AFTER BABY COMES Strength Often Returns Slowly Mothers May Depend Upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Restore a Normal Condition

Many, many letters similar to the following recommend the Vegetable Compound as a wonderful medicine for bringing the mother back to normal health and strength.

It is an excellent restorative, contains no harmful drugs and may be taken in safety by a nursing mother. Thousands of mothers who have regained their strength by taking it are its best recommendation. Why not take it yourself?

Could Not Gain Strength
Bury, Quebec.—"I have had great help from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am a different woman now. I was very sickly before my first child was born. I did not get my strength back afterwards, and he did not stay with us long. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for three months before my second child was born, and have taken it occasionally ever since. My doctor had said that medicine would not do me much good, but my nurse wished me to try the Vegetable Compound, so I did. I do not go without having it in the house now and I am looking well and feeling fine. I do all my work, sewing and all."—Mrs. JOHN SIMPSON, Box 555, Bury, Quebec, Ontario.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Cobourg, Ontario. This book contains valuable information.

Under False Colors OR Lord Somerton's Ally.

CHAPTER XXX.

"I have received a letter from him to-day telling me this, but these lawyers are heartless and brutal. If true, and there is no proof to the contrary, you are not an heiress at all. It is a most painful position, but in no wise alters my love for you."

She made a gesture of contempt.

"Listen to me," he went on, passionately. "I hold this cousin of yours in the hollow of my hand, and though the professions to be determined to hunt Sir John to his death, one word from me and he dare not move another inch; one word from me, and your father's life—his honor—can be saved. I am as sure as there is a blue sky above us that my great devotion to you will yet command your respect—even your love. I ask you—do not treat you, notwithstanding the change in your fortunes—to be my wife, Elsie, because I love you beyond all other things on earth. At present you are not fancy-free; you have been trifled with by a handsome scoundrel. Nay, nay, let me finish, and soon you shall judge! I repeat, you have permitted your girlish fancy to be paltered with by one who will soon be unmasked—by one who has laughed at his success, and made a jest of your name; by one at whose door may safely be permitted Sir John's deathblow, and the shame of his ancient name. Even now you have a letter from this man; I met your maid with it in her hand, and felt bitterly grieved that you should think it necessary to have your correspondence brought to you in secrecy. It is a blow at myself, or Lady Freeman, both of whom are in truth your only friends. I will not press the matter further now, Elsie;

I only ask you to beware of the villainy of this consummate actor, who will soon be unmasked to your horror and disgust."

"Enough," said Elsie, as pale as death. "Let me say that I do not believe you. I do not know whether you are lying wittingly, but I do not believe you."

His eyes blazed, momentarily.

"If I have spoken the truth," he cried, "I know that you will look more kindly upon me; I know that my love for you will compel some return."

He seized her hand, and pressed upon it hot kisses, and his voice was hoarse with emotion.

"Go to your cousin," he continued. "Go to Noel Campbell, and plead with him for your father's life, your father's honor, and find his heart as hard as adamant. I beg of you to do this, my darling, and then I will crush the scoundrel if he dares to disobey me! On one condition, Elsie, on one condition. I want you for my wife; I worship you, but I will not press my claim. I will not utter another word of love, though my passion is consuming me, until the man with whom you are infatuated is proved to your satisfaction to be a hundred leagues below Judas!"

His very intensity overpowered Elsie with a nameless dread.

"I will see this unnatural cousin of mine," she said, "I had intended doing so before, and then—"

Her lips trembled.

"And then," he added, "you will come to me to save Sir John—you will come to me, your only friend. In return, you must promise to be my wife—to marry me at once. Remember how much depends upon it! I cannot give everything for nothing!"

"If my lover is half as black as you have painted him, Lord Somerton, then I shall have lost all faith in human nature. Though my heart will be broken, I must think of my father—I must live for his sake; and if there is no other alternative, I think that I shall even be ready to marry you, my lord, if you care for a wife who will only be so in name!"

"Elsie, you will love me yet!"

"Back, my lord! Do not approach me; but remember your promise. I have yet to prove my lover false; I have yet to find my cousin heartless and merciless. Until I confess to this—until I find that only by marrying you can I shield my father, then I shall be prepared for the sacrifice!"

She turned abruptly, and left him; and the earl watched her until she disappeared within the house, his face deathly white, his smoldering eyes full of passion and triumph.

"She will meet her lover to-day," he muttered. "She will meet Noel Campbell to-morrow. Hal hal. And then—"

That afternoon he walked back to the village with Mr. Lawson, and told the astonished clergyman that Miss Sterne had that day consented to an immediate marriage.

"You surprise me," he said. "Is it strictly within the bounds of decorum, my lord? Remember the unhappy position of Sir John. Remember the doubt—"

"My dear sir, you do not understand the affair," replied the earl. "It was Sir John's wish, and Miss Sterne's apathy greatly aggravated his illness. He knew that he must die soon, and wished to see her suitably settled in life. If we can convey the news of the marriage to him, it will be like a draught of elixir to him; it will give him another lease in life!"

Mr. Lawson listened and wondered. How could he reconcile this statement with the words that Miss Sterne had so recently uttered to him?

"I congratulate you, my lord," he said. "Miss Sterne is a lovely girl. A quiet wedding, I suppose?"

"Under the circumstances, yes! It is Elsie's wish. I should like you to officiate, Mr. Lawson, and request you to mention the affair to no one."

"Thank you, my lord. I am deeply sensible of your confidence, and you may trust me," replied Mr. Lawson.

CHAPTER XXXI.

Though the Earl of Somerton's impassioned speech had very much disturbed Elsie's troubled mind, she strove to forget her promise to him, when the time drew near for her meeting with Colin Erncliffe.

She had been careful to wear one of her prettiest dresses, and her cheeks were flushed with expectancy as she stepped toward the glade that Colin had so aptly called the Court of Love.

It wanted twenty minutes to the time her lover had mentioned in his letter when she entered the well-wooded retreat, and she seated herself in the same rustic chair that both had occupied when Colin had told her the story of his love.

The skies were blue then, and the sun bright with the glory of early autumn. From afar came the song of the reaper, and the air was soft and mellow. The skies were blue now, and the sun flooded the beautiful world below with his fervent beams; the air was full of drowsy songs, but oh! how different the meaning of all these things in Elsie's heart to-day!

She took Colin's letter from the bosom of her dress, and kissed it passionately.

"Oh, my love! my love!" she murmured. "My heart tells me that this may be our last meeting; that this may be our parting for all time!"

She heard the quick step, and the cracking of dried leaves; then the branches of the tree that shielded the entrance to the glade were pushed aside, and Colin stood before her!

"Sweetheart!" he said, his eyes shining with rapture. "I am here!"

He held out his arms, and Elsie sprang into them, her sorrow forgotten, her doubts thrown to the winds.

"Poor little girl!" he whispered. "Did you think that I was never coming? Ah, Elsie, you will never guess what torture this delay has been to me."

He pressed a dozen kisses on her upturned face, and she nestled closer to him, and sobbed.

"I have been so busy," he went on, "busy working for my darling."

She only half comprehended the meaning of his words, and, at last, he held her from him at arm's length.

For Men Who Put Muscle into Work

STANFIELD'S make real man-size Underwear—big, warm, comfortable Underwear—that a man can swing pick and hammer in—do any kind of work in—and that gives you more solid satisfaction and wear than you can get in any other underwear made in this or any other country.

STANFIELD'S Unshrinkable UNDERWEAR [RED LABEL]

is made for men who put muscle into work. It is made of pure, long-fibred wool—made carefully and honestly, just as Stanfield's Underwear has been made for the past fifty years—to give honest wear, service and comfort for your money, and to guard your health during the long winter.

STANFIELD'S UNDERWEAR is not the cheapest you can buy—but it is worth all and more than your dealer will ask you for it—because it is absolutely unshrinkable; it fits easy and comfortable; it keeps you warm and protects your health; and it wears as only pure, long-fibred virgin wool, carefully knitted, can wear. It pays to pay for quality.

STANFIELD'S Red, Blue and Black Label are the same quality—the difference is in the weight.

STANFIELD'S UNDERWEAR is for the whole family. Combinations and Two-piece suits; in full length, knee and elbow length and sleeveless; all weights and textures for ladies and men; and Adjustable Combinations and Sleepers for children. Booklets, illustrating Men's, Ladies', Children's and Infants' Underwear, sent free on request; write for it.

Just Folks. By EDGAR A GUEST

CERTAIN JOYS
I shall not fall in this,
Whatever the day may bring
I'll smile to feel my baby's kiss
And hear her robing sing.

I'll joy to greet the morning sun,
And every garden rose,
And marvel look upon
My little baby's toes.

This heart of mine will leap
With joy, in spite of care,
To see my little babe asleep
Upon her pillow there.

I'll greet my friends with cheer,
Who'er those friends may be;
In spite of doubt or fear,
They'll still belong to me.

Oh, there is much in life
Beyond the moments sad,
Beyond the pain and strife,
To keep a mortal glad.

The Pro-phy-lactic Tooth Brush really cleans between the teeth. The ordinary tooth brush merely brushes the surface.

"A Clean Tooth Never Decays"
SAVE your teeth and your money by visiting your dentist four times a year. Frequent examinations cost little—delays are expensive.

Clean the teeth regularly twice a day with the Pro-phy-lactic Tooth Brush.

The tufted bristles easily penetrate into every crevice. The curved handle makes it possible to clean even the backs of the back teeth. Always sold in the yellow box.

Pro-phy-lactic Tooth Brushes come in three sizes—adults, youths, and children's; and in three degrees of stiffness—hard, medium, and soft.

Sold by all dealers in Canada. Distributed in N.S. by GERALD S. DOYLE, St. John's.

Pro-phy-lactic Tooth Brush

Metal cloths are used for the charming little draped, turban trimmed with knots of flowers.

O'DRISCOLL—FITZGERALD.

On Friday evening, November 2nd, at the home of the bride's parents, at Fogo, an interesting and pretty wedding was solemnized, when Miss Nora M. Fitzgerald, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Fitzgerald, became the bride of Mr. Patrick O'Driscoll, of St. John's. Rev. Dr. Jones, Pastor of St. Patrick's Church, officiated at the nuptial ceremony. The bride was beautifully gowned in ashes-of-roses Georgette over satin, with hat to match, and carried a gorgeous bouquet of maiden-hair ferns and chrysanthemums. Miss Rita Jones was bridesmaid. She was daintily attired in a modish creation of navy blue silk and tulle, and carried a large bouquet of asparagus ferns and carnations. The best man was Mr. James E. Fitzgerald, brother of the bride. The groom's present to the bridesmaid was an exquisite gold rosary; and to the best man a gold stick-pin. After the bride and groom received the congratulations of their friends, a beautiful supper, served from a daintily arrayed table, was held at the Fitzgerald home, the guests being limited to the immediate relatives and a small circle of intimate friends. There was a quiet air of elegance in evidence, the affair being marked by a lack of ostentation and quite in keeping with the times. At the wedding supper which followed the reception, Rev. Dr. Jones, in proposing the health of the bride, paid a glowing tribute to her faithful and spontaneous activity in connection with Church benefit affairs, the Alfar Guild, etc., with which she has been prominently identified for a number of years, but especially as organizer of the Church of Our Lady of the Snows at Fogo, where her painstaking and musical skill would be sorely missed and quite difficult to replace. The groom, in a few well chosen words, responded. After refreshments were served the guests made merry until the departure of the bridal couple for the coastal steamer Clyde, where the newly-weds were given a royal send-off by friends who accompanied them to the pier. The happy couple left by the Clyde at an early hour on Saturday morning for their future home in St. John's, where the groom holds an important position with the Imperial Life Assurance Company. The bride, who is a popular social favorite in her home district, was the happy recipient of many useful and valuable presents.

Gratitude for Pioneer Work

The Government of Newfoundland has sent a donation of $1,000 to the Centenary Fund of the Colonial and Continental Church Society in recognition of the work of that Society in the colony during the last hundred years.

The Society, founded in 1823, began its labours in Newfoundland in the following year, and gradually established a system of schools. The schoolmasters were expected, also, to be lay readers and to hold services in the absence of the clergy.—Sunday Times, Oct. 21.

TESTAMENTARY.

"Some day," said Perkins E. McGill, "I'll take an hour and make my will. It is a job that I despise, although I know it's sane and wise, for it reminds me of the shrinking state that he'll be some day in a crate, and o'er his head the goats will browse, and also sheep 'and bob-tailed cows. It should be done, I must admit, and shortly I'll attend to it; but just at present, as you see, I'm busy as a bumble bee, and I shall let it slide. I won't, until my work slacks up a lot."

While he pursued his useful game a dark blue auto climbed his frame. He gave a few brief anguished pants, and bade farewell to wife and aunts, and journeyed to that shining shore where autos butcher folks no more. And his affairs were badly mixed; to get things straightened up and fixed, administrators and their clan came in a stately caravan. A second cousin filed a suit, a lawyer looked around for loot, and creditors sprung large accounts, and fakers asked for large amounts, and hungry relatives appeared with claims detestable and weird. And when it was all settled up the widow drew the Alreids pup, and all the balance went to pay the costs—which is the good old way. The widow's busy scrubbing floors and promoting a new, comfortable relief. Try it when you "booze ash" and you feel you "can hardly stand up any longer."

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Quickly and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for curing coughs.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any drugist, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and breathless cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effects on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for 2½ ounces of Pinex with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

British Elections on Dec. 6th.

United Liberal Party to Party to Oppose the Government.--Poincare is given Vote of Confidence.--Issue of Passports to Ex-Kaiser Denied.--Wheat Ship with Broken Shaft off Cape Race.

THE BRITISH POLITICAL SITUATION.

LONDON, Nov. 13. The brief but exciting re-opening of the Parliament, elected on a year ago on the slogan of tranquility, that Parliament found itself condemned to immediate death, not because the Government had suffered defeat in the House or sustained reverses in bye-elections, but because the country authorizing its government to resort to protective duties on manufactures as a remedy for unemployment. Explaining that he wanted a mandate in time to inaugurate the new duties in the next budget the Premier declared it was necessary to have the elections at the earliest possible moment. He advised the King accordingly and saw to it that Parliament should not be dissolved on Friday. The elections will be held on December 6th. The immediate effect of the Government's change of policy will be a realignment of parties or rather of party leaders. The two opposing Liberal wings led by Asquith and Lord George have become re-united under the Free Trade banner and are now polling to make a united Liberal Government a practical alternative to the present Government. Reconciliation of the Liberals was fully effected to-day. If the Conservatives are returned to power the new Government will be greatly strengthened by the inclusion of Austen Chamberlain, Lord Birkenhead and probably Sir Robert Horne, who has abandoned his projected visit to the United States in order to assist the party in the election. These three would probably replace in the new Conservative Government Free Trade members Sir Egil Derby, the Duke of Devonshire and Lord Robert Cecil. Neville Chamberlain, as the son of the great Chamberlain, Joseph Chamberlain, received hearty cheers from the Government benches when he entered the House to-day. When Asquith entered the whole Liberal force rose and cheered vociferously and even a more enthusiastic reception was accorded Lord George. The Prime Minister received an ovation from the Conservative ranks who must make up their minds to protection before December 6th. They have had no special education on the subject, because it has not been a conspicuous issue in British politics since Joseph Chamberlain swept under by a Free Trade vote in 1905. A new generation of voters and millions of women succeeded, moreover the economic conditions have vastly changed. Protection to-day is a new issue, say the politicians, because 1923 is not 1905.

A strong point in Premier Baldwin's campaign is that he proposes an immediate remedy for the plight of the unemployed which is reaching a critical stage. Against him stands the Labour party which does not rest on the old Free Trade argument of handing off the system under which Great Britain became the greatest financial power in the world, but offers as an alternative a levy on capital. Against him also are the Liberals who have compounded no specific panacea but point out the dangers in a hurried reversal of the country's fiscal principles. Mr. Baldwin's protection is limited protection. He stands by his promise not to tax food or meat, and the Conservatives hold that the old Free Trade war cry against a tax on food no longer applies. There is a novel feature in the plans for new protection that have been gathered from this source are to be devoted to subsidizing other branches of industry but to withdraw existing duties on some of the necessities of life. The new balance sheet is to show in one column large increases from tariff on manufactured goods with the incidental impetus to home factories and increased employment, and in the other column decreases for relief of agriculture and protection of cotton growing within the Empire and the reduction of duties on tea and sugar. Labor's scheme for a capital levy, so far as developed, appears to be impracticable by the Government of a certain percentage of fortunes of five thousand pounds and over, which the Labor leaders argue is merely a form of taxation and a perfectly legitimate one. The general view is that a reunited Liberal party, whose union is likely to lack vitality because the healing of enmities between many of the Asquith and George supporters can hardly be deep and wholly sincere, is an outsider so far as the chances of winning the election goes, particularly if the party brings forth no plan for dealing with unemployment and depression among the farmers.

FERCE POLITICAL WAR FORECASTED.

LONDON, Nov. 13. Government announcements to-day indicated that Parliament would be dissolved Thursday or Friday and general elections take place in England December fifth or sixth. The most dramatic feature of the news of the day was the announcement that the Asquithian and Georgian wings of the Liberal Party would reunite once again and present a solid front to the Conservatives and Laborites. The House of Commons to-day after a brief session adopted the motion by Premier Baldwin that the whole time of the House be appropriated to the Government for the remainder of the session. The motion was carried by a vote of 270 to 90 with the reunited Liberal forces offering a solid front and Labor, the second strongest party in the Commons, throwing down the gauntlet to Mr. Baldwin. One of the fiercest of political wars is forecasted.

RESULTS UNCERTAIN.

LONDON, Nov. 13. Sir Hamar Greenwood, former chief secretary for Ireland, who has lain very low since his defeat in Sunderland in the last general election, when he ran as a supporter of Lloyd George, will certainly come forward in the pending election contest. Col. Grant Morden probably will have little difficulty under the banner of Premier Baldwin in being returned to the Commons.

How to Purify the Blood

Persistence in this treatment will give permanent relief in nearly every case. Get the genuine at druggists, 50c. and $1.00 bottles.

for Chiswick, one of those London suburbs usually wedded to Conservatism. The fusion of Liberal wings will alter the situation in several of the poorer quarters of London where Asquithians and Georgians were in conflict in the last general election. Lord Young, former organizer of the Coalition, and Conservative parties, confesses he has never felt so uncertain of any election results. Like other Unionists he believes the Conservatives will have to concentrate between Premier Baldwin's policy and the Labor party's capital levy.

POINCARÉ GIVEN VOTE OF CONFIDENCE.

PARIS, Nov. 13. The French Chamber of Deputies to-day passed a Vote of Confidence in the Poincaré Government by a vote of 379 to 183. The Chamber reconvened at 2:15 this afternoon with nearly five hundred Deputies present; the largest opening day attendance since the war.

POINCARÉ SAFE TILL ELECTIONS.

PARIS, Nov. 13. Premier Poincaré, riding roughshod over all opposition, scored a signal victory at the reopening of the French Chamber to-day, and succeeded in placing discussion of the supplementary credits of the 1924 budget at the top of the order of the day, and absolutely refused to discuss interpellations except on one day each week, which means in effect indefinite postponement, as interpellations would probably average one for each sitting there only four or five could be disposed of before the December recess. Poincaré's uncompromising attitude, however, caused the crystallization of all the opposition groups, Radicals, Clemenceau Adherents, Socialists and Communists voting solidly against the Government for the largest minority on a question of confidence since the Ruhr occupation. The vote was 379 to 186. It is admitted even in the most bitterly oppositional quarters that the Poincaré Government is safe until the elections.

CASH DOUBT ON BRUSSELS DESPATCHES.

LONDON, Nov. 13. British Government officials are inclined to doubt the Brussels despatches stating that passports had been handed the ex-Kaiser and his entourage admitting them into Germany, and to believe an official statement sent out from Berlin denying that the German Government had given permission for the return of the exiled monarch. They are of the opinion that the visit of Dr. Kan, Dutch Minister of the Interior, who was believed to have carried passports to Doorn, was really to caution Wilhelm that the Allies would not view his departure from Holland with the same equality as that of his son.

EX-KAISER NOT IN GOOD HEALTH.

DOORN, Nov. 14. William Hohenzollern goes calmly about his customary tasks at Doorn House notwithstanding the reports that he was preparing to depart for the Fatherland. It is asserted here that no foundation for the report that the former Emperor and the members of his entourage have been granted passports for a journey to Berlin, and those close to him declare he had no intention of leaving Doorn. Moreover, it is said the ex-Kaiser is not in good health.

conduct an inquiry into the Reparations question, was deferred by the Commission to-day, until the German delegates shall have been heard regarding the Reich's capacity to pay.

STEAMER MILTON IN DISTRESS.

BOSTON, Nov. 13. The British steamer Milton was reported with her shaft broken and in need of assistance off Cape Race, Nfld., in a message received here to-day. The Milton, with 175,000 bushels of wheat, left here Nov. 7th for Queenstown. No further particulars were given.

GREAT BRITAIN AND GREECE.

ATHENS, Nov. 13. Great Britain has informed Greece, says the newspaper Euterodos Vima, to-day, that although it has not changed its attitude regarding Constantine and Constantism, it is of opinion that Greece should make any change in its constitution inasmuch as it considers King George of Greece in the natural tie between Greece and Great Britain.

Obituary

MRS. WILLIAM BOLEN.

(H. F. SHORTIS.)

On Sunday last there passed to her eternal reward, fortified by the rites of the Roman Catholic Church, of which she was a consistent and exemplary member, Margaret Walsh, widow of the late William Bolen, for many years caretaker of the old Commercial Rooms in St. John's.

Mrs. Bolen was a daughter of the late Mr. Thomas Walsh, tailor and clothier, who came to Newfoundland from Ireland, about the year 1838, and with her parents, was Margaret, then about twelve months old. Mr. Walsh was one of the most talented musicians that ever came to this country, and had the honor of playing on many occasions in one of the bands in Ireland during the agitation for Emancipation in the days of the Great Liberator, Daniel O'Connell. Mrs. Bolen served her apprenticeship with her father, and during her long life, she worked at the trade, in which she was known as a first-class tailoress. During her married life she was a patient, kind and loving wife, a good neighbour and faithful friend, and she has now gone to her reward that awaits those who have finished life's course and kept the faith.

Her long life in many respects was a remarkable one; among her acquaintances she was esteemed for her superior qualities of head and heart, her singularly upright character, her noble personality and the magnanimity of her soul; but none except her intimate friends knew the full grandeur of her life, the charities, according to her means, which she dispensed with such unstinted generosity—the deep spirit of her faith, which was animated by every action and found expression in the most beautiful practices of piety. She endeared herself to all by her beautiful character, her deep spirituality, her unobtrusive piety, and her kindness, unselfishness, and unflinching thought for all about her. For many years she was a leading member of the choir in the cathedral in Harbor Grace, and also took part in concerts for charitable purposes. Doubtless she inherited her great musical and vocal talents from her father—her voice being of great range, richness, sweetness, and in her rendition of her part she kept the audience eagerly listening to every note and held them enthralled.

She leaves to mourn one sister, Mrs. John O'Reilly, and old and respected resident of Carbonear, and a nephew in the United States; also her adopted daughter, Mrs. James Mackey, wife of Inspector Mackey, and hosts of friends and acquaintances. Her funeral took place from Inspector Mackey's residence (where she resided for many years) last evening; and after the religious ceremony in the Cathedral interment was in Belvedere, Undertaker M. W. Myrick having charge of the funeral arrangements. Requiescat in pace.

Newfoundland Claims

"The claims of Newfoundland are often liable to be obscured by the glare of the larger Dominion," said Mr. Victor Gordon some little time ago. This must always remain true to some extent, but the presence of the Premier of the island at the Imperial Conference has stimulated an increased interest in Newfoundland's resources, and this interest is more likely to develop than wane.

Mr. Warren is losing no opportunity in bringing to the notice of those whose interest is likely to assume practical shape the openings for British capital, and British enterprise in the "Ancient Colony," as Newfoundlanders are proud to describe their homeland, and the splendid lead given by the Anglo-American Company and the Newfoundland Power and Paper Company, it is hoped, will be followed by other big British interests.

Newfoundland is British to the core, and welcomes British money, British settlers and British enterprise in no uncertain way.—Financial, Oct. 22.

Memories of a Famous Referee

SIXTY-EIGHT YEARS AS A FOOTBALL OFFICIAL.

(By J. T. Howarth.)

Although I played a great deal of football as a young man, I had never seen a really big match until I met the late Mr. J. J. Bentley, who was President of the Football League, induced me to visit the match between Preston North End and Aston Villa.

The game was a good one, but it had no interest for me. What did rivet my attention, however, was the man in the centre of the field—the director of ceremonies whose rulings the players had to obey. This was Lieut. W. Crisp, the famous Army referee, of the greatest of his day.

It was so impressed that I decided I would become a referee myself, with an audacity that makes me shudder when I think of it. I told Mr. Bentley that I thought I could control a match quite as well as Mr. Simpson, the Police Officer's referee.

The result was that I was placed on a list of League referees, and finally became a full-blown referee. Some twenty-eight years ago I took charge of my first important match between Manchester City and Manchester United.

Perhaps the spectators looked upon me as a callow youth, but, anyway, my decisions did not appear to please the onlookers or players. How, then, I insisted that my rulings should be carried out. The temper of the crowd became very bad, and several men jumped the rails in their desire to lay hands on me. Happily, they were mollified by the players and so harm.

But I did not escape unscathed. My first official, for as I was called the "Old" of earth hit me in the face, and I was carried away by a stretcher.

I turned on the youth who had been only too true and told him the weight of a straight razor had fared badly had not a kindly policeman succeeded in pilot me to the dressing-room.

Accidentally I received some advice from this particular constable, that I have never forgotten. "When you are refereeing and get hit," he said "don't strike back."

On another occasion I was invited to go to Frintington, in Cumberland, to referee an English Cup-Tie.

Knocked Out!

"When I emerged from the station I had no idea where the field was, so I accosted a native and requested him to direct me to the field of hostilities. The man was quite willing to tell me, but he also imparted the information that the contesting teams were rivals known as "Red Stars" and "White Stars," and he was very anxious to know for which team I was going to referee.

"For neither," I replied. "As far as I can I am going to see that both have fair play."

"You're a rum 'un," replied the man. "All the other refs who have come here have told me which side they were for—and that side has always won."

I had to tramp four miles to the ground. When I arrived I found that the playing pitch was covered with grass six or seven inches long, so that not much accurate passing was possible. But underfoot conditions meant nothing to those sturdy North-countryers. For they were "playing for 'em."

It was one of the most trying of my refereeing contests I have seen, and I had difficulty in making it understood that rules were made to be observed.

When I was officiating in a match between Bristol City and Sheffield Wednesday, I remarked to Mr. C. W. Crisp, the Southern League referee, who was acting as linesman, that the ball appeared to be blown up very tightly and looked on the heavy side. "It will do some damage if it hits anyone," he said.

Sure enough it did, and I was the unfortunate individual to suffer, for during the game the leather was driven full into my face. I remember hearing a roar of laughter from the crowd before I was carried off insensible, but I must admit I failed to see the joke myself. I recovered after a little while, and went on the line, but the Bristol people always tell me that I was too dazed to notice that a Sheffield forward was outside when he scored the winning goal.

Conundrums for Candidates.
In my early days there was no examination for referees before they were appointed, but things are different now. The Lancashire Football Association, of which I was a registrar for eight years, was the first organization to institute tests, and I had to visit London to explain our system to Mr. F. J. Wall, the Football Association secretary, and to suggest that the scheme should become general.

Some of the early examinations were very funny. One candidate was asked by the examiner how the goalkeeper could be distinguished from the remainder of the team, the answer expected, of course, being that the goalie wears a different colored jersey. The actual reply, given after much hesitation, was: "Because he has longer arms than any of the other fellows."

Another individual, asked what he would do if the players started fighting, replied: "I should tell them to go and finish it behind the grand stand." —Tit Bits.

CONVICT WHO BECAME A PET OF SOCIETY—FORGER AND THIEF.

Sentence of three years' penal servitude has closed another chapter in the career of a talented, plausible rogue, who in two months' liberty from prison pilandered, plundered, and pledged to an almost unbelievable extent.

In this brief period of liberty he masqueraded as a knight, persuaded high circles in society that he was an individual of wealth and influence, travelled the country in stolen motor-cars, and fascinated and duped more than one woman of good position.

To the police he is known as a prince among impostors, but at the same time he is believed to possess engineering skill to a marked degree and a genius for invention seldom met with among criminals.

His plausible tongue is his greatest asset and he is known to have talked himself from a seven-penny "doss-house" one night to a mansion the next.

Part of the amazing life-story of this amazing individual was disclosed at St. Albans Quarter Sessions in the dock-stood Noel Fewsdale, or to give him what is believed to be his correct name, Edward Noel Fewsdale-Craves. He was charged with obtaining a motor car by false pretences, but this was only one of the many offenses which have been alleged against him. He has 11 previous convictions, the majority of them in South Africa. Fewsdale's most recent exploits began with his release from Wandsworth Prison in June, and ended with his largest two months later at the Grand Hotel, Clacton-on-Sea, where he was staying as "Sir George Carter."

In those two months he lived by forgery, fraud, and false pretences, deceived a number of women, and left unpaid bills behind him wherever he went. On his release from prison he obtained accommodation at a seven-penny "doss-house," but before long he was riding in large and expensive motor cars, posing as a man of title, and living a life of luxury. He stayed for short periods at some of the most fashionable hotels of the South Coast. The police were searching the country for him for three weeks, and when he was run to earth there were four warrants out for his arrest. At Bournemouth he put up at a noted hotel as "Sir Norman Stephens, K.B.E., of the Engineers' Club, W." and his manner was so impressive that he was able to obtain a motor car valued at £1,135.

He gave the chauffeur a little money and told him to have a shave and buy a new pair of breeches. When the man returned he found "Sir Norman" had disappeared with the car. Fewsdale motored to London, and stayed there for a few days with one of his women dupes. Then he went to Eastbourne, where he engaged rooms at the best hotel, showed up with his expensive motor car, and departed after "playing" part of his bill with a bad cheque made out on a plain sheet of paper. Again he returned to London, and captivated another woman, from whom he obtained money. He soon left her and went to Clacton-on-Sea, where he registered at the Grand Hotel as "Sir George Carter." He had before this abandoned the car, which had been recovered by its rightful owner, but even without it Fewsdale created a big impression. His company was eagerly sought after; well-to-do women pressed invitations upon him, and he quickly extended his circles of acquaintances. On one occasion he attended a fancy dress ball in the garb of a chryseus, and was acclaimed the "hit" of the evening. His reign of popularity came to an abrupt end one day in August when, on leaving his hotel, he was accosted by two detectives. "You are Noel Fewsdale," remarked one officer. "I want you." "That's quite right," replied Sir George. "I'm your man." He was handed over to the police station to Detective Hodgkins, of Watford, who took the bogus knight back to London.

As the train was crowded with returning holiday-makers, "Sir George" and his escort travelled in the luggage van. Soon after his forced departure from the hotel, a motor-car which he had ordered from London was driven to the entrance, and the driver inquired for "Sir George Carter." The car which formed the basis of the charge at the Sessions, was obtained from a Rickmansworth motor-agent. That was in July, at a time when Fewsdale was engaged on preparing housing plans for the Rickmansworth estate of a well-known peer. He agreed to buy the car for £240, but disappeared without paying anything, and left the motor "in pawn" at a garage in Hammersmith as security for an amount obtained from a money-lender. Fewsdale pleaded guilty and asked that his other offenses should be dealt with at the same time. Inspector Lawrence went into the witness box and told the story of prisoner's career. Fewsdale, he related, was born in Sheffield, and in his boyhood was apprenticed to his father as an engineer. He developed mental trouble, and was placed under the care of a specialist until August, 1907. He first came under the notice of the police in October of that year, when he was bound over at Willenden. His father sent him to Australia, but he soon came home again, and then went to South Africa. Here a number of convictions were registered against him at Durban, Johannesburg, Kimberley and Cape Town. Returning to England, he was charged at the Old Bailey with obtaining money by false pretences, and was sent to a home under the Mental Deficiency Act. He was soon liberated from the home, and in 1914 joined the army, but in January of the following year he was court-martialled and discharged. For the rest, his record was made up of frequent convictions for fraud and false pretences. There is no doubt he is a clever draughtsman, and engineer, added the inspector. He is very plausible. He gets into touch with women and induces them to send him money. From the dock, Fewsdale made a dramatic appeal for leniency, urging mental trouble and domestic worry. "I am now at rock bottom without a friend," he cried. "I have lost my wife and my youngsters, and I am entirely of my own. All my possessions have gone, except a little income, and I ask that you will give me a last chance. Let me also say that, while undergoing three years' imprisonment in Parkhurst, I undertook putting in a new heating plant, and, in recognition of my work, a certain portion of my sentence was commuted." Passing sentence of three years' penal servitude, the judge observed that it was impossible to overlook the fact that prisoner had been guilty of skilful and deliberate frauds, and they must have been committed by a man in full possession of his intellect. Fewsdale, who is known as an expert forger, has told the police it is understood that he has a private income of £150 a year, and that he is heir to £20,000. —News of the World.

Wireless Clocks
An American engineer has invented a timepiece which not only keeps perfect time, but by means of wireless operation and corrects a series of other clocks with which it is connected.

According to a noted wireless authority in this country, this invention foreshadows a day when all public clocks will be controlled and synchronized in this way.

The need of keeping an accurate record of the passing of time has inspired many ingenious inventions. One of the most wonderful clocks in the world is to be seen at Wells Cathedral. It was made by a monk exactly six hundred years ago. The hours are indicated by the appearance of armed figures on horseback. These meet in a kind of charge, the striking of their lances sounding the chimes for the hours.

A clock without visible works is one of the wonders of Waterloo Station, London. It is controlled by electricity, which connects it with what is known as the master-clock.

The Political Fight in Britain

All matters of moment such as the report of the decisions arrived at by the Imperial Conference, the formation of a Council of Experts to inquire into the question of German Reparations, the decision of the United States not to participate, and even the trek of the Hohenzollerns, have been, if not forgotten, at least thrust into the background by the announcement of an early election in Britain.

For months Labour has been trying to whip into line its various conflicting factions in anticipation of such an event. The party has at its head a strong man in the person of Ramsay MacDonald, whose ultra radical tendencies seem to have been considerably modified since he assumed the leadership. Arthur Henderson, who at one time was considered by others outside the Labour Party as possessing outstanding qualifications for the position, lost considerable caste by his negotiations with the Russian revolutionists and his advocacy of the creed of the Bolshevik regime with which the bulk of the British workmen have but little sympathy.

The situation is peculiar so far as the policies of the Liberal and Conservative parties are concerned. The latter are going to the polls to advocate a change in the fiscal policy of the country, whereas the Liberals are fighting to maintain the policy of Free Trade. At first glance, one would be inclined to say that the people of Britain would stand by the Liberals on this issue, but the question of unemployment to-day is in the minds of everyone, and whether it is due altogether to the fact that other manufacturing countries are competing with the British workman in his own field or not, this side of the question will be strongly emphasized by the Protectionists. With German razors selling at far less than half the cost that British manufacturers can turn them out, ladies' corsets at twelve shillings a gross when the retail price in Britain is seven shillings each, German velvet hats for three shillings, against the English article at ten and six, and the country infested with glib representatives of foreign firms who are inducing the British merchant to purchase their wares, it can readily be seen that the Conservatives will have little difficulty to present a strong case to the public. They are the more likely to have their programme considered favourably by giving an assurance that foods will not be taxed, and that the duties collected will be used to write off existing duties on necessities of life.

At the same time with Asquith and Lloyd George at the head of a united Liberal party, the fight is certain to be strenuous and the results uncertain until the votes are counted.

The West Coast Coastal Service

We have received the following communication complaining of the inadequacy of the Coastal Service on the South West Coast:—
"Editor Evening Telegram:
The Public are asking, and justly so, why is it the southwest coast is left with only one steamer to handle mail traffic and travelling public, when the North can be accommodated with so many. It is an injustice to us and should not be tolerated; particularly at this season of the year. It would appear there is an utter lack of interest given this important matter by the powers that be. Although it is a well known fact that the one steamer system is demoralizing to trade and passenger service generally."
H. E. ELLIOTT.

From enquiries we have made, it is learned that no complaints have been received at the Department of the Coastal Service and that at present the Portia is lying at the Southside, awaiting orders in the event of it being found necessary to use her to meet requirements. The Wren is in Fortune Bay and has an eastern run from Belleoram to Garnish, returning to Pushthrough, and distributes the freight and passengers of the Glencoe. The Glencoe on her way to Channel calls at five or six of the most important places in Fortune Bay on her way up and down the coast. The Shipping Department considers that the amount of freight at present offering is far less than the Wren can handle. No doubt it can be shown that further means of communication are necessary, they will be provided for.

Armistice Dance

DECLARED SEASON'S GREATEST SUCCESS.

Upwards of 250 couples attended the Armistice Dance in the C.C.C. Hall last night. The affair was fittingly celebrated and thoroughly enjoyed by the large gathering present. The Hall presented a very pretty scene. The decorations were high class, and most appropriate for the occasion. A large mirrored globe, suspended from the ceiling, reflected many colored lights, while the numerous Poppies, together with the Regimental Colors, Claret and White, greatly enhanced the surroundings. His Excellency, Sir Wm. Allardice and Suite arrived at 8.30 p.m. His Excellency made a brief address, and foretold that he was unable to remain owing to a recent bereavement in the family. The dance programme was begun at 9 o'clock. Many novelty dances were introduced for a first time and were greatly enjoyed by the large gathering. The Elimination Dance was won by Corp. A. Cahill and Miss M. Greene. The net proceeds which amounted to over two hundred dollars will be placed to the credit of the Peggy Day Fund.

New Church at Robinson's

For the past six years the people at Robinson's have been erecting a new church. W.M.S. District Convention

The 22nd annual Convention of the St. John's District of the Woman's Missionary Society was opened in Gower Street Church on Tuesday afternoon November 13th. After a brief song service, Mrs. Hutchings, Superintendent of the District, led the devotional exercises, which were most inspiring and uplifting. Mrs. (Rev.) H. Johnson gave a hearty welcome to the delegates and friends and then encouraging reports were given from the four city auxiliaries and Brigus. Mrs. (Rev.) J. Joyce favoured the meeting with a beautiful solo. A thoughtful paper was given by Mrs. S. Whiteley, in which she told in a most interesting manner the story of the founders of the Hebrew nation, whose religion was of the highest form and whose ideals we might well apply to our own lives.

Mrs. R. Duff, who has lately returned from Toronto, gave an inspiring account of striking facts and incidents told at the Board meeting, which she attended as the representative of the Newfoundland Branch. The evening session was under the auspices of the Young People's Societies, members of which furnished the programme and reports were read from city Bands and Circles. Miss R. Bradbury, who presided at this meeting, spoke encouraging words to the young people, and pointed out the great value of their vision, enthusiasm and influence. Miss H. Leslie gave a very fine paper on "The Appeal of Missions to Young People," and emphasized the crying need for more workers. Mrs. R. Duff gave extracts from the speeches of the Missionaries on furlough, who attended the Board meeting; and she read a very touching letter from a Japanese student at Columbia University, who has been sorely bereaved by the great disaster. The Convention will be concluded by meetings on Wednesday afternoon and evening, and it is hoped there will be a large attendance of those interested in Missionary work.

Guards Trophy Banquet

The Guards Comrades Association are holding a trophy night banquet at Smithville tomorrow night beginning at 8 o'clock. Covers are being laid for 120 people. The guests are the football team, winners of the Tropic, the tug-of-war and track teams; also the Hockey team, Champions of the Senior League. Mr. Mark Chaplin will act as Chairman. A number of prominent after dinner speakers will be present and an enjoyable evening is assured.

Youthful Thieves to Get the Lash

Three youths who were before the Juvenile Court yesterday afternoon on charges of theft, were convicted. Two of the boys were sentenced to 3 months imprisonment and 10 lashes each. The other lad 11 years old was fined $16 which will pay costs. He was accused of stealing 3 gold rings from the store of R. Gobbie. The fine was paid.

Herring Fishery in Swing

12 SAIL OF VESSELS AT MIDDLE ARM.
Reports from Bay of Islands state that the herring fishery is in full swing at Middle Arm and the fish is plentiful at the present moment. Some 12 sail of American vessels are there awaiting cargo. The fishermen are being paid at the rate of $2 per barrel from the net.

By Sunday's express five American buyers arrived to make purchases of Scotch cuts. They are offering $11 per barrel f.o.d. Curbing but it is probable that this price will increase within the next few days. The waste from taking small fish is not as great as other years as this season practically all the fishermen are using nets of larger mesh than heretofore.

Magistrate's Court.

Two ordinary drunks were discharged.
Two loose and disorderly persons who make a practice of loitering around the street all night for the purpose of being arrested and sent to jail, were ordered to leave the court and seek other pastures.
A trapezium for cruelty to his horse was fined $5.

A resident of the West End was charged with being drunk and carrying the General Hospital. Upon being questioned by the Judge, the accused stated that he did not know how he got there. Const. Rideout in his evidence stated that he was ordered to proceed to the Hospital in answer to a 'phone message from the night superintendent, who informed him that she found a man lying on the floor in the kitchen of the building. When the officer arrived there, which was about 1.30 a.m., he arrested his man and took him to the lockup. Witness did not know how the defendant got into the building, all doors were supposed to have been locked at 10 p.m. As there was no direct charge laid against the accused, the Judge gave him his release.
A residence of Allandale Road had seven boys, whose ages ranged from 7 to 14 years, up before the Juvenile Court, charged with malicious damage to property, valued at $15. Four of the boys were convicted and fined $5 with the option of 10 days, while the remaining three were allowed to go.

Newfoundland Wild Geese

The wild geese, of which goodly flocks reach our shores to lay their eggs and hatch their young by inland waters, are found profitable for our Cape Breton neighbours for breeding purposes. In Antigonish and elsewhere successful experiments have been made in domesticating the birds and breeding from them without crossing with the farm yard varieties. This special breed, known as the Canadian geese, obtains a ready market in Canada and the United States and the birds are offered for sale at fifteen dollars a pair. In different parts of Newfoundland geese from eggs or goslings taken from the nests of wild birds, but we are not aware of any successful effort here to continue the breed as in Cape Breton, where a flourishing industry has developed. There seems to be no reason why the experiment should not be profitably undertaken locally. We are pleased to see that the Newfoundland Poultry Association has given its encouragement to this being done and that at last year's distribution of prizes a special award was offered for "wild geese bred from birds belonging to the exhibitor." It is to be hoped that by next year the prize may be competed for.—Morning News.

It may be of interest to sportsmen to learn that a couple of days ago, Mr. Gus Neary shot two splendid wild geese in the marsh near Oak Farm, Carleton Place. Within the past three weeks quite a number of geese have been seen in the ponds on Nagel's Hill.

Obituary.

MRS. (CAPT.) TIZZARD.
(H. F. SHORTIS.)
A noble life closed in a holy and peaceful death on Sunday last, the 11th inst., when Mrs. Janet Tizzard was called to her reward at the age of 75 years. Mrs. Tizzard was a daughter of the late Capt. Henry Forward, one of the oldest and most highly respected families in Carleton Place, who, who conducted a large and enterprising business in that town. Many of them were noted sea-killers and master mariners in the foreign trade of the country, and were owners of the ships they commanded. Captain Henry was owner and master of the brig Triton and other ships for many years. After returning from sea-faring life he was appointed Lighthouse keeper on historic Carbonar Island (the Gibraltar of Newfoundland), which he held for many years. Mrs. Tizzard was a woman of high character and of a remarkably sweet disposition. Looking with kindly spirit upon all, loyal to her friends and devoted to those nearest to her, she won the respect and love of many. Her regard for truth and her strong sense of duty were unwavering. We shall always remember her as one who was essentially pure of heart, and who had the strength to ignore the petty things that distract us from right living. Her husband, the well-known mariner, Capt. John Tizzard, predeceased her about fourteen years ago. He was one of the most competent and successful master mariners in our mercantile marine, and during his career was in command of some of the best vessels in our fleet, notably the brig William, owned by John Munn & Co., the Flora and the Lake Simcoe. It was while in command of the Lake Simcoe that Capt. Tizzard lost his life. Being washed overboard during a great storm off Cape Race, while on a passage from St. John's to Pernambuco, Brazil, with a cargo of fish. The deceased leaves to mourn one son, John, engineer on the steamship Silvia, one daughter, Genie, in St. John's, one brother, Henry, at present Lighthouse keeper at Carbonar Island, one sister, Mrs. William Godden, and numerous relations and hosts of friends.

Funeral notice.
The funeral of the late Mrs. (Capt.) Tizzard will take place from her son's residence, No. 41 Golf Avenue on to-morrow, (Thursday), at 2.30 p.m. Friends will please attend without further notice.

THE NEW SOVIET FLAG.
MOSCOW, Nov. 14.
The parliament of Soviet Russia closed yesterday with the adoption of a new flag. It will be of red cloth with a gold star, a hammer, and five pointed, star in the corner.

MR. JAMES BARRIE IS SERIOUSLY ILL.
LONDON, Nov. 14.
Sir James M. Barrie, the famous writer, is ill, and, according to some rumors, is suffering a complete nervous breakdown. He is in a nursing home, and at his residence the report is that Barrie is taking a rest but other rumors say his condition is serious, brought on by over work.

ENORMOUS LOSSES CAUSED ON THE EXCHANGE BY THE NEWS OF AN ELECTION.
LONDON, Nov. 14.
The knowledge in the financial district of London that a general election was imminent caused a loss of fifty-two million pounds in the value of gilt-edged stocks on the London exchange in the short time of two days. Although prospects of an election always have an unsettling effect on the market, the fact that the present poll is only a few weeks away has had the most depressing result since the days of the Gladstone Government defeat over the Home rule. Another cause of present depression has been the fear that a Labor victory would mean immediate capital levy.

BALDWIN ASSAILED FOR DECIDING UPON AN IMMEDIATE ELECTION.
LONDON, Nov. 14.
Dissatisfaction with the decision of the government to hold an immediate election is manifest on all sides. The views expressed by press and public to-day indicate that the idea of an election is extremely unpopular. Disinclination to take a poll of the electorate on the protection question is manifested by all parties. Government supporters reluctantly acquiesce, while their political opponents are disgusted and resentful. Some comments are vicious and Premier Baldwin is charged with unexampled levity, shabby maneuvering, trickiness, and with having lapsed from the tradition, honour and decency of British public life.

Motor Cars Collide
A car driven by Mr. J. V. O'Dea and a taxi driven by Mr. D. Pelley collided on LeMarchant Road this afternoon. Both cars were badly damaged and Mr. John Scammell who was the only passenger in the taxi was badly cut about the head. The drivers, however, escaped uninjured. Where the accident occurred is a very dangerous corner. We understand that Mr. O'Dea was going north on Lime St. while the taxi was proceeding west on LeMarchant Road.

WHY YOUR WATCH GOES WRONG.
Dust, dirt, and its owner are the three greatest enemies of the average watch. Few people take the slightest trouble to ensure that the elaborate mechanism is given a fair chance to do its work properly.
The big, old-fashioned "turnip" would stand a fair amount of rough wear, but the modern case for the wrist watches and miniature "hunting" has led to the works being compressed into the smallest possible space, with the result that even the most minute particle of dust will cause something to go wrong.
If you treat your watch well, it will be your true friend for years, but you must remember that it works very hard. The balance wheel revolves 18,000 times an hour, which means that if it is one-third of an inch in diameter, it travels 500 yards in that time, or about 2,500 miles a year if constantly in use.
Keep the Cold Out.
This being the case, it is obvious that an occasional visit to the watchmaker for cleaning and adjusting is necessary.

Wind your watch in the morning instead of at night. During the last time you are moving about and doing the work, so that your watch-spring needs to be at its highest tension, does not matter so much if it becomes slightly slack as it unwinds at night. Watches are sensitive to sudden changes of temperature, so that when you undress and place it on a cold marble slab, you must not be surprised if something goes wrong, even if the spring snaps. If the weather is cold, you should not place your watch on a mantelpiece near a fire which a roaring fire is burning. Remember, too, that an occasional drop of oil will be welcomed by the bearings.

Judging by the advance sale of ringside seats for to-night's show at the C.I.B. Armoury, there will be a large and appreciative audience to see the boys do battle. In the wrestling bouts, four matches will be run off, and as contestants are evenly matched, these events promise to be very interesting. The finals in the boxing promise even more thrills than did the preliminaries on Monday night. In the semifinal K. O. East will meet Burgess, and the winner will meet Macklin. In the other events, there promises to be a lot of excitement, and a good exhibition is being looked forward to.

The Colonel, Major Herbert Outerbridge, M.B.E., 64pts. Sick, Adjutant, P. B. Rendell, A. S. Lewis, Geo. House, Acting Capt. Hayward, Lieutenants, W. R. Moty, R. G. Ash, A. Ferlin, M. Job Taylor and Hubert Rendell (sufft) with Brigade Major Williams were on duty with 160 all ranks. The usual routine drill was done. Lieut. Hubert Rendell of the C.L.B. Reserve of Officers is transferred to the active list. The Lieut.-Col. Commanding places on record with great regret the death of Private J. Squitras of the recruits. The late Pte. Squitras at the system now was medically examined a short while ago on his entrance to the Brigade. The medical officer, Dr. Burden passed him as being physically fit—a real husky, hardy boy. Soon after our little C.L.B. recruit was stricken with scarletina and succumbed. The sympathy of all ranks is extended to his relatives on his early passing. Lieut. A. B. Payne is orderly officer this week and Lieut. R. G. Ash is next for duty. On Nov. 20th the class for privates wishing to seek promotion commences study. All privates must secure a manual of infantry training. A class of Lance Corporals for instruction under Regt. Serjt. Major Andrews is also under way. Capt. A. S. Horsley, M.A., late of the East Surrey Regt., has been granted a commission with the rank of Captain from date of October 11th. Capt. Horsley is posted to the command of C. and K. Companies, Field College. The friends of the Brigade are asked to attend the annual "At Home" in the Greenfield Institute Thursday night at 8 p.m., when a concert will be held and refreshments served with a dance afterwards. All C.L.B. privates in uniform will be admitted by paying fifty cents on the door. Adults can secure tickets from the Ladies' Auxiliary, Officers, N.C.O.'s and several stores. #### AUCTION BRIDGE.

I was at a dance recently. I don't usually go to dances. I disapprove of them, in fact, but I am glad I went to this one. I was dancing with a particularly nice girl, when she suddenly asked me "You're very fond of Bridge, aren't you?" I informed her that it was meat and drink to me. Then she continued, "I asked you because someone told me the other day that you were the next best player to Mr. Hatch." When I had recovered from the shock caused by the amazing statement, I asked if she were not mistaken, and had not me mixed up with Arthur Williams or Harry Dickinson. She persisted in saying that there was no mistake, and she so convinced me of my ability at auction, that I decided I should pass on my knowledge through the medium of the Telegram, for the benefit of less fortunate people than myself. But, before I begin to tell you how to play Bridge, perhaps, to console those beginners who have given up hope of ever playing well, I shall tell you how I came to play for the first time. My wife and I were entertaining George and Mabel, two very old friends. Now my wife, whose name, by the way, is Alice, is not at all a card player. If she were not a Bridge fanatic, it was fit one subject on which we could never agree, for I persistently refused to play. Suddenly, she turned on me. "Ino," she said, "you will have to help us make up a four at Bridge."

"Woman," I replied, "I know nothing at all about the game and therefore, cannot oblige you."

"Oh, we know you're a hopeless duffer at cards, but at least, you are one degree better than a dummy," replied my loving better half.

"Indeed, madam," I replied, "but you seem to forget that I married you only on condition that I was not to be asked to play Bridge."

"My dear man," retorted my wife, "you have not been asked. You have been commanded to play."

Since she put it in that way, what could I do? I took up my place at the table, and listened for a few minutes, while Alice and Mabel together, tried to explain the rudiments of bidding. George looking on with a sympathetic expression upon the thing he calls a face. The explanation ended, the cards were shuffled and dealt.

I took up mine and sorted them as I had been directed. Someone said "two hearts." The person on my right said "three clubs." I said nothing. My partner looked at me expectantly. "Aren't you saying anything?" she asked. I looked at my hand carefully, trying to recollect what had been told me. Then with a do or die expression, I called "six diamonds." The sudden silence that followed my bid, caused me to look up. Expressions of astonishment showed on the faces of my three companions.

"You don't mean it, do you?" asked my partner.

"Why, yes of course," I said. "Look," and threw my cards face upward on the table. Amongst others, my hand contained six diamonds. Another silence ensued, which was finally broken by George. "Don't you think we had better play Old Maid," he suggested.

"And that was my first venture at Bridge."

Wesley Debate

VERDICT FOR THE AFFIRMATIVE.

The Wesley Young Men's Literary Class opened its debating season last night in the basement of the Wesley Church. A large number of members and visitors were present and heard an interesting discussion, the subject being: Resolved, that the present policy and attitude of France towards Germany is detrimental to civilization and the establishment of a permanent peace. The speakers for the affirmative were E. Bursay and A. MacMorgan and for the negative W. S. Sparkes and Wm. Crane. The subject was well debated and when the vote was taken it was found that the affirmative had won by a small majority.

Dr. J. S. Tait, who was present, addressed the gathering complimenting the debaters on the excellence of their arguments and wishing the class every success. The subject for next week's debate will be: Resolved that compulsory education would be detrimental to the fabric industry of Newfoundland. The speakers will be for the affirmative G. J. Davis and H. Bursay and for the negative H. R. Sparkes and C. Cook. New members and visitors will be cordially welcomed.

George Says: Talking of Shirts

The line I am displaying in my eastern window this week for $1.50 would need to be seen to be appreciated.

The patterns are neat, Hair lines of Helio, Black, Blue.

The quality is good otherwise I would not stock them.

The bodies are good and large with French double cuffs, and the finish is such as you find only in goods sold at first class stores.

There is only a limited number of each size from 14 to 17, so if you are short of Shirts now is the time to get yours.

Remember, when you buy goods from me the quality is the best obtainable for the money, and MY SERVICE IS AS YET UNBEATEN.

And don't forget the price—$1.50.

Codfish—Numbers of craft which had been discharging their codfish cargoes here, left during the week for their home ports, but owing to the wet weather prevailing the greater part of the time, not many arrivals were recorded here, and little was done along the waterfront in the shape of fish handling. There is no change in the local fish market. Merchandise is quoted at $6 and Mader's $5, but in some instances something better than the former figure has been paid for very prime fish. The Mediterranean markets shows a slightly easier tone, both for Labrador and shore fish, and as far as we could glean, not many cargoes are en route to Europe, a fact which should make for an early recovery and a possibly better price all round, especially if an overstocked market can be avoided. One of the most prominent of our exporters expressed the opinion that it will be some time yet before there will be any large movements of cod to the other side, so that something approximating a normal condition must soon ensue. There is still a fair quantity of fish to come to St. John's from the North and West, and present indications are that prevailing prices here will rule for some time. It looks as if there will be a shortage in the quantity of shore fish caught and this, no doubt, will have a beneficial effect on figures for this fish. There has been a good fall fishery, and in a number of places fishermen are still doing good work with cod. It is too late in the season, however, for the catch to be available this season, and 90 per cent. of it cannot be cured until next spring. According to the report received by the Board of Trade during the week, there were held at Oporto only about 7,000 qts. of our fish and only about 1,800 qts. of Norway. Some ten or twelve vessels have entered to land at different points mostly for Europe with a couple destined for Brazil, and the S.S. Carma will load some 28,000 in casks for the Mediterranean. The following vessels have loaded—Maggen, Bonne Bay for Lisbon, 3,412 qts. A. E. Hickman & Co.; Corsair, Laminola, 2,323 qts. Halifax, Smith & Co.; Mars, Foxo, 2,300 qts. Nfld. Labrador Export Co. Oporto; and Benevolence, 5,542 qts. Pernambuco, Monroe Export Co. The Disby took 7,409 qts. for Portugal, Spain, Italy, Great Britain and other ports; Hazel Trahey 1,800 qts. for Oporto, from Balme Johnston & Co.; and S.S. Silvia, 9,754 qts. for U.S.A., West Indies and situation of its going higher. Though considerable imports of Beef are made each week, so keen is the demand that it is quickly disposed of, and the stocks held in the city are anything but large. Like Pork, the demand for Beef is heavy in the European countries and the United States, and the American packers can hardly cope with the calls for their goods. By Silvia, Manoa and Rosalind during the week the imports were 1,532 brls. The figures for Beef in the local market at present are: Bos. Flank, medium, $26.00; Family Special, $22.00, and Libby's Family, $21.50.

Sugar—Sugar broke the past week, contrary to the expectations and forecasts of the sugar brokers abroad. They have now about the tail-end of the Cuban crop and the statistical position is strong. There was no supply worth while of raw sugar left, and the price is up to-day, so dealers tell us, by about five cents, and may advance to its former position, but will remain stationary for a while, though owing to the very large crops recorded this year, many dealers believe that prices when they start downwards will go the limit and cheap sugar will prevail during the winter months. The imports during the week were 3,020 cwts, by Silvia and Rosalind, and the price prevailing is about $8.90 the barrel wholesale.

Hay and Oats—P.E.I. dealers in these class of goods are now quoting for December shipments, but prices are a bit stiff and they are, it is thought, merely throwing out feelers to secure contracts for future shipments. The ships from Montreal will not be calling at Charlottetown for another week or so, as the crops are not yet ready for export. Before the hay is baled and oats are made ready to be removed from rural districts to the Capital it will take some time yet, and it must also be remembered that P.E.I. crops were very late this year, in fact later than for several years past. It is not easy to say yet what figures for P.E.I. produce will be like, and first shipments must be received before this can be definitely determined. In the meantime Canadian hay stands at $37.00 per ton in the local market, but none was imported during the week though 14,000 bushels of oats were landed ex Manoa from Montreal. Prices are the same as last week for oats.

Lobsters and Salmon—The Lobster market is nearly all cleaned out with shipments sent to England during the past few weeks, and very little of this class of goods is now finding its way into the city. The figures received were anything but of an encouraging nature, but we are glad to say that the few dealers in this class of goods came out on the right side though the margin of profit was not of a character that might appeal to a Ford or Rockefeller. As regards Canned Salmon, the local market has become much stronger and the future prospects for the development of a large and promising British market are very bright indeed. Dominion Canned Salmon is now on the free list in the home market, the foreign goods are heavily handicapped by a protective duty and as our Canned Salmon is second to none, here is a golden opportunity for our fishermen and this should be availed of by many next year. Dealers think that owing to this the price of our Salmon should advance next season by more than $100 per case.

Mice Scared by a Snapshot

How an enlargement from a snapshot of a cat scared mice from the kitchen of the Bromington Hospital, London, is told by a former patient. The staff of the kitchen were annoyed by the nocturnal visits of mice, and it occurred to the patient, who was a photographer, that an enlarged photograph of a cat which he had recently frightened away the pests. The picture was cut out round the outline of the animal, its size giving it the appearance of a cat waiting for the arrival of its prey. The photographic model was placed in a convenient position close to the mouse-hole, and on the first night of its "vigil" a mouse was observed to creep a few inches from its hole. Suddenly becoming aware of the "cat's" presence, it scampered back to its retreat. Every night the "cat" was put on duty, and no more mice were seen.

"Terra Nova" Newfoundland Ball SOMERVILLE, Mass.

An "Old Time" social and dance was held in Tuesday evening, Oct. 30th, in McKinley Hall, Somerville, Mass., under the direction of Mr. John T. Dermady. Lancers and Quadrilles were indulged in and modern dancing was also enjoyed by music furnished by Mr. Dermady, Mr. John J. Byrne, Mr. Peter Denmore, Master Ronald Dermady, and the Misses Helen and Catherine Dermady. Special selections were rendered by Messrs. Wm. Welch, Jas. Turner, Wm. Power, and the Misses Tracey and Annie Brennan, all formerly of St. John's, Nfld. An "Old Time" recitation entitled "The July Fire of 1892" was rendered by Mr. Michael R. Murphy. There were several piano selections given by the Misses Kathleen and Ellen McGuire, daughters of Mr. James McGuire, formerly of St. John's West; and an old "Terra Nova" tune by Mr. Joseph Handrigan. The hall was prettily decorated in American and Nfld. colors, and brought back fond memories of days passed. Among those present was Mr. Patrick J. Murphy, formerly of Mount St. Joseph's College, Baltimore, Nfld., and son of Mrs. and the late Wm. J. Murphy, of St. John's, West, who delivered an oration on the "Spirit of Newfoundland and its dear people" interesting events of his college career were heard with great appreciation by those present. The hostesses of the evening were: Mrs. J. Dermady, Miss R. Handrigan, Mrs. James Murphy and Mrs. Stephen Pudester the latter two formerly of Kilbride. The party direction was most ably managed by John Dermady, Jr., and old friend Michael P. Murphy, Jr. of St. John's West. Refreshments were served and the event which lasted until the wee small hours of the morning was brought to a close by all joining in singing "Dear old South Side" and the "Flag of Newfoundland."

Soft and Soothing

The effect of Three Flowers Face Powder is delightful. It is so soft, and its clinging texture possesses a soothing effect that captivates all women who appreciate a good powder. The odor is delightful too, and the shades are just right. Brunette, Natuelle and Parisian, all in perfect harmony. Notice that the best women are using Three Flowers Face Powder. You can get it at drug and department stores in St. John's.

Fads and Fashions.

Youthful daytime frocks feature the cape sleeve. A very beautiful fan is of orchid feathers with silver tips. Rows of green velvet trim a crepe de chine frock of a darker shade. A high comb of tortoise-shell combination has a top of silver dust. An apron of circular frills is used on a simple frock of navy blue serge. A deep V of black chiffon is used on a beaded evening gown of white crepe. A dinner gown of chiffon velvet has side panels of chiffon heavily beaded. A very severe little toque of black velvet uses drapery and a chic bow of gray felt. The circular skirt of an evening gown of white velvet is effectively bordered with heavy black fox.

TWO PUZZLES.

In a most delightful letter a Letter Friend puts a puzzle up to me.
I've got to hand it on to you, so I will let you share the letter. Here it is:
"In one of your latest letters, you speak of having to dig in your garden. I think it was, put away the clean clothes, etc., before you could sit down and enjoy for a little while your new book, or anticipated pleasure."

Woman's Work.

"So that makes me think I will just speak of something in the world that is rather a puzzle—this having always something to do, and never setting it done. That's me, Mind you, I don't say it's you.
When I was small I was educated to feel that one must work first, then play. Now my little jobs seem so endless that the only way I can possibly 'play' is to steal my play. I mean, for instance, last Saturday afternoon, I'm in a busy office. Have one Saturday afternoon in two weeks. I don't get out until about 5:30. I knew I had a lot of housework to do. I just hated to take that rare little half holiday and go home and sweep floors. Old-fashioned ideas would have dictated for me to go and do my work and then go to the good movie-picture I had longed to see. I knew if I did go home first I'd never achieve the picture. So I stole into the dark, airy place in luxury. Took off my hat, leaned back and was in paradise two hours. Then I went home like a bird and did my cleaning, feeling that I'd had my play-time and was bettered by it.
I once told a dear, beloved, gracious woman my little trouble, of never being done with odd-jobs. She surprised me by saying: 'Neither am I through with them. But John says he thinks it's my duty to myself (and him) to, after a certain time, 'sit down!'

A Friend of Egypt

LORD ALLENBY'S OPTIMISM FOR THE FUTURE—KEEPING OUR PRESTIGE.

(Morning Post, Oct. 23.)

Field-Marshal Viscount Allenby, High Commissioner in Egypt, received yesterday the honorary freedom and livery of the Worshipful Company of Leathersellers, thus joining a band which includes Earl Batty, Earl Haig, Sir Robert Borden, Sir Joseph Ward, and Mr. Lloyd George.
The honour was conferred four years ago, but this was the first opportunity which presented itself for Lord Allenby to make his Declaration, to sign the book, and to receive the right hand of fellowship from the Master, the Wardens, and the Assistants of the livery in full court assembled at the livery hall in the City.
Mr. Ernest T. Janson, the Master, presided. Among those present were J. L. Nissen, F. J. Nettleton, and Harry Collison, the Wardens; G. F. Sutton, the Clerk; Viscountess Allenby, Lord Morris, Sir Edwin Savill, and Lady Downes.
The certificate of freedom was presented in a silver-gilt casket, adorned with enamelled views of St. Paul's Cathedral, the Leathersellers' Hall, and the Technical College of the Livery, and the arms of the Company and of Viscount Allenby.
The Master, proposing the health of the new liveryman, said they were proud that Lord Allenby had accepted the highest honour which it was in their power to bestow. He recalled, as one of the striking events of a great career, that during the war Lord Allenby entered Jerusalem on foot, with no bodyguard, and with his escort well behind him. That was magnificent, a stroke of genius, and it raised him to a pinnacle of his own.
Titles of War.
Viscount Allenby, in reply, explained why it was that there had been so long a delay in his reception of the freedom of which he was so proud. The tides of war washed him across France, Palestine, Syria, and then to Egypt, where he was at present stranded. Expressing thanks for a compliment paid by the Master to Lady Allenby, he claimed to be one of the very few soldiers whose wife had been with him in the front line. She went up with him to an observation post, behind which the British guns were firing on the Turks. Then, to his horror, he saw a complacent white umbrella—and he very soon had that down! (Laughter.)
The name of Great Britain (proceeded Lord Allenby) stands higher in the Near East than ever it has done in our history. We see comments in the papers, and we hear mournful grumblings outside about Great Britain's loss of prestige. We have not lost it. As a nation we are too inclined to introspection. We are surrounded by critical friends and neighbours who take every opportunity of preventing us from becoming too puffed up by self-esteem.

I think they are sincerely envious of us. I suppose we are the only nation which has come out of the war well, in the moral sense, but we kept our engagements, squared up with our creditors, and behaved generously to those who had a moral though not a legal claim upon us.

Faithful Guardians.
We have conferred upon Egypt much more than she expected. We are all proud of the way in which our young soldiers behaved in Constantinople, under Sir Charles Harrington. Our soldiers in Egypt behaved equally well. For five years they have had a trying time, yet there has not been a single untoward incident. They have comforted themselves like British soldiers and British gentlemen. (Cheers.)
The British nation have been the guardians of Egypt for a matter of forty-one years, and our policy now, as it has always been, is to lead Egypt forward to self-government. That policy His Majesty's Government will be able to carry through. There are many obstacles to the solution of the question, but the obstacles are not insuperable. I think I am right in saying that the majority of the Egyptians are our sincere friends. There are, of course, a certain number of intrigants and irreconcilables, self-seeking pseudo-patriots; but apart from them I believe the thinking Egyptian is thoroughly grateful to us for what we have done, and is anxious to come to a lasting agreement with us. Great Britain has settled her policy in regard to Egypt and intend to stand by it.

Steal It If You Have To.
First, should one try to get all the odd jobs of life thoroughly done before one plays, even if that means crowding out playtime altogether?
Second, how do those wonderful people manage who seem to have a tremendous lot to do and yet seem to get it all done and have more leisure time than the rest of us?
I can answer the first. No, one shouldn't.
Because if one did, one would not be happy. And if one were unhappy, one would be unproductive. All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. Steal your playtime if you have to, but get some away.

But the second trumps me. It is one of the puzzles of my own life. I wish some mother of five or six who does her own work and yet has her house in order and is sitting on her porch in a clean dress in the afternoon, would tell me how that modern miracle is performed, while her neighbor with one baby is still toiling at unfinished jobs.
Lasting Friendships.
I am not a diplomatist, but I have had some experience of war, and I have never found that conciliation is a good weapon to use against your enemies. With your friends, all right; but with regard to your enemy, hit him in the eye or anywhere else you can, and hit him hard. Conciliation excites the contempt of the enemy.
I am perfectly certain that we are coming to a last friendship with Egypt, who has for us an affection and respect. When self-government is effected I have no reason to suppose that any Englishman will have any less chance than he has had before. And the country is one of vast undeveloped resources. I do not want to boast, and I do not want to prophesy, but I think I am right in saying that we have established a great reputation in Egypt during the last two years for uprightness and honesty, and I feel sure that we shall reap the reward of it. Chicanery and finesse do not pay.
The toast of the Worshipful Company of Leathersellers was proposed by Viscount Allenby, and the Master replied.

Zaruso's Bosom Friend Lauds Grace Bradley

CELEBRATED SINGER WHO OPENS AT NICKEL THURSDAY.

Some of the noted authorities of Europe have stated that Grace Bradley has a remarkable range for a contralto; the voice covering no less than four C's in irresistible sweetness and sympathy. Father Tonello, the bosom friend of the late Signor Garuso, said recently at a large musical gathering: "In all my experience, Grace Bradley is the only person I have met who gives one the instant impression of the great Escalchi, not only in the close personal resemblance to that most wonderful singer, but the seeming resourceless volume of the voice, such deep and flexible in quality, exhibits in a remarkable degree, the warmth and vivaciousness of temperament so necessary to a successful operatic singer."
Very few such singers as Miss Bradley have visited St. John's. She is a class with Mme. Albani and Mme. Bonini who, it will be remembered made such a demonstrative impression upon the music-lovers of this city, and much credit is due Mr. J. P. Kiely for securing the services of such renowned artist to appear at his theatre. Tomorrow afternoon, Grace Bradley will make her first appearance at the Nickel. Miss Dolly Moore and Jimmie Cleary, classic dancers have also the distinction of appearing on this same occasion. These dancers have received the highest credentials from ever city in which they have appeared and after seeing them, patrons of this theatre will agree that they are all that they are claimed to be.

She Married for Revenge but Found Love
IS THEME OF DRAMA NOW AT THE CRESCENT.
A screen adaptation of "The Breaking Point" is Alice Lake's latest Starling vehicle. It is one of those stories of a sister's attempt to revenge her brother with the usual and expected result that she falls in love with the man she sets out to ruin. The action throughout the picture is exceptionally good; the acting of the players being realistic in every respect. Alice Lake as Kathleen Dexter acts with perfect ease. She has a liteness of movement and a vivaciousness of expression which stamp her as an emotional actress of a fine order. It was a cruel fate which killed off Terry Dexter, played by George Stewart. Here is a newcomer who is intelligent and capable and his acting in this difficult role is excellent.
The production is distinguished by excellent direction and photography.

ANNOUNCEMENT

TO OUR PATRONS:—
The Nickel Management takes pleasure in announcing the first appearance next Thursday of
GRACE BRADLEY
PRIMA DONNA DRAMATIC CONTRALTO, of The Metropolitan Opera, New York, and the Italian Grand Opera of Milan, Italy.

Press notices and critical musical comment ascribe certain wonderful character to the remarkable voice qualities of Grace Bradley.
An extraordinary range of four "C's" is attributed to this lady.
Miss Bradley has appeared on programmes with the following world-famous artists: Gladys Axman, Sue Harvard, Cecil Arden, Raymonde Delaunoy, Bernice de Pasquali, Kathern Lynbrooke, Jeanne Gordon, Constantino, Hackett, Amato, Werrenrath, Martino, Dias, Zannelli. She is a pupil of Maestro Cotogni of Italy, and of Jean De Reszke of Paris.
From this brilliant artist's lengthy repertoire exceptional programmes will be arranged.

The Secret of an Adventure

Fleet Street has been well named "the street of adventure," for the newspaperman encounters more romance and adventure in one day than most of his fellow-men in other spheres of activity do in a year.

Sir Philip Gibbs, the famous journalist and novelist, tells some interesting stories of life behind the scenes in newspaper-land in "Adventures in Journalism" (Helmman).

Exposing an Explorer.

It was Sir Philip who was responsible for revealing to the world the fact that Dr. Cook, who claimed to have discovered the North Pole, was an impostor. The author was sent to Copenhagen to chronicle the return of the supposed hero, and after many adventures Sir Philip succeeded in interviewing him.

He was so struck by Cook's peculiar conduct that his suspicions were aroused. Several times Cook contradicted himself. The journalist went away and, knowing his fate rested on his judgment, wrote an attack on the explorer, which when published in his paper aroused a storm throughout the civilized world. Later events showed Gibbs was right.

Next Year's Stadium Programme

One of the chief attractions of next year's British Empire Exhibition at Wembley will be the events staged in the gigantic Empire Stadium. An elaborate programme is now being drawn up.

The Stadium season will open April 13th with the England vs. Scotland Rugby Match, and a fortnight the Cup-Final will be played off.

On or about Empire-Day, a great military tattoo, with massed army bands, will be staged. The general scheme is to draw bandmen from all the line regiments and to form them into one huge band numbering with pipes and drums about a thousand strong. This will be reinforced by a mounted band recruited on the same lines from the Cavalry Regiments. The combined band will be the largest ever seen in the British Empire. For six weeks during July and August a Pageant of Empire will be shown daily, illustrating the growth of the Empire from the earliest times. Cavalry and Artillery will both take part, and the 1,000 Boy Scouts who are holding an Imperial Jamboree during the first week in August, will lend their aid.

In September, after the Pageant is over, there will probably be a second edition of the Military Tattoo.

A series of six massed concerts, with a choir numbering 10,000 voices, will take place at intervals during the course of the Exhibition. Dr. Charles Heries, who conducted the Peace Celebration in Hyde Park, is to conduct. At least once a week fireworks displays will be given in the Stadium by Messrs. James Pain & Son. Apart from the usual fireworks effects, appropriate set pieces will be arranged for special occasions.

In the Exhibition Grounds, though outside the Stadium, a gigantic bandstand with seating accommodation for 10,000 people is now in course of erection. These concerts will be given daily by the best British and Dominion bands.

We learn that this world famous discovery has for some months past been available for the relief of sufferers in Newfoundland. Arrangements were made with the Commonwealth Laboratory at Toronto by the General Hospital authorities for a supply of the preparation and several cases have been treated. Some have been cured, others improved, while in other cases but little improvement has been noticed. From the nature of the preparation it is necessary that this treatment generally speaking can only be administered at such an institution as the Hospital, and in availing of the means to deal with diabetes cases the authorities acted with commendable promptness.

Teaching Constables the Tricks of the Trade.

The scientific measures now applied to crime have necessitated the creation of new methods for its detection, and consequently the important work of training the constable has become much more difficult.

The policeman is called upon to fill many roles during his career in the force, and as each week there is something new, he really remains a student until the day he takes his pension.

Recruiting for the force has opened again, and each week an entrance examination is held at Scotland Yard when about fifteen candidates are chosen from the fifty or sixty applicants.

Next Year's Stadium Programme

One of the chief attractions of next year's British Empire Exhibition at Wembley will be the events staged in the gigantic Empire Stadium. An elaborate programme is now being drawn up.

The Stadium season will open April 13th with the England vs. Scotland Rugby Match, and a fortnight the Cup-Final will be played off.

On or about Empire-Day, a great military tattoo, with massed army bands, will be staged. The general scheme is to draw bandmen from all the line regiments and to form them into one huge band numbering with pipes and drums about a thousand strong. This will be reinforced by a mounted band recruited on the same lines from the Cavalry Regiments. The combined band will be the largest ever seen in the British Empire. For six weeks during July and August a Pageant of Empire will be shown daily, illustrating the growth of the Empire from the earliest times. Cavalry and Artillery will both take part, and the 1,000 Boy Scouts who are holding an Imperial Jamboree during the first week in August, will lend their aid.

In September, after the Pageant is over, there will probably be a second edition of the Military Tattoo.

A series of six massed concerts, with a choir numbering 10,000 voices, will take place at intervals during the course of the Exhibition. Dr. Charles Heries, who conducted the Peace Celebration in Hyde Park, is to conduct. At least once a week fireworks displays will be given in the Stadium by Messrs. James Pain & Son. Apart from the usual fireworks effects, appropriate set pieces will be arranged for special occasions.

In the Exhibition Grounds, though outside the Stadium, a gigantic bandstand with seating accommodation for 10,000 people is now in course of erection. These concerts will be given daily by the best British and Dominion bands.

Behind the Scenes

(By the Tattler.)
 The Prince of Wales's habit of dropping in without formality to any theatre which takes his fancy sometimes provides moments of embarrassment to the management. This happened the other night, when H. R. H. had to be told that there was not a seat to be had in a certain theatre, and went away rather than disturb anybody. On a previous occasion, when the same thing happened, the management politely requested one of the audience to vacate his box, promising money back or another and a better box for another night. But the occupant—a hard-headed manufacturer from the North—refused to budge. He had paid for his box, and proposed to remain in it, Prince or no Prince; and nothing would move him. When the King and Queen go to the theatre all risk of such a circumstance is avoided, for arrangements are made beforehand through "Ash-ton's," the ticket office in Bond Street.

ADRIPT IN BOHEMIA.

There were great doings in London's best Bohemia, when an famous revue actress married the son of a baronet with an historic name. But I hear that the marriage is not running smoothly at all, and that disputes, and even blows, are frequent. Both parties are temperamental in the extreme, and further developments may be expected.

ALL AMONG THE COAL DUST.

On his voyage from Canada the Prince of Wales worked in the stock-hold of the Empress of France for nearly two hours, stripped to the waist, and in a temperature of 100 degrees. But he was not subjected to such an experience as befell his father when in the Navy. The ship which carried the future monarch was, in a certain foreign port, engaged in the process of "coaling." The general commanding the garrison, hearing that British royalty was about to disembark, put out to pay his compliments. He arrived on deck in full uniform, glittering with gold lace and decorations, and the Heir-Presumptive to the Throne of the British Empire was pointed out to him—a comical object smothered in coal dust, with face, hands, hair and beard blacker than a negro's!

GULLSBOROUGH HALL.

Gullsborough Hall, which the Duke and Duchess of York have rented for the hunting, used to be the residence of Irene Osgood, the American novelist. It was here that she wrote with her husband, the well-known Robert Harborough Sheppard, and here took place the scenes which subsequently had to be described in court when the matrimonial case was tried. The hall is right in the middle of the Pritchley country, and with this famous pack the Duke and Duchess will hunt. The royal couple are both bold and daring riders, and will have every opportunity of displaying their skill in horsemanship while hunting with the Pritchley. By the way, one of the loudest laughs ever heard in the House of Commons arose when a Radical member—more used to that of industrial towns than to that of a hunting country—referred in a speech to the "Pritchley Hunt!"

PIN-PRICKS.

Everything is not so bright and gay in the cabaret show as appears on the surface. A new disease, who has recently appeared at one of London's cabarets had the temerity to make more of a success than an artist who happened to be the wife of the manager, and all kinds of dissensions are going on, both open and veiled. Still, the newcomer relies on her contract.

MUCH MONEY FOR CONSUMPTION CURE.
 People are talking of the generosity of Baron Henri de Rothschild in financing Dr. Spallinger in his researches into cure for consumption; but nobody seems to have recalled that the Baron takes an interest in medicine aside from that of the ordinary rich man, for he is a fully-qualified doctor, and, in his younger days, "walked" the hospitals of Paris.

In spite of all his wealth—or, perhaps, because of it—the Baron takes a rather pessimistic view of life, and some time ago wrote a play called "Croesus," in which the sorrows of a rich man were depicted. He is an accomplished playwright, and his drama of "Samson" was produced in London at the Garrick, with Mr. Arthur Bourchier in the leading part. Dr. Spallinger is worthy of all the help that can be afforded him, for he has got rid of the family fortune of £200,000 in prosecuting his researches into the best way of combating the white scourge.

THE SIXPENNY PARTNER.

As is well known, some of the public dancing halls in London have a staff of professional dancers who will partner any lonesome patron on payment of the not exorbitant fee of sixpence. The male dancing partners are all young men, smart and well-dressed. At some of these resorts they attract considerable attention from foolish women who go to the dancing hall unattended in search of amusement and distraction. Recently, a woman of middle age—a widow possessed of a little property —became so devoted to a young partner, whom she had hired several times, that he became quite embarrassed. Finally, in desperation of his coldness, the infatuated widow proposed marriage, and took care to let him know that a life of ease and comfort awaited him in place of monotonous and ill-remunerated toil at the dancing hall. Unfortunately for this plan, the young man happened to be married, and his wife was one of the female dancing partners attached to the establishment.

THINGS WE REMEMBER.

Society is smiling at certain comments made in a new book of reminiscences by a lady who sees fit to sign herself "A Woman of No Importance." But those who criticize the ex-Premier's wife should remember that she is perfectly capable of taking care of herself. And it is whispered that she has another book of frank and outspoken reminiscences on the stocks.

JOURNALIST AN MANAGER.

Mr. Albert de Courville is coming out into the limelight again, and will produce a pantomime in London at Christmas. This quiet, reserved man with the olive skin and the smooth black hair is an interesting personality, and very different from the usual diamond-studded, befringed, flamboyant manager of popular fancy. He began life in London, arriving mysteriously—no one knew whence—as a journalist, and joined in a minority capacity the staff of a London theatre of varieties. Here his talents for the production of spectacle ensured his speedy rise, and he soon became a full fledged manager. Of late, his theatrical speculations have not been too fortunate, but it may be that he will one day be on the top of the wave again. Oddly enough, though a journalist himself maybe, indeed, because of the fact—he has no opinion of Press publicity.

NOT A "GENTLEMAN!"
 A famous political club in London—the haunt of that almost extinct curiosity, the "crusted, blue-blooded Tory"—is at the moment filled with querulous complaints from a dissatisfied section of the members. A reception is shortly to be given there to the Prime Minister—and there will be lady guests and dancing! (shades

"REJECTED"

—A Word Used in New York of Interest to Every Intelligent Woman

THE simple word "rejected" used at the right time in the Kirkman Soap Factory is undoubtedly one of the greatest safeguards against red and aching hands for many thousands of housewives.

When raw materials do not come up to Kirkman's High Test Standards they are rejected. There is absolutely no compromise—neither a scarcity of ingredients nor reduction in price can get them past the front door.

For 86 years there has never been a let-down in the Kirkman Policy of buying only the finest and purest materials to make Kirkman's Soap the best for every household and laundry purpose.

THEREFORE, for the sake of your hands, it is well to remember always, that there can be no better soap than Kirkman's—regardless of price.

For Kirkman's is absolutely free from lye to crack or irritate your hands in any way.

Nor does it contain adulterations of any kind—such as starch, water glass or talcum powder—often put in ordinary soap to "make weight" but which have absolutely no cleansing qualities.

Go to your grocer today and get a cake of Kirkman's Soap. Do the right thing by your hands as well as your clothes.

Without Question or Argument

Kirkman's Soap is sold to you with the distinct understanding that it satisfies YOU in every way. Your grocer will return your money without question or argument, if you are not pleased with results. You alone are the judge.

The Economical Soap for Intelligent Women

Your Hands Will be Grateful

A. C. BLACKWOOD, Distributor for Newfoundland

of past giants of the political arena). In order to "make all things ready," it has been found necessary to close the club for a few days, and this has roused the wrath of the ancient members thus thrown out of their comfortable lairs. One of them, hearing of the closure decree, exclaimed wrathfully: "I never heard of such a proceeding! No, not even in the days when we had gentlemen as Prime Ministers!" Even Mr. Baldwin's birth is nothing to those who regard a gentleman as one born either in the aristocracy or who soil not their hands or weary their brain with any kind of toil!

HIS MISTAKE.

The Irish son of a wealthy manufacturer, up in London spending some of Dad's money, thought he was being very dogfish when he sent a note to a member of a musical comedy chorus, asking her to supper after the show. He was waiting at the stage door when the lady swept past him with her nose in the air, and folded her father, a distinguished officer of the Indian Army, who was waiting for her with his car. The ladies of the chorus nowadays are not as those of old.

AS IN A GLASS DARKLY.

The war played havoc with that curious band of people, of both sexes, who made money easily on the Continent by becoming professional crystal-gazers. The most famous—Clio Zara, a Frenchwoman—died in poverty some months ago, yet just prior to August, 1914, she was making a small fortune every week. She was accused by the French police of being mixed up with espionage in favour of Germany, and her establishment in the Rue Royale was closed down. A rival—Madame Zetune, a Teutonic lady—had great success in revealing Fate in the crystal-ball, and at one time it was quite the fashion for British people in Paris to consult her. A Hungarian Sybil was named "Luda," and had a vogue among the French people—so much so that a certain President visited her, and is said to have heard of his untimely end. But now the Parisian police have issued a decree forbidding all crystal-gazing, and a characteristic feature of the City of Light will be wanting. A list of people who visited "Luda" would make interesting reading.—Glasgow Weekly Herald.

MARCONI.

Guglielmo Marconi, born (1874), Italian electrical engineer, was born at Grifone, near Bologna, his mother being an Irishwoman. His first experiments in wireless telegraphy were made in Italy in 1895, then put to practical use in England in 1896. In 1899 he established connection by the same means across the English Channel; in 1901 between Cornwall and Newfoundland, and in 1902 between Canada and Newfoundland. In 1904 he entered into an agreement with the British Post Office for the commercial transmission of wireless messages, and in the same year, through the same means, the first ocean daily newspaper was started on the ships of the Cunard Line. His system is in use in the British, Italian and other navies, and is at the present time established throughout the world.
 Among the many photographs on exhibition at CROSS & CO., is an autograph picture of the great wizard.
 At THE GRAND COLISEUM we invite inspection of our large and varied
