Special to The Advertiser.
Prince Rupert, B. C., Nov. 23. —
Wireless reports have been received from nine different countries and communication with a station in Hawaii has been established by the radio operator of the vessel Bowdoin, now 80 miles from the North Pole.
Capt. Donald B. MacMillan, explorer, aboard according to message received here last night
on the exploration party.
Captain MacMillan said in his message that "News of the world was received like an evening paper from the two European wireless stations."
"The Bowdoin wireless," the message declares, "made a record for itself
last night, when Mr. our operator, talked with Amateur Station 6001
in Hawaii. This distance of 5,000 miles is possibly the world's record for short wave stations. We have heard stations in England, Germany, Holland, Mexico, France, Japan and Spain."
"We receive news of the world from stations in Oxford, England and Naum, Germany, and look forward each day to our evening paper."
"The long Arctic night, so much described by explorers of old, and so vividly described with all its consequences in their narratives, has no terrors for the crew of the Bowdoin.
Current conditions are vastly different, and all conducive to good health and happiness."

Mayor Warns That the Utilities
Body Might Repeat Its Action of Last Year.

In view of the fact that the public utilities commissioners refused to submit their pay list to the city council, it would not be unreasonable to assume that other information would be denied, Mayor Wenig warned today.
"1924 is yet to come," his worship declared today. "And we did not get over all the road during 1923. We may want some more data from the public utilities commission and the London and Port Stanley Railway commission as the city council, by unanimous resolution, directed the mayor to secure the pay list of all spending bodies. The public utilities declared at first. We finally proved that we were and still are entitled to that information as representatives of the people."
"We finally secured the utilities pay list, and while it was not actually placed in the mayor's hand, it came to the city council, of which the mayor is a member."

Principals In Double Shooting Tragedy

Top left is Miss Viola McNaughton, who lies at death's door in Victoria Hospital as the result of a shooting affair at 318 York street shortly after 7 o'clock this morning. To the right of Miss McNaughton is Miss Geraldine Durston, who was shot twice by her deposed lover, Clarence Topping, whose picture is next that of Miss Durston. Mr. and Mrs. George Cook, at whose home the shooting took place, are on the extreme top right. Below to the left is a picture of the Cook home, while at the lower right is a picture of the bedroom used by Mr. and Mrs. Cook, where the girls were shot. Miss Durston was half lying on the trunk next to the window with Topping in the corner bending

JEALOUS LOVER RUNS AMUCK; ONE GIRL DYING AND ANOTHER IS WOUNDED IN LOVE TRAGEDY

Viola McNaughton Is Not Expected to Recover, and Geraldine Durston in Serious Condition From Revolver Wounds—Double Shooting Followed Victim's Refusal to Marry Clarence Topping.

POLICE OFFICER MAY HAVE SHOT ONE GIRL

Topping Quietly Submits to Arrest, Formally Arraigned For Shooting and Remanded For Week, Pending Developments in Condition of Injured Girls—All Principals of Good Reputation.

Miss Viola McNaughton relapsed into unconsciousness early this afternoon and practically no hopes are entertained for her recovery, Victoria Hospital authorities stated at press time.

Miss Geraldine Durston's chances for recovery are brighter than those of her friend. Complications are liable to set in, physicians state. The bullets have not yet been extracted.

Driven into a fit of jealousy because his former sweetheart, Miss Geraldine Durston, 18 years of age, would have nothing more to do with him, Clarence Topping, age 23, formerly of Strathroy, but who has been working in the city, went to Miss Durston's boarding house, 318 York street, shortly after seven o'clock this morning and shot the girl twice in the lower abdomen with a revolver.

Her friend, Viola McNaughton, age 19, who tried to help Miss Durston in the sharp struggle that preceded the shots, was shot through the chest, the bullet going through her body, and little hope is held for her recovery. Victoria Hospital authorities state there is a chance that Miss Durston may recover.

Constable Walter Harpur was in the kitchen of the York street house, having been sent for by George Cook, owner of the house, when three revolver shots were fired in the bedroom. He rushed through the living room to the door of the bedroom and in the dim light saw Topping point his gun in his direction. Harpur states he and Topping fired almost together.

CONSTABLE HARPUR SAYS
TOPPING FIRED AT HIM.
"Miss Durston was in a half reclining position on a trunk in the far corner of the room and Topping had his revolver pressed against the girl's side when I first saw him. He pulled back his arm and fired in my direction, and I fired almost at the same moment," Harpur told The Advertiser later in the morning.

"Mr. Cook says he thinks you fired the shot that went through Miss McNaughton," The Advertiser reporter stated to Constable Harpur.
"I can't say. I don't think I did," was the reply. "She came right round the corner of the door and maybe I did hit her. I can't tell you. It was pretty dark in the room."

There is a chance that the bullet fired by Harpur was the one that grazed Topping's coat and was imbedded in the wall. If Harpur did fire the shot that went through Miss McNaughton, it might have glanced along the young man's clothing before piercing the wall, for when Harpur fired both Topping and Miss McNaughton were in a direct line with his gun, according to Mr. Cook.

Has New Plan To Prolong Life

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Nov. 23.—Discovery of a method of blood transfusion, which not only rejuvenates aged patients submitting themselves to it, but prolongs life, is claimed by Dr. Frederick Heyman, a German consulting surgeon.
The method of transfusion adopted, Dr. Heyman told an interviewer, revitalizes the blood of the patient, and can be practiced on both sexes. In cases where a direct transfusion is not desired a serum may be injected.

GIRL RETURNS TO FATHER, SUIT DECIDED OUT OF COURT

Robert Liddy, Montreal, Wins
8-Year-Old Daughter—Action Complimented by Judge.

PAYMENT OF $500

Mary To Be Allowed To Visit
Grandparents in This City
at Reasonable Intervals.

By a settlement arrived at this morning out of court, Robert Glenn Liddy, of Montreal, is given custody of his little daughter, Mary. The child is to be allowed to visit her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Allister, 888 Queen's avenue, London, at reasonable intervals, and Mr. Liddy agrees to pay the grandparents $500, as payment of past expenses for the child's keep.

Justice Kelly complimented counsel in the case when they showed him the settlement reached out of court. "I think you two gentlemen have rendered the interested parties a very great service in this matter," he said.

The settlement was brought about by a suggestion from the judge yesterday afternoon, when he advised the counsels to consult their clients with a view to a settlement.

Fighting desperately for the possession of his pretty 8-year-old daughter Mr. Liddy late yesterday afternoon told Mr. Justice Kelly how the child's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Allister, 888 Queen's avenue, London, had clung to his little daughter, Mary Ethel Jean Liddy.

The small child sat in the court room beside relatives, and smilingly exchanged winks with an Advertiser reporter. She didn't seem to realize that her father and grandfather were engaged in a bitter struggle for the right to bring her up and educate her. Little Mary had a piece of gum that interested her much more than court proceedings, and after vigorously chewing for a few minutes she would pull it out of her mouth and stretch it as far as possible.

Mr. Liddy, a successful business man of Montreal, told his case quietly in answer to questions by his counsel, J. M. McEwen, K.C. He stated he married Ethel Alberta Allister at Dundas Center Methodist Church here on Sept. 17, 1913. The ceremony was performed by his father, Rev. J. J. Liddy. Their child was born in Toronto, April 11, 1915, and in August

Ontario Hospital Patients Are Likely To Receive Trypama-

Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey An-

Here in a Short While.

If trypama-mide, the new cure for paresis, proves as marvelously effective as advance reports appear to indicate, numerous patients of the Ontario Hospital will receive injections of the fluid.

A great proportion of insane persons are suffering from paresis, it was said, and these will probably be completely cured. This means that instead of anticipating a cruel and agonizing death, these people will be able to look forward to many years of life in comparatively good health.

Associated Press Despatch.
Berlin, Nov. 23.—Balloting on the motion of confidence in the Stresemann government, introduced in the reichstag by the three government parties, was postponed this afternoon until 7 o'clock tonight.

Associated Press Despatch.
Berlin, Nov. 23.—Gen. Von Secht, national commander of the Reichswehr, today ordered the dissolution of the German communist party and the confiscation of its funds. His decree also prohibited the holding of communist meetings and the publication of communist newspapers.

It was later stated that the dissolution order also applied to all nationalists and national socialist party organizations.

The order "fell like a bombshell upon the reichstag this morning and seemed likely to have a decisive bearing on the attitude of those parties in the present situation towards the Stresemann government."

The communists were especially furious and angry scenes were enacted in the reichstag over General Von Secht's sudden and drastic measure.

The communist organizations are well organized and well supplied with money.

EMPRESS AVE. SCHOOL PLANS ARE COMPLETE

Architect Carrothers Will Call For Tenders For Construction Tomorrow.

MODERN STRUCTURE

Schools Architect L. E. Carrothers will tomorrow call for tenders for the construction of the new Empress Avenue School in West London. The plans have been completed and specifications compiled, and will be ready for the contractors at that time. Mr. Carrothers, who has been working overtime on the plans, finished the last details last night, the design having been accepted by the board of education committee at its last meeting.

The school, which will be built at the corner of Wharncliffe road and Empress Avenue will be one of the finest in the city, combining many of the most favorable features of other schools. It will contain fifteen teaching rooms, a manual training room, a domestic science room, and large auditorium, which will be used for community purposes. Red pressed brick, with a glazing of cut stone, will give a smart appearance to the exterior, while inside the flooring in the rooms will be maple, and the corridors terrazzo.

The land where the school is to be erected was purchased from St. George's Anglican congregation some time ago for $20,000, and the church building that was standing on it has been razed. The school will cost in the neighborhood of $180,000, this amount having been raised by contributions by the city council for the purpose.

It is hoped that it will be completed by next fall and opened when the 1924-25 term begins. This will be the last public school to be erected for some time as the building program is now completed.

Under the direction of Theodore R. "THE ELOPMENT OF ELLEN."

The clever play, "The Elopement of Ellen," presented by the A. Y. P. A. of St. Matthew's Church, was given for the second time successfully last evening. The play itself is a merry little farce-comedy, which quite delighted the large numbers who turned out to see the presentation in the Sunday school rooms last evening and on Wednesday when it was given for the first time. The play committee managed splendidly to fulfill the requirements of stage settings and scenery, and the cast was particularly well chosen and directed. They were as follows: "Richard Ford," Lorne Hinchins; "Mollie Ford," Connie Barker; "Robert Shepherd," Tom Fryer; "Max Pen Eyeh," Billy Banfield; "Dorothy Marsh," Beatrice Jones; "June Havercill," Margaret Delaney; "John Hume," Wilfred Mawson. KNOX CHURCH BAZAAR.

As a result of certain inclemency of the weather it was decided on the opening of the Knox Presbyterian Church bazaar this afternoon to extend the sale to include Saturday afternoon, in order that those who might be deterred from visiting the bazaar today might have an opportunity to do so tomorrow. In spite of the rain, however, a splendid crowd was in evidence shortly after the bazaar opened this afternoon. The interior of the new gymnasium provides excellent quarters, and the gayly-hued decorations of each booth, combined in presenting an unusually pretty effect. Each booth followed a scheme of its own particular wares and the result was charming.

Afternoon tea was served at 2 o'clock, and at 6 o'clock, a chicken supper was served at which almost every member of the parish was a guest.

CLUB NEWS

It also looks like a hard winter for the foxes on the Alaskan islands, in the hearing of which the government has a profitable sideline. Hitherto they have been fed on the meat from the dead seals, have waxed fat and furry from it, and have developed coats which are even more valuable than the seal skins.

There isn't anything to be done about it, Mr. Hoover said, except to put the foxes on half rations, stop killing the seals and wait until the seal skins come back into fashion. Orders have been issued to cut the animal seal kill half again next year.

QUI VIVE CLUB.

Miss Ruth Mitchell presided over a meeting of the "Qui Vive Club" of Wellington Street Methodist Church last evening, when further arrangements were made for the holding of a bazaar in December. It was decided that the Invincible Club should be permitted to take charge of one of the booths.

CONCERT BY LONDONIAN QUARTET.

A new musical organization which is making its bow to the city and meeting with exceptional favor is the Londonian Quartet, which last evening presented at the Hyatt Avenue Methodist Church a program, varied and of a high order. The concert was given under the auspices of the Daisy and Aim Well classes of the Hyatt Avenue Sunday School, and formed easily the first public appearance of the quartet. Its members are: Miss Josephine Campbell, soprano, Miss Viola Williams, contralto, Mr. A. L. Christians, tenor, and Mr. Gordon L. Knapp, baritone, each of whom is already a well-known soloist. The accompanist was Evans Davis. Several of the numbers on the attractive program were given in costume, possibly the most delightful of these being two gypsy songs from well-known operas. Mr. Knapp contributed specially to the program with comic numbers, which were greatly enjoyed.

FUR FASHION CHANGES CAUSES BIG LOSS TO U.S.

Sealskins Not in Demand, Government Worried As To Disposal of Supply.

PELTS WILL KEEP

Alaskan Foxes Will Have Meat Rations Cut in Half As Result.

Associated Press Despatch. Washington, Nov. 22.—The United States government is losing substantial sums of money because women have changed their fashions in furs and are showing less interest in seal skins, Secretary Hoover said today.

Moreover, the government has in stock some 10,000 fur pelts which may have to be held for a considerable period before disposing of them. The British, Japanese and Russian governments also, the secretary said, were facing losses as the result of the change in styles.

The government, Mr. Hoover explained, has practically a monopoly on seal fur production by reason of its ownership of the Alaskan islands where the seals have their rookeries. In recent years as many as 25,000 or 30,000 seal skins have been taken. This year's take, which was cut down to 12,000 when the depression appeared, was put on the market some time ago with skins offered for sale at $30 apiece.

About 2,000 skins were sold and then the demand died. The pelts will keep, and Mr. Hoover explained that the government had put them in storage.

Japan, Great Britain and Russia lose also, because under the treaties joined in 1911, the government has shooting the animals in the open Pacific has been stopped, and the governments participating have since that time made further improvements to facilitate our work.

The commissioner points out that next year income tax payers will receive two forms to fill in place of one as in the past. One of these is pink and the other white. The pink one is to be retained by the taxpayer, however.

"SWEEPING" PROPOSALS SEEN FOR MEETING

Expect Council Candidates To Express Strong Views at Industrial Session.

Important proposals of a sweeping nature are predicted for a special session of the industrial area commission this afternoon, dealing with the effort to secure more industries for London.

Two members of the commission, Mel Cater, chairman, and Allan Towe, who seek election to the city council, hold strong views upon the subject, and both are expected to express themselves this afternoon.

Allan Towe speaking two nights ago at South London mass meetings, advocated the appointment of a municipal industrial commissioner to "go into among the manufacturers of the big cities and sell them the industrial area proposal."

REQUEST FRANCE TO GIVE CREDIT FOR RUHR GOODS

German Delegates Urge Reparations Commission To Take Action.

FORESEE CONFLICT

Associated Press Despatch. Paris, Nov. 22.—The note presented to the reparations commission yesterday, calling attention to the fact that the French and the Belgians in their negotiations with the Ruhr industrialists refused to agree to credit to reparations account all deliveries made under any working arrangement with the industrialists, indicates that the German delegates will take advantage of the opportunity to raise the question of crediting deliveries when they are heard before the reparations commission tomorrow, thus keeping to the forefront the divergences between France and Great Britain.

Premier Poincaré in his speech to the Chamber of Deputies last Friday said that deliveries in kind under agreements made with the heads of industries in the Ruhr would be credited to reparations account after the expenses of occupation had been deducted. The British contention is not only that the Ruhr occupation is illegal, but that the French and the Belgians have no right to charge any part of their occupation expenses against any payments or deliveries made on reparations account.

The fear is expressed in reparations circles that this will furnish another cause for sharp conflict between the Allies as soon as the British elections are over.

BELIEVED ITALO-SPANISH UNDERSTANDING SOUGHT

Associated Press Despatch. Rome, Nov. 22.—Strict secrecy is being maintained regarding the conversations proceeding between the Italian and Spanish sovereigns during the latter's visit here, and also between Premier Mussolini and the Spanish military dictator, Gen. Primo Rivera.

An Italo-Spanish understanding is widely and sympathetically spoken of in all circles, but nothing positive is known as to any steps in this direction.

Nanny and Danny Start Wondering What Is Going To Happen To Them

By THORNTON W. BURGESS. Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse were prisoners. They had been caught and put in a comfortable wire cage by the aviator who flew the great man-bird. Danny had been a prisoner in that cage before, so he didn't mind it in the least. But Nanny was very much frightened. Yes, indeed, Nanny was very much frightened. She kept out of sight in the little box that was in that cage.

But Danny watched everything that was going on. You see, Danny was not afraid. He saw that aviator open that tiny cupboard in which he and Nanny had made their nest, and take that nest out. Then for some time he worked on that cupboard. He was lining it with tin; but, of course, Danny didn't know this. When he had finished he put the nest back.

"There," said he to Farmer Brown's Boy, "I guess they can live in there if they want to. They can't do any harm, anyway. I didn't dare let them stay there unless I lined the little cupboard with tin, for fear they might gnaw their way out some time. I've made some little holes in the door so that they will have air enough if I want to shut them in there any time. Now we'll go all over this machine. If tomorrow morning is fair I am going to start for the South."

So for the rest of that day the aviator and Farmer Brown's Boy were very busy. Danny watched all that went on, and wondered what was going to happen. But he didn't wonder nearly as much as did Nanny. You see, he had had experience. He guessed that that man-bird was being made ready to fly again, but he didn't tell Nanny this. He knew how dreadfully frightened she would be at the very idea.

Poor Nanny! How she did wish she never had thought of making a nest in that man-bird. How she did wish she had been satisfied with her old home in the old scarecrow! "What do you suppose is going to happen?" she squeaked to Danny when at last they were left alone.

"Danny had it on the tip of his tongue to say he guessed they were going to fly, but he didn't say it. All he said was, 'If we are patient we'll find out.' All the time he was wondering if that man-bird carry them away, it would bring them back.

Before the aviator and Farmer Brown's Boy left, the aviator placed the cage close to the partly open door of the little cupboard in such a way that when the door in the cage was open Danny and Nanny could run into the cupboard. But there was no way for them to get out of the cage or the cupboard. Plenty of food was left for them in the cage.

As soon as they were sure they were all alone, Nanny ventured into the little cupboard. Somehow she felt better once she was in her own nest there. Curled up there she wondered and wondered what was going to happen.

THE CROW OF CROUP A WARNING TO ALL MOTHERS

Croup starts with a dry cough and rattling in the throat, after which the croupy crow gives warning of the disease. The child, after tossing restlessly about, will start up with a flushed face, protruding eyeballs, and a distressing look of terror and anxiety. There is a struggle for breath, and the expectation of the mucous matter is so difficult to get rid of that the child appears to threaten strangulation.

On the first sign of the "croupy crow," mothers should administer Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and thus give the child prompt and permanent relief, and perhaps the life saved by taking this precaution.

Mrs. H. A. Langthorn, Hamilton, Ont., writes: "My little boy was very bad with the croup, and I could not get anything to relieve him until I tried Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I cannot praise it too highly for the relief it gave him."

Says Leaders Zebra and Pony

Associated Press Despatch. London, Eng., Nov. 22.—Neville Chamberlain, addressing a gathering of Unionist women in Drury Lane Theatre, London, tonight, scouted the alternatives to the government's policy, and said it was pleasant to see Asquith and Lloyd George juggling the old Liberal coach, like a steady-going pony yoked to a zebra from the plains of Central Africa. Referring to Lloyd George's speech on Saturday last, Mr. Chamberlain stated that his talk about tin cans and dead crabs was more worthy of a pothouse politician than a statesman just returned from a visit to the senior dominion.

LADY ASTOR WARNS 'HOWLING HYENAS'

Declares She Is Free White Woman, and Will Not Tolerate Heckling.

Canadian Press Despatch. Plymouth, Eng., Nov. 22.—Lady Astor was presented with a horseshoe at an enthusiastic meeting and reception to her today. The meeting was characterized by good humor, and Lady Astor remarked:

"I am not going on the platform if I have howling hyenas yelling at me every time I speak. An election is a serious thing. It is no time for howling about something you know nothing about. You can do it with men but you can't with me."

She retorted to an interrupter later that she had had about as much heckling as she could stand. She said: "I am gaining thousands of votes by my opponents' mistakes. I am not a paid delegate. I am a free white woman."

FRENCH-CANADIAN GIRLS ENTER COMMERCIAL LIFE

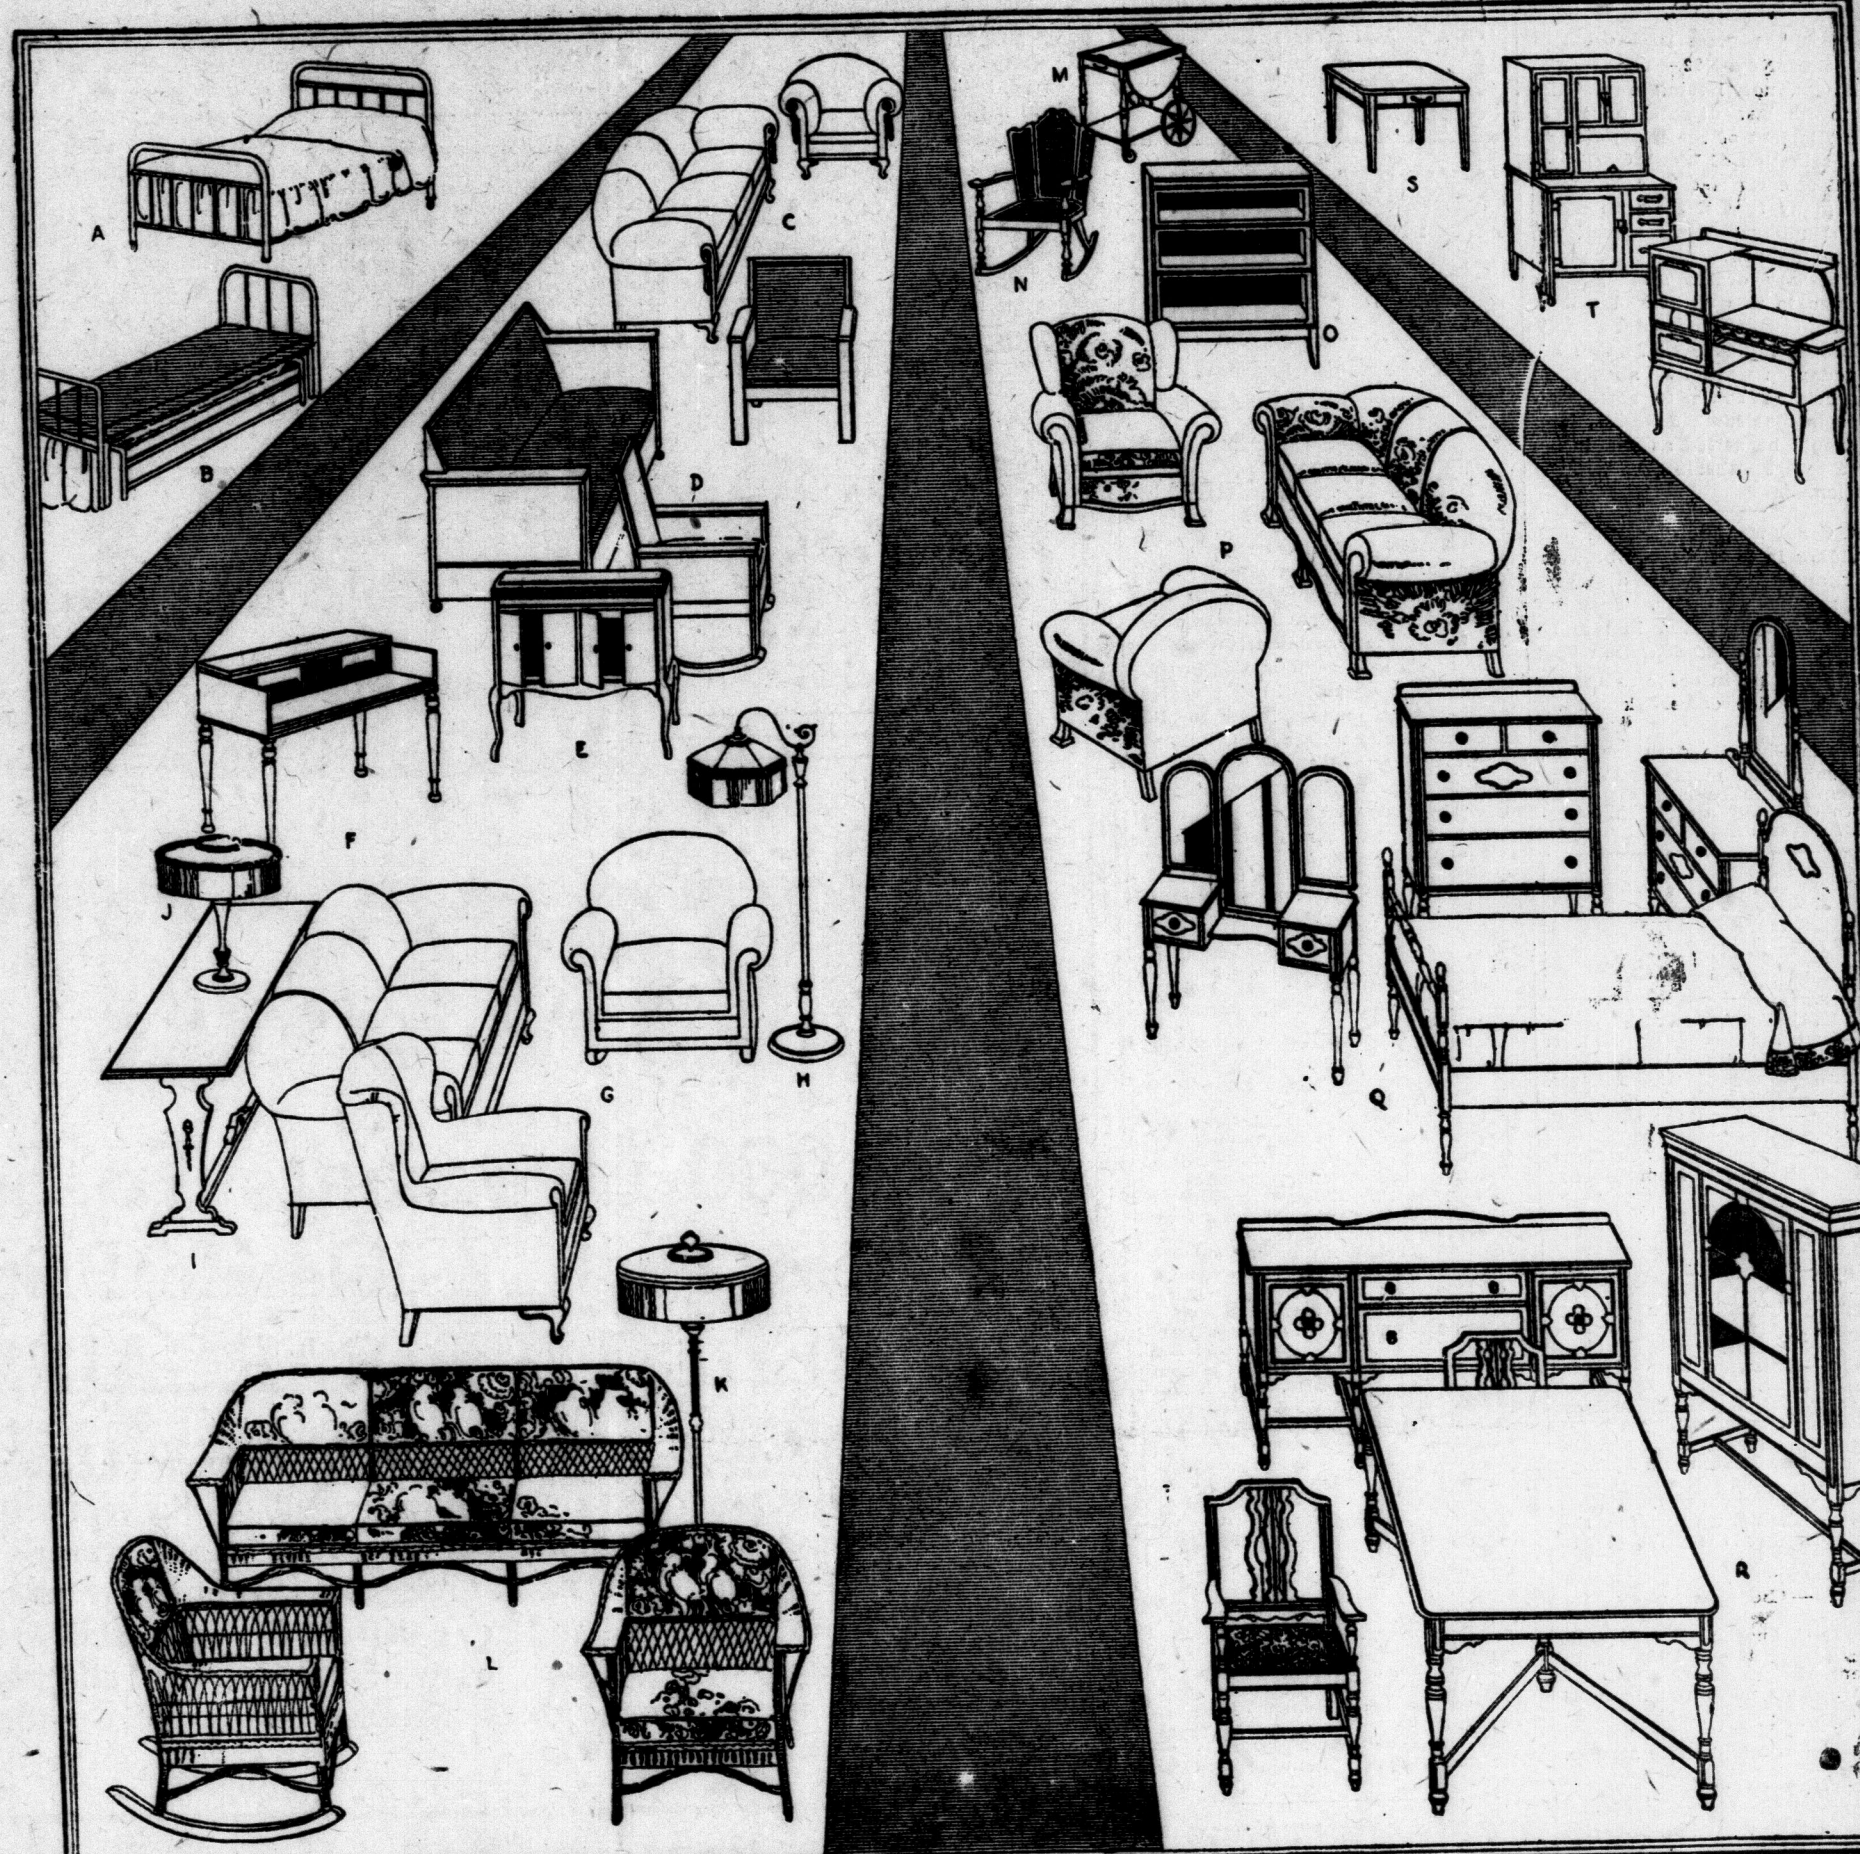

Canadian Press Despatch. Montreal, Nov. 20.—Girls of the rising generation of the French-Canadian race may be true to the traditions handed down as to the home and its duties and responsibilities, but school statistics show that they are eager to qualify themselves for positions in the commercial world, deciding largely in favor of commercial courses in the regular day schools in preference to domestic science instruction.

In the reports made by principals, based on decisions of the pupils themselves, out of 26 girls' schools in the district, 26 had decided in favor of commercial section studies. The majority of these, however, get married after a time in business, as a rule.

He will seize every opportunity to expound his views, but he will have to do it from his car window, as the English trains have no back platforms. Then he will tour the Lancashire area, where he will encounter hordes of unemployed.

Mayor Agrees. Mayor Wenige urges all candidates for the various municipal offices to attend the public mass meetings in their respective wards. He refers in particular to last night's gathering in ward two.

When the Aldermanic candidates but two were there," he pointed out, he noticed that Frank Jones and Dr. Hunt did not respond when their names were announced by the chairman.

The Mayor believes that the candidates should show sufficient interest in the leading issues of the day to take advantage of these meetings to express their views.

"These meetings have been arranged for that very purpose," he concluded.

The Players Workshop
Introduces London Drama

Miss Topley Thomas Gives Successful Presentation of "Masque of All Souls" by Beatrice Taylor.

In their presentation of Beatrice Taylor's "Masque of All Souls" at the Central Collegiate Institute last night, the Players' Workshop of this city, under the direction of Miss Topley Thomas, proved itself to be an able medium for the presentation of plays. And at the same time proved to the public, the worth of a London-made drama. The lines of the "Masque of All Souls" are beautifully conceived and musical in their diction. The writer summons the lovers of story book, history and fairy tale, to appear before the modern girl to convince her of the power of love. And thus, gives opportunity for attractive costumes and beautiful setting.

The audience of last evening was delighted with the production, and a pretty tribute to the author was a curtain call and a large armful of roses.

Folly Is Very Fine.
The honors for the success of the presentation go first of all to Miss Topley Thomas, but after that certainly to Miss Ruth Tanner, who was an outstanding member of the cast as Folly, in cap and bells. The vivacity of her acting lent much to the effect of the presentation. Miss Topley Thomas herself entered the cast as Jack O'Lantern, and was seen for too few minutes in that delightful role.

Special mention might be made of BLACKHEADS—Don't squeeze blackheads—dissolve them. Get two ounces of peroxide powder from any drug store and rub with a hot, wet cloth briskly over the blackheads. They simply dissolve and disappear by this safe and sure method.—Advt.

Clear Your Skin

Miss Eula Kennedy, who was an exceptionally true Madame Butterfly; Miss Agnes England as Priscilla; Miss Kathleen England as Titania; Miss Leona Kirkwood as Romance; Miss Mary Maynard as Cleopatra, and Miss Charlotte Leckie as Laughter. Love was beautifully impersonated by Miss Hilda Hook, costumed in pure white. Then, too, there was Miss Sarah Lawrence as Memory; Miss Margaret Griffiths as the Mail Marion; Miss Jean Arkell as Elaine; Miss Kathleen Dudley as Cinderella, and last of all, but certainly not least, Miss Ena Thirsk as the New Woman, who gave a very clever impersonation in that role.

Children Take Part.
An army of small children in quaint and pretty costumes played the fancies and goblins and hobgoblins of the masque. Among the smaller members of the cast were Dorothy Ellis, Katherine Gammage, Irene S. McNeil, Barbara Peters, Jack Holmes, Alfred Kemp, George Sinclair, Melville Sinclair and George Thirsk.

Incidental music, played by Charles Percy, proved most effective in the presentation. A second number of the evening was a rollicking drama entitled, "The Dress Rehearsal of Hamlet." The players are the members of a girls' club, who are giving the play for the benefit of charity. The theme lends itself admirably to a presentation by a cast of students. It was delightfully humorous from beginning to end. Here again Miss Ruth Tanner and Miss Ena Thirsk starred, some very excellent work being also done by Miss Hilda McMillen. Other members of the cast were Miss Gertrude Dumeresq, Miss Agnes England, Miss Margaret Griffiths, Miss Leona Kirkwood and Miss Mary Maynard. Between the plays enjoyable musical numbers were given by Miss Eula Kennedy, who sang an aria from "Madame Butterfly," and Mr. Neilson, violinist, who played the Serenade from Cavalleria Rusticana. At the close of the evening Miss Topley Thomas was showered with a lovely bouquet of flowers.

LOCH LAMOND CHAPTER
ENTERTAINS AT BYRON

A splendid program was presented last evening at Byron Sanatorium by the members of the Loch Lamond Chapter, I. O. D. E., under the direction of the regent, Mrs. James Hendry, assisted by Mrs. Brown and Mrs. T. McDonald.

Scotch and Irish dances and many other stirring numbers were given by the McDonald Pipe Band, the artists including: Sergeant McDonald, Billie McIntyre, Gladys Brown, Beril Nichols, Lenore Gilman, Raymond Turner, Stewart McCallum, Helen Wilkie and E. Vining. Miss Jessie Gillespie, contralto, who has recently come to London from Scotland, delighted the audience with Scotch songs. Other charming numbers were solos by Jack Reid, baritone, and Mrs. Barnes, also "cello selections by Bert Reid. Mr. Stein acted as accompanist. The chapter is taking a concert party to Westminster, Dec. 6.

ALLIANCE FRANCAISE
FORMS SMALL CIRCLES

New Policy Adopted at Last Night's Meeting at Home of Miss Cronyn.

The decision to form three conversational circles in connection with the London Alliance Francaise was an important move taken at last night's meeting of the Alliance held at the home of Miss Katharine Cronyn, the president. The custom of bringing speakers to the city, which has prevailed during the past few years, will not be continued this year. The new policy which the alliance has adopted is rather to improve the conversational French of the members than to afford them the opportunity of hearing addresses in French.

Three circles are already under way, one under the leadership of the president, Miss Cronyn, a second held at the home of Mrs. Leonard and a third group which is being formed by Mrs. Foley. Mr. Meras is undertaking to form a fourth group whose members will be made up of members of the teaching profession. These groups will be responsible for the programs provided at the regular monthly meetings of the alliance, which will be held at the homes of the members.

The program at this week's meeting was an interesting one, including the reading of excerpts from a French play under the direction of Mr. Meras, piano numbers by Mrs. Richardson and vocal solos by Miss D. Pilon of Montreal.

YOUNG JUDEANS ENTER L. AND D. CAGE LEAGUE
The Young Judeans of this city have entered the L. D. and S. Juvenile League for basketball. A. Siskind, captain, and H. Wilensky, manager, have some good material in Levy, Cohen, Sobel, Grace, Ginsberg, Shapiro, Falk and F. Wilensky. And it is to be hoped that these players will rapidly develop into players under such good management.

EALING CLUB SALE.
The tea and sale held yesterday at Ealing school under the auspices of the Ealing Mothers' Club was a most successful affair. The club, assisted by the teachers of the staff and the pupils, raised £45 towards the fund for a moving picture machine. The children were in charge of the candy booth, where many dainty articles fashioned of candy were for sale. Over $13 was raised by the pupils. Following a visit through the school, tea was served, and later the drawing for the doll took place, little Miss Shirley Ayres winning the handsome prize. Mrs. W. G. Stanman, president of the club, was convener, assisted by the executive of the club. The club is holding a shower to fill Christmas stockings at the next meeting of the club, being held Dec. 4.

VICTORIA HOSPITAL ALUMNAE.
Important matters are scheduled to be brought before a general meeting of the Victoria Hospital Nurses' Alumnae, to be held on Dec. 4. Plans for this meeting, which will take the form of a social evening, after the business has been completed, were made at a meeting of the executive, held this week at the home of Miss Agnes Malloch, the president. Miss Della Foster was appointed social convener for the coming meeting. Those present at the executive meeting were Miss Agnes Malloch, Miss Annie Mackenzie, Mrs. Walter Cummins, Miss Beatrice Smith, Mrs. A. C. Joseph, Mrs. Eyre, Miss L. Guest and Miss D. Foster.

Kennedy, president of Ryerson Mothers' Club, and Mrs. Hardie and Mrs. Moody of Riverview Mothers' Club, gave interesting talks on child welfare work at the meeting of the Broughdale Mothers' Club, held last evening at the home of Mrs. Urin, Empress avenue. Other visitors were present from the Ryerson and Riverview Clubs. The Broughdale mothers decided to help with the clinic at Ryerson school, December 10. Following the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. Ward and Miss Olive Hodgins. The next meeting will be held at the school, the second Tuesday in January.

"What Not To Say" Book Needed

Dorothy Dix

Gives Partial List of Human Blunders

Unsought Criticism, Free Advice, "I Told You So," Accounts of Personal Aches and Pains, Cruel Speeches to the Family That We Would Never Make to Strangers—Are a Few of the Long List of "Things We Should Not Say."

A book has just been published that professes to teach the art of conversation, and to be a lamp to the feet, and a guide to the tongue of those who founder around in dumb misery among strangers. It tells you what to say on various and sundry occasions. It equips you with merry jests to set the table in a roar. It provides you with snappy little remarks about the weather, and original observations about the decorations at parties, and otherwise fits out the conscientious student to be a spellbinder instead of a dumb-bell.

Without doubt such a volume meets a long-felt want and will be received with gratitude not only by the speechless themselves, but by the balance of us who often feel at dinner parties that we have been called upon to work out more than our passage by attempting to keep up a flow of small talk with those whose entire vocabulary consists of "no" and "yes" and nothing else.

Under such circumstances, we are prepared to welcome even canned conversation, and carefully memorized funny stories, with tears of gratitude. More power then to the book which teaches us what to say! May its sales increase!

But the handy manual of conversation for which there is a crying need is one that will teach people what not to say, for outbursts of silence are at least innocuous. They do not harm. The thing that stabs like a two-edged sword is the unguarded tongue.

Of course, the list of things we should not say is endless, but the world would be a brighter and a happier place if we were all taught to think before we speak, and not to wound people by a careless word that drags some skeleton from its closet, and makes an old wound thro' anew.

Surely there is no need of discussing unfaithful husbands with a deserted wife, nor discussing about prison reform with a mother whose only son is behind the bars, or telling a humorous story about a cripple to a maimed soldier.

We might be taught not to hold public post-mortems in which we dig up the bones of our ancestors, and hold public worship over them, or tell how great and rich we used to be. Or, worse still, to recount all the troubles we have had, and demand that our listeners shall weep over the sorrows that should have been forgotten years ago.

Then we might be taught not to talk about ourselves, or our children, or our possessions, or the things that we have done, or the things we are going to do, for these matters are of interest to no other human being under the sun except ourselves.

We might be taught to keep silent concerning our aches, and pains, and our major operations, for few are morbid-minded enough to enjoy listening to the details of hospital clinics. And more especially, should we be taught to refrain from telling a sick person that his symptoms are exactly those of our Aunt Mary, who died a horrible death after she had spent a fortune on doctors and sanitariums trying in vain to get cured.

We should be taught not to offer gratuitous criticism. When we see a friend with a hat on that makes her look like the wrath of God, it is not our business to destroy her pleasure in it by telling her so. Neither is it up to us to tell an acquaintance that we do not like his new house, or the make of automobile he has bought, or that we do not approve of the ways in which he is bringing up his children. We gratify our own taste and desires. Other people have a similar right to express theirs, and what they do is none of our affair.

We might be taught not to give unsought advice, especially in the bosom of our families, and more particularly to our children. The reason that family life is so often a failure is because everybody in it feels that he or she has a right to tell everybody else exactly what they shall do and shall not do.

If fathers and mothers could only learn what not to say to their children, they could save the perpetual bickering that goes on in almost every household in which there are growing boys and girls, that breaks the parents' hearts, and that drives the children away from home as soon as they can get away. It is the nagging, "Where are you going? Why are you going there? How long are you going to stay? Why don't you do this? Why don't you do that?" that makes the children furious, and does no good, and yet the father and mother haven't enough sense to refrain from saying it.

And we could be taught not to say the uncourteous things to those of our household that we would never be rude enough to say to strangers. When our husbands launch out on their favorite stories, why should we tell them that we have heard them before? We smile appreciatively over chestnuts handed us by other people. Why should we tell our wives that they don't know what they are talking about, when we listen respectfully to a million fool opinions from fool women outside of our homes? Why should we make a child still more self-conscious and awkward by publicly calling attention to its faults? Why should we reserve all of our cruel speeches for family consumption?

And we might be taught never to say "I told you so," which is rubbing in another's mistakes. The sporting thing is to let bygones be bygones. But why multiply instances of the things we should not say?

Surely the millennium will have arrived when we learn how to keep silence and put a guard upon our tongues.

ORGANISTS' CLUB MEETS TO HOLD LIVELY DEBATE

A meeting of the Organists' Club, presided over by Dr. Jas. H. Smith, was held Wednesday at the Institute of Musical Art.

After the business of the evening a debate took place on the subject, "Is our church music losing its ecclesiastical character and, if so, what is the cause of the decline?" The leaders were Mr. O. Leo Herbert for the affirmative and Dr. Jas. H. Smith for the negative.

Chilblains & Frost-Bite

Mass Leprosy, Bismarck, One, writes— "I suffered agonies from chilblains for years. Nothing gave ease until I got Zam-Buk. This splendid healer completely rid me of trouble. Zam-Buk is equally good for chaps' cuts, burns, sores, etc. Keep Zam-Buk always handy. 50c. box."

As a remedy for those most troublesome of winter skin afflictions, chilblains and "frost-bites," Zam-Buk is speedily effective. It takes out inflammation and reduces swelling in a wonderful way and soothes the fiery stinging irritation.

Where the chilblains are broken and have a raw ulcerated surface, Zam-Buk is doubly valuable because of its great healing power. Its pain-killing efficiency and its fine antiseptic properties place Zam-Buk far above ordinary ointments.

Guests Must Be Congenial at Week-End House Party

Arranging of Games, Indoor or Outdoor, Is Important—But the Hostess Must Not Force Entertainment.

Julia Hoyt.

Week-end entertaining may be simple, with no entertainment provided for the house guests, or it may be more elaborate, according to the desire of the hostess. Inviting guests for the week-end no longer necessitates a series of dinners and lunches, as I believe it did some years ago. If the hostess has invited people she feels reasonably sure are congenial, she need not worry about providing additional games or amusements unless she so wishes.

Needless to say, she cannot expect her guests to be a success if she thoughtlessly invites two who play bridge and two who do not, or four or five people whose views and opinions differ radically that conversation would be a dangerous and difficult affair. Unfortunately, to my mind, the latter form of congeniality is not as important as congeniality with regard to games. Generally the amount of time given to conversation is so small that it is comparatively easy to keep it, if not really interesting, at any rate pleasant.

The arranging of the games, indoor or outdoor, is much more important. The average guest wants to be sure of his or her game of golf or tennis during the day, and the game of cards he or she plays best in the evening. They do not consider themselves neglected if no other guests than those in the house are provided, but I am afraid they feel decidedly injured if they must be content to merely sit and talk because one of the party prevents their making up a game of some kind.

There are really only two things absolutely necessary for the hostess of a week-end party to think of. First and foremost, to give thought to the things she invites together; second, to do all within her capacity to insure their comfort. These two rules hold good for all entertaining.

In considering the comfort of one's guests, I should place the bedroom at the head of the list. If you want your guests to leave feeling true friendship for you, don't make them sleep on uncomfortable beds. A sleepless night, thanks to a bumpy, hard mattress, is a difficult thing to forgive or forget. If it is late autumn or winter, be sure there are enough covers on the bed; it is better that the guests should be forced to throw some off than that they should have colds all the next week as a pleasant reminder of their week-end.

The bedside table and its appurtenances are also important. There should always be a lamp by the bed and ice-water placed there late in the evening. An attractive thermos bottle, a suitable color for the room, is excellent, so no one may exclaim that the water is cold, independent of the hour at which the guest retires. It is not essential, but it is a pleasant attention, for the hostess to find out if the guest likes crackers or fruit on retiring, and if so, sees that they also are on the bedside table. A box of cigarettes and the accompanying matches are important both for men and women in these days.

Good Light Essential. If she has carefully attended to such details, including a good light by the dressing-table, no hostess need worry over the material comfort of her guests. And if she has invited her guests with an eye to similarity of tastes, she need not worry over their finding amusement and occupation. Although the average guest likes to feel assured of his game of golf or tennis, on the other hand the hostess must not force entertainment of this sort on the guests. The charm of a week-end, particularly in the country, is the feeling that one may exercise or be lazy to one's heart's content. The tactful hostess will allow her guests to follow their own volition with regard to their exercise or non-exercise. There is nothing more delightful than looking forward for a week-end in congenial surroundings where one knows that nothing is demanded of one.

If the household permits, I think it is nice to have breakfast served on the dining table. The hostess, if she is to be a success, should not be in the kitchen during the day, and the game of cards he or she plays best in the evening. They do not consider themselves neglected if no other guests than those in the house are provided, but I am afraid they feel decidedly injured if they must be content to merely sit and talk because one of the party prevents their making up a game of some kind.

The edible birds' nests considered such a delicacy by the Chinese epicure are rather the brackets made from bird saliva upon which the birds build their nest, rather than the nests themselves.

Build the City Hall.

The citizens of London will have an opportunity to vote on the erection of a city hall on the McCormick site. The ballot will ask if they are in favor of issuing debentures to the extent of $500,000.

That figure was put in there in the first place in a very deliberate effort to kill the measure in the eyes of the electors, thinking that a half-million dollars would be enough to scare them away.

That amount $500,000 will never be needed, and the citizens will not have to put that amount up.

The figures have been published in these columns so often in recent months that they need hardly be gone into in detail. The city has made some fortunate real estate investments, and it has the power to dispose of these to build a city hall on the McCormick site.

As near as positive figures can show, the city has today a fine site, and $339,844 provided for the erection of a city hall. That takes in the present city hall building at the price paid for it plus alterations. It is better to use the world alterations than the word improvements. The present city hall is worth at least $30,000 more than it is put in at, and offers are pending for the property at the increased price. It is perfectly right and conservative then to raise the total figure to $389,844. That does not take into account the increased value of other property owned by the city. Nor does it allow for the money the city has lost each year by carrying a big vacant corner.

The one cry of the opponents this year is "Let us wait until the annexed territory comes in and starts to pay its full share of taxation before we start the city hall."

That is not a reason, it is not even a good excuse—it is no excuse at all. The annexed territory in the east of the city will find when it comes into the city that there will be plenty of use for any money it can contribute in way of taxation. The painting of a picture that that district is suddenly going to come in and coax for the privilege of carrying the burden of taxation is amusing—it is not seriously interesting.

As soon as that territory in the east outlives its special rate—which it will do in about three years—it will come in and pay its share of the general tax rate, which will include the cost of the new city hall. The spectacle of candidates going around now making the plea that we must wait until the east end comes in for its full share of taxation, and be ready to give them a good welcome by pelting them at once with a city hall bill, is small, crude, and simply an attempt to dodge the issue.

The present premises are a disgrace to the city. The chamber where the council meets is the worst fire trap in the city. It can be reached only after two flights of stairs, and in between passages so narrow that only one person at a time can go through.

The citizens have voted on the question so many times that they must be weary of the name city hall. The site, a good, central location, has all been cleared off and ready for years, and almost two-thirds of the money is in the possession of the city in the way of cash or real estate.

Let the thing be cleared up at once. That figure of $500,000 in the bylaw, placed there deliberately for the purpose of killing the vote, should be considered only in its relation to the actual facts of the case. Nor is there much consideration for the criticism of the policy of going ahead and getting competitive plans, having them judged, before submitting the idea to the people. There is something definite and concrete to submit to the people now—a plan, a price, and the scheme for getting the money. It would be well if all our civic business were prepared and submitted to the people in as clear a manner.

A Skunk Caged.

Federal Judge Killits of the U. S. court at Fort Worth gave a criticism of a fable, Dr. Frederick Cook, the punctured windbag who once claimed to have discovered the North Pole. It deserves a high place in the annals of the fight of the common people for justice.

Cook has ceased to be a trumped-up bogus explorer.

He has turned his attention to exploring the pockets of people on schemes of oil wells that never pumped oil, never could pump oil and never will pump oil.

Judge Killits said: "History gave us Ananias and Sapphira. They are forgotten, but we still have Dr. Cook. 'Cook,' this deal of yours is so damnably rotten that it seems to me your attorneys must have been forced to hold their handkerchiefs to their noses to have represented you. It stinks to high Heaven. The way I feel about you, I wish I were not so circumscribed. You should not be allowed to run at large at all. I know you have your ill-gotten gains put away."

That may not be a classic, or it may not have much fine rhetoric in it, but the blunt phrases will find an answering "amen" all over the continent.

Keeping Well.

The Ottawa Journal takes exception to the printing of such items as the following:

"There is nothing you can do more important for your bodily health than to see that you get a physical examination at least once a year. It will cost a few dollars. To neglect it may cost life."

The Journal holds that this sort of business causes people to get the habit of running to the doctor all the time to see if there is anything the matter with them.

There is much in the point, but, like anything else, it can run to extremes either way. The happy course is undoubtedly in between the two extremes.

People were born to be healthy, and our own habits and tastes have much to do with whether we shall or shall not remain in that state. Today we have men who sit in offices all day step outside and take a seat in a car, eat heartily of anything they wish. They become pudgy, inactive, bilious, and then in a state of alarm get into the car again some day and hustle off to ask the doctor why it is they don't feel quite right—why their breath comes hard if they walk fast, and why it is they have a pain in the ribs after a little manual work.

A doctor is a handy institution. It is some satisfaction to have him pound your chest now and then, put his trumpeting machine on your heart, and his blood pressure apparatus on your arm, and finally tell you you're as sound as a new Canadian dollar.

But never lose sight of the fact that you were intended to be well, and your own sense or nonsense has much to do with your health or lack of it.

Six Million Marks.

A letter arriving in London from Germany has two stamps, one for one million marks, and the other five million. Six million marks to mail a letter.

It is only when we in Canada see the financial lunacy of Germany worked out in a concrete way that we begin to realize the impossible condition that surrounds the restoration of trade and business conditions in that country.

Church Announcements.

An exchange draws attention to the way in which announcements are strung out in some pulpits.

He pictures the usher who tips up at the last moment with a couple of belated heralds about a bazaar or some sort of a meeting. The complaint is well lodged. Many a service is spoiled by being cluttered up with a lot of announcements that add nothing to the feeling of solemnity nor the spirit of praise.

Sympathy can well flow toward the minister who has to carefully go over and emphasize the importance of each little cog in the week's wheel.

Churches that can not afford printed calendars can make good use of a bulletin board.

It is time churches made an effort to take out of the service all things that have no place in a quiet hour of meditation, worship and praise.

Note and Comment.

London election contests are on. The words "Yes—we have no bananas" have at last given way to "Mister chairman (h-h-h-m), ladies and (h-h-h-m) gentlemen."

A man of 53 married a girl of 23. The man had money, a bay-window vest and a bald head. The girl was very pretty, and earned $18 a week. The papers referred to it as a romance.

The kindergarten room at Wortley Road School was used Wednesday night for a peppy debate between Messrs. Palmer and Smith, with an occasional word tossed in from the sidelines. Within a few hours the young life of the community trooped in, all unmindful and innocent of the carnage of the night before.

To the Editor

DIRE POVERTY.

Mr. Fields Says There Are Cases That Are Not Being Looked After By Proper Authorities.

Editor of The Advertiser: Sir,—It is a disgrace to the city of London to allow such poverty to exist. Despite the fact that the proper authorities were notified on Monday morning, of a family who are without fuel, and four little children who are without proper clothing. This is Wednesday, but nothing has been done to bring relief.

It is one of the worst cases of poverty I have ever seen. The statement has been made that the parents were not worthy. Let me say they are worthy, but not capable of looking after children; but the mother who married them seven years ago and took $5 of a fee from such a party responsible, and in my belief will have to answer for poverty brought on these children.

I wish to ask the citizens of London for cast-off clothing and old furniture for poor families of this city. Yours truly, A. FIELDS, 244 Ottawa Avenue.

COTTON DRESS IN OFFICE. Stenographer Says That Custom Has Forced Office Girls to Dress Beyond Their Means.

Editor of The Advertiser: Sir—There has been a discussion going on in some circles as to whether a married woman should spend more or less on her clothing than the girl who works in an office. The statement is made that the girl in the office puts all her wages in her back. It is a fact that she has a dress well, whether she can afford it or not. What would take place were she to go down to the office in the morning in a house dress or a cotton gown, with a dust cap on her head? She would be fired before the day was half over, or ordered home in order to get some decent clothing on. Girls who work in offices are no more anxious to spend their money on clothes than any person else, but custom has forced them to it, and until custom changes there is no way out. STENOGRAPHER.

LOOK HERE, DOCTOR. If This Isn't a Bouquet Worth Wearing, Then We'd Like To Know the Reason.

Editor of The Advertiser: Sir,—I notice in your evening paper the photo of Dr. Douglass and the bet which has been put on him as leading the aldermen in Ward 2.

Let me say, sir, that any citizen who does not vote for Dr. Douglass is not a friend of the returned soldier. As a veteran and a citizen of London, I wish to say to the people of London that Dr. Douglass is not only a doctor, but a gentleman who gave every returned man a square deal, and we, the returned men, are with him. A. FIELDS, Veteran.

NOT IN LOVE WITH IT. Homesteader Has Little Patience With Policy That Seeks to Ridicule the Mayor of the City.

Editor of The Advertiser: Sir,—So Mr. Wenige is mayor of London for another year! I wonder what the Free Press will have to say about that?

I came to this city last fall, about the time Mr. Wenige was elected mayor by a substantial majority. In other words, a majority of the citizens of London considered him to be the most suitable man for the position. But as the year opened and civic business progressed, I was very much surprised to see what a blundering, foolish, unbusinesslike man London's mayor was. You've heard the story, I think you already know. Denny and I are both happy to know you.

Katy was unaware of the naïveté of her speech. Stephen's eyes twinkled. "I'd rather you liked me on your own account, Katy." "I should be surprised if I do." Katy was exhilarated. The yellow lights, like a sun, entered her mind. She felt a warm, pouring, sparkling warmth into her veins. She felt at home in the presence of happiness, and Stephen, sitting next her, was happy.

They waited till the crowd left. Then Denny raised her in his arms. "My heavy, but Denny is so strong," she said proudly. A sadness was in Stephen's eyes. "Katy said it, and she would like to have reached out her hand, as she often did to Denny, and say: 'Oh, don't be sad for me. I don't need any pity. And tonight—why, can't you see that in another minute I'm likely to go up like a skyrocket and burst—I feel so light with happiness.'"

She talked eagerly of the music, the people, the woman who sat in front of them with a funny black quill perched on her head, the face, the cloud-lined beauty of the night. When they were parting she said with prim courtesy: "Denny and I would be quite pleased to have you come to dinner some evening. You'd be surprised what a cook I am!"

"You can surprise me all you like, Katy. I'll come!" "Isn't he noble?" she said wistfully to Denny when they were in the big, scantily furnished living room. Denny rubbed his head and chuckled. "I don't know about that, Thelma! Would you say I was noble or heroic?"

But Katy had taken the word from the "Idylls of the Kings," and she had already mounted Stephen on a white horse, given him a rose and watched him gallop off on some quest of chivalry. Denny's mockery brought out a blushing denial. "I only mean he's tall and nice looking." "Hence noble!" From Denny's raillery Katy turned with a luxurious relief to her mind picture. There was a new figure now to give a dash of romance to her fancies, to fill with imaginary adventures and conversation the emptiness of her days.

Sitting in the Carleton's garden watching the moving specks on distant bay-boats coming in, boats going out, she planned the dinner when their guests would come. Should they have asparagus salad or tomato? Should they have steak or a little roast? Perhaps Fay would let her gather a bowl of roses from the garden. Katy was given to these idle speculations. TARIFF REFORM IN ENGLAND

"Unfair Competition"

NUMBER TWO.

By PROF. FREEMAN, of the Department of Political Economy of the University of Western Ontario.

THE student of history will find parallels in the past for almost every movement in the world today. The economic effects of great wars in modern times have been strikingly similar. Sir Thomas White in an address to the Canadian Bankers' Association last year said that when the war broke out he read up the financial history of every important European country in the world. He found, for instance, that Chase, the secretary to the treasury of the United States, during the Civil War issued a short time loan, thinking that the war would last only a few months. Sir Thomas profited by that mistake, and issued the first Canadian war loan in 15-year bonds.

It has already been remarked that the present election in England bears a striking resemblance to former elections upon similar issues. In 1905, when Mr. Balfour (now Lord Balfour) went to the polls on a platform of protection, his party denied that their proposals contemplated a general reform of the economic policy of the nation. Mr. Balfour declared himself a "reasonable free trader." Mr. Baldwin, in a recent address to his constituents, announced that his policy was only temporary, and that he would enable the government, when normal conditions were established, to secure a real measure of "free trade" by the empire and to sign unimpaired trade agreements with other countries. Trade that was subject to the influence of every foreign tariff and at the mercy of every disturbance in the world was, he said, in no sense free and certainly not fair to the British people.

A Temporary Measure? NO DOUBT it is the honest intention of Mr. Baldwin to make protection a temporary expedient. Doubtless also such an announcement is calculated to allay the uneasiness of certain wavering members of his own party. But in the judgment of most discerning men the issue is joined squarely between free trade as a system, and protection. When a nation takes a high impossible line it becomes well nigh impossible to induce a return to simple fare. The whole economic life becomes saturated with protection, and more and more it is demanded of each succeeding year. The government finds it increasingly difficult to deprive beneficiaries of the vested interests which have been created.

Protection is usually advanced as a temporary, and not as a permanent policy. The chief argument for protection is that it gives the home industry a chance to grow up. For example, is the youthfulness of her industries, and the need of fostering care during the adolescent period. A nation like the United States, which has the start in the full development of the resources of other lands, and by underselling the young industries of a new country force it to produce raw materials instead of manufacturing them. One objection is only the price we pay for education in the art of manufacture. It is conceived as an investment to bear dividends when the education having been completed, the nation may come into an enjoyment of the profits of a flourishing foreign commerce.

The Youngsters Remain. While will infant industries, such as the United States Steel Corporation, be strong enough to face the world alone? It is an undoubted fact, with regard to protection generally, that it leads to the growth of industrial organizations which become powerful enough to defend themselves against the attacks of those who think it is the duty of the state to protect them. This has certainly been the experience of the United States, where the protected industries have become so strong that they control the legislature, and instead of doing away with protection, they get the tariffs raised higher and higher. The insular tendency is the main ground upon which the Labor party in England base their opposition to the present tariff reform proposals.

France Pounds—Labor. THE industries of Great Britain are not infants in any sense of the word, but they are subject, according to the Conservatives, to "unfair competition" of nations with depressed rates of wages. In Germany, for example, advantage is being taken of the rate of exchange; works are being remodelled, and large sums of money are being expended to reduce the cost of production. As soon as conditions are such that Germany can resume her trade, she will have a large export trade, and Britain will be faced with a competition more severe, more scientific and more concentrated than the industries of the country have ever before experienced. Mr. Baldwin points out that 60 francs buy as much French labor and French raw materials as the English pound. This means, when the rate of exchange is 80 francs to the pound, that the French manufacturer has the advantage of 20 francs in the foreign market upon every pound's worth of goods.

We are not content to watch our industries being crippled under our feet by countries which have entered into a competition with us by protective tariffs, and who are able by dint of the conditions of foreign currencies to cut under any price we may quote. Our young industries are being crushed by the competition of the German workmen with a ten-hour day calls, not for talk, but for action. In Canada, where the main reason for the tariff is to build up the home trade by shutting out the commodities of other European nations from the home market, it is interesting to note that Mr. Baldwin, while emphasizing the necessity for providing England with a great export trade, is at the same time declaring that he will continue to work for the settlement of Europe. One naturally wonders how he can reconcile the two policies. It looks as though with one hand he would help the stricken nations to their feet, and with the other would knock them down again.

DENNY BROOKS

A STORY OF COURAGE
By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER XXV. The Dinner Party.

He came toward her out of the music and the dream, laughter in his eyes.

"You're Stephen?" "Sure enough." "Katy's eyes shone with a frank joy. She extended her hand eagerly. You've been such a friend to Denny. I think I like you already, Stephen. Denny and I are both happy to know you."

Katy was unaware of the naïveté of her speech. Stephen's eyes twinkled. "I'd rather you liked me on your own account, Katy." "I should be surprised if I do." Katy was exhilarated. The yellow lights, like a sun, entered her mind. She felt a warm, pouring, sparkling warmth into her veins. She felt at home in the presence of happiness, and Stephen, sitting next her, was happy.

They waited till the crowd left. Then Denny raised her in his arms. "My heavy, but Denny is so strong," she said proudly. A sadness was in Stephen's eyes. "Katy said it, and she would like to have reached out her hand, as she often did to Denny, and say: 'Oh, don't be sad for me. I don't need any pity. And tonight—why, can't you see that in another minute I'm likely to go up like a skyrocket and burst—I feel so light with happiness.'"

She talked eagerly of the music, the people, the woman who sat in front of them with a funny black quill perched on her head, the face, the cloud-lined beauty of the night. When they were parting she said with prim courtesy: "Denny and I would be quite pleased to have you come to dinner some evening. You'd be surprised what a cook I am!"

"You can surprise me all you like, Katy. I'll come!" "Isn't he noble?" she said wistfully to Denny when they were in the big, scantily furnished living room. Denny rubbed his head and chuckled. "I don't know about that, Thelma! Would you say I was noble or heroic?"

But Katy had taken the word from the "Idylls of the Kings," and she had already mounted Stephen on a white horse, given him a rose and watched him gallop off on some quest of chivalry. Denny's mockery brought out a blushing denial. "I only mean he's tall and nice looking." "Hence noble!" From Denny's raillery Katy turned with a luxurious relief to her mind picture. There was a new figure now to give a dash of romance to her fancies, to fill with imaginary adventures and conversation the emptiness of her days.

Sitting in the Carleton's garden watching the moving specks on distant bay-boats coming in, boats going out, she planned the dinner when their guests would come. Should they have asparagus salad or tomato? Should they have steak or a little roast? Perhaps Fay would let her gather a bowl of roses from the garden. Katy was given to these idle speculations. A little kindness from Mrs.

Carleton or Fay would unloose wide troupes of happy fancies. She imagined herself in the Carleton living room, sitting at the piano, playing, and Fay saying: "Oh—you're a musician as well as a lace maker, are you?"

Often in the midst of some particularly extravagant she caught herself up with a laugh, shaking the dreams out of her eyes. Of course, there would be always the music, and Denny and I are both happy to know you."

One evening when she was experimenting with French fried potatoes as a great surprise, Denny hurried breathlessly through the living room. She heard him pause, shove the chairs, give a kick to the rug: "Gee, this place is bare, isn't it?" He had an excited look as though he were bringing home a report card marked No. 1. He dumped half a dozen bags on the sink board, flung off his coat and began to open cans. "Steve's coming!" He tried to make the tone matter of fact.

"Not to be late," Katy was almost in tears. "And we've only got stew and carrots from last night! Why did you, Denny?"

"Get busy, Katy—quick! I tell you he's coming! Look—! He began opening his parcels—a can of olives, green peas, three T-bone steaks. "How's that? Pretty clever?" "What'll we do with the stew?" "Tomorrow—fix up the table pretty. Gee—this house is empty, isn't it?"

They stood at the kitchen door looking into the dim oblong room with its three grandmother rag rugs, its black horsehair chairs, the couch with the gaudy crazy quilt. It had an air of austerity about it as though here was a fine old aristocrat come to the end of her days.

But the setting sun flamed through the immense west window, caught the barbaric colors in the Chinese lanterns and recast them fantastically on the dark walls. There was unexpected charm, as of darkness blooming with scarlet and amber flowers.

"I love this place, Denny—love it." "It's not so bad—there, the spuds are burning!" And Stephen was knocking—both at once.

"Dinner ready?" he called. "I'm starved, Katy—kid. Got any surprises today?" "More than I counted on, indeed!" She dried her hand on her apron. "Not more than you welcome, I hope? Humph! Potatoes burned?" He pulled back the pan, Katy laughed.

"Make yourself to home, Mr. Stephen!" "I'm a bit timid, Katy—kid, but I'll try." Katy's spirits rose buoyantly. It was the very first time they ever had company. Denny was so smart to think of olives. How pretty they looked set on top of the salad.

"Do you think that's pretty, Mr. Stephen?" She held up the dish. "Oh, very, Miss Katy—kid." "Then you put them in the places and keep the one you think is nicest for yourself."

He began to rearrange the knives and forks. "Oh, don't!" Katy warned, laughing.

"Why not? They belong this way." "No—you don't know. You see the forks are the brides and the knives are the grooms. When you put them on the table they're going into church to be married. See this old pair that is so shabby and sad?"

"I suppose they've been married a long while and that's the reason they're so done up!" "No—they're an old maid and an old bachelor and they've known each other over twenty years and I push them right into church, but they haven't sense enough to go up the aisle!"

Stephen laughed: "So you think the happiest people are the married ones, Katy?" "Why, yes. Who can be happy alone? If you have no one to talk to, to pretend people are around talking. Bringing you beautiful gifts, laughing. It's much better to really have them."

She spoke unconsciously from the depths of her own aloneness, yet was unaware of the pathos in her words. Denny came in with the bread. "Do you like our barn?" They sat facing the window with the painted sky like a great masterpiece flung before them. Stephen liked the barn, the cooking, the quaint chairs and Katy's quainter talk. He was surprised to find her listening eagerly, as though she understood, when Denny and he talked of their work. Especially he found himself waiting for her laugh that came bubbling merrily to her lips, lighting odd fairy fires in the clear blue of her eyes.

"Denny and I are glad that you came, Stephen, though you were quite a surprise on top of warmed over carrots and stew. Do you know we've never had company before—never!" Then Stephen remembered he had brought a box of candy. Katy was quite overcome. Her gaiety touched something deeper than amusement. "Lonely kid!" he thought.

Katy had bright company in her memories for the next few days. She peopled the garden with imaginary Katys saying bright things to laughing Stephens, telling what a fine fellow Denny was.

One afternoon the dream figures were routed as a very real Stephen crossed to the willow tree, slumped lazily at her feet with a familiar: "Hello, Katy! How's the view today?" He began to recount all the old news of the camps, drawing her out about Denny, her housekeeping, her recreations.

After that he came often, bringing magazines, a box of candy, a book. His visits were wine to her. Toward the end of the second term Denny sat studying, looking up every now and then to scan Katy's face. At last he said abruptly: "Steve's folks are going east, Katy. He wants to come and live with us. He thinks this place can be fixed up fine. How about it? Would you like it?"

Katy trembled with excitement: "Would you, Denny?" "Yes, we study me together." It was decided in Stephen's favor. In a few days he came. "Have you room in your heart for an other brother, Katy?" "I think I've room there for you, Stephen." (To Be Continued.) (Copyright, 1922, by the Call Publishing Company.)

"SHUFFLE ALONG" WINNER OF WORLD PEP CHAMPIONSHIP

Good Singing, Music and Dancing
Whirled Together With Clean Comedy.

JAZZ EXPONENTS

In the season's theatrical menu "Shuffle Along," that extraordinary aggregation of syncopating Senegambians playing at the Grand Opera House this week, may very appropriately be termed the hors d'oeuvre. From a "pep" standpoint it is entitled to the world's championship. "Shuffle Along" starts with a dip and ends with cyclonic abandon. The eloquent feet of those talented colored boys and girls, who have given the show its enviable reputation, are kept moving with bewildering consistency. It is doubtful if any other musical comedy of the nature approaches the merriment and entertainment which this company of high class jazz prodigies provides.

The reason for "Shuffle Along's" success is apparent from the commencement of the first scene. Each

TIRED, NERVOUS MOTHERS.
Are the direct cause of much unhappiness in our homes. Their condition irritates and wears upon the husband, and often ruins a child's disposition. This condition of the mother is often due to some weakness which makes her entirely unfit to perform her household duties, and bear the strain upon her nerves that governing children involves. Every woman who finds herself in this condition should remember that statistics prove that 98 out of every 100 women who suffer from female ills are helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and lose no time in giving it a fair trial.—Advt.

member of the cast, from those taking prominent roles to the admirably balanced chorus, dances and sings as if the success or failure of the show depends on his or her efforts.

Perhaps it is the hereditary African delight in wild rhythm which gives the impression that each entertainer is enjoying the show just as much as or more than the audience. The itch to dance seems to be a predominating characteristic of all, and they satisfy it even to satiety.

Becomes An Art.
To some the word "jazz" is essentially repugnant because it is frequently associated with coarseness and vulgarity. But Geo. E. Wintz, who staged "Shuffle Along," has developed the possibilities of jazz to such a height that it almost becomes art. It is a classic in the musical comedy field bearing all that wholesomeness which is a hall mark of the best New York productions.

Comedy is a secondary element in "Shuffle Along," although many of the situations exact uproarious mirth. The scene on election day in the village of Jimtown is one of the best. A pleasing array of girls, all extraordinary dancers, injected the necessary tang into the show, dancing with trained facility and apparently enjoying every minute of it.

The atmosphere of inexhaustible energy, maintained throughout the show, puts the audience in a comfortable frame of mind, and when the undeniable dancing talent is supplemented with musical numbers of the highest order the surprise at such versatility is indicated in rounds of applause. Margaret Scott has a penetrating, musical voice which is not perhaps given the opportunity it deserves, and the colored quartet is equal to the best in the country.

Splendid Actors.
Although every member of this good company deserves eulogy, those picked at random whose antics drew the audience's recognition were James Jackson, Edgar Connors, Sam Peck, the diminutive candidate for mayor, Usher Finn, Al Baldwin and Hughie Walkie whose piano acrobatics were well in line with the general impetuosity of the whole cast. A catchy song, "If You Haven't Been Vamped by a Brown-Skin You Haven't Been Vamped at All," was one of the most original features, and "Bandana Days," too, was appealing.

Of course, the vehicles on which "Shuffle Along" has ridden to fame are the legs of those versatile performers who have made it a virtual dance orgy. In this department the chorus was splendid, because, although relegated often to the background while more prominent dancers occupied the spotlight, they never let up for a second. Each contributed his or her portion ungrudgingly, a quality all too often lacking in entirely white choruses.

If you care for exceptionally capable renditions of jazz music and peppery dancing combined with singing of a rare order you will like "Shuffle Along." It is a first class nerve tonic.

JACKIE COOGAN PROVES POPULAR IN LONDON

Hundreds Flock To Cairncross

Tickets For Loew's.

Jackie Coogan, the idol of millions of children in the United States, is just as much an idol here in London. Judging from the hundreds of local children who took advantage of Cairncross & Lawrence's sale held yesterday, and with a purchase of 75 cents and over obtained a free ticket to Loew's Theatre, Jackie Coogan is playing there in "Long Live the King" for the remainder of this week, and Cairncross & Lawrence have arranged to secure a large block of seats for the Saturday afternoon matinee performance. This will give every boy and girl in the city an opportunity of seeing their world-famed idol in action on Saturday.

Cairncross & Lawrence are putting on a special sale of small articles, such as tooth paste, talcum powder, soap, listerine and hundreds of other household necessities. For all day Thursday, Friday and Saturday they will present, on request, with every purchase of 75 cents or more, a child's free ticket to the theatre.

Jackie Coogan's popularity in this city was shown yesterday by the hundreds of school children who did their mother's shopping at the drug store and obtained a ticket for Saturday afternoon.

AUTO BADLY SMASHED BY UNKNOWN MOTORIST

His car was badly smashed, and Miss Metcalf of 562 King street, who was riding with him at that time, was seriously injured, and removed to her home in an unconscious condition.

The force of the impact threw his car up against a hydrant, breaking it.

LOEW'S PRESENTS ONE OF BEST FILMS SHOWN IN YEARS

Jackie Coogan Is Star in "Long Live the King."

VAUDEVILLE IS GOOD

Without submerging any of the unique gifts of the familiar little figure in the worn cap and overalls, Mary Roberts Rhinehart's story, "Long Live the King," gives the screen a new Jackie Coogan. Hang Jackie Coogan's togs on a dummy and they would be recognized as quickly as those of Charlie Chaplin.

In his new picture, which is the especially attractive feature of the week, Jackie Coogan appears in the garb of royalty, complete from the Blon jacket and topper to the ermine and velvet. It is a new Jackie, and yet still the old one. "Long Live the King" will perhaps come to be regarded as the best of the Jackie Coogan productions. Most things conceived in the facile brain of Mary Roberts Rhinehart are delightfully entertaining. The story was successful long before it was a picture, and its treatment as a film could hardly be improved upon.

Interest Is Held.

It is one of the rarer films where each shifting of the scene brings a new by-path of interest. There is scarcely a character introduced who doesn't intrigue the imagination. And only to such an extent as the plot centers around the young prince Otto is Jack Coogan featured. The whole is splendidly balanced and creates the impression of a moving, dramatic story, rather than reels of romancing strung together to exploit what are undoubtedly the marvelous capabilities of one particular child.

Jackie Coogan really has become one of the most attractive figures on the screen. He is winning at all times, and one of his gifts, which is amply exploited in "Long Live the King," is a smoothness in drawing an unexpected laugh. With Jackie Coogan, picturesque settings, an unusually capable supporting cast and faultless direction, the picture is one of the year's finest.

Vaudeville Varied.
The vaudeville program is varied, all three acts going over splendidly in yesterday's performance. The bill opens with a clever juggling act, one member of the team maintaining almost the entire weight of the act by her unusual dexterity.

The second act, with its off-stage commencement, is an immediate hit, and the pair have a bright and snappy manner which would immediately dispel any suggestion of dullness. Were their act less new and humorous, this particular gift of clear speech and briskness would put it over well. During the act, and in an encore particularly, were revealed fine vocal abilities, both on the part of the pseudo ditch-digger and his good-looking partner.

The concluding act, luckily, has a similar atmosphere of smartness. The songs are good, and the farcical finish of the act was good for gales of laughter at all performances yesterday.

oysters, and white potatoes may be used instead of the sweet if preferred. If white potatoes and nuts are used, use a cup of English walnut meats through a food chopper and add to the mashed potatoes (less nuts may be used), season with a very little chopped onion and a little parsley or sage. Half a cup of the nut meats may be added and a half-cup of cooked peas. Almonds go well with sweet potatoes. Serve these croquettes hot around the roast.

APPLE SPONGE.

Cover half box gelatine with cold water and let stand half hour. Pour over it 1 pint boiling water and stir until dissolved. Add 1 pint stewed apples put through a sieve and sugar to sweeten, squeeze in juice of 2 lemons. Turn into a pan and set in a cold place. When it begins to thicken stir in the stiffly beaten whites of 3 eggs. Beat all until thick and cold, pour into a wet mold and set in a cold place to harden. Serve with plain or whipped cream and sugar.

BOILED LEG OF MUTTON.

Place a leg of young mutton in a kettle and cover with boiling water;
bring to a boil and reduce the heat
after three minutes; add one onion stuck with two whole cloves and two teaspoons of salt; simmer slowly until the meat is tender. When done remove to a hot platter and pour over caper sauce.

CAPER SAUCE.

Strain two cups of the stock that the mutton was cooked in and free from all fat. Heat two and one-half tablespoons of butter in a saucepan and stir in three whole tablespoons of flour over a slow fire for six minutes;
let it bubble up and cook two minutes; gradually stir in the strained stock and beat smooth while boiling for ten minutes. Add three tablespoons of capers and stir in two tablespoons of butter. Season with salt and paprika.

APPLE SAUCE CAKE.

Beat one-third of a cup of butter
to a cream with one cup of sugar.
Sift two cups of sifted flour with three-quarters of a teaspoon of baking soda, two teaspoons baking powder, half a teaspoon of mace, half a teaspoon of nutmeg, half a teaspoon of cloves, and one teaspoon of cinnamon; add the flour mixture to the butter and sugar alternately with one cup of apple sauce and one cup of currents. Fill buttered muffin pans three-quarters full with the mixture and bake in a moderate oven twenty minutes.

PUDDING IMPERATRICE.

Dissolve half a cup of grated sweet chocolate in two cups of hot, strong, black coffee; add, when cold, four tablespoons sugar, one cup of blanch-ed and chopped almonds, and two cups of stiffly whipped cream. Pack in a wet mold, cover tight and cover with two parts fine ice and one part rock salt and let stand four hours.
When serving garnish with whipped cream and chopped cherries.

BOILED HAM.

Wash an eight or ten-pound ham with cold water, trim off all rough parts, place in a large pan, cover with cold water, add two bay leaves, one onion stuck with four whole cloves, one cup of vinegar, and two stalks of celery. Let stand overnight.
Drain, place in a kettle, cover with cold water, bring to a boil and drain off the water. Replace on the stove, cover with warm water, add one bay leaf, one blade of mace, three scraped carrots, three outside stalks of celery and a half dozen whole pepper corns. Bring slowly to a boil and simmer at an even heat for two and a half or three hours, or until the skin can be pulled off. If baked ham is liked place the skinned ham in a baking pan, cover the fat with one cup of brown sugar, press whole cloves around the edge of the fat, pour one cup of cider in the pan and brown in a medium oven, basting often.

DUTCH APPLE CAKE.

1 cake compressed yeast
1 cupful scalded milk
2 eggs
½ cupful sugar
1-3 teaspoonful salt
3 cupfuls flour
¾ cupful sugar
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
5 sour apples

Crumble the yeast into a bowl;
gradually add the milk, cooled to the correct temperature. Then add the beaten egg, sugar, salt and flour.
Mix and work in the melted butter, and mix thoroughly. Knead into a smooth dough, cover with a cloth, and let rise until the dough has doubled in bulk. Turn onto a bread-board, and make up in form of a loaf. Let rise about fifteen minutes, then roll and fit into baking pan. Be careful to pinch ends up at the edge of the pan to avoid shrinkage. Allow to rise 15 to 20 minutes, then place
the apples, which have been pared and cut into eighths and cored. Press the sharp edges of the apples into the dough into parallel rows, lengthwise of pan. Sprinkle with sugar mixed with cinnamon and sprinkle with raisins. Cover, let rise, and bake in a moderate oven for 30 minutes. Cut in squares and serve hot or cold with whipped cream.

SALISBURY STEAK, STANLEY.

Mix two pounds of finely chopped round steak with two-thirds of a cup of cream and a seasoning of salt and pepper. Divide into six equal parts and make each part into a small oval steak; roll them in fresh bread crumbs and cook a nice brown in a frying pan in which four tablespoons of olive oil have been heated. Split six bananas, roll them in flour, and fry a nice brown in hot butter. Place two pieces of the fried banana on each steak and pour around horseradish sauce.

OYSTER STUFFING.
3 cups bread crumbs,
2 teaspoons salt,
½ cup melted fat,
½ teaspoon pepper,
2 cups oyster salt,
2 cups or 1 pint oysters.
Drain the oysters from the liquor.
If very large they may be cut in two.

MEATLESS MINCEMEAT.
1 cup cooked rice,
½ cup molasses,
½ cup sugar,
½ cup chopped suet,
½ cup coffee,
½ cup chopped raisins,
1 chopped apple.
Salt and all kinds of spices to taste. Let simmer for 2 hours.

L.A.A.A. To Indorse Westminster Purchase for School Hockey

L.A.A.A. to Consider Plan For Harmony In Hockey

Special Meeting Precedes Hockey Sub-Committee Meeting Monday or Tuesday.

The L.A.A.A. at a special meeting to be called Monday or Tuesday of this week will go on record as favoring the purchase of the Westminster rink by the city for inclusion in the city playgrounds system. That is practically certain.

President Foote of the L.A.A.A. will not be back in the city until the week-end, or the meeting to give sanction to proposals for a change in hockey supervision would have been held this week.

The L.A.A.A. from its first inception has been especially mindful of the possibilities of public school and collegiate hockey as a source of hockey development. The purchase of Westminster rink, which would be development to the highest point, therefore cannot help but recommend itself to the organization.

The indorsement of the L.A.A.A. should carry a great deal of weight when the matter gets at the city hall stage of development.

The hockey sub-committee of the L.A.A.A. will meet the following special meeting of the parent body, and though none of the proposals which are to be submitted at the latter confab have been made known, it is understood that they will go a great distance in producing more harmony in hockey circles than is at present the case.

Divided interests have too long been the bane of London hockey prospects, and this year the situation is no different than during other years. Any proposals, therefore, which will work a change are worth serious consideration.

Mfrs. May Stage Skating Meet

Meet Next Week To Plan For Indoor Event.

President Cooper of the M. A. A. A. will call a meeting next week to decide upon details of the huge indoor meet to be staged this winter.

The Manufacturers have made a big success of the annual outdoor meets, and the indoor meet is expected to become as big a factor in the athletic life of London as the summer event.

The Manufacturers also have in mind staging championships, to be staged in the new arena in mid-winter.

Officers have been elected and schedules drawn up for the Independent Foresters' Carpenters League. The teams will play for a trophy donated by A. L. Outman.

Extended Arena Drive One Week

Objective of $10,000 Is Still Some Distance Off.

The drive for the $10,000 needed to complete the financing of London's new $110,000 artificial ice arena has been extended another week.

The committee in charge of the drive met Thursday night at the Tecumseh House and, while it was shown that the drive was progressing very well, the objective is still some distance off.

The Mfrs. League, which meets tonight, will put their shoulders to the wheel and this should give the campaign some further momentum. Committee members reported favorable reactions for the canvassers on every hand, indicating that the spirit of the citizens is right.

CALLS BATTLING SIKI REAL DRAWING CARD

Tex Rickard Sees Bouts With Greb, Tunney and McTigue.

By FAIR PLAY. Special to The Advertiser. Copyright.

New York, Nov. 22.—Tex Rickard said today that he regarded Battling Siki as one of the real drawing cards now before the public, and that he would be matched against high-class white cruiser-weights in near future. Including Greb, Tunney, McTigue, or any other good man who doesn't draw the color line.

Any attempt to interfere with Siki's style of fighting would be a mistake—the fans like his style—but he should train hard.

Did anyone know that Paddy Mullins, Harry Willis' manager, is pretty near, if not quite, a millionaire, and that aside from their business relations, the two men are close friends, who will never break?

Well, such seems to be a fact. Mullins and Willis are old friends, and Harry has a real ticket whether or not he ever fights again. Billy Nolan found this out when he came east to see how about taking over Harry. Nolan, who conducted affairs for Battling Nelson and other good boys, found that there wasn't a chance, that Harry is perfectly satisfied with Mullins, and that Mullins is not at all fed up with his hobby of serving as impresario for the Brown Panther.

Kid Norfolk's defeat of Siki rather complicates the promoting end of the negro situation. The idea was to put Siki against Willis, but that's flat just now. As to Norfolk, everyone knows that Harry can beat the Kid. The Kid knows it. Harry knows it, and Rickard knows it. Nuff said.

N. H. L. NOT WORRYING OVER NEW PRO. LEAGUE

Ottawa Citizen Thinks There Are Not Enough Pro. Players in Sight.

Special to The Advertiser. Montreal, Nov. 22.—The Montreal Gazette this morning says: "Local National Hockey League officers are not seriously perturbed over the announcement of the project to launch an international professional hockey league, with probably Toronto and Montreal included in the schedule."

"It is not considered probable by the local magnates that the new organization can get under way this season at least, for the time is short before the winter will set in, and the question of securing suitable players, who are none too plentiful, and the possibilities of acquiring properly arranged ice rinks are not sufficiently bright to warrant the belief that the new organization would make any serious inroads on the National Hockey League and much less on the western circuits."

"An attempt was made this fall to include two United States teams in the N. H. L. schedule, but the guarantees of their ability to come up to standard were not satisfactory, and the project was thrown out by the N. H. L. officials."

Not Enough Players. Ottawa, Nov. 22.—The Citizen today says: "International Hockey League sounds big, but it's 'old stuff.' There are hardly players enough for the one professional league now in operation in this part of Canada, so the chances of getting players for another big league would appear rather slim."

"Y" STARTS GO-AS-PLEASE FIVE-MILE SWIM RACE

A five-mile go-as-you-please swimming championship for seniors and juniors will be conducted at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, commencing next week. The seniors will start next Thursday evening at 9 o'clock, and the juniors next Monday at 7 o'clock.

Weekly competitions will be conducted, and the competitors will swim as far as possible each night. The distance will be recorded each week, and the first swimmer to reach the five-mile limit will be awarded the honors. First, second and third prizes will be given.

The necessity for long-distance swimming is felt by the directors of physical education at the Y. M. C. A.

MASONIC LODGE OFFICERS.

Blenheim, Nov. 22.—The following were elected by Kent Lodge, No. 224, A. F. and A. M.: L. P. M., Bro. A. R. Williams; worshipful master, Bro. Albert Brundritt; S. W., Bro. L. M. Shillington; J. W., Bro. W. Addinall; chaplain, Bro. O. P. Anderson; treasurer, Bro. P. S. Shillington; secretary, Bro. John Crookshanks; D. of C., Bro. Dr. A. J. McTigue; S. D., Bro. Wm. Snow, Jr.; J. D., Bro. H. Brundritt; organist, Bro. E. S. Flint; S. S., Bro. Harold Huttman; J. S., Bro. Joe Turner; I. G., Bro. Glen Rutherford; tyler, Bro. Norman Cooper; auditors, Bros. W. J. Baird and J. L. Rutherford.

Down the Line

With C. S. G.

The man who ten years hence will expansively declare "Yes! London is a wonderful sporting city. We've got one of the best artificial ice arenas in the Dominion—yes, the whole Dominion," should take time by the forelock now and purchase a share to justify that "we."

Until next Thursday night rolls around, it will not be known to what extent the construction of a $110,000 artificial ice arena is indicative of the city's sporting spirit. So far, the project has been carried by only a small fraction of the citizens who might reasonably be expected, through civic pride, to take some interest.

The introduction of rubber pants by West Virginia football players will probably develop a new aerial attack. Ball carriers will be secretly blown up behind a screen and wafted over for touchdowns.

The National Hockey League clubs are slowly but surely dropping the ancients and going in for "young blood." It will not be long before all the veterans—the heroes of a few years ago—will be on the shelf, watching the younger chaps provide the thrills. Canadiens have replaced Pitre and Berlinguette with Aurel Joliat and Billy Boucher. Berlinguette is going west to join Newsway Lalonde's Saskatoon club of the Western Canada League, and "Pete" is going to content himself with coaching a club in Quebec.

St. Pats have disposed of Harry Cameron. He also goes west. Ottawas have added Holman and Clancy, two mere boys, and are preparing them for the day not far distant when some of the older campaigners will be ready to step down and out.

Each year sees new faces, and gradually the boys of the old school are finding the pace too hot.

The fans don't like to see the older chaps lose out, but youth must be served.

When every other professional sport is contemplating cuts in salaries, pro hockey salaries are going up, if anything. With the prospect of another pro circuit, there comes also the prospect of a salary war, all of which is rosy for the players. The new circuit, however, faces a player shortage, but in time would probably force such a rearrangement of talent that catching a place in that pastime would be much easier than it is at present.

RIVERVIEW GIRLS WIN SCHOOL CAGE TITLE BY 12-11 VICTORY

Defeat Ryerson in Thrilling Final at Alexandra School.

Riverview Girls won the basketball championship of the city Public School League yesterday afternoon at Alexandra school by defeating Ryerson 12-11, a game just as closely contested as the score indicates.

At half time the north end girls were leading, 7-6, having had a margin of two play up to that time.

In the second half, however, instead of tiring, Riverview appeared fresher than ever, and a basket in the last few moments of the game gave the south siders the victory.

The line-up:

Riverview—Pearl Fortner, Ethel McCormick, forwards; Roslyn Fairley, center; Ada Jury, Ethel Fullerton, Daisy Fisher, defence.

Ryerson—Helen Prinbe, Olga Hunt, forwards; Dorothy Avery, center; Margaret Curtin, Audrey Case, de-Refere—Miss Lottie Garratt, fence.

LAWYER WITHDRAWS TRIAL IS POSTPONED

Crown Attorney Asks Delay in Hearing of W. Bennett At Windsor.

Canadian Press Despatch. Windsor, Nov. 22.—Walter Bennett, accused slayer of Herbert Bennetto at Ford on the night of Tuesday, Nov. 13, was without counsel when he faced Magistrate Gundy in Windsor police court today on a murder charge. Crown Attorney Urquhart stated that W. H. Furlong had withdrawn from the case and asked the court to adjourn till Wednesday.

The crown attorney said he would not ask Bennett to face a jury without giving him every opportunity to have his case defended.

The inquest into circumstances surrounding Bennetto's death is being held this evening at the Ford town hall. Witnesses to be examined will include the dead man's wife. She is in custody on a formal charge of vagrancy, and will be the chief witness. The 2x4 scuffling with which Bennetto is alleged to have been struck will be exhibited at the inquest, as well as the dead man's photograph.

Queens Decides To Play Regina In Toronto If They Win

WIN FROM TIGERS WILL MEAN TITLE GAME IN TORONTO

Kingston Gridders Vote To Play in Queen City If Victors.

BENGAL CREW INTACT

Canadian Press Despatch.
Kingston, Nov. 22.—All of Queen's senior players, except Delahay, were out this afternoon for a final workout with the Royal Military College intermediate team. "Red" McKelvey and Mundell were out with the tricolor squad. McKelvey has had a special boot made to protect his toe which he broke in the game here between Queens and Varsity. Art Anglin, a former member of the T. S. team, was out with Queens, and will likely take the place of Delahay, who will not be able to play because of his injured arm.

At Queen's today it was stated it is almost certain that providing Queens defeat Hamilton Tigers, the Dominion rugby final with Regina will be played in Toronto. The athletic board of control decided to allow the members of Queen's senior team to decide whether the game will be played in Kingston or Toronto. The players voted in favor of Toronto, as they state they can play better football there.

In view of the fact that Queens and Hamilton Tigers could not agree on the matter of a referee and judge of play for the game Saturday it was decided to allow the C. R. U. to make the selection. According to the rules of that body the president, Percy Roberts, Montreal, will do the selecting. Hamilton was under the impression that R. Hewitson, Toronto, who is secretary, would choose the officials.

TIGER LINE-UP INTACT.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Hamilton, Nov. 22.—The Hamilton Tigers, champions of the Big Four and conquerors of the O. R. F. U. champions, the Hamilton Rowing Club, had their last practice this evening before leaving for Kingston to tackle the champions of the Inter-Collegiate Union, Queens.

The team will leave Friday and go as far as Belleville, where they will spend the night, going on to Kingston in the morning. The Tigers will put exactly the same men on the field as they did when they won the Big Four championship from the Argos.

It is realized that the Queen's back division, Leadley and Bastions, are a pair hard to beat. They have all kinds of speed, brains and experience. They outshine the Tiger back division in their ability to kick field goals. Any time they are within 35 or 40 yards of the opponents' line they have a good chance to ring up three points. The Tigers' backs have been a dismal failure in that respect. In other respects they compare more favorably with their rivals. They all have had "sure hands" during the whole season, and Gibb has shown ability to kick for distance and to place his kicks. He is useful at line plunging and end run also. From here it promises to be a great battle between teams evenly matched.

ST. THOMAS GRID CREW TOO STRONG

Defeats Forest City Collegiate 16 to 0 in Exhibition Rugby Game.

JUNIORS WIN CAGE TILT

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, Nov. 22.—St. Thomas Collegiate rugby team defeated London C. I. by 16 to 0 at the Athletic Grounds this afternoon in an exhibition.

In the first period St. Thomas claimed the ball on a fumble, and Lang, Medcalf, Elise, Davey and Vaughn led continuous bucks for a touchdown. Unconverted. White kicked to Medcalf. Scott broke through for a second touch. Unconverted.

In the second quarter Medcalf and Hunter were sent off for fighting. Following a singular end run by Scott, the locals went through for the last score in the game, a touch, which was unconverted.

The 1st quarter was played in the twilight, considerably handicapping both teams.

The line-ups:
St. Thomas—Green, Finlay, Brown, Scott, Elise, Andrews, Lang, Davey, Medcalf, Udell, Vaughn.
London—Martin, McCaugland, White, Rourke, Johnson, Weston, Freese, Fitzmorris, Hunter, Aiken, head, Wanless.

DUNDEE TO TRY FOR LOST CHAMPIONSHIP

Will Meet Jack Bernstein in New York Benefit Ring Show.

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, Nov. 22.—Johnny Dundee, world's featherweight champion, and Jack Bernstein of Yonkers, junior lightweight title-holder, have been matched for a fifteen-round contest, the main attraction of an all-star show at Madison Square Garden on Dec. 17 for the benefit of a newspaper Christmas fund.

Bernstein's 130-pound, title, which he won from Dundee in May, will be the only crown at stake. It will be Dundee's first appearance in a New York ring since he won the featherweight championship from Eugene Criqui of France last July.

In one of the preliminary bouts Sonny Smith, Montreal, bantamweight, will meet "Cannonball Eddie" Martin of Brooklyn.

The Panorama of Baseball

ANOTHER MAN WHO DID A NEW THING IN BASEBALL.

No, this is not Tom Brown at Oxford, but a citizen of Brooklyn, who, way back in 1860, took his club—the Excelsiors—up New York State to play baseball, the first real baseball tour. His name is J. B. Leggett, and his name deserves to go by the side of Wright and his victorious Red Stockings of Cincinnati, for the streak of luck that followed Leggett was much like the streak that followed Wright, and the number of continuous victories much alike. And, similarly, they both suddenly met a turn in the tide of things and faced defeat.

Leggett was captain of the Excelsiors, and he took his team to Albany, where the tour began on June 30, 1860. Their exceptional streak of victories caused the whole state to show unbounded interest in the game, and it is recorded that Leggett was besieged with invitations to visit every point in the Empire State, so that those who had never seen the game might be initiated. Of course, this was out of the question. But Leggett found himself a baseball missionary. All around him, in localities that had never played, there sprang up ball teams that dreamed of the possibility of some day playing such good ball that they might face the Excelsiors of Brooklyn.

The same splendid record followed Leggett when he took his team into Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland, but soon after they met with one unexpected defeat, and that from a team in his own home town, Brooklyn. This was the old Atlantic. Then came the second game to decide the championship between them, and rowdism raised its head to such an extent that Leggett withdrew his team—winning at the time—and consented to call it a draw. The rowdies who had come to root for the Atlantics spoiled a healthy rivalry between two teams from which fine ball could have been had. But the teams never met again. The contest has been brilliantly described by Spalding in his book, "America's National Game."

GIANTS, BROOKLYN WANT NEW BLOOD FOR 1924 SEASON

Boston Nationals Ready To Trade Any Players Except Pitchers.

CUBS STAND PAT

By JOHN B. FOSTER.

Copyright.

New York, Nov. 22.—National League clubs of the Metropolitan district—the New York and Brooklyn teams—are ready to be ripped wide open for the coming season. It has already been told exclusively in these despatches that waivers have been asked on about half of the present Giant roster of players. Now Brooklyn joins the parade by announcing that any player of that team, except Grimes, Johnston and Vance, is of the market.

The Boston Nationals are ready to let anything go except pitchers, which seems to be the best commodity that Boston has. St. Louis has been fishing for trades for six weeks, but is trying to catch whale with minnow bait, and Philadelphia, sadly in need of pitching, doesn't know which way to turn to get it.

Hints at Trade.

One Philadelphia player has just surprised his friends by stating that he probably would go to the Giants with Hurlin and another player, probably Walker in a trade. Of course, he may have been making the wish father to the thought, but it appears that he is expecting a change.

The Cubs, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh will come nearer to being stand-patters than any other team of the National circuit. The Cubs can be strengthened, but they don't intend to be weakened. Cincinnati is aging, but hopes to hang on for one year more. The Pittsburghs will shift, but their shifts already are in formation. They have taken on youngsters, and are willing to trade some of their older hands.

May Seek Maranville.

Brooklyn has suggested that it might get in the race for Maranville, the Pittsburgh shortstop. If it did, Jimmy Johnston could be played at second, where he is as good as any going, but that would still leave Brooklyn fishing for a third baseman. Ruether, the Brooklyn pitcher, has been aching to get into a Giant uniform for three years. Last year, instead of reporting to his team at once, he hung around San Antonio, where the Giants were training until the Giant management would have been justified in chasing him off with a club.

When Brooklyn mentioned the players it would trade, Fournier was overlooked. He has a contract for another year. But players who have contracts can be traded provided they are not cut in pay.

Include Wine and Beer In Menu For Athletes

Associated Press Despatch.

Paris, Nov. 22.—Light wines and beer will form part of the menu served to the Olympic athletes of nations electing to house their teams in the Olympic village being erected near the Columbus stadium. The government will be under the direct supervision of the French Olympic committee.

So far, only the British, United States and Italian athletes have arranged to use various hotels and chateaux as their permanent residences during the games, and all three nations have reserved accommodation for a certain percentage of their teams at the Olympic village. It is expected that, owing to the low figure charged by the French Olympic committee for housing and feeding the athletes, most of the countries suffering from depressed currencies will avail themselves of the opportunity afforded them by the French committee.

The village will be set out in groups of 44 villas, each large enough to accommodate three athletes. All the latest sanitary devices have been installed, running cold and hot water, showers, etc. A safe deposit vault, foreign exchange bureau, barber shop, athletic goods store and laundry will also be available.

ESTABLISH NEW HIGH IN SEVERAL STOCKS

Usually Dull Issues Have Spectacular Rise in New York.

Associated Press Despatch. New York, Nov. 23.—Speculation was in a number of the ordinary issues in the afternoon and several new records for the year were established, including United States Steel, International Paper, and tobacco products. A block of 12,000 shares of the last mentioned changed hands at 61 1/2. Tidewater Oil extended its decline to eight points, but quite a number of other industrials and specialties showed advances of three to four points.

Erratic fluctuations in Davidson Chemical, which lost all its four-point gain, selling of Chesapeake and Ohio on speculative uncertainty over the dividend action today, and renewed liquidation of the general leather issues, which touched new lows for the year, unsettled the market during the first hour. United Cigar Stores dropped 3 1/2 points. Tidewater Oil four, and General Electric two, and local traction, however, showed consistent growth strength, the demand for the former being influenced by another increase in the price of refined sugar. Adams Express advanced 3 1/2 points in further reflection of a highly successful start. Towards mid-day the whole list tended for higher ground under leadership by General Electric, Canadian National, and the steel shares. Iron products jumped 5 1/2 points and the tobacco share five, while American Bell Sugar, Cuban Dominican Sugar, preferred, and National Supply each rose two points. Call money opened at 4 1/2 per cent.

ALBERTA'S BOND ISSUE NOW FULLY SUBSCRIBED

Canadian Press Despatch. Edmonton, Nov. 23.—The recent $2,000,000 refund of the provincial issue of the provincial government has now been fully taken up, according to news received by the treasury department from New York, and the bonds will be delivered to the purchasers on Friday or Monday. The buyers of the debentures are well distributed all over the United States, the issue having been handled by some 300 dealers. Financial papers in the East have commented upon the sale of the refund, and it is stated that the effect has been to stimulate new interest in Canadian bonds, which have not been in demand on the United States markets.

LIQUOR RUSHERS READY TO GRASP HOLIDAY TRADE

Five Rum Ships Off New Jersey Coast Waiting For Customers.

HUNTED BY RADIO

Associated Press Despatch.
Highlands, N. J., Nov. 22.—The law and the ever-clutching hands of the deep have served in a year to work great changes in the personnel of the "Marine Liquor Transportation Association, Limited," the unregistered, unincorporated organization of Highlanders who dare the risks of running intoxicants from the ships that come and go on Rum Row.

THE COACH'S JOB

Something of the taskmaster, the general and the diplomat, and a lot of the doctor must be hidden away in the man who would be the coach of a successful football or track team. Emergencies of all kinds are his daily routine. A thorough knowledge of first aid is as essential as a knowledge of the game played by his men. Bumps, bruises, strained ligaments and muscles are every day happenings, but the coach never becomes contemptuous of them. He knows that if neglected, they may result in anything. Trainers everywhere keep Absorbine Jr. in their lockers. They use it not only for sprains, cuts and bruises, but for the skin and blood protection of their disinfecting properties. In one convenient container it combines the functions of a number of preparations. It is the first of all the First Aid requisites in use in all of the leading athletic clubs. And there are just as many everyday uses for Absorbine Jr. in the homes of Canada as there are in the training camps. Always keep it in the home where you can "jump to it" in case of emergency. $1.25 at your druggist.

Prince Hands Premier King Regiment's Gift To Canada

Plate of Leinster Battalion Will Likely Be Exhibited At Ottawa
—Members Won Envious Record.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Eng., Nov. 22.—The Prince of Wales today handed to Premier King a silver tablet commemorating the gift of the regimental plate of the First Battalion of the Leinster Regiment to the Dominion of Canada. The tablet records that the plate was given on disbandment of the battalion as a token of regard for the Dominion which gave birth to the battalion, to be held in trust until such time as the battalion is again raised.

The first battalion of the Leinster Regiment disbanded last year owing to the reorganization of the army following a reduction of the general strength on creation of the Irish Free State. The battalion, originally the Hundredth Regiment of the line, was raised in Canada at the time of the Indian mutiny, when troops were urgently needed. When the army was reorganized on the territorial system the regiment became the first battalion of the Leinsters, but up to the last the subsidiary title was the Royal Canadians and the members bore a maple leaf on their collar.

The plate now presented to Canada comprises a considerable collection. Many pieces were given by Canadians when the regiment was formed nearly seventy years back. The collection will probably be exhibited at Ottawa.

ALBERTA HARVEST STILL CONTINUES

Motherwell States Threshing Operations Will Continue Until Christmas.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Ottawa, Nov. 22.—The crop in Alberta is so great that threshing is still in full blast and will continue until Christmas, according to Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture who reached Ottawa this afternoon after an extended visit to the prairie provinces. Mr. Motherwell said that the crop would liquidate an immense amount of debt under which the prairie provinces have been suffering, and that the net result would be an improvement of conditions in the west. There has been loss from rust and excessive rainfall in certain districts, and individual farmers would suffer, but on the whole the west was now in much better condition than before the harvest.

Mr. Motherwell said that in those districts where there had been loss from rust farmers were showing a tendency toward mixed farming. The weather has been exceptionally open in the west, and ploughing operations have continued practically up to the present time.

Toronto Policeman Says He Fired at Water Line to Sink Gogo Craft.

DEFENCE PROCEEDS

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, Nov. 22.—Conclusion of the case for the crown today against the four police officers who are charged with manslaughter arising out of the death of John Gogo, when the police raided a launch as it was unloading liquor, was followed by a submission to Mr. Justice Orde in the fall assizes on the part of H. H. Dewar, K.C., counsel for the accused. That there was no case to go to the jury. After hearing the views of counsel, his lordship decided that the legal question be reserved for argument and the defence proceed. Patrol Serg. William Kerr, the first of the accused to testify, stated that when he first saw the launch Hattie C. it was 30 feet from the shore and without lights, and was moving rapidly toward the opposite bank. He pulled his revolver and fired one shot into the launch. As the boat kept backing away, he called to P. C. Fraser to sink the boat, and fired three shots at the launch.

Cross-examined by the crown, witness said that at the time of the shooting he did not know what was being loaded onto the truck, and it was not until he boarded the launch that he discovered it was a boot-legging proposition. His opinion still was that the launch could have been sunk by revolver fire.

P. C. George Fraser, plainclothesman, said that after firing one shot in the air, he shot three times at what he believed to be the waterline of the boat.

It is expected that the case will go to the jury.

When You Can Be Well, Why Be Sick!

Why Suffer Delay and Grow Worse?
Enjoy Life—Health—Happiness
To Have No Back Pains, No Nervousness, No Kidney Disease, With Plenty of Life, Energy and No Blood Disease, Is the Wish of Every Young, Old or Middle-Aged Person.

To you—if you are sick—if you suffer—if you are afflicted with any ailments of MEN—if you are worn out, tired or failing, if you need medical advice—if you are not in perfect health—if life is a dragging, miserable existence—if you lack energy, vim and vigor that make life worth living, to you—rich or poor—young or old—you need my treatment at once.

Nerves and Blood Are Life
The lack of nerve force is found among men of all ages. This is true with men in all walks of life, from the day laborer to the mechanic or professional man. Merchant and clergy are alike sufferers—no man is exempt from the ailment who has rebelled against nature's laws—so if you have the result of overwork, dissipation, sedentary habits or worry, and your vital organs are disturbed, remember, delay in seeing the right doctor makes it more difficult to overcome the symptoms, and you might reach an incurable condition beyond relief if you delay too long.

My Equipment
Is composed of the latest and best known agents in Electrical, Surgical and Mechanical Apparatus, and I am prepared by the knowledge of their uses and the experiences in prescribing them so as to get the greatest uniform results from them.

I Am Prepared to Give You
Serums, Bacterins, Vaccines and any and all forms of treatment of this character that have been tried and proved a success.

YOUNG MEN—THINK OF YOUR FUTURE

How about it, are you qualified to face it—are others doing more and getting more out of life than you are? Find out, if you don't know already, what is dragging you down. No one can violate nature's laws and succeed. I have helped thousands physically, mentally, morally. I believe I (as I have thousands of other men) can help you. Just be frank and tell us your troubles. Let me help you to regain and maintain your health.
