The Grand Fleet

1914-16.

ITS CREATION, DEVELOPMENT AND WORK.

(By Admiral Viscount Jellicoe of Scapa.)

This important volume gives Lord Jellicoe's personal narrative of his command of the Grand Fleet, from his appointment in August, 1914, until his relinquishment of the post two years later. The book deals with all the naval "affairs" of this period, including the Battle of Jutland; and therein, of course, is its greatest interest. With numerous illustrations, Maps and Charts.

CHAPTER VII
 A CHAINED HEART.

"LET us go by the stream by all means, if that is the longest way," says Lord Edgar; and Lela, with a little, almost unconscious, thrill of pleasure at his reason for choosing it, takes the path that winds alongside the babbling little river.

The innocent remark of the miller's child has produced a slight shade of shyness in her that makes itself manifest in her lowered lids, a faint color in her face, and a slight tendency to silence, and Lord Edgar is so frightened lest she should take alarm that he strides on beside her, humming the last of the comic opera airs rather vaguely and out of tune.

But presently the shyness, to his infinite delight, wears off, and he takes courage to remark that he hopes she is not tired.

"Tired!" she says, flashing around at him with one of the glances from her soft brown eyes that twenty times this morning have made his heart leap. "Why, we have not walked any distance to speak of. I often come here—to the mill I mean—and back before dinner."

A wild, awful fear seizes him, and he puts it into a word.

"Alone?"

She nods.

"Yes, of course, alone! Why, grandpapa wouldn't walk so far from his beloved library—to save his life!"

"Mr. Temple? No," he says. "I thought—perhaps that is—that there might be some one else."

She looked at him with grave surprise.

"Whom else could there be?" she asks.

"I didn't know," he rejoins, meekly, but with an inward throb of satisfaction.

"I know no one," she continues. "Grandpapa and I are quite alone. This is the first time," she adds, innocently, "that I have had a companion."

He draws a little nearer.

"Don't you find it dull—walking alone, I mean?" he says.

"Oh, no! There is always something to amuse one: some bird to listen to, a squirrel running up a tree—I saw three once!—and there are always the trees to talk to me. Oh, I am never dull—never, in the open air. He looks rather disappointed.

"Trees—I didn't know they talked," she laughs.

"Oh, yes, they do. Listen!" and she stops and puts her hand on his arm. He stops dead short as if he had been shot. "Don't you hear them? That is the leaves rustling against each other in the summer breeze. That is what I call talking. If we were poets we should understand them and be able to tell the world what they said."

Lord Edgar tilts his hat back and shakes his head despairingly.

"I'm afraid I'm not much of a poet," he says, ruefully. "And you come here all alone? And you don't find it dull? I'm always dull if I'm alone. I hate being alone. That's why I hate my rooms in town."

She looks up at him sympathetically and with unconcealed interest. She is curious as to how the heir to the marquise lives and spends his time.

"You live alone?" she says.

"Of course," he says, taking out another cigar. "You don't mind, you're sure?"

She shakes her head.

"Yes, quite alone. Of course I've got a man, a valet, you know; but a fellow can't make a companion of him. He never speaks unless he's spoken to, but he's a decent fellow. My rooms are up west, near the clubs, you know."

"Clubs?" she says, doubtfully, then the quick, intelligent light flashes into her soft brown eyes. "Ah, yes, I know!"

He nods.

"Yes, I mostly live at them, you know. Always dine at one of them. But my rooms, they're awfully desolate. I've done all I can to make them comfortable, but they are frightfully dull. I'm always glad to get away from them. There never seems anything to do; fancy eating your breakfast with no one to speak to—not a soul. Sometimes my cousin, Clifford Revel, drops in just after on his way to the office, but not always, and I'm left to the paper, which I hate."

"When you've done your breakfast?" she asks, with all the curiosity of an innocent country girl.

"Oh, then, I have the nag around, and take a turn in the park."

"Hyde Park?" she says, hesitatingly.

Lord Edgar stares.

"Yes, I didn't know there was any other—oh—ah, yes! Yes, Hyde Park. Then I come back and send him to the stable and go down to the club and look at the paper."

"You've done that," she says, naively.

He nods and laughs.

"Yes, but I do it again; then some fellow you know drops in and you get to talking about anything—nothing; more often nothing; then lunch-time comes, and you get a chop or a cutlet and a glass of the Boy—"

"The Boy?" she says, puzzled.

"Champagne, you know," he says; "and after that I go for another trot in the park, and perhaps I meet with some one who asks me to dinner, and I go and meet a lot of people I never saw before and never want to see again, and then I look in at the theater, and then I go to the club and somebody proposes a game at backgammon—"

"What's that?" she asks.

"A game with cards; and I play, and lose, and then I go home to bed, and there's an end. It is awfully dull."

She ponders a moment, her long lashes sweeping her cheek.

"It doesn't sound so," she says, demurely.

"But it is!" he says, emphatically. "You try it for a week, and you'll get awfully sick of it! I hate it. I like the country."

She thinks a moment, then she looks up at him.

"This is the country. Why do you not come down here?"

He colors, and examines his cigar with more than needful scrutiny.

"Why? Because I am not asked. My father is—peculiar. I haven't been here for three years. I don't come unless I am asked, and he doesn't wish me to stay when I am here. He doesn't want me to stay now."

"Why do you stay, then?" she asks, innocently.

He flings the cigar into the river, and makes a great pretense of choosing another from the costly case, marked with his initials and crest.

"Oh, because—because—it's such beautiful weather, you know."

"So it is," she says, accepting the reason in the best of faith—"beautiful."

"But I can't stay long; no fellow can stay when he isn't wanted. I must go to-morrow."

A sudden thrill—a cold thrill runs through her, a chill that surprises and puzzles her.

"To-morrow!" she says, vaguely.

He nods.

"Yes, to-morrow. I expect if I stayed longer I should get a polite intimation from Mr. Palmer that I wasn't wanted at the Abbey."

"To-morrow!" she echoes, in a low voice, looking around at the trees and the stream as if she expected them to echo the words. "It is very soon."

"Yes," he admits; "and I don't want to go. I assure you I don't. But I can't stay in a house where I'm not welcome, though it is my father's."

"No," she admits, but faintly. "Perhaps—with a sudden start—"your father, the marquis, would rather that you stayed with him to-day than than walked with me?"

He laughs with a half tone of bitterness.

"My father doesn't care where I go or with whom I walk, so that I don't trouble him."

"I am so sorry," she murmurs, sweetly, so sweetly that he draws a little nearer. "I thought that rich people, lords especially, were always happy, and that the world was made for them!"

"You were wrong," he says; "I am an instance of the contrary."

She looks up at him sympathetically.

"I shall think differently in future," she says.

"Do!" he says. "When you think of a lord, like myself, picture a solitary young fellow living by himself, with scarcely a friend to come to, and finding life a bore. There is no music in the trees for me—not a note. Can you hear it still?"

"What?" she asks.

"The music of the trees."

She listens.

"I can hear the music of the stream. And that reminds me that we ought to cross here. Dear me!"

"What's the matter?" he asks.

"Why, the river is awfully swollen. It is the rain of last week! The stepping-stones are almost covered!"

He looks down at the river and nods assent.

At the point at which they stopped there is a rude and rough ford made of stepping-stones, which the swollen river has nearly obliterated.

"Here is where we ought to cross," she says, her brows knitted with perplexity.

"Not half of the stones are visible," he says. "We shall have to go back."

She pulls out her watch, and consults it thoughtfully.

"Go back!" she says. "Why, it will take a couple of hours! And by that time grandpapa will be in a fit! We must cross it!"

"You will get wet," he says.

She laughs.

"I can't help that! We must cross here," and she runs down the bank, and stands looking at the brawling stream that breaks noiselessly over the stones.

"Let me give you a hand," he says; and standing in the water he extends both hands.

She shrinks back with an exclamation of dismay.

"You are standing in the water!" she says.

He laughs carelessly.

"What does it matter?" he rejoins, looking at her as she holds back from his extended hand. "It won't hurt me, but you must not get wet. Put both your hands in mine, and come slowly."

She hesitates a moment, then puts her small hands into his strong ones, which close over them firmly, and steps onto the first stone.

"Now, then," he says, wading half way toward the next one, "be careful to step firmly. Don't be afraid."

"I'm not afraid!" she says, feeling the firm grip of his hands, which seem to swallow hers and yet to hold them so tenderly.

"Bravo!" he exclaims, as she reaches stone No. 2. "That was first-rate!"

"How deep the water is," she says, ruefully, looking down at his legs, against which the stream is rushing angrily. "How terribly wet you will get."

"Please don't think of me," he says, pleadingly. "It will do me good. Now for the next one."

"It is rather a long way!" she says, doubtfully; but she manages to reach it, and no sooner has done so than she utters a faint cry of dismay.

"What's the matter?" he says, holding her hands tightly and pressing a little nearer.

"Don't you see!" she says, nodding in front of her. "The next stone is under water!"

"By Jove! so it is!" he says.

"What's to be done?"

"I don't know. And I feel as if I were going to fall," she adds, laughingly, but with a little dash of nervous color in her lovely face.

"Lean your arm on my shoulder," he says, coming closer. She does so.

"Lean hard," he insists; "you will feel steadier."

"Thank you—you are very kind; and the water is almost up to your knees!"

"Never mind me!" he repeats.

"What's to be done? Will you go back?"

Even as he makes the suggestion, he knows that it is a useless one, as she could not possibly turn around on the sloping, slippery stone. He knows, too, the answer to that last question—the only way of solving the difficulty. If she were his sister, he should make no more ado but take her up in his arms and carry her across. He could do it as easily as carry a baby. But he dare not even think of it, even to himself! It would be sacrilege. But still, what is to be done? Every moment he feels the arm resting upon his shoulder grow more uncertain and unsteady.

Fashion Plates.

A NEAT DRESS FOR MOTHER'S GIRL.

2744—This model is economical of material and labor. It is easy to develop and suitable for wash fabrics as well as silk and cloth. It is cut to slip over the head. The sleeve may be cut off and finished at elbow length, or made in waist length. Either style has a smart cuff.

A pattern of this illustration mailed 6 and 8 years. Size 4 will require 2½ yards of 40 inch material.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A GOOD SUIT STYLE FOR THE SMALL BOY.

2748—For the blouse, one could use galatea, gingham, drill, or linen; for the trousers, these materials are suitable too, and likewise flannel, serge, velvet and corduroy.

The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 3, 4, 5 and 6 years. Size 4 requires 1½ yards of 27 inch material for the waist, and 1½ yards for the trousers.

PARIS, April 9.

The text of the repatriation clause as approved by the Council of to-day, specified that enemy countries must admit responsibility for all loss and damage to Allied and neutral nations and their citizens to unjustifiable aggression. In the event, however, of the inability of the enemy countries to fully make reparation for these losses, an international commission will assess them on a just basis for thirty years, beginning May 1, 1921, when Germany must pay an initial payment of five hundred million dollars. Germany is to pay the expenses of their commission staff during the thirty years.

POOR PROSPECTS.

PARIS, April 9.

The mission to Hungary, headed by General Jan Christian Smuts, has raised on the prospect of the payment of Hungary of her debts. The mission gained by the commission report states, was that there is some chance of adjustment through friendly negotiations, otherwise it was added it was difficult to say chance whatever.

OFF FOR ARCHANGEL.

TILBURY, England, April 9.

The first transport bearing the British relief force for the Archangel will sail to-night. The members of the contingent began embarking to-day. The new force comprises veteran officers and men who have served in various theatres during the war. It is an army in miniature, every man of the service being represented. Recruiting for further reinforcements for Northern Russia is proceeding satisfactorily.

PARIS, April 9. The first of the reparations clause as approved by the Council of the League of Nations, specified that enemy nations must admit responsibility for all loss and damage to Allied and associated nations and their citizens as a result of the aggression. In view, however, of the inability of the enemy countries to fully make reparation for these losses, an international commission will assess them on a just basis for thirty years, beginning May 1, 1921, when Germany must pay an initial payment of five billion dollars. Germany is to pay the expenses of their commission staff during the thirty years.

FOUR PROSPECTS.

PARIS, April 9. The mission to Hungary, headed by General Jan Christian Smuts, has returned on the prospect of the payment of Hungary of her debts. The information gained by the commission, report states, was that there might be some chance of adjustment through friendly negotiations, other than it was added it was difficult to see any chance whatever.

OFF FOR ARCHANGEL.

TILBURY, England, April 9. The first transport bearing the Archangel relief force for the Archangel will sail to-night. The members of the contingent began embarking to-day. THE GERMAN COLONIES.

LONDON, April 9. (Via Reuter's.)—Lord Leverhulme, addressing the Colonial Institute, said that had Great Britain consented to return the German colonies, she would have been a party to the greatest crime against her own kinsmen in the Dominions. Britain would also have sacrificed the welfare of the natives in those colonies and would have dismembered the Empire. He emphasized the point that the Empire had been built up, not by governments or the Colonial Office, but by individuals. He said the 18th century method of colonization was to kill the backward races. There was a danger to-day of rushing to the other extreme of manly sentimentality and conceding the natives' rights to lands that would not be repaid for by the moment if claimed by a British duke in relation to his broad acres. The necessities of mankind required the use of the land for the benefit of all and the way had been prepared for the breaking up of large estates in Britain. An opportunity for cultivating the lands overseas must be granted with the same fullness as was applied to the acres of any duke in Britain. The highest interests of the natives could only be achieved by opening up British lands to British colonists. Sir Gerald Strickland, ex-Governor of New South Wales, said that Britain's indebtedness could be met if her tropical possessions were properly used. Mesopotamia properly administered could alone pay the cost of the war.

WELL KNOWN CLERIC DEAD.

TORONTO, April 9. Rev. Dr. J. Hazlewood, Methodist Field Secretary of Evangelism and Social Service, died suddenly to-day at his home in this city, from heart failure. He was born at Brockville, Ont., and was in his 62nd year. His wife, one daughter and four sons survive, all the sons having served in the Canadian Expeditionary force.

NO VISIT CONTEMPLATED.

LONDON, April 9. No official visit to the United States at any portion of the British fleet is contemplated at present. This announcement was made in the House of Commons to-day in answer to a question by T. J. MacNamara, Parliamentary Under Secretary to the Admiralty.

SOCIETY WEDDING.

OTTAWA, April 9. The marriage of Lady Blanche Cavendish, second daughter of their excellencies the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire, to Capt. Ivan Cobbold, son of Mr. J. H. and Lady Evelyn Cobbold, has been arranged to take place in London, England, on Wednesday, April 30th. Shortly following the ceremony, the Duchess of Devonshire will return to Canada.

ARABIAN KING'S TITLE.

PARIS, April 9. The Arabian King of the Hedjaz, who aided the Allies' campaign against the Turks in Palestine, has just issued in Mecca a manifesto claiming for himself the title of "Commander of the Faithful" which has been among the titles of the Sultan of Turkey. The King says a great many of his subjects already have given him this title.

PREPARING FOR ANOTHER ATTACK.

LONDON, April 9. The Bolsheviks, although they have been repulsed with heavy losses on three sectors of the front south of Archangel, in the last week, are believed to be preparing for a further offensive on the Vologda railway sector, an official statement from the British War Office on operations in North Russia, says. Last week enemy attacks failed on the Obokerskaya sectors, the Volga railway sector and near Sred Mekhrenska.

RAILWAY EARNINGS.

WASHINGTON, April 9. Railroad net earnings for February, reported officially to-day by the interstate commerce commission, were $10,106,000, with revenue at $35,194,000, expenses of $37,425,000. These figures are only slightly different from the unofficial report made last week.

BELGIUM'S ECONOMIC CONDITION.

PARIS, April 9. Belgium must have complete reparation if the serious economic situation there is to be improved and Belgian industry is to regain its feet, M. Vandervelde, Belgian Minister of Justice and Socialist leader, declared to-day in an interview in the Temps. The number of unemployed in Belgium is about 700,000 and the number of persons who have to be assisted by the Government is about 230,000.

KRUPP PLANT SEIZED.

COPENHAGEN, April 8. German government troops are marching on Essen where a collision has occurred between strikers and the Christian workers' organization. The strikers have occupied the Krupp munition plant, the message adds.

TWO TREATIES WITH BAVARIA.

PARIS, April 9. Peace circles are apprehensive over Bavaria adopting a Soviet Government. It is felt here it may be necessary to have one treaty with Germany and another with Bavaria.

THE "BOLS" AGAIN.

LONDON, April 9. An official statement here says the disorders on the Russian front were planned by Finnish and Bolshevik troops. The disturbance was not of political significance, the statement adds.

THE HUNS' EXCUSE.

BERLIN, April 7. The shortage of coal owing to strikes is given officially as the reason for Germany's inability to pay for Entente food supplies. The announcement says if the coal production continues to falter, thus preventing the manufacture of articles wanted abroad, "German economic life must collapse before autumn, and the food situation will be worse than ever."

FREE FOR ALL.

PARIS, April 9. The report on regulations and restrictions to be imposed upon communications in enemy states in order that newly created nations in Central Europe may have access to the sea, has been completed for the Peace Conference by the Commission on regulation of ports, waterways and railroads. Freedom of transportation through Germany and Austria, and equality of treatment in ports and harbours has been provided for, as has been international regulations of traffic over the Rhine and Danube rivers.

ANOTHER STRIKE THREATENED.

ROME, April 8. The Rome Council of the General Federation of Labor has decided upon a general strike to last twenty-five hours.

A GERMAN APPEAL.

PARIS, April 8. At the latest session of the German Cabinet Council, the Government considered the possibility of making an appeal to the Allied armies to maintain order in Germany, the Zurich correspondent of Le Journal reports. Gen. Humbert, former commander of the French third army, may be appointed "commander of the Allied troops in Central Europe."

PAYMENT ON ACCOUNT DEMANDED.

PARIS, April 9. The preliminary peace treaty will require Germany to make an immediate indemnity payment on account of 25,000,000,000 francs in cash and raw materials.

BANKERS' STRIKE.

BERLIN, April 9. The employees of the Armstader Bank went on strike to-day.

LEFT FOR HOME.

SYDNEY, N.S., April 9. The steamship Sagona sailed at noon to-day from Sydney with 100 Reservists returning to their homes in Newfoundland after four years' service overseas. Some of them were decorations.

WILL CARRY OUT PLEDGE.

LONDON, April 9. Premier Lloyd George has addressed a message to the members of Parliament saying, "My colleagues and I mean to stand faithfully by all the pledges which we gave our constituents. We are prepared at any moment to submit to the judgment of Parliament, and if necessary of the country, our efforts loyally to redeem our promises." The Premier's message was in reply to a telegram sent to Mr. Lloyd George yesterday, signed by 200 members of the House of Commons, holding the Premier "to his election pledge to exact the utmost indemnity from Germany. The movement was initiated by a group of Conservative members under the belief that it would strengthen the Premier's hand at the conference.

In Memoriam.

No man was better known in his native town, than the late James Cox, the old pioneer postal clerk, whose remains his many colleagues followed in loving memory and respect to their last resting place at Belvidere, after receiving the final rites of holy church, that church which he loved so well and was devoted to from early childhood. Mr. Cox was for 38 years, an honest and trusted official of the General Post Office, his reputation as a competent and accurate worker was attested, his value and worth and great services were of no late day sequence; he was one of the few old employees who understood the responsibility of his position and office, and to whom duty meant a call to your post, at any and every hour of the twenty-four, Sundays and holidays included, was never absent, though extra pay for overtime—even from night till morning—was a thing unknown. James Cox's honesty and early training in P. O. work entrusted and fitted him, as time went on, to every help and place in the many branches of the department; and his marked application to work and general disposition, won for him the confidence and good-will of his superiors as well as the public in general, by whom no official was better understood and respected. the number of the too few old officials left, will not help to advance the service anything, as no business mercantile or civil, is made better or safer by the demise or withdrawal of an old, honest and trusted servant. Poor Cox certainly died in harness, as he was at his post a few days before his demise. No enemy had he on earth, and the myriads who knew him are sorry for his passing. He was a life-long member of the Holy Name Society, and more than a quarter of a century ago held office in its ranks, under its then Spiritual Director, the Rev. Fr. Fitzgerald, now of Brooklyn, N.Y. He was also a member of the B. I. Society, who with the Holy Name attended as a body guard at his funeral. Mr. Cox died after a very brief illness and was conscious up to the moment of his death; he was resigned throughout to the Will of God, and received all the consolations of his church. To his sorrowing wife, who feels his loss the most, the writer ejaculates: May his soul rest in peace.—Amen.

Presidents and Their Pay

It seems as though President Ebert will draw his salary every month, like President Wilson, but unlike President Poincaré, who is paid on quarterly. Castro, who was President of Venezuela for nine years, used to make the Treasury pay him daily. When elected, his salary was fixed at $23,800 a year, payable monthly. On drawing his first month's pay Castro told the Minister of Finance that henceforth he must send him $20 in gold every morning, "that being the best way to make sure of my salary in this revolution-ridden land." During the nine years of his Presidency exchange funds often ran low, but the autocrat's daily wage was always forthcoming, as he warned each successive Minister of Finance that failure to provide it would mean summary dismissal.

TRIUMPHAL MARCH.

LONDON, April 9. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency)—Replying to Lord Denham in the House of Lords today, Under Secretary, Viscount Peel, said it had been decided that there would be a triumphal march of the overseas troops through London, but pending the working out of particulars he would be unable to announce the precise date. It would be taken into consideration whether the march should consist of complete units, with guns and transport and full equipment. Lord Harcourt hoped no time would be lost, as thousands of Australians and Canadians were proceeding home daily. He hoped that representatives of the troops from the Crown Colonies, of which many were colored, as for instance the West Indies, would be included, in order that they might receive a tribute to the sacrifices they had made. Viscount Peel said the Government quite appreciated the point, and the overseas troops included men from the Crown Colonies.

QUIET IN EGYPT.

LONDON, April 9. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency)—At question time in the House of Commons, under Secy. T. B. Harmsworth stated that the latest information was that the situation in Egypt was quiet. No further disturbances had occurred since the rioting in Cairo of April 5. An issue of a periodical official statement regarding the situation, is being arranged.

OPTIMISTIC FEELING.

PARIS, April 9. The feeling in military and strategic quarters, concerning evacuation of Odessa is optimistic.

WILL NOT NEGOTIATE.

LONDON, April 10. An adjournment of the House was moved to-day, calling attention to the alleged offer from Lenin, through Americans, Clem Edwards, Bottomley, and other speakers strongly objected to negotiations with Bolsheviks.

James Thomas deprecated discussion as likely to embarrass Paris negotiations and Anglo-American accord. Shortt, speaking for the Government, said there was no desire to avoid discussion with Russia, but there was no Government in Russia to-day worthy of the name with which to confer. He thought the alleged proposal was German propaganda.

NEW SERVICE.

MONTREAL, April 10. The Board of Trade decides to take up with the Department of trade and Commerce the matter of a proposed Steamship Service between Montreal and Newfoundland.

BOTH PROHIBITED.

ROME, April 10. The authorities have prohibited the general strike arranged for to-day by Socialists, in memory of Red week in Berlin, and in celebration of Lenin's birthday. Counter demonstration arranged by pro-war Socialists was also prohibited.

NEW TREATY.

PARIS, April 10. Provision has been made for most favored nation treatment in Germany and a Customs system for Allied countries, and a single tariff, with no discriminations, based on the flag of the carrying vessels, will be incorporated in the Peace Treaty, according to provisional agreement.

SOVEREIGNTY UNCHANGED.

PARIS, April 10. The Council of four decides to leave the sovereignty over the Serre Valley unchanged, but accords to France, duty free, sufficient coal for the Lorraine iron industry, and to replace production of mines destroyed in the Lens district, with the privilege to Germany of restoring the Lens mines and so relieving the Serre Valley of the charge involved.

TROOPS TAKE RUFF WORKS.

BERLIN, April 10. It is reported that diplomatic relations have been established between the Russian and Bavarian Soviet governments. Government troops are reported to have entered Essen, and to have seized the Krupp works which were in possession of the strikers.

Bluff!

"It's true—I've heard the same before, If Dinny hadn't gone across, Red battle-banners still would roar, And earth be filled with war and loss.

"It's true, he told us yestere'en, That with the mighty men of State He stood, and figured that the war Would last till Nineteen Twenty—straight.

And if it did, he wouldn't now, Be singing in election song— You're hee-dooed man, you've flaked the row, The war's collapse has put you wrong.

But now the Armistice is on: And still he says that he must stay And hold his place as leader brave, "Its picnics and its extra pay."

Yes, he is brave (I) the way he struts, And hammers on the desk is fine; You'd know he smelled some powder when He visited the battle line.

Great is your need for nerve, and great The stress your cowering colleagues feel; Walsh, of Placentia, plainly showed The hole through which you tried to steal.

Your doom is sealed, you're up a tree, A rotten tree, YOUR DAY IS DONE, The Pates are on your trail, you're caught, And yet your noble—as the Hun.

Your grand imperialistic pose Is Kaiser like in rottenness: And Kaiser like you shall go down— Your bluff can't hide your dire distress.

You now must face the country's wrath, Beware "the broken line," "the Day." It matters little if they come In early or in later May.

TOBY.

S. U. F. Club.

The monthly meeting of the S.U.F. Club was held on Wednesday night. A large number attended, and several outport members were present. The secretary showed that the club was constantly adding to its membership, and that although the club was practically in its infancy, yet already arrangements were being made for bringing the rooms into better condition. It is proving, beyond a doubt, of benefit to the outport brethren, and its usefulness will increase as time goes on. After the meeting some light refreshments were served and later the members indulged in the customary club doings, until the hour of closing. Members of the S.U.F. when visiting the city, should attend this club which has been instituted chiefly for their benefit.

Icefield Location.

The following message sent from a United States ship to s.s. Meigle, was intercepted and received by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to-day: "Icefield extends from three miles off Cape Race to western side Cape Pine; icefield about a mile wide. From two miles west of Cape Pine to Greater St. Lawrence Harbor, no field ice; several large bergs about 8 miles off coast; to clear fields go around to eastward and south head of Cape Pine.

From the Sealers.

The following messages received by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries last evening: S.S. Terra Nova—Crew on board; all well. S.S. Eagle—All on board and well. S.S. Ranger—Crew on board; all well; Eagle towing us. Further messages received to-day stated the s.s. Eagle with 15,000 seals on board, was proceeding to port with the Ranger in tow.

First Sealer Arrives.

From messages received by the Deputy Minister of Customs, we learn that the Minnie D. T. Keeping, master, has arrived at Port aux Basques from the Gulf with 410 old seals. She states that she has heard nothing from the others of the sealing fleet, since early in the spring, and that the weather has been very stormy.

Shipping News.

The Garfield has entered Marytown to load cod oil for Boston. The Stella H., 29 days from Gibraltar, has arrived in port, salt laden to Jas. Baird, Ltd. The S. S. War-Mohawk sailed this morning for Halifax. The Ethel M. Bartlett has sailed from St. Lawrence with a cargo of salt bulk fish for Gloucester. Schrs. Jean Campbell and Meditation are on their way to the port molasses laden from Barbados. Schrs. Sunset Glow is loading codfish at Belloram for Alicante. The Clintons is undergoing repairs at the Azores. The tug La Canadienne was at the scene of the wrecked Appenine yesterday, getting ready to try and refloat her. With fine weather and off-shore winds, there is every prospect of getting the ship off. She is still in the same position as when she struck. Minard's Liniment Cures Diphtheria.

"It is such a nuisance being g-tted down, so that you can't get into town," a woman said to me the other day. "Now, the children were crazy for one of those sets of materials to make valentines with that they had at D's, and it would have been so nice for me to have had it. I simply can't get off." "You didn't order it by telephone or mail?" I asked. "Oh, I couldn't," she said. "I mean she wouldn't." "Which is it 'Went' or 'Can't'?" "I realize that it is a pretty strong argument for me to make about an-er's affairs. As I have said in these columns before, we are often wrong in estimating what another person can or cannot do. Had it been something personal taste and selection was required in buying, she would have some justification. But it wasn't.

Thinks It Can't Be Done. The explanation is, that she is one of those people who never had the habit of doing things by mail or telephone, and hence have an idea it can't be done. I think there are a great many of these people. And I think they make mistakes in not using these channels of communication as well as the common method of personal contact. I speak with some authority, for it is only within the last few years that I have adopted this habit myself, and can't tell you how much it has saved.

THE HILLS OF TO-MORROW.

The hills of to-morrow are waiting for us—a little bit farther to go— And now as we stand on the peaks of to-day a hint of their beauty we know; We catch but a glimpse of the splendours to be with the birth of another new day. And the joys we shall claim and the goals we shall reach if only we keep on the way.

Behind us are strewn like the wreckage of ships the things that we thought we should need. There are customs and manners and habits thrown out and many an old-fashioned creed. For the higher we climb the more clearly we see and we change as we broaden our view. And the cumbersome burdens we carried of old we drop for the things that are new.

We're not what we were when our journey began, we have grown through the ages of night. We have lightened our packs of the errors they held as wisely we've climbed to the right. We have changed in our value of silver and gold, to our children new lessons we teach. For ever we turn from the false to the true as the hills of to-morrow we reach.

Household Notes.

In using canned vegetables for cream soups, the liquor should be discarded. Milk can be cleaned with a cloth dipped in equal parts of water and vinegar. Thick blotting paper under doilies will prevent hot dishes from marking the table. Worn table napkins are useful for drying the lettuce, when preparing it for salad.

Shell Eating Fish.

Scientists have much difficulty in settling the point as to whether the light of day penetrates the obscure depths of the sea; and the fact that some animals found at a depth exceeding 700 fathoms have no eyes, or a very faint indication of them, while others possess very large and protruding eyes, helps to make the dispute all the more lively.

When the inhabitants of the lower depths of the ocean possess any colour at all, that colour is usually orange or red, or reddish-orange. The surface of submarine mountains is strewn with shells, like the virgin seashore, showing that it is the feasting-place of vast shoals of carnivorous animals.

When a codfish eats, it takes an oyster in its mouth, cracks the shell, digests the meat, and ejects the shell. Crabs crack the shell of their smaller neighbors, and suck out the meat. This accounts for the mounds of shells which are found beneath the waves. And, as further illustrating the constant destruction going on in the ocean depth it is said that if a ship sinks at sea with all on board, it will be eaten by the fish, with the exception of its metal portions, and not a single bone of its crew will remain longer than a few days.

Schools and Their Customs.

The majority of public schools still keep various old customs that have been in existence since the foundation of the school itself. At Rugby, custom forbids a boy of less than three years' standing to turn up his trousers, and every new arrival at Marlborough requires a "kick," which is really a cushion, and his inseparable companion in school-time.

Every Shrove Tuesday the Westminster School boys toss a pancake, and the successful competitor in the ensuing scramble for the largest fragment receives a guinea from the headmaster.

Shrewsbury School is notable for its "hall elections," at the beginning of each term, for the posts of hall-crier, hall-constable, hall-postman, and hall-scavenger; and new boys at Rugby must either sing or swallow a mouthful of soapy water.

Unique House.

Goodward's famous "Shell House," which has recently been entered by burglars, is unique of its kind. Another unique dwelling-house is that locally known as "Teapot Hall," near Horncliffe. It was built in the shape of a teapot by the captain of one of the old fast-sailing tea clipped engaged in the China trade years ago.

A house that is more than half boat exists near Gravesend, and is locally said to be the original of Peggoty's boat-house at Yarmouth, described by Charles Dickens in "David Copperfield." Dickens lived for some years, it will be remembered, in the neighborhood of Gravesend.

Flowers and the Weather.

Many flowers are excellent barometers. For instance, it is when the blooms of dandelions have seeded and are in the fluffy, feathery condition, that the weather-forecast faculties come to the fore. In fine weather the ball expands to the full, but when the rain approaches it shuts up like an umbrella. If the weather is inclined to be showery, it keeps shut all the time, only opening when the danger from the wet is passed.

The ordinary clover and all its varieties, including shamrock, are the barometers. When rain is coming the leaves shut together like the shells of an oyster. For a day or two before rain comes their stems swell to an appreciable extent, and stiffen so that the leaves are borne more uprightly than usual. This stem swelling when rain is expected is a feature of many flowering grasses.

The fingers of which the leaves of the horse-chestnut are made up keep flat and fanlike so long as the fine weather-is likely to continue. With the coming of rain, however, they droop, as if to offer less resistance to the weather. The scarlet pimpernel is known as the poor man's weather-glass, and opens its flowers only when it is fine.

The Laughing Plant.

There is a curious plant that grows in Arabia and is known as the "laughing plant."

This name comes from the fact that anyone who eats its seed cannot control his laughter. The natives of the district where the plant grows dry the seeds, and reduce them to powder. A small dose of this powder makes those who eat it act in a very strange manner. The soberest person will dance, shout, and laugh like a madman, and rush about cutting the most ridiculous capers for an hour.

At the end of this time the reaction comes. The dancer is exhausted, and a deep sleep comes upon him. After a nap of several hours he awakens, with no recollection of the antics he has performed.

SPRING SOUNDS.

If o' pleasant are the sounds of spring, when roosters crow and hornets sting, and all the skies are bright! The music of the babbling stream is like a song heard some long winter night. The wind t' h a rustles through the trees is singing of the sunny seas from which it doubtless came; there are no wintry blasts to roar around the shaking cottage door, with their cheap arctic game. But all the sounds are sweet and soothing, they unite to heal and soothe the wounds that winter made; and so we whistle as we go to ply the muzzie loading hoe, and do things with a spade. I hear the honest watchdog bark as he attempts to leave his mark upon the agile cats; I hear the bearded farmer swear while currying the old bay mare, which kicks him in the slats. I hear the dippy ducks cry "Quack," as though some doc were near their shack, all loaded down with pills; I hear the bleating of the sheep, the distant lowing, long and deep, of cattle on the hills. It is a chorus glad and gay, the music of a bright spring day, made up of many sounds; the creaking of the rusty plow, the shrieking of the hungry sow, the baying of the hounds.

The Dictator's Slate.

The edict has been issued; the fiat gone forth that the slate of Government candidates for the districts in the forthcoming election shall be mainly members and officials of the Fishermen's Protective Union.

Mr. Currie introduced the Citizens' resolutions for a later date for nomination day and made an eloquent speech in support of same.

The Dictator spread himself as usual and waxed eloquent and impassioned. He did not, however, tell the House why he had issued his slate of candidates without the consent of the CASHIN-CROSBIE section.

Mr. Walsh was in great form and the applause from the gallery testified to the appreciation of the lieges, as the member for Placentia scored point after point against the Government.

people of France how to run their country, that we may safely leave him between the Scylla of his whimsical friends and the Charybdis of his own ambitions.

Meanwhile it is up to the Prime Minister to assert himself. He has, too, as has been said a tool in the hands of the President of the F. P. U.

Observed at the House.

The petition contingent was very much in evidence at yesterday's session of the Assembly, and some rattling good speeches were made by various members in support of prayer, roads and bridge grants, Public Buildings, Dredge services, Light Houses, Timber Preservation, and the prevention of indiscriminate "ringing" of tree trunks by the inhabitants of a portion of Twillingate district.

Mr. Currie introduced the Citizens' resolutions for a later date for nomination day and made an eloquent speech in support of same.

Mr. Bennett sang his swan song in a lengthy oration, during which many of his colleagues left the house. The honorable member for St. John's West declared himself to be the "father of the Coalition Government" (not the National, be it understood) and severely lectured the press for daring to criticise the actions of the patriots.

The Dictator spread himself as usual and waxed eloquent and impassioned.

Mr. Walsh was in great form and the applause from the gallery testified to the appreciation of the lieges, as the member for Placentia scored point after point against the Government.

The atmosphere of the House on the Government side was surcharged with electricity and many were the coming and goings of ministers, following the appearance of the Advocate containing the ultimatum of the Dictator.

The Majestic.

As was expected, a large crowd turned up at the Majestic last evening to see the splendid 8 reel picture, "The Cub." The "despatches" of the new cub-reporter in his paper in New York were read with great amusement, and it was no surprise when the "sacked" notice came. The picture is lively and interesting throughout, and will be seen again to-night with pleasure.

KE THROUGH POLICE LINES. New York, March 25.—Before the more than two million people of the famous Twenty-Seventh District paraded to-day up Fifth Avenue, about 20,500 men, it was estimated, marched in the parade, which three hours to pass in review. The head of the column rode a lion of mounted police, and after there came an artillery caisson drawn by six bay horses. On this caisson draped in the American flag a coffin symbolical of the supreme sacrifice that nearly 2,000 of the Irishmen had made in the war. The flag that covered the coffin was buried in flowers, great bunches of which were carried by every city and town in New York State that had given men in the Twenty-seventh. Following the caisson came an guard of honor, made up of veterans who bore a great white silken banner, on which appeared in gold letters one for every man of the war who gave his life for his country. The crowds everywhere re-

Joy Crazy Crowds.

THROUGH POLICE LINES. New York, March 25.—Before the parade of more than two million persons in the famous Twenty-Seventh Division, paraded to-day up Fifth Avenue, about 20,500 men, it was estimated, took three hours to pass in review. At the head of the column rode a team of mounted police, and after them came an artillery caisson with six bay horses. On this caisson draped in the American flag a coffin symbolical of the sacrifice that nearly 2,000 of the fallen O'Ryan's men had made in France. The flag that covered the coffin was buried in flowers, great wreaths and beautiful wreaths, representing every city and town in the New York State that had given men to the Twenty-seventh.

Following the caisson came a guard of honor, made up of veterans who bore a great white silk banner, on which appeared in gold stars—one for every man of the regiment who gave his life for his country. The crowds everywhere remained standing in silence until the caisson, and the gold starred emblem of supreme sacrifice had passed.

Next came the wounded men, those who are still incapacitated. There were more than 400 automobiles, and in each were from three to five men, a great majority of them 27th veterans, but in one machine with three American comrades was a wounded Britisher in the uniform of an English regiment.

It seemed as though all New York with thousands from other States, were there, and so vast was the throng and so great its delirium of joy and enthusiasm, that the police were helpless and at several points along the line were overwhelmed.

At the Victory Arch in Madison Square, they lost all control of the vast throng which surged forward, entirely blocking the line of the parade. Here the automobiles carrying the wounded were almost overturned, and the police, charging into the throng, used clubs, as well as their hands and weight, upon men and women alike. Further up Fifth Avenue the same riotous scenes were enacted. Soldiers, sailors, civilians, even women, were called on to clasp hands and keep the surging crowds back, but at the Victory Arch, and above that to Thirtieth Street, at the Public Library and for two or three blocks in the Seventies, the joy-crazed throng flowed over into New York's Way of Triumph, so that at places the formation was reduced to a column of squads, and just below Thirtieth Street to single file, so little room was left for the marching men.

There were deaths from heart disease, caused by the excitement, and falls from lofty perches. Women fainted in the crush, but did not fall, the tightly wedged through holding up their bodies. Gowns and coats were trampled beyond recognition, and children hurt.

Never in the history of the city has there been such a crowd, and never in the history of the city has a crowd got so far beyond the control of the police. Dismounted policemen thrust and jabbed without avail. Mounded men tried to use their well-trained horses; even automobiles were used to force back the crowd.

At least two persons lost their lives and hundreds were injured, many of them seriously. One police captain died of heart failure as a result of the crush. Another death was that of Cornelius Saperstein, an eighteen-year old youth, who fell through a skylight while watching the parade from a roof of No. 435 Fifth Avenue, and was instantly killed.

The "Twopenny Detective."

Great difficulty has often been experienced by detectives, lawyers, clerks, and others in obtaining an undoubted specimen of a person's signature. In one case recourse had to be made to a marriage register; in another the only signature procurable was on the fly-leaf of a book which the suspect had presented to a relative, and only two or three years ago a testimonial to a sea captain was brought into court, because among signatures to it was one for "which the police had long hunted in vain."

One of the most common resources for overcoming this difficulty is employing the "twopenny detective"— that is, sending a registered letter to the person whose signature is wanted. This is frequently successful. Thinking the postal packet contains money or valuables, the address unsuspectingly signs the receipt, only to discover that inside the envelope there is nothing but a "faked" letter.

This trap once caught an anonymous letter-writer—a woman—who, on being interrogated shortly before, had declared that she could not write, and whose friends believed her to be illiterate. It was, in fact, mainly instrumental in getting her six months' imprisonment. It should be carefully noted that the receipt for a registered letter is not given up to anybody, but can be obtained only in certain cases to further the ends of justice. Why women wear veils.

"SEIZING THINGS"—Believe what you see, but see things as others do. If you have eye troubles to-day what can you expect ten years hence, if neglected. What do you value if not your eye sight! H. B. THOMSON, Optometrist, Office and residence, No. 4 Kimberley Row, opp. Star Hall, apt. 4.

Wheeled Into Parliament.

Limbless M.P.'s.

Major J. B. Cohen, M.P. for Fairfield, who lost both his legs in the recent war, addressed the House recently, and was allowed to deliver his speech sitting in his place in the Commons.

The gallant Major has to be wheeled to his duties in the House. But he is not the first M.P. who has thus had to be taken to St. Stephen's. The late Arthur Kavanagh, an Irish member, who rose to be a Right Honorable, was even more seriously handicapped, for he had no limbs at all. From early boyhood he resolutely determined to overcome this terrible disability. Not only did he win a seat in Parliament and attend fairly regularly, but he also rode to hounds, being strapped on the back of his horse! Mr. Kavanagh was always taken to Parliament in a chair on wheels, and sat thus on the floor of the House, or was lifted into a seat there.

The famous Fenian leader, Mr. Mi-chief Davitt, was minus the left arm; and the pathetic sight of that empty sleeve when the fiery orator was thrilling the House with stories of the woes Ireland had endured in bygone days did as much as his brilliant speeches to win sympathy for the Green Isle.

The Right Hon. Henry Fawcett, who gave us the parcel post and many other notable innovations whilst he was postmaster General, was quite blind from soon after coming of age, yet he learned to skate, to hunt, to fish just as if he had the use of his eyes! He was elected to Parliament, rose rapidly till he became a Minister, and used much to delight the House (ever ready for a joke!) by saying, when he had to reply to some persistent M.P.: "I see the honorable member is in his place as usual," etc.

MINARD'S LINDENT CURES DISTEMPER.

Make your Motoring season an enjoyable one by owning the Car that all other motorists look upon with envy—the Buick Six is the most envied car in St. John's.

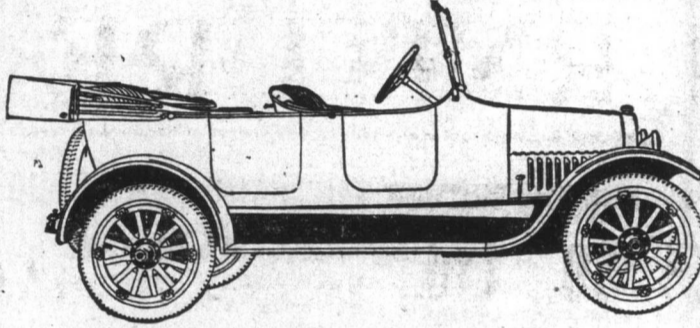

The Buick is always ready to take you anywhere you desire to go—it never falters.

When you press the starting pedal of the Buick, you are assured immediate response—the Delco starter is always on the job to turn over your engine every time you require it.

Buick Cars are luxuriously equipped, and upholstered in genuine black leather—no imitation. Strength of construction is an inherent quality of all Buicks. With the new Sixty Horsepower Valve in Head engine sixty miles an hour is easily accomplished, besides hills are made short work of.

A new and valuable feature is the entirely enclosed valves and engine, thus keeping out all grit and dust and giving longer life to the car, consequently the Engine is noiseless.

We shall be happy to let you look over our 1915 Buick Six which recently arrived—you will be convinced why it is the most envied car once you have examined it.

At the House.
(Yesterday.)
The House, meeting at 3 p.m. yesterday, petitions were presented by Mr. J. R. Goodison (Carbonear), from Victoria, for public buildings; by Mr. A. B. Morine (Bonavista), from various parts of Bonavista Bay on the bay steamship service; by Mr. J. F. Downey (St. George's) from South Branch for a bridge; by Mr. J. G. Stone (Trinity), on the subject of roads; by Mr. Jennings (Trillington), from numerous places in that district on the subject of roads and the preservation of timber; by Mr. Winsor (Bonavista), on the subject of a lighthouse and dredge; and by the Prime Minister from Bonavista and Horse Islands on the coastal service.

Mr. J. S. Currie (Barr), then presented the resolutions passed at the mass meeting held on Friday night, asking for delay in the date of the general election, the clerk reading them to the House. Mr. Currie felt it an honor to be entrusted by the citizens of St. John's to present the resolutions. They were the spontaneous expressions of a large majority of the citizens of St. John's, and were in every sense the resolutions of the people, and not emanating from politicians. All the resolutions asked for was that both parties be given a fair chance to discuss the record of the Government on the public platforms of the eighteen districts of the country, and for the candidates to be given ample time to become acquainted with the voters of the districts. It was apparent to all that this could not be done if the election took place on May 8th or any date near that decided upon by the Government. Coming from a large body of citizens, the resolutions should be respected as such. The prime objection to an early election was that there would not be time enough between the issuing of the proclamation and polling day, to give the necessary mature consideration to the issues that would be placed before the country. The Prime Minister had estimated a day or so ago that no date had yet been set for the election, and that it would be delayed sufficiently to permit the soldiers now overseas to return home and record their votes. From enquiries he had made he had been unable to see how those men could be brought home in time to vote in an election to be held so early in May. The soldiers had been thought good enough to go across and fight and risk their lives for liberty and exercise of their right to vote should not be denied them. In 1909, twenty-eight days' notice was given, but that election was unique and made necessary by conditions that do not now exist. No surprise was sprung on the people then and they were fully familiar with the issues of the contest. He had much pleasure in giving the resolutions his heartiest support.

Mr. A. B. Morine (Bonavista), thought that the resolutions should be treated with the utmost respect, as they were the spontaneous expressions of the citizens of St. John's. The changes in the parties of the past two years have also brought about a change in the way people have of expressing themselves. The popular way now was to call a public meeting and show forth the public sentiment by a series of resolutions. He thought that a mistake had been made by the citizens and others in thinking that the Act stated that the Governor, in person, selected the date of an election and that he was solely responsible. The constitutional position was that the responsible ministers advised the Governor in this as in every other instance, and the Governor was bound to accept the advice of his ministers or get other ministers who would tender him other advice. The Governor was, therefore, in no way responsible for the date of the election but the responsibility lay on his ministers and they alone should shoulder the blame, if blame there be. This is a democratic country, and to say that the Governor could set a date for a general election without getting the advice of his ministers was destroying the very principle of Responsible Government that our fathers had fought for. He thought it only fair to His Excellency that he should say this, and he said it also in the interests of democracy and responsible government. The Prime Minister, Sir Wm. Lloyd, is the man to tender the advice to the Governor as to whether he accedes to the request of the citizens or not, and on him and the Government, and him in particular, must the responsibility rest. In connection with the resolutions he would support them because he was against the spring election in toto. He supported a fall election for various reasons which he had already stated in the House. The question with him was how much intelligence would the voter be able to exercise in the casting of his vote if an election was held early in May. In some instances he would not have even the opportunity of seeing his candidate and it was not fair to ask him to vote for a man he had never seen. He had no opportunity of discussing the record of the Government. They had been in power for nearly two years but the electors had no opportunity of judging how they had exercised that power. The people ought to know them through the public accounts and how often they knew them through these as they were not tabled at this ses-

LIFT OFF CORNS!
Freezone is magic! Corns lift off with fingers without pain

Hurt? No, not one bit! Just drop a little Freezone on that touchy corn, instantly it stops aching, and you lift that bothersome corn right off. Yes, magic! Costs only a few cents.

Try Freezone! Your druggist sells a tiny bottle, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without one particle of pain, core-ness or irritation. Freezone is the mysterious new discovery of a Cincinnati genius.

Other information also should be forthcoming at this session by the means of which the people could draw conclusions as to their record, but no information was forthcoming. The Prime Minister's manifesto cannot be debated in the Legislature. He had no hesitation in saying that any election held in May was a disfranchisement of the people of this country along the lines laid down by him. Money bills should be put through, and he could see where disaster was ahead if we were not careful. He asked the Premier to introduce his loan bills and before the election make the country safe financially. The election could go on, but financial matters that were so urgent should be introduced and put through.

Mr. J. R. Bennett (St. John's West), had given the matter deep consideration. The resolutions were worthy of the best thought and respect of all. It was a mistake to belittle the movement as had been done in some quarters. He would not in the least disparage it. Some of those who were present at the meeting were our best citizens. He had seen the parade and it impressed him very much. They were a body of decent, orderly, law-abiding citizens on the way to Government House to lay their grievances before the Governor, and they had a perfect right to do so. He thought it a great blunder to belittle or in any way besmirch them, and he deprecated any such spirit as that. On the other hand the Govt. had given consideration to the request of the citizens and, as they thought, in the best interests of the country, advised the Governor that an early election was best.

The Prime Minister said that it should not for one moment be thought that any disrespect was shown the petition, but on the other hand it had received full consideration. No final date had yet been fixed, but the Government had decided that polling day would be earlier in May than it could help.

Mr. Walsh (Placentia), supported the resolutions in a rattling speech that brought considerable applause. He observed that the Prime Minister and Mr. Bennett had taken the presentation of these resolutions as the occasion to deliver their funeral orations. It was not often that this was done by the corpse, but in this case both gentlemen had done it just before they passed off the stage of political action. He referred to the formation of the National Government, and later the stepping out of Lord Morris and the stepping in of Dr. Lloyd as a great piece of political jobbery, the like of which had never before been practiced in this country. He took issue with Mr. Bennett when he said that the unanimous decision of both parties was to form a coalition government. As far as he was concerned, he was never a party to it, and had broken with the government as soon as he was acquainted with the jobbery that was practiced. He did not for one moment think that the advice tendered the Governor by the government was legal advice, as the Prime Minister was never elected as such by the people, and the government as a whole was in power without the consent of the electors of the country, and how could their advice be worth anything. The advice tendered by such a Ministry should be repudiated by the public of the country, as they had by no means the confidence of the people. The government was then severely criticized for its neglect of the railway and the way it had allowed the contractor to do as he pleased and neglect the roadbed and rolling stock. The utterances of the Colonial Secretary in this regard a day or two ago when he made the statement that the road was not safe for human transportation was, without parallel in this or any other country. They could not make the contractor live up to his obligations when they were accepting favors at his hands, and were acting in conjunction with the Reids in political matters. He did not object to a spring election as far as he was concerned, because he was well known in his district and had a thorough acquaintance with it, but such was not the case with new men, and it was not fair to them to send them to districts with which they were unacquainted. It was all right for Union men, who had their Councils, etc., which were to them committees working all the time for them. He closed by asking the Prime Minister to table the public accounts. He had no use for flowery speeches about trips, etc., and adopt a policy of do-nothing beyond trying to conceive a plan to get back in power. He gave his hearty support to the resolutions.

Mr. Walsh's address was heartily applauded by the visitors in the galleries.

Mr. Coaker closed the debate with some brief remarks, and the House adjourned till this afternoon.

Observed at the Council.
Many excellent precepts were enumerated by Hon. Mr. Mews yesterday evening, the chief of which was "Don't waste time." We are glad indeed that there is one member in the Legislature that is bawling the mispent time of the present Government, and now stands forward and declares in no uncertain voice, "Don't waste time." We won't. The poor President is spending a very unpleasant period, if his irritability is in anyway suggestive. Yesterday afternoon he was most circumspect in trying to preserve the order of the House, but as Mr. Gibbs persisted in speaking the Hon. President merely lay back in a recumbent attitude, assuming the pose of injured pride, and that look of fatherly forbearance for which the gentleman is so well known.

Hon. Mr. Ellis, the leader of the present mis-government had his doubts as to the power of the Government to put the railway into a safe condition. We say the same, for as long as the present clique is playing second fiddle, then so long must the present railway conditions continue, and Mr. Ellis's own words are explicable of the position the party holds and also accounts for the apathy of the Government in all things pertaining to the good of the country.

We were amused by the Hon. gentleman speaking of ice roads over the bays etc., in the early days of May. The member may be well versed in the art of getting contracts, but we would humbly suggest that he get more faith ere he start across the bays on ice in May month, especially in such a mild year as this.

Hon. John Anderson stated that the only problem the Government were troubled about was how to get back to parliament. That is precisely what is troubling the Government in these days, and they were only surmounting a new lease of power they would not talk so much of consistency and vice versa, as the Hon. MacNamara instanced yesterday. They talk of consistency, but it would do no harm if some of the gentlemen revised the meaning of that term as applied to their own lines of conduct.

The leader of the Government in a very sickly manner managed to rise up to almost his full height, when asked to retract the vile insinuation against Mr. Squires. He retracted it, but with poor grace. It is such men that this city has to fight against in the forthcoming election. Too many contracts have been handed out or rather taken by the Hon. leader of the Government and it is time that the bunch should be ousted forever from power. M.P.

Legislative Council.

The House met yesterday evening at 7 o'clock to discuss the Election Amendment Bill, but before the matter went into Committee. Hon. Mr. Squires moved for an adjournment of the Government for the day in furnishing reports of the Government Engineer as previously mentioned. He told the hon. leader of the Government he intended to keep the House open until the reports were tabled. He made many remarks upon the present state of the railroad, and the death of the industrial enquiries held, because of the railway accidents, and delay was such that no action could be taken by the relatives of the killed and injured. This, as a member pointed out, was due to the neglect of the Government. Mr. Squires also referred to the past when the Executive were loud in their denunciation of Reid but now were silent on railway conditions, reiterated once again his demand for reports wanted.

Hon. Mr. Squires followed and stated that the condition of the road was a disgrace to the present party. He witnessed how only a short time the lighted lamp had been extinguished in the car for fear of toppling. A couple of years ago at the Glenwood accident, when passengers were burnt to death, he promised to light all cars with electricity but such had not been done there had been no one to force him to live up to his obligations. He declared that the time was come for further delay might cause a further tragedy than has hitherto happened.

Hon. Mr. Gibbs rose to speak the next time, but perhaps the denunciation had touched the President of the Council. He ruled the Speaker out of order. Mr. Gibbs persisted in speaking and although the President mentioned the Usher of the Black Rod to put the member out, the Usher apparently did not understand, and

Mr. Gibbs continued his address, while the President made the most of a bad case.

Hon. John Anderson succeeded Mr. Gibbs, and added his voice in denouncing against the present condition of the railroad, as run by Reid, and abetted by the Government.

Hon. Mr. Ellis promised to table the information as soon as he was able to do so, and so Mr. Gibbs did not press his motion to adjourn. The House then went into Committee on the Election Amendment Bill.

Hon. Mr. Anderson in a lengthy speech dealt with some of the industrial problems of the country, especially the housing one. He stated that it was no good for the Government to make promises but that action should be immediately taken as in other countries to grapple with existing conditions and give to the labourers decent homes to live in.

Hon. Mr. Gibbs moved as an amendment to the Bill, for this election only, that the interval between the returns of elections to the Col. Secretary and the gazetted of those elected be 11 days instead of 25 days. It was argued by hon. members, because of the 25 days intervening between the returns of the election and the gazetted of members, it was expedient that the election be held early in May in order that the House could meet early in June. If the Government were sincere they would accept his amendment, as it would expedite matters, and in no way interfere with the date of the election.

Hon. Mr. Squires seconded the motion. Of course objection was offered by Hon. Mews and Ellis, but without any apparent logical reasoning.

Hon. J. D. Ryan, Anderson and Goodridge supported the amendment, which was unanimously carried.

Hon. Mr. Squires then moved another amendment that Nomination Day be not earlier than May 14th.

Hon. Mr. Harvey objected by reasoning that there would not then be sufficient time for the enactment of the necessary legislation.

Hon. Mr. Squires answered the objection by saying the same time would be allowed as would be the case were the original 25 days allowed between Polling Day and the convening of the House if nomination day were the 8th and not the 16th as fixed by the amendment just carried.

Hon. J. D. Ryan supported Mr. Squires and thought opportunity should be given to the people to subscribe to another local loan instead of going abroad.

Hon. Mr. Mews, of course, could not support the amendment.

Hon. Mr. Anderson thought the amendment a reasonable one, following that of Mr. Gibbs, which cut off 14 days of time. He also believed that a full statement of the last loan, with debit and credit sheets, should be submitted to the House, so that the people could see what they had or lost by the loan.

Hon. Mr. Gibbs supported the resolution, and figured that if the date of the election was May 16th, the House could meet for business June 3rd.

Hon. Mr. Ellis could not accept the amendment, and considered it a piece of trickery on the part of Mr. Squires. Hon. Mr. Squires interrupted at this point, and made the leader of the Government retract his words.

At 6.35 the debate was still on, when adjournment was taken until 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Mt. Cashel Extension.

A meeting of the representatives of the different Catholic Societies, convened by Hon. J. D. Ryan, was held in the B. I. S. Music Room last night to consider matters in connection with the extension of Mount Cashel Orphanage. As originally intended the main building was to consist of the Slattery wing, already erected, the central portion and a second wing, but for various reasons the work was delayed. It has now been decided to proceed with the erection of the central portion, in which the Brothers will take up residence, the old Howley Cottage being altogether unsuitable and practically uninhabitable. To this end it has been decided to take up a collection, and no doubt the response from the admirers of the good work of the Brothers will be as generous as it has been in the past to all appeals in behalf of the institution. At present 150 boys are being trained and educated there, and as the number is steadily increasing, the demand for extension and greater facilities is imperative. The following officers of the Committee were appointed last night:

Chairman—Hon. J. D. Ryan.
Vice-Chairman—Hon. W. J. Ellis.
Secretary—Mr. J. C. Pippy.
Treasurers—Messrs. C. J. Myler and C. Ellis.

These with the other representatives of societies will meet on Sunday morning when details of the project will be arranged.

NURSERY HYGIENE.
The nursery is the most important room in the house; therefore its hygiene must be above suspicion. Many parents fall into a fallacy regarding modern heating methods, and while admitting the comfort, cleanliness and convenience of the Gas Fire, call its suitability for nursery use into question on the grounds of hygiene.

This idea is wrong. The modern Gas Fire is more hygienic than the coal fire, has all its good points without its bad ones. The Gas Fire gives radiant heat and assists ventilation. All the products of combustion are carried off by the flue connection to the chimney. There is no smoke, dust or ashes, and for a sick room it is invaluable.

The modern ventilated Gas Fire produces radiant heat, a natural heat similar to that given by the sun, and adds hygiene to its many other advantages. For particulars of the new Radiant Fire, phone 97 or call at the Gas Co.'s Showroom. apr10.eod.11

Newfoundlander's Work

Two years ago in New York a young Newfoundlander, with a wife and three children, was holding a position at $5,000.00 with a large Corporation in that city. His name was Edward Monroe Squarey, the second son of Magistrate Squarey at Channel, the Senior Stipendiary Magistrate in Newfoundland, and one who has been connected with some very important investigations. When the British Government opened a Recruiting Office in New York Mr. Squarey at once gave up his position, enlisted, and went across the Atlantic as a Private, to fight, and if need be, to give his life in defence of Civilization, Liberty, and Righteousness. To the credit of the Corporation employing him, be it said that they would not accept his resignation, but gave him leave for the duration of the War, and six months thereafter on full pay. Mr. Squarey was carrying at that time, a Life Insurance Policy for $12,000.00, and his employers added another $12,000.00 to it, and paid the premium thereon for the benefit of his wife and children. They also gave him splendid credentials and the highest recommendation possible. With the aid of his credentials and of his English relatives (Mr. Squarey's forebears came from England) he was enabled to enter the Officers' Training College at Aldershot as a Cadet. Last June he was given a Second-Lieutenant's Commission, when he immediately volunteered for France, but because he was a Newfoundlander, and a good specimen, the War Office decided to send him to North Russia with the British Expeditionary Force. Owing to meritorious services he was promoted in December last from Second Lieutenant to a full Captaincy. The particulars of the services rendered have not come to hand, but it is evident that he showed no ordinary capacity. His father received a letter from the Chaplain of the Forces, congratulating him on his son's promotion. Mr. Squarey is still with the King's Forces in far-off Russia, and the British blood that is in him, coupled with the Newfoundland grit, will keep him to the work as long as there is work to be done. We congratulate his father on the splendid record of his fighting boy, and we feel proud of Captain Squarey as a Newfoundlander. He is a worthy son of a worthy father.—Con.

The "Herald" Answered

Editor, Evening Telegram,
 Sir,—When I wrote the note that appeared in your paper yesterday, I did not think that I would so soon have the endorsement of such two prominent members of the Government as the Premier and the Minister of Militia. To-day's newspaper report of the House of Assembly proceedings yesterday contain the following paragraphs. They speak for themselves: "The Prime Minister, Dr. Lloyd, said that it should not be for one moment thought that any disrespect was shown the petition, but on the other hand it had received full consideration." And: "Mr. Bennett thought he should express his views as a representative of St. John's West. He had already given the matter deep consideration and thought. The resolutions were worthy of the best consideration and respect of all. He thought it a great mistake to try and belittle the movement, as had been done in some quarters. He for one would not in the least disparage it. Some of those people who attended the meeting were our very best citizens, foremost in every respect, and all deserved our greatest respect. As for the parade to Government House, he had seen it, he had passed it on the street—and it impressed him very much. They were a great body of decent, orderly, law-abiding citizens on the way to Government House to lay their grievance before the representative of the King, and they had a perfect right to do so, and he thought it a great blunder to belittle or in any way besmirch them, and he deprecated any such spirit as that very much indeed." Need I say anything further?
 Yours,
 THE BRAT.

 CAPE RACE, (Yesterday.)
 Wind north, fresh weather, fine, ice in sight south and west off here; information was received here yesterday afternoon that a three masted schr. was in a dangerous position near Freshwater Point, at 7 p.m. the schr. was sighted about two miles west very close to the land, she cleared the ice shortly after and passed in at 7.30 p.m.; a steam tug passed in at 5.30; Portia at 6.45 a.m. to-day; the four masted schr. Cambrai met the ice south and is now laying off here waiting for the ice to move; a three masted schr. sighted at 11 a.m. about ten miles S.W. working through ice. Bar. 29.99; Ther. 40.

At Rest.

All that was mortal of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Fynn was laid to rest yesterday afternoon in the Church of England Cemetery. The remains were enclosed in a beautiful casket, and the funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker Bursell. At the Mortuary Chapel and graveside the burial service was conducted by the Rev. E. H. Fletcher.

Household Notes.

When beeswax is used for candles it must be clarified by boiling and straining.
 A long-handled scrubbing brush is one of the most labor saving of household devices.
 The hot boiled potatoes intended for codfish balls should be put through a potato ricer.
 When the room is rather dark, curtain the windows with golden yellow Chinese silk.
 Slip a flannel bag over the broom when cleaning and you have a fairly good wall brush.
 The best cereals are whole natural grains, steamed in a double boiler for twenty-four hours.
 The world shortage of fats and oils continues and means of saving every scrap of fat available.
 Sleeping rooms should be ventilated so that there is circulation of air in every part of the room.
 Soap is injurious to marble-statuettes are best cleaned by one of the fluids designed for the purpose.
 New potatoes put into boiling salted water to which branches of mint are added should be served with mint leaves.
 One of the quickest and simplest ways to economize on fats is to have no frying whatever—done in the kitchen.

No Cabinet Minister There

Lloyd George is fond of telling the following story against himself. A hungry man (he says) noticed that a lark pudding figured on the menu at this favorite restaurant. It sounded good, and he ordered some. But the result was not up to his expectations. He rapped angrily of the table with the handle of his knife "Waiter!" he cried to the alien nondescript who came sliding up in answer to his summons. "Waiter there's not a single lark in this alleged lark pudding." "Well," replied the waiter slyly, "what about it? We serve cabine puddings, but you don't expect to find Lloyd George or Bonar Law inside one, do you?"

M. P.'s Roll-Call.

Members of Parliament who smiled at the recent proposal of Mr. Bottomley for a Call of the House, with a view to the arrest of absent members must take a more frivolous view of the obligations than tradition warrants. Constitutionally the absence from the House of a member is as grave an offence as that of the soldier absent without leave. There is a statute of Richard II which provides that any member who cannot reasonably and honestly excuse himself to our lord the King "shall be amerced or otherwise punished, according as of old time hath been used to be done." During the Commonwealth the usual fine was £20, a large sum in those days, but there was always the option of prison.

Scientific Athletics.

According to leading physicians who are eager to make the next generation into an A1 nation, all branches of athletics must be re-classified on the basis of their effects on the heart and other vital organs, and we must discard the old classification of popularity.

In the grammar school the form of athletics to which a boy could be assigned would depend on (1) his family history; (2) his personal history; (3) his physical status; (4) his particular type, height, weight, etc. Every class would have its specially prescribed athletics, and under no circumstances would a lad be allowed to engage in competitive sports assigned to a class above or below his own.

Missing!

The thousands of missing British prisoners in Germany constitute one of the most pathetic tragedies of the war. The number unaccounted for would doubtless be greater still had it not been for the thoughtfulness of some who have suffered in German prisons but survived. One recently returned prisoner, who served as orderly in a German hospital kept a record of all the British patients who died there, and since his homecoming has written to their kinsfolk enclosing a copy of a photograph, which he had specially taken for the purpose, of the English corner of the hospital cemetery.

Equality.

We know something about heckling in this country, but the Russians can give us points. Professor Ross, in "Russia in Upheaval," relates a most amusing example enacted before him within a few hours of his arrival on Russian soil. A peasant interrupted the speaker at an Anarchists' meeting by shouting:—"Fifteen years ago I came here with only two roubles in my pocket, but now I own a house, a garden, and a cow. If they are divided up now, and fifteen years from now some fellow who has spent his share comes round and wants me to divide up the next house, garden and cow that I have, must I do it?" "Yes," said the orator, and then the old man hit him.

Why Women Wear Veils.

The custom of wearing veils came from the East, but it appeared early among Roman women, who laid great stress on the bridal veil. The newly-married Roman woman always wore a red veil, or a veil with red stripes, to distinguish her from the unmarried girls. Vestal virgins wore white veils as a sign of their being wedded to the god, or devoted to the service of Vesta. Early in the history of Christianity priests were permitted to give veils to widows. There lies the origin of the "widow's weeds." Most persons know that in the Roman Catholic Church the white veil is given to novices upon entering a convent, followed by a black veil years later, when the maiden has become satisfied that the convent life is her real vocation. It is not until she receives the black veil that her vows become irrevocable, or that she takes the great vows and becomes a nun.—Tit-Bits.
