Demonstration in Honor of Victims of Revolution May Cause Uprising REVOLUTION FEARED Anarchists and Others Now Supporting the Cause of Reaction AGITATORS ARRESTED Appeal Made for Demonstration Against Lvoff and Government

By Courier Leased Wire. Petrograd, June 28.—In connection with the great demonstration which has been arranged for next Sunday by the congress of Councils of Deputies in honor of the victims of the revolution, all the moderate law-abiding citizens supporting for the defence of the provisional government during the last few days, evidence has been accumulating that the members of the extreme right have combined with the anarchists and members of the Bolshevik faction to utilize the demonstration for the purpose of a counter-revolution in the cause of reaction.

At a meeting of the Petrograd council of deputies to-day, a report was presented which stated that the Durnovo Palace, which is the headquarters of the anarchist authors of last Saturday's unsuccessful attempt to overthrow the government, also is being used for conferences of the reactionaries. The report added that the council daily was in receipt of fresh facts proving that an attempt will be made to convert Sunday's demonstration into a counter-revolutionary outbreak.

Similar statements have been made to the executive of the regimental committees of the Petrograd garrison—that the agitation is being pursued by the reactionary black hundred among the more ignorant soldiers, the representatives of whom openly declared that the plan is to massacre the middle classes of the population. This representative is reported to have added, "It is all the same to us who rules Russia, even if it is Kaiser William."

Newspaper comment indicates that the reactionary plus the anarchist agitation is being taken seriously, but that it is likely only to have the effect of emphasizing that Sunday's demonstration will be of a pro-government and pro-revolutionary character and against the fanatics of both camps.

Rigid Restrictions Placed Upon Newspapers Through German Empire Give Rise to Belief That Startling Events of Some Sort are Impending--Teuton Press Bureau Has Long Mised Public by False News and Much-Distorted Reports

By Courier Leased Wire

London, June 29.—Special despatches from Rotterdam say it is inferred there, in view of the gagging of the German press, that something dramatic has happened or is about to happen in Germany. They quote the Frankfurter Zeitung, complaining that it was compelled to issue its political section until further notice without an independent expression of opinion, and say the censorship now far exceeds anything previous. The press is declared to be completely muzzled. It is said the real secret of the paper shortage is a government move to compel newspapers to print such bare news allowed, excluding commentary matter. The belief is expressed in Holland that next week's meeting of the Reichstag may produce startling developments.

German Made News

Copenhagen, June 29.—The manipulation of the German press by the authorities, the employment of the vast apparatus of the war press office for filling the newspapers with special despatches and semi-official accounts and comments on military events, the plain and fancy distortions of truth by the admiralty press bureau, working in the spirit instilled by von Tirpitz, and the glaringly inaccurate announcements of brilliant crop prospects put forth regularly at and before harvest time, have repeatedly been referred to in despatches, together with descriptions of the working of the censorship to prevent any free discussion of public problems in Germany.

It is now possible to cite the testimony of German newspapers, which, writing under the government, cuts in their paper supply, speak their minds freely on the conditions in the profession. The Deutsche Volks Zeitung, for example, writing of the government efforts to control and direct sentiment, says that the contents of the German papers are almost word for word the same in all the papers, as these are fed from the same source and are not permitted by reason of the censorship restrictions to take any independent line in news or views.

"The Government's whole effort," says the paper, "is towards the creation of a standardized newspaper, and it insists upon the unchanged publication of a mass of articles and despatches furnished."

Paraphrasing, it may be remarked that it is an offence punishable by martial law, for an editor to omit a comma or a word from a communication issued by a news agency and designated as official.

The Volks Zeitung declares that the German newspapers are losing the confidence of their readers, who are taking their information from neutral newspapers. It says that the just complaint is now frequently heard: "The papers are all alike. We desire to know only what is set before us, and what these above us do not want is not printed."

Funds Falling.

Copenhagen, June 29.—For the first time during the war the weekly report of the Imperial Bank of Germany shows a decrease in its gold reserve which this week is 76,500,000 marks below the preceding week. Increments for a long time have been steadily declining despite energetic propaganda appeals to surrender jewelry. The bank heretofore, however, has been able, though often by the scantiest of margins, to avoid the humiliating acknowledgement that the growth passed entirely.

This week's decrease is attributed semi-officially to heavy purchases abroad. The increase of the gold reserve has long since ceased to keep pace with the increase in note circulation. The bank several months ago was compelled to abandon the old legal basis of gold and silver covering for paper circulation and supplement metallic covering by reckoning commercial paper to make up the prescribed one-third cover.

With the gold supply falling despite utmost efforts, financial antiprivities of late devoted their chief energies to a campaign to restrain an increase in note circulation by promoting the use of checks and bank transfers instead of cash.

Forced to Come Across

London, June 29.—According to a despatch to the Times, from Amsterdam, German specie from the Imperial Bank of Germany has been received there. This German gold has been consigned to several Dutch banks. The correspondent says it obviously is a small part payment of the German debt to Holland, chiefly for foodstuffs and is the only practicable method of preventing further serious damage to the reputation of the German mark. German currency, it is said, cannot be further buttressed by such devices as raising of the prices of coal and steel. The writer quotes a statement in the Handelsblad that "important disbursements" took place recently between German and Dutch financiers with a view to re-establishing German exchange which is now somewhat improved. The Handelsblad, expects gold consignments of greater amount shortly. The morning newspapers comment on the significance of the decrease in the returns of the Imperial Bank of Germany, saying they are falsified throughout. They say that although returns are never admitted the fact is that gold has been sent out of the country from time to time. The Times says the real difficulty for Germany is whether the gold she sends abroad will ever come back.

BRITISH ADVANCE UPON WIDE FRONT

Entire Objective Gained by Haig's Men in Offensive Launched Last Night in Arras Sector--Teuton Positions on Front of 2000 Yards Taken

London, June 29.—British troops last night, in an offensive, gained their whole objective, says a telegram from their headquarters in France. The British captured German forward positions on a 2,000 yard front south and west of Oppy, in the Arras sector. The statement follows: Early last night we attacked and captured the enemy's forward position on a front of about 2,000 yards south and west of Oppy. The whole of our objectives were gained and a number of prisoners and machine guns were taken by us. Our troops continue to gain ground on a wide front south of the Souchez River and have entered Avion. A further number of prisoners and six machine guns have been captured in this area. A hostile raiding party was repulsed during the night north of Chesley. We successfully raided the enemy's trenches southeast of Loos.

French Official

Paris, June 29.—The German infantry made a heavy attack on the front near Hill 304 and Avocourt Wood, after especially severe shelling. Today's official statement says the attack was disorganized by the sharp reply of the French artillery and that the Germans obtained a footing at only a few points, in the first line.

This morning the Germans made another violent effort east of Hill 304. It failed completely. The Germans were active on the Aisne front also. All their attacks were repulsed.

Mesopotamian Situation

London, June 29.—The military correspondent of the Times gives a long detailed account of the present conditions of the British forces in Mesopotamia, showing a complete contrast with the revelations in the report on the Mesopotamian expedition made public Tuesday night in the Blue Book. The correspondent says the army there now is admirably provided and medical arrangements are thoroughly satisfactory. A great change has occurred in India which still is the base of the expedition although control has been transferred to the war office at London. Bombay is the base depot and is most efficiently administered.

Shipping and cargoes are well and quickly handled and hospital arrangements are very good. Everything is efficiently organized.

India, the correspondent says is now doing more than she is receiving credit for. Her government recognizing the slackness of the past determined to do all humanly possible and an altogether new spirit has arisen. The writer says events in Russia considerably influence the British position in Mesopotamia and in consequence of the inaction of the Russian army in the Caucasus the situation of General Maude, commander-in-chief is radically changed. If the Russian offensive under General Yudevitch, ex-commander-in-chief of the Caucasus had been prosecuted, the Anglo-Indian army would now form the left flank of the Russian line. General Yudevitch was removed and no offensive occurred. The situation required and presumably received, the earnest attention of the British government the writer concludes.

Russ Official.

Petrograd, June 29.—The official war office commission issued tonight says: "On the western front in the direction of Kovle, west of Koukary the enemy attempted gas waves which the wind dissipated before they reached our trenches. South of Bresany the enemy attacked one of our advanced trenches and showered grenades on the defenders who retreated after taking some prisoners.

In the region of Karopakti and Chibialni, the enemy directed an intense artillery bombardment on our trenches.

The Rumanian front-Fusillades. "On the Caucasian front, we dislodged the enemy in the direction of Serbecht on Tuesday and captured the town of Serbecht. We repulsed Turkish attacks east of Bustan. Aviator Lehman shot down a German airplane in the region of Fiumac. A hostile air squadron dropped about 25 bombs in the region of Kozoff."

Petrograd, June 28.—With a view to the re-organization of the economic life of the nation and the regulation of labor questions, the government has resolved to create an economic council under the presidency of the Premier and to include representatives of the peasants and workmen's and soldiers councils, of industrial and commercial bodies and members of the Bourse.

GREECE NOW VIRTUALLY IN THE WAR

About to Recall Diplomatic Representatives From Central Monarchies

RUMANIAN LEGATION War Mission Landed Unannounced at Washington Yesterday

By Courier Leased Wire. Athens, June 29.—The Greek Government has broken diplomatic relations with Germany, Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey.

By Courier Leased Wire. Athens, June 29.—Though war has not yet been declared, the Greek government considers that a state of war exists since its advent of power yesterday. The recall of Greek diplomatic representatives accorded to the Central Powers and their allies is imminent.

Rumanian's Mission

Washington, June 29.—The Rumanian mission to the United States reached Washington yesterday, unannounced, and sought quarters at a hotel. Dr. Vasile and Luca Lucania is the head of the party, and is accompanied by Johan Mota, and J. V. Stoica. They will call at the state department to-day and introduce themselves in the absence of a Rumanian diplomatic representative in Washington. This mission is not strictly of a diplomatic character, and will devote itself largely to efforts to stimulate recruiting for the Rumanian army among their fellow countrymen in America.

ENEMY IS FORCED TO QUIT LENS

Evacuation of Town and Mining Basin Has Been Decided on

FRESH WITHDRAWAL: Huns Hemmed in at Lens, and Menaced With Utter Annihilation

THE PREMIER SPEAKS

Peace Before Aims of Allies Are Achieved Would be Diastrous

By Courier Leased Wire. New York, June 29.—A special cable to the Herald from Paris, dated Thursday, follows: "The correspondent of the Petit Journal on the British front believes that the Germans have decided to evacuate Lens and the whole mining basin. He says: "It is not unreasonable to think that the invader, finally hemmed and rudely shaken, is being fairly drawn toward new rectifications of his salients and economies of his front to balance the drain on his reserves. Proofs of this are seen in the gradual diminution of the enemy's artillery fire, giving a clear impression of a general withdrawal of the German batteries, and in the admissions of the Berlin communications that strategic considerations have caused the high command to readjust the lines behind Lens.

"British aeroplanes have dropped nearly four thousand bombs between the German lines within ten weeks and have taken three hundred photographs daily."

"Andre Tudes, the Journal's correspondent telegraphs: "Lens is surrounded on three sides, and its outskirts have been invaded by strong British patrols. The town is swept by an infernal bombardment and shrouded in clouds of asphyxiating gas, which has overwhelmed the enemy, who is quitting the town, leaving his wrecked defenses and shelters to be shelled by shells to slip away in successive waves to fresh quarters in the Droocourt-Queant line.

"The encirclement was preceded by five weeks of intensive bombardment and was assured on Monday morning, when the British were easily able to chase the enemy from untenable positions on both banks of the Souchez. German lines stating that the British are suffering probable losses, are refuted by the fact that this important success was obtained with only two killed and a few wounded."

No Premature Peace.

Glasgow, June 29.—In discussing the question of peace to-day Premier Lloyd George said that if the war should be concluded a single hour before the allied powers reached the end they set out to attain at the beginning of the war, it would be the greatest disaster that ever befell mankind.

"In my judgment" said the Premier, "this war will come to an end when the allied powers have reached the end they set out to attain which they accepted the challenge thrown down by Germany to civilization. Then this war ought to come to an end, but if it comes to an end a single hour before, it will be the greatest disaster that ever befell mankind."

"I hear people say that Germany is ready to give us a satisfactory peace. No doubt, you can have peace now at a certain price, for no doubt, Germany wants peace, but it is a peace which would give her economic and other control over the countries which she has invaded.

NEWS OF NORFOLK

Quiet Wedding of Young Norfolk Couple at Dover Wednesday

LYNEDOCH GAS WELLS Three Already Completed and Three More Now in Progress

Simcoe, June 29.—(From our own Correspondent)—Mr. R. Edmonds called us up last night regarding a head-line in last night's Norfolk news, intimating that "The Iron Cross" had been granted to his parents on behalf of the late Lt. Harold Edmonds. "Do they think we are Germans here," was his pointed remark. We can assure the Edmonds family that no such suggestion was intended and make haste to say that the leader should have read "Military Cross."

East side residents got a display of fire works without paying for it last night. The hydro current to the street lights cut capers about the wires at the corner of Robinson street and Lynnwood Avenue and danced a jig through the pillar lights about the business centre. The whole street system was off for half an hour or more.

Married at Dover.
 Earl Nunn, of Port Dover, son of Mr. Edward Nunn, of Woodhouse, and Miss Lulu Cronk, daughter of Mr. A. Cronk of Port Ryerse, were married quietly at the Methodist parsonage, Port Dover, on Wednesday. The young couple had selected respectively, A. Cruikshanks and Miss Luella Winters to partake with them the enjoyment to be derived from keeping the "news" from all but the families of the contracting parties and succeeded fairly well too. But as matters will out, there were quite a number of the young people of Dover up to Simcoe on Wednesday evening to help the happy young couple board the evening train for the west at the Air Line station. The groom is in the employ of the Dover Planning Mill, and the young couple on their return will reside in Dover.

Lynedoch Gas Wells
 Mayor Williamson, Clerk W. C. McCall and five other members of the Simcoe council paid a visit to the gas wells at Lynedoch yesterday afternoon. They report that there are already four wells, three of which have been completed this year, and three others in progress. The wells already under control, have just a capacity of one million feet of gas a day. One of the new wells, though supplying gas for the boiler of one of the pumping outfits over half a mile away, showed 420 pound pressure at the well. This runs up to 620 pounds on Sunday when no gas is being drawn from it. When the 2-inch blow pipe was opened, the gas rushed out with a roar which was quite uncomfortable to one's ears, and to which the noise from a locomotive safety valve is insignificant. Geo. Williams of Delhi and Haymaker and Stearns are working standard drilling rigs. R. N. Berry, from down east has a Canadian rig. All of them are seasoned drillers and know their business. While one drill point is working, another is being re-pointed and trimmed. One drill and the metal shaft behind it weighs almost two tons. The drop of the drill is about four feet.

Prospects look good for a better supply of gas here next winter, provided the pipes are laid to carry the gas down to town before winter. Everything Goes Here
 An incompetent lady driver came down Colborne St. yesterday morning driving a car belonging to a prominent citizen, and narrowly escaped putting herself in condition to fill a hospital cot and the car in the shop for the scrap heap. Falling in an attempt to turn into Peel street, the car made a head-on dive for the door of Col. Atkinson's law office, and mounted the curb before it was stopped. We heard a complaint a day earlier about a mere kid driving up Robinson street alone in a big car. And with it all, Simcoe's streets have never yet been the scene of a very bad accident.

STRENUOUS WORK SOON TELLS ON YOU

Business Men and Breadwinners the Victims of Nervous Exhaustion.

When worry is added to over-work, men soon become the victims of nervous exhaustion—neurasthenia—the doctors call it. Some have no reserve strength in their systems to bear the strain; others over-tax what strength they have. If you find that you are nervous and not sure of yourself, that you sleep badly, and wake up tired and aching, your nervous system is out of order. Other signs are inability to take proper interest in your work; your appetite is fickle; your back feels weak, and you are greatly depressed in spirits. One or more of these signs mean that you should take prompt steps to stop mischief by nourishing the nerves with the food in health pills, namely the rich, red blood made by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills have cured thousands of cases of nervous disorders, including nervous prostration, neuralgia, St. Vitus Dance and partial paralysis. Here is an example. Mr. P. H. Callan, a well known business man in Coleman, P. E. I. says: "I owe my present health, if not life itself, to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I have always been an active man, and when I began to run down in health paid little attention to it as I thought it only a temporary weakness. As time passed, however, I found myself growing worse and consulted a doctor, who said that I was not only badly run down but that my nervous system was badly shattered. I lost flesh, my appetite was poor, I slept badly and notwithstanding the doctor's treatment grew so weak that I had to leave my business and was confined to bed. I was steadily growing weaker, and my friends were all greatly alarmed for my condition. In this condition I was strongly recommended to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as the doctor's medicine was not helping me I decided to do so. By the time I had used three boxes I could tell that they were helping me. When I had taken eight boxes of the pills I felt able to attend to my business again, and people were surprised to find me out. I continued the use of the pills until I had taken twelve boxes, by which time I was feeling as well as I ever did, and was being congratulated by all my friends on my full restoration to health. I feel now that if I had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from the outset I would not have wasted much money spent in doctor's bills, but would have had renewed health sooner. I cannot speak too highly of this medicine, and would recommend it to every man who feels weak, nervous or run down."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for a companion by other prisoners in the Roosevelt episode in Milwaukee from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FINANCIER DEAD

New York, June 29.—Colonel Oliver Hazard Payne, prominent in New York and Cleveland financial circles, died here yesterday in his 78th year. For many years Col. Payne had been treasurer of the Standard Oil Company, and he is reputed at his death to have held securities of that corporation valued at $90,000,000. He entered the company with the Rockefeller about 1867, becoming its treasurer almost at once.

ATTRACTIVE DINING CAR SERVICE

Probably nothing helps more to make a railway journey really enjoyable than a visit to the "Dining Car," especially if it be a Canadian Pacific Dining Car, where the passenger is assured of the highest form of efficiency in the culinary art, the choicest provisions that the market affords prepared on the scientific principle known as "Dietetic Blending."

Your favorite dish as you like it, may be enjoyed at a reasonable cost, amidst ideal surroundings, while travelling on the Canadian Pacific.

MANSLAUGHTER

Winnipeg, Man., June 29.—Manslaughter, with a strong recommendation to mercy, was the verdict brought in late yesterday afternoon by the jury in the trial of John Drohomoce, a farmer 70 years of age, who was charged with the murder in April of Geo. Obniawka. Sentence will be handed down later in the week.

FATHERS OF CONFEDERATION

There is a little group of Canadian statesmen round whom, as time goes on, national legends are sure to grow up. These are the men who participated in the conferences that led to the formation of the Dominion of Canada, and who are now affectionately remembered as the "Fathers of Confederation." Among the most prominent of these men were Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir Charles Tupper, the Hon. George

Brown, Sir Leonard Tilley, Sir George E. Cartier, Sir Oliver Mowat, the Hon. D'Arcy McGee, and Sir E. P. Tache. As the lapse of time has softened animosities and strong political feeling, it is now possible for people to take a pride in the group of men who shaped the early destinies of Canada. We are growing to regard them much as the Americans regard upon the men who took charge of things after the formation of the republic, and we even love them for their faults. Few countries have produced a more picturesque figure than Sir John A. Macdonald. Even if he was not peculiarly the Father of Confederation, he was its chief architect. He was a master of tact, and as a political craftsman, the Dominion has never seen his superior. He was a man who inspired great personal devotion, stirring the affections and quickening the imaginations of his followers. The members of his party served him because they loved him, and he is bound to become a tradition in Canada, because as a French writer has said, "no power is equal to personal charm."

Sir George E. Cartier, who was the chief representative from Quebec in the historic group, is perhaps hardly as well known to his countrymen as he deserves to be. Cartier did splendid work for confederation in overcoming very formidable influences in Quebec. Those who can remember him say that he was not an impressive person, and he had no magnetism, but he possessed optimism, self-confidence and power in debate. As one Canadian historian has said, "Cartier" was at once the perfect incarnation of French nationality and a devoted adherent of the British connection a Roman Catholic entirely trusted by the Dominant priesthood of Quebec and the most loyal subjects of a Protestant crown.

The newspaper man who exerted the greatest influence in bringing about Confederation was Hon. George Brown of The Globe. Some writers have declared that George Brown would have been a better politician if he had not been a journalist and a better journalist if he had not been a politician. It has often been pointed out that a journalist may be a powerful and effective reformer, but the very qualities that cause the public to read his writings are apt to make it impossible for him to be a sober and prudent statesman. However, George Brown exerted a wonderful influence on thousands of people in the Province of Ontario who never saw his face. They accepted his writings as though they were the inspired words of a prophet, and he may be said to have created and shaped the ideas of the Liberal party in Ontario.

Sir Charles Tupper, the last of the Fathers of Confederation, had about him some of the qualities that would have made him a hero of romance in the middle ages. He possessed signal courage and resource, and will always be remembered for his splendid audacity in facing difficult positions. He was bold and confident, and he never knew the call to retreat. Sir John Willison, one of his strong opponents during his life-time, wrote this of him after his death: "He challenges posterity very much

As he challenged his foes while he lived. There is no greater figure among the Conservative statesmen of Canada nor any whose sacrifices and services were of greater value to Canada and the Empire. History will find and point out blemishes in the public career of Sir Charles Tupper, but he gave the state physical vigor, intellectual power and constructive energy. As for the rest, his greatness, not his littleness, concerns mankind.

D'Arcy McGee will be remembered as the orator of Confederation. There was fervor and beauty in his utterances on the movement that appealed to the imagination of all Canadians. In all the literature on the subject, there is no finer sentence than that in which he declared that by union with the Maritime Provinces, Old Canada should recover one of our lost senses—the sense that comprehends the sea.

In sketching the figures of these men whose names are household words in Canada it is not forgotten that there were others whose aid was important in the task of bringing into life the young nation. There were many lesser names on the list of those who attended the convention. Then it will have to be remembered that there were multitudes of men, of little distinction perhaps, but of equal zeal who worked for the cause of confederation in all parts of Canada. They developed the various provinces that made the action of the leaders possible. Macdonald and Brown, Tupper and Cartier were the men who carried out the idea in the minds of the majority of their fellow countrymen that the time had arrived for Canada to become a nation. It is a fitting thing that Canadians should forget the prejudices and partisan dislikes of fifty years ago. We begin now to realize the debt that we owe to all these men. We can say without making exceptions, "There were giants in those days."

THE SITUATION.

To Canadian troops has come the honor of capturing the front line trenches protecting the village of Avlon and thus carrying the British line within a mile of the centre of Lens. To accomplish the task the men of the Maple Leaf had to cross quite a piece of open ground but it is recorded that their losses were comparatively small.

M. Pasteur, French Minister of War, during the course of an interview reaffirmed that the spirit of France was for "no compromise" and expressed undiminished confidence in the outcome of hostilities.

Brazil has formally revoked her neutrality in connection with the war. Whether she will now actually enter into hostilities is not made clear.

It transpires that the last high ground of the Germans on the Hurst-Ridge was taken by the French in thirteen minutes. They now hold command of most of the Aisne Hills.

Dr. Addison, British Minister of Munitions tells of the remarkable manner in which the British output of shells has grown. In illustration he relates that the manufacture of the production of high explosives has increased more than four times over that of 1916 and twenty eight times that of 1915. The output of steel for 1916, 10,000,000 tons as compared with an average of 7,000,000 tons before the war and by the end of next year will be 12,000,000.

OUR AMUSING COTEM

Because Sir Wilfrid Laurier is unable to accept conscription without a referendum, The Courier joins in the chorus of abuse which the gifted ex-premier is receiving from a certain section of the Conservative press.—Expositor

The Courier has not indulged in any abuse; it leaves that sort of thing to its contemporary.

What this paper has done is to criticize, and why should Sir Wilfrid Laurier be immune from that sort of thing any more than any other public man?

Heaven knows that during his career, he has given plenty of cause for legitimate comment—no man more so.

Even the Brantford Expositor admits he has given a wrong lead, and a lead not in accord with the demands of the case, in proposing the delay of a referendum, when more men are urgently needed to help the brave Canadians at the front. Certainly any proposal must be pretty rank which causes our cotem to heave a metaphorical brick at its idol.

The truth of the matter is that the Liberal leader has failed most lamentably in a great crisis.

Everybody outside of Quebec knows that, and what is the use of mining any words about it?

The thing is lamentable and regrettable to the last extreme, and it is so recognized and felt by thousands of Liberals.

The conclusion is obvious that in this matter, he thinks more of Quebec feeling than he does of national duty, and that therein he has manifested a lack of true statesmanship. There is no getting away from that deduction.

Borden made a most generous offer of a coalition ministry on a fifty-fifty basis with himself as Premier, but even that was rejected by Sir Wilfrid.

What the Liberals should have done, under these circumstances, was to look for another leader, in the same way as the Liberals in the Old Land set aside Asquith for Lloyd George. Had they done so, the spectacle would not now be presented of a man after man of them recording opposition to their Chief in the House.

Meanwhile it would be interesting to have the sapient Expositor explain on what basis criticism by Liberals in the House becomes "abuse" when uttered by the Courier and other Conservative papers?

In the notable speech which Dr. Clark, the Liberal member for Red Deer, recently made in the Dominion House in opposition to Laurier's proposal of a referendum, he indulged in a masterly piece of irony with reference to the fact that Hon. Mr. Oliver, the seceder of Sir Wilfrid's amendment, is himself an ardent conscriptionist. Here is the verbatim report of his comments in that regard:

"The greatest objection to referendum is that it will get us nowhere. By the way, this referendum is very interesting to me on the grounds of its parentage. It has a very dubious parentage. The mover of the referendum amendment—shall I say the father of the referendum—is my right hon. friend (Sir Wilfrid Laurier) who is frankly opposed to conscription. But the mother—

Some hon. members: Oh, oh. Mr. Michael Clark:—or rather I should say, the stepfather of the amendment is absolutely a fierce conscriptionist. Therefore, I venture to repeat that the parentage of this referendum is a little dubious. We will suppose that the referendum is taken, and that according to the views of the father and the foster-father of the amendment, a general election follows. What is going to happen? Suppose my right hon. friend is returned to power with a majority of Liberals at his back, where would he be in regard to conscription? I suppose my hon. friend from Edmonton (Mr. Oliver) would sit down in a Cabinet with my right hon. friend, and on personal grounds, I should be glad to see him there. The first question that comes up is: What are we going to do about this policy of winning the war? I have no doubt that my right hon. friend will be able to get along better with the hon. member for Edmonton than he did with the Prime Minister; but where are they logically in the matter? Suppose, during war-time, with our boys dying at the front, looking to us for reinforcements, you have a Cabinet in power whose father is a strong anti-conscriptionist and whose foster-father is just as fierce a conscriptionist; where would be your effectiveness in bringing in conscription or any other measure for the successful prosecution of the war? A Cabinet constituted on such principles would be no good for Armageddon—they would really be the first to drop out of a millstone. The lion from Edmonton (Mr. Oliver) would lie down with the lamb from Quebec (Sir Wilfrid Laurier), with a little child, perhaps from Pictou (Mr. Macdonald), to lead them."

Small wonder that the members broke into laughter, again and again renewed, as the doctor limned this picture.

Spending Out The Buying Power of the Dollar

Year by year it has been contracting. Some unfeeling economist has figured, if we are not mistaken, that the dollar of today buys about 60 per cent. of its capacity of a few years ago. At the risk of repetition we like to emphasize the fact that this store strives to the best of its ability to counteract this shrinking modesty on the part of the dollar.

Not entirely successfully, of course, prices are higher and there's no blinking the fact. But we have kept our high quality intact, and we HAVE kept prices down to a very gratifying degree—as the clever shopper, who looks around more than ever nowadays before buying is in a splendid position to testify. How are these prices kept down?

By efficient operation of the store, for one thing, beginning with our very fortunate location and with owning our own property at a very low figure.

Beforehand buying at a liberal scale, taking advantage of the market turns FOR CASH.

And finally by a very moderate system of profits. By this fourfold means we succeed in spreading out the dollars buying power to a very gratifying degree.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Lesson I.—Third Quarter, For July 1, 1917.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Isa. vi, 1-13—Memory Verses, 6-9—Golden Text, Isa. vi, 8—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

I am always specially glad to come to a study in Isaiah, this wonderful epitome of the whole Bible, divided into two portions like the Bible, the former having thirty-nine chapters and the latter twenty-seven, like the thirty-nine and twenty-seven books of the Old and New Testaments. The meaning of the name Isaiah is the salvation of Jehovah, and that is also the topic of the whole Bible. The prophet was a spokesman for God, and his mission is fully set forth in Isa. 1, 13, as "the Lord's messenger with the Lord's message." The king mentioned in the first verse had reigned fifty-two years in Jerusalem, and it is recorded of him that he did right in the sight of the Lord. He was marvelously helped till Lord. He was strong, but when he was strong his heart was lifted up to his destruction, for he transgressed against the Lord his God and died a leper (II Chron. xxvi, 3, 4, 15, 16, 21). He was also called Azariah. Thus kings as well as all others come and go, for there is none abiding, nor here have we any continuing city (I Chron. xxix, 15; Heb. xiii, 44).

Isaiah did what we should all do, and always do, look-up and see a king who never dies, and a throne that cannot be moved, of which it is written, "Thy throne, O God, is forever and ever; a scepter of righteousness is the scepter of Thy kingdom" (Ps. xiv, 6; Heb. 1, 1 like to read in Ezek. 1, 28-29, of the throne and the glory of it and the man upon it, for He is the same one whom Isaiah saw, the one of whom we have been learning for the past six months (John xii, 41). There is no other way for us in this world of change and trouble than to do as Stephen did—look up steadfastly into heaven and see the glory of God and Jesus. As Ezekiel saw the cherubim in connection with the throne, so Isaiah saw the seraphim, and it may be that they are the same living ones representing some portion of the redeemed. The cry of each is virtually the same, "Holy, holy, holy is the Lord of hosts" (verse 3 and Rev. iv, 8), and nowhere else do we find the thrice holy in a sentence. But see Isa. xcix, 3, 5, 9. They speak of the whole earth being full of His glory (verse 3 and Rev. v, 13), so if it is a vision of the future, as were the cherubim in the garden of Eden, Isaiah saw the temple filled with glory, and so it was at the dedication of both tabernacle and temple.

When Isaiah thus saw the glory of the Lord, the King, the Lord of Hosts, it caused him to see Himself as wholly unclean and vile (verse 5). Job and Daniel were affected in the same way (Job xlii, 5, 6; Dan. x, 7, 8), and we may be sure that if we have any good opinion of ourselves left we have not yet seen the King as we might see Him. See also Rom. vii, 18, the soul cry of one who has seen the beauty of the Lord. We are not as right with Him as we might be unless we think so much of Him that we think nothing of ourselves. There is a very helpful suggestion in the face and feet covered with verse 2. The face indicates what we are, the feet suggest how we are to be, and we must not think of what we are or what we do, only of what He is and He does (Gal. ii, 20; I Cor. xv, 10). The power to fly is in the two wings of commit and trust of Ps. xxxvii, 5. The altar and taking away of iniquity and sin of verses 7, suggest the one only way by which sin can be taken away, the sacrifice of Calvary, of which the brazen altar and its sacrifices were typical.

It takes but a moment for Him to take away our sins by virtue of His great sacrifice of Himself once for all. So shall it be with Israel as a nation, for they shall see Him coming in His glory (Zech. iii, 9, 10), and then shall they be His messengers to all nations, and many nations shall be joined to the Lord in that day (Zech. ii, 10-12), whether it be a nation or a man, only there can be no service for God until sins are forgiven, but when we know this blessedness, according to Ps. xxxii, 1, 2, we should be gladly willing to tell others. After the prophet knew that he was cleansed then he heard the voice of the Lord saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Note the "I" and "me," the one Living and True God and the three persons in the Godhead, and learn from Rom. viii, 25, 31, 34, that the Father, Son and Holy Spirit are each and all are well pleased to work and to watch for every one whom they send, and they will be full to work and to watch over their own word, which will surely accomplish their pleasure, and the faithful messenger shall be unto God a sweet savior of Christ in them that are saved and in them that perish (II Cor. ii, 15, 16), whether hearts and ears and eyes are closed against the messenger or opened to hear and see and receive it. If the love of Christ constrains us we cannot but say, "Here am I; send me!" And then, whatever may be the immediate result, we shall rest in this—that He cannot fail nor be disappointed and for, and His time, His kingdom will surely come. It is ours to be faithful.

V.M.C.A. CAMPAIGN IS SUCCESSFUL

$1,700.00 Already Raised in Paris With Returns Still Incomplete

Paris, June 28.—(From our own correspondent)—In spite of the rain on Tuesday and Wednesday, which prevented a full canvas of citizens, a most successful result has been attained in the financial campaign for the Young Men's Christian Association. As before stated, a large number of members and supporters had enlisted for service overseas, which naturally depleted the revenue. The canvas as reported last night, showed around $1700 subscribed, with some half dozen returns not in. The committee are more than pleased at the generous response of the citizens who in spite of the many calls, showed their appreciation of the work among the soldiers of the "Y" in the above liberal giving. A resolution was passed, thanking the visiting speakers, as also the down town churches for placing their pulpits at the disposal of the Association on Sunday last; to the Citizens' Band, Salvation Army Band, male quartet, as also the committee and canvassers and all who in any way contributed to the successful campaign.

The first garden party of the season was held last evening on the beautiful grounds of Mr. and Mrs. David Patton, Oak Avenue, when the Junction Mission Sunday School and friends had a most enjoyable time. The Mission Sunday School is filling a long felt want at the Junction, and its good work is deservedly recognized by the other churches in town. Last evening was the 3rd annual gathering, when upwards of 1000 people were in attendance, which must have been very encouraging to the workers, to see their efforts so cheerfully appreciated by well wishers from all parts of the town. Mayor Robinson made a splendid chairman, and assisted materially in making a real jolly evening. In his opening remarks he told the people that they could not do too much to help the Mission in its good work, and speaking for himself he felt honored in being called upon to preside that evening. We might also mention that the Mayor kindly defrayed the expenses of the Citizens Band, which rendered good music during the evening. The Laurie Brothers, of Hamilton, who are general favorites here, again delighted the gathering with a capital repertoire, songs, jokes and dancing. Little Miss Ross and Victor Gann sang very sweetly. "Coming through the Eye" and "Miss Ross" also gave a Scottish dance. Over $500 was realized.

On Tuesday evening installation of officers was held by the members of St. John's lodge, and was conducted by Bro. R. W. Tudhope of Orillia. The officers for the ensuing year are: Worshipful Master, W. Rutherford; Senior Warden, C. E. Flannery; Junior Warden, G. Bowser; Chaplain, J. R. Inksater; Senior Deacon, W. Kendrick; Junior Deacon, H. J. Haire; Inside Guard, A. Davidson; Tyler, W. James; Secretary, John Newton; Treasurer, Frank Smoke. At the close a social hour was spent and light refreshments were served. A number of Freemasons of Orillia accompanied Bro. Tudhope here. A wedding of interest to many in town took place at Clinton yesterday, when Miss Theresa Crooks, daughter of Mr. George Crooks, was united in marriage to Mr. Moffat Aiken of Allenford. The bride is well known here, having at one time been milliner at Mr. J. R. Inksater's store, and a host of friends will join in wishing Mrs. Aiken much happiness in her new home. Mrs. John M. Shay and daughter, Miss Viola, of Buffalo, are visiting with relatives in town. Miss Jean Gale was at Clinton yesterday, attending the Crooks and Aiken wedding. Miss Wilson has left to spend the summer holidays at her home in Marshville. The many friends of Mr. Harold Brown will be very sorry to learn that he is lying very seriously ill at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Brown, at Eswege, N.Y.

NERVOUS CHILDREN

The Trouble is Often Really St. Vitus Dance—Do Not Neglect It. Many a child has been called awkward, has been punished in school for not keeping still or for dropping things when the trouble was really St. Vitus Dance. This disease may appear at any age, but is most common between the ages of six and fourteen years. It is caused by thin blood which fails to carry sufficient nourishment to the nerves, and the child becomes restless and twitching of the muscles and jerking of the limbs and body follow. In severe cases the child is unable to hold anything or feed itself. St. Vitus Dance is cured by building up the blood. The most successful treatment is to remove the child from all mental excitement, stop school work and give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills renew the blood supply, strengthen the nerves and restore the child to perfect health. Here is proof of their power to cure. Mrs. S. Sharpe, Cayville, Ont., says:—"When my daughter was nine years old she was attacked with St. Vitus Dance. She was sent to a sanatorium where she remained for nine weeks, without any benefit. Indeed when we brought her home she was as helpless as a baby. I got a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and continued giving her half a pill after each meal for several months, when she had fully recovered and was again a symptom of the trouble since." You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at assured prices. A box of six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

THE FUEL SITUATION Present Difficulties Attributed to a Number of Causes—An Important Statement

THE following statement is sent out by Mr. A. D. MacTier, General Manager of the C.P.R. It is realized in most quarters, some more than others, that this country is face to face with a coal shortage of very alarming proportions, and that by next winter, if conditions under which fuel may be obtained do not alter in the meantime, a great many industrial concerns and householders will be unable to supply themselves with sufficient coal to carry them through the severe weather. The present and prospective difficulties in the way of bringing coal into Eastern Canada may be attributed to a number of causes, principal amongst which are dearth of mining labor and shortage of coal carrying equipment at the mines. The situation in some of the mining territories at the present time is that, even with the labor shortage, mine operators are able to turn out coal at a greater rate than they can obtain cars to carry it away. It, therefore, naturally follows, that more coal can be brought into Canada if the car supply is increased.

Unfortunately, it is out of the question to obtain any number of new cars at this time, and the situation can be met only by obtaining more service from the present rolling stock. To do this cars must be moved promptly between the mines and destination, and must be unloaded as soon as they reach consignees.

Railways must have coal in order to discharge their obligations to the country, and for their own preservation, as well as for the benefit of their patrons, they are putting forth their utmost efforts to minimize delay to cars while en route to and from the mines.

All efforts in this direction, however, will be of little avail without the whole-hearted co-operation of the man who unloads the coal and releases the car after it gets to its destination. Some consignees do not thoroughly appreciate the situation, have almost a hundred per cent. record in the prompt unloading of coal cars, but there are others who are helping to create the prospective shortage of coal by keeping the equipment out of active service. To-day there are in one town of comparatively small size fifty-two coal cars awaiting unloading. The arrival of these cars was spread over a period of thirty-one days, an average of cars received per day of 1.68. They are assigned to three organizations which have the facilities for unloading a large number of cars each day. These fifty-two cars have been out of service a total of 622 car days. Coal cars that are not held for storage purposes as these cars are, average at least fifty miles per car per day. Had the fifty-two cars been unloaded promptly they would have by this time, travelled 51,450 miles. The distance from the point where they are now located to the coal mining territory is approximately four hundred miles. It follows, therefore, that had the fifty-two cars been in active service they would have been available for unloading with about four carloads, or about thirty-two hundred tons, of coal. The quantity is not very large, it is true, when the total demand is considered, but it would have kept over three hundred families warm for the winter or heated the boilers in an industrial plant for some little time.

Unfortunately, the case cited is not the only one of its kind. It is one of the worst at present, out there are hundreds of cars at this moment that are lying idle, waiting to be relieved of their loads, so that they may go back to the mines for more coal. The coal dealer and consignee can do the country an immense service by promptly releasing rolling stock and helping to reduce car shortage at the mines.

There is also the man who has always called for open top cars for the handling of his goods because the loading and unloading with that class of equipment is more economical than in using closed cars. When he insists on being supplied with cars that do not fit in the coal business, he is helping to create a coal shortage by keeping cars away from the mines. No doubt he is a heavy coal consumer, as a business proposition, would not be more economical for him if he used closed cars now and enabled the railways to transport more coal into the country to that he would be in danger of having to close down his plant altogether after an account of being unable to obtain fuel?

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company, for itself, and on behalf of other railway companies, most earnestly calls upon its patrons and employees to do their utmost to fight off the impending shortage of fuel by keeping coal cars continuously in the proper service, which is the transporting of coal.

GOVERNMENT HAS MAJORITY Conscription Certain to be Carried Upon Second Reading THE HOUSE DIVIDED Government Loses Quebec Votes, But Gains Many From Liberal Side

Ottawa, June 29.—A majority of at least 40 is now assured against Sir Wilfrid Laurier's proposal of a referendum on conscription. This will be followed by a majority of more than 60 for the second reading of the Military Service Bill.

Bruneau and one from Nova Scotia. All the Quebec Liberals will follow Sir Wilfrid on the referendum. When the vote on the second reading is reached other Liberals will unite with the Government. At most there will be but five Liberals west of Montreal to vote against the second reading of the bill, and among these are Hon. Chas. Murphy, Hon. Frank Oliver, Dr. Molloy and Edward Prouty. A vote may be reached on Wednesday, but it is quite probable the debate will be carried on until Thursday.

ESKIMOS UNAWARE THAT A WAR IS ON

Civilization of Arctic Natives in Many Respects Highest Existing ARE HAPPY PEOPLE Norwegian Explorer Tells of Life in the Far North

(Gregory Mason in Outlook.) One of the commonest kinds of melancholy and mental fatigue is caused by introspection. When we are tired or despondent from too much musing on the shortcomings of our own little lives or too much dwelling upon the hardships of our own lot in this world, nothing is so restoring as to anaesthetize our self-consciousness by imagining the nature of life on other planets or watching the drama of our life in the grass. Since the beginning of the war it has been easier than ever for us to become depressed by our immediate temporal surroundings. At such times it is good to hear that there is a people on the earth who are unaware of this war and who are untouched by the trials of the peoples who boast that they are civilized. This people is the Eskimo. Christian Leden, a young Norwegian explorer, who has lived among most of the tribes of Eskimos, believes that in many respects the Eskimos are the happiest people in the world, and that in many respects their civilization is the highest existing to-day. Leden has spent most of his time since 1909 living among the Eskimos, and he knows most of the tribes that have been discovered by white men. He has recently returned from a sojourn of three years and a half among the Eskimos of Canada. In his various expeditions he has had the public support of the king and queen of Norway, the Ethnographical department of the University of Christiania, the Danian Carlsberg Institute and the Geological Survey of Canada. Mr. Leden is more interesting than many Arctic explorers, perhaps, because primarily he is not an explorer of unknown lands but a student of unknown peoples. He would be much more thrilled by finding a tribe that had never seen a white man than by discovering a hundred leagues of new land. Mr. Leden has the charm of a man who is intensely interested in what he is doing, but who has not lost his sense of proportion. He has no inflated conception of the world's opinion of his work.

THE REX.

The great new war film, "The Fall of Bapaume," now showing at the Rex, brings the vivid moving picture record of the war up to date as far as the taking of Bapaume and Bapaume, March 17 and 18 respectively, "The Rex," the immediate objectives of the advance which began July 1, 1916, and which have cost millions of treasure and thousands of lives to win back for France from the invading barbarians.

THE BRANT.

was partly checked, and Peronno was similarly threatened. To the abilities of versatile Alan Linder, soldier, film comedian, actor, list, there seems no end. In his previous pictures shown in this city, the debonair Max has specialized in a species of genteel slapstick comedy. As a result of the war, in "Max in a Taxi," his latest mirth provoker, now a leading attraction at the Brant theatre, Linder displays acrobatic and athletic abilities, such that Douglas Fairbanks may well look to his laurels lest they be wrested from him by the inimitable son of France, George Beban, noted for his powerful character roles, created another in keeping with the times in "The Man With the Punch." This is a sound foundation for any fool controller, and the food controller who does not accept some such principle in the business is sure to be a disappointment. Moreover, it may be said that up to the present time Lord Rhonda has not failed in any undertaking. He has been conspicuously successful. He seems to have the winning habit.

consistently monogamous. Unlike some other primitive peoples among whom the marital relation is more changeable than with us, the Eskimos are exceedingly kind to their women. A man is never permitted to swap wife with another man unless the women approve of the transaction. It may be thought, however, that this arrangement would result in the neglect of children. On the contrary is considered a heinous crime for a man to abandon his own children, and a grave sin even for him to watch unmoved the sufferings of another man's children. Where the natural danger to human life from the elements and from wild animals are so great, the whole tribe is impressed with the importance of caring for children.

very rare among men, owing to the dangers of the hunting which is the end means of livelihood. Mr. Leden has made an interesting study of Eskimo music, with a view to the effect of the music which is established through their music of the relations of the Eskimo tribes to other primitive peoples. He has found an astonishing relationship between the Eskimos and the North American Indians. The things that are typical of the melody of Eskimo music are the descent from higher to lower tones at the ending of a stanza, and the long dwelling upon a deep tone between every verse. In their manner of delivery, which, in my opinion, is of very great importance, they notice especially their downward glissando from a powerful start and the hacking accents on the higher tones at the beginning of a stanza. The Eskimo music has the simple and devotional quality which is found in the hymns sung by our American Pilgrim Fathers.

Like Vilhjalmur Stefansson, another well-known explorer, who is also an admirer of many things a Eskimo civilization, Mr. Leden feels that our civilization often suffers by comparison with the Eskimo civilization when ours is exemplified by the conduct of white people who do not live up to the moral standards preached by the missionaries. The Eskimo persistence in the hunt for him to watch unmoved the sufferings of another man's children. Where the natural danger to human life from the elements and from wild animals are so great, the whole tribe is impressed with the importance of caring for children.

On his last trip to the Norwegian Arctic, Leden was not only studying the social traits of the natives of the north that he overlooked more material things which might attract the average traveller. Mr. Leden believes that the original mineral wealth of northern Canada and the Arctic Islands is destined to be of great use to the world once these great natural resources are developed.

There are minerals, oil, leather, fur, fish and meat in the north, Mr. Leden said, with the high price now of leather, oil and meat, it should be a pretty good business to send ships up there to the right places in the Hudson Bay and the country north of it where five hundred walrus could be caught every year. The Eskimos are many white whales during the summer season, besides thousands of seals. Walrus leather is now as I understand it, worth about four cents a pound, and each walrus hide weighs about five hundred pounds. This would make for one year about $75,000 profit. Besides the ivory and oil of the walrus would be worth a great deal. By establishing two trading and sealing posts in the north, one could take in about $400,000 worth of oil, leather, fish and skin, the first year with an outlay of from $50,000 to $90,000.

The prices of oil and leather, and on account of the war, are now very high, will continue to be so for many years to come. After the war is over, it seems to me that besides further scientific investigations, what ought to be done in the Arctic is to make use of the information already gathered by explorers regarding the material wealth of these northern countries, and turn such resources to practical use and profit.

A good many people are prejudiced against Arctic and Antarctic exploration, believing such endeavor as hunting for unexplored areas to be merely a sort of sporting contest of little or no value to civilization. Explorers of the type of Christian Leden are proving to the world that the right sort of Arctic and Antarctic exploration is not only of interest to scientists, idealists and sportsmen, but is also of value to practical men and women of affairs.

LORD RHONDA NEW FOOD CONTROLLER

One of Biggest Jobs in the World Tackled by a Capable Man AFTER SPECULATORS Is Man of Great Strength of Character and Will Power

Lord Rhonda has tackled one of the biggest jobs in the world. He is the British Food Controller, recently succeeding Lord Devonport, whose health was reported to have given way during the tremendous strain. Lord Rhonda's nerves are good. If he succumbs to worry no other man ought to be appointed to carry on his work, for it will be a considerable and an impossible task. It is too early to say whether Lord Rhonda has succeeded or is likely to succeed, but his attitude toward the problem is a promising one. He says that those who make undue profit out of the people's foodstuffs in time of war are blackmarketers, and ought to be treated as such. This is a sound foundation for any fool controller, and the food controller who does not accept some such principle in the business is sure to be a disappointment. Moreover, it may be said that up to the present time Lord Rhonda has not failed in any undertaking. He has been conspicuously successful. He seems to have the winning habit.

The Man With the "Punch."

A writer in the Daily Mail says that Lord Rhonda is the man with a "punch," the Mail being proud of its acquaintance with American slang. When he was a student it is said that he was a noted boxer, and in the course of his long association with Welsh miners his powerful physique and readiness to take chances of violence served him well. "D. A." as he is still called in Wales, for everyone there continues to think of him as David A. Thomas, is not a man to whom people who come into contact with him can remain indifferent or judicial-minded. In an open letter not long ago in a Socialist leader said: "When we don't hate you we love you." He is a man of great strength of character and will-power. He is a boss, a man who makes things quickly, and whose mind once made up is permanently made up. He might not be an easy colleague, but he would be a courageous leader. When the present Cabinet was formed he was made President of the Liberal Government, a position which secured the public rather than an unimportant post for a man of his ability, but in that department in the few months he was there he had seen more red tape than had been destroyed in years.

Great Coal Owner.

Lord Rhonda, as most people are aware, is not unconnected with coal. He is the original and sole agent. In reality he is a great mine owner. He was, in fact, the Cambrian Combine, and in his efforts to become a millionaire, which were crowned with success some years ago, he had to fight the Miners' Union on many occasions. Not long ago he was denounced by the Miners for the profits he was making out of coal. A deputation waited upon him with some idea of dissuading him from his course. He smiled and answered: "Then why not invest the funds of the Miners' Union in mines? You know the industry, and have full facilities for becoming mine owners. As a capitalist he was naturally hated by thousands of his constituents, but nevertheless they returned him year after year to the Government in Commons, with unprecedented majorities. He was and is almost as popular in South Wales as Lloyd George is in North Wales.

David A. Thomas, M. P., was on the Lusitania when she was torpedoed. He was returning from a mission he had undertaken for the British Government in the United States. He had little expectation of being rescued, but when he was picked up he had already been told that the remainder of his life should be devoted to the service of his country, and in a very short time afterward his duty again called on him to cross the ocean. He hesitated, and no doubt he would spend his time on the high seas. It is doing so he could better conduct the food controllership. One reason for his long popularity in Wales is his hatred of cant. There is no hypocritical pretence of piety about him. When taking his millions out of the coal industry he did not do it to an accompaniment of upturned eyes and wringing hands. He was about as frank as the landlord who defended an outrageous overcharge on the ground that he needed the money. Now that he has got the money he is ready to spend it.

Lord Rhonda's Principles.

Lord Rhonda told a correspondent who went to interview him that he was not in reality an energetic man. In fact, unless he was interested in a thing he was indolent. This means that he must have the gift of becoming greatly interested in what he is doing. He is interested in his millions out of the coal industry. He has not hesitated, and no doubt he would spend his time on the high seas. It is doing so he could better conduct the food controllership. One reason for his long popularity in Wales is his hatred of cant. There is no hypocritical pretence of piety about him. When taking his millions out of the coal industry he did not do it to an accompaniment of upturned eyes and wringing hands. He was about as frank as the landlord who defended an outrageous overcharge on the ground that he needed the money. Now that he has got the money he is ready to spend it.

"I never held with French methods, sir. I call a man down and take my chance sometimes, but the third degree isn't what it's cracked up to be. I believe in judicious firmness and mildness."
"I expect that's how you treated Hallett. Never mind that, though. Ling wouldn't have parted with those things willingly. Your young friend must have been fairly successful in handling him. How do you figure it, all out generally?"
"Well," Menzies rubbed his chin meditatively, "there's money" somewhere, though that's to be expected. They're not folk who'd set out for a coup without a stocking to draw on. They've been spending money pretty freely for both. There was Gwennie Lyne's house at Brixton—most of her time somewhere else, probably at Shadwell. Then there's this Bloomsbury place into which I've just been reading the report of some inquiries Royal make. Ling took the whole place furnished a month ago under the name of R. Ter. He's never actually stayed there."
He glanced under his heavy eyebrows at the superintendent, who jingled some keys in his pocket and returned a look of interrogation.
"It's sold, unpretentious and central," prompted Menzies.
The superintendent gave his keys a final irritable shake. "What's it, a jar," he murmured.

"Oh? I thought it was a riddle. That's just like Ling. He'd have things cut and dried. Well, why didn't he—or they?"
"That's what I want to ask the lady. Hallett's got a glimmering of the reason, too. Personally I can think of a hundred answers to the question. The only thing is to know which is right."
"Ling," observed the superintendent with apparent irrelevance, "hasn't the record of a man who'll handle tar without gloves. He's always up to now, found his foot to the same breed. That leaves two people to pick from—Errol and Dago Sam. If it came to the choice I'd go for Errol."
Menzies smiled sardonically. He had a great deal of admiration for and loyalty to his chief, but he was human enough to be pleased when he could register a score.
"Then you'd be wrong, sir," he said.
"You think that because Ling had Greye-Stratton's pistol?"
"Not altogether. There's another little point, though I only came across it yesterday. Did you notice the fire-guard in Greye-Stratton's place—" myself in the room where he was found dead?"

"A heavy brass thing, wasn't it?"
"Yes. I was having another look over the place yesterday, when I found a thread had been caught in some of the sharp edges. I didn't speak about it, because I wasn't sure it had anything to do with the case. It so happened that in his hurry to get away last night Ling tore a bit of his coat. I took 'em both along to Fyne-Rection to have a look at them under the microscope. He now says definitely that they're exactly similar."
"That's useful, liddle," observed the superintendent. "A nice little bit of evidence to justify his arrest for murder, but you'll have to go further than that for conviction. There's going to be a big fight when this comes on for trial. The pistol doesn't count. You haven't even got Hallett's word that it came from Ling and if you had you can see the line of defense. It's word against word, and you can see what counsel would do with Hallett."

He made a gesture as though addressing an imaginary jury. "And this man, gentlemen—this American Hallett—has sworn that the pistol produced was taken from the prisoner Ling. Ling has denied on oath that he ever saw the weapon before. You'll not need reminding, gentlemen, of the peculiar and extraordinary circumstances under which this man Hallett became associated with the case. He is found in a locked room with the murdered man, and he tells a confiding police officer—namely, you, I am not saying a word against the police—an honest enough detective, whose intelligence perhaps runs in narrow channels."
Menzies eyed his chief ruefully. "Thank you, sir," he said dryly.
"Foyle's eyes twinkled genially. "Well, you know that's what they'll say. It's the obvious line of defense. As for the cloth—he snapped his fingers—"a common cloth worn by a dozen experts as being worn by a sixty-nine out of a hundred men. There's heaps of evidence of motive, and no doubt you'll be able to get it in, but there's gaps in your evidence, Menzies, and don't you go forgetting it."

Menzies tapped his pipe on the heel of his boot and grinned. Foyle was indulging in no mere captious criticism. It was not unusual for the weak links in an important investigation to be thus examined when it was on the point of closing up, for the C.I.D. likes to be prepared.
The work of the department does not finish with the catching of a criminal. Every shred of relevant evidence has to be drawn up in lucid detail from which the Treasury solicitors prepare a brief for counsel. It does not do to take anything for granted. Menzies could picture, too, the cross-examination of an unwilling Jimmie, and the conclusions that might be drawn from it.

"There's the girl, of course," he muttered thoughtfully. "She'd be even better than Hallett in a way. If we didn't have to put her in the dock she might be persuaded to tell what she knows."
"Aren't you forgetting she's Mrs. Ling?" said Foyle. "You can't compel a woman to give evidence against her husband."
"Against her husband—no," said Menzies.

CHAPTER XXIII
A Slim Doctor.
There was no outward evidence that Levine Street was under any extraordinary police surveillance. Now, and again a blue-coated constable picked his way at the regulation two-and-a-half miles an hour down its sordid length. In the taproom of a dingy public house a couple of shabby loafers were playing dominoes, with a not infrequent casual glance through the open door into the rain-soaked road.
There was no public house at the further end of the street, but two water-side laborers had secured a "kip" in one of the few lodgings-houses in the street, and through the dirty windows their gaze commanded the street.
These were, so to speak, Menzies's advanced posts. Not one of them had even been stationed in that division of the East End. A divisional detective, of necessity, gets well known to the criminal fraternity of his neighborhood, and as such is in no ordinary routine of a detective's work it is easier and safer to employ strangers in a locality where the presence of a local police officer might arouse undesirable speculation or comment.

Not that the divisional detectives were idle. Half a dozen or more were wandering, with apparent aimlessness, about the vicinity, though never by any chance showing in Levine Street itself. Yet it was scarcely likely that any one leaving that thoroughfare would escape the notice of this outer fringe of watchers. That was what they were for.
Twice that day had Mrs. Battle journeyed into the main street—once to the butcher's, once to a post-office. And each time, curiously enough, one of the water-side laborers or one of the saloon loafers had lounged idly in the same direction, dropping back after three or four hundred yards while the hard-bitten detectives of the H division took up the unobtrusive escort.

It was one of these periods of notorious detective work which is of no public interest, and therefore largely unrecorded in the newspapers. For all those taking part in it knew that depressing vigil might go on for weeks, perhaps for months, and then end without any obvious result having been achieved.
Meanwhile Detective-Sergeant Congrave had routed out, a colleague in the division, and was more actively engaged. Together they walked along the Commercial Road until they reached a corner shop. The lower half of the big plate-glass windows had been blackened, and staring

Good Night N' Stories

Mamma and Daddy Perch lived under the rocks near the edge of the river. They were quite proud of their little family, with the exception of one. Yellow Perch, called that because his coat was such a beautiful golden color.
When Mamma Perch sent her little fish children off to school, Yellow Perch would lag behind until the others were out of sight, then he would dart away among the rocks to the place where the water was shallow and he basking in the sun. He passed again on their way home. This made mamma and daddy very unhappy.
"I don't believe he can spell the word 'book,'" said Mamma Perch to Daddy Perch one day.
"I doubt whether he knows what a book is," added Daddy Perch.
Yellow Perch didn't know how to spell, but he had seen a book, much to his sorrow, for one day he tried to steal a worm from one and all the Perch had never said a word, for fear his mamma would scold.
"You're a lazy little fish, and you don't mend your ways. I'm going some day you'll come to harm," said his mamma with a sigh.
But Yellow Perch didn't like school and while his brothers and sisters were listening to their teacher, as he tried to impress on their minds the danger of the dreaded book, Yellow Perch would lie at the bottom of the tank and blink at the water above his head.
One day his brothers and sisters on their way home saw a great big black thing hanging in the water. A nice fat worm dangled from its end. All the little perch began quarrelling as to who had seen it first.
Yellow Perch was looking near, and hearing their noise, he swam lazily out to see the cause of the excitement. When he saw the crooked thing with its dangling worm, he started out to the crowd, and pushed his brothers and sisters back.
"That's the terrible thing you go to school to learn about. If you catch hold of the water and land in some one's frying pan," he cried.
The little perch swam back just as the line was jerked upward. They had seen a H-O-O-K for the first time in their lives.
"If it hadn't been for Yellow Perch, one of us would have been lost. He told us what it was," said one.
Mamma and Daddy Perch looked at each other.
"Even if he can't spell H-O-O-K he knows what it means," said Mamma Perch, and she never scolded him again.
"Why?" he had experience with one himself," replied Daddy Perch.
"That's the best teacher, after all," said Mamma Perch.
From that time on the little Perch family were left to play among the rocks at their will, for fish folk never have to go to school after that means. But with you and me it's different, for you see, there are many more dangers in this air-world of ours, and we must be kept on our toes and hard to learn about them all.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS
OF GREAT VALUE
Mrs. J. A. Lagace, Ste. Perpetue, Que., writes: "Baby's Own Tablets have been of great value to me and I would strongly recommend them to other mothers. Thousands of their mothers say the same thing. They have become convinced through actual use of the Tablets that nothing can equal them in regulating the bowels and stomach, driving out constipation and indigestion; breaking up colds and simple fevers; expelling worms and curing colic. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont."

THE ONE IMPORTANT PERSON.
Said the Authorman's Wife to the Lady-who-always-knows-something: "I think it's an outrage the way you did all the work on that committee and the other people shirked. I should think it would make you just wild."
The Lady smiled gently, "I didn't do all the work nor half of it, but even so, why should I be wild about what other people did or didn't do?"
"Why?" said the Authorman's Wife. "Because it was outrageous the way they shirked."
"But I didn't do any more than I wanted to," said the Lady, "so what difference did it make to me that they did? How did it hurt me if they shirked? If I had shirked that would have been another thing. That would have hurt me."
It Would Certainly Have Annoyed Her.
The Authorman's Wife looked perfectly unconvinced.
"Well," she reiterated, "it would have made me just wild."
Doubtless it would have.
And yet, as the Lady said, why should it?
Why do we trouble ourselves so much about whether other people do their duty or not?
Why such a bother about our neighbor's righteousness? After all, it isn't our affair. We really don't have to keep him up to the mark.
Not One's Brother's Critic.
But one's brother-keeper means being his helper, his friend, not his ward, in time I shall have mine."

POINTS TO CONSIDER WHEN PURCHASING A RAILWAY TICKET
A Canadian Pacific Railway ticket does not represent merely a means of transportation between given points. It, in addition, provides the traveler with every comfort and convenience developed by modern railway science. "Safety First," with up-to-date equipment, unexcelled dining service, palatial sleeping cars, in a word everything that a railway can provide for the comfortable transportation of its passengers, including courtesy.

ADOPTION OF WAR MENUS CANADA URGED BY HANNA

Appeal to People of Dominion Issued Food Controller Asks Maximum Production, Careful Conservation and Prevention of Waste; Creation of Organized Volunteer Bodies to Assist Controller

Ottawa, June 29.—In a statement issued last night Hon. W. J. Hanna, the newly-appointed Food Controller, reviews the food situation in Canada, emphasizes the need of the allies, urges economy and the prevention of waste in food, and bespeaks wholehearted public co-operation.

Mr. Hanna's statement reads: "The outstanding fact of the food situation, which it is imperative that every citizen of Canada should realize at once, is that Great Britain and European allies are wholly unable to supply the allied armies at the front and on the way. For nearly three years their man-power has been engaged in the direct work of war, and in some cases large areas of their most productive lands have been over-run by the enemy. Their food shortage and their need to supply the armies of Canada and the United States must be wholly provided from this side of the Atlantic. The supply must also be sufficient to cover losses at sea. Australia, New Zealand, the Argentine Republic and other countries are not now available to relieve the situation because of their remoteness and the shortage of tonnage.

"The crop of storable food grown in Canada and the United States suitable for shipment overseas threatens to be entirely inadequate to meet the demands unless the whole people determine by every means in their power to make up the shortage. Every individual is under a direct obligation to assist in rationing the allied forces. There must be national self-denial and national co-operation to provide the necessary supplies.

Some Necessary Measures
"Time and investigation will be required to determine the best means of assuring adequate rations for the Canadian divisions and the allied nations and armies. But there are some measures that are so obviously right that we ask that they be adopted at once and that the men and women of the Dominion pledge themselves to their observance. They include:

(1) Maximum production.
(2) The largest possible consumption of perishable foodstuffs in order to liberate the storable foods for transportation.
(3) The prevention of food waste.
(4) The utilization and creation of organized voluntary bodies to assist the food controller in increasing and conserving the food supplies.
(5) The restriction of ocean tonnage makes increased production and consumption of perishable foodstuffs at home imperative if the more easily transported commodities are to be released for export. The food problem of the Dominion is not measured by the domestic market, but by the needs of the allied armies and nations. They require tremendous supplies of wheat, meats, fish, cheese, butter, canned and crackered foods and other commodities. They cannot be rationed unless the Dominion saves such foodstuffs for export. Additional production of perishable products will be necessary for domestic wants. These can be met and waste prevented by national consumption of perishable foodstuffs. Fruits and vegetables in their season should be the country's foods to the greatest possible extent.

Food is Being Wasted
"Food is being wasted in the stores, hotels, restaurants, clubs and homes of the Dominion. It is the duty of every citizen dealing in or preparing and serving food to adopt measures which will eliminate waste entirely.

"The adoption of war menus is a national duty if the country is to do its share in the provision of food essential to the successful prosecution of the war. There must be immediate voluntary action to curtail table excesses. The soldier lives simply. He is not given the choice of many dishes and delicacies.

"The efforts of the Dominion and Provincial Departments of Agriculture, other Governmental organizations and the voluntary associations already at work are greatly appreciated. Their further assistance is earnestly invited. All organized bodies and every citizen should study means of conserving the non-perishable foods. There is equal need for increased production of perishable products. Where the work of organization has not already been done we suggest that the Mayors and Reeves of urban communities take action at once, so that all available labor in the municipalities may be put at the service of those who need it, preference being given in every instance to those whose sons or husbands have gone to the front. There are many men in towns and villages who have had farm experience, whose services will be of great value in this connection.

Appeal to the Churches
"Public realization of the true food position, and the need to make an earnest appeal to the churches of the Dominion to lay the facts and the needs of the situation strongly before their congregations.

"The soldiers at the front expect the men and women of Canada to do their share in providing the necessary food. They must not be disappointed unless they are betrayed by the people at home. Any self-denial practised in the homes of the Dominion will be insignificant in comparison with that of the Canadian and allied armies, of which millions of people in Belgium and Serbia continually suffer. Food conservation is essential to win the war."

SCHRANK FORGIVES TEDDY ROOSEVELT

Man Who Attempted Life of T. R. in 1912, Is in Criminal Asylum

This is a story about a man whose name a few years ago occupied the front page of newspapers all over the world for several weeks and who now is probably not remembered by more than a few. This man furnished a sensation which electrified the world, and to-day he is in practical oblivion.

Yet the question occasionally is asked, "Whatever became of John Schrank?" Anyone thus addressed likely would require further information. "What league did he play in?" or "Was he a movie hero?" A second thought, however, will bring up another name, one of the most prominent of the twentieth century and millions will recall that John Schrank is the man who shot Theodore Roosevelt.

It is doubtful if Roosevelt ever thinks of Schrank any more, says an Oshkosh, Wis., dispatch to the Chicago Herald. But it is definitely known that Schrank thinks of Roosevelt. He prefers not to discuss the incident which resulted in his being placed in the Northern state hospital for the insane at Winnebago and later in the prison for the criminal insane at Waupun, where he is to-day. But on more than one occasion he has readily admitted that he has "forgiven" Roosevelt, and even feels kindly toward him.

Schrank has plenty of time to think. He is destined to spend the remainder of his life at Waupun. He himself believes that he will gain his freedom eventually, and that he will realize his ambitions of becoming a leader of men, a magnanimous leader who will sway men by the power of his personality, the eloquence of his teachings, the loftiness of his philosophy and the profundity of his writings.

He spends his days working, reading and thinking. He has no kin in all the world. An old uncle died previous to his dramatic notoriety at his home in New York state. He has no friends save those who are his guardians. Schrank is a painter by trade. In fact he is the official painter in the institution. He likes this work, but in a measure his is an ordinary mind. He dreams of fame's lofty heights, aspires to be remembered as a great poet and to leave for future generations masterpieces of prose in the form of philosophic dissertations on the great questions of the day, such as labor, politics, economics and even the lives of great men.

He also is a playwright, many of his leisure moments being devoted to the compiling of dramas and problem plays through which, some day, he believes he will enter the halls of fame. Intensity of plot with his characters, enunciating ponderous themes on the wrongs of mankind form his main efforts in that direction, and in his moments of less concentrated thought he turns out poetic fantasies on the beauties of flowers, the joys of childhood and the glories of nature's gifts.

During the greater part of the time Schrank would strike the casual observer as a man of high intelligence, and of normal mentality. He is a conversationalist whose words are always called brilliant. He is a voracious reader and therefore is conversant with all current events and topics, his material being gleaned from numerous papers and magazines which the prison authorities provide for his insatiable quest for knowledge. His retentive powers are surprising at times. Names and dates seem ever at his command.

Of course the war absorbs much of his attention. He says his sympathies were always pro-ally. Incidentally one can see why he is not pro-German, for he claims that the German people are being led astray by the kaiser, whom he regards as the prototype of what he believes Roosevelt once was—a demagogue, an imperial, dominating personality who considers his will higher than the law of even God himself.

John Schrank attracts many visitors. This is largely attributed, by those watching over him as being due to the fact that visitors ply him

Save the Food and Serve the Empire!

The Average Canadian Family Wastes Enough to Feed a Soldier

"The Kitchen must help as well as the Workshop and the Trenches."
Lloyd George.

INTELLIGENT economy in the kitchen can do much to prevent the threatened world famine—can counteract the effect of high prices—and can replace growing debt with systematic saving.

Careful investigations show that before the war the average British family wasted 25% of their food—and we Canadians were even more extravagant.

This waste is not in a few big things, but in many little ones, each, we used to think, too small to bother about—such as careless peeling of vegetables and fruit—failure to make good use of dripping and "left-overs"—and such others as will occur to every thrifty housekeeper.

For the Empire's sake as well as your own, hunt up and cut out these leaks! You'll be helping to relieve the food shortage—saving your own money—and putting yourself in a position to buy Canadian War Savings Certificates and help win the war.

War Savings Certificates are issued in denominations of $25, $50 and $100, to be repaid in three years at full face value. They cost $21.50, $43 and $86 respectively, at all Money Order Post-Offices and Banks, thus yielding over 5% interest. Should you need it, you can get your money back at any time.

Leafs Defeated Richmond Rebels 14 to 9 Yesterday

BOTH TEAMS HIT HARD

Richmond, Va., June 29.—Whiteman's four hits, all of them coming when runners were on the bases and resulting in one or more scores, figured materially in the victory. Toronto scored over Richmond again yesterday. The score was 14 to 9.

More heavy hitting was shown in the contest than has figured often in several games here, and either club made sufficient wallops to win. Toronto, unlike Richmond, hit consistently, as well as hard. Few of the errors made by either team figured materially in the scoring.

Richmond bunched their hits in only a few frames and their homers went for but four runs. Whiteman came up each time with one or more on the sacks and on all but one occasion he delivered. Koehler's home run was a freak. Whiteman falling to trap his grounder, the pellet climbing his arm and bounding over the high fence from his shoulder.

THE SPEECHMAKER

They call upon me, now and then, to make a speech on this or that; I rise before my fellowmen, and shoot some wisdom through my hat. A glow of pleasure most men feel when they hand out profound remarks, for every fellow likes to speak, as every dog enjoys his bark. And then men out of every nine, go on and on, they like it so, till palsied hearers wilt and pine, and wish they had some eggs to throw. When I begin I note the clock, which has all time at its command; I keep on squinting as I talk, and mark the moving minute hand. I watch the clock with baleful eye, I stand where I can see its face, and when ten minutes have gone by, I put my tongue back in its place. My lungs would like, like everything, to labor on, but they must cease; I tie my larynx with a string, I am often asked to rise and thrash the issues of the day, for people know I am too wise to keep it up till they are gray. They know I always watch the clock, and when the proper hour has come, I grab my hat and take a walk, and seal my lips with chewing gum.

PORTUGUESE CALLED 'TONY' ON WESTFRONT

British Tommies Welcome New Ally and Cement Friendship

London, Friday, June 29.—Perry Robinson, telegraphing to the Times from British headquarters in France, pays a handsome tribute to the Portuguese troops now in the trenches, and also to their artillery. He writes: "The cordiality of the relationship between British soldiers and the Portuguese may be taken as finally confirmed. In fact, the latter now have a nickname. They are 'Antonio.' There were some who first were disposed to call them 'Pork and Beans,' as having a general resemblance to the word Portuguese, but our allies proved themselves in the trenches, and are settling down to the friendly sobriquet of 'Antonio,' which has already been shortened to 'Tony,' a fit counterpart to 'Tommy,' showing that the rapprochement has been consummated."

Police Scandal

STIRS NEW YORK

Startling Developments Follow Finding of Body of Ruth Cruger

READS LIKE FICTION

New York Lady Lawyer Instrumental in Solving The Case

Hundreds of girls disappear in New York City every year; and ninety-nine out of each hundred, according to the official police theory, slope with someone. This engaging theory promises to bring about a convulsion in the New York police force comparable only to the sensation of the Becker murder, arrest and trial. A New York girl disappeared; the police held the notion that she had eloped. The girl's family and a woman lawyer insisted that the girl had either been lured into the white-slave traffic or that she had been murdered. The police, aggrieved, set some small and tentative obstacles in the path of the family and lawyer. These were removed. The girl's body was discovered in the cellar of the man whom the police supposed to have been her companion in the mysterious flight. The man himself was in Italy. He was arrested, stoutly denying his guilt. Then he confessed that he had murdered the girl. The next night he tried to commit suicide. That was last Sunday night.

The Disappearance of Ruth Cruger. The story is so remarkable that for a week or so past it has taken precedence of the war in the matter of emphatic headlines in the New York daily newspapers. The victim was Ruth Cruger, a New York girl of some 16 or 17 years. One day last February she left her home with a pair of skates which she wanted sharpened. She went to a general machine and bicycle store kept by an Italian named Alfred Cocchi. From the time she entered the shop all traces were lost of her. The police came home the following day, and they tracked her to Cocchi's. They even made a perfunctory examination of the premises. No trace of the missing girl was found. Cocchi said that after leaving her skates she had gone out of the shop and he had seen no more of her. The police continued to investigate the case, but in an even more perfunctory manner. The next day Cocchi disappeared, leaving a wife and family behind him. This confirmed the police in their original theory that the girl had eloped. She had eloped with her murderer, of course. What could be clearer?

Mrs. Sherlock Holmes. The father of the girl, however, insisted that his daughter had not eloped. He clung to the theory that she had been abducted and he appealed again and again to the police. They soothed him to the best of their ability in view of their theory that she and Cocchi had run away, but he declined to be soothed. The case was brought to the attention of Mrs. Grace Humiston, a New York lawyer, the wife of a lawyer, and a woman who had on two or three previous occasions shown that she possessed considerable gifts as a detective. Also she was a sworn and official enemy of all white slavers. She was interested at once, and surmised that an open-air girl like Ruth Cruger, who loved skating and similar pastimes, was not the kind of girl to elope, especially with a married Italian bicycle repair man. The family, smarting under the implication that Ruth had become infatuated with Cocchi, protested upon her to take up the case.

Finding the Body. She began by making an investigation of Cocchi's reputation, and what she discovered within a few hours convinced her that the man should have been arrested on suspicion as soon as the girl had been traced to his shop. She and her assistant detectives finally discovered a couple of men who had seen Cocchi emerging from the cellar under his shop about midnight on the day that Ruth had vanished. There followed the natural desire to dig up the cellar. Here Mrs. Cocchi intervened and forbade the excavations. An appeal was taken to the Board of Health and permission was granted to dig up under the sidewalk in front of the cellar. In a short time a corner-set and bag, identified as belonging to the missing girl, were hauled. At this juncture Mrs. Cocchi minded out of the shop and some new tenants permitted a thorough examination of the cellar. The searchers soon found the body of Ruth, evidently murdered in a particularly brutal way.

Police to Blame. It was then that the storm burst through the newspapers upon the New York Police Department. The reports of the detectives who had been assigned to make the first investigation were so contradictory that it was made plain that the police had acted upon a preconceived theory, and had made no honest attempt to thoroughly examine Cocchi's letters, were found in which the Italian was recommended by members of the force to persons unknown as being "O.K." Other police were shown to have been his friends. Several suits of clothing came to light in the course of the excavation. At least one of them was shown to have been owned by a police official. In the meantime Cocchi was arrested in Italy, and tried to commit suicide after making a confession. He had made advances to the girl, and when re-phased had murdered her. He may have murdered others. His reputation was vile. It must have been known to the police in the district. If not, their imbecility was as culpable as their callousness. At the present time there is an investigation going on which has resulted in the suspension of several officers. The end may bring about a shakeup the like of which has not been seen since the days of the Lexow commission.
