Three Days' Heavy Fight Preceded Fall of Kai Chou

30,000 Russians Driven From Position After Position.

Oku Hammers Down Stubborn Resistance by Good Strategy.

Czar's Soldiers Routed Out of Mountain Defiles and Are in Full Retreat to the North.

Tokio, July 10. — 12:30 p.m. — After three days' severe fighting, characterized by the desperate attacks of the Japanese, and the stubborn resistance of the Russians, Gen. Oku's army occupied Kai Ping (Kai Chou) last Friday, driving the Russians northward in the direction of Hai Cheng. The Russians had strongly fortified the hill situated south of Kai Ping. Their forces consisted of over thirty thousand men. In his report of the engagement Gen. Oku does not give any details, but he shows the difficulty of the struggle. The operations began last Wednesday by the Japanese driving 1,600 Russians from the heights south of Kai Ping, constituting the first line of defense. The Japanese occupied the positions and the Russians retreated northward.

On the same day the right wing of the Japanese army southeast of Kai Ping defeated a small force of Russians, and the left wing occupied the heights to the southeast.

On Thursday the entire Japanese army forced its way close to Kai Ping, overcoming the stubborn resistance of the Russian infantry, cavalry and artillery ocated in the narrow defiles. The Russians held many strong positions in the mountainous country, but despite their desperate resistance they were forced to abandon them one by one. During the night Russians were greatly reinforced by the troops brought from the north by the train in preparation for a big battle Friday. The Japanese began the last day's fighting at daylight, with an artillery fire from guns placed on the heights previously captured from the Russians.

At 8 o'clock in the morning they drove the Russians from their positions and forced them into their last line of defenses around the town. The Russians evidently saw the town was doomed, as Gen. Oku reports that many trops were withdrawn during the morning. The Russians finally took a position on the tops of high precipices, and again offered a stubborn resistance. About noon they were forced to again withdraw, the Japanese occupying the last line of defense.

The Japanese artilllery finally occupspite a severe artillery fire from the Russian batteries on the high hills to the north.

The Japanese artillery finaly occupied new positions and silenced these batteries.

In the afternoon the Japanese occupied the town without further resistance.

While the particulars of the fighting are not known, it is evident that the Russians made a determined fight. The losses and the number of those engaged have not yet been reported. Further details are awaited.

Retreat From Kai Chou.

St. Petersburg, July 10. — General Sakharoff says: "Our detachment remained during July 8 at Kai Chou station, having its advance posts on the right bank of the Kantakhe River, the enemy occupying the heights on the left bank and fortifying themselves thereon. Our battery on the railroad bridge opened fire at the enemy's patrols. Toward noon a fusillade occurred between a detachment of the enemy and our company, and our losses were six wounded. Toward the evening of July 8, the enemy's force consisting of four divisions and a brigade, could be made out in front of Kai Chou, extending along the seashore. At dawn, July 9, the enemy resumed the offensive upon the rear guard of our detachment, which retired about 6:30 in the morning from Kai Chou to 9½ miles northward. At 10 o'clock under heavy pressure, our rear guard retired on our position at Makhuntsiguiga and Yaclintas. The rear guard held this position under a heavy fire until 2 o'clock in the afternoon, when in accordance with instructions it retired slowly and in perfect order.

Is Kai Chou Captured?

St. Petersburg, July 10—2:12 a.m.—The war office is still without information regarding the report of the capture of Kai Chau, but the general inclination is to believe that most severe fighting took place there, and that it reflected great credit upon Gen. Samsonoff's few hundred Cossacks, who constituted the garrison.

Gen. Sakharoff, in a report received from the general staff, gives further details of the advance of the Japanese forces, and says that on July 7 several minor engagements occurred, but that the casualties were not of any consequence. It is evident, the report says, that the Japanese are advancing along a wide front, though as yet there has been no serious engagement.

Liao Yang, July 9. — A column of Russians, after proceeding to a point about seven miles northwest of Fen Chui Pass, on the Liao Yang-Feng Wang Cheng high road, halted at night, worn out with heavy marching and fighting. The Japanese hurried up fresh troops and attacked them at dawn with a superior force. The Russians retired, fighting. Their losses numbered 300. The Japanese also suffered heavily.

Another forward movement of the Russian rifle brigade began during the night of July 6. The Russians attacked the Japanese position in the darkness. No particulars of the engagement are yet obtainable, but it is believed that a severe fight occurred.

The Japanese force of 25,000, which was advancing toward Mukden, has now fallen back. Similar backward movements are reported from other points.

Chinese report that Gen. Kuroki's headquarters have been established at Fen Chui Pass.

SCENE AT HERZL'S BURIAL

Extraordinary Incidents at Funeral of the Zionist Leader.

Vienna, July 11. — The funeral of Theodore Herzl, founder of the Zionist movement, was an extraordinary demonstration. Besides personal friends, authors, journalists, artists and actors, 10,000 Zionists from all parts of Europe followed the coffin, which, by Herzl's wish, was of the cheapest quality. All European universities sent deputations.

In accordance with Herzl's wish no speeches were delivered, only Herr Wolfsohn, director of the Jewish Colonial Bank, said: "We must repeat our oath of allegiance to his ideas and swear to complete his work."

When the coffin was lowered terrible excitement prevailed among the Zionists. Poverty-stricken Jews cried out: "Our Messiah must come again and deliver us!" Vienna never witnessed a private funeral of such extraordinary size.

THE IDEA KILLED HIM

Suggestion That Liquor Drunk Was Poison Causes Man's Death.

New York, July 11. — Mental suggestion caused the death of John Henratty, of West Asbury Park, N. J., last night, Henratty drank a glass of whiskey.

"It tastes like poison," he exclaimed.

"It is poison," remarked a teetotaler.

The remark was enough to start the fancy in Henratty's head that he had taken poison. He grew nervous, and with his nervousness the delusion grew stronger. It grew into fear and then into terror, and he rushed to the office of Dr. J. Turner Rose, shouting:

"Save me, save me! I am dying from poison!"

Then he laughed hysterically.

"I know it is a delusion!" he cried, "it was not poison; it was not poison!"

Repeating this over and over again, the man dropped to the floor. His cries would not heed his own words, and he went into convulsions in which he died, a victim of his own terror.

Dr. Rose analzed the whisky and found no foreign substance in it.

TO KILL TEN MEXICANS

Murderers of Three Americans Will Be Shot for the Crime.

El Paso, Tex., July 11. — Preparations are being made at Hermosillo, Mexico, for the execution by shooting of ten Mexicans under sentence for the murder and robbery of the Maxwell brothers and Enoch Woodworth on the El Tigre trail about two months ago.

The Maxwells were prominent business men who had gone to Sonora to examine some mines and had employed Woodworth as a guide.

The party camped at the crossing of the El Tigre trail and a river and were murdered while they slept. The bodies were found in the river and identified.

Twenty Mexicans were arrested for the crime and ten have been convicted, according to a dispatch received here, and they will be punished with death. The date of the execution has not yet been fixed.

FIGHTING FIRE AT SYDNEY

Town Threatened by Forest Fires—Pest Houses Burned.

Sydney, N. S., July 11.—The fire department of this city battled all day yesterday with furious forest fires, which are doing immense damage on the outskirts of the town. The only buildings so far destroyed are the old infectious diseases hospital and smallpox detention house, which were situated several hundred yards east of Ashby. Only the determined efforts of the fire department saved thousands of dollars' worth of property in the latter district from destruction.

Leaped Nine Stories.

New York, July 11. — Miss Bertha Dolbeer, 25 years old, of San Francisco, said to have been the daughter of the late S. F. Dolbeer, a millionaire of that city, committed suicide on Saturday by jumping from a ninth floor window of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. Nearly every bone in her body was broken and death was instantaneous.

Since her father's death a year ago, it is said, Miss Dolbeer has suffered with melancholia and has needed constant watching.

USED CRUCIFIX AS A TARGET

Party of Parisian Automobilists Arouse Peasantry to a Frenzy.

Nantes, July 11.—It is not safe for automobilists to pass through Jiesse, a small village near this city, as the peasants are furious against all utomobilists because of an act of vandalism committed by a party which passed through the village yesterday morning.

Outside of the village is a large crucifix on top of a hill, and the party passing by this thought it great fun to use this crucifix as a target and fired a number of shots into it.

The peasants, who are very religious, made a rush for the automobile, which, however, succeeded in making its escape.

Nearly 50 empty shells were found on the ground and the figure of Christ had been hit by six bullets.

The papers here say that the policy of the present Government is responsible for all outrages of this kind.

An attempt has been made by the authorities to locate the owners of the automobile, but this will be next to impossible, as none of the peasants thought of securing its number, which the chaffeur hurriedly covered when he saw the mob arriving.

"KID CURRY" GOES OVER THE DIVIDE

The Notorious Bandit Suicides in Colorado

WHEN CORNERED BY A POSSE

For Years Has Led Most Desperate Bad Men of the West—His Numerous Hold-Ups.

New York, July 11.—Kid Curry, one of the last of the western "bad men" is dead. For cool, unflinching men, he takes his place with "Billy, the Kid," "Wild Bill," "Apache Kid," the Younger and the James Boys. He died fighting. Wounded, cornered by a posse, he said calmly to a companion who sought to rescue him "I'm all in" and turning his pistol to his head sent a bullet through his brain. Thus the most desperate of recent bandits met his death on June 9, but it is not until now that the Pinkerton National Detective Agency which tracked "The Kid" for many years, has established the identity of the dead man, for those against whom he made his last fight near Rifle, Colorado, did not recognize in the suicide the man so much wanted by the authorities of half a dozen states.

"Kid" Curry and his two companions, all masked, held up a Denver and Rio Grande train at Parachute, Colorado. They dynamited the express and safe but got no booty and escaped on horseback. The posse that pursued them came upon the robbers in a gulch near Rifle and both sides opened fire. One of the outlaws was wounded. "Are you hurt badly?" a companion asked him. "I'm all in" came the reply and the wounded outlaw rather than be captured turned his weapon on himself.

That was "Kid" Curry, whose real name was Harvey Logan, and who began his career as an outlaw when, on Christmas Day, 1894, he murdered Pike Landusky, at Landusky, Mont.

He and a brother held up a train near their home in Dodson, Mo., in 1900, and in the fight that followed with a posse, "Lemmy" Logan, his brother, was killed. The "Kid," with Tom O'Day and "Kid" Longbough, were arrested for robbing the Butte County Bank at Bellefours, and escaped from the jail at Deadwood, S. D. His band held up a Union Pacific express train at Lipton, Wyo., Aug. 9, 1900, and less than a year later held up the Great Northern express near Wagner, Mont., obtaining $45,000 in bank notes. Curry commanded one of the bands that made the "Hole in the Wall" their home, and more desperate criminals have never gathered together than those that from the Wyoming fastnesses defied arrest.

BRYAN BREAKS DOWN

The Newbraskan Collapses and Is Threatened With Pneumonia.

St. Louis, July 11.—William J. Bryan is threatened with pneumonia. His physicians told him Saturday night that a heavy cold which he had contracted, had settled on his lungs, and he must exercise the utmost care in order to avoid serious results. Mr. Bryan is feverish. The strain has been too much for him. His throat is so sore that he can hardly speak above a whisper and he is physically tired out. The physician, Dr. Isaac Jennings, of St. Louis, who is a first cousin of the Nebraskan, told him that he would have to rest and must not see any visitors or attempt to do any talking.

THE TRENT LIFT-LOCK

Formal Opening Before Cabinet Ministers Saturday Afternoon.

Peterboro, July 11.—Canada's national assets received a magnificent addition Saturday, when the hydraulic life lock connecting two long sections of the Trent Valley Canal was opened under impressive circumstances. The fact that this is the largest structure of the kind in the world, in addition to its great value to the midlands of Ontario, drew a great concourse of people from the surrounding country, and an immense parliamentary delegation from Ottawa. The lock now completes a chain of navigation of 160 miles, reaching from Heeley's Falls, on the Trent, to within a few miles of Lake Simcoe, leaving 43 miles of the Trent Valley system still to be established, of which 17 miles of river will have to be canalized. The opening ceremonies were made the occasion of happy congratulatory speeches by Hon. H. R. Emmerson, Minister of Railways and Canals; Sir William Mulock, Dr. James Mills, Senator Cox, Senator William Kerr and Hon. J. R. Stratton. The Dominion ministers took an extremely kindly view of the Trent system, and subsequent speakers interpreted their remarks as a promise that the work would be completed.

The Flood Subsiing.

Kansas City, Mo., July 11. — Flood waters at Armourdale, Argentine and Lower Kansas City, Kansas, on the raging Kaw, and to Manhattan, half way across Kansas, have fallen steadily since late Friday, and continue to recede, eliminating the last danger of further damage at the mouth of Kaw, or along its course.

Planned to Kill Edward.

Berlin, July 11. — It appears that the Russian Nihilist Ilnitzky, who recently attempted to kill the Russian ambassador to Switzerland, M. Schadowsky, had also planned to kill King Edward and the Kaiser during the regatta week at Kiel.

Papers have been found which show a carefully-laid plan, which might have been successful in spite of the large number of detectives who surround the two monarchs.

Brass Thieves Sentenced.

Windsor, Ont., July 11. — Magistrate Bartlett sentenced Roland McIntyre and William Powell to nine months each in Central Prison, Toronto, for stealing brass from the Kerr Engine Company, Walkerville, and to three months for the theft of brass from the Penberthy Injector Company, of Windsor. The sentence to run concurrently.

Joseph Mortesky was charged with having purchased the stolen brass, but the hearing of his case was postponed.

THE TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Big Time Promised at Championship at Niagara-On-Lake.

Queen's Royal Hotel, Niagara-on-the Lake, Ont., July 11.—The Canadian Tennis championships commence here tomorrow, and with the entries already in the secretary's hands, a very successful tournament is assured. Arrangements are well under way to give the visiting players a jolly good time. A smoker is on foot for Thursday in the new Country Club house, besides several other entertainments during the week, and on Saturday evening the tennis ball will be the grandest affair of the season.

The committee will award very liberal handicaps to the less experienced players in order to interest them.

The event for Canadians only is again attracting many of the players, and bids fair to be as popular as this event in the international tournament last year. Entries close July 13, at 1 p.m.

ADVISORY BOARD FOR THE MILITIA

New Measure Introduced by Sir Frederick Borden.

FRAMED TO PREVENT FRICTION

Plan of Militia Council as Inaugurated By Imperial Government To Be Adopted By Canada.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, Ont., July 11. — The militia bill was introduced in the House today, and in presenting it Sir Frederick Borden said he had come to the conclusion that the present militia system was not a good one. There had always been difficulty. He did not blame the general officers commanding of the past as he did the system. There had always been friction between ministers and general officers sent out. The great difficulty, however, was that the system did not provide for a continuous policy. There was no record kept of what one general advised, and the influence of the militia department had been that since confederation every new general officer had thought it his first business to do away with all the works of his predecessors, and replace them with something new of his own. Imperial officers thought they came out to command alone, and were very jealous of any interference. As an instance of this Sir Frederick said he had always entertained the idea that as head of the militia he had a right to consult with any of his officials. He had done so, and was a good deal surprised a few years ago to find the general officer commanding had issued an order that no militia officer should go to the minister's office to consult with him. If the officer was compelled to go he was at once to go to the general officer commanding and report to him in detail his conversation with the minister.

Col. Hughes—What general officer issued such an order?

Sir Frederick—A man whom my honorable friend knows well, General Hutton. Continuing, Sir Frederick said the Canadian Government had come to the conclusion that it would profit by following imperial example and place control of the militia under a militia council. The council should have seven members, the Minister of Militia, who was to be chairman; chief of staff, adjutant-general, quartermaster-general, and the master of ordnance, Deputy Minister of Militia and chief accountant of the department. This would make a board of four military men and three civilians, and would be an advisory council to the Minister of Militia.

WHY PARKER SENT THAT TELEGRAM

Inside Story of Famous Message to Convention.

IN IGNORANCE OF PLATFORM

Nominee Knew Nothing of Financial Plank Until Handed Newspapers Morning After Nomination.

Esopus, N. Y., July 11.—The history of the now famous Parker telegram and the reply to it of the Democratic convention at St. Louis constitutes one of the most interesting and important aspects of the situation. Light was thrown upon the subject today by a close friend of Judge Parker, who declined to allow the use of his name.

"When Judge Parker went to bed at 9:30 Friday night," said this man, "he did not know anything at all about the financial side of the platform, which had been agreed upon, more than was outlined in the very brief bulletin telephoned from Kingston. When informed by the Associated Press correspondent at 6 a.m. of the bare fact of his nomination, he knew no more, and the first real knowledge he had of the action of the convention on the financial platform was when he received the New York morning newspapers. Immediately after breakfast, that is to say, a little after 9 o'clock, he started for a horseback ride. Just before mounting his horse a telegram was handed him giving him a concise outline of the platform. From the moment of his reading of that telegram it was noticed that he was very much pre-occupied, and as he rode off his head was bowed, as if in deep thought.

"About 10:30 o'clock he rode up to the railroad station, asked for telegrams, and received quite a bunch of them. I happened to know that none of them gave him the information he wanted. He chatted with the reporters for a while, and it was afterwards recalled that some of his questions to them betrayed the fact of his lack of first-hand knowledge of the convention's action. He waited about the station almost irresolute in bearing for fully ten minutes, and then suddenly galloped back toward Rosemont. An hour afterwards his famous telegram was filed with the operator, and the remarkable series of events was under way.

"That night while the convention tossed and billowed with the sensation he had produced he did not go early to bed, but sat up until after 3 a.m., closely watching the bulletins until after the action of the convention upon his telegram was made plain to him."

THE PALMA TROPHY

Draft of Reply to U. S. Shooters by English Association.

New York, July 11. — The Palma international trophy has been received by the British National Rifle Association, from the National Rifle Association of the United States, and is now in the custody of the officials of the English association at Bisley camp, says a London dispatch to the World.

The council of that association is to meet Tuesday to decide how it shall ultimately be disposed of.

It is learned that the reply, which it has decided to send to the United States association, has been drafted, and will be submitted for approval on Tuesday.

It points out that the British association never asked for the return of the trophy, and raised no objection to its being kept by the United States; does not dispute that the American team won the match; no protest was made at the time, and points out that the allegation that the rifle used was not the Government pattern was first made in an American newspaper, not in England. But if the United States association insists on returning the trophy, the English association is willing to accept the custody of it, not because of anything that happened in connection with last year's match, but as the winners of a match shot in Canada in 1902, the English association will retain the trophy until challenged by Americans, or the representatives of any nationality to a new contest. The decision thus outlined is subject to ratification, but that is fully expected on Tuesday.

The English association notes that the association has removed from the trophy the disk which named the United States team as winners last year.

THE PACE THAT KILLS

London Society Has Its Swiftest Season in Many Years.

London, July 11. — The social season is rapidly drawing to a close. One week more will witness the last important function, although it is impossible to say how much longer Parliament may continue its session.

Time was when society could not end its season until the House rose, but now Westminster Palace is in the shadow of Park Lane drawing-rooms.

Not for six years has London had such a gay season. The Boer war caused widespread financial ruin and mourning, and the death of Queen Victoria added to the social gloom. Society, having just recovered, plunged into gayety this year to the uttermost.

So fierce has been the rush that this week found many women of rank and position on the verge of physical prostration. The fever of dissipation has run riot. Women who were young and fresh a few months ago now look haggard and so weary they seem ready to drop from sheer exhaustion.

A man of enormous wealth invited scores of people to his house a few nights ago for a splendid entertainment. A fortune had been expended on flowers, food and wine. The favorite musicians of the metropolis were hired at extravagant prices.

To one $2,500 was paid to play the piano. He played magnificently, and as his music died slowly and softly away he looked around. Three-fourths of London society was fast asleep.

Methodist Revenues.

Toronto, July 11.—Rev. Dr. Grimm, the finance minister of the Methodist Conference, states that this year the revenue of the Methodist Church in Canada will show an increase of $18,000 to $20,000. The amount paid out this year on account of superannuation to widows and orphans was $113,180, against $119,280 last year.

Parker Throws Bombshell Into St. Louis Convention

Sends Message Demanding a Gold Standard.

Delegates in a Frenzy at Threat to Refuse Nomination.

Bryan Fights Against Change, But Party Submits to Dictation—Davis for Vice-President.

St. Louis, July 9.—Henry G. Davis, of West Virginia, was nominated on the first ballot. He received 652 votes. The various states which supported other candidates changed their votes, and the nomination was made by acclamation. The convention then adjourned sine die.

St. Louis, Mo., July 9. — Everybody here was thrown into the greatest excitement tonight by a report that Judge Parker had declined the nomination. William F. Sheehan, Judge Parker's chief manager, received a telegram announcing Judge Parker's displeasure because no money plank was incorporated in the platform. All of Parker's friends accepted his telegram to mean that he would either decline the nomination unless the platform was revainped and a money plank inserted which should meet his views or he would take occasion in his letter of acceptance to make it plain that he, in accepting the nomination believed heartily that the present monetary system of the Government was the one which the Democratic party believed in and supported. Mr. Sheehan did not care to show the telegram that he had received from Judge Parker aside from to a few personal friends.

The dispatch, it is said, read: "I deem it my duty to inform the convention that I am firmly and irrevocably committed to the gold standard, and desire the delegates to understand my views so that if they wish to make another nomination before adjourning they can do so."

The vice-presidential convention session was called for 2 o'colck this afternoon. The presidential session had been in session all night until after 6 o'clock this morning. For that reason the vice-presidential session was delayed until as late as possible this afternoon. The delegates seemed to be astir over something. There was an excitement and an intensity beneath the preliminary proceedings which were not understood except by a few.

All sorts of rumors were afloat, most of them to the effect that Judge Parker would not accept the nomination for President on the platform adopted. Mr. Hill, of New York, and Col. Guffey, of Pennsylvania hastily left the convention and drove rapidly to the Southern Hotel. Things were in such a mixed up condition, principally because of the vice-presidential session which was not actually convened until nearly 3 o'clock, that only a twenty-minute session was held and the convention hastily adjourned until 5.20 o'clock this afternoon. The Parker leaders were late in arriving at each session and when they did reach their seats in the convention they were soon surrounded by leaders from other states and many hurried conferences were held. Parker's managers would not divulge the wording of the telegram, in fact, they were loth to admit that one had been received, until late this evening when Mr. Sheehan admitted that he had received a dispatch from Judge Parker, the purport of whose contents is printed above.

The action of Judge Parker was taken to mean dictation to the convention, and this roused the greatest anger.

Governor Vardaman, speaking for Mississippi, said that the delegation of that state would not consent that any gentleman shall dictate to the convention, as to what should be its platform, and would join an effort to reconsider the nomination if such dictation should be attempted. The proceedings up to the time the receipt of the telegram became known were tame.

The Vice-Presidency.

It was 5:30 when Chairman Clark called the convention to order after recess. It was agreed that nominating speeches for the vice-presidency be limited to ten minutes, and second speeches to three or five minutes each. The roll of states was then called, for the presentation of candidates for vice-president. Even at this time the galleries were less than half filled, and great areas of vacant seats were visible. Alabama gave way to Illinois, and Freeman B. Morris spoke for that state. Mr. Morris took the platform to name James R. Williams, of Illinois. Colorado yielded to Washington, and Chairman Clark recognized Frederick C. Robertson, of that state, who spoke for ex-Senator George Turner. Connecticut yielded to Indiana, and Delegate Spencer, of that state, seconded the nomination of Williams, of Illinois. Delaware gave way to West Virginia, and the name of Henry G. Davis, of that state, was placed in nomination. Senator Dubois, of Idaho, was the next speaker, and he rose to second the nomination of George Turner, of Washington. David Overmeyer, of Kansas, placed former Senator William A. Harris, of that state, in nomination in a brief speech from the floor. Nebraska's response was a statement that she waited with interest the choice of New York. New York requested to be passed when called on the roll. "Ohio has no candidate," was announced when that state was reached.

Finally, shortly after 7 o'clock, when the convention had ordered a ballot for the nominees for vice-president, and the secretary was about to call the roll, Senator Culberson, of Texas, arose, and in an excited manner said that before a vice-president was nominated, "we had better find out who is to be the candidates for president." He moved a recess until half past 8 this evening. The motion was put and unanimously carried.

Intense Excitement.

The confusion before Culberson rose was intensified greatly when he sat down, after intimating that Judge Parker might possibly vacate the head of the ticket. As soon as the recess was announced, the delegates, instead of leaving the hall, rushed into conferences. The leaders disappeared, and the session closed with an atmosphere

MARKED BY SHIPWRECKS

Strange Occurrence at Religious Ceremony On Coast of Brittany.

Paris, July 11. — At the inauguration of a statue to Our Lady of Shipwrecked Sailors, "Notre Dame des Naufrages," at Pointe du Raz, Brittany, the ceremony was marked by two shipwrecks which took place in sight of the devout gathering.

Two steamers from Brest were unable to land their passengers, owing to the rough sea. One attempted to land the pilgrims in a small boat, which capsized, and two were drowned.

At the same time a priest who was looking on was run down by a cyclist and killed.

After the ceremony the Bishop of Quimper and eighty canons and priests sat down to a banquet.

APPARITION IN THE HOUSE

Weird Figure Flits Across Floor of the British Commons.

London, July 11. — When the House of Commons was being cleared for a division on Mr. Balfour's closure motion the other evening the members were startled by seeing a strange apparition stalk across the floor of the House.

Except for a weird-looking, yellowish robe, akin to that associated with the Mahatmas of the east, it apparently had no material clothing. It did not pause, it did not speak, but, with noiseless footbull glided across the floor and mounted the gangway to the Government lobby, where it vanished.

Then cheer after cheer rolled through the building. The mysterious visitant was recognized as Sir R. U. Penrose Fitzgerald, who had been caught in his bath by the division bell, and not knowing what danger might be threatening the Government, found concealment in a convenient robe, in which he valiantly went to side with his party.

FREEDOM FOR MURDERESS

No Prison for a Woman Who Avenged the Wrecking of Her Home.

Lexington, Ky., July 11. — With the injunction, "Go and sin no more," Acting Governor Thorne pardoned Mrs. Nancy May, of Leslie county, a 20-year-old woman who had taken the law within her own hands and killed the woman who had wreck her little mountain home.

Mrs. May came here with an infant at her breast to serve a ten-year sentence, but she was pardoned before she entered the prison walls. She started on horseback on the sixty-mile journey home.

UNDER DETROIT RIVER

Tests Show That the Idea of a Tunnel Is Feasible.

Detroit, July 11.—A test shaft for the purpose of showing the strata under the Detroit River, which have to be pierced in boring a tunnel has been inspected, and it is reported a tunnel is perfectly feasible. It is probable that the results will have to be passed upon by the Vanderbilt authorities before any further steps are taken. While the Grand Trunk prefer a bridge, it is stated that if a tunnel can be built more cheaply the Grand Trunk would consent to the tunnel.

BRITAIN'S DILEMMA

Nothing to Show for Trouble After Tibet Has Been Conquered.

London, July 11. — Considerable uneasiness has been created in England by the latest developments of the situation in Tibet. It is now evident that the British column must fight its way to Lhassa. This is not a serious military problem, but a grave dilemma arises as to what comes next. It is argued that the sacrifices involved will make it necessary for Great Britain to demand compensation. The least that could be asked would be the establishment of a British embassy or the declaration of a protectorate. Either would necessitate the stationing of a strong permanent force at great expense with nothing receivable in return. Such action, moreover, would furnish Russia a plausible excuse to send a diplomatic representative. Hence it is that a strong demand is arising in London that Viceroy Curzon, of India, shall tell the country clearly what policy it is that in obedience to his advice is being carried out.

LORD STRATHCONA NOT TO RESIGN

No Truth in Report That He Was to Vacate the High Commissionership.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, Ont., July 11. — There is no truth in the story that Lord Strathcona intends resigning the high commissionership in London, Eng. The opinion in Ottawa is that as long as he consents to remain in the position it could not be better filled. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has said this on several occasions and nothing has occurred to change his mind. Seeing that there is not likely to be any vacancy it is idle to speculate upon a successor to Lord Strathcona.

PRAISE FOR PARKER

London Press on Democratic Nominee for Presidency.

London, July 11. — Several newspapers this morning print editorials referring to the national Democratic convention at St. Louis, but most of them merely recapitulate the events of the convention. All of them, however, agree that Judge Parker's personality is in accordance with the traditions as the candidates for the presidency, but except for the expression for general satisfaction that silver will not be the issue of the campaign there are few comments showing any particular opinion on the judgment of the delegates.

The Standard, however, declares that Judge Parker's Message to Wm. F. Sheehan is a "deed which will give Parker a place in history. Conceivably it may send him to the White House, but it will certainly make him a force to be reckoned with in American politics for some time to come."

The Standard maintains that there is not much to choose between the St. Louis and Chicago platforms.

The Times says: "By a single act of that courage which is so often the result of political wisdom Parker has placed himself among the most striking individualities in the public life of the United States. From this side of the Atlantic we can view the great political contest of our kinsmen without partisanship. It is impossible, of course, that Englishmen should not feel admiration for the genius and energy of President Roosevelt and respect for the ascendancy of the Republican party, whose brilliant record in external policy has been set forth by Secretary Hay at Washington. For the rest we are conscious of nothing but a feeling of satisfaction that the Democratic party has put itself right with its countrymen and with the world. We are now assured that no matter which side shall be victorious the presidency will be filled by a statesman of courage, candor and high principle."

Hed-rite

Cures sick, bilious, nervous or neuralgic headache. It is not a patent medicine, but a scientific formula prescribed by one of America's leading physicians. We can furnish hundreds of certificates and testimonials from physicians, chemists, dentists, analysts, merchants, bankers, and all sorts and conditions of men and women who testify to the effective and harmless nature of Hed-rite.

The markets are flooded with a vast number of headache powders, wafers, pills, etc., and the purchaser is almost universally advised by the dealer "to try my own headache preparation. I make it myself and can recommend it." When we try to sell the dealer he says, "I make 50 per cent more on my own powders, how can you expect me to favor Hed-rite." Our answer: "Because we devote our entire time and energies to the compounding of Hed-rite tablets. We have studied the subject of headache for years, use only the highest grade ingredients in our laboratory, and are in a better position to prescribe a cure for headache than dealers who handle and make dozens of different cures for different ailments. This is the age of Specialists. WE ARE THE ONLY HEADACHE SPECIALISTS IN THE WORLD." The public is not interested in the profit of their dealers; what they want is a safe and speedy relief for headache. We earnestly desire that before anyone purchases a box of Hed-rite that they write to us for a sample box, which will be mailed free. If this does not cure, don't buy.

HOW INDIA WILL BE TAKEN

Beautifully Simple According to the Plans of Kuropatkin.

London, July 11.—The Daily Express today prints what it claims is Gen. Kuropatkin's signed plan for the invasion of British India, which, it is stated, was filed in the Russian war office as the official method of procedure in case of a war between Russia and Great Britain. The document goes into minute details, and is three columns in length. Briefly summed up, Gen. Kuropatkin divides such a war into two campaigns, one ending with the capture of Herat, and the other, after two of three years' administration of the county, with the capture of Kashmir, Kandahar and Kabul. After that, says Gen. Kuropatkin, the British would find themselves without native support in India proper. The plan deals minutely with the methods Russia ought to adopt to secure the co-operation of the Persians and Afghans by an elaborate system of agents and sheiks. It estimates that one Turkestan corps and one Trans-Caspian corps would be required in the initial stage of the campaign, which "I should prefer to begin in November, as the weather is healthier for the men, and all Russian ports are frozen. A casus belli can, any time when required, be found through a collision between Russian and Afghan outposts.

NOTHING IN IT

Story of Finding of Stock Securities Proves To Be Fake.

Hamilton, Ont., July 11.—The story from Toronto, published broadcast, to the effect that Jacob S. Strahl, a New York barrister, and Louis G. Menke, a New York theatrical manager, had found $500,000 worth of bonds and stock certificates in room 716 of the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, turns out to be of the "pipe" variety. These two gentlemen stopped off at Hamilton before going to Toronto, and secured the advice of Lawyer Evans here, as to whether they could be prosecuted for giving publicity in the newspapers to a fake story, and on being assured they were quite safe in doing so within certain limitations, they confided to Lawyer Evans, that they were about to get some free advertising in this way in Toronto. They said they had concocted other "pipe" stories of Anna Held, the actress, bathing in milk, and the milk turning sour, and leading to litigation; also of $100,000 worth of diamonds having been stolen from a pawnshop, and afterwards found by a plumber in a cellar. The yarn got a very wide publication, having been copied by nearly every paper of note in Canada and the United States, and was generally believed by the public.

A Marquis in Trouble.

Paris, July 11. — A sensation was caused last week by the publication of details of an action brought against the Marquis de Casa Riera, a rich member of the Spanish colony, by a distant relative.

The marquis is accused of substituting himself in the succession to the title and estates by means of forged documents. It is asserted that he is in reality the son of a former trustee of the estate, which is valued at 100,000,000f ($20,000,000).

The accusations are regarded as preposterous, but the case is to be tried.

A Canine Hero.

Lucerne, July 11.—A dog, belonging to Capt. Bartoli, of the One Hundred and Fifty-seventh Infantry Regiment, now stationed at Hautes Alps, has been presented with a collar of honor by the French Society for the Protection of Animals.

Several French soldiers fell down a precipice in February. Their position was traced by the dog. They would have all perished if they had remained the night in the open, but the dog conducted them to a place of safety after a long, arduous climb.

EXPERTS APPROVE JAPAN'S CAMPAIGN

English Military and Naval Critics Say New Chwang Will Not Be Occupied.

London, July 11. — Most of the telegraphic reports and opinions of European experts agree that there will be a virtual cessation of military operations in the Far East except for the siege of Port Arthur during the next six weeks. The news of the current week throws considerable light on the Japanese plan of campaign and further demonstrates the skill and foresight of its directors. All explanation comes from Tokio as to why European and American critics were wrong in assuming that Japanese would make New Chwang the base of operations against both General Kuropatkin and Port Arthur. It is pointed out that such an operation would have been both too obvious, too perilous.

The Japanese will not take any unnecessary risks. They will dare anything when the moment for daring comes, but they will neglect no precaution so long as discretion and provision are possible. Port Arthur, even with a greatly-crippled squadron and partially-obstructed exit still commands the Liao Tishan Channel much more effectively than it could be commanded by any fleet having its base 100 miles distant. A landing at New Chwang would mean a line of communication lying almost within gunshot of Port Arthur. It would mean also an army virtually isolated and deprived of all co-operative capacity throughout the most important stages of its work. There did not appear to be any compensation for such disadvantages. Besides the Japanese never doubted their own ability to deal directly with the pressure at the Yalu. They have been glad to find General Kuropatkin expending greater energy in that part of the arena. The New Chwang is left severely alone and the plan of campaign will follow the lines of 1894.

There is much speculation on the part assigned the third Japanese army. It was thought at Tokio after the battle of Kin Chou that it would bear the brunt of the fighting on the attack on Port Arthur. This would be consistent with the ethics of the Japanese military system, which dictates the distribution of heavy tasks as far as practicable. It may for that matter have already been sent to the scene without word reaching Europe.

News of internal Russia continues to be of the gloomiest nature. The Russian prince, Uhtomsky, in an interview reports that the discontent is becoming acute. Every gathering, even for scientific purposes, becomes at once political. For which, says the prince, the prisons are filled with people of intellectual note and many are deported to Siberia. The prince thinks the intellectual classes will not join in any revolution, as they are cowed, but there may be, if the war goes adversely, a general rising of peasantry.

This, however, would be decided against the landlords, and property-owning classes, and might, the prince thinks, be approved by the police, who would secretly direct it against the intellectual people. He thinks the Czar is the chief malcontent, but although his majesty hears much truth he is too much under court influence to retain the impressions sometimes made on him. If this opinion is well founded a great country has seldom been so terribly placed, there being the risk that the whole educated class may be swept away. In the prince's opinion the Czar was certainly justified by recent events in issuing his rescript about Finland.

THE UNEDUCATED RICH

Mission On Foot to Inform Children of the Upper Classes.

London, July 11. — Religious education of children of the upper classes is in such a perilous state that it has been deemed necessary by Lord Hugh Cecil and others to set on foot a mission for them.

At a meeting for the purpose held in Church House, Westminster, the other afternoon, Lord Hugh Cecil, who presided, said it was notorious that children of the upper classes had little or no biblical knowledge. No doubt this was due to the fact that they mostly were educated at boarding-schools. As illustrating his point Lord Hugh said that in making speeches a biblical allusion which was at once understood by the working class audience fell on deaf ears when addressed to an audience of higher social rank.

Even the House of Commmons, which he beleved was composed of highly-educated men, compared badly in this respect with an audience of working-men.

FOURTEEN KILLED IN ERIE WRECK

Passenger Express Crashes Into Rear of Heavily-Laden Excursion Train.

New York, July 11. — Fourteen persons were killed any about a hundred injured in a collision which occurred at Midvale, N. J., just before noon yesterday, when a regular passenger train on the Greenwood Lake branch of the Erie Railroad, ran into an excursion train, which had stopped to take water. All of the dead and injured lived in Hoboken, Jersey City, and New York. The accident is believed to have resulted from a tower operator having lowered his signal too soon, and this was admitted by D. W. Cooke, general passenger agent of the Erie Railway. The train, which was run into, was a special, carrying members of the First Plattdeucher Association of Hoboken on their annual outing, and had 800 passengers. The train consisted of twelve cars and two engines. The first engine had taken water and the train had moved up and stopped with the second engine beside the tank, when the regular train drew near. The flagman of the special signaled the engineer of the oncoming train, but owing to a curve in the road his flag was not seen until too late. It is claimed that the engineer of the regular train had slowed down to about ten miles an hour, before he crashed into the special, but his engine tore through the rear car the greater part of its length and drove the forward end of that car into the car ahead. The killed and injured were in these two cars.

TRAGICAL MISTAKE OF RENFREW BOY

Shoots His Father in Mistake for a Deer While Hunting at Night.

Kingston, Ont., July 11. — In a lonely settlement in Renfrew county, a horrible accident occurred, whereby a father lost his life, his son having shot him for a deer. During hot days it is usual for deer to seek the water to escape the flies, and as meat is scarce, it is customary for settlers to shoot the deer for this purpose at night. Josh Eno, agad 14, and a companion, took a boat and went down the river, and unknown to them, John Eno, aged 36, the father, took a leaky canoe, and, crossing the river, went down the opposite side. He had to stop his empty boat, and did this behind a bush of rushes. The boys, coming up the river, hearing the noise, believed a deer was in the rushes. Josh raised his gun and fired. They were dumbfounded to hear a human voice, and speedily found Mr. Eno badly wounded in the back, below the shoulder. Mr. Eno helped to paddle home, walked up to his house, and then fell. He lingered thirty-six hours. His bowels had been perforated by a buckshot. He leaves a wife and six children. The son is distracted over his act.

SHOT HIMSELF

Quebec Man Suicides in the Presence of His Family.

Buckingham, Que., July 11.—A young man named Joseph Guenette, of Notre Dame de la Salette, twenty miles from here, committed suicide yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock. Accompanied by his wife and three children he went to visit his father, a farmer near Pourpour. On arriving there, he went out to Mr. Hugh McMillan's and borrowed a gun to shoot a bear. Returning to his father's house, he dined with the family, then took up the gun, and started off for the bear, but before he reached the main road his horrified relatives saw him deliberately shoot himself. They hastened to his assistance, but were too late to do anything for him. It is said he was endeavoring to get over to the States, as a warrant had been issued for his arrest on a criminal charge.

WHITE AGAIN ARRESTED

Notorious Firebug Said to Have Been Caught in the Act.

Ottawa, Ont., July 11.—John White, the notorious firebug, was arrested on Saturday night, and it is said that he was caught in the act of setting fire to the Palace Hotel sheds, on Broad street. He was seen going in the shed twice, and he was observed coming out a moment before the fire was noticed. He is said to have been seen getting oily waste in the C.P.R. yards. White was a ticket-of-leave man, having seven years ago been sentenced for ten years for setting a fire among the big industries on Victoria Island. He has been on parole for two years or so. Last year he was arrested on suspicion of having started the big $5,000,000 fire on May 10, among the lumber piles.

Mr. Joseph Cheseborough, of Chicago, and formerly an employe of The Advertiser, is home on a visit, accompanied by his wife and child.

The present war has produced the first heading containing more than a single line ever published in a Russian newspaper. Previously the most important news had never been so honored and the death of Queen Victoria was announced without any heading.

The republic of Liberia is worried over polygamy. A bill has just been laid before the Liberian Senate for the regulation of it.

KAISER SENDS FLEET TO ENGLAND

London Press Is Wondering as to the Object of Visit at This Time.

Plymouth, Eng., July 11.—Thousands of persons witnessed the arrival at Plymouth yesterday of the most powerful German fleet ever seen in Great Britain. Eight battleships and seven cruisers steamed into the naval base on a visit of courtesy amidst deafening salutes and the British and German admirals exchanged visits. The courtesies will be kept up until July 13, when the Germans will depart.

Owing to a wish expressed to King Edward, the Germans will receive no formal public welcome and the ceremonies will be confined to naval honors and to an informal luncheon by the mayor of Plymouth.

London, July 11. — The arrival of the German squadron at Plymouth has created an excellent impression here.

The Daily Mail's naval expert, who is one of the best specialists in his line in England, says the squadron is "incontestably superior in fighting qualities to the British home or channel fleets as now constructed."

The visit creates no little adverse editorial comment, its object being held to be a mystery which, the Daily Mail declares, is only explained by the anxiety of the German officers to see a mobilization of the British fleet which is now preparing for the maneuvers.

The Thamesford Stars defeated the Shamrocks, of Ingersoll, in an exciting game of baseball on Friday on the Thamesford ball grounds. Score, 5—2, in favor of the Stars. The correspondent of The Advertiser takes this opportunity of congratulating the team for their clever work. There is always room at the top.

The death of Mrs. Alexander McKay, of the townline, East Nissouri, occurred last Wednesday at 11 a.m. Everything that medical skill could devise was done, but in vain. She will be greatly missed in this section, as both Mr. and Mrs. McKay were very popular. The bereaved family have the sympathy of the entire community.

CANADA AND MEXICO

New Minister of Interior Will Greatly Strengthen Relations.

Montreal, July 11. — What will be a strong factor in strengthening the relations between Mexico and Canada will be the appointment of Signor A. Carroll, minister of the interior, to the new office of vice-president of the republic. The statement was made by D. A. Russell, consul-general for Mexico in Canada. Mr. Carroll right along has taken a general interest in Canadian affairs, and in his new position will be in a much better position, to better the commercial relations between the two countries.

The Mexican Government has decided that in the appointment of a Mexican consul in the different cities of Canada, only such men will be appointed as will be able to give their time to the affairs of Mexico, and these will include those holding consular office for other countries.

The different steamship companies have decided not to offer to accept the subsidy for the establishment of a line between Canada and Mexico, unless the Government, contrary to the request of the Toronto Board of Trade, decides to place a small duty on goods brought in from British colonies by way of foreign countries.

It was officially announced yesterday that the Dominion Iron and Steel Company was paying the interest on its bonds out of its own account in the Bank of Montreal, and was not obliged to secure any advance.

A Fatal Photograph.

In some respects one of the most remarkable war photographs ever made was secured by a man named Meyer, a correspondent for a German illustrated newspaper during the war in South Africa. Meyer was with the Boers and one day, during one of Buller's attacks along the Tugela, he took a position on the firing line. The fire from the British batteries across the river was very heavy during the preliminary period of the assault, and shells literally rained on the low-lying kopjes occupied by Botha's army. Meyer thought he saw a good opportunity to secure a fine picture, and he jumped out of his "schanze" to snap it.

Just then a big lyddite shell exployed within a few feet of him, killing him instanty. I afterward secured his camera, which was comparatively uninjured. When the film it contained was developed I discovered that Meyer had made a beautiful photograph of the huge shell which snuffed out his life. I sent a copy of the picture to his relatives in Germany.

In very recent years the motion picture cameras have made their appearance. C. Fred Ackerman, with whom I tented in China, is undoubtedly the most successful of the war motion picture operators. His first experience was in the Philippines, where he secured, in the face of tremendous difficulties, some remarkable results. One picture, in particular, was a wonderful bit of realism. Ackerman had his camera right on the firing line, and two American soldiers were hit and fell directly in front of the lens, and only a short distance away. In the natural excitement of operating his camera under such circumstances, Ackerman did not know that he had photographed two men in the act of being struck down until many months afterward, when he saw the picture exhibited in a New York theater.—Everybody's Magazine.

INSURRECTION FEARED.

In cases of severe disease there is often a breakdown at weak points remote from the parts directly affected. It would be idle to deny that there is a connection between the Russian war in Manchuria and the threatened outbreaks in Finland and Poland. Loss of Russian prestige, the calling out of the army reserves and other causes may fan the disaffection in those provinces into open revolt. It is no surprise to read in the dispatches that insurrection is feared. The assassination of the Governor of Finland, Bobrikoff, may have an effect as an accelerating cause.

But one thing is certain. The death of Bobrikoff will lead to no change in the attitude of the Russian Government toward Finland. Bobrikoff is dead, but there are many other Bobrikoffs. The Government long ago determined to reduce Finland to order on its own terms, and another governor will take up Bobrikoff's unfinished work where he laid it down. Likewise in Poland any attempt at revolt will be sternly crushed. For many years the Russian Government has been armed against disaffection and revolt, and there has been no relaxation of the preparations. Though Bobrikoff's death has probably caused the Russian Government as great anxiety as the fight at Vafangow, it is even better prepared to meet trouble in Finland than in the Liao Tung Peninsula.—Buffalo Express.

CASUALTIES IN BATTLE.

The Americans who remember the battles of the civil war, and those whose memories do not run back that far, but who are familiar with the thrilling history of the busy five years of our national experience, somehow have difficulty in becoming excited over the stories of the fighting in the Russ-Jap conflict, or appalled at the loss of life and casualties resulting from the clashes of the opposing forces in the war. Owing to the rigorous press censorship observed by both Japan and Russia, we are deprived of detailed accounts of the battles. Stories of daring charges and the leading of forlorn hopes come to us only in fragmentary form. We have had some accounts of reckless bravery, stubborn hand-to-hand conflicts and thrilling adventures on sea and land, but when we stop to consider them from a comparative standpoint they dwindle to mere skirmishes, judged by the standard of the great conflicts in the civil war.

Most authentic reports show that the severest fighting of the present war has been on the Liao Tung Peninsula, at Vafangow and other points, but the highest estimates of casualties in any one conflict is 5,000. In reading accounts of these battles it is well to remember that there were 54,000 men killed, wounded or missing at Gettysburg, 25,000 at Antietam, 28,000 at Chancellorsville, 33,000 at Chickamauga, 23,000 at Shiloh, 18,000 at Fredericksburg, and 23,000 at Stone River; while battles and skirmishes in which 5,000 or more were killed, wounded or missing are numbered by the hundreds.—Washington Post.

STORY WITH A MORAL.

A convict in a New England prison, who had been sentenced to a life term for murder in the second degree, having served a considerable number of years, was told that he would be released were he to pledge himself to go back to Italy, his native country, and never, never to return to America. He declined the offer of freedom, on the ground that he could earn so little money in the land of the ancient Romans that he would be hungry all the time at home, while in a Yankee prison he would get enough to eat at worst. This is a story with a moral.—New York Tribune.

THE HORRID PARROT.

Eddie Foy tells a story of the period during which, he admits, he thought himself a bit of "a winner" among the ladies. According to Mr. Foy's account he was much smitten with a young woman whose father was quite partial to pets. Among the old man's collection was a parrot, which was a particularly fine conversationalist. One evening Mr. Foy remarked that a friend of his possessed a bird almost as clever as this one; and, he added, somewhat facetiously, that his friend's parrot could imitate to perfection the sound of a kiss.

"Is that among the accomplishments of our feathered treasure in the corner?" asked he.

Whereupon the young woman, with some show of indignation, responded: "It is not. I'll have you understand, sir, that our parrot does not attempt an imitation of a sound he is not accustomed to hear."

"Just as the words were out of her mouth," concluded Mr. Foy, "the parrot chimed in with:

"'Wait, John, dear, till I take this horrid bird out of the room!'"—New York Times.

To Lovers of Perfume..

VIOLET is the aristocratic odor now. It is pre-eminently the favorite. But there are two kinds of Violet—good and others. Or, to be more specific, we should say Ideal Violette and others. Ideal Violette is the most delicate, the most lasting, and the truest Violet odor we have ever sold. Lovers of fine perfume should call and get a small bottle and prove what we have been saying—that Ideal Violette is the Violet of all Violets. All the other good perfumes in stock, too.

Some Aspects of "Society."

The young people are still the real rulers of eastern society. In Boston, where high thinking and intellectual supremacy once rode over the waters as if in an ark, we are told that society is given over into the hands of the very youthful set, whose dinners and balls and house parties are the chief social events and topics. In New York the elders of a certain set still meet at large functions with the juveniles, but the debutante and her playfellows usurp a large share of room and public attention. In Philadelphia there still are dinners and suppers where the heads of the community assemble and maintain their old character for agreeability, but the young generation requires—and secures—its full share of entertaining. In Baltimore, where beauty and youth have ever shared renown with terrapin and canvas-back bucks, the mothers and fathers frankly stay at home and let their children have the fun abroad. * * *

One is sometimes led to speculate upon the very apparent subsidence of the sentimental relationship of the sexes in our age. Certain it is that the young man who dares not, and the girl who care not, to achieve matrimony are a frequent spectacle. In the man's case, who can blame him, acquainted, as he generally is, with the stress of money-getting and informed on every side of the expectations and the necessities of a wife "in society." As for the girl, it is the habit of well-to-do American parents so to equip and prepare their daughters for life among the highest; they so commonly provide her with luxuries unknown to their own youth, with suites of rooms, maids, horses vehicles of her own; they carry her so much abroad that she cannot find herself tempted to give up this ease and variety for the humdrum estate of marriage and a husband who must daily work down town. * * * I think in this matter of wanting to remain single because she is better off than if married there is a menace of grave import to the nation. — Everybody's Magazine.

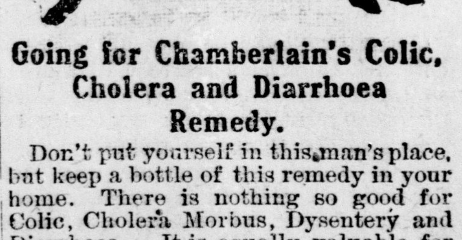

President David R. Francis, of the St. Louis World's Fair, is tall and straight and lean. You get the scent of power from him—power mental and physical. His nose is long and a bit beaky, eyes good but set too close together, cheekbones high, mouth firm to the point of hardness, jaw square and sharp at the angles, chin prominent and short and on the cat order, ears generous, forehead high, light hair and mustache—which last helps the mouth to a softness not its own—to match the steel blue eyes. The head is widest at the base of the brain, with a wideness that speaks of force and selfishness and a strength to live and get three meals a day, although everybody else gets two.

The loss of life from accidents and disasters in the United States in 1903 was: Fires, 1,792; drowning, 2,471; explosions, 736; falling buildings, etc., 474; steam railways, 4,090; electric railways, 573; electricity, 156; mines, 788; cyclones and storms, 487; lightning, 139.

Yorkshire, England, possesses a farm for the rearing of moths and butterflies. Half an acre of land has been planted with trees and shrubs for the purpose In their season the stock of caterpillars is 20,000. From 30,000 to 40,000 preserved insects are kept in reserve, so that butterflies and moths can be supplied irrespective of the time of the year.

In London recently the warrant under which John Bunyan, author of the to Bedford jail was sold at auction for $1,525. It was signed by thirteen justices of the peace, six baronets and seven squires. It charges that Bunyan had been teaching and preaching otherwise than "according to the liturgee and practice of the Church of England." It is said that he was in prison for six months under this warrant, but as he passed twelve years, from 1660 to 1672, in Bedford jail, there must have been other warrants against him.

The Saxon Government, now that it has been found necessary to discontinue the Freiberg mineral mines within the next 10 years, intends to open up immediately brown coal mines near Leisnig, which in 1904, it is estimated, will have an output of 104,000 metric tons.

LONDON, MONDAY, JULY 11.

The Flag Fools.

There were several outbreaks of flag foolishness on July Fourth. A crowd of American excursionists at Dawson City compelled the captain of a Canadian steamer to hoist the Stars and Stripes. A British resident of Long Island flew the Union Jack as a compliment to his adopted country, but it was torn down by a band of disorderly soldiers. On July 1 a regiment from Malone, N. Y., visited Ottawa and on the return trip several of the officers stopped the train, by threatening the engineer and conductor, because some women of the party were not aboard. It was discovered that the missing women were on the second section of the train, and the first section was then allowed to proceed.

These incidents, of course, warm Canadian bile, but the United States is not the only country afflicted by diseased patriotism. Has the flag in this country never been prostituted by faction and used by partisans to serve their own selfish ends? There is no distinction between the politician who waves the flag on the stump and tries to put the brand of disloyalty on a section of his fellow-countrymen, and the idiot who shows his conception of loyalty by insulting the flag of another nation. A man can best honor his flag by being a good citizen and endeavoring to make the flag a symbol of justice, honor and the other highest qualities of civilization. A good deal of so-called patriotism consists of worshiping the flag without regard to what it stands for. Mr. Lincoln Steffens, in one of his articles in McClure's, tells of being present at a banquet and sitting next to a notorious corruptionist in St. Louis, whose eyes filled with tears when the orchestra played "My Country, 'Tis of Thee." This man did not scruple to bribe legislators and violate the laws and constitution of his country, but he could thrill with patriotic emotion. A philosopher declares that the worship of the flag is superseding religion in some countries. It is a species of fetishism as unreasoning as the adoration of a totem by a primeval Indian tribe. Canadians are comparatively tolerant of other flags and in that respect set their neighbors an example, but they have jingoes and fire-eaters, who are inclined to make a noise just now, and a breed of politicians who are always looking for an opportunity to debase the flag by attempting to make it a party emblem.

The Boundary Papers.

The official papers on the Alaskan boundary question have been laid on the table of the House of Commons. They show that the Dominion Government, at the outset of the negotiations, objected to the composition of the tribunal, expressing the hope that the questions to be adjudicated upon should be submitted to a board of arbitrators, composed in part of foreign jurists, or to The Hague tribunal. Secretary Hay replied that the form of arbitration proposed was the only one acceptable to the President, and that a treaty involving submission of the dispute to foreign arbitration, or The Hague tribunal, would stand no chance of ratification by the United States Senate.

When the Colonial Secretary notified Ottawa that Messrs. Root, Turner and Lodge had been nominated as the American members of the tribunal, the Canadian Government at once lodged a protest. "My Ministers," wired Lord Minto, "respectfully but strongly represent that Mr. Root, as a member of the United States Government, directly concerned, is, therefore, one of the disputants in the case, and also that Senators Lodge and Turner cannot be accepted in the class of impartial jurists provided for in the treaty, having both already emphatically declared themselves against the Canadian side of the case. Proposed appointments would be looked upon by my Government as violation of important articles in treaty." Supplementing this dispatch was another one, calling attention to the treaty stipulation that members of the court should be impartial jurists.

Lord Onslow, Under Secretary of State for the Colonies, in reply, admitted that the personnel of the American members had been as much a surprise to the Imperial as to the Canadian Government. It seemed useless, he said, to press the United States Government to withdraw the names. His Majesty's Government had no choice between breaking off negotiations altogether or accepting the American nominations, and appointing as their colleagues men who "would meet the altered circumstances of the case."

The Dominion Government declined to accept the suggestion that the dishonorable example of the United States should be copied, and the treaty violated by the appointment of partisans on the British side. "Only judges of the higher courts, who in the best sense of the word would be impartial jurists of repute, should be chosen." This dispatch was sent on March 6, and on the next day the ratifications of the treaty were exchanged in London over the head of the Canadian protest.

The British Government was undoubtedly correct in the opinion that a protest would be useless, and Canadians must make allowance for its anxiety to avoid friction with the United States. The appointment of declared partisans is a discreditable chapter in American diplomacy, but the fault is not wholly that of the executive. The present administration has shown a friendly disposition toward Great Britain, and was no doubt sincerely desirous of removing the irritating boundary dispute, but its hands were tied by the Senate and by an unreasoning public opinion, which flouted the Canadian claims. Secretary Hay probably had good reason for believing that only partisans of the stripe of Root, Lodge and Turner would be acceptable to the Senate. Even more annoying to Canadians than the perfidy of these appointments was the conduct of Lord Alverstone in deliberately reversing his decision as to the Portland Channel behind the backs of his Canadian colleagues.

A Welcome Inquiry.

The Washington Government's inquiry as to Great Britain's intentions in Tibet looks like an impertinence on the face of it, but John Bull and Uncle Sam understand each other. They are working partners in a game in which John Bull was formerly obliged to play a lone hand. He was the sole champion of the open door in China a few years ago, and was sore pressed to maintain the principle while the powers of Europe were cutting slices off "the yellow corpse." The acquisition of the Philippines gave the United States a sudden interest in Asia, and the American people awoke to the fact that they had a large trade, and larger prospects, in China, which were threatened by Russian aggrandisement. The result was that the United States came to Great Britain's relief by affirming the open door policy and resisting the encroachments of Russia in Manchuria. The Washington Government has been even more active than the British in pressing for Russia's withdrawal from the Manchuria Peninsula.

At the outset of the present war Secretary Hay issued a circular note to the powers urging that the operations of the belligerents be localized as far as possible, and that the "administrative entity" of China be maintained inviolate. There has been some ironical discussion over the diplomatic vagueness of the term "administrative entity," but it was clearly a polite warning to the powers to keep their hands off China, while Russia and Japan were fighting. Consequently, the United States is taking a logical step in making representations to Great Britain as to the present expedition in Tibet, which is a satrapy of China. Great Britain has no designs on Tibetan territory and will withdraw her forces when the object of Colonel Younghusband's mission has been attained. The United States has in reality done her a service by making the inquiry, as it enables her to publish her intentions to the world and refute the calumnies of her enemies. The more the United States interferes in the affairs of the old world the more will it be found that the interests of the two nations run on parallel lines.

The Long Ago.

[Philo Henderson.]

Oh! a wonderful stream is the River of Time,
As it runs through the Realm of Tears,
With a faultless rhythm and musical rhyme,
And a broader sweep and a surge sublime,
And blends with the Ocean of Years!

How the winters are drifting like flakes of snow,
And summers like buds between,
And the ears in the sheaf—so they come and they go
On the river's breast, with its ebb and flow,
As it glides in the shadow and sheen!

There's a magical isle in the River of Time,
Where the softest of airs are playing;
There's a cloudless sky and a tropical clime,
And a song as sweet as a vesper chime,
And the Junes with the roses are staying.

And the name of this isle is the Long Ago,
And we bury our treasures there—
There are brows of beauty and bosoms of snow,
There are heaps of dust—but we loved them so!
There are trinkets and tresses of hair.

There are fragments of song that nobody sings,
And a part of an infant's prayer;
There's a lute unswept and a harp without strings,
There are broken vows and pieces of rings,
And the garments she used to wear.

There are hands that are waved when the fairy shore
By the mirage is lifted in air,
And we sometimes hear, through the turbulent roar,
Sweet voices heard in the days gone before,
When the wind down the river is fair.

Oh! remembered for aye be that blessed isle,
All the days of life till the night;
When the evening comes with its beautiful smile,
And our eyes are closing to slumber awhile,
May that "Greenwood" of souls be in sight!

On Graduation Day.

[Cleveland Plaindealer.]

Courtseying like a little lady to the school director, the school superintendent and the school council, she turned to the vast audience, and in a bell-like voice bravely remarked:

"It was Napoleon Bonapare who said, 'Beyond the Ilps lie Ataly.'"

She stopped with a little gasp—

"I mean, 'Beyond the Alts lies Ipaly.' That is, 'Beyond the Yaps, I should say, the Yips,' a-a, 'Beyond the Yats.'"

She stopped short again. Her face was a pale green and she breathed with difficulty. But pausing only long enough to swallow once, she began it all over again.

"It was Napoleon Bonaparte who s-s-said——"

Then she untied the blue ribbon and unrolled the snowy essay and started in all right.

The Man in the Mail Car.

[W. D. Nesbitt, in Chicago Tribune.]

No flag is snapping over him,
No band is playing loud;
There are no cheers in strident vim
From some applauding crowd;
But night and day he toils away,
Until his work is done—
No ranting fifes or bugles play
To lighten his long run.

He has no time to think of fear,
Or talk of pluck or nerve,
With danger always lurking near
In every lurching swerve.
The swaying lamps make shadows dim
To taunt his straining eyes;
The jolting car makes mock of him
As madly on it flies.

It may be north, south, east or west—
The mail must hurry through,
The postal clerk may take no rest
With all these things to do.
He does not see what waits ahead,
Nor cares what lies behind—
The hungry mail racks must be fed,
To all else he is blind.

Sometimes you stand beside the track
And see the mail train race,
And white above the rolling sack
You see his toil-smudged face.
So, day and night, the postal clerk
Goes, fighting time and sleep;
He only does his country's work—
And countries hire men cheap.

Some day, perhaps, they'll lift him out,
All limp, and still, and pale—
He will have found his last long route,
This man who works the mail.
No thrumming drum the hush will fill
When he goes to his rest;
And all the mails will hurry still,
North, south, and east, and west.

Awakening.

[Somerville Journal.]

I had a dream the other night
Which I will now relate:
I dreamed I was the emperor
Of a luxurious state.

A thousand vassals bowed the knee
Before my mighty throne,
Ten thousand soldiers, armor-clad,
Obeyed my will alone.

In royal luxury I lived,
My very word was law,
And millions of my subjects watched
My every move with awe.

With wealth my coffers overflowed,
I loathed the sight of gold,
So wearied was I with the joys
Of opulence untold.

Such was my dream. Then I awoke,
To hear our Nora say:
"The grocer says that you will have
To pay his bill today."

The Popular Peanut.

[Philadelphia Ledger.]

We are told that the great doctrine of the solidarity of mankind is being enforced as never before by the discoveries of modern science. Medicines, economics, biology, physics, in their latest developments, teach us with hitherto unapproached force that all men and things are so bound together that what affects one affects all. It is an impressive truth. Consider the case of man, the cotton crop and the peanut. Within the last few years the consumption of the peanut has vastly increased. The interesting legume has fought its way over prejudice and contempt to a place of unchallenged preeminence in popular esteem. Sneers have not prevailed against it. Contumely in the presence of the unparalleled popularity of the peanuts hides at last its diminished front. Last year we broke the wrinkled shells of 5,000,000 bushes of pindars, and ate some billions of archian "nuts." It essentially the choice of a plebeian taste, if the rich and fastidious prefer a daintier delicacy, the peanut is without rival in the favor of the multitude.

But now observe. The plant Arachis hypogaea demands an early spring, a hot and moist summer and a sandy, friable loam. But these are conditions required by another plant of great usefulness and value—namely cotton. With this staple at a normal value, Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee have found it advantageous to devote a part of their acreage to the edible, at the expense of the sartorial crop. But lately cotton has been going up, and the south is naturally planting it to the neglect of other crops; unhappily almost to the exclusion of the peanut. Thus we see that such an unimportant fact as the value per bale of cotton vitally affects human happiness in a remote particular.

Ode to a Fly.

[New York Sun.]

You harbinger of everything tormenting,
You horrid little aggravating fly,
While I looked forward gladly to the summer,
I forgot that you, provoking cerature, would be by.

I raved about the coming of the flowers,
And tried to feel poetic 'bout the spring;
But here you are, with all your teasing powers,
And all my fancies into air take wing.

Today I tried to sleep at early morn,
But you and all your brothers shun repose,
And while I chased "your sisters and your aunts,"
You, loudly buzzing, sat upon my nose.

In vain I lay upon the table sweets—
You tightly sip, your "weather eye" on me,
And with a cruel malice all your own,
You knock your youngest son into my tea.

I try to lie as still as any mouse,
But, gloating in our powers of torture rare,
You loudly sing your scorn of helpless man,
And take a walk with friends amid my hair.

I'm weak with flying at you round the room,
Ah, now! once more you're standing on my nose.
Just for one blow! Ah! there you're off again,
And hail your harem nibbling at my toes.

There is no way to catch you that I know,
And lo! a theme to make even angels weep,
That I, in all my pride of strength and power,
Can't smother you and get a little sleep!

The Wise Landlord.

[Washington Star.]

"So you are looking forward to a good time this summer?"

"Yes, sir," answered Mr. Cumrox.

"Going out of town?"

The Only Cure.

[Houston Post.]

There are dopes and salves and plasters
For the cure of all disasters,
There are cures for everything from love to sin;
There are formulas compounded
For most any way your wounded;
But the only cure for trouble is a grin.

Why You Lack Energy and Strength

Your digestion is not as good as it ought to be and consequently you are weak. The system, too, is clogged up with waste matter with the result that languor, tiredness, and sleeplessness develop. Then the nerves become more or less on edge. Of course, the liver and heart and other organs do their work less perfectly than is necessary to maintain health and your food is not doing you any good.

If you take Ferrozone you will quickly find all these unpleasant symptoms disappear and dangerous consequences prevented. Just think of how keen your appetite would grow. Good appetite means almost the same thing as food half-digested. Lots of blood is formed—the rich, red sort that makes strength. The weakened nerves receive a supply of strength that restores them. Sleeplessness ceases and away goes that feeling of worry and perhaps brooding that frightens. Ferrozone does all this and does it quickly. It is not only a health-bringer, but a joy bringer. The mind is freed from the deadly weight of poisoned blood and impaired nutrition. Good spirits, vigor and endurance follow naturally.

An anti-treating movement is making considerable headway in Montreal, Quebec. Members of the league pledge themselves not to accept from nor offer to others intoxicating liquors in any public bar, hotel or club.

CHOLERA and all summer complaints are so quick in their action that the cold hand of death is upon the victims before they are aware that danger is near. If attacked do not delay in getting the proper medicine. Try a dose of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial and you will get immediate relief. It acts with wonderful rapidity, and never fails to effect a cure.

TOGO ATTACKED SUNDAY MORNING

His Torpedo Craft Repulsed by the Russians.

JAPS DEFEATED ON LAND SIDE

St. Petersburg Believes the Vladivostock and Port Arthur Squadrons Are Once More at Sea.

Che Foo, July 11.—Noon.—A European, who left Port Arthur, at 5 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, reports that the Japanese made a torpedo attack on Sunday morning, attempting to penetrate into the harbor. They were repulsed without loss to either side. The European further reports that on July 7 severe fighting occurred around Port Arthur. The Russians claimed to have driven the Japanese back on all sides, but admitted a loss of more than 1,000 killed. Several hundred wounded are said to have arrived at Port Arthur on July 8, and it was reported that more were to come in.

Out to Sea Again.

St. Petersburg, July 10. — The Associated Press is informed that there is reason to believe that the Vladivostock and Port Arthur squadrons have sailed again, as there has been ample time for the former to recoal and prepare for another cruise since its return to Vladivostock on July 5, and as it is considered unlikely that the Port Arthur squadron would remain at that port more than a fortnight for the slight repairs necessary to be made to the battleship Sevastopol. It is regarded as significant that the admiralty has not received a report from Rear Admiral Withoft, although the war office has a dispatch from Port Arthur, partly dealing with naval matters. The admiralty does not deny that both squadrons have gone out.

The war minister today received a dispatch from Gen. Seilinsky, Gen. Kuropatkin's chief of staff, reporting a couple of unimportant affairs between frontier guards and small parties of Chinese bandits, near Port Arthur, and adding that the troops forming the garrison are in excellent spirits. Skirmishes occurred daily. The Russians captured fifty Japanese scouts on July 1, and the chief of police recently captured 240 head of cattle. There is an abundance of ammunition at Port Arthur, the dispatch says.

Captured Eight Guns.

London, July 11.—Special dispatches to the Daily Telegraph and the Daily Mail from Tokio assert that the Japanese captured eight guns during the fighting around Port Arthur on July 4, and that they reconnoitered from a war balloon.

PLAYED THE CLOWN

A French Marquis' Impersonation at an Amateur Circus.

Paris, July 11. — Every year at this time, when the city of Paris begins to get dull, and everybody who is able to get away from here, turns towards Trouville, Deauville or other watering places and seaside resorts, our most blue-blooded young men and women give a great circus performance, which is attended by all the elite of society.

The custom originated with M. Molier, a wealthy gentleman, who takes great interest in the training of horses and other animals.

Every year the leading members of Parisian aristocratic society crowd into the barnlike little wooden circus annexed to his house in the Rue de Binonville to see well-known society men appear as jockeys and pretty women perform various equestrian acts taught them by M. Molier.

After M. Molier had entered the ring, whip in hand surrounded by his distinguished cast, the band struck up a slow waltz, and eight handsome women, dressed in Directoire costume, went through a graceful equestrian divertisement, which was followed by an amusing interlude in which a clown, who is also a member of the Jockey Club, made love to a pretty equestrienne in short skirts, who rode a bare-backedy horse.

A troupe of performing dogs, presented by M. Molier himself, and an acrobatic performance by six members of a well-known aristocratic club in Paris, were also included in the programme, which was brought to a conclusion by a spectacular pantomime, entitled "The Apotheosis of Ernest," in which the entire troupe took part, the lady members being responsible for some very pretty dances.

POPE AND CARDINALS

Latter Said to Object to Economic Policy of Pius.

Rome, July 11. — Ever since he succeeded the late Pope Leo, Pope Pius X. has tried to cut down the expenses of the Holy See, a policy which has been anything but popular among the cardinals of this city.

A few days ago he announced his intention of cutting off an annual amount of $5,000 which it has been customary to pay every cardinal residing in Rome. The majority of these cardinals have various other sources of income besides their magnificent residences, which are paid for by the church.

Pope Pius now intends to have all the cardinals reside in the Vatican proper, where there is ample room, and in this way save the high rental which now has to be paid for mansions for the cardinals in the city of Rome.

Several of the cardinals are protesting against this, and say that it would not be proper for them all to reside in the same building, as it would detract from their dignity, and also object to the cutting down of their income.

A very prominent cardinal said today: "It costs about $8,000 to be made a cardinal, and many a cardinal has died without succeeding in paying off debts which he had incurred to meet this expense. When, therefore, the Holy Father contemplates diminishing the income of a cardinal he should also see to it that no expense is necessary to become a cardinal."

HOPEFUL OUTLOOK FOR SOO WORKS

Helen Mine Resumes Operations —Rail Mills Going Within a Few Weeks.

Toronto, Ont., July 11. — Mr. C. D. Warren and the other directors of the Lake Superior Corporation returned from the Soo yesterday, and speak in most hopeful terms of the outlook at the works. Mr. Warren, president of the corporation, said the Helen mine had resumed operations, and was turning out from 800 to 1,000 tons of ore per day, under the superintendency of Mr. Seely, who had charge of the work previously. The corporation steel barge was loading at the mine wharf on Saturday, the cargo having already been sold to be shipped to a United States port.

The general manager of the whole of the works, Mr. Cornelius Shields, has the steel works in such a forward condition that they will be able to turn out rails in about three weeks. The superintendent of this department, Mr. D. D. Lewis, filled a similar positinn of the old regime. Mr. Warren hopes that the Provincial Government will renew the order given more than a year ago for steel rails for the Temiskaming road. Such an order if given now, can be promptly filled. Of the other works Mr. Warren said the pulp mills were working at full capacity turning out about 100 tons daily. The sawmills are running to their full capacity. The veneer mills are only as yet running part time, and will so run probably for some time pending improvements. The machine shops and foundry are starting on part time at present, and the car works will be opened as soon as orders on hand warrant such a step. The closing of the works, of course, meant the closing out of orders, and the new management have not had time even to announce that the works are opened. Arrangements are proceeding satisfactorily for the transfer to the new management of the Michigan Power Company, which is in the hands of the state receiver.

All legal obstacles have been removed, and only certain legal notices which have to be given remain in the way. All the various industries are being carefully overhauled in every case. Work will be resumed, as speedily as possible. Mr. Warren, as president, will be in control of the policy to be pursued. He will have an office in Toronto, and under his direction the utmost energy will be infused into the management, with rigid economy in all its branches.

Kidney Trouble and Dropsy

Could Scarcely Walk and Now Owes Good Health to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. Treneman, of 536 Adelaide street, London, Ont., states: "Two years ago I was laid up with kidney disease and urinary troubles. Besides the pain and inconvenience caused by these troubles I became dropsical, and my legs would swell up so that I could scarcely go around at all. Hearing of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I procured a box and continued the use of this valuable medicine until now I can say for a certainty that I am entirely cured. I never took any medicine that did me so much good, and am firmly convinced that if it had not been for this medicine I would not be working today."

A locality in Van Wert County, not far from the St. Marys River, has the unique distinction of being singled out, long ago, in all seriousness, by an enthusiastic participant in a religious meeting, as the exact cover of hell! Much moved by the fervent preaching of a traveling exhorter named Antrem this settler assured the congregation that hell was just under Shane's prairie, because he had dug a well there and it smelled strongly of sulphur and brimstone. Several persons in the congregation were thrown into paroxyms by this thrilling news, and some women "jerked until they fell exhausted."

PARKER THROWS A BOMBSHELL

of tense expectancy as to what would occur when they reconvened at 8:30. The convention did not go into session promptly at the time appointed, although the greater number of delegates and alternates were in their seats, keyed up to a high pitch of excitement over the possible events of the night. At 9:10 o'clock Chairman Clark pounded vigorously with his gavel.

Governor Vardaman, of Mississippi, rose, and without formal recognition by the chairman, proceeded to address the convention on the subject of the mysterious telegram. He moved that the gentlemen of the New York delegation reported as the recipient of the message, should send it to the clerk's desk to be read. "Let the truth be known and then let us proceed to business." Loud applause followed this declaration and continued as Governor Vardaman took his seat.

Without Precedent.

The conference committee reached the hall at 9:35. The chairman recognized John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi. Mr. Williams explained the purport of Mr. Parker's telegram which he handed to Governor Vardaman, to be read to the convention.

Mr. Williams then said: "Mr. Chairman, this is the first time in the history of the United States that a man already nominated for the greatest office on the surface of this earth, has been so super-sensitive about a matter of personal rectitude and honor, as to send a telegram to a friend asking him to decline the nomination for him, if, as he seems to have been informed, there is something in the platform, which is not in accord with his own opinion.

"My friends, we purposely made this platform silent on the question of monetary standard. We made it silent because we all agreed that that was not an issue in this campaign — (applause)—and we agreed furthermore, that nothing should be placed in the platform which was not a campaign issue, and the consequence was that, in the resolutions committee, motions were made to table, and those motions were carried, every resolution on both sides which tended to bring up as an issue in this campaign the question of monetary standard."

The Message to Parker.

He then asked Senator Tillman to read a message to be sent to Judge Parker, which had been prepared at a conference between Senators Hill, Tillman, Cormack and other leaders.

The telegram read as follows: "The platform adopted by this convention is silent on the question of monetary standard, because it is not regarded by us as a possible issue in this campaign, and only campaign issues were mentioned in the platform. Therefore, there is nothing in the views expressed by you in the telegram just received, which would preclude a man entertaining them from accepting a nomination on said platform." (Applause.)

Senator Tillman after reading the message explained his own stand. While he was speaking Mr. Bryan entered the hall.

As the senator concluded there was a short-lived burst of applause, but it was evident the delegates were in no mood to waste time in demonstrations.

Bryan Again Defeated.

Mr. Bryan then rose and came to the front of the rostrum. His face was pale and drawn with illness. His voice was weak and hoarse. He spoke with great effort, but quietly and with self-control Mr. Bryan briefly reviewed the work of the committee on resolutions in regard to a financial plank. "When we refused to declare in favor of the gold standard," he said, "and refused to affirm the Kansas City platform, we left the question open as a matter of principle." He wanted the wording of the message to Parker changed, and announced that he would propose an amendment.

Senator Cormack defended the position of Judge Parker, and he was followed by Bryan, who concluded his remarks at 12:12 a.m.

John Sharp Williams appeared, and for the first time showed great resentment in replying to Bryan. He declared that despite his protestations, Bryan was the one man in the convention who had sought to prevent harmony.

Mr. Williams, in closing, moved the previous question.

Mr. Bryan was again recognized. He withdrew his amendment to the Parker telegram in the interest of harmony.

The roll call was ordered on Williams' telegram to Parker, and it was carried.

The nomination of Senator Davis for the vice-presidency was then made.

TRAINED TO HIT OFFICERS ONLY

EXPLAINS BIG LOSS OF OFFICERS

Apparition Visits Empress of Japan and Assures Her That Victory Is Certain.

Paris, July 11.—A French journalist, who follows the staff of General Kuropatkin in Manchuria, writes to his paper in this city that the Japanese have certain men in each regiment who are dead shots and who only fire at Russian officers during an engagement.

Before leaving Tokio these sharpshooters were made familiar with the uniforms of all Russian officers and spent several weeks at target practice firing at dummies dressed as Russian army officers, and none of them was declared fit to go to the front until he could hit one of these targets nine times out of ten at a distance of 1,000 meters. The correspondent has learned this from a Japanese officer who was captured in a recent skirmish.

This explains the unusually large number of Russian officers who have been killed or wounded during all engagements. Three regiments in one battle, in which they fought behind entrenchments, lost no less than 73 officers, and the surviving officers said that as soon as they showed their heads and shoulders over the top of the entrenchments a shower of bullets struck all around them.

Any officer who dares to show himself on horseback might as well commit suicide. Many brilliant artillery and cavalry regiments have lost all their officers and are being commanded by young men hardly out of the military academy.

The recent bombardments by the Vladivostock fleet under Admiral Skrydloff of cities along the Japanese coast having had a considerable moral effect upon the Japanese people, many of whom begin to fear that Japan will be crushed in the end, the papers at Tokio try to work upon their superstition to prove that Japan cannot lose. A few nights ago, these papers say, Her Majesty the Empress had a very peculiar dream.

A spirit dressed in the uniform of a Japanese admiral appeared before her, and having respectfully kowtowed to her, he said:

"Have no fear, I will guard our soldiers and sailors and no harm shall come to them."

Having said these appropriate and cheering words the apparition disappeared.

The next morning the Empress, who had a very vivid recollection of her dream, asked to be shown photographs of all prominent living and dead Japanese naval officers.

Suddenly she discovered one which was a perfect likeness of the officer who had appeared before her in the night.

"That is the men," she cried.

The photo was that of Admiral Sakamoto, a famous Japanese hero, who died 28 years ago. Ever since then the Empress has known that Japan will come out victorious, an example which the papers advise all loyal Japanese to follow.

THREE DAYS' HEAVY FIGHT

herin, manager af the Novoe Vremya, in a leading article in that paper, which is attracting much attention, declares that it is not Manchuria nor Korea for which Russia is fighting, but it is for her future position in the far east, where covetous hands are stretched out not only by the Japanese, but by the United States and Great Britain, which is the cause of American and English sympathy for Japan.

No Complaint Yet.

Paris, July 9. — The foreign office discredits the reports that Japan has complained of the attitude of Germany and France. No such complaint or protest has been received. The only possible ground for a protest is the prospective coaling of the Russian Baltic fleet at French ports going on the way to the far east, but no protest would be warranted before the action occurs. Moreover, France's course will be carefully kept within international rights.

The Czar's Movements.

St. Petersburg, July 9.—The itinerary of the Emperor, who has left for the Volga region, to bid farewell to the fifth and sixth army corps, accompanied by the heir-presumptive, Grand Duke Michael, and War Minister Sakharoff, is from Kolomna to Morshansk, Penza and Zlatoust, returning by way of Samar and Tamboff. The imperial party will return to St. Petersburg, July 16, and a few days later his majesty will inspect the twenty-second and thirty-seventh brigades. He will then go to Novgorod to bid farewell to the first army corps, which will begin to leave for the front July 23, the staff following Aug. 9.

Port Said, Egypt, July 9.—The Russian volunteer fleet steamer Smolensk, from Sevastopol, has arrived here with 228 sailors on board. Her cargo consists of sacks of coal. Even her decks are laden.

Anti-Christian Riots.

London, July 11.—The Che Foo correspondent of the Standard, in a dispatch dated July 9, says: "The American consul-general, John Fowler, received news last night, that anti-Christian riots have broken out at Chao Yuen, about 65 miles south of Teng Chou Foo, and 85 miles west of Che Foo. Immediate assistance was asked. The taotai dispatched troops, and telegraphed the authorities at Hwang Sien and Teng Chou Foo also to send assistance if required.

SULTAN GIVES IN TO UNCLE SAM

In Face of Threat Agrees to Settle School Question.

REVOLUTIONISTS ARE ACTIVE

Turkish Troops Ridicule the International Police—Austria to Take Strong Measures.

Vienna, July 9.—A dispatch from Constantinople, received here, says that the American minister, Mr. Leishman, handed a note to the Porte, declaring that unless a prompt settlement of the school question was arranged, a United States fleet would appear in Turkish waters. The Sulton ordered the Grand Vizier to comply with the American minister's demands. The American demands on the Sultan are for privileges to schools and colleges conducted by American teachers, equal to those given to foreign teachers; for permission of American professional men to practice on even terms with foreigners, and for the direct access of the American minister to the Sultan in the transaction of business.

Paris, July 9.—The visit of Count Goluckowski, the Austro-Hungarian foreign minister to Paris, gave an opportunity for Foreign Minister Delcasse and the count to go over the international situation, including the renewed seriousness of Balkan affairs. After months of quiet, recent official reports show that the revolutionists are again active. Austria is prepared to take energetic measures, but the new triple alliance, that of Bulgaria, Servia and Roumania, retards action. The powers are also irritated at the attitude of turkey toward the international police, recently established for the purpose of maintaining order. The Turkish troops ridicule the international gendarmerie, and otherwise threaten to make their establishment a failure. No decision has been reached, but the chancellories are exchanging views in anticipation of upholding Austria's energetic course.

APPEAL AGAINST THE CIGARETTEE

Prohibition Asked by Dominion Christian Temperance Union —Gervais Amendment.

The Dominion Christian Temperance Union has issued the following manifesto with reference to the cigarette bill in the House of Commons, and Mr. Gervais' amendment.

It is now over five years since the agitation for a bill to prohibit the manufacture, importation and sale of cigarettes began. In that time and in the interests of the bill, thousands of public addresses have been made, hundreds of thousands of pages of literature scattered and a petition, representing nearly 200,000 people, presented to Parliament. The press of this country, from Nova Scotia to British Columbia, has noticed and, in the main, approved the movement. Amongst religious and temperance journals there has been no dissenting voice of which we know. The Presbyterian General Assembly, every Methodist conference in the country, Baptist conventions, the Congregational Union and the general gatherings of other denominations and of temperance and philanthropic societies, have passed strongly-worded resolutions of indorsation, as have also many city and town councils and school boards. From individual voters thousands of letters and telegrams have poured into Ottawa to their representatives, asking support for the measure.

Last session a motion favoring such a bill was introduced and carried by 103 yeas to 48 nays. The bill followed, running a long gauntlet of opposition. It was pushed from one order paper to another and finally dropped out of sight on a ruling of the speaker. It was pointed out at the time, by a friend of the bill, that other measures had been permitted to pass that might have been knifed on the same grounds.

This year the bill has had a first and second reading and has passed "committee of the whole." It is now confronted with an amendment, introduced by Mr. Gervais, of Montreal. This asks that the title of the bill be altered and every clause in it struck out. Instead of prohibiting manufacture, importation and sale, as in Tennessee, Oklahoma, etc., it provides that sale to those under 16 years of age, be forbidden.

The following are the objections to such action:

First—Five out of our seven Provinces have already legislated against the sale to minors, not only of cigarettes, as in Mr. Gervais' bill, but of all forms of tobacco. British Columbia set the age at 15, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island at 16, and New Brunswick and Ontario at 18 years of age. It was because these enactments had proved worthless to even restrain, much less prevent, the growth of the cigarette business, that appeal was made to Ottawa. Age-limit laws belong to the provincial governments and prohibition to the Dominion. But age-limit laws have been tried and found wanting by the Provinces.

Second—In over 20 states of the American Union cigarettes are prohibited to those under stated ages. There is but one verdict on the value of such enactments. Government statistics, the declarations of educationalists, officers of the law, parents and others interested in the young, all disprove their efficacy.

Within the last five years prohibitory bills have been introduced into many state legislatures, and their popularity, among the people, was made apparent by the petitions that accompanied them, and the letters that followed in their wake. To offset this rational solution of the question, tobacco interests have continually introduced age-limit laws. If the state prohibited to those under 15, then the cigarette champion argued vigorously for 16 or 17, even for 18, years of age—anything but prohibition. "The Boy," organ of the National American Anti-Cigarette League, said last year:

"Laws forbidding the sale to minors are encouraged by a mythical society which seems to exist only in the elaborate letterheads which have named San Francisco, St. Paul and other cities as headquarters. As long ago as 1897 a Chicago morning paper assisted the editor of 'Boy' in investigating this pretended organization, which continues to send to legislatures and others most specious arguments and many absolutely false statements, and found it a fraud. "The Society for the Suppression of the Sale of Tobacco and Other Narcotics to the Youth of the Nation' is a name that carries weight when the fraud has not been exposed."

The latest device of those "whose craft is in danger," is a postcard chain crusade, gotten out under the auspices of "The National League of the United States Moral Society" — headquarters Philadelphia, Pa.—with no specific address given. Each person receiving a card is requested to send their name and address for a monster petition to Congress to prohibit sale to minors, and to write three friends to do likewise. This scheme was sprung upon any state which was on the event of passing a prohibitory bill. Attention was divided and thereby dissipated. Many of these cards found their way into Canada. A young lady, who complied with the request to send her name, received the following reply from the Philadelphia postoffice:

Office of the Superintendent of Delivery,
Philadelphia, Pa., June 1, 1904.

Mrs. ——
London, Ont., Canada:

Dear Madam,—Replying to your favor of the 27th ult., regarding a letter addressed "National League Society, Philadelphia," which was returned to you through the Dead Letter Office, I have to inform you that mail so addressed is undeliverable, and hundreds of pieces, at intervals, are forwarded to the Dead Letter Office, Washington, D.C. Respectfully,

GEO. W. KNOWLES,
Assistant Postmaster.

Mr. Gervais' bill is an attempt to lead into a blind alley the forces now arrayed in deadly combat against the cigarette. With an indifference to criticism that is astonishing, the penalties are all of the "not exceeding variety," which law-breakers hold in such contempt. The magistrate may impose a fine anywhere between one cent and one hundred dollars, or imprisonment for an hours or six months. As a final hamper to action, the bill provides that unless information is laid within four weeks of the contravention of the act, nothing can be done.

Should this amendment become law we will have another example of "the mountain that labored and brought forth a mouse." It will only satisfy the tobacco interests.

(Signed).

LATEST MARKETS

STOCK MARKETS.

H. C. Becher, broker, Bank of Commerce building, received the following by private wire from Bartlett, Frazier & Carrington today:

New York, July 11—Noon.—There has been a fairly active market today, and with few exceptions stocks have maintained strength. There has been no pronounced feature in the market, and the fluctuations have not been very wide. There seemed to be some uncertainty and prices did not advance as quickly after the opening as some expected. The undertone is good and the market during the first hour was firm, the easier tone developing only at the beginning of the second hour. The market is now off a fraction from the highest prices, but there seems to be no chance of a break. The outlook for the afternoon is one of strength. Southern Pacific and Union Pacific have been fairly active and strong. Metropolitan has been fairly steady. Erie sold off fractionally, and St. Paul has been firm. National Lead scored a sharp advance. The Steel stocks have been strong and Pennsylvania firm. There is no news of importance. Sales to noon were 269,000 shares.

LIVERPOOL DAIRY REPORT, WEEK ENDING JULY 1.

Cheese—Demand during the week has been of a retail character, but with stronger cables the holders are firmer, as present prices show less on the cost of goods arriving. There are still free offerings of old cheese at irregular values. We quote today: Finest new States and Canadian, white and colored, 38s 6d to 40s 6d per cwt; lower qualities, new-made goods, 26s to 35s; finest old, white and colored, according to quality, 40s to 43s.

Butter—Supplies of both continental and Irish are very large, and the demand has been insufficient to absorb the same, consequently values have declined and quotations are very irregular; medium grades of butter are also in plentiful supply, but the demand is slow. The Copenhagen quotation is unchanged for next week. We report today's values as under: Choicest Canadian creamery, in 56-lb boxes, 82s to 85s per cwt; choicest Danish, in casks, 98s to 103s; choicest Irish creamery, 84s to 92s; choicest Australian and New Zealand, 80s to 88s; choicest Argentine, 80s to 85s; choicest Russian, in Kiel casks, 80s to 84s; secondary grades, Russian and Siberian, 73s to 77s; medium grades, States and Canadian, 66s to 72s.

EXPERT ENGINEER TO GIVE OPINION

Captain Midford Will Say What Kind of a Breakwater Is Required.

At the meeting of the breakwater committee tonight, the opinion of an expert engineer and contractor will be furnished as to the class of wall it will require to adequately protect West London from floods. This expert's name is Capt. A. G. Midford, and he has been in the city for some time, and it is understood was connected for a period with the Midland Construction Company, which is building the line of the London and Southwestern Traction Company. The captain was engaged for two years on the construction of the Panama Canal, built the waterworks in the city of Havana, Cuba; was on the construction of Brooklyn bridge, and besides superintended many public works in South Africa. He also gave expert testimony at Washington as to the possibility of raising the Spanish warship Christobel Colon, sunk by Admiral Sampson. He claims also to be a survivor of Col. Weatherspoon's famous regiment, which was cut to pieces by the Zulus at the battle of Zlobane, in South Africa, in the latter seventies.

The captain today went over the plans and specifications for a wall prepared by Engineer Graydon, and it is understood he claims a weaker wall would be of no protection to West London. He will appear before the committee tonight.

JOBS FOR INJURED; NO MONEY IN SIGHT

How the Aldermen Feel On the Subject of Firemen Who Are Hurt.

Almost the sole topic of conversation around the city hall today was the writ issued by Fireman Frank Roberton against the city. The mayor and the chairman of No. 3 committee would say nothing of the matter, and Chief Clark is also mum. It is understood, however, that the city is averse to giving Roberton anything but a permanent situation in one of the fire halls. Of course a crippled fireman is of no use to the chief, and he may naturally be expected to object to Roberton being placed on the roll as a fireman. If the men who claim to be permanently injured through the Sterling fire are to be given permanent positions on the brigade then it will mean that there will be just so many extra firemen in London. In case of total disability the policy covering the met insures them a certain amount of money, and some of the aldermen are of the opinion that this lets the city out. Others feel that the city is in duty bound to help the men who are injured, but they do not like the idea of the men suing for money. And, of course, the importance of the present action lies in the fact that if Roberton has a claim, the widow of the late chief as well as three or four firemen also have claims against the city unless it be that such persons have allowed the time to lapse in which they should have issued writs.

The board of health is preparing a statement of the cost of caring for Pte. Craig, the Embro militiaman, who was taken ill with smallpox at the camp here, and the bill will be forwarded to the department of militia and defense at once. It is said the account will run up to $500. The board feels that the Government should pay all of Craig's expenses here. Craig was discharged last week.

Complaint having been made of an alleged nuisance caused by Hyman's tannery through the depositing of refuse in Carling's Creek, Hon. Mr. Hyman informed City Engineer Graydon that no matter what the cost might be, he was willing to do whatever the board of health directed to abate the nuisance, so long as the board was willing to say with assurance that the work performed would abate the odor complained of. Dr. English, chairman of the board of health, also visited the tannery today, and he declares that the place is as clean and well-conducted as it is possible to have it. It appears, however, that certain cuttings from the hides, which were formerly sent to the Arscott rendering works, are now refused at that place owing to the board of health regulations, and the clippings are now shipped to other points.

Tuesday, Ald. Wyatt, chairman of the board of works; Manager Carr, of the Street Railway Company, and Engineer Graydon will inspect the asphalt pavements with a view to having the necessary repairs made at once. Whether or not the company will be allowed to use bricks next to its rails remains to be seen.

A person signing himself "Taxpayer," has sent a communication to Engineer Graydon complaining that a certain milkman is guilty of an infraction of the fire limits bylaw on Dundas street. Mr. Graydon says he cannot locate the infraction, but says that if "Taxpayer" will send his name and address, as well as the necessary particulars, the case will be looked into without delay.

LATE J. R. PEEL'S FUNERAL

Many Citizens Attend to Pay Their Last Tribute of Respect.

The funeral of the late John R. Peel took place this afternoon from his late residence, 499 Queen's avenue. There was a large attendance, the late Mr. Peel having been one of London's best-known and most-esteemed citizens. Among those present from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Mills, of Ridgetown, and Mr. and Mrs. Belden, of Toronto.

Service was conducted at the house at 2:30 o'clock by Rev. J. J. Ross, pastor of the Talbot Street Baptist Church, and interment was made in Woodland Cemetery, the following friends of the deceased acting as pallbearers: Messrs. Chief Williams, Stephen Grant, William Skinner, Col. Culver, J. R. Minhinnick, Henry Macklin and John Cameron.

FIREMAN FALLS FROM HIS ENGINE

Alights On Telegraph Wires and Is Saved From Serious or Fatal Injury.

A peculiar accident occurred yesterday morning by which a fireman on the Pere Marquette came within an ace of losing his life, and yet was uninjured. He fell off his engine while crossing the high bridge just out of St. Thomas, and would have been hurled to certain death had he not fallen on the telegraph wires which run along beside the bridge.

It was at this place only last year that a boy was killed by falling off a train. Everyone who travels to Port Stanley knows the great height of this bridge, and also that there is not a more dangerous place on the road for such a thing to occur. Yesterday morning, however, while firing on a freight, the fireman was thrown off the engine, by reason of the latter's giving a lurch. He struck the telegraph wires in such a manner that he rebounded a distance of five feet or more in the air. Despite his great fall, he retained his presence of mind, and as he came down a second time he clung to the wires until rescued by a rope, which the train crew let down to him. He was pulled up without any injury.

IDENTITY NOT CLEARLY PROVEN

But the Man Found On G. T. R Tracks Is Believed To Be a Clevelander.

The inquest in the case of the unknown man found on the Grand Trunk tracks near Komoka, was opened at that place on Saturday evening, before Dr. C. C. Ross, coroner, of Hyde Park, and a jury. Little evidence was offered, the jury viewing the remains and adjourning until Friday evening.

The identity of the dead man has not been positively proven, but the railway authorities are satisfied that he is Clinton Loomes, of Cleveland, the circus employe who was with the show here on Friday night, but was missing when the circus reached Chatham on Saturday morning. The dead man answered in every way the description of Loomes. The latter has a brother-in-law living in Cleveland, and the circus people have been asked to notify him of the affair.

It was understood at first that Loomes was killed by the circus train, but there is now some doubt on this score, as one leg was found about three hundred feet west of the body, indicating that he was struck by an eastbound train. The mystery surrounding the condition of the man's pockets has not been cleared up.

FAREWELL TO MR. WRIGHT.

Mr. T. C. Wright left on Saturday to spend Sunday with his father at Goderich, prior to leaving for the Pacific coast. Mr. Wright as manager of the Nordheimer Piano Company, has been very popular and many citizens will regret his departure. The esteem in which he was held among his own employes was shown on Saturday, when the office staff left a handsome gold-headed umbrella on his desk for him. Another beautiful umbrella was also presented him by the Heintzman Piano Company employes. Mr. Wright was called into the latter office and was told how much his departure was regretted. He had always been a fair-dealing man and was always on the best of terms with his competitors. Mr. Croden made the presentation and in doing so offered the best wishes for the improvement of Mr. Wright's health and his success in the west. In reply, Mr. Wright said this was the first time he had been honored in this way, and he esteemed it very much. He felt he was leaving very good friends behind him in London. Mr. Wright was also the recipient of individual tokens of esteem from the travelers of the Nordheimer Company.

INFORMATION FOR COMMISSION.

Mayor Beck is securing information these days as to how much electrical energy is now used in this city to operate the street railway, the lighting plant and the various other places in which it is utilized, in order that he may lay the facts and figures before the Niagara power commission, of which he is a member. It is understood that an estimate places the number of horse-power in daily use in this city at about 5,000, but not above these figures.

A MARGUERITE MARRIAGE.

Sault Ste. Marie News, June 5: "A pretty marguerite wedding took place this morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bassingthwaighte, Pim street, when their eldest daughter, Miss Winifred Blanche Bassingthwaighte, was united in marriage to Harry W. Angus, of North Bay, Rev. E. I. Hart, pastor of the Central Methodist Church, officiating. The house was tastefully decorated with marguerites in great profusion, ferns and trailing vines. As the bridal party approached the altar, which was a bank of green, they walked through an aisle of white ribbons held by Misses Helene and Enid Bassingthwaighte, sisters of the bride, to the accompaniment of the wedding march, played by Miss Miller. The ceremony was performed under a horseshoe of marguerites. The little girls were dressed in white with wreaths of marguerites. The bride was given away by her father and looked very pretty in a gown of white silk crepe de chine mounted on white taffeta. The bridesmaid was Miss Lilia Miller, and she wore a gown of pale gray crepe cloth mounted on taffeta of the same shade. Dr. Dudley, of North Bay, was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Angus will reside in North Bay." Both formerly lived in London.

A novelty in vocal music has just appeared in the form of a bowling song. Two well-known local bowlers are the author and composer, Mr. John Stevenson having written the words which include exclusively bowling terms. The music, which has been composed by Mr. Charles E. Wheeler, is adapted to the song, and is catchy and easy to sing. No doubt there will be a large call for it.

SUMMONED WRONG MAN.

City Engineer Graydon asked the police court clerk to summon William Magee to court to answer to a charge of a breach of the bylaw relating to the fire limits. The case was adjourned and in the meantime the right man will be notified.

FIGHTING FOR A NAME.

Mr. Langmaid was alarmed, and called the family physician, who said she was not seriously ill, but needed perfect quiet for a few days.

She was not able to leave her bed until Friday, when she called for the daily papers, but her father had taken care that none should be found in the house, for he had no intention of allowing her mind to be harrowed by reading the sensational versions of the bank robbery, and the numerous conjectures regarding young Heatherton's continued absence.

But Gertrude was determined to know the worst, and about eleven o'clock informed her mother that she thought she would feel better for a drive.

The horses were accordingly ordered, and the fair girl drove directly to a news-stand, where she obtained the papers she wished, and eagerly devoured all that she could find relating to the matter which so deeply cerned her.

It was while thus engaged that she learned of Mr. Lawson's sudden death and of his burial the previous day.

She was terribly shocked, and with a heart full of sympathy for Mrs. Heatherton, she ordered the coachman to drive her directly to Mount Vernon street.

"Yes, Mrs. Heatherton is at home," the servant said, in answer to her inquiry for that lady, "but I doubt if she is able to see anyone."

"I am sure she will see me, Nellie," Gertrude said, with a wan smile that went to the girl's heart, for she had shrewdly suspected how matters stood between her and Ned, "Let me go directly up to her room; I must see her, Nellie; indeed, I must!"

So she was allowed to enter, and a moment later she was tapping lightly upon the door of Miriam's room.

"Come in," called a tearful voice, and Gertrude passed in and found the unhappy woman nearly prostrated after her trying interview with Richard Heatherton and his father, for she had but just come from the library.

The fair girl was beside her in an instant, her arms around her, and with the brown head pillowed upon her breast.

"Dear Mrs. Heatherton," she sobbed, tears raining over her cheeks, "Don't give up; don't lose courage; Ned will come back; I am sure he will; then everything will be explained, and his name cleared from all suspicion. Oh, do not be so disheartened," she continued, as the overwrought woman wept afresh at this evidence of sympathy and faith, "I know that he is innocent—he could not be guilty of a crime like that, and I shall never lose faith in him."

Miriam drew the girl close to her heart and kissed her fondly.

"You are a precious comforter," she sobbed, finding it a blessed relief to give way to the tears which had been so long pent up, "I, too, am sure that Ned is not guilty—that he is only the victim of some terrible plot; but the suspense regarding his fate, together with all this newspaper sensation, and the loss of our best friend, had driven me nearly frantic. It was kind of you, dear, to come to me in this dark hour. Oh, Gertrude, what do you suppose has become of the dear boy?"

Gertrude's fair face paled at this question. The least of her own fears was that he had been dishonest.

She knew that he could not do a mean or unworthy act. But his fate—the thought of that appalled her. The fear that some desperate person had waylaid and, perhaps, murdered him, to get possession of the keys he held, made her heart faint within her, and chilled her blood with dread. The two heavy-hearted women talked long of their mutual trouble, and while they could not allay the fears of each other, they were strengthened to bear it by the exchange of confidence and sympathy, during which Gertrude whispered the secret of her own and Ned's love and hopes for the future.

She remained for a couple of hours, then returned to Arlington street, not only believing in her lover more firmly than ever, but strengthened in her determination to stand by him to the end, in spite of the opinions of the world and her father's commands.

The next day she returned with Mrs. Page to Halifax, and the following Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Langmaid sailed for Europe.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

Richard Heatherton and his father at once set about the settlement of Mr. Lawson's property.

The former proved his identity and legal claim as next of kin, and filed a petition to be appointed as executor of the estate.

The two men came to the conclusion that it would be useless, as well as very unwise, to try to turn Miriam out of her home; accordingly, they decided to allow her to remain, and everything to go on the same as during Mr. Lawson's life, for the present.

Mr. Lawson had left considerable real estate, and Richard Heatherton knew enough of law to understand that if the court should grant his petition, he could never dispose of any real estate without the signature of his wife; therefore he wisely concluded to bide his time, hoping to induce her later on by either bribery or strategy to accede to his plans.

* * * * * * *

But let us ascertain what was happening to Ned during all this time.

We left him just as he lost consciousness, in one of the staterooms of Mr. Gould's yacht, where he slept heavily and profoundly as those who after long suffering are quieted and subdued by morphine.

It was perhaps nearly an hour later that the door to his stateroom was cautiously opened, and a face pered in upon the unconscious man.

It was that of the villain who had lured Ned to the yacht, and a cool of fiendish triumph swept over his features as he saw that his victim was helpless and at his mercy.

He entered, shutting the door behind him, then with dexterous hands and rapid movements he went through Ned's pockets, but abstracting nothing until he found the precious keys for which he was searching.

A gleam of exultation lighted his eyes as he transferred them to his own pocket.

"Aha!" he chuckled. "Now I shall have things all my own way. If this isn't the easiest climb to fortune a man ever had, I am much mistaken."

Then he stood for a few moments, looking thoughtfully down upon the prostrate form of his victim.

"You are a fine fellow," he muttered, "I'm blest if you aren't, and it seems almost a pity to ruin your life like this. I can't help it, though—money I must and will have at any cost. I will not harm a hair of your head," he continued, with an involuntary shiver, "you shall simply be my prisoner until I can land you safe in another country, then I'll try to get you a good position, and set you on your legs again."

He stood a moment earnestly regarding Ned, noticing his fine proportions, his well-shaped hear, intellectual brow and handsome face; then turning away he went softly out of the room, locking the door after him.

This occurred, it will be remembered, on Saturday afternoon.

After leaving Ned, Gould went immediately on deck, where he called the sailor who had rowed him and the young man to the yacht, ordered him to lower the boat, and a few moments later they were making rapidly for the wharf again.

As Gould stepped upon the rude stairs he remarked in a low tone to his companion:

"You will be waiting here exactly at midnight tomorrow, and will remain perfectly quiet until you see me light a cigar and make the usual signal."

"Aye, aye, sir!" the sailor responded. Then, as Gould leaped up the stairs and walked rapidly uptown, he re-entered the boat, and rowed back to the yacht.

The next night a little past mignight, two men stealthily approached Rowe's wharf from different directions.

Each bore a good-sized satchel, but when they met, neither spoke, simply walking with swift, noiseless steps to the point where Gould had landed the evening previous.

Arriving there, one of the men lighted a cigar and whirled it in a circle three times.

LONDONS AND ROCKETS TIED FOR FIRST PLACE

By shutting out the Londons in the game at Tecumseh Park on Saturday, the Rockets gave the champions their third trouncing of the season, tied them for first place, and made the City League race more interesting. Each team has now won seven games, and lost three. Neither the Blue Labels nor the McClary nine are anywhere near the leaders, the former having .333, and the McClary nine .273. The standing:

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.

RAIN INTERFERED IN CITY LEAGUE

Stopped Rocket-London Game—The Champions Suffer a Shut-Out.

Rain prevented a double header at Tecumseh Park on Saturday afternoon—in fact, it came down so heavily in the first match that play had to be stopped at the end of the sixth inning, when the score was 4 to 0 in favor of the Rockets, making the third defeat and the first shutout for the Londons this season.

The Rockets did exceptionally well. Jackson kept the Londons down to two hits, and gave four passes, and of the six men who thus reached first, only one got as far as third. That was in the last inning. The Rockets scored two in the fourth after two men were gone, and in the next inning as many more runs were scored, largely through loose work by the champion. Showed His Nose in Front As They Passed the Wire

Broomstick Wins the Great Brighton Handicap—Beat Best Runners of Day.

New York, July 9. — A new world's record for one and one-quarter miles was created in the Brighton Handicap at Brighton Beach this afternoon. Broomstick, from the stable of Capt. S. S. Brown, the Pittsburg millionaire, won by a short head from Herman B. Duryea's Irish Lad. W. M. Scheftel's Highball, winner of the American Derby at Chicago, was third. The time 2:02 4-5, is the best on record now for the distance over any kind of a track.

Irish Lad led the way almost from beginning to end. He faltered in the last jump when Broomstick, having kept step with him for the last quarter of a mile, showed his nose in front as they passed under the wire. When the Duryea horse came back to the stand the great crowd knew why he had faltered, for he could scarcely hobble along, having gone lame in the last few strides of his record-breaking journey. Waterboy and Ort Wells, heavily played as first and second choices, were never prominent in the running and finished fifth and sixth respectively.

More than 30,000 persons, including a large percentage of ladies, cheered as Waterboy, in the orange and blue of J. B. Haggin, strode majestically through the paddock gate and headed the processsion past the grandstand. Irish Lad, always popular with the metropolitan crowd, was next, and was loudly acclaimed. Ort Wells, the grand 3-year-old son of King Eric, was next, in the colors of John A. Drake. Behind him came Major Daingerfield, owned by William B. Leedes; Highball, the Scheftel candidate; Broomstick, bearing the cherry jacket of the Brown stable, and Eugenia Burch, in the white and black of Mrs. L. Curtis. All eyes were on the first three, and little Broomstick, practically neglected in the betting, cantered away to the post almost unnoticed.

NO DELAY IN STARTING

Starter Cassidy lined up the field and sent them away in quick order. Broomstick had the rail and showed in front for a moment, but Irish Lad, cleverly handled by Hildebrand, quickly replaced the leader, and Highball drew up rapidly. In this order they passed the judges' stand, with Waterboy running fourth. Ort Wells fifth, Eugenia Burch sixth and Major Daingerfield last. Irish Lad's great speed seemed to increase as he went around the sharp turns of the circular track, and try as they might, the others could not overtake him. At the half-mile post he was half a length in front. Hildebrand eased up a bit thinking to save his charge for the great effort in the homestretch.

Then Broomstick crawled up slowly beside him. At the mile post the Brown candidate showed his nose in front for a moment, but he could not gain an inch, and they came down the stretch side by side, with Irish Lad just enough in the lead to appear certain of victory. The grand struggle which had evoked volleys of cheers from the moment the horses had passed the half-mile post brought everyone to their feet, each screaming with might and main for his favorite. The supporters of Waterboy and Ort Wells had given up hope long before the racers had turned into the stretch, and the jockeys on those horses, seeing how hopeless was the chance for overtaking the flying leaders, did not urge on their mounts. The mile post had been passed in 1:37 4-5, and the hopelessness of making up ground at such a clip was apparent to the tail-enders.

IRISH LAD FALTERS.

A few yards from the judges' stand, with a mighty roar of applause ringing in his ears, Irish Lad faltered, and his head dropped. Broomstick jumped into the lead and as they shot under the wire showed a short head in front. Highball was six lengths away from Irish Lad and the others were strung out.

When the time was hung up, showing a new world's record, another wave of cheers swept over the crowd, but it died away into one of sympathy as Irish Lad limped back to the judges' stand. It was discovered a few days ago that he had developed an incipient ringbone, and it is said to be entirely probable that today's race will be his last.

The race was worth $25,000, of which $2,000 went to the second and $1,000 to the third horse. Hermis was withdrawn with the other Thomas candidate. Lameness was given as the cause for scratching the son of Hermance.

The balance of the card did not reward the form players to any extent.

THE FOUL STRIKE RULE IS UPHELD

Manager Nichols Says to Return to the Old Rule Would be a Retrograde Step.

"From the observations that I have made since my return to the National League," said Manager Charles Nichols, of the St. Louis Cardinals, in a recent interview, "I do not believe that there is one manager in that organization who favors the abolition of the foul strike rule. The nearest that any manager comes to it is in the contention of Manager Hanlon, of the Brooklyns, who claims that in the interest of more hitting in games the pitching distance ought to be lengthened. He, however, is in favor of the retention of the foul strike rule, for he—like so many other managers in the business—sees where the rule has little or no effect on the batting.

"The oppsition to the foul strike rule is purely an American League agitation, and one in which a few individuals, and not the public, are doing all the kicking. To return to the rule would mean as much retrogression in baseball as would the re-establishment of a rule allowing an out on every batted ball that was caught on a first bound.

"Do you ever hear any hisses when a batsman hits out a hard foul and the umpire declares a strike? Not once in my career since the establishment of the foul strike rule have I heard any demonstration against it.

"Then, let me ask, have you ever heard any hisses when a batsmen persistently fouled off ball after ball in order to rattle the pitcher, and thereby draw a base on balls? You and every other person who saw baseball games before the foul strike rule was adopted will recall the storms of hisses that greeted such practices when worked by McGraw, Keeler, Roy Thomas, Hugh Jennings, Tenney and others who were adepts at the trick.

"That is the best evidence that the general public—the great masses of the people who support the game—are not opposed to the foul strike rule, and are opposed to the practicing of fouling off, as it would exist under the old rules. And that the foul strike rule does not injure the game is shown by the fact that the attendance in all cities is larger this year than ever before. The foul strike rule will not be rescinded—at least not by the National League."

PERKINS LEADS IN THE BATTING

Has an Average of .500 in the Wholesale League—Other Heavy Hitters.

Of the players in the Wholesale League, there are nine who now have a batting average better than 300 per cent. Perkins, of the Perrin nine, heads the list with .500, made in 26 times at bat, the nearest to him being Maxwell, of the Bennet team, with .416 per cent. Gatecliffe, of the White nine, is the only other player reaching the .400 mark. Of the nine men better than .300, three are with Perrin nine, two with Bennets, one with Whites, and three with McClarys. The figures as compiled by Mr. C. G. Morehead, the official scorer, are:

	A.B.	H.	P.C.
Perkins (Perrins)	26	13	.500
Maxwell (Bennets)	24	10	.416
Gatecliffe (Whites)	25	10	.400

Holman (McClarys)	22	8	.359
Bennett (Perrins)	26	9	.346

PITTSBURG MUST BE RECKONED WITH

Team That Beats Pirates Out Will Probably Win the National Pennant.

In the three seasons that Dougherty played with the Boston Club he participated in 294 games, made 219 runs and 395 hits. He had a batting percentage of .335 in 1902, .332 in 1903, and .273 in 1904. His percentage for three seasons was .323 with a total of .406. He made 45 doubles, 22 triples and four home runs in the three seasons. His fielding percentage was .887 in 1902, .957 in 1903, and .917 in 1904. For three seasons, .925. In eight games with New York he has made 10 runs, 17 hits with 25 total—a batting percentage of .407, with .641 total. Batting for the season, .300.

The predicted spurt of Pittsburg seems to have materialized, says the Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune. The Pirates have shown some of their old form lately, and before long they will be right on top of Cincinnati and Chicago, and may pass them and be in a position to go after the leaders. Pittsburg must not be counted out of the race, and the team which beats them out will most probably win the bunting. Chicago and Cincinnati have not shown their good form of late. Both teams have lost games with a frequency that is alarming, and this is particularly true of Cincinnati. There will have to be a decided brace up on the part of the Reds if they expect to have anything to say about where the flag shall float next season.

Dan L. McGann, the great first baseman of the New York Club of the National League was born at Shelbyville, Ky., on July 15, 1872. His professional debut was made with the team which represented his native city in the Blue Grass League of 1891. In 1892 he was with Harrodsburg in 1893 with Lexington and 1894 with Marysville, of the Kentucky League. He went to the Lynchburg Club, of the Virginia League, in 1895 and remained with it as its second baseman until August, 1896, when his release was purchased by the Boston National League Club. In 1897 he was Toronto's first baseman and the following season joined Washington. He has been connected with Brooklyn and St. Louis, of the National League and Baltimore, of the American League, before he signed with the New York Club. During his professional career he has played the positions of catcher, second baseman and first baseman.

ANOTHER ASSAULT ON THE RECORDS

Arthur Shrubb, of London, England, Chops Marks for Two and Four Miles.

Arthur Shrubb, of the South London (England) Harriers, made another assault on the distance-running records recently and succeeded in lowering both amateur and professional records for the two and four miles. Shrubb's performance took place at games of the West of Scotland Harriers, at Ibrox Park, Glasgow, Scotland. The time for the two miles, was 9 minutes and 9 3-5 seconds, and this completely wipes all previous records off the slate, including Bill Lang's old mark of 9 minutes and 11 seconds, which had stood for the last forty years. The time for the mile was 4 minutes and 27 seconds.

Not content with such a wonderful piece of running, Shrubb turned out for the mile handicap a little later and cantered home a winner in 4 minutes 22 4-5 seconds. These races occurred on a Saturday, and on the Monday following and at the same meeting, which covered two days, Shrubb tackled the four-mile handicap. He had to allow big starts, but it was evident after a mile or so that he would win. His time for the three miles was 14 minutes 27 1-5 seconds, which broke the long-standing Scotch record held by F. A. Bacon, by two-fifths of a second. Shrubb's time for the full distance was 19 minutes 23 2-5 seconds, breaking all former records, both amateur and professional.

CHESBRO HAS MOST BRILLIANT BATTING STREAK OF THE SEASON

With Fourteen Straight, He Beats the Record of the Giants' Iron Man.

When Jack Chesbro, of the New York Americans, went down to defeat before Gibson and his Boston support, on Thursday, the most brilliant pitching streak of the season was broken. Chesbro had won fourteen straight, something that no other twirler had done, and something that it is not likely either he or any other performer will do in what is left of 1904. It surpassed the record of McGinnity, who won twelve straight himself, and who was supposed, when his streak was broken, to have set the mark for the year.

McGinnity fell down ignobly when he tried to make it thirteen straight. The "fatal" number seemed to have a horror for the "Iron Man" and he was completely unnerved.

Not so with Chesbro. He had been up against the hoodoo number twice in one day, and though it was a disastrous day for "Happy Jack" he just pulled his belt an inch or two tighter around his waist and got down to business, and as a result of his determination to fight off the visions of those two uniucky numbers he has beaten the record of McGinnity by winning fourteen straight.

It was on May 12 that Chesbro faced the Clevelands. Thirteen hits off his delivery gave the Buckeye state boys the game. Up to that time Chesbro had won four and lost two games, and when he dropped the third one on the 13th of the month he decided to throw superstition to the winds and buckle down to business.

To say that Chesbro's performance overshadows McGinnity's would be doing an injustice to the "Iron Man," whose record, although beaten, is a brilliant one; but "Happy Jack" has been more considerably handicapped than McGinnity, as the majority of his games have been won against the strongest teams in the American League, while his team was in a badly crippled condition and on the road.

Chesbro has been a wonderful box-man for years. He was a big factor in the Pittsburg's winning the pennant two years in succession, and last season he won the majority of the games in which he pitched for the Highlanders.

He started this season by winning the opening game against the champion Bostons, with "Cy" Young in the box. In the first seven games he pitched he won four and lost three, two to the Philadelphians and one to the Clevelands. "Jack" has been especially strong against the western clubs, while the Athletics appear to be the only club able to solve his curves. He has faced the strongest twirlers in the American League.

He won two games against "Cy" Young, of Boston; two games against "Wild Bill" Donovan, of Detroit; two against Patten, of Washington, and two against Jacobsen, of Washington. He was also victorious against Plank, of the Athletics; Dineen, of Boston; Rhoades and Moore, of Cleveland; White and Altrock, of Chicago; Mullin, of Detroit, and Pelty and Sudhoff, of St. Louis.

WHITE SOX PLAY A ONE-RUN GAME

Comiskey Trains Them to Get a Man Around the Bases in Each Inning.

The White Sox (Chicago American League) have won many a game this season by one run. That they have done this so often is due to the fact that Comiskey has had his men play "a one-run game," that is, devote every endeavor to getting one man around an inning. Of course, if the Sox were able to get at least one run in each inning, they would win nine-tenths of their games, and they do not meet with success in most of the innings. But if one will follow the scores of the Chicago team week in and week out he will see that the Sox score in more innings than any other team of the league, generally getting one or two runs at a whack. This is the result of Comiskey's teachings when the team was engaged in spring practice at Martin Springs, Texas, last March. Not long ago one of the Chicago baseball writers said: "Comiskey had his men work for an hour or more every day at various means of getting one man around the bases in an inning. He had men enough for two teams and he would place a base-runner on first and then the next batters were instructed to send him home. For instance, each batter would take a turn at sacrificing him to second, or possibly third, in case the hit and run play was used when the batter sacrificed. Then the batters were taught to fly out to right fiel dwith a runner on second and third, and so on. This sort of practice was kept up for weeks, until the team became more proficient in this style of play than any other team in the business, unless it is McGraw's Giants. Commy himself would be out on the field teaching his men every one of the fine points of the game."

ONLY ONE TRIPLE STEAL HAS EVER BEEN MADE

"So far as I know, but one triple steal was ever made in professional baseball," said Billy Bradley recently. "This occurred in a game at the Polo grounds between the Chicago and New York National League clubs, about five or six years ago. I was with Chicago then and Garvin was pitching for us. About half-way through the game Jack Doyle got around to third, with Kid Gleason on second and Warner on first. "As Garvin drew back his arm for the long swing, Doyle called out, 'Now, then, all together,' and dashed for home. At the same time Gleason started for third and Warner for second. Garvin was so astonished he let the ball go a little high and Doyle was safe at the plate. At the same instant Gleason came charging into third, and, looking over, I saw Warner sliding into second. It was a daring play, but it failed to win the game."

MUGSY DOESN'T LIKE TOO MANY PITCHERS

"Too many pitchers are sometimes a bad thing for a club," says McGraw, of the Giants. "Managers get a notion in their heads that they will experiment with their men if they have half a dozen pitchers. Can't see much to that myself. I can take three men and work them regularly and accomplish more than by switching six around so that each will barely get but a game a week. It is playing often with a team that gives the pitcher knowledge of the game. They need it just as much as the other players. Of course, I would like to have plenty of pitchers on hand, for you don't know one minute what one may get hurt, or whether one may get out of condition, and then, if you haven't somebody to put in and work regularly you will be in a bad fix."

Shamrocks Had "Staying Power," and Won the Cup

Defeated Brantford in Second Game for Coveted Trophy—Sports in Canada.

The second match of the series of two between Brantford and the Shamrocks, for the Minto Cup, was played Saturday afternoon, at Montreal, and resulted in a victory for the Shamrocks by 9 to 4. In the first match the score was 8 to 5 in the Shamrocks' favor, so that the Shamrocks retain the cup by a total score of 17 to 9, a pretty good margin. Saturday's match was witnessed by an immense crowd, and was very keenly contested. Brantford put up a good game, but the Shamrocks again showed their marvelous staying powers, and in the end piled up game after game against the visitors. The following are the teams and summary: Brantford—Goal, Hutton; point, Dowling; cover, Ward; defense, White, Finley and Neely; center, Taylor; home field, Degan, Doyle and Dade; inside home, Wilson; outside home, Powers. Shamrocks—Goal, Kenny; point, Howard; cover, McIlwayne; defense, Cavanaugh, O'Reilly and Smith; center, Curry; home field, Robinson, Hoben and J. Brennan; inside home, Hogan; outside home, P. Brennan. Referee, J. Lally, Cornwall, Ont. First game, Brantford, 5½ minutes; 2nd, Shamrocks, 5½ minutes; 3rd, Shamrocks, 5 minutes; 4th, Brantford, 2 minutes; 5th, Shamrocks, 1 minute; 6th, Shamrocks, 1 minute; 7th, Brantford, 6¾ minutes; 8th, Shamrocks, 3 minutes; 9th, Shamrocks, 2 minutes; 10th, Shamrocks, 9 minutes; 11th Brantford, 3 minutes; 12th Shamrocks, 12 minutes; 13th, Shamrocks, 3½ minutes. Totals—Shamrocks, 9; Brantford, 4.

ST. KITTS WINS FROM FERGUS.

St. Catharines, July 9. — The senior C. L. A. match between Fergus and the Athletics here today brought out a good exhibition of the game in the last half. The snappy Fergus home, which was in its best condition of the season, was quite dangerous and succeeded in scoring the only two goals in the first half. Then Kerwin went up on the Athletics' home and the locals gingered up and notched up three successive goals in the third quarter. In the last quarter the Athletics scored another, and Fergus half a minutes later made their third, the Athletics taking their fifth and last goal just before the close of the match, making the score 5 to 3 in their favor. Brown, the goal tender, returned from Cincinnati rather unexpectedly a few hours before the game. He will finish the season with the Athletics.

A HARD GAME.

Guelph, Ont., July 9.—In a hard game this afternoon the Strathconas, of Guelph, shut out Glen Williams, in a championship game in the junior C. L. A. and ran up a score of 9 goals to 0.

TECUMSEHS AGAIN WIN.

Toronto, July 9. — Once more the Tecumsehs show their superiority over the Chippewas, whom they defeated in a senior C. L. A. match this afternoon at the island oval by 6 to 2 before an enormous crowd. Until half time the game was a first-class exhibition, but in the third and fourth quarters it became rather uninteresting. Try as they would the Chippewas could not get through the Tecumsehs' great defense, while the Tecumsehs contented themselves with keeping the Chippewas at a safe distance from the goal, making only occasional and not very serious efforts to do any scoring themselves. The checking was very close and hard, but there were no serious mishaps. Although the penalties imposed by Referee Jackson were numerous, there were a number of palpable violations of the rules which escaped his notice. Summary—1, Chippewas, Hanley, 10 minutes; 2, Tecumsehs, Swayne, 1; 3, Tecumsehs, Swayne, ½; 4, Tecumsehs, Henry, 7½; 5, Chippewas, O'Connor, 1½; 6, Tecumsehs, Henry, 1½; 7, Tecumsehs, Donaldson, 7½; 8, Tecumsehs, Henry, 2¾.

ORT WELLES LEADS WINNING HORSES

Has Brought Over $55,000 to the Exchequer of His Owner This Season.

The victories of Ort Welles in the last ten days in the Lawrence Realization and Commonwealth Handicap, with his previous win in the Tidal and second in the Advance stakes, have placed the son of King Eric and Tea's Over at the head of winning horses so far this year, he having brought into the exchequer of his owner, John A. Drake, $55,170 in stakes and purses. He has $19,975, however, yet to win to equal the record of Africander in 1903, the son of imp. Star Ruby earning $74,145 as a 3-year-old. Drake paid $2,250 for Ort Welles as a yearling. E. R. Thomas is second on the list of Sheepshead Bay winners, having seen his colors ten times in front and winning $35,885, about half of which is due to Hermis' win of the Suburban.

John E. Madden is third in the list with $27,755, must of which is credited to game Flyback. H. B. Duryea's stable gathered $22,068; R. T. Wilson, jun., $21,475; Newton Bennington, $20,050; Andrew Miller, $15,000, and James R. Keene, $11,000. J. W. Colt leads the steeplechase owners away off, Gwyn Tompkins having placed $6,080 to his credit.

SCHAEFER, THE WIZARD, TO RETIRE FROM BILLIARDS

Jacob Schaefer states that he will not challenge Maurice Vignaux for the world's championship, 18-inch balk line billiards, and that he will return to America in August for a visit of six weeks. Schaefer's decision to retain residence in Paris indicates that he will probably retire from billiards as an active participant in championship events and probably confine his future efforts to the sale of a newfangled cushion, to which he has given his name, the field for such business operation being larger abroad than in this country, where the standard table has been too long in use and too generally adopted to expect any change.

Schaefer's recent game with Cure has led the experts to believe that he must be considered as out of any future competition for the championship. Those who have become accustomed to the old cushion and conditions, and the list, includes all in his class, both in America and Europe, could hardly be expected to change their game to conform with such restrictions as were imposed at the match with Cure. This is particularly true since no honors could be gained by his defeat whatever the financial consideration.

FORT HUNTER TOOK BUFFALO HANDICAP

Buffalo's racing public had another peek at Fort Hunter, the horse of the year in this vicinity, on Saturday afternoon, and weather and track such that the pride of the Dyment stable was seen in somewhat new conditions. Mud and rain confronted the son of Potomac when he came out for the handicap, at a mile, fourth event of the day's card. He was giving up chunks of weight to all his company, but the 115 pounds he elected to carry did not disturb his followers, who gleefully accepted the 9 to 20 the ring posted about his prospects. As the race turned out, Fort Hunter probably had a harder task than was anticipated. He led for the journey and won by a neck at the end, but there is no question that it was not an easy victory. Munro was compelled to hustle the Derby colt all through the last sixteenth, and War Whoop was crowding dangerously close at the end. War Whoop ran an excellent race, shaking off Coruscate in the stretch and handily taking the place. Benvolio was a sore disappointment, for after running well up to the half he faded away to nothing, being beaten by even Early Boy, on which Willie Daly, taking one left-about left.

SOME PERSONS have periodical attacks of Canadian cholera, dysentery or diarrhea, and have to use great precautions to avoid the disease. Change of water, cooking and green fruit is sure to bring on the attacks. To such persons we would recommend Dr J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial as being the best medicine in the world for all summer complaints. If a few drops are taken in water when the symptoms are noticed, no further trouble will be experienced.

LONDON AND DISTRICT

—Rev. James Rollins returned to his home from Victoria Hospital today, having sufficiently recovered from his recent accident.

—Lydia Paxman, an employe at the McCormick factory, had her left hand so badly smashed in a machine on Saturday that it had to be amputated.

—It was announced in St. Peter's Cathedral on Sunday that over $3,000 was realized at the picnic held in Queen's Park in aid of St. Joseph's Hospital.

—About 35 priests of the Diocese of London spent the night in this city, and left for Kinkora this morning to attend the funeral of the late Father O'Neil. Bishop McEvay and three of the London priests are also attending the funeral.

—Friday afternoon the children of the Protestant Orphans' Home were, through the generosity of Mr. George C. Gibbons, taken to the circus. They were conveyed to the grounds in a special car and treated to pop, candy and peanuts.

—Passenger Brakeman Patrick Carney, of Clarence street south, who has been on the old Great Western and the Grand Trunk for over 40 years, and on the Sarnia branch for over 20 years, has been transferred to the Windsor division, and will hereafter run to Detroit.

—An automobile party, consisting of Messrs. Dr. Behman, T. H. Newman, manager of the Detroit-Cleveland steamboat line; W. A. Bradley, Chas. R. Bradley, jun., and Harry Turner passed through this city Sunday. The party left Cleveland for Buffalo Friday night, and are on their way to Detroit, where it is their intention to take the boat for Cleveland. They arrived here in two large 36-horse power touring cars, and the time they made is considered very good, despite the very bad condition of the roads through the recent rains.

I. B. S. PICNIC.

The committee on arrangements of the I. B. S. went to Port Stanley Saturday, and it was agreed to hold the picnic at the Port on Aug. 9. In order that there may be no such trouble as that experienced last year, and no necessity to sleep in haylofts, a special train will be run from Port Stanley to London at 11:30 p.m.

OFF FOR ENGLAND.

Mr. Charles B. Fawcett, of 615 Dundas street, who for a number of years has been engaged in the Globe casket works, leaves this afternoon for his former home in Ilfracombe, North Devon, England. He sails from New York via steamer Carpathian, and expects to spend the remainder of the year and the winter in England. Mr. Fawcett's many friends in London sincerely wish he may realize the rest and recuperation which he goes to seek in the old land.

YOUNG BACHELORS' HOP.

One of the most delightful dances of the season was that given at Springbank pavilion Friday evening by several popular young bachelors of the city. Quite a number were in attendance from outside towns and were highly pleased with the evening's entertainment. The floor was in perfect condition and the excellent programme rendered by Dayton & McCormick's orchestra received many encores.

DESTROYED FINE FLOWERS.

While in the country the Man With the Hoe is busy just now, in the city the Man With the Scythe has developed a great streak of energy, and is topping off "weeds" of every description. But his knowledge of "weeds" is evidently somewhat limited. If you dispute this, asks Mr. W. C. Furness, of Talbot street, Mr. Furness is an enthusiastic flower-grower, and for some years has been cultivating a lot of fine, tall-growing perennial plants on the John street side of his garden, with the intention of having the outside of the fence covered with a mass of beautiful foliage and flowers. Last week he was much pleased with the growth being made and the prospects of a fine show shortly. But, alas! on Saturday, the Man With the Scythe got his eagle (?) eye on the fine lot of "weeds" inside the boulevard, whetted his scythe, waded in, and left not a single stalk of a 60-foot row of promising plants.

We will have another lot of those large table

NEW RECTOR GLAD TO RESIDE HERE

Rev. Dyson Hague Contrasts London and Montreal, as Regards the Sabbath.

Rev. Dyson Hague, in the course of his sermon at the Memorial Church last evening, contrasted London with Montreal in regard to the manner in which the Sabbath is kept. He was glad, he said, to live here, where Sundays were quiet. The Sabbath, he claimed, should be a day of rest, without street cars, and things that make it like week days.

The many friends in St. Andrew's Church of Mrs. Rowland Munro were glad to see her resume her position in the choir yesterday after an absence caused by ill-health. In the morning Mrs. Munro sang a solo in good form, which was much appreciated.

"The transforming power of fellowship with God through his Son Jesus Christ" was the morning theme of an excellent address given by J. J. Baker, M.A., principal of Harding Hall, who yesterday occupied the pulpit of Adelaide Street Baptist Church. The preacher took as his text the words of Paul in II. Corinthians iii., 17 (revised version): "But we all with unveiled face reflecting as a mirror the glory of the Lord, are transformed into the same image, from glory to glory, even as from the Lord the Spirit." The preacher showed that in the spiritual as in the natural world, the transforming power is God's. The conditions of Christian progress are defined in the Word of God, and if these are followed he does the rest. Paul may plant, Apollos may water, but it is God who giveth the increase.

Mr. Baker's evening discourse was on "The Marvelous Willingness and Power of Christ to Save Sinners," as shown in his words to the repentant thief on the cross: "Verily I say unto thee, today shalt thou be with me in paradise."—Luke xxiii., 42.

Rev. W. J. Clark leaves today on a trip to the west. Next Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church, Rev. R. Laidlaw, an old Westminster boy, will preach.

Rev. James Little, of Hamilton, a former student at the London Collegiate Institute, conducted Knox Church services yesterday.

Rev. Dr. W. A. Mackenzie, of New York, will preacher at St. Andrew's Church, next Sunday. Yesterday he preached at new St. James and the King Street Presbyterian Churches.

Rev. W. J. Haggitt, of Winnipeg, preached at both services yesterday in the First Methodist Church.

It surprizes many people who visit the special-value sale of boots and shoes being conducted by W. B. Lawson at 198 Dundas street to find the stock so largely up-to-date in styles, as well as at prices below wholesale. It's worth while calling to see for yourself.

ORANGEMEN OF LONDON LODGES HAVE ANNUAL DIVINE SERVICE

Hear an Appropriate Sermon by Rev. D. S. Hamilton On Sunday Afternoon.

The annual parade to divine service of the Orange lodges of the city took place yesterday afternoon, the edifice chosen this year being the First Congregational. The 200 brethren in line reached the church at 4 o'clock. A lodge of lady True Blues accompanied them, and there were a number of other citizens present. The choir of the church rendered good music.

The brethren were welcomed by Rev. D. S. Hamilton, the pastor of the church. Mr. Hamilton went to I. Chroncles for his text, taking part of the 32nd verse of the 12th chapter: "And of the children of Issachar, which were men that had understanding of the times." This was part of the account of the gathering of the tribes at Hebron to make David king over all the nation. From this Mr. Hamilton drew some helpful and profitable lessons. Referring to the reformation as one of the four great periods of the Christian age, he held that it had marked an epoch in the progress of the human race. The principle of 1688 had been the same one that was afterwards asserted by the people of the United States—freedom. The general results of the reformation had been (1) the separation of the northern kingdoms of Europe from the domination of Rome, (2) religious toleration, (3) increase of political liberty, (4) intellectual progress, (5) a purer standard of morals, (6) material progress. It was true today, as it was then, that the nations that stood for religious and political liberty were making the material progress.

The incident of the crowning of David was a lesson in intelligent loyalty. So had been the action of William of Orange, which had transferred the sovereignty from a king who believed he ruled by divine right. It introduced a higher loyalty. The Orange Lodge, said Mr. Hamilton, had by its clause demanding loyalty to the altar and the crown, set forth the principle that must govern men if they are to fulfil the mission of life. He believed the coming in of the period they celebrated marked the better relations between the King and the people. The British people now had a form of government that was the best in the world and, thank God, a sovereign who was following in the footsteps of his mother, and to whom they did not hesitate to give their loyalty.

But, just as in David's time they needed men who understood Israel, and, just as in William's time, they needed men who understood England. So there were men needed in Canada today who ought to know what to do. There were problems constantly needing to be solved. He knew how it affected his heart to see it necessary in the industrial sphere to call out the militia and bring peace by bayonet and threatened bullet. They had not yet attained the position they must reach when disputes between brother and brother had to be settled by such harsh means. If they desired wise leadership they should have that spirit of brotherly co-operation that was encouraged by the brethren he was addressing. Their aim should be regardless of race or creed. He was glad to read that the Orange lodge aimed to protect the rights of every man regardless of his religion. That principle was sufficient to unite men into one grand brotherhood, though they could still be citizens of one common empire. In conclusion the pastor said that it was because William III. was a Christian that he was a hero. The deep religious spirit of William of Orange had made him the instrument in God's hand to bring England out of the turmoil and put her on a foundation from which he prayed she might never be moved.

INTEREST IS MORE ACUTE THIS YEAR

That's What the Judges Find in the Lawn and Garden Competition.

Messrs. W. E. Saunders, R. W. Rennie and E. J. Liddicoatt, of the Civic Improvement Society, judges in the lawn and garden competition, have completed a trip of inspection of the premises of those entered in the contest.

Today Mr. Saunders stated that, compered with last year, this year's results are so far very fine. Not only are the entries greater than last year, but interest in the contest is more acute. The work is carried on with every evidence of a painstaking care, and more scientifically than formerly. As a consequence the flowers and beds look better and reflect great credit upon the contestants.

Mr. Saunders also says that the competition is doing a great deal of good in that it is cultivating in all sections of the city a desire amongst the people to improve their premises. If there is one man in a block who is in the contest, and takes special care of his lawn or garden, his neighbors are shamed into taking care of their places, by force of contrast.

It is a peculiar fact, too, that south of Dundas street and including South London, there are but twenty entries in the lawn competition, whereas north of Dundas street the entries are over forty. In South London, there are some very fine properties, but the people do not take the interest they should in the lawn and garden contest.

A staff writer of the Lancet, the famous medical journal of London, makes a strong argument to support his belief that the gas known as carbon monoxide is more often and more largely than nicotine the cause of the trembling of the limbs and hands, the feeble pulse, the dizziness and other disturbances of the nerve centers, which have been regarded as symptoms of nicotine poisoning in cases of obvious injury by the excessive use of tobacco. This is interesting from the point of view of pure science, but the effect upon the victim of the immoderate use of tobacco is not in the least altered.

In the British House of Commons as soon as the question to be decided is put from the chair a clerk at the table sets in motion a huge sand glass, familiarly known to members as the "egg boiler," probably because it takes three minutes to run out. As the last sand runs through the glass the sergeant-at-arms instantly locks the massive oak doors of the chamber, and only those members who have succeeded in getting through the doorway can vote.

In an article on the eating of rats and mice the London Medical Press asserts that, "apart from prejudice there is no particular reason why we should not feed on our domestic rodents." The editor seems to have the courage of his convictions, for he adds: "Their flesh is delicate and savory."

WRONG TRACK
Had to Switch.

Even the most careful person is apt to get on the wrong track regarding food sometimes and has to switch over.
When the right food is selected the host of ails that come from improper food and drink disappear, even where the trouble has been of lifelong standing.
"From a child I was never strong and had a capricious appetite and I was allowed to eat whatever I fancied—rich cake, highly-seasoned food, hot biscuit, etc.—so that it was not surprising that my digestion was soon out of order and at the age of 23 I was on the verge of nervous prostration. I had no appetite and as I had been losing strength (because I didn't get nourishment in my daily food to repair the wear and tear on body and brain), I had no reserve force to fall back on, lost flesh rapidly and no medicine helped me.
"Then it was a wise physician ordered Grape-Nuts and cream and saw to it that I gave this food (new to me), a proper trial and it showed he knew what he was about, because I got better by bounds from the very first. That was in the summer and by winter I was in better health than ever before in my life, had gained in flesh and weight and felt like a new person altogether in mind as well as body, all due to nourishing and completely digestible food, Grape-Nuts.
"This happened three years ago and never since then have I had any but perfect health for I stick to my Grape-Nuts food and cream and still think it delicious. I eat it every day. I never tire of this food and can enjoy a saucer of Grape-Nuts and cream when nothing else satisfies my appetite and it's surprising how sustained and strong a small saucerful will make one feel for hours." Name given by Postum Company, Battle Creek, Mich.
True food that carries one along and "there's a reason." Grape-Nuts 10 days proves big things.

FELL BACK ON "THE IRON MAN"

New York Giants Save Two Games—Boston Takes Third From Highlanders.

The degree of dependence which the New York Giants' management has in "Iron Man" McGinnity, the star twirler, was shown at St. Louis on Saturday, when a double-header was played. "Christy" Matthewson was in the box in the first game, and being forced to retire at the end of the seventh, with the score 2 to 1 in favor of the Giants, he was relieved by McGinnity. New York won 5 to 2. With the score 3 to 3 in the eighth inning of the second game, McGinnity was again brought to the rescue, relieving Wiltse, and the Giants won again, 5 to 3. Yesterday, however, the "Iron Man" lost, although he was not batted as hard as his opponent.

As in the National, close scores were the order in the American, and the Eastern. Chesbro, the pride of the New York Americans, was in the box against Boston, and lost. The Highlanders put up a far superior fielding game, but Boston did the hitting. This makes the third straight for Boston in the series with the Highlanders. The scores:

BASEBALL AT WATFORD.

The Guide-Advocate, of Watford, gives the following account of a baseball match, in which nine Londoners participated: Manager Young's Red Stockings played the return match with the Darch & Hunter team, of London, on the local diamond, and after another hard-fought contest, the boys in red won out by the narrow margin of one run. Both teams were stronger than they were at the London game, and put up a better article of ball. The game was not over until the last man was out in the ninth, and it looked at one time as if the London tie would be repeated. Ward pitched a fine game for the D. & H. team, striking out 17 men. Cook and Waddell did the twirling for the Red Stockings, each having six strike-outs to his credit. A good-sized crowd witnessed the game, which passed off very agreeably. Mr. Archie Black, of London, umpired the game efficiently and impartially. The score was 7 to 6 in favor of the Red Stockings.

DIAMOND MEDAL FOR SCHOLES.

Toronto, Ont., July 9. — The Toronto Baseball Club will present a diamond medal, valued at $400, to Lou Scholes, at Diamond Park, on his return from the old country. The medal will be suitably engraved, and Lou will pitch the first ball of the game after the presentation. It is also the intention to give every person at the game a button with Lou's picture on it. An order for 10,000 of these buttons was placed this morning. Lou cabled his father, John F. Scholes, today that he would sail for New York on July 15 on the Star liner Arabic, and it is expected that he will be home by Friday, July 22, or Monday, July 25.
