Turkey is Attacked Russia Promises Aid.

The Book Tells Story of Inter-Allied Conferences—Will of Lord Northcliffe Admitted to Probate—One Million Three Hundred Thousand Pounds for Death Duties.

RUSSIA WILL AID TURKEY.
CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 26.—Russia will come to the aid of Turkey if the latter is attacked by the Powers, it is declared by M. Soviet representative here, in an interview. The Turkish and Russian Armies are watching arms and ammunition.

CAUSES OF THE BREAK.
LONDON, Feb. 26.—Various inter-Allied conferences in London and Paris during the month of January on reparations debts, culminating in the agreement of January 4, forming the subject of a blue book issued on the 15th, has not successfully endeavored to bridge the difference between Great Britain and France. The breaking of the book when Prime Minister Law's reply to Premier Clemenceau said the difference between the two countries was not one of fact, and he believed that to get what money they had from Germany and not attempt to get more than they would take. The book pointed out that the financial position of Germany was not as good as the point of industrial production and indeed in his opinion was contrary to the whole experience of history and the view of economists if such terrible infatuations as has been going on there is almost any country. I am almost that crash be precipitated.

FORMER SENATOR DEAD.
OAKLAND, Cal., Feb. 26.—Former United States Senator Geo. C. Perkins, died at his home here today.

DEADLY GAS.
BOSTON, Feb. 26.—Two are dead and two overcome from illuminating gas in a south end boarding house. A man was found dead in his room, with gas coming from an open jet, and a woman in the adjoining room, dead from the fumes that had come in under the door.

VOICE ACROSS THE OCEAN.
LIGHTERFELDE, Feb. 26.—Germany for the first time, on Saturday morning, heard a programme of music from the United States, transmitted by radio. The experimental station at Seent picked up the voice of Miss Bennett singing in a Newark, New Jersey, department store.

HILMA PAULINE ABANDONED.
HALIFAX, Feb. 26.—It was the Lunenburg Outfitting Company's schooner Hilma Pauline, 90 tons, from Turk's Island which was abandoned, and whose crew was rescued by the steamer Stovick, Feb. 22, and not the steamer Helena Toolin, as previously reported, according to corrective advice to-day to C.H. Harris, Marine and Fisheries agent here. The vessel was abandoned in latitude 33° 23' north; longitude 66° 26' west. The Pauline was built at Mahone Bay in 1919.

TREATY NOT YET CONSIDERED.
CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 26.—Despite the announcement that the National Assembly had begun consideration of the Treaty on Saturday, it is learned that the Council of Ministers had not yet presented it. It is reported the Assembly may receive the treaty tonight or tomorrow, and the debate will possibly last a week.

WORTHCLIFFES WILL.
LONDON, Feb. 26.—The will of the late Lord Northcliffe was granted to-day. The statement gave the total estate as one million two hundred and fifty thousand pounds, on which a duty of one million three hundred thousand pounds is payable to Government.

BANK CHANGES MANAGER.
WINNIPEG, Feb. 26.—M. R. Allen, President of the Union Bank of Canada, to-day announced the resignation of H. B. Shaw, Vice-President and General Manager, due to differences regarding matters of administration, and stated that Mr. Shaw left the Bank's offices with the good will of the directors. Malus Bull has been appointed Vice-President, and J. W. Hamilton is the new General Manager. Mr. Shaw stated relations were entirely friendly, and the bank will have his co-operation.

Our Weekly Letter.

(From our own correspondent.)

Montreal, Feb. 26. (Delayed in mail)—In a recent address given here before the Montreal Women's Club at the Mount Royal Hotel, Judge Willis Brown, of the Utah State Juvenile Court said, "I have never found a bad boy in the whole of my experience."

The influence of the "gang" spirit was emphasized. "The drawing of the gang spirit shows the boy that he can't do just as he likes, that he must do as other boys do. The unfortunate part of it is that the mother who has had the training of her son to the age of ten or twelve can't see why she is losing her hold on him, and the father is too busy to notice."

Yes, bad home education is the great power that is destroying the uplifting influence of many a good teacher's work in our schools. What the teacher builds up in the child during the five or six hours each day of school work is pulled down in a few minutes in the home of independence, the home of carelessness and neglect, the home of so called freedom and "do as you please."

The fourth commandment for them is, "Parents, honor and obey your children" rather than make them "Honor and obey you." In my experience in the teaching profession, extending over a period of thirty years, I have found that the greatest handicap in my work came from the spirit of independence, false ideas of honor, truth, manliness, and morality imparted to them by parents who never seemed to realize the awful responsibility of bringing up their children in the fear and love of their Creator.

Such parents generally blame the school or the teachers for their children going wrong. The home of many a good and promising boy or girl is to-day, a little hell, and the class-room a place of safety and cleanliness from the dirt and filth of slothful parents, who seem never to be able to have a good home.

Judge Brown reviewed the organization of juvenile courts, to handle the boys from a different angle from that of the adult criminal. Something was needed besides interesting ourselves in preventing children from becoming adult criminals. A greater thing than that was to keep them pure in the first place.

"You see a girl on the street at eleven o'clock at night with a chance companion. You can't arrest or apprehend her, simply because her mother is careless or the girl has got out of hand. You wait and wait until the inevitable tragedy occurs, and then you become active. The time to begin to save the girl is when you first notice her in danger."

Judge Brown devoted the greater part of his lecture to the public school in its relation to the children as future citizens.

"You have a compulsory school law here," he began.

"Well, I didn't know that. I suppose you want one?"
"Yes," and applause.
"The public school," Judge Brown went on, "is a citizen factory. Indirectly it contributes to crime, because it has no citizenship measurements. There are medical examinations and school inspections to protect the boy from physical ills, but there is no examination to protect him from moral contagion."

Since the war, the lecturer observed, there seemed to be an attitude of disregard for the law, from the motor driver who breaks speed laws to the boy who smokes cigarettes and plays truant. That attitude was worse for the community than the fact that a few boys committed theft.

The lecturer held it an inconsistency that in the eyes of the law a person under eighteen was an "infant" and yet could be arrested and suffer penalties as a responsible offender.

In conclusion he urged that the public school in its "citizen factory" should grade the pupils in morals as well as in intellectual studies.

era, pickpockets, clothes-line robbers and sneak thieves. Eight of the gang are at present in the tolls and will be tried in the juvenile court. One of the gang, a lad of 18 is charged with stealing 35 tons of coal. Two merchants complained to the authorities that the coal robbery has been going on from four to six months, one missing between 5 and 6 tons, and the other 30 tons. The gang, led by the woman, would cart the coal away from freight cars in the railway yards, and also from the coal yards in the north end of the city. The boys would use hand sleds and sacks to convey away the plunder. The police blame the epidemic of petty theft, purse-snatching, etc., which has occurred in the north end of the city of late, on this gang.

The weather here, of late has been extremely cold, made very disagreeable and uncomfortable by a high wind, the worst experienced for many winters. Fifteen degrees below zero mark the early hours of the morning, while five and six and even ten below during the day seem to be quite a common occurrence. Conductors on late trains, especially on the Delaware and Hudson from New York, report intensely cold weather and at some points it was thirty and forty degrees below zero.

A young girl brought into the Recorder's Court on a stretcher to receive her sentence for being a cocaine peddler and a victim of the drug habit was a scene lately enacted here. She was in such a weak condition that she may never be able to serve her term in jail. She has served sentences previously on drug charges, and is one of many that the habit once acquired, leads to an early grave. A man of 45 years died last week at the Bordeaux Jail from the use of narcotic drugs. He was in prison only four days when he was seized with congestion of the lungs. He was found guilty having drugs in his possession and was sentenced to a fine of $500 by the Recorder in the Verdun police court, with the alternative of three months in jail. Being unable to pay the fine, he had to go to jail, and entered the prison hospital on arrival there and passed away.

According to Court House officials, over one million dollars worth of morphine, cocaine, opium and heroin were smuggled into the city and disposed of last year. Authorized police bodies recovered something like $200,000 worth. The morgue claims 38 victims. The amount recovered from prisoners was very large. Drugs seized at the dock and bearing fictitious addresses have been valued at $200,000. Ottawa received about a quarter of million dollars of drugs from Montreal during the year.

The Recorder's Court has been very active and heavy sentences and penalties were imposed with a view of curbing the traffic. Approximately 1,000 cases were dealt with.

The latest addition of the city's many large and fine office buildings is "The Medical Arts Building," located at the corner of Guy and Sherbrooke Streets designed expressly for and dedicated to the medical and dental professions of Montreal. Ten stores of offices and reception rooms of various sizes—all equipped with the most modern appliances for medical and dental practice—sound proof, fire proof—and including a service not even approached elsewhere. The building is a very attractive one, and will be not only ornamental in its present location but very useful as well.

Rev. Sister Quinn, for 75 years a member of the Grey Nuns, died at the Mother House of the Order, corner Guy, St. Matthew, and Dorchester Streets after a short illness. She celebrated her golden jubilee five years ago. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Quinn, St. John's, Newfoundland, and was in her 76th year. It is hardly likely that the average housewife will bother about how the animal was killed when she is on the hunt for a juicy steak or a tender piece of beef for the Sunday's dinner. Nor is it likely that the butcher himself would know in what way the animals came by their deaths, because he buys his meat usually from a master dealer who supplies him with his needs.

Another Newfoundland passed away here last week in the person of Mrs. Captain F. Cleary, widow of the late Captain F. Cleary of Georgetown. She died at the residence of the Dean, Leves family, the father being a former French Consul at St. John's. The funeral service was held at St. Leo's Church, Westmount.

According to the Child Welfare Association of Montreal, one third of the children in Canada of school age or under, are under weight and insufficiently nourished.

Why Does a Nib Hold Ink

A NATURAL PUZZLE THE WORLD CANNOT SOLVE.
Can you tell the world why, if a piece of blotting paper is dipped edgewise into a saucer of water, the water will climb up the paper to a height of some inches above the surface? If you can, your name is made, for at present nobody knows why.

Capillary attraction is the name for this power which causes water to rise in an absorbent substance, and the baffling part of it is its apparent simplicity.

This is just one of those natural puzzles that our greatest scientists cannot solve—yet. Its real nature is no more understood than is the real nature of electricity.

But although we don't know what it is, capillary attraction is a most useful force. It holds the ink in a pen nib and in a fountain pen. By its aid the melted wax in the little crater round a candle-flame rises in the wick to keep the candle burning. So, too, the liquid flows up the wick of an oil or spirit lamp.

Were it not for this force, clothes would become "bone dry", directly they were lifted out of the water. A great many of the automatic lubricators for oiling machinery depend entirely on capillary attraction for their action; and a sponge retains the water in its pores by the same means.

Capillary attraction has been suggested as a means of attaining perpetual motion, and some very ingenious devices have been put forward. All, however, have been proved futile by the laws of mechanics.

Finally it is owing to capillarity that soil is able to retain a large part of the moisture it receives as rain, thus preventing the country from becoming an arid desert.

A Window Worth 73,000,000 Pounds

The collecting of old-stained glass is a hobby for millionaires only. Five thousand pounds and upwards constitute a quite common price for small examples of fifteenth-century work; while a single panel of thirteenth-century stained-glass, very few specimens of which are in existence, may fetch anything from $10,000 to $20,000.

The Dean of York recently fixed the value of the Early English stained-glass window in the York Minster at $78,000,000.

This figure he based on the price of $18,500 paid in New York for a similar glass measuring 30 inches. The Dean of York recently fixed the value of the Early English stained-glass window in the York Minster at $78,000,000.

Values in stained glass bear little relation to mere size. Quite small windows, of the kind known as "diamond quarries," because of the shape of the panes, have changed hands for several thousand pounds.

Most highly prized of all are the Swiss miniature stained-glass windows, dating from the early part of the sixteenth century. Some of these tiny panes are no larger than the palm of one's hand, yet they contain in that small space delicately coloured and beautifully executed pictures of supernatural subjects.

In medieval times there was a regular craze for these tiny windows amongst the Swiss people. Great artists like Holbein did not disdain to execute designs for them, and every household, no matter how poor prided itself on possessing at least one of them.

Another Worry for the Ladies.

The Animal Defence and Anti-Vivisection Society are appealing to housewives to insist on a guarantee from their butchers that the home-killed meat they buy is from animals that have been slaughtered with a "humane-killer." An appeal, signed by the Duchess of Hamilton, the Countess of Plymouth, Mrs. Rosalind McKenna, and others states that calves are still stuck and left to bleed to death, or have their heads cut off, and pigs in large factories are hung up by one leg on a revolving wheel, stuck, and left to bleed to death. ## A Close Acquaintance.

It was a contested will case, and one of the witnesses in the course of giving his evidence described the testator minutely.

"Now, sir," said the counsel for the defence, "I suppose we may take it, from the flattering description you have given of the testator, his good points, and his personal appearance generally, that you were intimately acquainted with him."

"Hm!" exclaimed the witness. "He was an acquaintance of mine."
"Indeed! Well, then, you must have observed him carefully whenever you saw him?" pursued the examining counsel.
"I never saw him in my life," was the reply.

This prevarication, as counsel thought it was too much, and adopting a severe tone, he said:
"Now, don't trifle with the court, please. How, I ask you, could you, in the name of goodness, describe him so minutely if you never saw him and never knew him?"

"Well," replied the witness, and the smile which overspread his features eventually passed over the court, "you see, I married his widow."

When Plants in Bedroom are Injurious.

In the daytime, when sunlight stimulates their nutrition, plants can do no harm in bedrooms, for then they give off oxygen, and are useful in absorbing from the air the carbon which is injurious to animal life. The free use which is made nowadays of flowers and plants in our hospitals is in itself sufficient proof that this is a wholesome means of ministering mental cheer and comfort to the sick and suffering.

At night the case is different. Then all plants and flowers are removed from hospital wards, because they exhale the carbonic acid which they have gathered from the soil and air and thus give off, by a process similar to respiration, a gas which is injurious.

We may therefore conclude that during the hours of darkness, when the respiratory process is active, and the nutritive is at a standstill, plants should have no place in our bedrooms. What is prudent in spacious wards is imperative in smaller chambers.

Don't Underestimate Yourself.

While you should not be overflowing with thoughts of your own importance and ability, you should not go to the other extreme and continually underestimate your value.

You may be checking your own advancement, because you are so self-doubting, and afraid that you cannot do as well as So-and-So does.

If you have never tried, how do you know that you cannot do as well as another?
Do not lose confidence in your own ability.
It affects a man or a woman, in the way of carrying a level head.
When your head is hanging down and your face is covered with shame or confusion because you are in awe of someone, you are doing yourself an injustice and you are bound to create a feeling against you.

Half-hearted effort is bound to bring poor results.
Whole-hearted effort in any direction makes a man or a woman self-respecting and the world judges largely by the estimate you put on yourself.
Do your best and you will not be obliged to take a back seat for long.

FAVORABLE INDICATIONS.

MONROE—HUNT—AYRE.

If the popularity of the leader of a political party may be gauged by the offers of voluntary assistance he receives from those who wish to become identified with him, then the new leader of the party opposed to the Government has much reason to be proud of the enthusiasm caused by the announcements made in the Press during the past few days. If additional proofs were needed to furnish evidence of the confidence placed in him, Mr. Bennett to announce the acquisition of three new recruits to the ranks of the Opposition, viz: Messrs. W. S. Monroe, Charles E. Hunt and James S. Ayre. Mr. Monroe cabled his offer of service and influence to Mr. Bennett from New York. Messrs. Hunt and Ayre made no hesitation in pledging their support to the new leader. All three of these gentlemen are so well known throughout the country that they need no introduction to the public. The high and lofty sense of duty which prompted the gentlemen above named to make sacrifices on the altar of their native land is the best testimony to their patriotism. That they should be willing to assist the leader and his party in retrieving the government of the Colony from those who now possess it is still further evidence of patriotic motives. To be associated with such men as Messrs. Monroe, Hunt and Ayre is an honor which any leader might appreciate, and we confidently assert that no matter in which district either of these will carry the standard, their election is assured. Men of the type of Monroe, Hunt and Ayre will do justice to their constituents, and their presence in an administration will stabilize and strengthen it. In congratulating Mr. Bennett on this very solid acquisition to his party, we desire also to congratulate the trio of volunteers, believing that when they make their first political appearance their reception at the hands of the electorate will fully justify their decision in declaring themselves the exponents and advocates of clean, honest government.

TO ARMS! PATRIOTS!

Breathes there a man, With soul so dead, Who never to himself hath said, 'This is my own, my native land.' For four long and weary years our necks have been under the oppressor's heel. Newfoundlanders have stood aghast at the reckless expenditure of public monies and the ruthless devastation of our once flourishing industries—rivaled only by the Bolshevik in Russia and the Hun in his vain attempt at world conquering. In the past we have had perhaps indifferent governments where the voice of the people has not been listened to, but never, not even in the days of the fishing admirals, have our necks been trodden in the dust as they have during the past four years of inglorious government by Squires and Coaker. The latter holding the balance of power has always held the sword of Damocles over Squire's head. Coaker's word has always been first and last and Squires could do nothing but bow ingratiatingly before the will and desires of the Cock of the North. But as the little accurs doth to great oak's grow a sudden revolt by public minded and noble spirited citizens east, north, west and south has roused our countrymen from their lethargy—men such as Ayre, Monroe and Hunt buckling on their armour—have once and for all decided to rid Newfoundland from the Coaker octopus which is strangling our industries and throttling our country's progress. Behind them are the electors in solid phalanx ready to do or die, overcoming the oppressors and to restore to our trade and commerce the confidence it once enjoyed when good men and true men were at the helm. Bennett is the St. George who is fighting the Dragon exemplified in Coakerism, and his efforts and endeavours of he and his associates for Clean Government will be blessed in the sincere wish of all true patriots.

Stalled!

BURIN ELECTORATE INCENSED WITH SQUIRES AND COAKER.

With a great flourish of trumpets the Premier started last week announcing candidates for the various districts, and had only got as far as Burin when he stuck fast—due to the fact that the electors there who, at first, were inclined to support his party insisted on being allowed to nominate their own candidates. Their wishes were of course characteristically ignored by the duo (Squires and Coaker) and Footie and Cheeseman were slated by the Premier to face the music—much to the disapproval and dissatisfaction of the Burin electors who really deserve more generous treatment when it is remembered that the present spineless jellyfish nominees of the Squires-Coaker administration not only failed them in their hour of need but even declined to raise a dissenting voice when the ubiquitous fish regulations promulgated by Boss Coaker were ruining their prosperous Coast. For four long weary years the people on the West Coast have had Coaker rules and regulations burdening them heavily—sufficient on their opinion for generations yet unborn. With their neighbours to the Eastward and Westward they cry out in their agony "Out of the depths." Let Squires and Coaker both remember that the "West is awake," and at the roll of the Bennett drum they are stirring on their armour for clean progressive Government with no one man dictating it from his eyrie in the North.

Kronen Soap Wrappers.

Swiss soap manufacturers have hit upon the happy expedient of using Austrian ten-kronen paper money as wrappers for their product. The constant fall of the Austrian crown has made it cheaper to wrap soap in crowns than to print special wrappers. In addition, the customer of speculative turn gets a premium in the shape of a ten-crown note, which may possess future value.

Rotary.

ADDRESS BY DR. A. F. PERKINS.

At the weekly Rotary Luncheon held to-day at the West End Restaurant, Dr. A. F. Perkins gave a very interesting address on "Vocal Infection." There were quite a number of guests and Rotarian J. J. McKay acted as chairman. The speaker defined vocal infection as a localized septic condition that may be the chief cause of systematic disease. He pointed out that a dead tooth forming an abscess is one of the primary causes of infection. Being carried to distant parts of the body it is often the cause of diseased kidneys and other internal ailments. The proof of this he said had been demonstrated by taking the cultus from the teeth of patients (suffering from these diseases) and inoculating healthy animals. The experiments proved that the animals contracted the disease. Dr. Perkins pointed out that nerves should not be extracted from aching teeth, but rather, if they are so badly decayed as to need the removal of nerves, it would be better for the health to have the tooth extracted.

Pointed Paragraphs.

The sewing life is with us. Now men all pull together. The election comes just in time to save the country from being drained of all her young men.

The Bennett Government fifty-three years ago came into power and saved Newfoundland. This will be repeated this spring.

A government that borrows twelve million dollars in two years and has nothing to show for it but a new burden of taxation making it impossible for the people to live should be turned out without mercy.

Coaker's promise to make the grass grow on Water Street has been fulfilled with a vengeance. He has ruined St. John's and sent our best men to convict labor to get a bit to eat.

Squires and Coaker can no more be separated than the Siamese twins. For all that Coaker did to ruin the country Squires can't escape the responsibility.

St. John's West can't be bought up with scrips, and the gentleman from Souris will find that there is enough of the old spirit of independence in that Grand Old Liberal District to put him in his place on Polling Day—at the foot of the poll.

The exiled Newfoundlanders driven out by the Squires-Coaker had Government are watching with keen interest the coming election. Strikers the blow that will enable them to come back and get a living in their own country.

The Squires-Coaker regime will be known to the future generations as the years of insolvencies. One every week is about the record. Turn them out and put an end to the business depression.

The only people who prospered, made money and acquired property in the past four years are the members of the Government. They are all rich men to-day and some of them have ranges of houses. People like these can't see that the times are bad.

Candidates are offering in dozens every day for the Opposition. Patriotic men of substance and social standing. This is the very best sign that we are going to have a change.

A united effort by all good men will save the country from being completely ruined. If this Government should by any chance get back, well pack your grip and "get out."

Sir Richard Squires is at his wit's end to get candidates. No one wants to be in a sinking ship or out with a losing cause. The legend "get out" is on the wall, and every man with his five senses unimpaired can see it.

No man ever went to the West End with a more unblemished reputation and a cleaner record than Sir Michael Coaker. Independent, clear of conscience and fearless, he will sweep the squanderers and the script men into oblivion once he gets a chance to talk to the people. He could have had the Government long ago if he agreed to sacrifice the cause of the people and join the wasters.

If the House had opened and the accounts of the past year had been laid on the table and published, the Squires-Coaker party would not have dared to face the country at all. Hence the Spring election. But when Bennett's Government takes charge in May, all the scandals will be revealed. The public, we prophesy, will then get the shock of their lives.

Men like Messrs. Walter Monroe, Ayre, Hunt and others who are coming into the fight to save the country from ruin, deserve the highest praise, and their names will be enshrined in the future history of their country. The effect of their action has been like an electric shock to the country and has sealed the doom of this unspeakable Government.

Bennett's intimation of a bounty on fish has been received everywhere with joyful acclaim and will put new heart into the fishermen. It is the irony of fate that Coaker, who professed to know all about the fishery, ruined the fishermen and that Bennett, who professes to know nothing on the subject, should be destined to be the fishermen's benefactor and get them out of the mouth of despond where Coaker put them.

Special to Evening Telegram.

ROSE BLANCHE, Feb. 26. Everybody here anxious to learn policy of Opposition. All here have had enough of the Government whose policy has ruined this coast. The watershed here is "remember the Fish Regulations." Think the whole coast will take up this cry, and place in power men with business ability as represented by the Opposition. Since Coaker has declared for Squires, this settles the Government on this coast. Hope Burin and Fortune will remember Fish Regulations, and that Bennett will send strong men here. PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

Feb. 26th—My poor wife's voyage delayed being that the Sable I. is still in the ice but is like to make port tomorrow. The poor wretch, mighty quiet all day, and does little but make purchases of clothes for the journey. A thing beyond my expectation is that she make no complaint, and this, I think, shows how far gone is her mentality. To wait on Mr. Hunt in the morning, and have much discourse of politics. He is in great hopes of the West End, and many do pledge him their support. To the Board of Trade, where Perry tells me how it is now certain that Mr. Ayre will be Opposition man for Port de Grave, and Mr. Long, the fish exporter will go to Fortune. To play at Bridge at night, but painful to see my poor wife, she wandering in her mind, and did thrice revoke, than which I can conceive no more heinous a crime.

APPEAL BY PROTEST. LONDON, Feb. 27. The Trade Union Congress voted five hundred pounds sterling to German Trade Unions and also issued an appeal to affiliated organizations to provide more funds "for a struggle against enslavement of workers in Ruhr."

IN A NEW ROLE. ROME, Feb. 27. Gabrielle D'Annunzio, poet-soldier, has accepted the post of Honorary Generalissimo of the Turkish Army, according to a newspaper here. Kemalists brought him the insignia and equipment of rank, which carries the title of Pasha. D'Annunzio sent a message to his comrades in arms, saying he was ready to discard honorary rank at any time, and become effective in the ranks when needed.

WILL RETURN MONEY. LONDON, Feb. 27. The French have agreed to return that part of German money seized Sunday at Cologne, which was intended for the British, it was said here today.

STAGGERING FIGURES.

BERLIN, Feb. 27. Germany's floating debt during the ten days, ending February 18th, increased by five hundred and fourteen billion marks, making a total of two trillion, nine hundred and twenty-nine billion, eight hundred million.

FOUR SERIOUSLY INJURED.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 27. Two mail clerks, the conductor and a baggage man were seriously injured, when a Boston and Maine passenger train left the rails at East Orange Station to-day, according to word received at railroad offices here. No serious injury to passengers is reported.

NEWSPAPERMAN DEAD.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 27. George Clark Holland, former newspaperman, died on Monday at Jacksonville, according to advices reaching here, without details. He commenced as a reporter on the Ottawa Evening Post in eighteen sixty six, and worked on many papers in the United States and Canada. He joined the Hansard staff in eighteen seventy five, and later became chief editor of Senate Debates, until nineteen seventeen, when he retired.

Inter-Collegiate Hockey.

ST. BOY'S WIN CHAMPIONSHIP—SCORE 6-1.

For the eighth year in succession the St. Boy's are the undoubted champions in the School League. This morning's victory over the Feldians was not expected as they were handed out a trimming in their last game. This morning's game was fast all through, good individual play and combination work being in evidence. We congratulate the St. Boy's on their victory.

Schooner Evelyn Reported.

LOST RUDDER; DID NOT NEED ASSISTANCE.

This morning Cape Race forwarded to the Minister of Shipping a report as follows:—"S.S. Knoxville City passed here at 4.30 a.m. and reported meeting the three-masted schooner Evelyn of St. John's, Nfld. In lat. 38.51 N; long. 26.16 W. The schooner had lost her rudder but did not need assistance. The Evelyn, reported in the above message, left here on Feb. 3rd bound to Brazil with a load of fish from Bowring Bros.

Large Military Biplane. LONDON.—(Canadian Press.) Trials are now taking place of a huge biplane designed to carry twenty-three fully equipped soldiers and if the tests prove satisfactory the development will materially affect military tactics and strategy of the future. By using a sufficient number of this type of aircraft a battalion can be quickly transported over a wide area at short notice and the scene of action shifted 200 miles in 100 minutes. There will always, it is true, be fighting aircraft to attack the troop carriers, but when submarine warfare was supposed to have been brought to its highest pitch of perfection it was still possible to transport armies by ship across the Atlantic.

Animals Punish Their Y. Practically every animal has under close observation been seen to punish its young. The every case administered by mother. Some animals pretend to be babies, others cuff or kick. Whether, however, this "punishment" has the same intention as human refection seems at least doubtful. Cat cuffing her kitten may be intended in one sense of the word, she is more probably pushing the way of danger. To guard their young is a instinct common to all animals, and satisfy their instinct a cut is necessary.

Shipping. S.S. Eagle was engaged all this forenoon in breaking up the ice in the harbor. S.S. One Million for Invention. LONDON.—(Canadian Press)—The Royal Commission on awards to inventors has awarded £70,000 to Mr. Constantinesco in respect of the use made by the Government of his famous G. C. Synchronizing gear for firing through aeroplane propellers whilst in motion. Mr. Constantinesco came to England from Roumania where he had designed and built many of the largest ferro-concrete bridges. Counsel for the Crown spoke of this synchronizing gear as one of the most standing inventions of this century. The present award brings the inventor's remuneration up to £250,000.

Every day and every way the Government is getting wiser and wiser.

BECAUSE: In every day in every way the Opposition is growing stronger and stronger.

The Daily Wall on Prescott Street is having a strenuous time booking candidates.

Ten days ago it started to announce two candidates daily with the intention of keeping it up until the necessary list was completed.

The first day the Burin impossibles were broadcasted in big headlines to be followed the day after with a solitary ray of hope.

Then a full stop.

The only thing we have been reading since Mr. Cave was billed—are resignations.

Even Mr. Guppy, Mr. Target and Mr. Jennings can predict the approaching landslide.

Boss Coaker is raising Cain because Capt. Handell and Mr. Barnes are directed to one-time Coaker strongholds.

The Union President is lost for words to explain to his dupes why he has been thus tricked, and Sir Richard who told the world he was going to shove Coaker is laughing up his sleeve at the game he is playing in the F.P.U. constituencies.

What a happy combination.

Mr. Coaker hung on to his job until the Government lasted despite the fact that he never saw the inside of his office for almost two years.

Any kind of a bluff will be answered enough for $8,000, but what answer will Sir Richard give the common people at his public meetings?

Turn the Government out was the cry of 1918 and do away with all public trips at the expense of the colony and people.

The people accepted the statements of the Star, Advocate and Mr. Squires with the result.

Mr. Squires spent seven out of every twelve months since his election roaming around the world for what purpose not one of his Executive can explain and he wisely refuses to do so.

A recent issue of Canada stated in its personal columns the following:—Sir Richard Squires, Prime Minister of Newfoundland, who has been travelling Europe and America, is now returning to St. John's to spend the Christmas holidays.

Whilst he used the Bell Island shut down for a last vacation to Montreal the delegates of the United Fishermen's guild well it was a move to avoid them and their determination to have the House opened or the Government dissolved.

The news from the Northern districts is an indication of the growing distrust of the Government.

Just wait for what is to follow.

Mr. Coaker's secret circular, the refusal of the F.P.U. candidates to enter the contest, the announcements of Messrs. Monroe, Hunt and Ayre and other well-known patriotic Newfoundlanders are joits that tell the story which will have a glorious finish.

The latest attempt to buy the independence of the men working at the stone breaking is the promise of increased pay if they applied for it.

Surely Doctor Campbell is not dense enough to assume that the tradesmen and laborers who up to the time the infamous Fish Regulations were made law were earning from $20.00 to $25.00 a week are going to be gulled with only enough to eke out a bare existence.

These coopers and other tradesmen as well as the laborers would have never had to engage in this convict labor at such a miserable wage if the electorate was as wise in 1918 as it is to-day.

Back to prosperity and happiness is the slogan of the coming Bennett administration.

Back to the period when educated and independent men and women did not have to scrape and crawl for charity and pauper relief.

Squires had his chance and failed. He is now being turned out with the record of the worst Government that ever ruled the country.

The Men Who Tread the Frozen Pans.

This is the time when old folks, all round our Isle, are chatting.

Of when they sailed with Sammie and Arthur long ago. Of how they killed the dog hoods, what skill they showed in battling And of the man among them who hauled the biggest tow.

This is the time when Winsors, Keana, Bartlett's, and Barbour's, And Bishops use their thinking caps to formulate their plans; And when the stalwart laborers are coming from out-har-bors, Heroes all, the big and small, who tread the frozen pans.

In humble garb they're going, like those who went before them; Belt and sheath and hauling rope, around their shoulders strung; And all of them a credit to the Island Home that bore them.

They go to toll for those dear ones which they have left behind them; They go with manly hearts aglow, with strong and willing hands; Tell me where the land lies where fiercer men you'll find them Than the sons of Terra Nova who tread the frozen pans.

They go to seek the whitecoats, to face the many dangers Down amid the icebergs, and the blizzards pressing breath, But fear not'er distress in the hearts of those brave northern rangers Who every hour are holding a thrilling race with death.

We will pray that Providence may fondly guard and guide them For our present fate and future alone lies in His hands; Oh, may He in His mercy be ever close beside them Our heroes all, the big and small who tread the frozen pans.

As is stated, he makes his first appearance on Wednesday, and will no doubt draw large audiences.

S. P. A.

Dear Sir,—Referring to your reporter's not over-flattering account of the "Scene" on Custom House Hill on Friday, I wish to say that when I came on the hill and saw the old blind horse (with a freshly bandaged knee) vainly trying to pull his load up the grade, and was being whipped by another burly carman, I said, by virtue of my office, as Hon. Agent of the Society, that the poor worn-out high thirty-year-old horse should not haul that full load up the hill. My instructions having been carried out by dividing the load, the matter ended.

Mr. Barter, being convalescent, will now resume his duties, assisted by Mr. Ash, and for his comfort and convenience the Branch Office at 358 Water-Street, will be kept open until the annual meeting.

Yours very truly, W. H. CROWDY, Hon. Agent. Feb. 27, 1923.

The Village Butcher.

Under a spreading chestnut tree The village shambles stand A busy man the butcher is; With pole-axe in his hand, And a meaning look about his eye, That cattle understand.

His coat is blue, and loose and long, His face is like the tan; His brow is wet (but not with sweat) He kills what'er he can; And looks the whole world in the face Like an honest slaughter-man.

Week in, week out, from morn to night, He deals the deadly blow; You can hear him swing his heavy axe With measured beat and slow; While shrill and loud the porkers yell And deep the oxen low.

And children coming home from school, Peep eager through the door; They love to see the slaughtered sheep And hear the bullocks roar, And watch the drying pigs that lie A-kicking on the floor.

Hacking, whacking, slaughtering, Onward through life he goes; Each morning living beasts come in, Each night they hang in rows. Murder attempted, murder done, Has earned him sweet repose.

Thanks, thanks, to thee, my butcher friend, For the lesson thou hast taught; Thus from the reeking slaughter-house Our Sunday joint has brought; Our Sunday joint! No more for me, I do not like the thought.

We Snap our Fingers to Express Contempt.

In southern countries the fig is the commonest of fruits, so to say that "I don't care a fig" means "I care nothing."

Now, the action of pushing the thumb between the two first fingers produces a shape roughly like a fig, and to hold up the hand thus means that you don't care a fig. That this gesture has become corrupted into the contemptuous snap of the fingers is one explanation.

A far more probable supposition is that our snap of contempt is the descendant of the old snap with which the ancient Romans used to summon their slaves, much as one would click to a dog, and that when we snap our fingers to-day we are merely showing the contempt that we would feel for the meanest of slaves.

Notes and News.

FROM BONAVISTA DISTRICT—A SERIES OF OPEN LETTERS TO FRED.

Dear Fred.—It really does seem strange that just now nearly everybody should be talking of education. I was beginning to think that although even ten years hence we shall be needing better educational facilities, we were now getting ahead as fast as could be expected.

As I write I can easily visualise the three classes of people vividly representing the different stages of advancement. These are respectively; the old folk, the middle aged and the young. The old folk in a great many cases totally unlettered. The middle aged a much greater advantage in this respect, while the young, our boys and girls of to-day with the help of high schools and a better knowledge behind them at home, give much promise of bringing with them the new era of sound thinking and a development of a broader perspective. School education is of course not all that is necessary. We of this generation should bear in mind that we are placed in the peculiar position of being the pivot, the turning point between (a) on the back hand illiteracy; (b) on the front education coupled with broad-mindedness. "What has happened in the past is this: We have been getting along so poorly educated; so utterly incompetent to study and comprehend the why and wherefore of the deeper issues of life that we could be away and let hither and yon by nothing but oratorical powers and simple euphony. Yes! Without thinking power and the guiding power of comprehension we had become in many instances an easy prey to any one who had the ability to make a statement and make it sound good. All along as a rule we have on account of this been totally incompetent to vote, we have not been able to weigh at all the heavier matters that make for security and advancement of home and State or fully understand the moral code enjoining us to bear in mind "the greatest good to the greatest number." The result is we are now, right now, paying the penalty of incompetence and just as long as we can be influenced by outward sound instead of by inward thought this state of things must continue; but if, as I have said, we, impersonating the rising generation, are emerging from this deplorable state, we have indeed something to be thankful for, and while the schools teach the fundamentals of sound thinking, it is our duty to teach the children that we have been the victims of educated hypocrites because we had not imbibed the sounder principles of thought wherewith to counter act their influence. We will be very unwise if ever we insist on their getting education and keep on painting pictures of leaders fresh from the brush of the devil himself, unless we explain that educated deceivers always grow and flourish best where ignorance lies deepest; because opposition to such seldom comes except through force of circumstances or a wild growth of rank prejudice. If, as a writer of the Evening Telegram recently said: "There cannot be unity without education" (the cause is not far to seek. In discourse the uneducated gives in mildly to a trained intellect, or he argues from impressions only. He cannot understand at all, the make up of the person who talks with his brain; such things are foreign to him; General irritation sets in and, there!

Now that little paragraph covered it all in our father's time. It was generally an individual affair. To-day we are clanish. We get up unions of this kind to protect ourselves from unions of the other kind. The uneducated are led by the educated. The nation is divided into sections, one section dare not even criticise in friendly language the actions of the other. In each of those sections are grouped, invariably, the illiterate under the educated. The big majority of each clan go by impressions only, and those gained from their leaders, while (deny it who will) if we were all of us educated, we could, I am sure see a great deal of futility in grouping at all. It is patently to me that for lack of education many things for the worse have happened in this country; Some of them have startling sequences if followed intelligently.

One still conspicuous issue—that of Prohibition—was won because of this point. Never before were any people so cleverly deluded as the people of Newfoundland were then. Their innocence and credulity were shamefully taken advantage of and results have been vicious and legion. A few of them are and were—Strong drinks for the well-to-do and others with a pull doping smuggling, heavy fines and overflowing prisons. A strengthening of class hatred with an introduction all round of contempt for the law. Then again, if still followed; the Cornwall affair and this worked upon as political capital became a very strong factor in bringing in a change of government with a high additional number of public parasites and millions by loans with of course added privation and misery generally to the whole country. All those things followed as results of inability to think through the intricate web of deception covering prohibition. In many cases our leaders are schooled perhaps, but not educated in the deeper issues of state. Because of this we do little else but copy where the deep thinking comprehensive brain would instantly grasp the full measure of funds at our disposal and be guided thereby in their outlay.

In view of all this we should very jealously watch our position and act as a screen between younger eyes and past results, for just as we of to-day question the promptings of inherent moral instinct to respect laws when those who make are the first to break them, so our boys and girls gaining a mental view of matters such as we have may be led to despise education as a passing juvenile slavery to be later developed into the grinding labor of production upon which knaves and rascals may flourish. A good general education changes this to a great degree. Let us help and encourage the process. I want you to write again shortly and supply me with a new set of questions. We are still getting splendid weather with heavy frost. Wood hauling has begun in earnest. This and the U. F. Movement forms the chief topic of conversation. The wild confusion of the Advocate does not effect anybody but a few heebers. Now, supposing for argument sake, that it is a political move, does it follow that if I support the idea of reduction in taxation so that I have a fighting chance to support my family that I must therefore vote against Coaker. If a doctor orders me to and insists that I shall give up a luxury to save my life, must I curse him and charge him with being in league with the devil and working to injure me? And yet this is what Coaker is doing. The thing of itself looks altogether to silly to comment upon. Coaker has simply got to a new stage of deceit. Still trying to keep you thinking in the same old cut while he holds up the candle at the other end. So long as he can keep you in the darkness of that cut you can

Life.

Life so short and yet so earnest
Daily cometh to our lot,
But in time to come we shall be
In the future years forgot.

Just the space we live in now
We can clearly call our page,
For how often on the morrow
We are hurried to the grave.

In this rough but busy turmoil
Friends so often meet and part,
But how frequent hearts are bleeding
By friendships cruelly poisoned.

God has made us to be happy
And to live at peace with all,
But there have been pure and holy
Who've had to drink the bitter gall.

In the grave are many lying,
Broken hearts by sorrow and care
And among the living people,
Are the tools that sent them there.

Many a tired, broken spirit,
Vainly struggling to be brave,
Has found joy to fall and perish
Their only comfort was the grave.

God who is so just and holy
And who can make no mistake,
Will upon the day reckoning
Call each soul then face to face.

God will then see all wrongs righted
All life's hidden secret His
Will be brought before His notice
As God's Holy Word foretells.

Some may now be scorned by many Trampled on by many more,
Even the friend we trust in most,
May be furthest from our door.

But there cometh one glad morning
Weary spirit courage gain
God will on the day of Judgement
Give you joy for every pain.

Those apparently good and holy
Trying to cover up their sins,
Hiding behind another's failings
Enjoying what another wins.

All your fame, your pride, your title,
In Jordan's waters must be lost
All the saved must be pure and holy
And must bear life's heavy cross.

Oh be sure my Christian brother,
All your words and acts are right,
Are you fitted for the mansions
Filled with Sacred heavenly light.

God's great eye will pierce through all things
In that judgement day to come,
All heaven's joys will be your portion
Or eternal darkness be your doom.

If he settles a plant at the Humber which employs a comparatively few men and still adds to your burden and mine and the burden of the big majority, what matters it? It is YOUR cut and Coaker's candle. I want you to remember, Fred, the sides of Coaker's tunnel are dotted with tombs of dead men and without shadow of doubt they will be needed before the under dog can reach the elusive light of Fort William. Sues Father of Film Star.
CLAIMING PUBLICITY PACT WAS BROKEN.
Suit to recover $25,000 from John Coogan, father of Jackie Coogan, juvenile film actor, has been filed by John F. Connelly, a theatrical agent.

Only a summons has been filed in the County Clerk's office, but according to Frederick E. Goldsmith, attorney for Connelly, his client claims that about a year ago he made an agreement with Coogan to act as business manager in exploiting the youthful star.

Goldsmith says that his client was given a drawing account of $100 a week and that he paid $1,500 at that rate when the elder Coogan discontinued further payments.

A most interesting and delightful address on the life and works of Sir James Barrie, literary rector of St. Andrew's University, Scotland, was given at a meeting of the Old Colony Club, held in their rooms on Saturday afternoon last, by Mrs. Alex. Of "other denominations" 766 belong to Labrador, 761 being Moravians. Other inhabitants of Labrador are reported as follows: R. C. 318; C. of E., 1660; Methodist, 917; S. A. C.; Presbyterian, 6. These, however, are included in the columns above.

The increase in the census will require an increase of $26,216.00 in the grant for Boards to keep up the per capita standard to the present figure and the Superintendents of Education to make up the estimates on the increased basis. It is greatly to be desired that this recommendation of the Government may pass the House of Assembly, thus enabling Boards of Education to carry on their work as before.—Methodist Monthly Greening.

Large Audiences at the Nickel.

TO SEE "THE MAN WITH TWO MOTHERS."

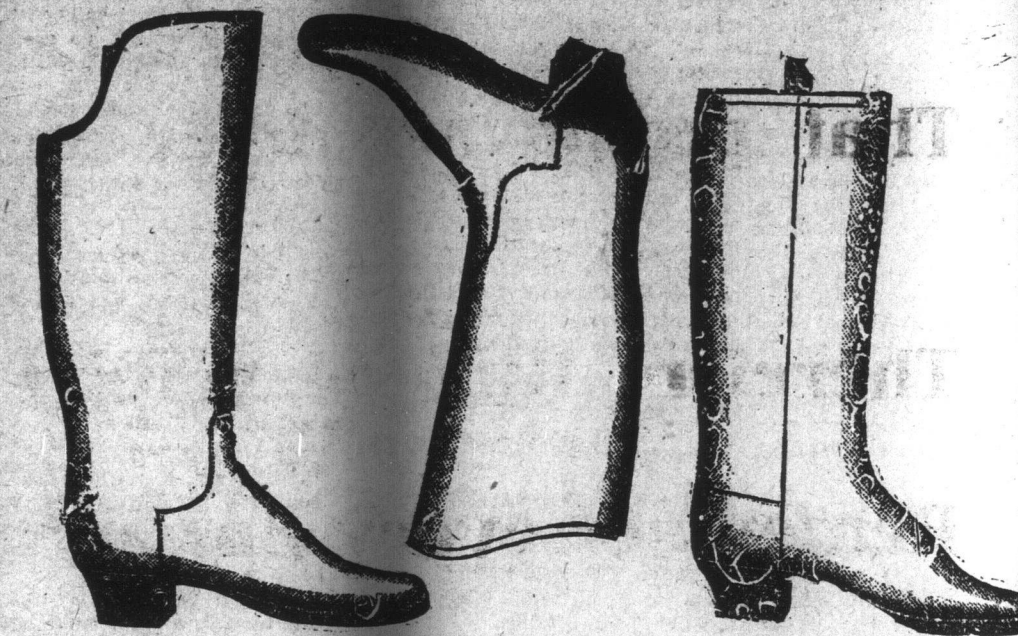

Alice Duer Miller, novelist, short story writer and dramatist, has now turned her attention to the screen and her first original photoplay, produced by Goldwyn with Mary Alden, Cullen Landis and Sylvia Breamer in the leading roles, was disclosed on the screen of the Nickel theatre last night. It is called "The Man With Two Mothers," and lives up to the promise of that intriguing title. It would detract from your enjoyment of the gay and romantic comedy to tell just how Cullen Landis as Dennis O'Neill acquired two mothers—but he did, and they led him a chase. To complicate matters he had a sweetheart (charming Sylvia Breamer) who misunderstood his devotion to one of his mothers.

But there, see it for yourself. You will chuckle with amusement and see one of the best screen sights of the year. Paul Bern, now Goldwyn editor-in-chief, directed the picture, and has brought out its humor and the freshness of its charm delightfully. Others in the cast are Monti Collins, Laura Lavarne, Hallam Cooley, Fred Huntly and William Elmer.

THE SHUT DOOR LOOK.

There is a certain expression which people sometimes have on their faces which I call the shut door look. I call it that because when it comes I know as if I had seen a door shut. The person behind that shut door is the person behind that shut door. I call it that because when it comes I know as if I had seen a door shut. The person behind that shut door is the person behind that shut door.

either those people or those facts comes up, she becomes as if by magic a totally different woman. Her whole manner changes; instead of listening to anything her vis a vis has to say, she waves it away with an impatient hand, her voice rises, and above all her face takes on that shut door look. You remember the refrain of the old popular song, "I've locked my heart and thrown away the key." Well change "heart" to mind and you have what happens when a prejudice gets to working in the mind of that woman or of any man or woman.

When I have been particularly noticing this door too, I have sometimes observed a peculiar phenomenon. I have not only seen the door shut, I have felt it. I have felt that tightening of the muscles around the mouth, that hardening of the whole face. Because you see I was not in front of the door on these occasions, but was behind it. And with me behind that shut door I was sure to find a prejudice—usually one I was very much ashamed of.

An Early English Warrior.

John of Gaunt—the celebrated brother of the still more celebrated Edward the Black Prince, and fourth son of Edward III, took his name from the place of his birth—Ghent. He died at Ely House, in Holborn, on February 3rd, 1399, only a few weeks before his son became King of England as Henry IV. John of Gaunt became Duke of Lancaster on the death of his warrior uncle and made himself obnoxious to the Church by opposing the cause of Wycliffe, the English Reformer. He quarrelled with everybody—Church, State, and Army—for although a brave commander, he opposed the counsels of the prudent, and by his rashness lost opportunities for victory. When John of Gaunt became so unpopular with the Londoners that riots were frequent between the Gaunt followers and the citizens, Edward III. packed him off to fight the Spanish King. The turbulent John got into endless broils over there, but returned and became for once popular with the people by his raids against his foolish nephew, Richard II's favorites. The Londoners of the earlier centuries were not slow to take sides with the various political parties, and many a stern fight occurred in consequence.

Parachute Drop to Safety

At Aldershot, it was recently demonstrated that an airman can escape from a nose-diving aeroplane by means of a parachute. Fastened by the tail to an observation balloon, an airplane was lifted to an altitude of some 2,000 feet and then released. As it came towards the earth, a parachute with a dummy man attached, became detached automatically within two hundred feet of the ground and landed evenly and gently on the grass, a few yards from the crashed airplane. The experiment was arranged by experts of the Royal Aircraft establishment at Farnborough.

The King of the Air.

In a lecture at the Royal Institution, on mountain birds of Scotland, Mr. Seton Gordon, the naturalist, said the golden eagle is holding its own, and, in fact, has increased during the war. The dotterel (a species of plover) is a very tame bird. The cock dotterel hatched the eggs, looked after the young, and did all the work. The hen, a larger and more brightly coloured bird, never came near the nest and took no interest in the young at all.

For Ships That Fly Through the Air.

For a long time experiments have been in progress with a view of adapting the principle of the Diesel engine to aircraft and motor-cars, and there is every reason to believe that complete success is near at hand. Whether England, France, or Germany will be the first to claim a really practicable result it is impossible to say, but while Professor Junkers, in Germany, has succeeded in making a six-cylinder high-speed, semi-Diesel engine for aeroplanes, and a French engineer claims to have made a Diesel engine for motor cars, experiments at the Royal Aircraft establishment at Farnborough, have, it is understood, reached a point which assures complete success. It is hardly necessary to point out that a great economy in running costs, besides reduction of fire risks, and the removal of one of the most serious causes of forced landings may be among the benefits, so far as aeronautics are concerned.

There was an informal inspection by a number of Press representatives recently, on the occasion of its re-opening, after a closure of seven years. One of the rooms is devoted entirely to relics of famous crimes, these including the leg-irons which were put on Jack Sheppard after his arrest in Well-close Square, Steppney; the handcuffs used on James Balfour when he was brought back from South America by Superintendent Frost; Crippen's revolver and the spade which he used in the cellar, also an extract from the hotel register where he stayed; fly-papers from the Maybrick case; the chemist's pestle, with which Miss Camp was murdered on the railway near Wimbledon; the ropes which were used at the execution of Milson, Mrs. Dyer, and other murderers; a gruesome photograph of one of Jack the Ripper's victims, and one of the letters which he is believed to have written, signed in red ink "Jack the Ripper," and with the grim postscript, "Don't mind me giving the trade name." There is also the pistol used by the man who attempted to shoot Sir Edward Henry when he was Commissioner of Police; the knife used by Prince, the murderer of the actor, William Terriss; Neil Cream's pills; brandy and water and meat extract in which arsenic was traced in the Seddon case; and one of the baths used by Smith to drown his wives.

Prohibition and the National Debt.

Editor, Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—During the past few months a great deal has been written in the St. John's daily papers in reference to the Customs Tariff, with its Surtax, Super-tax, Sales Tax and Export Tax. The whole population of the island has been unanimous and emphatic in their denunciation of these prohibitive taxes, but no one attempted any practical solution of this difficult problem until a body of fishermen from Westville, under the name of the "United Fishermen's Movement," took the initiative and made a demand on the Government for the cancellation of the Export Tax on dry codfish, and 25 per cent. reduction on the whole of our Import Taxes. The Export Tax on dry codfish is being refunded to the fishermen as a result of the demand of the United Fishermen's Movement. Mr. Sainsbury, who held a public meeting here on Ash Wednesday night under the auspices of the U. F. M., stated that Sir R. A. Squires expressed the wish "that they could cut the Import Taxes in two." We all wish that, but how is it to become an accomplished fact? With our decreasing revenues and our fifty-five millions of a national debt, with a possibility of a further increase if we continue borrowing in the future as we have done in the past, in ten years hence our revenue at the present rate of taxation will not be sufficient to pay the interest on our national debt. What can be done to meet the emergency and to save our Island Home from that bankruptcy which is staring us in the face? To my mind, and with my practical experience of the island, there is but one way, and one way only, to solve our country's financial problem, and that is to expunge the farcical Prohibition Law from our Consolidated Statutes.

In making this demand I am quite aware that I am asking a great many conscientious men to depart from a principle which is very dear to their hearts, but I am also quite aware that I am voicing the opinions of at least eighty per cent. of the voters of the island, who are equally conscientious in supporting my principle of the abolition of the Prohibition Law, when I point out to them that what is being done now all over the island in smuggling, lying, moon-shining and hypocrisy, will then be performed in a legitimate way, and above all, will save the Colony from bankruptcy. To accomplish my scheme, which I shall presently outline, it will be necessary for all our politicians in the island to be unanimous, should a referendum be necessary to decide the question of Prohibition and a new Government. This will decide the Prohibition question by a majority vote, and a General Election as well, and will not cost the country one cent extra.

When the total vote for the island is counted, let the majority vote, and not the minority, be strictly enforced. Spirits, I am sure, will then be sold legitimately. My scheme for paying off our national debt, then, is as follows, viz:—

(1) The Government to import spirituous liquors and to keep the sale there exclusively under Government control.

(2) The Government or a company to build hotels along the line of railway at the following places: South Branch, Robinson's Head, Main River, St. George's, Humbermouth, Deer Lake (each end), Galt Topsails, Millertown Junction, Norris' Arm, Glenwood and Gambo. These hotels are to be licensed to sell spirits and cater to the tourists of "bone-dry" United States, as Quebec has lately been doing, and adding millions of dollars to their revenue. Newfoundland is better situated geographically than Quebec and we have better fishing and shooting; and if cheaply built, summer hotels, with the very best accommodation and licensed to sell spirituous liquors, were located at the above mentioned places, tens of thousands of tourists would flock into Newfoundland in the summer months. They would build up a great passenger traffic for the railway and would get in a legitimate way what they are now paying to the rum-runners which are doing such a wholesale trade at the present time between St. Pierre and the United States.

Only a few days ago I saw by papers from St. John's that the S. S. Sachem was there and was transferring 10,000 cases of whisky to the Sable I. for St. Pierre. And this is only a "drop in a bucket" of the quantity of spirits that St. Pierre is importing, and is making millions of dollars by the transaction, and making it off Newfoundland, Canada and the United States, while we are the Rip Van Winkle Land and are allowing a wholesale smuggling business to go on unchecked.

To save the country from bankruptcy and borrowing millions of dollars, let the Government give us back the importation of spirits. (Give us the tea hotels; yes, and an up-to-date one at St. John's, and the tourist trade in ten years hence will pay off our national debt.)

Why a Spinning Top Keeps Upright.

Everyone who has ever whirled a string to which a stone is tied must have noticed the strong "pull" as the stone tried to get away. Every part of a spinning top is trying to fly away from the centre of the top in exactly the same way. This pull is called "centrifugal force"—the tendency to fly from the centre.

As each particle of the top has an equal pull, none of them can upset the balance of any of the others, and so we get the balanced force.

So long as this force is strong enough—that is, so long as the spin lasts—it counteracts the ordinary power of gravity, which has to confine itself to the peg of the top, the only point actually touching the earth.

When the top slows down, the centrifugal force relaxes, gravity comes into its own again—and the top falls over.

Relieves Dyspepsia

M. D. advises: "Persons who suffer from severe indigestion and constipation should take after each meal and at bedtime, fifteen to thirty drops of the Extract of Roots known to the Drug Trade as 'Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup.' Get the Genuine. 50c. and $1.00 bottles.

Animals That Laugh and Cry.

Animals have all sorts of ways of expressing their emotions. A dog that is angry walks with stiff legs and upright tail. His ears are pressed back, and the hair around his neck and on his back bristles. If pleased, he wags his tail furiously.

Some dogs can, and do smile. A rough-haired terrier of my own used positively to grin when about to be given such a delicacy as rabbit. His lips are curved so as to show his teeth. You almost expected to hear him laugh.

Another dog, a spaniel belonging to a friend, was a clever retriever, and when he had brought back a shot bird to his master, used to lift his head and grin with pleasure.

In a case which came up at Guildhall Police Court, a witness gave evidence that a blow on the nose brought tears to a horse's eyes.

Herbert Tennant, the American authority on horses, has testified that a horse of his own that had trodden on a nail came limping up to him on three legs, with tears streaming from his eyes.

The sight, he says, was a very touching one, as was also the crippled animal's gratitude when the nail was drawn out and the wound dressed.

Mr. Frank Finn, Fellow of the Zoological Society, has mentioned the fact that elephants, when hurt or ill-treated, burst into tears.

In his book on the subject of animal emotions, he speaks of a turkey cock which, when angry, blushed in a most amazingly way. The bird's face, usually livid blue, changed to a raging scarlet.

Why Motor Cars Carry Hooters and not Bells.

Bells have for centuries been used on horse traffic, and more recently on cycles. To herald the approach of a motor-car, with its greater speed, some distinctive sound was needed.

Extra loud bells, it is true, such as are employed on fire-engines, might have been used, but the pandemonium in a crowded street would be unbearable.

The hooter, therefore, the perfected descendant of the old post-boy's horn, was the obvious instrument, and possessed, in addition, the advantage of throwing its sound forwards, instead of all round, as a bell does.

So by custom we came to accept the hooter as the distinctive warning of a motor. In parts of the Continent, indeed, it is illegal to affix a hooter to any other kind of vehicle.

ECZEMA

You are one of the millions who suffer from this skin disease. It relieves all cases and gradually heals the skin. Sample box Dr. Chase's Ointment free if you mention this paper and send no stamp for postage. See a list of all dealers or Edmundson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Why Writing Paper is Called Stationery.

A stationer originally meant a man who had a regular station or stall at a market, and as in days gone by such a stall was often placed outside a church, the word in time acquired the distinct meaning of a man who sold religious articles, often manuscripts.

Then the stationer became regarded as a man who copied manuscripts, whether religious or not, and so he became definitely identified with the book trade.

Gradually, however, men specialised in different branches the bookseller going one way and the man who sold papers, pens and the odds and ends of literature, another. The latter kept the old name and sold "stationery," a word which became officially approved with the opening, nearly a century and a half ago, of "H.M. Stationery Office."

Breathing Heavily When Sleeping.

This may be accounted for in one of several ways. Our breathing is involuntary and not directly under our control; but when we are awake we can help it a little.

For instance, many of us suffer permanently from a slight catarrh, and while awake, we periodically clear our tubes as it were, by coughing or blowing our noses. When asleep, we cannot do this, and the passages have to be cleared of congestion by extra deep breathing.

When awake we naturally put ourselves into a position for easy breathing; but when asleep many of us, particularly if we are inclined to be stout, roll into a position which hinders easy breathing, and makes extra heavy breaths necessary.

A third cause concerns the very nature of breathing, which, put roughly, is to get rid of carbonic acid and replace it by oxygen.

During sleep, the whole machinery of our body works more slowly than when we are awake, and we often accumulate more carbonic acid than our sleep breathing can pump out. When that happens we take a dozen or so extra deep breaths to get rid of the excess of carbonic acid gas.

An Ancient Feminine Art.

The needlework picture is such a colossal piece of work to carry thru to the bitter end that the new method adopted by a clever new woman of to-day, is well worth considering by those who make a hobby of needlecraft. In landscape subjects the sky is put in with the brush, the hills and important features then being cut out in silk of the right color and applied to the background with slip stitch. Old needlework pictures fetch good prices to-day, and antique dealers compete keenly for them in the auction room on the rare occasions that they appear. Some time ago a set of four biblical subjects sold for twenty guineas, although the bidding started at one pound for the set.

"Cause and effect is Nature's law"

Life is controlled by it—science is based on it—none can escape it. Many people find that tea and coffee, which both contain the drug, Caffeine, cause headache, nervousness and loss of sleep. Headache, powders and sleeping poisons can give only temporary relief, and are dangerous. The safe and sure way to avoid tea and coffee troubles is to adopt wholesome, delicious Instant Postum as the mealtime beverage. Instant Postum is a pure and healthful beverage; absolutely free from any drug. Its fragrant aroma and rich, full-bodied flavor satisfy the need for a cheering mealtime cup. Try it for awhile instead of tea and coffee.

A New Charm
Came to millions in this way

Millions of people have gained a new charm through whiter, prettier teeth. You see them everywhere. The reason lies in a new dentifrice method. Careful people in some fifty nations are using it today.

Combats the film
One purpose is to combat film on teeth—that viscous film you see. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. It absorbs germs, making the teeth look dingy. Then it forms cloudy spots. Tartar is based on film. Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with teeth to cause decay. Germs spread by millions in it. They eat tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. An ordinary tooth paste effectively combats film. So, under old methods, these troubles come steadily increased, and beautiful teeth were seen less often than today.

Two ways found
To meet this situation, dental science searched for ways to fight film, and two ways were found. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. The name is Pepsodent. These two great film combatants are embodied in it. Then dentists the world over began to advise its use.

Other factors
But Pepsodent brings other effects which old ways did not bring. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Thus it gives manifold power to Nature's great tooth-protecting agents. And everywhere this means to people a new dental era.

Watch the man

Men who smoke find that tobacco particularly stains their teeth. Such men's conspicuous results. But most people's teeth, of every age, are clouded more or less.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

That test will give you new ideas of what clean teeth mean. You will want your family to always have them, we believe. Cut out the coupon now.

Sachem to Liverpool 9,095 quintals from Renewa Trading Co., Monroe Export Co., Job Bros. & Co., Ltd., Union Export Co., C. F. Bennett & Co., Harvey & Co., Hollett, A. E. Hickman and G. M. Barr. By s.s. Digby 23 quintals to Boston from Geo. M. Barr. The markets are taking fish fairly well but there is little improvement in price.

COD OIL—The market is holding good in the United States and all that is going forward is being taken at profitable prices to the exporters. The s.s. Silvia took out 19,203 gallons to New York last trip from Messrs. Bowring, Ebsary and Job Bros. The Norwegian fishery now in progress will be the chief factor in influencing the market in the near future.

Deadly Explosive.

THAT ARE TREATED LIGHTLY.

Cylinders of compressed gas are daily being carted about our streets, and handled freely by all sorts of people, yet each of them contains as much potential energy as a fair-sized dynamite bomb.

Only a few weeks back a motor-lorry laden with fifty cylinders caught fire and blew up near Haddlesey, Yorkshire, and the noise of the explosion was heard six miles away.

On another occasion a single cylinder exploded in a London railway terminus, partially wrecking the building and killing and wounding several people.

Celluloid bursts into flame with explosive violence when brought into contact with a naked light. Owing to this a man lost his life the other day through dropping a lighted match on a celluloid collar he was wearing.

In another case a woman was fatally injured by a number of celluloid buttons on her dress catching fire. Each one of these, it was pointed out at the inquest, was in effect a tiny bomb.

An ordinary soda-water siphon is often charged up to a pressure of between 150 and 160 pounds, and if dropped on a stone floor so that it breaks, the result may well be disastrous.

Many people have lost their lives through the explosion of ordinary paraffin lamps.

An idea prevails that these lamps are not really dangerous if the oil reservoir is a metal one. This is quite wrong. In the office of the London County Council are the remains of some hundreds of these lamps, each with its own tragic history. The solid brass reservoirs have, in many instances, been shattered and shredded by the explosive gases pent up within.
