GOD IS LOVE.

God is love and love is God!
And another love likewise,
Whilst we plod this joyless sod,
Will avail us in the skies.

God is God! and, oh! to love Him
With the deep love of the soul!
None is worthier above Him,
Let Him be our anxious goal.

Could we know His love for us,
All the heart with love aflame,
Love would sing a grander chorus,
Sweet and endless, to His name.

Love God, then, oh! Christian dear,
Love Him truly, love Him whole:
He will shower, when He is near,
Benedictions on thy soul.

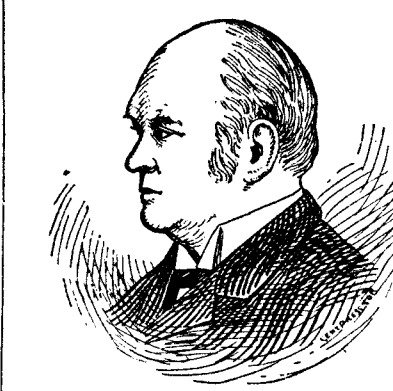

Benedictions that will ever
Shield thee from temptation's strife,
That will leave thee never, never,
Till you enter into Life.

Love, friend, is the master key,
Take it, keep it, to thyself;
Till you unlock the treasury
Of the heart of God—thy King.

In this nineteenth century there have been many Catholic martyrs in Tonkin and in China. No one could write the history of the Catholic church who was not a Catholic, just as no one could write the history of England who was not an Englishman. One must be in the centre of the world's life to understand that life, and the centre of all things is the Catholic church, because it is the complete and integral revelation of Christ. Drawing a practical conclusion, Father Drummond said: "Fill yourselves with the thought of Christ. Read the Gospels; read the New Testament; read Catholic books of meditation."

Death of Sir John Abbott.

Sir Jno. Abbott, ex-premier of Canada, died at 9 o'clock on Monday evening. He had been in poor health for some months. His advanced age, being over 70, and poor health forced him to resign

The premiership, and he took a trip to Europe with the hope of gaining some of his old-time vigor. He was absent for over three months, but the trip did not do him any material benefit, and he returned home in a very enfeebled condition. Dr. Roddick and other prominent medical men who were called in, after consultation, decided that the patient was suffering from a species of cancer of the bowels and that an operation was imperative. This was performed a few weeks ago, but though it afforded relief it brought about no permanent cure, and Sir John gradually grew weaker day by day until death ended his sufferings on Monday. His end was peaceful, and he was surrounded in his last moments by all the members of his family. The funeral will take place here next Thurs day afternoon, and the remains will be interred in Mount Royal cemetery. In politics Sir John Abbott was a High Tory. He was one of the signers of the famous annexationist manifesto of 1848. As father of the "Insolvency Act," he achieved a great reputation both as a lawyer and as a legislator. He took office as Premier on the death of Sir John Macdonald in 1891, but resigned in the fall of 1892, owing to ill health. The deceased Premier leaves behind him a reputation for honest statesmanship and fair dealing that will not soon be forgotten.

WHAT'S IT ALL ABOUT?

The Editors of The Brandon Sun and Merchants' Advocate up in Arms.

We are in receipt of volume 1, No. 2, of the Merchants' Advocate, a semi-monthly magazine devoted to the interests of the merchants and citizens of Brandon, printed and published by A. H. Liversidge & Co. From 'The Advocate's general appearance and make-up, like numerous other young enterprises of this character, there still remains ample room for improvement. The following extract taken is from the Brandon Sun regarding the new venture:

"The Merchants' Advocate is the latest acquisition to Brandon's papers. But the Advocate is not a paper, it is a semi-monthly magazine. From its appearance it might be supposed that the reason that it is issued is to give the public some idea how badly it was possible to print a paper. The advertisements, what few there are, have the appearance of having been 'set up' by an amateur, while the letterpress is scarcely as well executed as was the work done on the old wooden presses. The English of the reading matter is as bad or worse than the mechanical execution."

The Advocate replies thusly:

"No doubt our esteemed friend Mr. White, or his collaborators are a pantology and parricide to the Merchants' Advocate at present. We did not know subject to belch and equivocate or else we might have had our first issue more complete by calling on our esteemed propagandists, encyclopedias or egotists for collocation of issue. We wonder if our sycophants really understand what they are ranting at? I think not; when they say, 'the advertisements, what few there are, have the appearance of having been 'set up' by an amateur.' In the first place we are in the field to suit our customers, and in the second term, not to oblige an illiterate pantology of modality. No doubt our esteemed friends are adynamic in their literature, when they say, 'the English of the reading matter is as bad or worse than the mechanical execution.' For I think if The Advocate was composed any worse than the article of 'The Sun' above, with, 'that, is and its' I would lay down my pen and withdraw my name from the editor's roll."

Judging from the foregoing extract, a representative of Webster's dictionary would reap a golden harvest among those citizens of Brandon who, like us, wish to know "what it's all about."

For the cure of headache, constipation, stomach and liver troubles, and all derangements of the digestive and assimilative organs, Ayer's Pills are invaluable. Being sugar-coated, they are pleasant to take, always reliable, and retain their virtues in any climate.

THE THOUGHT OF CHRIST IN HISTORY.

Rev. Father Drummond, S. J., Delivers an Able Sermon in St. Mary's.

Standing room was found last night in St. Mary's church with difficulty by many, and not at all by many more. The great attraction in addition to the usual chanting of vespers was a sermon by the Rev. Father Drummond, S. J., on the subject of "Jesus Christ in History," the text chosen being "Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, to-day, and forever." The eloquent orator held the close attention of the crowded audience while he spoke for about an hour and a half, clearly and forcibly presenting his arguments, showing the power of Christianity in the world from the earliest ages down to the present. He began with a brief reference to the recent parliament of religions in Chicago, saying that Catholics had no reason to regret that their American cardinal had put before the whole world on that occasion the special benefits that had accrued to mankind from the Catholic church. Still there was an unfortunate side to that gathering, in that it seemed to put on a footing of equality religions the most diverse and the most contradictory; and it might be that there remained in the minds of many a sort of vague anxiety lest there should result a sort of paganism that one belief was as good as another, provided there be sincerity. The preacher proceeded to show what constitutes the unique character of the Christian religion: that it dated from the beginning of the human race; that until the coming of Christ it was mainly expectation of that coming; and since he came it has been adoration and complete devotion to His divine person, so that the thought of Christ bridges the whole history. There was nothing else like this, he went on to say, in the history of mankind. He contrasted with it the position and effects of Buddhism and Mahometanism, showing that they lacked the blessings of true Christian civilization. The history of the Jewish dispensation began with the dawn of all history. He found nothing in the great antiquity claimed for the Egyptians and Chaldeans contrary to the teaching of the Old Testament. The Catholic church had always held that there was no dogmatic chronology in the Bible. Theologians varied much as to the period between the creation and the coming of Christ, one reckoning 4,000, and another 5,900 years, and there was no reason why this limit should not be very much extended, if necessary. Some Catholic theologians said ten thousand years might be admitted, if necessary; then there was no difficulty in saying that the Jewish dispensation began with the very beginning of history. Father Drummond next dealt with the early prophecies of Christ, that the seed of the woman should bruise the head of the serpent, that in the seed of Abraham all the tribes of the earth should be blessed, that Christ should come when Judea had ceased to be independent. In the history of the Egyptians and other nations that had fallen into heathenism, he found that they had degenerated from monotheism. He traced the progress of the Jews and showed their position at the time of Christ, stating that they had given up a couple of hundred years before the idolatry into which they had previously fallen from time to time. In the writings of Tacitus, Suetonius, and Virgil he found words pointing to Christ. The harmony of Christ's teaching with the teaching of the Old Testament was dwelt upon; and the facts of his life, as related by his contemporaries, who gave their lives for his sake, were outlined. Reference was made to the siege and destruction of Jerusalem, as foretold, also to the wonders of history during the last 1900 years. The state of corruption in which the world was when Christ came was shown, and also the effects produced by the preaching by twelve men of Christ crucified. It was the cross of Christ that won men from idolatry, lust, and cruelty. Gibbon explained the conversion of the world as due to the zeal of the early Christians, their belief in the future state, their virtues, their ecclesiastical organization, and their claim to miraculous power. The speaker showed the inadequacy of these explanations, taking them up one by one. He attributed their success to the thought of Christ. This thought, he added, pervades all through Christians in the world. The triumph of the Catholic church had been most marvellous. For three hundred years it endured fearful persecution; and, though in the middle of the third century there were many apostasies of Christians who had been weakened by years of peace and comfort, yet at the end of that very century the constancy of the martyrs during the last and most terrible persecution was greater than ever before. Even

Attention

In time to any irregularity of the Stomach, Liver, or Bowels may prevent serious consequences. Indigestion, costiveness, headache, nausea, biliousness, and vertigo indicate certain functional derangements, the best remedy for which is Ayer's Pills. Purely vegetable, sugar-coated, easy to take and quick to assimilate, this is the ideal family medicine—the most popular, safe, and useful aperient in pharmacy. Mrs. M. A. BROCKWELL, Morris, Tenn., says:

"Ayer's Cathartic Pills cured me of sick headache and my husband of neuralgia. We think there is No Better Medicine, and have induced many to use it.

"Thirty-five years ago this Spring, I was run down by hard work and a succession of colds, which made me so feeble that it was an effort for me to walk. I consulted the doctor, but kept sinking lower until I had given up all hope of ever being better. Happening to be in a store, one day, where medicines were sold, the proprietor noticed my weak and sickly appearance, and, after a few questions as to my health, recommended me to try Ayer's Pills. I had little faith in these or any other medicine, but concluded, at last, to take his advice and try a box. Before I had used them all, I was very much better, and two boxes cured me. I am now 80 years old; but I believe that if I had not been for Ayer's Pills, I should have been in my grave long ago. I buy 6 boxes every year, which make 210 boxes up to this time, and I would no more be without them than without bread."—H. H. Ingraham, Rockland, Me.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 1.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. Joseph Cook, of Boston, is displeased with the Parliament of Religion, because, as he says: "Catholic clergymen have been given too much prominence."

Pour all you can of sunshine into your every day life. Fill your every act with a healthy ambition for the glory of your calling.

Children who see their parents attending Mass on Sundays and holidays, who see them frequent the sacraments, who see them observe the precepts of the Church and hallow the commandments in their lives, will learn far more readily than from any amount of talking or sermonizing what is expected of them as Catholics.

Standing room was at a premium in St. Mary's church last Sunday evening, to hear the celebrated pulpit orator, Rev. Father Drummond, S. J.

There can be no true education unless all the powers of the soul as well as the body are developed. Secular education alone attempts to form the mind, but there is no bringing forth in the principles of the soul, and no real development of the virtues implanted in the soul by baptism.

The speech which Mr. Gladstone delivered at Edinburgh shows that the British Premier has not much apprehensions regarding the Irish Home Rule reform, provided the next general election sustains the Liberal party.

The Arc Maria disposes very effectively of the latest plan to settle the school question by declaring that it contains nothing that is new; that it stands hardly a chance of being accepted, and that the time has not yet come for any plan to secure calm consideration.

When a man has to explain his actions, to protest his sincerity, and keep constantly at it, there is well-grounded reason to believe he is not the saint he would have you take him to be.

The Catholic Columbian says:—The appointment of Right Rev. La Rocque as the successor of the lamented Bishop Racine, in the diocese of Sherbrooke, restores to the Canadian hierarchy a name that is illustrious in its annals.

Good Father Ignatius, the Protestant-English monk, he of the cowed form and shaved head, outwardly, to all appearance, an ascetic of the most improved pattern, has yet to learn the lessons of interior mortification and abnegation of self the hardest of all victories.

Cardinal Gibbons, in a recent letter addressed to Catholic journalists, begs that personalities should be avoided. "No man should hastily question the faith and loyalty of a brother editor."

People talk of luck. Is there such a thing as good luck? Undoubtedly there is. "Good luck have thou with thine honor." By some people it is called "good fortune."

FORT FRANCIS MISSION.

A permanent mission has recently been established at Fort Frances and the Rev. Father Cahill, O. M. I., has been placed in charge.

The withdrawal of all hostility to the missionary is a great step forward and we sincerely hope that it will be followed by an acceptance of the glad tidings of great joy which are brought to them.

ON THE DECLINE.

Some very competent judges, who study the question closely, assert that intemperance is declining. They give strong reasons and base their assertions by figures.

WOLVES IN SHEEP'S CLOTHING.

Such wild ebullitions of insensate hate as the new Know-nothingism, the Apalism of to-day, is not the enemy that the Church has most to guard against and strive with, but the indifference born of spiritual ignorance and sloth is the destroyer.

BIGOTRY IN POLITICS.

Toronto is essentially the home of bigotry and ignorance. Where the one lives the other always has secure shelter. In that city there is a Young Conservative Club. The club, composed of the young Conservatives of that city, has been making itself conspicuous by its narrow and bigoted policy.

A party must be judged by its policy and its actions. "By their fruits ye shall know them." Mr. Meredith's party formulated its policy which was one of enmity to the Catholics and to the interests of the Church.

IN ACCORD WITH HIS COLLEAGUES. We are told by our esteemed contemporary, the Columbian Catholic, that the latest addition to the ranks of the American archbishops, Most Rev. Mgr. Hennessey, of Dubuque, took the earliest possible occasion to declare himself in accord with the other Metropolitans on the question of Catholic schools and education.

A MERITED REBUKE.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe deserves commendation for the rebuke which she administered, at the Chicago Parliament, to that Protestant divine, Professor Wilkinson, of the Chicago University, who, in his over-zeal to say something agreeable to the exponents of Buddhism and Brahminism at the Religious Congress, charged Christianity with an attitude of hostility to those creeds, and then servilely apologized for it.

only you divest Christianity of its narrow dogmas—we will patronize your Christ if you will remove His Godhead. We believe in churches, too, if you will, but churches with no Vicar upon earth, with no priesthood, with no living voice imposing restriction on our license.

justify the commission of any wrongs against those creeds or their adherents for the purpose of propagating its own tenets; but to show itself hostile to their erroneous teachings, and to endeavor by every legitimate means to effect the conversion of their adherents, is certainly the duty of Christianity; and he is but a recreant minister of that creed who would have it assume any other attitude.

English circles are much stirred up at present by base calumnies against the Catholic sisterhoods, charged by an alleged escaped nun, a certain Miss Golding. Strange as it may seem, there still can be found a certain class of people who give a credulous ear to these stale charges.

Catholic Notes.

On Monday, the 12th ult., a number of people, including Mr. Stiles, the acting Secretary of State of Hawaii, the Protestant Bishop of Honolulu, and others, went to Molokai, the leper settlement, where Father Damien is buried, to unveil a memorial cross which has been made and erected at the expense of the National Leprosy Fund of Great Britain, of which the Prince of Wales is the president.

Since Monsignor Satolli came to America a year ago he has had some strange experiences, not the least of which is finding the dressmakers using his name for a newly-devised garment, "the Satolli cloak." It is described by a fashion writer as "a large, loose saque garment, odd but ugly; is a feminized copy of priestly vestments, with very wide sleeves and a trimming of church lace. Those who seek for something out of the common, and are able to have many changes of raiment, may indulge in such a caprice of fashion, but the average woman, who is, perforce, a student of ways and means, had better shut her eyes to all such eccentricities."

The cornerstone of the new church of Our Lady of Perpetual Help, South Brooklyn, will be laid by Bishop McDonnell, Sunday, October 29th, at three p.m.

French Art at the World's Fair.

In view of the following complimentary extract taken from the Chicago Globe, a quarterly review devoted to the interests of society, religion, art, etc., it would be well for some of those slave organs of the Local Government such as the Winnipeg Tribune and the Brandon Sun, which have been in the habit of harping themselves hoarse in order to throw discredit on anything Catholic or French, and we may add on a creed and nation that they can thank to no small measure for the Christianization and civilization of this Great West of which we are all so proud, to note the following:

First: "That the French pictures of Millet, Troyon, Corot and Danbigny, several of them owned by Americans, and loaned to the Exposition, are by all odds, the supremest work of art in this entire exhibition."

Second: "That the French art exhibit, on the whole, is by many degrees the finest art exhibit in the building."

Third: "By the general superiority of the French exhibit in this art building, as by the exquisite taste shown in the design and draping of their show dresses in their exhibit of the manufacturers building, the French are the most artistic people of our generation."

FORT FRANCES MISSION.

Interesting Letter From Father Cahill.

It is to be hoped that the establishment of a permanent mission—of a fixed mission station—at Fort Frances will give a fresh impetus to the work of evangelisation among the Indians of this district.

The divine element latent in every human soul, by which it is capable of corresponding to the touch of grace and quickening into life—seems to be almost crushed out in these unfortunate beings. The same does not obtain with every tribe of Indians, some tribes are very prompt in responding to the call of grace, but it is especially the case with this portion of the Sautaux tribe among whom my lot is cast.

After viewing such a sombre tableau as the one I have just traced it may be well queried, what are the prospects, if any, for the future, and are there any signs of the times calling for and justifying the expenses of an active campaign.

among these Indians is in the hands of a few. They are known as medicine men, are mostly old men and their number is fast decreasing.

We who enjoy all the blessings of Christianity and civilization, shall we not at least pour out fervent prayers that a new era may dawn upon these children of the forest?

C. CAHILL, O. M. I. Fort Frances, Oct. 26, 1893.

OUR BUDGET OF FUN.

Her Father—It's your money he wants. Herself—Oh, no papa; he said if you gave me a dowry he would refuse it. He wants myself only.

Her Friend—I thought you were going to marry a man with a title or forever remain single. Mrs. Nuwede—He has a title, I beg leave to inform you.

Memma—My darling, have you been a good girl this summer? Daughter—Yes, indeed, I've been a "best girl."

Arithmetic Teacher—Now Tommy, you have finished the tables: twelve quires make what?

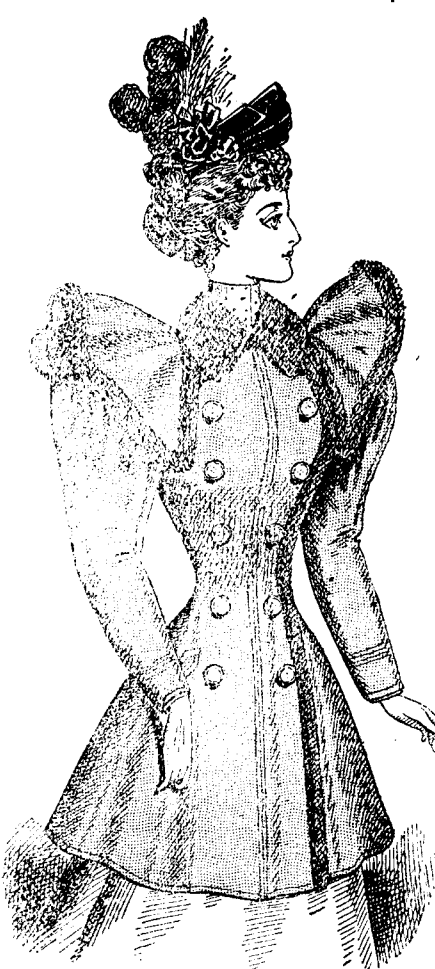

Robbie—I know; they would make an awful fuss if they were all like the one at our church.

The Sacred Heart.

The Messenger of the Sacred Heart publishes a letter from the Most Reverend Apostolic Delegate, Mgr. Satolli, in behalf of devotion to the Sacred Heart and the Apostleship of Prayer.

The Messenger of the Sacred Heart, the editor has set for his subject by illustrated sketches of Catholic interests in China, India and Japan. The story of the origin of devotion to the Sacred Heart in China, is told under the title "St. Paul's of Macao."

After viewing such a sombre tableau as the one I have just traced it may be well queried, what are the prospects, if any, for the future, and are there any signs of the times calling for and justifying the expenses of an active campaign.

At a recent school examination held in Glasgow, Scotland, a pupil was asked to name the patron saint of Ireland. "Mr. Gladstone," was the unexpected reply.

She asked him why he did not go. Instead of waiting on and on, And the facetious youth replied: "Because I am already gone."

A certain farmer out west, who claimed that he was unable to spend a dollar for a year's subscription to his county paper, sent that amount down east for a receipt to stop a horse from slobbering—he got it, and here it is: "Teach your horse to spit."

In order that passengers for the Delaware and Glenboro' branches would not be delayed in Winnipeg consequent on the change of train service, the C. P. Miss Lina McGuffigan the young lady who was reported in these columns last week, as lying dangerously ill at Rat Portage, Ont., was taken to the St. Boniface hospital on Monday morning, under the medical treatment of Dr. Ferguson; and we regret to say her chances for recovery are reported as somewhat doubtful.

The attendance this year at the October devotions has been encouraging. The congregation seemed to increase in numbers with each week. If this continues, as we hope, the Holy Father will realize his desire that the devotion of the Holy Rosary may become a common practice among all Catholics.

Amidst the hard times we take great pleasure in congratulating our esteemed contemporary, the Colorado Catholic, upon its neat new dress, and of what is of greater credit to it, its columns are always interesting and invigorating. The editorial portions of it, from the able pen of Rev. Father Malone, invariably have a substantial ring and a bright color.

The eminent Jesuit Father, John Joseph Franco, who has long and closely studied the spiritist movement in Italy, has published a manual on this serious subject. As in other countries, the spiritist movement is rapidly extending in Italy, to the grave detriment of faith and morals, and to a greater extent than is generally believed.

The musical world has sustained a severe loss in the death of the great composer, M. Gounod, who passed away recently at Paris. For the last quarter of a century he has held a commanding place among the musical geniuses of the world. He is best known by his setting of that touching masterpiece of comedy, the Faust of Goethe, to music that will never die so long as the human heart is moved by passions.

The Catholic who is not interested in church news, has little love for religion or gratitude for the gift of faith. He is of the class that find Catholic papers uninteresting. How will he be content, should he get to heaven, for the talk there will not be of the kind that he likes now?—Catholic Review. In the above case that prominent Catholic of the Rev. Dr. Bryce's no doubt would feel very uncomfortable, should he be blessed with sufficient grace to enter into heaven.

The Brantford Courier reports quite a suggestive case before the police court of that city. A man named McPherson was fined $10 and costs for stealing $25 from another man. The magistrate who imposed that sentence ought to have considered the probability of starting a new industry among the unscrupulous. Being fined $10 for stealing $25 nets the offender about $15. This might become quite a lucrative business if encouraged.

W. W. Ogilvie has returned to Montreal from the west, and states this season's crop will grade at least 75 per cent. No. 1 hard, the best quality in the market, and that the yield, both in point of quality and otherwise, will surpass that of last year. The east bound movement of grain has begun. Thus far the receipts at his company's Montreal mills of this season's crops exceed 150,000 bushels, and they have also stored 330,000 in Fort William elevator.

Mrs. John Hofferman, of Winona, Minnesota, used a novel argument to get work for her husband, says the Catholic Review,—she marched into the store from which he had been discharged, carrying her six-months old baby in her arms, and quietly informed his late employers that they must either give him back his place or take care of the infant, whom she put down on the counter. Then she hurried away. The store-keepers at once capitulated. They agreed that if she would take the baby back they would take her husband back. So all's well that ends well.

Lord Shannon, who has been called "the cowboy lord," is a good type of the generous Irishman. His wild life in America gave him a taste for rough men and hard labor, and he spends much of his time at his beautiful country seat in county Cork, with his men in the fields. He is particularly fond of woodchopping, and the results of his labors in this respect are always distributed as fuel to his cottagers. Some of his brother peers might follow a worse example.

"Here's a little poem," said the poet, "Which has never been in print." "Yes," replied the grumpy editor, "If you'll let me hint a hint. In that basket by the door, And another half a thousand You will find upon the floor— To be printed? Nevermore!"

A new form of marriage ceremony is practiced by a Georgia justice of the peace. He concludes as follows: By the authority vested in me, as an officer in the State of Georgia, which is sometimes called the empire state of the south; by the fields of cotton that lie spread out in snowy whiteness around us; by the howl of the coon dog and the gourd vine, whose clinging tendrils will shade the entrance to your humble dwelling place; by the red and luscious heart of the watermelon, whose sweetness fills the heart with joy; by the heavens and earth, in the presence of these witnesses, I pronounce you man and wife. There is evidently a good deal of room for a missionary enterprise in Georgia.

The Law Regarding Newspapers

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether in his name or another's, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for payment. 2. If a person orders his paper discontinued, he must pay up all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken from the office or not. 3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted in the place where the paper is published, although the subscriber may reside hundreds of miles away. 4. The courts have decided that refusing newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

To Subscribers.

Subscribers wishing to discontinue taking the Northwest Review, when mailing it refused, or directing their postmaster to return their copies to this office, should at the same time see that they do not owe any arrears. No subscriber has the privilege of discontinuing a newspaper upon which the arrears are unpaid. The printed slip on each issue tells the date to which the last payment was made. We never send our paper to any but actual subscribers, and always discontinue sending to those so directing us provided they are not in arrears. Neither are we particular for a few weeks, but we ought not to be expected to lose sums of twenty-five cents and upward.
