CHAPTER IX.

PAUL LAMBERT PROPOSES.

One morning, a couple of days before the party, his nurse being indisposed, Beth took little Philip for a walk upon the beach. She had always been very fond of the child, and often took him out or to her room for a romp, a treat young Philip appreciated greatly. She found a sheltered nook, where, in the shadow of some rocks, the child could dig in the sand without being burned by the sun, and she could read and watch him at the same time. Here, half an hour later, Paul Lambert, bearing an armful of ferns and wild roses, found her.

"Aha! so this sequestered spot is where you hide yourself, Miss Russell when you disappear so mysteriously from our midst," he observed with well-assumed surprise, but with a sly smile lurking in his fine eyes. "May I sit down and rest after my long tramp?"

"Certainly, Mr. Lambert. Make yourself comfortable, if you can. Perhaps that harder yonder will not be very much bolder than another," graciously responded Beth, indicating a rock some three yards distant.

The gentleman gave vent to a quiet laugh of amusement, as he tossed his floral treasures down beside her.

"Thank you; but since you have invited me to make myself comfortable, if I can, I'd prefer, if you don't mind, this corner of your rug," he replied audaciously, as he dropped almost at her feet upon the steamer rug she had spread down to protect her gown from the sand, and nodded smiling defiance at her, as he added: "I should feel as if I were making a formal drawing-room call perched upon that tall bowlder, and I am in a very social mood just at present."

Beth began to feel quite uncomfortable. For many months Mr. Lambert had persistently followed in her train, showing plainly enough what was the paramount object of his life, and she had often been hard pressed to prevent his making her a definite proposal of marriage. From a worldly point of view, an alliance with the Lambert family would have been regarded by society in general as most desirable for Beth, or any other aspiring young woman; and it certainly was a very flattering tribute to her personal attractions and moral worth that the gentleman was so persevering in his suit, regardless of the financial disaster that had recently overtaken her. But Beth did not want to marry Mr. Paul Lambert.

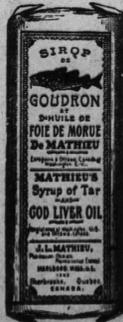

"Really, Miss Russell, this is very nice," he resumed, in a contented tone, as he allowed his glance to roam over the scene before him, "and you certainly possess the artistic temperament in a strong degree. The view from this little cove is absolutely idyllic. That graceful sweep of beach, with these towering rocks for a background; the blue sea, with its dainty white caps; and, across the bay, that beautiful pastoral scene, with its verdant fields, thrifty farms, and grazing cattle, to say nothing of this very attractive group right here in the foreground, all combine to

SUFFERED EVERYTHING

For Years, Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Canadian women are continually writing us such letters as the two following, which are heartfelt expressions of gratitude for restored health:

Glanford Station, Ont.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and never found any medicine to compare with it. I had ulcers and falling of womb and doctors did me no good. I suffered dreadfully for years until I began taking your medicine. I also recommend it for nervousness and indigestion."—Mrs. HENRY CLARK, Glanford Station, Ont.

Chesterville, Ont.—"I heard your medicines highly praised, and a year ago I began taking them for falling of womb and ovarian trouble. "My left side pained me all the time and just before my periods which were irregular and painful it would be worse. To sit down caused me pain and suffering and I would be so nervous sometimes that I could not bear to see any one or hear any one speak. Little specks would float before my eyes and I was always constipated."

"I cannot say too much for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, for there are no medicines like them. I have taken them and I recommend them to all women. You may publish this testimonial."—Mrs. STEPHEN J. MARTIN, Chesterville, Ontario, Canada.

make a picture which I would very much like to have reproduced by the brush of a skillful artist. Lady Beth you love beauty, don't you?"

She flushed rosily, more because of his tone than the fact that it was the first time he had ever ventured to address her as Lady Beth, although she was popularly so called among her close friends.

"Who doesn't?" she returned brightly, "though of course some are more keenly alive to the artistic than others. You, yourself, have just word-painted the scene very prettily, showing a most appreciative sense of nature's loveliness."

"Well, possibly," he said lightly, "and I think I might paint in a few more details that would appreciably add to it, and which constitutes its chief charm for me. You have no idea what a lure for the eye you yourself are in that white gown, sitting upon this crimson rug, with that great bunch of ferns and wild roses beside you. Lady Beth, do you know—"

"Philip! oh, Philip, dear—excuse me, Mr. Lambert, but I am afraid that child—" Beth interposed, and suddenly anxious lest her charge should wander from her sight, made a move as if to rise.

Again the gentleman laughed, as he put forth a shapely hand to detain her.

"Pray don't rise, Miss Russell," he said. "Philip is doing very well, as you can see for yourself by merely glancing over your shoulder. Just at this moment he is interested in laboriously excavating an unfortunate clam from his sandy abode. He will capture his prize very shortly. I wish I was as sure of success in some of my cherished plans as he is," this with an expressive glance which caused Beth to suddenly avert her eyes. "By the way, how fond you are of that child, Miss Russell," the young man interpolated as he turned a thoughtful look upon the sturdy little fellow so busy with his shovel.

"What makes you think so?" inquired Beth, with a soft breath of relief at this apparent transference of his attention from her to the boy.

"Well, for one thing, you have a peculiar way of speaking to him which proves beyond a doubt that you love him very much. There is an indescribable thrill in your tone that makes the name of Philip sound very attractive as you speak it."

Beth's cheeks again flamed scarlet as she shot a startled look at her companion. Was it possible, she wondered, that she was unconsciously betraying to him and others what she had always believed to be a well-guarded secret in the innermost recesses of her heart—that the name of Philip was the dearest in all the world to her?

"Yes, I do love the child very dearly," she tried to say in a matter-of-fact tone. "You know his mother and I have been friends from childhood."

"Yes, I know; and the boy was named for an old chum of Mr. Armstrong's, was he not?" inquired Mr. Lambert, while he gravely studied the lovely averted face beside him.

Beth stirred uneasily; then she said with a bright little laugh: "Ask him to tell you, Phil—oh, ho, ho, come and tell the gentleman or whom you were named," she called out to the child.

He threw down his shovel and came running up to her, his face all aglow.

"Philip Walton—To-ko—Jam-pan—best-fellow-ever-lived," he said all in one breath, repeating in his baby way what his father had taught him.

"Good boy," said the young man, laughing heartily, yet secretly chagrined in view of Beth's quick-witted manoeuvre, for she had drawn the little one into the curve of her arm and cuddled him close beside her.

"You love this 'best fellow that ever lived,' don't you?"

Philip nodded earnest assent; then added: "Everybody does. Don't they, Auntie Beth?"

Auntie Beth bent low to tie a loose shoe lacing on the small foot beside her.

"Tell Mr. Lambert what he brought you from 'To-ko Jam-pan,'" she evaded.

"Tom—tom," said Philip, illustrating upon an imaginary instrument, "and—"

"Just what such a boy as you would like," interposed the gentleman appreciatively. "And now," glancing at the neglected shovel and pail, "I wonder how that poor clam is getting along out there all alone."

Philip, thus reminded of his interrupted occupation, scrambled to his feet and toddled off to resume his excavations, somewhat to the dismay of Beth, who shrank from being again left tete-a-tete with this determined looking admirer.

He turned resolutely to her as soon as the boy was out of hearing, his face very tender, his voice tremulous from repressed feeling.

"Now, Lady Beth," he said, "I cannot allow you to evade me any longer. I love you, I'm sure I do not need to tell you this after all these months during which I have waited for and sought this opportunity. Something has gone wrong with you of late. I have seen it, in spite of your efforts to conceal the fact. Because of it I am wretched also, and I want the privilege of trying to make you happy during the rest of your life. Will you give it to me? I believe I can, if an all-absorbing affection and devotion of all that is best in me can contribute to such a result. Do not send me away hopeless. I beg, for ever since I first met you I have lived with this one aim in view. Will you marry me, Lady Beth?"

His words, his manner, his eyes, filled with a mighty yearning, all told Beth that he was in dead earnest, and she knew she had but to stretch forth her hand to him, and this noble, whole-hearted man and all he possessed, would be hers for life. He had not once referred to what he could offer her from a social standpoint; there had not been a suggestion pointing to his wealth in contrast to the reverses that had seemed to threaten her future. He had offered himself, upon his own merits and the merits of his great love for her.

Why should she not accept him? She liked him well, Teddy excepted, she had no other gentleman friend whom she prized more highly. He was a man to be respected for his moral and intellectual qualities as well as for his fortune and the social position occupied by his family. She had broken with Philip, and believed, from his ready acceptance of the situation, that he was glad to be released from his obligations. This had almost broken her heart, and, as she believed, ruined her life in so far as any domestic prospects with him were concerned.

If she married Paul Lambert, a future of luxury awaited her, and she need never know a care nor hardship that the tenderest love and devotion should shield her from. For the moment she was almost tempted to give him the answer he craved, and settle everything irrevocably; he was more congenial than most of her acquaintances, cultured, amiable, and whole-hearted, worthy of her highest respect. "Why not?" she asked herself the second time. Then her soul revolted. She did not love him; she could make him no adequate return for what he was offering her. She did love some one else with all her heart, and she would be doing him a wrong, once the fatal step taken, that she could never repair.

Beth possessed a brave and loyal heart. She was the soul of honor, and, even though she had apparently been a gay little butterfly ever since her debut in society, there was an underlying nobility in her nature which always prompted her to be just and considerate of the rights and happiness of others; and this doubtless, was one secret of her exceeding popularity.

"Mr. Lambert—"

"Oh, if I could hear you say Paul, as you say Philip, when you speak to that child, I would be happy," he interposed, leaning eagerly toward her, with a note of intense appeal in his tones.

Her face crimsoned at the name of Philip, but she bravely faced him, and frankly met his eyes, as she went on: "Mr. Lambert, I am sorry you have forced this upon me. I have evaded you and hoped you would understand. Won't you try to forget, and—let us continue to be the same good friends that we have been in the past?"

"You mean that you cannot—" he began, with palling lips.

"No, I cannot," she interposed, but her own lips quivered, as she looked in his eyes smote her. "I do not love you as you would have the right to expect if I said yes, and, it would be the greatest wrong I could do you, I—"

The Habit of Saving.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

They say it takes more power to start an electric car than it does to run it quite a distance without stopping. Even so, it takes more energy to start a good habit than it does to keep it going a long time once you have acquired sufficient momentum along the right track. Especially I think this is true of the good habit of saving.

To the average person the saving habit is the hardest habit in the world to acquire. I suppose there are some people who are born with a desire to save, but then there are some people born with six toes. The average person has five toes and finds earning an effort, saving a far greater one, and spending as simple and natural a process as breathing.

Tell the average person what saving is a fascinating habit once you have acquired it, and he will look as doubtful as he feels.

And yet that is so. If you can once get a bank account fairly started there really is a great fascination about it.

While you are getting under way, saving will come hard. Only a stern sense of duty, a fear for the future, or an ardent desire to possess something which necessitates saving, will

Fashions and Fads.

Parisian milliners are offering the quill trimmed hat as the latest style. Many jaunty models are adorned with stiff jaunty quills.

Separate sashes worn with lingerie gowns are made of ribbon, bordered with flowers and bowknots formed of narrow taffeta ribbon.

Parisienne are wearing with the slashed skirt sandals slippers laced with ribbon and tied in bows with tiny gold or brilliant buckles.

One of fashion's latest fads is the corsage bouquet of tightly swirled roses of mousseline de soie in pale or vivid colors with a setting of foliage. For those who cannot wear high collars, there are high turnover varieties with elongated points decorated with medallions of lace and embroidery.

The vest of fancy material is a prominent feature in many of the spring gowns. These do not resemble the mannish waistcoat, but are of brocade in odd designs.

The all-white gown continues to be the favorite for the graduation ceremony. They are sheer and soft, requiring little trimming to produce a very charming effect.

For the collarless blouse of crepe de chine, sheer linen or batiste, there are in the shops quantities of flat collars, gimpes and fichus which contribute just the correct note.

Many handsome coat suits have loosely draped jackets of flowered silk in brilliant colors. Sometimes these are caught above the waist with a prelate sash of a contrasting color.

Especially attractive are the little girls' frocks of cream or white serge, with coats to match. Many of these have collars embroidered of silk of brilliant colors with narrow silk souché.

There is a craze in Paris for serpents of carved or hammered gold, incrustated with jewels. These are clasped about the neck or arms, or crawl gracefully among millady's tresses.

Fichus have made a sudden appearance in the neckwear shops after an absence of several months. They are sometimes narrower and of slightly different shapes from those of last season.

In choosing the bride's hats it would be wise to select a slightly different style from the small hats seen on pretty heads on the street. The newest ones are of the garden party type large, becoming and trimmed with lace.

The realm of footwear has been invaded by the Bulgarian not, and low shoes of silk crepe or dull silk are in Persian and Bulgarian designs. Stockings in the predominating color used on the silk are worn with these shoes.

The newest sleeve fits the forearm closely, coming well down over the hand, where they are finished with a bell shaped or mitten cuff. From the elbow upward the width increases, and being a continuation of the kimono bodice, there is no seam at the shoulder.

At the Yarmouth Y. M. C. A. Boys' Camp, held at Tusket Falls in August, I found MINARD'S LINIMENT most beneficial for sun burn, an immediate relief for colic and toothache.

Tires.

By H. L. HANN.

Tires are round, elastic imitations of rubber which are attached to automobiles for the purpose of absorbing the bumps, thank-you-ma'ams and other death-dealing jolts. While they are doing this, they also find time to absorb a recherche collection of ten-penny nails, tin-plated tacks and broken beer bottles, which nobody else cares to pick up.

Tires are made of an expensive grade of glucose and cheap grade of hope, and are guaranteed to run 5,000 miles without exploding under the spine of some guest who is riding in the rear seat. When a man buys an automobile the manufacturer throws in four new tires which soon loose both their ambition and complexion and become infested with uneasy airholes known as punctures. A puncture can easily be repaired in half a day so that it will not punct again for several miles.

Tires are filled with air which is continually trying to escape into the outer world. This air is pumped into the tire by hand by an epileptic man, who does not care whether the tire retains its figure or not and who crowds it so full of stray air that it is unable to take a full breath until the owner is nine miles from a garage.

Some tires are fastened to a peculiar device called the demountable

This is one of the greatest inventions of the age. It is called demountable because a new tire can be put on in ten minutes by a man from the factory, while it won't take an automobile owner who has had four years' experience in a round house over two hours and a half. All that is necessary is to raise the hind feet of the automobile out of twelve inches or so with an instrument called a jack, remove several bolts which were driven in with a sledge, cut off the old tire with a pen knife, take off the rim with a cold chisel, fit on the new one with an axe, put back all of the bolts that didn't get lost in the sand, and then extract what is left of the jack. This is an exciting pastime on a hot day, and puts everybody in a happy mood.

A blow-out is a large, perpendicular hole in a tire caused by the air breaking out in one spot with a loud report. The only way to repair a blow-out is to convert the tire into chewing gum.

Have You a Bad Sore?

If so, remember these facts—Zam-Buk is by far the most widely used balm in Canada! Why has it become so popular? Because it heals sores, cures skin diseases, and does what is claimed for it. Why not let it heal your sore?

Remember that Zam-Buk is altogether different to the ordinary ointments. Most of these consist of animal fats. Zam-Buk contains no trace of any animal fat, or any mineral matter. It is absolutely herbal.

Remember that Zam-Buk is at the same time healing, soothing, and antiseptic. Kills poison instantly, and all harmful germs. It is suitable alike for recent injuries and diseases, and for chronic sores, ulcers, etc. Test how different and superior Zam-Buk really is. All druggists and stores at 50c. box. Use also Zam-Buk Soap. Relieves sunburn and prevents freckles. Best for baby's bath. 30c. tablet.

Queen Mary Hates Her Obesity Diet.

Hot Water, Toast and Egg for Breakfast a Positive Penance.

London, June 1.—Queen Mary has become seriously alarmed at her increasing weight, and has now given up eating potatoes and bread and is going through a form of mild exercise early in the morning. Her mother, the late Duchess of Teck, who was an extremely handsome woman, became enormously stout as she approached middle age and Queen Mary is now obsessed by the idea that she may inherit this tendency.

With the exception of the Duke of Connaught all the members of the royal family are large eaters, and the teas with heavy sandwiches, which are served at 5 o'clock in the royal residences, would stagger most middle class families. Queen Mary has a wonderful appetite, and it is a positive vengeance to her to drink a tumbler of hot water in the morning, and to be content with dry toast and an egg for breakfast.

King George, who daily goes through Sandow exercises before an open window in the morning, has become extremely careful about his diet, as he suffers now and again from painful attacks of indigestion, but in spite of all his recent worries and cares he is in far better health to-day than he was when he came to the throne.

Notes and Comments.

The Rhodes Trustees have issued a Memorandum in reference to Rhodes Scholarship on the subject which Dr. Parkins, their Secretary, came to Newfoundland to lay before the C. H. E. It is dated May, 1913, and gives their decision, which is as follows:—

"The Trustees have decided that candidates for Scholarships which involve coming into residence in October, 1915, will be required, like candidates in Canada and the United States, to have had two years of training at some recognized degree-granting University or College, or a course of study accepted by the Trustees as an equivalent.

"It has also been decided that from the same date such candidates must have passed their nineteenth birthday, but not have passed their twenty-fifth birthday, on the first of October for the year for which they are elected."

The Hon. P. T. McGrath advances a strange argument last night in reference to our comments on ex-Governor

Williams, contending that it does not become Dr. W. F. Lloyd to criticize Sir Ralph Williams, inasmuch as Dr. Lloyd is a man publicly accused of having disinfected his office every time a sealer from the icefields entered it. If an accusation is a warrant for closing the mouth of the accused, then the Hon. P. T. McGrath will doubtless accept his own dictum for himself and remain dumb for the rest of his life. As to the particular accusation which has been given publicity several times by Mr. McGrath, there is not a tittle of truth in it. Not only is it untrue that Dr. Lloyd either disinfected or had his office disinfected every time after a sealer from the icefields visited it, but he has never had his office disinfected or taken steps to have his office disinfected after receiving any visitor. The accusation against Dr. Lloyd is not only unfounded in truth, but it is gratuitously offensive. It is not only false in substance and spirit, but it is circulated maliciously with the intent to defame him and damage him politically.

The Nebo Bought

The barque Nebo which was towed here from Bay Roberts last week was taken to Permeuse by the Ingraham where she will be used for the stowage of stuff saved from the wrecks. The vessel went ashore in the Straits of Belle Isle some three years ago and was refloated without much damage, being bought by C. & A. Dawe. She has been at Bay Roberts since, and is a fine vessel of 500 tons, is fully equipped and this extends over the water line. A Halifax firm has bought the vessel.

BELGRADE, June 10.
The Serbian Minister of War to-day declared that war or peace would be decided in two or three days. Serbia, he said, must retain all the territory which had been occupied by her troops, and the Powers must persuade Bulgaria to modify the Treaty of Alliance entered into with Serbia before the war with Turkey, otherwise war was certain.

BELGRADE, June 10.
Railway communication between Serbia and Bulgaria has been stopped, and the Serbian newspapers assert that the Serbian Minister to Sofia is about to quit that capital. The Serbian Government to-day decided to send a formal note to Bulgaria asking the Government at Sofia to arrange for a meeting of the premiers of the two countries.

LONDON, June 10.
Two women were charged to-day at the Richmond Police Court, with setting fire to the Hurst Park race buildings yesterday, causing damage to the extent of $70,000. They gave the names of Kitty Marion, who described herself as an actress and Clara Elizabeth Gweon, a well known suffragette, who has undergone several terms of imprisonment for outrages. They were remanded on bail.

LONDON, June 10.
Many Serbians are reported killed to-day in a serious encounter with Bulgarian troops near the small town of Makrevo, north of Istip. Further conflicts are expected in the same vicinity. The Serbians on Monday sent a note to the Bulgarian commander, giving him until 7 p.m. to evacuate the small town of Volodan, falling which he threatened to bombard Istip, now occupied by the Bulgarians.

LONDON, June 10.
The old established stock exchange firm of Englebert and Schelverser failed to-day; liabilities not announced. The failure is said to be due to heavy commitments, through the firm's German connection in Canadian Pacific, Rio Tinto, Steel stocks and other American securities. Mr. Englebert was found drowned at the steering wheel of his automobile in the River Midway, near his home, on Saturday last, having driven his car through a fence into the river during the darkness.

DONEASTER, June 10.

Whilst the examination of a servant girl, charged with setting fire to Westfield House, was proceeding to-day, Mary Dennis, alias Lillian Linton, who was wanted by the police in connection with a suffragette outrage in February, caused a sensation by entering the Court and acknowledging that it was she who tried to burn the house. The servant girl was discharged, and Linton was arrested. Harry Johnson a young newspaper man, implicated in the crime, was also committed.

NEW YORK, June 10.
King George has suffered heavy losses by the recent big slump on the stock market. A prolonged audience with Sir George White, the King's Private Solicitor, took place on the morning after the Derby, to arrange for realization of certain securities held in trust for the King by Lord Stamfordham. Another member of the Household and Queen Mary took part in the conference. The King's losses are reported to have resulted from extensive operations in C.P.R., which last week dropped 14 points. His losses are estimated at $100,000. Lord Revelstoke, is the King's private financial adviser, but the operations in C.P.R. were against his banker's advice.

Much Mystery Over German War Chest.

Little Known of Julius Tower, at Spandau, Where $30,000,000 is Kept.—A Heavy Guard Kept About It.—Only One Attempt at Robbery, and the Robber Broke His Neck.

(New York Sun.)

The report from Berlin that the German Government in the course of its new war programme plans to triple the treasure it has stored away in the famous Julius Tower at Spandau has caused a revival of the speculation regarding this great secret hoard of 120,000,000 marks ($30,000,000), which will now be increased to $90,000,000.

More or less mystery has always surrounded the Julius Tower. The mere mention in Baedeker that "the Imperial military reserve fund of six million sterling is kept in the Julius Thurm of the citadel" of Spandau, which is only eight miles from Berlin, has excited the curiosity of most every foreign visitor in the German capital. But sightseers are not welcome within the fortifications of Spandau, and there is record of but one American who ever caught a glimpse of the interior of the tower.

An officer of the German reserve, who at one time was stationed in the fortress of Spandau, but who is now living in this country, told the "Sun" something about the tower and the treasure it holds. The tower itself is not impressive. It stands in the midst of the citadel surrounded by barracks and officers' quarters, and is not far from the great arsenal and the manufacturing of war implements. Directly about it is a small cleared square, which gives just enough room for the movements of the small company which does guard duty there. The tower is cylindrical, and is built of heavy masonry, with nothing to relieve its massive effect. It rises about thirty-five or forty feet from the ground, and is almost as thick through as it is tall.

Entrance to the tower is made through triple steel doors, each guarded by a system of "simultaneous keys" held by different individuals, and by a constantly changing band of sentries. One set of keys is with the Chancellor of the Empire and the other with the president of the committee for the debts of the empire. The local guardian of the treasure was made curator by a decree of 1874, under orders from the Chancellor.

The gold that makes up this "Reichskriegsschatz" is in twenty franc pieces, the very same that were paid as the French war indemnity. The gold coin is stored away in bags in a dozen small cabinets or safes built into the walls. These are on various levels and are reached by a spiral staircase.

Twenty-four men usually compose the guard. Of these eight are continually on duty, the guard changing every two hours. The patrol is made about the base of the Tower, within the Tower, and on the top.

Once a year the amount of the gold is certified by an official reckoning. The coins are not counted. Instead the gold is weighed in bulk, and minute fractional differences due to dampness and other atmospheric conditions are noted.

The amount of gold in the Julius Tower has never varied, and there has been but one attempt at robbery. This was by a drunken cobbler of Spandau, who in some mysterious way, according to the story, managed to get by the guards. When he was half way he fell and broke his neck. Mr. Robert W. Poindexter, of Los Angeles is the American who got into trouble with the Spandau authorities because he got too near the German treasure.

Mr. Poindexter told the sentinel that he wanted to see the commandant, and marched into the tower while the soldier's back was turned. He was detained until the police could be summoned, and then taken before the authorities, whom he had difficulty in convincing of his purpose.

The Julius Tower was first used by Frederick the Great, as the Prussian "war chest." The reserve held there was turned over to the empire when it was founded, and the tower itself used for the storage of the $30,000,000, the small fraction of the billion dollar indemnity paid by France. The money has been kept in reserve to defray the expenses of the quick mobilization of the German war army in case war should break out. It would pay for the horses and military supplies, which are already contracted for in such an emergency. It has been figured that the present $30,000,000 would be exhausted in a day and a half in case a war was declared.

The Increased Cost of Living.

Education Has Much to do With It.—Trade Goods.

London, May 31.—The proposed revision of the freight rates by various railway companies in England has again drawn attention to the increased cost of living. Several papers publish schedules showing that while foodstuffs have risen from 20 to 30 per cent. in the last fifteen years, luxuries in the common sort have depreciated in value. All writers are agreed, however, that after a large successful strike the cost of living has always measurably risen.

On the other hand, trade has been particularly good in recent years, and the workman has benefited thereby, but not in the old way of saving up for a rainy day. His standard of living has been raised; what were formerly luxuries are now necessities, and the former, in the shape of dress, house decorations, and amusements, were never so cheap as they are now. The inclination to thrift is further discounted on account of the old-age pensions and the national insurance. There is a general faith that to-morrow will take care of itself.

Education has much to do with the altered conditions. Elevated taste means added expenditure, and a readjustment is to be looked for, not perhaps so much in economies in existing outlays as in the higher earnings of all classes.

The Americans won the first match in the International Polo game to-day, the final score being 5½ to 3.

LONDON, June 10.
The Commons, to-night, passed the second reading of the Home Rule Bill, without division, on an amendment moved by Balfour for rejection having been previously defeated by a vote of 268 against, to 270 for. The announcement of the figures were received with cheering by the Liberals and Nationalists. The debate was marked by fiery declarations by Opposition speakers, who predicted that the imposition of Home Rule would result in Civil War in Ireland. Sir Edward Carson, Irish Unionist leader, said: "For my part I will continue to support the Ulster men, and will take full responsibility for their resistance. You may seize their arms or send troops, but you will not settle the Irish question. You know that you are crowing about peace when there is no peace, and you will fall in your object." Lord Charles Beresford declared: "If the Government send troops to Ireland, I shall offer my services, poor as they may be, and help my fellow-countrymen."

The purchase by Lord Murray of Elbank, of 3,000 Marconi shares, as an investment for the funds of the Liberal Party, was revealed during evidence given yesterday and to-day at the sitting of the Parliamentary commission investigating the alleged scandal connected with the Marconi contract. Capt. Arthur Cecil Murray, brother of Lord Murray, to-day testified that before leaving England for Colombia, his brother had entrusted 3,000 Marconi shares to his keeping. At the same time, he said that he visited nobody to be involved in the affair but himself, and declared that he would take the whole responsibility for the purchase, himself. Evidence further showed Lord Murray to be creditor to the amount of $150,000 of an absconding stock broker, who had been engaged in Marconi dealings, but there has been no evidence thus far that more than $45,000 of the Liberal Party's funds were employed in the transaction. Capt. Murray testified that he had advised his brother that there was no necessity for him to return to England until the business with which he was engaged in South America, had been completed. He admitted that his brother's transactions were possibly indiscreet, but was of the opinion that they were not dishonorable.

Won Easily.

The first inter-brigade football match for the season came off last night between the C. L. B. and Highlanders. Pay was mostly in favor of the Church Lads who scored four goals to their opponents nothing. At the start play was brisk and W. Renne received a kick in the left eye. He was attended by Dr. Paterson who incurred four stitches in the cut. The players of the teams were:

Highlanders—Goal, Ronnie; backs, Chancey, Luscombe; halves, Searle, Chancey, Auckhleck; forwards, Sinclair, Morris, McGrow, Watts, Lidgum.

Opening Baseball Match.

Wanderers vs Red Lions at Stancombe's Field, Fresh water Road at 3 45 this afternoon.

Here and There.

LARGEST FOR SEASON.—The receipts of last night's Brigade football match were $53, the largest for the season.

FIRST MATCH.—At 3.45 this afternoon, the first league baseball match for the season will commence at Stancombe's Field, Freshwater Road.

CITY'S HEALTH.—No more small-pox within the past twenty-four hours has been reported in the city. Dr. Shankel is attending to the sufferer at Flatrock and Dr. Guthrie is looking after the patient at Bell Island and endeavouring to prevent the spread of the disease.

WILL NOT REPIT.—We learn that some of the fishermen on the southwest coast who had cod traps, lobster traps and other fishing gear destroyed by recent storms will not repit. A great loss will be entailed by those who were unfortunate in losing their property.

DIG LUMBER SHIPMENTS.—There are now on the way up here to the Horwood Lumber Coy., five schooners laden with lumber, aggregating over 600,000 feet with more to follow later. These are coming from Botwood, Leamington, Campbellton and Horwood, and should arrive shortly.

HAS FOUR FISH.—The whaler Hump, operating at Dublin Cove, has to date four fish, which are scarce in that section. The first whale taken was an exceptionally big one, a sulphur of 81 feet. It was of such weight that as it was being taken up it broke the slip and burst the chains which held it, while the fish whaled yielded more oil than any whale ever taken there.

A SPLENDID CUP.—The beautiful cup presented Mr. John Hagerly, the pilot of His Majesty's ships, by the British Admiralty, is on exhibition in the store window of Jackman the Tailor. It is undoubtedly a beautiful cup and should be seen to be appreciated.

Wedding Bells.

MILLER-AYRE.
The marriage of Mr. Harold C. Ayre, son of F. W. Ayre, Esq., and Miss Agnes Miller, daughter of Mrs. Lewis Miller, was solemnized at the Kirk yesterday afternoon. Rev. Dr. McPhoe, of New York, and Rev. Dr. Rogers, of Gower St. Methodist Church officiating. Over two hundred friends and guests of the contracting parties were present and received by Messrs. Gerald Ayre, Robert Morrison, Gerald Harvey, Arthur Hayward, Eric Ayre and Wilfred Ayre, the ushers. Prominent guests present were: Hon. John Ayre and Mrs. Ayre, Hon. J. S. and Mrs. Pitta, F. W. and Mrs. Ayre, Hon. D. and Mrs. Morrison, Rt. Hon. Sir E. P. and Lady Morris, Sir W. H. and Lady Howwood, Hon. M. G. and Mrs. Winter, Miss Madeline Winter. Shortly after 3 p.m., the bride, becomingly costumed, entered the church, leaning on the arm of her uncle, Hon. D. Morrison. The bridesmaids were Miss Janet Miller, sister of the bride, Miss Ruby Ayre, sister of the groom, Miss Dorothy Ayre, cousin of the groom, and Miss Elsie Crowley. They carried sheaves of pink carnations. The flower girls, who were neat and trim wearing Juliet bonnets, were Sheila Ayre, Kathleen Ayre, Catherine Neil and Cynthia Marshall. Mr. Gerald Ayre supported the groom. The church decorations arranged by Mrs. F. W. Ayre, were beautiful. Following the ceremony the bridal party motored to Hon. D. Morrison's residence on Waterford Bridge Road where a reception was held after which they left for Holyrood to join the train for Bay St. George's where the honeymoon will be spent. Later they will return to Topsis to spend the summer. The groom's presents to the bridesmaids and flower girls were gold bracelets. The newly wedded couple were the recipients of numerous presents, including several large cheques, testifying to the popularity and esteem in which they were held. The Telegram joins in the congratulations extended.

SHANNAHAN and Tucker
On Ralph the Rover.

Tucker says a valuable lesson has been taught us in the way that ex-Governor Williams has repaid our kindness since his return to Old England. We are ever ready in this country to adore strangers before we wait to find out what brand of people they really are, and when an outsider strikes our shores, we "tumble head over heels" in our eagerness to wipe his shoes. Up to the present we took it for granted that when a man was appointed to the Governorship of this country that no doubts should be entertained as to his gentlemanly traits, and as soon as the Anson liner arrived with the Governor on board we felt that he being selected by the Home Authorities to fill such an exalted position, was in itself a sufficient guarantee that he was the genuine article, consequently all our papers fall in line and the proprietors work all night trying to procure a good "cut" of the Governor's bust, so that they will be ready to trot him out at the very earliest opportunity. All his actions are closely watched, and if he speaks kindly to some old man, or tickles a child under the chin, his face and glossy shirt-front occupy a prominent place in the next issue of our papers, under which appears a long article pouring forth the most fulsome flattery upon him. It is therefore only natural that he should form a poor opinion of us, and as early impressions generally hang on, he believes us to be a cheap crowd from the start and holds that opinion till he leaves our shores. We may wonder why the Authorities at Home make a mistake in selecting a Governor for us, but after all, they may not be to blame for lots of goods shipped from England in poor condition become "blown" before reaching the wharf, and as the passage is sometimes a long one, it is quite possible for a Governor to "blow" himself and continue "blowing" while he stays amongst us. But we do not hug a blown tin of Pineapple, no matter how attractively it is labelled, and we should not adore a Governor, with a handle to his name, until we convince ourselves thoroughly, that he is "all there." We have been soaked good and hard by Ralph the Rover, but 'tis no use throwing water on a drowned rat. He has belittled himself by his writings, and it is a good thing that the Herald gave us the medicine in four doses, or we may not be alive to-day to tell the tale if we swallowed it all at one time. 'Tis a pity that the woman down north who presented him with the four eggs didn't store them away in the goats' house, for they might come in handy at some future date when Ralph the Rover may re-visit our shores. We would then be able to present them to him in a more hurried manner and return the compliment which he has paid us. And now a final charge, let us benefit by the lesson taught and take a solemn pledge that never again will we make jackasses of ourselves by walking on one another in our eagerness to identify mistakes who strike a good job, and haven't sense enough to hold on to it.

COBB-TAYLOR.
A very interesting and pretty wedding was solemnized at the residence of Capt. Randall, LeMarchant Road, at 3 p.m. yesterday, when Mr. George Cobb, Superintendent of the R. N. C. O's, Despatching Office, was united in hymeneal bonds to Miss Beatrice Taylor. A large number of the friends of both were present in the drawing room to witness the ceremony. The apartment was beautifully and appropriately decorated for the occasion. The bride wore a beautiful costume of cream silk with wreath of orange blossoms and Limerick lace veil, carrying also a beautiful bouquet of white carnations and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid was Miss Flossie Scott, who was attired in white satin with overdress of cream net, and hat to match. She carried pink carnations and lilies of the valley, with the groom's gift, a massive gold brooch. Miss Phyllis Handell acted as flower girl, and the gift from the groom was a gold pendant and chain. The best man was Mr. H. Crawford, Esq., G. A. Whitmarsh, pastor of Cochrane St. Church, performed the ceremony, after which a reception was held and the health of the happy couple duly honored. Later the bride and groom drove to Waterford Bridge, where they entertained for a honeymoon tour of Canada and the States. The Reid Nfd. Co. had the station at Waterford Bridge decorated with bunting, and as the train pulled out there was a joyous jolt of torpedoes, which were exploded by the wheels of the cars. Both bride and groom received many pretty and valuable presents. The Telegram extends heartfelt felicitations.

FITZHENRY-FAHEY.
At 4 p.m. yesterday a pretty wedding took place at St. Patrick's Church when Mr. James Fitzhenry led to the altar Miss Genevieve Fahey, daughter of Const. Fahey, of Bay Bulls. A large number of the friends of the popular and happy young couple were present and the nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Joseph Flahy, cousin of the groom. The bride was charmingly dressed in a suit of white silk with hat to match and was assisted by her sister, Miss Fahey, while the groom was attended by his brother, Mr. James Fitzhenry. After the customary reception was held and later the happy pair left for Holyrood where the honeymoon will be spent. Both received many very valuable and pretty presents. The Telegram extends its congratulations.

Tucker says a valuable lesson has been taught us in the way that ex-Governor Williams has repaid our kindness since his return to Old England. We are ever ready in this country to adore strangers before we wait to find out what brand of people they really are, and when an outsider strikes our shores, we "tumble head over heels" in our eagerness to wipe his shoes. Up to the present we took it for granted that when a man was appointed to the Governorship of this country that no doubts should be entertained as to his gentlemanly traits, and as soon as the Anson liner arrived with the Governor on board we felt that he being selected by the Home Authorities to fill such an exalted position, was in itself a sufficient guarantee that he was the genuine article, consequently all our papers fall in line and the proprietors work all night trying to procure a good "cut" of the Governor's bust, so that they will be ready to trot him out at the very earliest opportunity. All his actions are closely watched, and if he speaks kindly to some old man, or tickles a child under the chin, his face and glossy shirt-front occupy a prominent place in the next issue of our papers, under which appears a long article pouring forth the most fulsome flattery upon him. It is therefore only natural that he should form a poor opinion of us, and as early impressions generally hang on, he believes us to be a cheap crowd from the start and holds that opinion till he leaves our shores. We may wonder why the Authorities at Home make a mistake in selecting a Governor for us, but after all, they may not be to blame for lots of goods shipped from England in poor condition become "blown" before reaching the wharf, and as the passage is sometimes a long one, it is quite possible for a Governor to "blow" himself and continue "blowing" while he stays amongst us. But we do not hug a blown tin of Pineapple, no matter how attractively it is labelled, and we should not adore a Governor, with a handle to his name, until we convince ourselves thoroughly, that he is "all there." We have been soaked good and hard by Ralph the Rover, but 'tis no use throwing water on a drowned rat. He has belittled himself by his writings, and it is a good thing that the Herald gave us the medicine in four doses, or we may not be alive to-day to tell the tale if we swallowed it all at one time. 'Tis a pity that the woman down north who presented him with the four eggs didn't store them away in the goats' house, for they might come in handy at some future date when Ralph the Rover may re-visit our shores. We would then be able to present them to him in a more hurried manner and return the compliment which he has paid us. And now a final charge, let us benefit by the lesson taught and take a solemn pledge that never again will we make jackasses of ourselves by walking on one another in our eagerness to identify mistakes who strike a good job, and haven't sense enough to hold on to it.

COBB-TAYLOR.
A very interesting and pretty wedding was solemnized at the residence of Capt. Randall, LeMarchant Road, at 3 p.m. yesterday, when Mr. George Cobb, Superintendent of the R. N. C. O's, Despatching Office, was united in hymeneal bonds to Miss Beatrice Taylor. A large number of the friends of both were present in the drawing room to witness the ceremony. The apartment was beautifully and appropriately decorated for the occasion. The bride wore a beautiful costume of cream silk with wreath of orange blossoms and Limerick lace veil, carrying also a beautiful bouquet of white carnations and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid was Miss Flossie Scott, who was attired in white satin with overdress of cream net, and hat to match. She carried pink carnations and lilies of the valley, with the groom's gift, a massive gold brooch. Miss Phyllis Handell acted as flower girl, and the gift from the groom was a gold pendant and chain. The best man was Mr. H. Crawford, Esq., G. A. Whitmarsh, pastor of Cochrane St. Church, performed the ceremony, after which a reception was held and the health of the happy couple duly honored. Later the bride and groom drove to Waterford Bridge, where they entertained for a honeymoon tour of Canada and the States. The Reid Nfd. Co. had the station at Waterford Bridge decorated with bunting, and as the train pulled out there was a joyous jolt of torpedoes, which were exploded by the wheels of the cars. Both bride and groom received many pretty and valuable presents. The Telegram extends heartfelt felicitations.

FITZHENRY-FAHEY.
At 4 p.m. yesterday a pretty wedding took place at St. Patrick's Church when Mr. James Fitzhenry led to the altar Miss Genevieve Fahey, daughter of Const. Fahey, of Bay Bulls. A large number of the friends of the popular and happy young couple were present and the nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Joseph Flahy, cousin of the groom. The bride was charmingly dressed in a suit of white silk with hat to match and was assisted by her sister, Miss Fahey, while the groom was attended by his brother, Mr. James Fitzhenry. After the customary reception was held and later the happy pair left for Holyrood where the honeymoon will be spent. Both received many very valuable and pretty presents. The Telegram extends its congratulations.

peated tests, that the disease was a contagious one, brought about by the presence of a parasite which he had discovered in cancerous growths. He said he had procured a vaccine with which he had healed numerous most serious cases of cancer.

His treatment, he says, brings about immunity against further attacks. The immunization is accomplished by a serum obtained from animals in the usual manner.

Dr. Schmidt requested the medical society to appoint a commission to test his processes, and he promised to place every thing at the disposal of the commissioners.

Novel Way of Evening Living.

Young Man Surrenders Seat to Ladies, Gets Tip.

Berlin, June 3.—Here is the latest way of making a living: A well-dressed young man, keen of wit but short of funds and wholly without work, took his seat in a street car. By and by a woman, laden with many bundles, got on and swung to a strap in front of him. The young man got up and gave her his seat. Also, he had an idea.

He bought a monthly ticket that entitles him to ride continuously on certain lines. Selecting stout women, package-laden women and girls, scholars with arms full of books and other persons who would rather sit than stand, he made them his customers. To these, as the car filled, he surrendered his seat, plainly stating that he expected a tip in return. He generally got it, and has been able, he says, to make a fair living.

Picture Palace.

For The King's Children.

New York, June 5.—A London cable says: A cinematograph theatre is to be installed at Buckingham Palace for the benefit of the younger members of the King's family and their friends. The primary reason for this decision is that the King and Queen regard cinematograph entertainment as of high educational value. A small salon has been set apart for the purpose and the canvas will be comparatively small, but the apparatus will of course be of the best description, and the juniors of the family are keenly looking forward to having a picture palace on the spot. The work is not to be put in hand until their Majesties leave London for Cowes.

Mother-Love.

My Michael—God was good to him! he went across the sea; And it's shilling, shilling, shilling, that he's sending home to me! And 'Tinkie' has a letter there, 'tis writ in Michael's hand; He says that money's plenty, and that O he loves the land! But yet I think the lad is safe, for "Mother when you write, Just tuck a bit of shamrock in," he said, and then "Good-night."

I put the shilling all away (herself knows how to save!) Not knowing when the call will come to cross the cruel wave! But, Michael, dear, I'll come to you; 'tis there that I belong; For cross the sea from you to me, the mother-love is strong! He says the grass is just as green, the sky is just as blue, But Ireland! O the heart of me I leave along with you! —Gerturde E. Heath.

Do Winnipeggers Ever Sleep.

Washington, D.C., June 3.—Real estate brokers are wondering whether the Canadians in the neighbourhood of Winnipeg ever sleep.

A large party of Washington men contemplate attending the sixth annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges at Winnipeg, and are astounded at the fact that the entertainments begin at 7 o'clock in the morning and last until 10 o'clock at night.

It has been explained that Winnipeg sunrises are scheduled for 3.30 a.m. in the month of July, and Washington men here declare that unless they stay up all night they will never be able to partake of a single Winnipeg breakfast.

Inventors Wanted.

There are big prizes going a-begging nowadays to be picked up by men with inventive turn of mind. The International Association of Recognised Automobile Clubs, for example, is offering £20,000 for a reliable substitute for gasoline. The substance must be of such a nature that it cannot be monopolised by a trust, and it must be capable of use in existing internal-combustion motors.

The British Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders is offering an additional prize of 2,000 guineas should the fuel be manufactured from some substance produced in Britain.

Two thousand pounds is being offered in America to the inventor of a machine for pulling and topping sugar beets; whilst in France £4,000 is waiting for the man who can produce a genuine cure for one of the common every-day diseases.

The American Red Cross Society has at its disposal various sums ranging from £100 to £600 for devices which will ameliorate the sufferings of the sick and wounded in time of war; whilst £20 will be given by the Royal Society of Arts to the inventor of portable apparatus which will simplify rescue work in mines.

But, in addition to such opportunities as those, it must be remembered that five "Nobel" prizes, worth about £10,000 apiece, are awarded annually to the persons who have done most in the cause of physics, chemistry, literature, medicine, and peace.

PRESCRIPTION "A"

CURES INDIGESTION & DYSPEPSIA IN ALL ITS FORMS.

It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say: "Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache, I feel too tired to do anything. I have no heart to exert myself, and at times I care for nothing."

I often have a pain in the pit of my stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed and I often awake with a sense of suffocation and a difficulty of again going to sleep. I have to be careful of what I eat, and my life seems a veritable burden.

Now, it seems a shame and a pity for persons to be suffering like that when it is in their power to get cured by taking a bottle of Prescription "A". A sure cure for persons afflicted with stomach troubles. It can be obtained at

Appointed Head of Truro College.

Halifax, N. S., June 5.—Professor J. M. Freeman, of the Dairy Department at the Connecticut Agricultural College and one of the leading experts in his line in America, has been appointed professor of Agriculture and farm superintendant at the Nova Scotia Agricultural College at Truro. He is a native of New Brunswick.

Abject America.

We take all the sass the cheap nations can spring, we are so intensely afraid that if we resented an insult or fling, it might have effect on our trade. They knock off our hat and they tread on our feet, and, though we are weary and sore, we turn with a smile that is saintly and sweet, and ask them to kick us some more. We hand out red tape to the pestilent chaps who kick till our coat tails are frayed, for if we should frown on insulters, perhaps it would put a crimp in our trade. It challenged the world, once, in dominant tones, this country now greasy and fat! Alas for the days of Decatur and Jones, when we scrapped at the drop of the hat! But Commerce is sacred; we might lose a yen if we should get mad for a while; so come, friends, and kick us, and kick us again, and gaze on our heavenly smile. Time was when the flag of this land of the free, which now is the emblem of Trade, protected its people, on land or on sea, however remotely they strayed; but gone is its prestige; it's drooping and sick, it waves over shop-keeping men, who never hit back when they're slugged with a brick, so come, friends, and swat us again.

Cancer Contagious

But It Can be Healed, According to Cancer Expert.

Cologne, Germany, June 3.—Cancer has been proved to be a contagious disease, caused by a parasite, and it can be healed, according to Dr. Otto Schmidt, the cancer expert, who reported at a meeting of the Medical Society here, the results of his investigations into the origin of and the possibility of curing cancer.

Dr. Schmidt declared that he had proved through experiments and had confirmed his findings by means of re-

Love Alone is a Reality.

"Fame and Hope and Wealth and Friendship are all a dream."—Love alone is a reality.

And what is Fame? An idle dream That flits across the brain! Just like a bubble on the stream; That swift dissolves again.

And wealth is but a gilded god— The creature of an hour, It flies before misfortune's rod; 'Tis transient as the flower.

And hope is like the gorgeous hue Of yonder setting sun; Fleeting as morning's early dew— A dream but just begun.

And what is Friendship? Ask not me Who never saw her face Perchance such feeling there may be— Though faint must be its trace.

Then what is Love? A ray of light Sent from the world above To guide us through this realm of night— Heaven's sweet mesive dove.

'Tis this alone that gives a glow To this cold-hearted sphere, And makes the stream of gladness flow In pleasure's sparkling tear.

For Hope and Wealth and Friends and Fame Are fickle, false and cold; They live in fancy or in name, They're glittering brass, not gold.

But love is of a heavenly birth, A part of God himself, A rainbow sent from Heaven to earth— 'Tis happiness itself.

Balloonist at Eight.

PERCIVAL SPENCER WAS MASTER OF HIGH ALTITUDES.

Celebrated Aeronaut and Balloon Manufacturer, Who Died Recently in Britain, Inherited His Love For High Flying from His Grandfather and Father—Used Balloon in War in 1890.

Of almost world-wide reputation as a balloonist, which career he started at the early age of eight, Mr. Percival Spencer, of Spencer Bros., the famous balloon manufacturers, died at his home, Aberdeen Park, Highgate, N. (Eng.), at the age of 48. Mr. Spencer, who was a widower, was the eldest of three brothers, who conduct the business of balloon manufacturers at Highbury, and he was a daring and successful aeronaut. Mr. Spencer must have spent more time in the air than any contemporary aeronaut. He said quite recently that he thought ballooning was the safest way of travelling in the world. And he recommended it for jaded nerves. He also said that a day aloft did one as much good as a week or even a fortnight of any other sort of relaxation. The Spencers are a ballooning family. Mr. Spencer's grandfather made ascent as far back as 1836, and his son carried on the family tradition by making an ascent at the Crystal Palace when only eight years old. On that occasion he was accompanied by his father, and afterwards he made balloon ascents and parachute descents in Egypt, India, the Straits Settlements, China and Japan. He made special ascents that were witnessed by the Czar of Russia and the Emperor of Japan. Mr. Spencer was a familiar figure not only at fetes and galas throughout the country. On seven occasions he crossed the Channel by balloon, and he has flown across the Irish Sea from the Isle of Man to Scotland. From ballooning Mr. Spencer passed enthusiastically to the airship problem, and he believed that he was the first balloonist to take an active part in military aeronautics. The occasion was the war in Acheen, Sumatra, in 1890. Accompanied by Major Droese, of the Dutch Army, he made a series of investigations that afforded useful information to the Netherlands officers. During part of the operations the balloon, attached to the last truck of an armor-plated train, was drawn through dense tropical forests. When the aeroplane was liberated it rose high in the air and showed the position of the enemy's forces, and at a given signal the guns of the forts poured out shot and shell on the native insurgents. The effects were noted from the balloon and orders issued to the forces below. In the pursuit of his profession he had many thrilling experiences. One of his most serious occurred in India. He made an ascent outside Calcutta and came down in the jungle. Quits outside his bearings, and with no knowledge of his whereabouts, Mr. Spencer wandered about the jungle for three days. When eventually he found his way into Calcutta, he was so emaciated and weak that he was thought by the natives to be a ghost, and was so described by them. In Japan he fell with his balloon into the ocean, and was only saved from drowning through the timely appearance of a boat from a battleship.
