APPALLING CRASH AT FORT WAYNE

Cars So Badly Twisted They Cannot Be Told Apart—A Scene of Death and Destruction.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Sept. 21 .- Fortytwo persons were killed outright, and a score injured, seven fatally, in a collision this afternoon between a southbound limited and northbound local cars on the Fort Wayne and Bluffton branch of the Wabash Valley traction line. The crash occurred in Kingsland, 18 miles south of Fort

There were two physicians on the cars at the time of the wreck. One of them escaped serious injury and with the other, who had himself been painfully hurt, rendered assistance to these who survived the shock of the collision. Relief cars were hurried from this city and physicians went from Bluffton in automobiles.

Many of the dead already had been removed from the debris of the splintered cars and the gruesome work of taking out the mangled remains of those in the farther recesses of the wreckage was taken up by the more skillful hands of the company's wreck-

Most of the people on the northbound car were en route to the fair at

known, but it is supposed that there was a misunderstanding of orders. The car carrying the people to the fair was an extra, and it is believed that its osition on the road was not definitely known, and the limited, running on its own time, was not apprised of its approach. The curve where the wreck occurred is one of the shortest on the Wabash Valley line, and there was hardly a moment after the local car was sighted before the crash came Even the motormen on the two cars had not time to jump, so close were they together when sighted. An Isolated Spot. The spot where the disaster took place is isolated. There was not a doctor in Kingsland, and the people of the village seemed paralyzed by the immensity of the deaths. They lacked a leader and until the relief cars from Fort Wayne and Bluffton arrived little was done to take the dead and injured from the wreckage. It was a long, hard task to remove to cover the dead and to make band-ages for the wounded. Legs and arms divided. The French parishes of the and English parishes. were severed, heads cut on, and strips postures of the victims were terribly distorted, the bodies being entangled with the timber of the crushed cars. To add to the horror of the scene flies settled on the dead and injured in great warms. All the time, pendthem stood helpless to aid them.

Another Story. Bluffton, Ina., Sept. 22.-D. E. Wilson, conductor of one of the two interurban cars which were wrecked here last night with a loss of 43 lives, tells

"I was going toward the rear of my car to get the keys from my locker with which to unlock a switch that we were approaching. This switch has a dead end, and unless it were unlocked we would have run into the grounds. We were then about a quarter of a mile from Kingsland.

Heard No Crash "Suddenly all the stuff in the car began to pile up around me. I did not hear any crash, or any noise. Things just seemed to rise up all around me. and I could not do anything to stop Then I lost consciousness, I guess, for the next thing I knew I was in the grove near the wreck. I do not any particular amount of noise. The reason of that is, I guess, that I was somewhat out of my head. I walked back to the wreck, and saw Motorman Charles Vandine, of the northbound car, staggering around there, and grabbed him and walked down the track with him a short distance. Then we went across the field, and I do not remember anything more until someone in a house took off my hat and collar and coat and put me to bed. That's all I know about the wreck."

An Awful Wreck. That the cars were running at very fast rate is demonstrated by a view of the wrecked cars after they and wood of one could not be dis- disease, and is now under the care of tinguished from the other, so tan- Dr. H. [G. N. W. Dispatch.] Montreal, Sept. 22.-The demonstraion which is to be held in this city in nonor of Sir Wilfrid Laurier to signalize the conclusion of his tour of the Canadian West, has been fixed for Oct. 10 at the Monument Nationale. The plans of the promoters are to make it one of the greatest affairs this city has ever carried out in honor of the Liberal chieftain.

GRAND TRUNK MAGNATES CONFER WITH PREMIER

Relations of the System With Former Employees Was Discussed.

Ottawa, Sept. 22.-President C. M. Hays and A. W. Smithers, chairman of the Grand Trunk board, and William Wainwright had a conference this morning with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon, G. P. Graham and Hon. William Pugsley. Messrs, Hays and Smithers have just completed a trip over much of the Grand Trunk Pacific line, and that was chiefly the subject of the conference. It is understood the Premier brought to the attention of the railway magnates some of the grievances he heard of in his recent western trip, and that the relations of the Grand Trunk with his former employees, who struck, was also discussed. There is no announcement of a result so far.

is conducted. The Crimea is one of the loveliest spots on earth—"a little paradise," the Tartar inhabitants call it, as fertile as it is beautiful, with a climate as attractive as its scenery, and every physical condition that is favorable to health, happiness and prosperity. That is one of the reasons why the peninsula has been fought over so fiercely through all the ages by the dominating nations of the earth. The peninsula, which expands from the southern coast of Russia into the Black Sea, is almost circular in form and measures 225 miles east and west and 155 miles north and south at its widest points. The total area is about 10,000 English square miles. The delightful climate and the scenic attractions have made the Crimea the playground of Russia, and way. the southern coast is lined with splendid villas belonging to rich nobles, merchants and manufacturers and hotels of all descriptions, villages of boarding houses, and popular resorts for the accommodation of the 10,000. The hotels are open the year round, the thermometer runs up to 90 in midsummer, but the heat is tempered by cool breezes that play upon the Black sea, and in winter the climate is ideal. The best months, they tell me, are May, June, October and November, and the imperial family of Russia usually spend them here at a villa called Livadia, where the late Alexander III. died several years ago. A range of mountains called the Yallis runs parallel with the southern and eastern coast, culminating in Tohadyr-Dagn, a peak which rises 1,800 feet above the waters of the peaks between 3,000 and 4,000 feet in height. The southern coast is very abrupt and picturesque. The cliffs rise abruptly from the water to the height of 2,000, 3,000 and even 4,000 feet, and are crowned with domes, pinnacles and spires of rock as fantastic as the architecture of a dream. The cliffs are honeycombed with cawerns caused by the decomposition of the limestone, and are the delight of geologists, because of their stalactites and stalagmite formations. Other phenomena are abundant. Millinery Opening Today

The Smallman & Ingram Millinery Opening, which commenced yesterday, was a noteworthy affair.

It presented a most impressive showing of beautiful Hats, style gems from the masters, lovely Dress Hats developed by Smallman & Ingram milliners under the witchery of Paris inspiration, and sensible and charming tailored Millinery. All styles submitted for your approval.

Today, Friday and Saturday this opening exhibit will be continued with new style features added each Second Floor.

Linoleum Sale Tomorrow Clearance of All Ends and Room Lengths

Friday and Saturday, if they last, we will clear all short lengths of Linoleums and Oilcloths (in all about 50 ends), including lengths from 1 to 23 square yards, in 2 and 4 yard widths, lengths and patterns suitable for dining-room, bedroom, hall or kitchen, while the shorter lengths work in nicely for stove mats, etc. This will be a great opportunity to save, and you will find lengths that will cut to advantage for almost any size room up to the above-mentioned size-23 square feet. Be on hand early if you wish to share in these bargains, as many were disappointed who came in the afternoon last season when we cleared the ends in this department. Everything went in the forenoon.

Staine's Inlaid

We have just received our fall shipment of Staine's Inlaid Linoleums, and we find that this season's stocks excel in beauty of coloring and design those of our spring shipment. We strongly recommend the use of Inlaid Floor Cloths where hard usage is expected, as the patterns last clear and bright as long as any of the material remains. There has been a sharp advance in the price of all Linoleums, but this fact has not been taken into consideration in any way in the pricing of our new stock during this sale.

THEY ALL WANT GAYNOR He May Be Next Democratic Nomines for Governor.

New York, Sept. 21. - Mayor Gay. nor was the only one of the possible candidates for the Democratic governorship nomination that Chairman John A. Dix, of the Democratic state pressed him during his tour of the counties, he replied, hesitatingly, "The intense interest in Mr. Gaynor."

"In every county I visited," said Mr. Dix, "and I have been in every one except three or four, there was a remarkable desire for information about the mayor. Often country folk drove 20 and 30 miles to the local conventions for the purpose of asking me about Mr. Gaynor. I never have met the mayor, so I could gratify their curiosity only in a general way. "If Mayor Gaynor is nominated for governor, however," continued the state chairman, "I believe the movement will have to come from one of the up-state counties. New York city has a good mayor and it wants him where he is."

PRESIDENT HENDRY ON THE PREFERENCE.

President Hendry, of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, gave his blessing to imperial preferential trade in his address at Vancouver on Tuesday. But while he is full of good will toward the mother country, he has no intention of allowing it to interfere with business. The Canadian preferential tariff, he said, must remain sufficiently high to afford "adequate protection" to native industry "in or- best part of Canada surrounding it? der that there might be more effectively transferred to Canadian workshops much of the manufactures that are now procured abroad." He added Canadians would be always dependent just now, when the grain-growers are of George Meredith. "Meredith," said nursing. Mr. Hendrie, however, voices the desire of the majority of Canadian manufacturers to exclude British, as well as foreign, competition. But this is not the view of imperial preferential trade taken by the British people who support tariff reform. If that cause should win, the conflict between the interests of the British manufacturers on one side, and the Canadian on the other, will take a more definite shape. There will be a disillusionment which may not strengthen the fraternal sentiment which is the chief tie of

A SHADOW ON BRITAIN'S PROS-PERITY.

Industrial troubles are falling upon Great Britain at a time when its foreign trade has reached unexampled proportions. The present business revival has been extraordinary, and followed a period of pessimism equally extraordinary. Much of this gloom was, of course, artificially manufactured by politicians who hoped to climb into power on the imaginary ruins of Britrade two years ago, coinciding with for. "Good Lord!" Jim exclaimed. "I forgot to order the confounded dinner!"

It was eight o'clock by that time, and as it took an hour at least after tele-phoning the order, everybody looked blank when they heard. CHAPTER XVII. A Clash and a Kiss.

The clash that came that evening had been threatening for some time. Take an immovable body, represented by Mr. Harbison and his square jaw, and an irresistible force, Jimmy and his weight, and there is bound to be trouble.

The real fault was Jim's. He had gone entirely mad again over Bella, and had thrown prudence to the winds. He mooned at her across the dinner table, and waylaid her on the stairs or in the back balls just to hear her voice when shells just to hear her voice when shells just to hear her voice when she halls, just to hear her voice when she ordered him out of the way. He telephon-ed for flowers and candy for her quite shamelessly, and he got out a book of photographs that they had taken on their wedding journey and kept it on the library table. The sole concession he made to our presumptive relationship was to bring me the responsibility for every-thing that went wrong, and his shirts for

The first I heard of the trouble was from Dal. He waylaid me in the hall af-ter dinner that night, and his face was serious. "I'm afraid we can't keep it up very long, Kit," he said. "With Jim trailing Bella all over the house, and the old lady keener every day, it's bound to come out somehow. And that Isn't all. Jim and Harbison had a set-to today about you."

"About me!" I repeated. "Oh, I dare say I have been falling short again. What was Jim doing? Abusing me?"

lent."

"Jim is a jellyfish," I said, contemptuously. "What did he say?"

"He said he only cared for one woman, and that was Bella; that he never had really cared for you and never would, and that divorce courts were not unmitigated evils if they showed people the way to real happiness. Which wouldn't amount to anything if Harbison had not been in the tent, trying to sleep."

"Well, I'll be—" something or other, he said finally, and then he turned on his heel and went out. By the time I got downer I am angry), I heard Jim coming downstairs, and I tucked the watch out of sight. Would anyone have foreseen the trouble that watch would make!

Jim was sulky. He dropped into a chair and stretched out his legs, looking gloomabled into his den, closing the door behind him, without having spoken a word. It was more than human nature could stand.

When I went into the den, he was stretched out on the davenport, with his stace buried in the cushions. He looked the and neglected his wife for some and stretched out on the davenport, with his face buried in the cushions. He looked Insisted—when a man systematically ignored and neglected his wife for someone else, there were communities where he would be tarred and feathered.
"Meaning me?" Jim demanded, apoplectic

Dal took Jim by the elbow and led him downstairs, muttering, and the sit-uation was sayed for the time. But Dal uation was saved for the time. But Dal was not optimistic.

"You can do a bit yourself, Kit," he finished. "Look more cheerful, flirt a little. You can do that without trying. Take Max on for a day or so; it would be charity, anyhow. But don't let Tom Harbison take it into his head that you are grieving over Jim's neglect, or he's likely to toss him off the roof."

Jelly Tumblers for Picnics.

Jelly tumblers with tight-fitting covers are most useful articles for the picnic basket. They serve as butter crocks, sugar bowls, gelatine pudding molds and receptacles for meat or vegetable salads and devilled eggs. Plenty of oiled paper is essential, and one must always remember to separate articles with strong odors and tastes-such as pickles, bananas, coffee or spiced things.

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

AIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment; when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions.)

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Files Suit to Have Pre-Nuptial Agreement With Diva Annulled.

New York, Sept. 22.—The validity of the famous pre-nuptial agreement between Robert Winthrop Chanler and Lina Cavalieri, his bride, is now SELLING IN LONDON certain to be tested in the courts. Chanler's first wife, Julia Chamberlain Chanler, who obtained a divorce from him in the French courts in 1907, filed suit here today in behalf of herself and children in an endeavor to set aside the agreement on the ground that it was obtained by fraud and influence and that it was not the free act of Chanler.

Mrs. Chanler I. has an agreement of her own with her former husband providing for the payment of $10,000 yearly for her support and $5,000 yeary for the support of each of her daughters.

"The plaintiff is not aware," she says in her papers, "of the yearly income of the said Robert Chanler, agreement the defendant has put it out of his power to carry out the terms of his said agreement with the plaintiff, and that by reaof a livelihood.'

Smith was a guest at the C. P. R. Hotel, occupying the next room to the Countess of Antrim, when her $100,000 necklace of pearls was stolen.

When the jewels disappeared Smith was at the hotel and he discussed the case as did other guests.

Pinkerton detectives swarmed the hotel and C. P. R. trains after the robbery. Last Thursday night one of them, Smith says, went to his room The leading German and Austrian managers united in declaring that these terms go to the police station and identify were ruinously expensive, and succeeded a suspect they had there. He declares that he had papers in his pockets showing who he was and that he told the police the name of his firm, their telephone number and his bank at Duluth, and urged them to phone and verify his statements.

He also demanded the right to see the United States consul. All requests were refused. He was held as a vagrant and the right to see a lawyer was efused him. Daily he was "sweated" as to the robbery. Yesterday he induced a prisoner who was being released to notify the United States consul that an American citizen was being held in jail incommunicado, and Consul-General Jones went at once to the jail. He demanded to see the man, and hearing his story demanded that he be permitted to see a lawyer. This was accorded and on threat of a habeas corpus proceeding Smith was hurriedly released.

The police deny that he asked to see any person, and the Pinkertons assert he was a "suspect."

Vast Forests Untouched in the Region of Hudson Bay.

Toronto, Sept. 21 .- "From what I saw of the pulpwood forests in the Hudson Bay region I have no doubt that the newspapers will keep on issuing for a century or two."

Mr. L. S. Amery, of London, Eng., a former distinguished member of the staff of the Times, and author of 'The Times History of the South African War," has just returned from a tour of the northern wilds in company with Earl Grey, and will speak before the Empire Club on Thursday on the resources of the northern country through which he passed. Mr. Amery, as a consequence of his journey, does not share the popular alarm over the depletion of the pulp forests and the imminence of a famine in paper.
