectives Frank Hanrahan and Horace Kennedy did all in their power to solve the mystery, they did not succeed until yesterday afternoon, when Mrs. Ada McCarron broke down and confessed that she had murdered her child by putting it into a stove and burning it alive.

When the detectives visited the home of the McCarrons on the afternoon of February 3, Mrs. McCarron told them that the child must have been stolen from the cradle, which was in the kitchen, while she was in the next room at household work. She stated that she had not heard any noise and that she had not an enemy in the world who would take her baby, which was about six weeks old, having been born on December 17. The story seemed to be a straight one, yet no possible reason could be given why any person would desire to take and conceal the child. The detectives had no evidence by which they could contradict her. Notwithstanding this they had suspicions that the mother knew more than she let on. She appeared to be very unconcerned and this caused the detectives to search the premises. They tore boards from the floor, searched the stove and made other investigations, but without avail.

Although the officers would not say much about the case, yet they were persistently at work on it, and paid almost daily visits to the Gerrish Street house to question the mother of the missing babe. She stuck to the same story that she had told the day the child was first missed, despite the awful strain she must have been under.

No person was seen to enter or leave the house on the day in question, and Mrs. McCarron had not gone out. On Monday Detective Hanrahan paid another visit, and for a couple of hours talked to her about the mysterious occurrence. She did not waver, and when the detective asked her whether she would call at his office at the station, she replied in the affirmative. True to her promise she kept the appointment and visited the detective. They again began a conversation about the missing babe, and about an hour later the woman finally broke down and told in detail the awful story as to what she did with her youngest child.

With tears streaming from her eyes and nerves unstrung, Mrs. McCarron broke down under the sharp questioning of the detective, and she is now held a prisoner at the police station on a charge of murder.

Soon after her husband had left for work in the morning, she kindled a fire in the hot blast stove in one of the rooms, and when the fire was at its height she rushed to the cradle seized the helpless infant, threw it into the flames and closed the door of the stove. The child uttered a couple of piercing screams and then it was soon all over.

After the body had been consumed and the fire cooled down, Mrs. McCarron removed the ashes and the small fragments of bone and deposited them in a barrel in the yard. She cleared everything up so completely that there was no evidence that a terrible crime had been committed.

When the detective searched the house the stove was cold, and there were no indications that it had been in use during the day.

What the woman's motive was for murdering her child is not known. Pressed by Detective Hanrahan for a motive, the accused said she could not tell why she had done it. She was suddenly seized, she said with a "bad turn," and before she realized it she had taken the baby and put it in the stove.

After Mrs. McCarron had been locked up her husband was notified, and when he heard of the confession he was overcome.

Detective Hanrahan had found some small bones in the ashes in the yard on the day that the child was murdered, and these were shown to the physician, who said that they were the bones of a rabbit.

The work of the detectives on this case is deserving of the highest praise. There was no clue to be upon, and the only way of solving the mystery was to get the story from the mother. The task was not accomplished without considerable patience and effort.

The little girl was a big child for its age, weighing nearly twenty pounds. There are two other children in the family, a boy of seven and a little girl aged two.

Mrs. Ada McCarron was arraigned in the police court subsequently before Stipendiary Fielding. She appeared to be very affected, and the general impression was that she was not responsible for her act. She gave her age as 28 years. She was charged on the information of Frank Hanrahan, "who saith that Ada McCarron, of Halifax, married woman, did in Halifax, on Feb. 3, 1912, murder one Olympia Mildred McCarron, as this defendant verily believes, and has good cause for believing, said Mrs. McCarron having admitted to this defendant that she did murder the said Olympia Mildred McCarron."

No evidence was given and the accused was remanded.

Gone to the Wall And Through It!

To meet the demands of our rapidly increasing business we are compelled to make extensive alterations to our store. To enable us to do this without inconveniencing our customers, we have decided to close our Store for 14 days.

When we have completed these alterations our Store will be second to none in the city. This will enable us to stock a larger range of Up-To-Date Gents' Furnishings, which up to the present we were unable to do, through lack of space.

We thank our numerous patrons for the excellent support they have given us since we started the K. & A. STORE, and hope that when we re-open that Bright little Store on the Corner, it will be just as popular as ever.

We remain, yours faithfully,

C. F. KEARNEY,
J. M. ATKINSON.

NOT A BOILER FLUID, but a compound, having a base of 98 per cent. carbon, to be applied direct to the surface like paint. Absolutely stops CORROSIVE PITTINGS, and the adhesion of HARD SCALE in boilers. ZINC PLATES are not necessary in a boiler, the whole of the interior of which is covered by "APEXIOR."
