BUILDING CATHEDRALS

(From the Omaha Bee)

Modern civilization, one might say, is based on the home. Back of the home, often almost submerged in drudgery, is the mother. Yet to the best of them, however hard pressed by domestic duties, life is an achievement more than a task. Cooking is not merely the preparation of food or sweeping, simply chasing dust, nor is the teaching of cleanliness, religion and love for the beautiful in nature and art only toil. All these things go to the strengthening of civilization.

The spirit of the housewife is needed throughout every activity of modern life. Whatever the task which fate has assigned one, it has its connections with something greater. To view it thus, to find joy in work and to gain in self-knowledge.

Three men engaged at the same employment were asked what they were doing. One said he was making Terese Brennan, who some time ago spent the winter in the United States visiting relatives at Cambridge, Mass., that the winter there is equally as severe as any she experienced in Newfoundland. We are glad to hear that Miss Brennan is enjoying good health and having a pleasant sojourn in the land of the Stars and Stripes.

Many people prefer entertainment to achievement; they find the ordinary duties of life monotonous and oppressive; ordinary labor bores for it is not sufficiently exciting or stimulating. Like the confirmed tea toper or morphine fiend, one who is suffering from "nerves" requires an ever-increasing dose of excitement and entertainment to produce the desired effect.

On Wednesday evening, Jan. 31st, Mrs. Isaac Snow gave a very successful Scout Tea. The weather was fine and a goodly number of Scout enthusiasts turned out to partake of the good things provided and enjoy a social evening. During the evening Mrs. Baggs delighted the company with a solo. The proceeds were large, and the first Scout Tea in the New Year may indicate the success of the teas to follow.

A Thrilling Rescue

New York, Jan. 28.—A tale of heroic rescue at sea and a desperate battle to keep a sinking vessel afloat was told today when the Empress of Scotland arrived with Captain Aaron Kearley and crew of five of the schooner Clintonia, of Belloram, on board. The rescue was effected on Friday. Totally helpless in a terrific storm the Clintonia for Halifax, from Fortune Bay, was in a sinking condition when sighted. Captain James Gillis, the liner's commander, was compelled to abandon the boat in which the schooner's crew were rescued because of the heavy seas, said Captain Kearley. "For three days and nights we manned the pumps and were completely exhausted. After being sighted we did not believe we could be saved before the Clintonia sunk. We cannot say too much of the bravery of Chief Officer McMurray and his men when they took a desperate chance in effecting our rescue. A volunteer crew manned the lifeboat and several oars were broken by the waves." McMurray told that the schooner was sinking rapidly when the rescue boat rowed toward it. "The crew were clinging to ropes and every wave broke over the craft. The sea was so heavy we could not go alongside and the men were compelled to jump into the swirling waters. We had some trouble in picking them up and all were utterly exhausted and had died from cold when we got them into the lifeboat. It was a ticklish job getting back to the Empress, but they

For Merlin's Sake

A Romance that Ended in Tragedy.

Continued.
Merlin had said nothing since he left Charing Cross. Evidently the sudden change of life and scene had numbed his faculty of speech, but the large brown eyes were ever looking about; he clung close to Miss Eunice's arm during the whole journey which, as he was now clean and wholesome, she did not mind, although she had on her best mantle with the head trimming; but at every sharp rear, such as when they raced through a station or tunnel or under a bridge, he clung tremblingly, and in these little actions Miss Eunice read the key-note of his young life—Fear.

Long before the carriage pulled up at Wyndham Hall Merlin was fast asleep.
When Arthur, the tall footman, saw that his mistress was accompanied, he uttered an exclamation of surprise, and this was succeeded by a grunt when she said:

"Don't wake him. Carry him up to the little Blue Room."
The well-trimmed man obeyed, but it was well his mistress did not hear his comments in the servants' hall upon the duty he had been called upon to perform.

So Merlin of Rotherhithe became an inmate of Wyndham Hall.

The house happened to be without visitors. As a rule Miss Eunice loved to fill her house, and always with a visitor of a kind to whom sojourn in a beautiful house amidst pure air and pleasant scenery was a real treat. Poor relations, neighbours who were not well off, old school-fellows, came in relays, and if once they came, and behaved themselves, were always asked again.

After dinner, when Merlin was sound asleep in bed, Miss Eunice drew her chair up to the fire and fell into deep thought. Of course the boy was a trifle out of place next to the other guests, but his name was so familiar to her that she to be found, and hasn't been seen since.

"Then he's all right, and you've a mouth less to feed. So much for the riddle. Now then for the starvation. 'How's that?'"

"I've told you. Drink. Nothing has passed my lips except this liquor since six o'clock this morning. That's twelve hours."

"That, Dad," said his friend; "can't do business on an empty stomach, and—I've come on business."

The look which Broome gave the speaker after these last words was that which a dog sometimes gives to a man who is pleading, half-frightened, don't-ask-me-much-of-me sort of look.

The florid man rose, went to the bar, and returned with bread, meat and pickles, which he placed before Broome. Broome glared hungrily at the food, and hesitated, but the pangs of nature were stronger than an apparent disinclination to accept what was meant as priming for evil work, and he fell to with avidity, the florid man watched him through the smoke of his cigar.

REV. CANON CODY AND THE "COP"

Here is a story they are telling in Canada of the Hon. and Rev. Canon H. J. Cody, D.D., D.C.L., Rector of St. Paul's, Toronto, great preacher, representative Canadian and Imperialist. Canon Cody's name and fame are well known in St. John's, and it was his recommendation that the Rev. E. C. Egan—who was at one time of St. Thomas's Church in this city—was nominated to the Coadjutor's office of St. John's Cathedral.

Some of the other members of the Cathedral choir have not noticed down to date. During his visit to St. John's, the scene was witnessed by the Rev. Canon Cody, as he was walking along the street, thinking only of the altar for which he was late.

The wind whistling past his ears, he was in a shaven face, sufficed with one of his blandest smiles. The thunderstorm cleared from the big Irish face of the traffic cop. Graciousness appeared as if by a miracle.

"I beg pardon, Father. Go ahead," he whispered, "but be careful; there's a Protestant cop at the next corner."

THE LOCOMOTIVE OF BUSINESS.

Ceasing Advertising is Like Taking Engine off Train.

William Wrigley, Jr., the successful chewing gum magnate, talking with a smoking car audience the other day, was telling the others how much a year the cattle people invested in advertising.

"But, Mr. Wrigley, you've spent millions of dollars and created a splendid demand now; everybody talks about and chews Spearmint. Your demand is steady and growing. Isn't it a waste to be spending so many hundred thousand dollars a year in publicity?" one of his auditors asked.

The Spearmint king thought a moment, and then replied: "My friend, if I were to stop advertising, it would be just like taking the engine off this train. It would slow down, and after a little while stop. Advertising is the locomotive of business, and if you don't have it, business comes to a stop."

ITEMS OF NEWS.

Mr. Chester Dawe, who spent a few days in St. John's recently, returned home Saturday night.

Mr. Bert Hillyard, of the Western Union Staff, went to his home, Carbonear, for a month's vacation by Thursday's train.

Messrs. W. T. & E. Bowering have several men employed at their factory, Bay Roberts West, in building a number and variety of boats of all kinds. They also have a number of men engaged in cutting timber in the country.

FROM MESSENGER TO PRESIDENT.

Concluded.

Clowrey stayed in St. Louis four years, and then became superintendent of the St. Louis and Missouri Telegraph Company. In this position he was able to help in the development of the telegraph, and in the opening of new fields in the west. It was slow, hard work, often carried on under the greatest difficulties, but he never for a moment considered the possibility of entering into any other business.

When the Civil War broke out the organization of the telegraph field force became a matter of primary importance, and Clowrey was made superintendent of the Department of Arkansas. Missouri and Kansas were subsequently added, and he served in the field to the end of the war. As soon as he was mustered out he went back to commercial telegraphy, rising to be superintendent of the Western Union lines in the South-west. His record of service covered fifty years when he was made president of the company in 1903; and during that time there was not a single grade through which he had not passed, there was not a thing connected with the business of which he was not master from actual experience, and through the Southwest and the Middle West there was scarcely a telegraph office that he had not worked in or visited. He had personally taken part in the construction of thousands of miles of line, and in the opening of hundreds of new stations.

When Clowrey went into telegraphy the business was only eight years old, and there were only about six thousand miles of wire in the United States. At the end of the Civil War the total had increased to about seventy-five thousand, and when he became President of the Western Union the number of miles had gone up more than a million.

A Scotsman woke up one morning to find that in the night his wife had passed away. He leaped out of the bed and ran horror-stricken into the hall.

"Mary," he called downstairs to the general servant in the kitchen, "the lady is dead."

"What is it?" "Boil only one egg for breakfast this morning," he said.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Toledano of 61B Carnaby Street, Regent Street, London, W., seemed even in July, 1864, to have solved the problem of what to wear during the warm weather, for in a London newspaper of that period, a clipping of which I found in an old desk, they advertised as follows:

"Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Toledano of 61B Carnaby Street, Regent Street, W., having cast-off clothing of all description, invite inspection."

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH CO. HAD BIG YEAR.

The annual report of the Western Union Telegraph Co. has just been issued and shows that their company has had an exceptionally profitable year. The Company's gross income amounted to $107,031,109, as against $105,228,074 for 1921, while maintenance, repairs and depreciation account and other operating expenses were $91,490,133 as against $93,059,083 for the previous period. The company made a special appropriation of two million dollars for special cable developments, while out of the maintenance amount a further sum of two million dollars is to be distributed among the company's 60,000 employees scattered over its vast system throughout the world. This is a special appropriation that was not paid in 1922. After paying all charges including interest on Bonded Debt, there is a balance of $11,234,126 as against $9,633,808 for 1921. This is an excellent showing, all things considered. For the coming year the company's plans include the laying of a new cable from Genoa to New York via the Azores, the estimated cost of which is in the vicinity of six million dollars.

THE HISTORY OF THE UNION JACK

Few people have any idea of how interesting the history of the Union Jack is. One of the curious episodes in that history was the public affirmation by the Puritans of Massachusetts at Salem in 1634, that the cross in the flag was an idolatrous emblem. For a number of years, as the result of the agitation started at Salem, the cross was left out of all the military flags in the Colony of Massachusetts, except the one over the fort in Boston harbor; finally, in 1686 the British Parliament ordered the restoration of the cross. A century later the flag used in the early stages of the American Revolution by the thirteen Colonies was one with the British Jack in the usual corner and the remainder of the space occupied by seven red and six white stripes alternating. That was Washington's military flag for a year after the declaration of Independence, when the Revolutionary Congress ordered the adoption of a design in which the stripes should be retained and a circle of thirteen stars should take the place of the Jack. This de-

...the number of members has been increased as new members have been created by Act of Congress. There is reason to believe that the year 1776-77, when the Union Jack was a year of potential tension and permanent peace, if George III and his Ministry had only been able to take a magnanimous view of the situation. In this respect that flag properly symbolized the aspirations at that time of the great majority of the people of the remaining Colonies.

JUST THE DIFFERENCE

A stout old gentleman of unimpaired habits was hurrying towards the station a few days ago and looking very uncomfortable as he went. A friend happened to see him look the way as very suitable for a joke at his friend's expense and called out: "Now, Mr. nor, are you training for a race?" Mr. Short just managed to yell back: "No, you simpleton; I'm racing for a train."

"And now," said the monocled gentleman who had borrowed a match from the traffic cop, "I suppose you would like to know who I am?" "Sure."

"I am Sir T. W. Rockinghorse, Knight of the Bath, Knight of the Garter, Knight of the Double Eagle, and a lot of the other Crosses." "And I," said the cop, "am James Moriarty tonight last night, tomorrow night, and every other night."

ITEMS OF NEWS.

You'll all be glad to see "A Poor Married Man."

Sir M. P. Cashin, who was on a business trip to the United States and Canada, returned by the last ship on Thursday, Feb. 1st.

Some of our citizens interested in winter sports were negotiating for the building of a hockey and skating rink. Several plans were proposed but the lateness of the season was the chief reason for the thing falling through. It is hoped that the parties interested will give up the idea, and early next season put a rink at the disposal of the public.

BELL ISLAND AND CONCEPTION BAY

Editor The Guardian.

Dear Sir.—It is now about two weeks since 2000 men were laid off from work at Bell Island, and apparently no effort has been made to reopen the mines. As you are aware Bell Island is the very pulse of Conception Bay, and if something is not done to reopen the mines the district which I have the honor to represent will be up against a very serious situation. I contend, Mr. Editor, that the Government made a very serious blunder when they allowed 2000 workmen to be paid off. Of course it is more than we can expect for the Company to keep the men on when their orders were cancelled, but it was up to the Government, the people's guardian, to instruct the Company to keep the men on by guaranteeing the wages and holding the ore as security. I am sure this would be backed up by every Newfoundland because when the ore would be disposed of the country would get back the money again. By doing this they would have helped the poor men in this district and Bay to feed their families through the hard winter with out further taxation, which every body knows is almost to the breaking point. Sometimes ago a similar occurrence took place. The Government then should then have kept Bell Island going instead of wasting money up at Badger constructing roads which are absolutely useless. Now, Mr. Editor, the same thing has happened again, and the country must stand aghast at possessing a Government who are apparently not capable of solving this problem; because the principle is sound and the only conclusion one can come to is inability or indifference. The Government should bear in mind that they should not let a golden opportunity like this slip through their fingers; if they do they will have to provide some other means to help the poor man provide for his family, who cannot be allowed to go hungry. If it had been enough to be poor by class, but hunger the Conception Bay men will not stand for.

Mr. Editor, I would like here to state that I would like to see the Government take control of nine members, and if you are united you can control all Governments. I am pointing this out to you, fellow Baymen, because I am disgusted that 2000 of our men were allowed to be dismissed without a moment's notice, while the Government is able to find a way to keep eight or nine hundred men employed constantly breaking stone in the city of St. John's at $2.25 per day.

We hear a lot of talk of guaranteeing the Humber, which is away in the future; but here is a case where 2000 men were allowed to be dismissed from actual work, but the Government could not see its way clear to guarantee only the wages of the poor men (not interest on construction). I wonder if there is a reason? Now, Mr. Editor, it is up to us Conception Baymen to demand that the mines be opened immediately or else we get the same treatment as St. John's. The Outport man can feel the pinch of hunger as well as the men in the city. We have the power to actually make or break governments.

A long pull and a strong pull, and a pull altogether with Conception Bay as the pass word, we will then come into our own.

F. C. ARCHBALD.

WEDDING BELLS.

At Copenhagen, Denmark, Bendix-Olesen, daughter of the late editor Bendix-Olesen, Denmark, was united in marriage to her cousin, Mr. Aage Varjelds, a traveller for one of the biggest book firms in Scandinavia. The young bride was given away by her father's cousin, the Inspector of Greenland. The bride looked charming in a dress of white crepe de chine, and veil with a myrtle wreath, all embroidered with myrtles, and carried a magnificent bouquet of roses. After the ceremony the wedding dinner took place at the director's house, who was a very good friend of the bride. The young couple received many beautiful presents. Some eight years ago the bride and her mother was visiting Newfoundland, and while staying at St. John's the bride was three months at Ayre & Sons Music Department. Her mother belonged to Bay Roberts, the daughter of the late Samuel Chard Coley's Point.

Several young men and women of Coley's Point will give an entertainment and playlet in the Cable Hall on Feb. 8th.

Stall's Books

Rev. T. Albert Moore, D. D., General Secretary of the Dept. of Social Service and Evangelism of the Meth. Church of Canada, who visited Newfoundland in Sept., 1917, in connection with the Social Congress, says:

"Stall's Books on 'Avoided Subject' have been standard works for such a long time that it seems almost unnecessary to say a word in their behalf. I believe they have accomplished great good, and are written with care and delicacy, at the same time with sufficient frankness for the modest discussion of these delicate subjects. They are safe books for general reading, especially if from the various books there is proper selection for the youth or adult, man or woman, as the case may be."

"AGAIN TO THE FORE."

In recent issues of our contemporaries we note items re our appearance again in the newspaper world. We thank them for their kind words and hearty welcome and trust we shall continue to merit their good wishes. Following are the extracts:

"The Guardian," Bay Roberts, again resumes its position in local newspaperdom, and this bright little weekly published at the cable city of Conception Bay, will help in many ways to improve conditions as they are and as they may be. We extend a hearty welcome to The Guardian and trust that Brother Russell will be able to long-maintain the journalistic excellence of the first issue of Volume XII.—Telegram.

We are again to have the Guardian published in our town. The editor, Mr. C. E. Russell, has installed a new printing press and a linotype. We hope the Guardian will continue to be issued as a weekly. The good Bay Roberts people, through this paper, will be kept informed of the news of the day. Bay Roberts is a better place for it.—Telegram.

The Bay Roberts Guardian has again resumed publication, and the editor and proprietor, Mr. C. E. Russell, J.P., promises to "send out from week to week a journal that will far exceed in every particular the Guardian of a year ago." The first issue is certainly a creditable production, and the news extends to its Bay Roberts contemporary every good wish for a prosperous future.—News.

POLITICAL.

During the past day or two it has been very generally stated that the Government have again decided upon an early election—in April, it is said. It was rumored some time ago that a Spring election was to be held, but when the Bell Island mines unexpectedly closed, the Government's plans were completely upset, and the appeal to the country was forthwith declared off. Now that a couple of the slopes are again to be operated the situation has undergone another change, and it is stated that Sir Richard Squires wired the Hon. Dr. Campbell a day or two ago to make immediate preparations for an election. It was reported yesterday that Sir Richard was hurrying back from Montreal and would arrive by the returning Kyle, when the campaign would open with a swing. His programme, it is stated, is to be one of promises of huge development, which will of course be largely imaginative.

Other reports say that the long-heralded resignation of the Hon. W. F. Coaker from the Department of Marine and Fisheries, becomes effective today, and that he is to be succeeded by Mr. Scammel, the member for St. Barbe. This story gains credence from the fact that Mr. Coaker's Secretary is retiring from the department also, to take over the editorial chair of the Advocate. A political contest in April will make it extremely difficult for the candidates to get through the districts, particularly the North and West; but that is not likely to worry Sir Richard Squires whose evident purpose is to secure a snap verdict.—Daily News, Feb. 1.

Mr. J. W. Dawe went to St. John's by Friday morning's train on business trip.

Mr. Frank McRae, of Hr. Grace, who went abroad for medical treatment some time ago, has greatly improved, and is returning home the middle of this month. Mr. McRae's many friends are glad to learn that he is restored to good health again.

Mr. Isaac Mercer, who has been seriously ill for some time, is very much improved.

EIGHT YEARS IN THE POST.

DELATED ARRIVAL OF LETTERS FROM NEWFOUNDLAND.

Posted in Newfoundland on November 28, 1914, two letters and a packet of papers were delivered to the post office yesterday at their destination in London. The post-mark showed that they reached Liverpool on Monday.

The letters contained urgent business reports from a Newfoundland company to one of its officials in London.

They were probably held up thru an oversight in Canada or the United States, a postoffice official told a Daily Mail reporter yesterday. It is strange that they have apparently kept together all the time.

The normal time for mails from Newfoundland is 12 days.—Daily Mail, Jan. 1.

(A resident of Bay Roberts received a letter on Jan. 30th, 1923, that was posted in St. John's on October 30th, 1922.—Editor.)

NEWFOUNDLAND SCHOOLS.

(From The Sentinel, Toronto.)

Of all the systems of education that have come under the observation of The Sentinel, that which prevails in Newfoundland is the least calculated to secure efficiency and national unity. We will probably offend some of our friends in the ancient colony by saying so. It is a system in which the moneys collected are put out for education and distributed among five different denominations, so that each may have its own schools. There are Anglican schools, Methodist schools, Presbyterian schools, Salvation Army and Roman Catholic schools. Five sets of schools for a quarter of a million people. The denomination has its superintendent of education and the necessary staff of assistants instead of one administrative body, as would be the case if a Public School system were adopted.

The reason why we can not have all the children of Newfoundland in one school system is because of the expense of maintaining the same.

The schools of Newfoundland would be effected by having one administrative staff instead of five. Why a community of 250,000 should split up in this fashion to educate their children is hard to understand.

William Ashbourne, of Twillingate, was an energetic advocate of a unified educational system for Newfoundland. His death will be a loss to the movement. It is to be hoped some other able and patriotic citizen of Newfoundland will take his place as the leader for educational reform and bring the ancient colony into harmony with modern ideas in the control and management of primary schools.

WORK RESUMES AT BELL ISLAND TO-DAY

TWO SLOPES WILL BE OPENED

Feb. 1.—It is understood that work on Bell Island will be resumed to-day on a restricted scale and that two slopes will be working. This will not be sufficient to accommodate the workmen residing on the Island. All of whom it is understood will be given the preference. No particulars regarding the arrangements made with the Company for the resumption of work at the mines have been given out as yet, neither is it known when the mines will be again working at full capacity.

MAIL BY AEROPLANE FOR THE LABRADOR

The Postal Department has made arrangements to send a mail to the Labrador via Forteau by aeroplane. The mail will be sent by train to Botwood on Sunday. The plane will probably be leaving Botwood on Monday, and en route will drop mail at Hawk's Hr. Flower's Cove and St. Anthony. Mail was delivered on the northern coast last winter, and the residents of that section were thankful to Major Cotton for keeping them in touch with the outside world.
