IRELAND.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—Gladstone is sending letters of enquiry to all sorts and conditions of men, probably including the Parliaments.
At the cabinet meeting yesterday, it was decided that the business of parliamentarianism should be the subject of the address in reply to the speech from the throne should be the address on the government scheme to reform the rules of procedure. Chamberlain urged the early consideration of a local government bill, but Gladstone overruled him, giving precedence to home rule proposals, and postponing dealing with the Irish land question.

DUBLIN, Feb. 16.—The Freeman's Journal takes a gloomy view of Lord Randolph Churchill's proposed visit to Belfast to confer with leading men of that city on the Irish land question. It predicts his visit will be attended with riot and bloodshed. Gladstone's letter of the 12th inst. to Lord de Vere is a disappointment to the Irish.

DUBLIN, Feb. 16.—John Dillon presided at a meeting of the Dublin branch of the national league for Ireland and made several important declarations. Among other things Dillon said: 'We are now on the eve of achieving a national parliament for Ireland. We will only accept the complete form of home rule, and when we have that then I and the other Irish will be content with the national parliament. Three hundred and fifty-nine Presbyterian congregations in Ireland, numbering 328,100 members, have agreed to support the project of establishing home rule in the country.'

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The Earl of Aberdeen, new Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, made his state entry into Dublin today. There was no display of flags by the citizens as usual on such occasions, and the only mark of respect shown by the crowd assembled along the route by which he proceeded to the castle. The weather was cool. A body of students, which was following the vice royal procession, was attacked by a crowd at one portion of the route and considerable of an encounter ensued, during which many students were wounded.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—The Irish party will hold a meeting at Cannon street, Dublin, on Saturday, Feb. 21st. The object of the meeting will be to issue to England a manifesto in regard to the home rule bill. The manifesto will be signed by the Irish party in London. The meeting will be held at 7 o'clock in the evening. The manifesto will be signed by the Irish party in London. The meeting will be held at 7 o'clock in the evening.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—The scene of enthusiasm witnessed here today has not been equalled in many years. In the numerous public occasions which paraded through the streets were many women who all displayed equal courage. The crowds that they filled the principal thoroughfares, more particularly along the route taken by Lord Randolph Churchill, was a sight to be remembered for several hours. No sooner had Lord Randolph seated himself in a carriage than he was surrounded by a crowd made a rush for the carriage, dragged the horses and proceeded to urinate the reins and to surround the carriage. The crowd was so dense that it was impossible to get near the carriage. The carriage was surrounded by a crowd of people who were shouting and cheering. Done a Long Time Ago, Anyhow.

MRS. CHURCHILL SUES MISS LEWIS FOR ALLEGEDLY HER HUSBAND'S AFFAIRS.
NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—The case of Mrs. Samuel Churchill against Miss Josephine Lewis for alienating the affections of Mr. Churchill was on trial before Justice Van Vleet in the supreme court yesterday. The plaintiff says in her complaint that for fifteen years past she has been the wife of Samuel Churchill. Between July, 1873, and June, 1880, she kept a boarding house at 161 West Forty-ninth street, the premises being owned by the mother of Miss Lewis. Miss Lewis also had motherly relations with Mr. Churchill, and, as alleged, Miss Lewis there won the affection of Mrs. Churchill, so that he treated his wife cruelly. Mrs. Churchill wants $25,000 damages.

The defendant, a fine-looking woman of about 35 years, in her answer denies the allegations of the complaint, and pleads the statute of limitations.
Miss Lewis has a servant in the boarding house, testified that she had seen Mr. Churchill when in the yard, put his arms around Miss Lewis's neck, and asked her to marry him. She afterwards saw Mr. Churchill with his arms around Miss Lewis's waist in the kitchen. She told Mrs. Churchill about it. Some two weeks afterwards the witness went to the dining room, when Mr. Churchill sprang from the lounge and ran through the door. Miss Lewis also sprang up from the lounge and then sat down.

Mrs. Churchill was then called. She stated the boarding house business, as a help her husband along. On Feb. 24, 1880, she went to the theatre with a cousin, leaving her husband at home, while a German servant at home. After she went out her husband sent the servant away.
Until the trial Mrs. Lewis did not know that she was only the adopted daughter of Miss Agnes Lewis, and was greatly agitated at the disclosure.

Dr. Mary Walker's Speech.
SHE GIVES RHODE ISLAND LAWYERS A FEW KNOCK-DOWN ARGUMENTS.
PROVIDENCE, Feb. 19.—Dr. Mary Walker came from Washington to instruct the Rhode Island legislators, and today she had a hearing before the joint committee of the general assembly appointed to consider an amendment to the constitution granting woman suffrage. Dr. Walker believes that suffrage is granted by the constitution, and she called attention to the constitution, which says, 'We, the people,' and not 'We, the men.' The doctor appeared in a black Prince Albert coat, black trousers, a white collar, and black cravat.
The preliminary portion of the doctor's address was devoted to her conquests of distinguished statesmen who were acquainted with her. She called Rhode Island 'a little republic.'

When she got down to the argument Mr. Freeman of Lincoln, a little man with lots of grey hair, and who she called 'a man over the committee told the doctor in a mild but firm voice that the constitution of this state in no way qualified only 'male citizens' to vote. The doctor pulled down her vest and, looking Mr. Freeman right in the eye, told him that the word 'we' was used in the constitution relating to murder, but for all that they were willing enough to apply them to women. Before the joint committee would receive the doctor's address she had a conference with her counsel, and she disappeared through the rear-stair door.

American Rifleman.
BOSTON, Feb. 20.—An English rifleman, in a recent communication to a member of the Massachusetts Rifle Association, says: 'Now, let me finish with a suggestion, which will, I hope, find favor on your side of the water. In the month of July next we shall have a competition in marksmanship for the Rajah of Kolsapore's magnificent trophy, for which we shall probably have not only a British, a Canadian, a French, a German, an Indian team competing, but probably also a South African and South Australian team. To come to Wimbledon is a serious matter, but would not it be possible to give some consideration to organize at Oremoor or at Walnut Hill a simultaneous match, in which the contest should be as nearly as possible assimilated?'

Strange Recovery of a Lost Case.
BINGHAMTON, Feb. 18.—S. S. Gould, sr., of Seneca Falls, while making the trip down the Lockline Rapids in the St. Lawrence River seven years ago, dropped his case overboard. His name and address were engraved on a silver plate near the head of the case. A few days ago Mr. Gould received a letter from Samuel Yeo, who lives on the coast of Nova Scotia. Yeo informed Gould that he had found a case floating in the harbor of St. John's, and he had been told the name and address of S. S. Gould, sr. Gould requested him to send the case to him by express, and on Monday he received the property he lost in the St. Lawrence River in 1873.

The Lesson of Gough's Life.
(Brooklyn Eagle.)
Looking back on Gough's services to temperance, from his success in life—whether to take this in the narrower individual sense or in the broader acceptance of some thing done for others—and recurring to the turning point of his career, we find a wholesome lesson for reformers. Does anybody suppose that a prohibitory law, every state supplementing the federal statute of the same sort, would have arrested Gough's descent? Nothing would have done it but his own better sense, which brought into play. Nothing can do it for others but adequate force of character.
It is hard to better, but the instruction of the apostle as to any variety of moral regeneration: 'Work out your own salvation.' It is the divine law cannot accomplish the result, it is idle to appeal to the legislature.

In a Bad State.
LAWLESSNESS PREVAILING AT PARRISIEK.
MONTEPELIER, Feb. 20.—M. H. Gault, M. P., has received the following despatch from J. J. Lonsdale, a merchant of Parrisiek: 'Matters here are in a very bad state. The fishermen are starving. Lawlessness prevails, and the local authorities are powerless. They have asked the Quebec government for assistance, but time is being lost, and no satisfaction is obtainable. Could you assist in pressing immediate action on the part of the government? Other evils are expected.' Mr. Gault has accordingly telegraphed Attorney Gen. Fallon in regard to the matter.
A clergyman of Stoughton, Conn., who has been compelled to wear a cap when working the bell, and build the church fire all winter, in addition to performing his clerical duties, threatens to resign unless his work is lightened.
A foreign device for cutting stones consists of a cord of three steel wires rather loosely twisted together, running round pulleys like a band saw. The swift succession of blows from the ridges of the cord delivered in a narrow line disintegrates the stone rapidly.
Cures of scabies are reported as having been effected after single applications of Dr. Dehor's method of treating the skin above the painful parts with a spray of chloroform of methyl. The operation is said to be applicable also to facial scabies.
