Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye-strain or other eye weakness? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to do so.

To strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes a time.

Notes: Another prominent physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients will help to combat eye spasms and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturer guarantees it to strengthen eyes to see clear in a week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very best eye remedies I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family."

WHEN LOVE Came Too Late.

CHAPTER VII.

A Simple Bit of Charity.

"No," assented the squire, impatiently; "that is what puzzles me. I never saw a more gentleman-like man, or one with a more prepossessing face. But his manners and conduct—" He pulled up. "However," he continued, "if he prefers to live a secluded and isolated life, why that is his business, not mine. I shall not call again, of course."

"No," said Olivia; "yet Bertie likes him."

"Likes him? How do you know that? Oh, because he spoke up for him yesterday. I don't know why you should say that he 'likes' him."

"I watched Bertie's face," said Olivia, quietly.

The squire knitted his brows. "It was very unfortunate, his turning up as he did yesterday. And those gypsies, too. It was very annoying for Mr. Bradstone. Did you enjoy the picnic, Olivia?"

"Yes," she replied, indifferently, and turned to the books again.

"It was an admirable luncheon," he said, watching her, with the deep lines graving themselves in his forehead; "admirable. Mr. Bradstone must have spared no expense or trouble. He did his very best to make it a success."

"Oh, yes," she answered, coldly; "I think it was a success. Annie and Mary enjoyed themselves."

"Yes," he said, leaning his head on his hand, and watching her with the same troubled, anxious, wistful gaze. "Yes. Was he very attentive to them? I didn't notice. It would be a very good match for one of them. He is a very rich man, Olivia."

"Is he?" she said, with supreme indifference. "I think this will do for Bessie; I remember reading it. It is full of incident, and yet the characters talk naturally."

"Bartley Bradstone is very rich," said the squire, ignoring her criticism of the novel. "He would be a good match for most girls. If he were in London he would be snapped up at once."

"I dare say," said Olivia, turning the leaves of the book carelessly.

"Yes," said the squire, thoughtfully. "Money is everything nowadays. It is all that any one thinks of, and Bartley Bradstone has it in abundance."

"Is it all any one thinks of?" said Olivia. "We don't think of it much, dear; but I suppose that's because we have enough of it," and she smiled with blissful serenity.

Tonsillitis, Sore Throat, Chest Colds, Can be Cured Over Night

They Vanish Quickly if Nerviline is Well Rubbed In.

When the throat tickles, when it hurts to draw a long breath, when you feel as if a knife were stuck in your side, it's time to draw out the congestion that will soon become pneumonia.

An ordinary cough syrup has no chance at all—you require a powerful penetrating liniment.

Nothing is known that possesses more merit in such cases than Nerviline.

Rub it liberally over the sides and chest—rub it in hard.

The warm, soothing effect of Nerviline will be apparent in five minutes. Nothing like it for quick relief—takes soreness out of the throat in one rubbing—breaks up the chest cold, draws out the inflammation, stops the cough quickly.

Rub it on for rheumatism—it destroys the pain—drives it right away. Try it for stiff muscles—it works miracles in just such cases.

Give Nerviline a chance on your neuralgia, prove it out for lumbago, see what it can do for sciatica.

No pain-relieving remedy compares in power to cure with Nerviline. Largest sale in Canada of any liniment for nearly forty years. The reason is plain. It satisfies every time.

The large 50 cent family size bottle is more economical than the 25 cent trial size. Sold by dealers everywhere.

"And I think you're right," said Olivia, with a sudden warmth which astonished Alford, and made her blush a moment afterward. "I mean that of course it is absurd to suppose that because Mr. Faradeane is a stranger he must necessarily be disreputable—and—and—unworthy. Why, Alford, a wicked man would never have risked his limbs for Bessie, as Mr. Faradeane did."

"Do not be too sure of that, Miss Vanley," said a voice, and Olivia, starting, turned and saw the man she had been defending. He had come round the bend by the thick garden hedge, unperceived by either Alford or herself.

Olivia stood with her hands on the gate, white and red by turns, and Alford coughed and shuffled in awkward confusion.

Mr. Faradeane regarded them with a faint smile that was more sad than mirthful.

"As a rule, listeners hear anything but good of themselves, Miss Vanley," he said, raising his hat. "This is the exception. Thank you for your defence, but I fear that it is not, as the lawyers would say, a sound one."

Olivia fought down her strange shyness—strange because it had never until now attacked her in the presence of any man.

"Was it not?" she said, in a low voice. "I thought it was a very reasonable proposition."

He shook his head, still with the same grave smile.

"Some of the worst men have been conspicuous for their courage as well as their crimes. There was a convict the other day who stood up on behalf of a warder who had been attacked by the rest of the gang, some fifteen in number. When they came to inquire into the man's antecedents they found that he, who had defended his keeper at the risk of his own life, had been sentenced to penal servitude for a particular bad case of manslaughter. That's a modern instance. Ancient history is full of examples of bad men who have exhibited, not once, but many times, extraordinary courage—have even done braver things than stopping a small pony," and he smiled.

"Ah!" grunted Alford. "I thought it was coming to that. Mr. Faradeane always tries to make out as it was nothing at all; and look at his forehead," and he pointed to the scar.

Olivia raised her eyes to it, and met his grave, sad, half-smiling gaze, beneath which her own drooped instantly.

"I am afraid you won't succeed in persuading me that I am even a second-hand hero, Alford," he said. "How is Bessie this morning?"

Alford told him that she was much better, and Mr. Faradeane turned as if to go, when a sudden impulse seized Olivia, and, falteringly, she said:

"I—I am so sorry for what occurred yesterday at the picnic, Mr. Faradeane."

He stopped and looked at her absently for a moment, as if the incident had escaped his memory; then he said:

"Pray don't give it a moment's thought or regret. Mr. Bradstone's indignation was very natural. Trespassers are a nuisance at any time; but at a picnic they are intolerable. I have written to Mr. Bradstone apologizing for my intrusion, and assuring him that 'it shan't occur again.' I hope you had a pleasant day."

"Very," said Olivia; and he turned to go again, when she said: "My father called on you this morning. He was sorry to find you were out."

He looked down at the path in grave silence for a moment; then he said, as he raised his eyes to hers: "Will you please thank Mr. Vanley for his courtesy. I live a very solitary and secluded life, Miss Vanley."

"Does that mean that you decline his acquaintance?" asked Olivia, in her straightforward way.

"His brow furrowed with a wistful, troubled frown.

"I am afraid it does," he said. "I am what is called a recluse, a misanthrope."

"What is called," said Olivia, quietly; "a misanthrope who stops runaway ponies, and takes the trouble to inquire daily after a sick girl; isn't that a little too inconsistent?"

He smiled.

"You are rather hard upon me," he

MOTHER OF FOUR CHILDREN

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Kept Her Well and Strong.

Lincoln, Illinois.—"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for ten years with good results and I have four healthy children. This summer I was in a very run down condition and the very hot weather seemed more than I could stand, but I commenced taking your Compound in June and from then until September 25th, when my last baby was born, I got along much better than I had before. My baby was a girl and weighed 14 pounds at birth, and I recovered very rapidly which I am sure was due to your medicine. I am well and strong now, nurse my baby and do all my work. I had the same good results with your medicine when needed before my other children came and they are all healthy. My mother has taken your medicine with equal satisfaction. She had her last child when nearly 44 years old and feels confident she never would have carried him through without your help, as her health was very poor." Mrs. I. F. CLOYD, 1355 North Gulick Ave., Decatur, Ill.

Expectant mothers should profit by Mrs. Cloyd's experience and trust to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Free confidential advice had by addressing Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

said, in a low voice. He paused. "I am sorry I did not see Mr. Vanley this morning; but consider—what sympathy, what friendship could exist between Harold Faradeane of The Dell and the Squire of Hawkwood?" Olivia flushed.

"Do you think my father values a man by the size of the house he inhabits, Mr. Faradeane?"

"I think him a high-minded English gentleman," he responded, with grave earnestness, "but between a man in his position and a man in mine there is a vast difference."

Olivia bit her lip, and turned aside with a slight bow.

"Will you give these to Bessie, Alford?" she said, as if she had finished with Mr. Faradeane.

He stood with his dark, sad eyes fixed on the ground; then he approached her.

"I have offended you," in a low, almost an appealing voice.

Olivia turned to him with lowered lids.

"Oh, no?"

"Your words say 'No,' but your 'one says 'Yes,'" he said. Olivia tried to laugh.

"Well, you must admit that one may be rather displeased at having one's overtures of friendship declined, however politely," she said.

He dug a stone out of the path with his stick; then he looked up at her.

"You have put the case candidly; but think, Miss Vanley—your father knows nothing of me. He has paid me the attention of a call, because I was so fortunate as to be of slight service to one of his servants. Am I to take advantage of such an accident? He knows nothing of me, remember."

"My father is perfectly free to choose his friends," she retorted. "He would have called on you, even if this accident of Bessie's had not occurred."

He struck the pebble he had dug out, and sighed.

"Do not tempt me," he murmured, in so low a voice that Olivia did not hear him.

"What did you say?" she asked. He fixed his dark eyes on her.

THE DUC DE ROHAN.

The Duc de Rohan, who has been killed in action, had been at the request transferred to the infantry whose duties at present are more dangerous than those of any other arm. He was head of one branch of a family that gave Brittany its dukes and kings. Henry L. Duc de Rohan was leader of the Calvinist party in the days of Louis XIII. The Chevalier de Rohan, Grand Veneur of France, was beheaded for conspiracy in 1771. Cardinal de Rohan was deprived of all his honors as Grand Aumonier of France for being implicated in Marie Antoinette's diamond necklace affair. Another Rohan, Grand Master of the Knights of Malta, gave the "Code Rohan" to Malta, where it is still in force. The Duc de Rohan exists nowhere else than in the name, but most of our dominions have law that greatly resembles Roman-Dutch, which is very like Code Napoleon. The family, despite its name, is a party of the nobility, being that of Gue, another of the nobles of the name, who was associated with a rich onion. The late Duke was a prominent member of the French Jockey Club, he hunted in Leicestershire, England. The family motto means "Cannot be overthrown." Will not be a member of the Rohan.

WOUNDED IN CLOVER.

The hospital trains still roll on London twice or thrice a day, but it is told that there still is not enough wounded to "go round" among the people who wish to entertain them, or, as I am afraid I must in truth say, to obtain the presence of the wounded to justify their own entertainments. Recently I met a lady who told me that she had tired herself out telephoning to the hospitals to see whether they could send a party wounded out to tea. Everywhere the reply was "All our wounded are booked up. If you give us a week's notice we might probably be able to arrange a party." My acquaintance had arranged a garden party for seventy people, and had been told at the last minute that only forty could be coming. To telephone for a party of wounded seemed a happy thought, kindly inspiration till she tried to do it. "What did you do?" I asked. She said, "I turned out all my friends. The forty women who came had their selling flags all day, and they were ravenous."

LONDON VOLUNTEER CAMPS.

Some of the suburban Volunteer camps (attended by men over thirty years of age acting as spare time soldiers) projected for the first week in August have been abandoned in the sequence of the postponement of Bank Holidays; but it is understood they will be held as soon as the substituted holidays are announced by Proclamation. Under the new arrangement the preparation of the London defences is in active progress, and evidenced every Sunday and Saturday afternoon by the bodies of men engaged in trench-digging under the prevailing weather conditions. The trenches that are being made at some instances educational, being designed to allow of a rapid comparison of various types that have been developed in practical warfare on the Western front. It may be expected that in the event of the rather remote prospect of an invasion in any part of Great Britain, the completion and extension of these entrenchments would be carried out with the aid of civilians and not by Volunteer soldiers alone.

YACHTS FOR CARGO CARRYING.

A number of sailing and auxiliary yachts are being employed for the transport of some kinds of cargo. Craft of the type are at first sight not very suitable for work of the character. They must be, however, more suitable than they appear to be. I hear that the use of them under the Red Ensign is spreading. Several well-known steam yachts—one of them of more than average dimensions—are understood to be the subject of negotiations which are well forward. The conversion of vessels of the type involves the fitting of a good deal of elegant accommodation, but it does not cost long or cost a great deal to make necessary alterations. That the converted vessels would not pay their way under ordinary conditions of course certain, but the state of shipping is so far from normal that the profit is not for the time being the least degree doubtful. "It really looks," said a well-known shipping man, "as if almost anything in the shape of a surface ship were a paying proposal to-day." Most of the trades for which yachts are being

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, July 24th, 1916.

THE DUC DE ROHAN.

The Duc de Rohan, who has been killed in action, had been at his own request transferred to the infantry, whose duties are more dangerous than those of any other arm. He was head of one branch of a family that gave Brittany its dukes and kings. Henry I, Duc de Rohan, was leader of the Calvinist party in the days of Louis XIII. The Chevalier de Rohan, Grand Veneur de France, was beheaded for conspiracy in 1774. Cardinal de Rohan was deprived of all his honors as Grand Aumonier of France for being concerned in Marie Antoinette's diamond necklace affair. Another Rohan, a Grand Master of the Knights of Malta, gave the "Code Rohan" to Malta, where it is still in force. The Code Rohan exists nowhere else than in Malta, but most of our dominions have law that greatly resembles the Roman-Dutch, which is very like the Code Napoleon. The family was split up into several branches, one being that of Gue, another of them being that of Soubise, whose name is associated with a rich onion sauce. The late Duke was a prominent member of the French Jockey Club, and he hunted in Leicestershire, England. The family motto means "Cannot be omnipotent. Will not be a menial. Am a Rohan."

YACHTS FOR CARGO CARRYING.

A number of sailing and auxiliary yachts are being employed for the transport of some kinds of cargo. Craft of the type are at first sight not very suitable for work of the character. They must be, however, more suitable than they appear to be, for I hear that the use of them under the Red Ensign is spreading. Several well-known steam yachts—one or two of them are of more than average dimensions—are understood to be the subject of negotiations which are well forward. The conversion of vessels of the type involves the scrapping of a good deal of elegant accommodation, but it does not take long, or cost a great deal to make the necessary alterations. That the converted vessels would not pay their way under ordinary conditions is of course certain, but the state of shipping is so far from normal that their profit is not for the time being in the least degree doubtful. "It really looks," said a well-known shipping man, "as if almost anything in the shape of a surface ship were a paying proposal to-day." Most of the trades for which yachts are being bought or are in demand are, I may add, what are called "special." A number of them are between overseas British possessions.

DEARER HATS.

Men's "bowlers" and soft felt hats are to be much dearer. This is due to the great and continued increase in the price of all the materials employed in the manufacture of the hat and to the greatly lessened production. Both wool, which is used for the cheaper qualities of felt hats, and the fur for the better grades cost very much more—quite 50 per cent. Dyes have of course soared to an unprecedented figure. Methylated spirit for proofing the hats costs at least four times as much. The silk linings and the ribbons are about a third dearer, and the leathers are considerably higher in price. Packing materials and paper of every description all cost more, the cheapest cardboard boxes being nearly double the old price, while coal costs twice as much and cotton is also up. In addition, the marked shortage of labor occasioned by enlistments has very seriously affected the output of the factories, and the vast number of men now in the Army has caused a great decline in the demand for civilian headwear. Although certain advances in price have already been made, the manufacturers have up to the present been working to a large extent on old stocks, but they are now unanimous in regard to the inevitability of further increases. So far as the public are concerned, to obtain a "bowler" or soft fur felt of the old quality they will soon have to pay quite a shilling more than previously—or be served with a much inferior article.

SEEN IN BOND STREET.

The feminine "nut" of Bond Street, London, and thereabouts has started an effective new fashion during the last few days. She has taken to wearing the severest of white stocks worn tightly wrapped round the neck crossed at the back and fastened in the front in the fashion of a hunting stock with a small regimental badge. The hat worn with this is a black hatter's plush, but it is not the man's topper affected by so many women last year nor even a bowler, but a Tyrolean shape with a softly rolled brim. Gauntlet gloves are worn, and coat and skirt of studiously plain cut in one of the numerous beige and covert shades.

WAR SAVINGS WEEK.

In London the activities of War Savings Week are chiefly taking the form of attempts to form war savings associations in factories, schools, professions and so on. These associations are "catching on" all over the country—over 2,600 have been started within the last few months. The aim is to popularise the purchase of War Savings certificates of 15s 6d by small instalments. The minimum payments are usually fixed at sixpence, and members are encouraged to subscribe regularly. The value of the certificate increases annually, and at the end of five years it can be cashed for twenty shillings. In London over 200 new associations have been formed quite recently, and one interesting little piece of propaganda is the action of the London County Council in circulating War Savings literature among the residents in the Council's dwellings. Millions of leaflets are being distributed throughout the country by the National Committee this week, urging economy in domestic and personal spending, and women's organisations are doing their share in appealing to women. If this latest attempt to cut down luxuries by exhortation is no more successful than the earlier ones it will not be for want of trying.

Incandescent Gas Lighting.

Possibly, the feature of incandescent gas lighting most frequently noted by casual observers in the great case with which tasks, ordinarily arduous under artificial light may be performed under the Welsbach gas mantle. The light has a peculiarly soft quality, difficult to describe, but which is readily recognized by those who have had experience with the gas mantle lamp.

In its general effect upon bodily health and comfort, the use of incandescent gas lighting is decidedly favorable. The currents of air set up by the burning gas improves ventilation, sending it direct to the lungs, and respiration and draw in fresh air to replace it. Harmful or dangerous disease germs are instantly destroyed in the flame. The extent to which this effect takes place may be verified by placing a gas lamp close to a ceiling without any provision for interfering with the up-rushing air currents. The charred particles which collect immediately above the lamp are the remains of dust particles which before passing through the flames were laden with germs and microbes. Actual experiments have shown that the burning of gas lamps in rooms previously containing bacteria, resulted in absolute sterilization of the air.

Contrary to the popular notion the temperature of rooms lighted by incandescent gas lamps is seldom markedly greater than under incandescent electric light, even under unfavorable conditions of ventilation, while in rooms provided with the ventilating facilities required by the demands of hygiene, the temperature in gas-lighted rooms is frequently lower.

WIDER FIELDS.

The young men drift away from home; they go to Rahway and to Noma, to Boston and New York; and some of them will cross the sea to try their luck in Gay Paree, in Edinburg or Cork. They go afar, to play the game, to win the laurel wreath of fame, acquire a goodly roll; their native village doesn't field a chance, they want a wider field than Punktown-in-the-Hole. Yet Punktown is a goodly town, and here a man may gain renown, and wealth, and honors, too; but you are full of dreams, my lad, and so you'll like for Petrograd, across the ocean blue. Across the hills and far away, you'll have a better chance, you say, as hosts have said before; and so you say farewell to all, and leave behind your father's hall, his roof-tree and his door. I know you'd do as well at home as you will do, wherever you roam; but it were vain to speak for youth must tread the distant road, and for itself its own abroad, its Eldorado's seek. Go forth and hew and carve and build, and may the visions be fulfilled that agitate your soul; go, wander 'neath a foreign sky, while we old codgers wilt and die, at Punktown-in-the-Hole!

Local Shipbuilding.

The enterprising firm of G. C. Fearn & Son at Piacenza, are having built at the ancient capital a 200 ton schooner. Mr. Joe Palfrey, the famous West Coast ship builder, is undertaking to construct the vessel, which when finished will equal any of her size on this side of the Atlantic. An effort is being made to secure as much local material as possible, and with that object in view, the saw mills at Bay de Esprit are now turning out all the heavy timber.

LINE ADVANCED.
LONDON, Aug. 8. (Official.) Southwest of Guillemond we advanced our line about 400 yards. Fighting continues near Guillemond station, northwest of Polesies; the enemy made four attacks on our trenches again using flammen werfers. Three attacks failed completely, but in one he managed to occupy about fifty yards of our trenches. The enemy shelled Longueval high wood and Polesies heavily, also the vicinity of Mamautz. Elsewhere along the front it was a quiet day, except for some artillery activity in Looz salient near Givenchy.

TURKISH REAR GUARD CAUGHT.

LONDON, Aug. 8. British troops pursuing the Turkish forces, defeated last week at Romani, have caught up with the Turkish rear guard six miles east of Kalia, about thirty miles to the east of the Suez Canal, says an official statement, regarding the campaign in Egypt issued to-day. Quantities of war materials are being gathered up by the British from the Romani battlefield, adds the statement.

FRENCH AND BRITISH BOMB BENZINE STORES.

LONDON, Aug. 8. (Official.) On July 30th in conjunction with the French an attack was made by British naval aeroplanes on the benzine stores and barracks at Muehlheim. The machines met with very heavy anti-aircraft fire but succeeded in gaining their objective and carried out successfully the bombardment. Our machines returned safely.

FRENCH ADVANCE.

PARIS, Aug. 8. French troops made an advance last night east of Hill 129 on the Somme front. Two attempts of the Germans to re-capture trenches east of Monacu Farm, were defeated. The Germans early this morning, launched a series of powerful attacks on the French positions from the village of Fleury to a point north of Thiaumont Wood. They obtained a footing in Thiaumont Wood, where fighting is still in progress. The attacks on Fleury were checked. The French attack north of the Somme was made by infantry operating on the right of the British. In the course of an attack made by the British on Guillemond, the French took forty prisoners.

FRIENDLY PERIA.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 8. Great Britain and Russia have just concluded an understanding with Persia, strengthening the friendly relations between the three countries, according to a despatch to the semi-official Russian News Agency from Teheran.

THE TAGEBLATT'S SUPPRESSION.

LONDON, Aug. 8. According to the Express, the following represents a translation of part of the article for which the Berlin Tageblatt was suppressed, "The declaration that the war was inevitable, and that Germany was forced into it, unprepared and against her will, cannot be supported except by the most extreme partisans. Undoubtedly the conflict could have been avoided, had the Government desired to avoid it; and doubtless it would have been had the Reichstag been taken into the confidence of our rulers, instead of merely being presented with a recital of actions taken independently of Parliament. The proposals for a conference put forward by Sir Edward Grey, were rejected before the members of the Reichstag had an opportunity to hear them, and the Imperial Chancellor's statement, with regard to the 'regrettable necessity' of violating the neutrality of Belgium, was also made after the event."

IN CONTACT WITH BULGARIANS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. A despatch from Salonika to the News Agency here to-day says that the French and Serbian forces on the Greek front are in contact with the Bulgarians. There has been severe fighting. The Allies' official report says that on the left bank of the Vardar River there have been engagements between patrols. To the right of Loumitza the Bulgarians made strong reconnaissances but they were forced back after sharp action with the Serbians and French troops.

RUSSIAN SUCCESSES.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 8. (Official.) On the river Serch our troops are advancing successfully and fortifying themselves in the captured positions. The total number of prisoners taken there in battles from the 5th to 6th of August amounts to 166 officers and 8,461 men. Four caissons, 12 machine guns, 11 trench mortars, a large number of mine throwers and much other war material have been captured.

On the line of the River Stokhod, in the region of the town of Stophychov, a party of Austrians left their defenses during the night, and came forward with uplifted hands toward the position occupied by one of our regiments. Battle Commander Colonel Stepanenko, as he approached the Austrians, was treacherously killed by them.

On a front of 15 miles in the direction of Vazienca we broke into the enemy trenches and engaged them. During the pursuit, owing to the irresistible onslaughts of our brave troops, the enemy were driven back along the whole line. We captured the town of Flumach including the region west of the Dneister, and a ridge of heights southwest of the Kolomea-Stanislav railway. Our attack was preceded by artillery fire, and discharge of chemical gas and shells on the enemy's batteries. The enemy's artillery, owing to our gas ceased firing and abandoned their arms. Our cavalry pursued the enemy who fled in disorder. One of our gallant divisions took 3,000 German prisoners. During these engagements we captured several heavy calibre guns and many machine guns. Prisoners continue to arrive in large parties. The total number is not yet known. In this way the gallant troops of General Letchitzky are again attaining important successes.

SURRENDER OF LEMBERG EXPECTED.

LONDON, Aug. 8. A proclamation foreshadowing the surrender of Lemberg, capital of Galicia was issued by the Governor of the city on Aug. 4, says an Exchange Telegraph Co. despatch from Bucharest. On that date, the despatch adds, evacuation of the City by the civilian population declared that the Austrians would return shortly to wrest Lemberg from the Russians.

TERRITORY TAKEN.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 8. The Russians in their advance against the Austro-Germans in East Galicia, have taken territory aggregating nearly 100 square miles, according to a Russian official communication issued to-night. In the pursuit of the Teutons the Russians have taken additional villages in the Dneister region.

SUNK THROUGH AN ACCIDENT.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. A News Agency despatch from Bern, Switzerland, published here to-day, says that the Berlin Tageblatt announces that the German submarine Bremen, which was to have arrived at an American port, has been sunk through an accident to her machinery, according to a despatch received here this afternoon.

HUNS APPEAL.

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 8. Counsel for the German Government in the case of the prize ship Appam, awarded to her British owners by the recent decision of Judge Waddee of the United States District Court, here to-day, filed a formal petition for an appeal to the Supreme Court, which was allowed to supersede, as a bond for $2,000,000 required by the court was given, signed by Lieut. Halsberg, the prize master who brought the vessel here and Herr Von Schilling, the German Consul. It was furnished by five American bonding companies who provided it at a premium of $20,000.

A Moral Alliance.

(N. Y. Evening Post.) "It is, in fact, the knitting together of the moral alliance against German militarism which is the great feature of the close of the second year of the war. The resources and the men were always there, to make head against the German armies but they could have been got together and utilized only by nations having a great issue and a great moral unity. And these Germany, as if led by an evil genius, has herself furnished to her enemies. Against another they might have been divided. With another, they might have made a separate peace. But when they were clearly shown what they had to fight, they were thrown back upon those springs of moral action and those heroisms of the soul which your material-minded militarist can neither understand nor conquer. This is what really makes the Allies invincible. They have now wrested the initiative from the German strategists. Their military prospects seem of the fairest as they now close in upon the German forces from all sides. But as to this we make no predictions. All that we would point out is that an invisible ally has all along fought against Germany, and still presses her back. This is the adverse moral judgment of impartial men."

HILL 160.

A suggestion, eloquent to the close observer, of the nature and value of the Somme offensive was contained in yesterday's message from Paris. Since Pozieres was reported taken we have been expecting to hear of a resolute attack upon "Hill 160." The message indicates that it is already in the hands of the British and that the attacking is being done by the Germans. No news could be more encouraging. This Hill stands north-east of Pozieres and a little further along the road to Bapaume. By all accounts it is the highest land in the neighborhood, dominating the whole country that intervenes between it and the all-important Bapaume. Its value may be gathered from the instructions of the German command that it should be re-taken at all costs. Happily the attempt to carry them out has had no other result so far than a wastage of precious German lives.

We should give much to know what is passing in the minds of the German General Staff as they see these important positions wrested from them one by one. Their reflections cannot be pleasant ones. How much further the process must be carried before the German line breaks or gives way it is impossible to say, but it is by its very nature subserving a purpose almost as important as this. It is both pinning down an enormous German army, which cannot be weakened by any withdrawals but must be itself constantly reinforced; and it is wasting it day by day. The cost is not all on our side. The Allies have now progressed far enough to render the German counter-attacks as necessary and as expensive as the original assault. In fact, there are not wanting military advisers who deplore the desire to advance and strongly advocate holding and exhausting the German army where it is. Both objects, however, seem to be in the course of achievement by the operation of a plan of campaign at once aggressive and economical.

The capture of Hill 160 is worthy a special reference, since it represents one of the most striking successes of the whole drive. It is a fine distinction for the Australians. Their resistance, which held the position against the furious assaults of picked Bavarian and Saxon regiments, is a tale of heroism that is yet to be told. A continued assault on Bapaume and Peronne is now greatly facilitated, and we shall look for the initiation of a fresh stage in the offensive which may well lead to vital and momentous developments.

Valuable Souvenirs.

S. G. Grimes, of the Royal Stores, Ltd., received some valuable souvenirs of the Dardanelles campaign. They were sent to him by his brother Corporal Rupert Grimes, who is now doing duty at Ayr, still suffering slightly from the results of hard knocks received on Gallipoli Peninsula. The articles received were described in a letter which came with them as follows: "Turkish clip and two cartridges which were taken from a dead Turk out of about 250 rounds he had on him; a British misfire from one of the machine guns; the pin from a Mills Bomb that was fired on Caribou Hill. This pin when pulled from the bomb releases the spring and five seconds later the bomb explodes; a piece of mirror, part of a trench periscope that was smashed by Turkish rifle fire; a Turkish bullet, which narrowly escaped sending me to the happy hunting grounds. It struck on a rock over my trench bunk as I was lying down, just missing my head and fell on my breast spent and buckled as you will see. I had many other souvenirs to send you, amongst them being a Turkish broad knife, but unfortunately in the stress of our evacuation I lost them."

An Explanation.

In the advertisement of Messrs. Ellis & Co., published in yesterday's issue, the word "Hamburg" was substituted, by a printer's error, for the word "Habana." The misprint was an obvious one, but we regret very much that it should have occurred, as it has caused Messrs. Ellis & Co. considerable annoyance. The advertisement in its corrected form is given in to-day's issue of the Telegram.

Your Boys and Girls.

Any little girl over seven years old may be taught to knit. Here is a simple direction for making a knitted sweater for dolly.

Use one hank of Shetland wool and a pair of knitting needles about number five. Cast on twenty stitches for the back and knit twenty ribs. Then cast on ten more stitches, knit across and cast on ten at the opposite side; you have on the needle now forty stitches which gives the width from sleeve-edge to sleeve-edge. When you have knit ten ribs, the sleeves will be finished up as far as the shoulder line. About eight stitches may be bound off for the back of the neck. You have knit sixteen stitches, bind-off eight for the neck and continue to knit across the remaining sixteen stitches. Slip off the sixteen stitches on the opposite side of the bound-off portion, on a big safety pin and fasten securely.

Take the empty needle and commence knitting where the end of your worsted is; knit as far as the bound off place and back twice, which will give you two ribs for the shoulder. Now cast on six stitches to make the front wide enough and knit across the twenty two stitches for ten rows. This completes the sleeves. Bind off under the sleeves for ten stitches the original number you cast on for (the sleeves) and then knit across and across, straight down the front until the front is as long as the back. Finish the opposite front in the same way and sew up the underarm seams with a bit of worsted.

Enjoy your meals by taking a teaspoonful of Stafford's Prescription "A" before eating. Price 25c. and 50c. Postage 5 and 10c. extra.—jly22,tf

Hot Time at Recruiting Headquarters.

A story is given widespread currency to the effect that there was a hot time in evidence at Recruiting Headquarters on Monday evening when the Officer Commanding was assaulted by a soldier who returned here on Saturday last. The latter is now in quad at the barracks for committing the offence of insubordination. It appears that the party, who refused to re-engage for the duration of the war, were reporting in a body to be discharged. They were addressed by the O. C. and denounced in the strongest terms for the attitude they took and it is said were being designated cowards, quitters, etc., when one returned soldier struck the O. C. a couple of times in the face with his fists and was removed to the guard room for the offence.

TRAP VOYAGE OVER.—Trapping is drawing to a close on the local fishing grounds and practically all the twine is taken out of the water. The voyage on the whole was a good average one. Most of the fishing crews are now engaged at jigging and will continue at it for the remainder of the season. Yesterday there was a good sign of squid on the grounds.

NARROW ESCAPE.—Two men of Hoytestown named Bailey and Angel had a narrow escape from being swamped yesterday. While fishing off the Narrows a high wind and heavy sea sprang up and despite their strenuous endeavors for several hours they were unable to make land. Ultimately the elements subsided and the boat and its occupants reached the shore safely, much to the delight of relatives and friends.

DIED.
Killed in action in France, July 1st, 1916, whilst in defence of the Empire, William, of "Ours," son of Thos. and Mrs. Dohoney (Prospect St.) May God in His infinite goodness have mercy on his eternal soul. Private Dohoney previous to his enlistment in the 1st Contingent was an active member of the C. C. C. in every particular, being filled up with patriotism and devotion to King and Empire yielded up his youthful life of much promise in the big drive of July 1st. He was the son of an old and respected family of the East End, his father being for many years foreman cooper at James Baird, Ltd., William himself being a first class plumber, aged 24 years. He has answered the last earthly trumpet "Call" and now sleeps in a peaceful cemetery of France, the glorious land of sunshine. A general favourite with his associates; he was a young man of exemplary habits, a life long member of the T. A. & B. and Holy Name Societies. He voluntarily gave up his life so that others may live, what more could he do. To his sorrowing parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dohoney, of Prospect Street, whose once happy home now mourns the sad loss of two young men, Richard having passed away from natural causes on the 8th of April last, aged 14 years. His remains now are at rest in the family plot at Mount Carmel Cemetery there to await the trumpet "Call" on the Resurrection morn, also.

PROGRESS BY FRENCH.

PARIS, To-Day.
Notable gains were made by the French in the Somme region, according to an official statement issued by the War Office to-night. In two days they have carried the German trenches along a front of more than 3½ miles to a depth of from 300 to 500 metres. In the Verdun sector they have succeeded in regaining a foothold in the Thiaumont work.

HUGE ITALIAN CAPTURES.

LONDON, To-Day.
Prisoners are still surrendering by thousands as a result of the Italian operations, say a Central News despatch from Rome. Over 10,000 prisoners have been captured in two days, the despatch adds.

FINE RUSSIAN SUCCESSES.

PETROGRAD, To-Day.
To-night's communication says the success achieved by our troops south of the Dniester continues to develop. Pursuing the enemy, our brave troops have fought their way into the town of Nizniov, about 15 miles northeast of Stanislaw, which was captured; as also were the villages of Bradychuv, Palakliche, Nadwormar, Charnolooce, Krizotula, Novo and the small town of Otynia. During the pursuit parts of our troops are on the left bank of the occupied region and approaching the River Vornu, on which is situated the town of Tysimientia. Previous to the retreat of the enemy a number of explosions were heard at some points. Probably the enemy blew up the bridges and stores. The number of prisoners and quantity of booty captured is not yet known. The region captured by us covers an area of 99.42 miles.

ITALIANS SCORE A SUCCESS.

VIENNA, To-Day.
Loss of Gorizia bridgehead to the Italian forces is admitted in an Austrian official statement issued to-day. Withdrawal to the eastern Isonzo, the statement adds, was necessary to avoid severe losses to the defenders of the bridgehead because of desperate attacks made by the Italians.

Avondale.

Beautiful mid-summer is again speaking to us eloquently in nature's holy meanings. The fields are profuse with blossoming crops, and the dales and hillsides are decorated with vari-colored regalia of their own choicest weaving. Gentle zephyrs fan into life the myriads of leaves of the tall poplars, and pass on to ruffle mildly the Atlantic waters that have crept in to nestle at our base. Every ridge and nook appear to exhibit a rivalry in calling forth field-daisies and ferns that only the florist can specify, and that create a landscape no artist can approach. Yes, "nature has spread o'er the scene her purest of crystal and brightest of green," and left no vacancy. In the whole of the effect there are harmony and concord—no warring factors anywhere to be found. So, too, appeared the fields and plains of fair Europe all proud man, nature's greatest flower, opposed all the good and beautiful, and left but little where the most should be. How much better, we often think, it would be if summer life could be made wholly an outdoor one, but too many cares intrude in the way of that.

All our people were pleased after mass yesterday to hear the Pastor—Rev. Fr. Shean—give his patronage and encouragement to the annual Garden Party that will, as in past years, take place on August 15th. The yearly recurrence of this event brings home to us one of unpleasant memory—the destruction of the beautiful parish church by the lightning storm of June 17th, 1911. It was then that the Garden Party was made an annual event to contribute with other functions towards a fund for the restoration of our lost church. Success to date has been so great that only the interior of the church remains incomplete; and from the enthusiasm with which the preparations for this year's Garden Party are undertaken this year it is evident that every parishioner, male and female, shares with the pastor a keen and anxious feeling to see that part of the task also consummated. Messrs. Dr. Jones, Geo. Kennedy, M.H.A., P. O'Brien, John Moore and several other gentlemen comprise a committee to carry out arrangements with the ladies of the parish, and they will do all possible to make the event successful and entertaining to all visitors.

to his office as Minister of Education, but not to the membership in the Cabinet. The paper adds he will be retained in the Cabinet as Labor Adviser, without a specific portfolio. For the present the Marquis of Crewe is expected to combine the Presidency of the Board of Education with his present duties as Lord President of the Council.

RESULT OF THE COMBINED OFFENSIVE.

LONDON, To-Day.
Before the echoes have died of the mutual congratulations of the Allied Sovereigns, Statesmen and Generals on the auspicious opening of the third year of war comes the news of further Russian success, and of splendid victory for the Italian army on the Isonzo front. The surprising success of the Italians, who in two days captured 10,000 prisoners, suggests in addition to transferring General Koevess, an able Austrian General, from Trentino front to Galicia, the Austrians also ventured to transfer troops from the Isonzo to the Russian front in an endeavour to stem the Russian advance. General Cadorna's victory caused great rejoicing as one of the most promising successes of the new Allies operations. The demonstration is constantly growing of the power of the allied offensive on all fronts. The Russian new victories south of the Dniester, southwest of the Stanislaw-Kolomea railway, afford equal satisfaction; and the prompt admission in Berlin in an official statement of the retirement of the Austro-Germans south of the Dniester is taken here to indicate that the Russian victory in this quarter was weightier than yet announced by the Russian official despatches. According to an unofficial report the evacuation of Lemberg, the Galician capital, has already been ordered. In the meantime a new combined offensive by the Allies has begun on the western front, which is expected to lead to the severest fighting. Guillemont, around which heavy fighting is now in progress, is one of the strong positions of the German second system of defence, and will doubtless be defended by the Germans as was Pozieres with the utmost stubbornness.

Of the twelve young men from Avondale who enlisted to batter down Prussian militarism, Gregory E. Doyle is a prisoner of war in Germany; William V. O'Brien; James Pike and Allan Lyons are reported missing; Richard Sylvester Redmond is wounded; John Cahill and James Devereux are attached to a Canadian Regiment not yet in the fighting line; Michael Woodford is a R.N.R. sailor on board His Majesty's Ship, Columbia, in the North Sea; John Devereux returned home yesterday after having served his limit of time, and the others are "Somewhere in France." Of the total number we are glad to say that no definite fatal casualty has yet been reported, and our hope goes out that such may be averted thus far by the missing ones being found.

Rev. Fr. Kavanagh from Coachman's Cove, is at present enjoying a brief visit to Hr. Main, and is the guest of his uncle, the Rev. Fr. Shean.

From the afternoon's train on Friday there alighted at Avondale station Rev. P. Hearn, of Colliers. Fr. Hearn was on his way home from Rome where he had been during the past five or six years preparing for the priesthood. He received his ordination in the eternal city in the month of June last. The people were greatly overjoyed on the return of Rev. Fr. Hearn—the first native priest in the lifetime of the settlement, and they accorded him a hearty welcome home. A contingent of horses and carriages—all that the time of season would permit—and representatives from parts of the harbor met the young cleric at the station where his friends exchanged cordial greetings. At Colliers arches were erected and banners down to the breeze to commemorate an event worthy of the greatest thanksgiving.

Messrs. Laurence Hennessey and Nicholas Laconr, mechanics from Avondale and Hr. Main, respectively, left recently for the United States in quest of labor.

Sympathy was universal about a month ago when the remains of Miss Maria Costello arrived at Avondale from Boston where death overtook the young lady. She was a daughter of Patrick and Ellen Costello, of Millville in Avondale-parish, and was in her twentieth year. Having one or two sisters residing in the United States, Maria also proceeded there, and was engaged as a domestic. An attack of measles was followed by severe complications that cut short the life of one who was a great favorite with many friends at home and abroad. Besides her father and mo-

Bad as Man.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"She is the worst hand I ever saw at talking criticism," said Molly, the little stenographer.

"What makes you say so?" said the Lady who always-knows-everything.

Molly's eyes opened a saucer wide.

"Did you ever hear her admit that she was wrong about anything?" she demanded. "She's almost as bad as a man that way."

Her Trumped Up Excuse.

"Bad as a man?" echoed the Cynic.

"Like that! If you can show me any man that will try to squeal out of things and justify himself by any argument at all, the way she does, I'll eat my hat. Did you hear her the other day when we accused her of never being willing to put herself out to come and see us but wanting us to make all the effort? What was that excuse that she trumped up, that she didn't like to leave the house alone, because they are likely to have a wire about that cousin who is so sick? She's been sick about two weeks as far as I can find out, and we were talking about the past six months."

"That's nothing to what a man can do when he tries," said Molly, witheringly, "but it's bad enough. What I want to know is why big sister doesn't think so."

"Well," said the Lady. "I didn't exactly say I didn't, but listen. It was a week ago that you people had that argument, wasn't it? And have you noticed anything since then?"

"What?" said Molly.

But She Took The Criticism To Heart.

"That Margaret has been over here twice in that time?"

"That's more than she had for the three months before that."

"Exactly. In other words she tried to justify herself when you criticised her, just as everybody does when they're criticised, but she took your criticism to heart enough to try to do better."

"You really think so?"

"I've noticed it again and again about her and other people, too."

"Do you think that's better than admitting you're wrong?"

"Isn't it better than admitting you are wrong and not trying to improve?"

Why Shouldn't People Admit Wrong And Try To Improve.

"Yes, but when people are wrong, why shouldn't they admit it, too?"

"Because they are human beings instead of angels, I guess," said the Lady.

The Lady is pretty near right, isn't she?"

To defend one's self when criticised is just as instinctive as to shield one's self when a blow is aimed at one's body.

The instinct of self-preservation and the instinct of self-justification are first cousins.

To be sorry is human, to admit it is pretty close to divine.

Everyday Wisdom

By DON HEROLD.
HOT WEATHER.

These are the days when one's best girl becomes a liquid instead of a solid. She tries to preserve herself with talcum powder, but her nose shows through just the same, and you see that she is not divine. If love lives through July and August, it is good for the rest of the year. Still, love that does not surpass perspiration is not much.

The roads were swept by storms of death. The barrage was a great wall; through which nothing could pass. German soldiers in their lines could get neither food nor water. No reinforcements could be sent them. Those of our own soldiers who were taken prisoners on the morning of the first attack could not be sent back into the German lines, because no escort dared to go with them through the barrage. They were thrust down into a dugout with some German soldiers, and saw and suffered the effect of our fire. The enemy had no food to give them, having none for themselves, and they were tortured by thirst for five days. They endured this until nearly dead, but when the Germans were too dazed to act as guards, three English soldiers managed to crawl out of a dugout, and by a miracle of luck escaped back to our own lines over No man's Land.

Experiences of British Fire.

A German officer now one of our prisoners bears witness to the work of our gunners. He was sent with a battalion from Verdun to Contalmaison and detained at Bapaume. There he began a painful experience of shell-fire through an accident to one of the German twelve-inch guns, which burst and blew up several carriages of a train, killing some of his men. But the rest of his journey was made so terrible by British gunfire. With his battalion he came down the road which was being flung up by our 15-inch and twelve-inch guns. Some

Western Battle a Battle of Guns

Flesh and Blood Cannot Fight Against High Explosives.

With The British Armies in The Field, July 21.—Flesh and blood cannot fight against high explosives; it can only die, and the whole history of the battle is not to be written in reference to bayonets or rifles, but to guns. It has been and is still a battle of guns and our heroic infantry has only been able to get forward or to hold its ground when the artillery preparation has been complete and the artillery support overwhelmingly strong. Should this fall it would not be fighting but a massacre.

From the early days of the battle onward our artillery has been great in weight of metal, in science, in vastness of its supplies of shells, and in the superb courage and skill of its men, who have endured the continuous strain upon them night and day for four weeks. They broke the German spirit and German strength to a point when our infantry could attack with something like a chance almost for the first time in this war along the British front. By the work of the aviators and artillery observation officers we know the positions of most of the enemy's batteries and the geography of all his communicating trenches, transport roads, and supply depots. Our guns, which had been brought up secretly, were unmasked one morning, when the great bombardment began before the battle and poured unceasing shells upon all those positions, smothering them with high explosives and shrapnel, while the field guns, closer up, were cutting the enemy's wire. Trenches were swept out of existence, and batteries were blown to bits. I have seen many of those broken German guns now standing as trophies on French lawns.

The roads were swept by storms of death. The barrage was a great wall; through which nothing could pass. German soldiers in their lines could get neither food nor water. No reinforcements could be sent them. Those of our own soldiers who were taken prisoners on the morning of the first attack could not be sent back into the German lines, because no escort dared to go with them through the barrage. more of his men were killed and he came on toward Bazentin, where he was under fire of our eight-inch howitzers and "nine-point-two's." More of his men were killed, but he went on until near Contalmaison he came within range of our eighteen-pounders and lost the remainder of his men. At Contalmaison he immediately was taken prisoner by our attacks and was rejected to come to his journey's end alive.

"Your artillery," he said, "is better than anything I had ever seen before, even at Verdun, and worse than anything I had suffered."

All the German officers with whom I have spoken, are surprised that an army of amateurs, as they call us, should produce such scientific artillery work in so short a time and they also pay tribute to the daring of the field gunners who go so far forward to support the infantry attacks. "They came up," said one of them, speaking of the Mametz Wood attack, "like charioteers in a Roman circus, at full gallop."

Many of their horses were killed, but the men were reckless of danger and placed their batteries in the open as though at manoeuvres. Field observers are anxious almost to a point of foolhardiness. Before the ground of attack has been cleared of Germans, they walk calmly up with the telephone, sit down on a crest or knoll commanding the field of observation and send back messages to the battery a mile or so behind.

When the territory around Contalmaison was still swarming with Germans, one of our officers went forward in this way and made himself at home on the top of a German dugout recording fashions and getting excellent information. He went back to the battery for an hour or two, and when he returned he found the Germans. He fired a few revolver shots and retired with dignity to choose another place not quite so crowded with the enemy.

MANY BATTERIES DESTROYED.

Such tales seem fantastic and impossible, but they are true. There is no doubt many German batteries have been destroyed apart from those which have been captured. I saw today a map which told by little colored dots the great drama of the war. Each dot represented a German battery discovered by our gunners since the beginning of the battle and each color the day it was discovered, and they were arranged on the map so that one

Father McLaughlin Carries A. O. I. Convention

TELLS AMERICANS THAT FLAG BRITAIN IS OUR TALISMAN EFFECTIVE SPEECH AT GATHERING.

A despatch from Boston to the John press last week intimated the Canadians delegates to the Hibernian national convention were not in accord with some of the proceedings in reference to international affairs. Later despatches showed that on Wednesday morning, the day following the opening of the convention, Rev. G. McLaughlin, formerly of this city, took the lead and objected in a fitting speech to some of the resolutions that had been made to international affairs.

The President had no sooner made his report than Father McLaughlin arose and said in part:

Mr. President and brother Hibernians I beg to register my solemn protest against certain utterances made here since the opening of this convention. Mr. President I was there with pride yesterday morning as I witnessed the magnificent display of loyalty by my brother Hibernians under the American flag. When your prelate, governor and mayor entered this vast auditorium to the strains of the Star Spangled Banner, the bursts of applause and enthusiasm shown by the citizens of fair Columbia were indeed a spectacle for art and for men.

"Patriotism ever burns in the heart of a true Hibernian. I would recommend you Mr. President and brothers that this organization is composed of members owing allegiance to different flags and, sir, may I inform you that the fires of patriotism burn not so bright within the bosoms of the Canadian Hibernians for the British flag than it does within the breast of American citizens for the Star Spangled Banner."

"Hibernian that I am, I am also British subject. Britain's flag is glorified in the title of Roman citizenship. Let me, sir, assure you that the Canadian delegates here assembled glory in the proud title of Canadian-British citizenship, and, sir, I would indeed be unworthy of my race and the land from which I came if I were to sit here this morning offering no protest to some of the marks that I have heard made here. "Stranger though I am here, should I stand alone this morning my protest—which I do not—I should not hesitate to demand the same courtesy for a Canadian citizen that are prepared to extend to others."

"Mr. President were I a timid man would not dare to stand where I stand. When duty bids me act I do so. I know what fear is. All my life I have especially for the last ten years I have stood out in the open forum and dealt with questions that called for action. I have been the object of attack and insult but never of a specific charge of partisanship or base narrow-mindedness. I have received blows and I have returned them. A despatch from Boston to the St. John press last week intimated that the Canadian delegates to the Hibernian national convention were not in accord with some of the proceedings in reference to international affairs. Later despatches showed that on Wednesday morning, the day following the opening of the convention, Rev. C. J. The President had no sooner made his report than Father McLaughlin arose and said in part:

Mr. President and brother Hibernians I beg to register my solemn protest against certain utterances made here since the opening of this convention. Mr. President I was thrilled with pride yesterday morning as I witnessed the magnificent display of loyalty by my brother Hibernians living under the American flag. "Hibernian that I am, I am also a British subject. Britain's flag is our talisman. The Roman citizen of old gloried in the title of Roman citizenship. Let me, sir, assure you to-day that the Canadian delegates here assembled glory in the proud title of Canadian-British citizenship, and, sir, I would indeed be unworthy of the race and the land from which I came if I were to sit here this morning and offer no protest to some of the remarks that I have heard made here.

"Stranger though I am here and should I stand alone this morning in my protest—which I do not—I shall not hesitate to demand the same courtesy for a Canadian citizen that we are prepared to extend to others.

All my life and especially for the last ten years I have stood out in the open forum and dealt with questions that called for action. I have been the object of attack and innuendo but never of a specific charge of partisanship or base narrow-mindedness. I have received blows and I have returned them. I have always endeavored to give a Roland for an Oliver every time. I shall ever be found giving the "square deal" to every man, no matter what may be his race, creed or nationality but, Sir, let me say that the same fairness that I am prepared to show to others I want for myself in due turn.

"Therefore, in the presence of this vast delegation gathered from the four corners of this great continent, object to anything being said or done here that would wound our susceptibilities as British subjects. You have referred to the recent unhappy Dublin incident. It is history repeating itself. We all deplore what has come to pass. If the Dublin people followed John E. Redmond and his Nationalists we would not to-day be mourning the loss of life in that unfortunate affair. You speak of the sorrow and mourning in the homes of the Irish Dublinites because of those who fell in the Dublin uprising but you have no sympathy for the thousands of homes throughout Ireland, throughout the British Empire, France and the other allied nations plunged in gloom, grief and sadness through the greed, fendishness and irreligion of him who guides the destinies of the German Fatherland.

"Since coming here I have been asked about the sentiment of the Canadian Irish in this war. Let me answer it here by telling you that the hearts of the Canadian Irish beat true and that Canadians of all classes, Irish included, are prepared to stand by Britain in this crisis to the last man and the last dollar. There are 400,000 British subjects of Irish descent at the front under the British flag. They are prepared to see this thing through to the end.

"No doubt exists to-day in the minds of Canadians of all classes as to the successful outcome of the struggle for the Allies. It is characteristic of the Irish when they start in a thing to see it through to a finish, and let me say right here that when this war is over there will be no more "German peril" or fear of German aggression from Luther's land.

"Mr. President, I would therefore suggest that all questions of an international character be ruled out during this convention." Father McLaughlin's utterances were received with the deepest interest and at the conclusion of his speech he was warmly congratulated by the hundreds of delegates who gathered round him to congratulate him on the stand he had taken and to assure him that the convention was with him. The matters to which Father McLaughlin took exception were referred to the committees on resolutions and foreign affairs and each reported by according to Father McLaughlin's request.—New Freeman, July 29.

Filming the Big Push

THE KINEMA MAN AT THE FRONT.
(Daily Mail.)

Almost as soon as the war began cinematograph operators were attached to the Russian, French, and German Armies, but it was not until last September that British operators were allowed to go to the front to take pictures. Even then they moved towards the trenches by slow degrees, the idea being to show pictures of the soldiers' lives at the front and to lead up gradually to the point where actual fighting was to be seen.

The earlier pictures, however, greatly displeased the cinema trade Press, which denounced them as "tame and instructional." As the operators neared the firing line their pictures were still described as dull, although some of them had gone through great perils to get them. When they sent us pictures of the trenches and of the men engaged in sniping, or in other dangerous work, they were classed as merely interesting. A picture showing a company of soldiers doubling across an exposed position, which was frequently shelled, aroused no comment, not even a word for the brave operator, who stood in the very centre of the exposed position illustrating with his camera the dangerous nature of it for the troops. Apparently the pictures were too real, too much like actual war conditions, and too little like those imagined by the stay-at-homes. Something almost approaching a boycott of these films was the result.

A fine film of the ruins of Ypres made no appeal, possibly because no account of how it was secured was put upon the screen. There was one occasion when the operators on the way to Ypres had to lie in a roadside ditch for two hours while German shells burst over sectors of the road, so close to them at times that, had they been on the road itself, they would have been blown to pieces. On one occasion a car preceding theirs was blown to pieces with the occupants in it.

When first the operators attempted to get pictures of the German lines from the trenches they had not realized the close watch of the German sniper. The camera fixed on a tripod was raised above the parapet to the level of the lens. In a few seconds it became a target for bullets, but the operator calmly turned the handle, taking his pictures at the regulation speed of sixteen per second, until a ricochet hit the camera and put it out of action.

At another time he climbed the tower of a ruined church to get a good picture. The Germans look upon church towers as artillery observation posts and shell them accordingly. He had turned the handle but a few minutes when shells burst dangerously near, so he came down, not before he had secured the picture he wanted. By next morning the church tower had disappeared. A week afterwards the entire building was a heap of rubbish.

Avoiding Snipers.

The pictures he secured of British shells bursting over the German trenches may, on the screen, look like very ordinary explosions, but the taking of them with British and German shells shrieking overhead, and occasionally enemy shells exploding within a few hundred yards, was a nerve-trying experience.

On another occasion he was alone in a dugout for the purpose of recording a British attempt to blow up a German blockhouse. In order to get a good picture he had to make a hole in the dugout facing the German lines. Through this hole, although exposed to enemy shells and bullets, he secured one of the most thrilling pictures ever seen.

Another of these men, who must be among the coolest in all the ranks of war, came back on leave recently with two bullet holes in his service cap. His greatest triumph will be found in the series of pictures released next week. These show the bursting of British mines under German trenches, so close to the camera as to make one wonder how the operator escaped the falling earth.

To get these pictures required a strong nerve and not a little cunning. The lessons of the past had been learned. The camera was no longer exposed to enemy snipers. The tripod fixed in the trenches, the next thing was to place the camera that the lens had a clear view. In one instance this was done by putting two extra sandbags on the parapet, with the lens of the camera pointing through the opening between the bags, a sack being suspended over camera and sandbags so as to cover any movements during the "take."

On another occasion wire was stretched over the camera, and on the top a sack was placed. In both instances German snipers saw the movements in the British trench and opened fire. Unable to hit the spot the Huns brought up a machine gun, and just as they were about to riddle the camera the mine went up, and with it machine gun, Huns, and

You can stop that awful itch from eczema and other skin troubles in two seconds. Seems too good to be true—but it is true, and we vouch for it. Just a few drops of the simple, cooling wash, the D. D. Eczema, Bad Leg, Ring-worm, Salt Rheum, Barber's Itch, Psoriasis, Open Sores and Itching Rash and other skin troubles are caused by myriads of germs at work in the skin. Unless these germs are promptly destroyed they rapidly multiply, gnawing their way deep into the sensitive tissue. This is what causes that awful itch, and what seemed a mere rash may grow worse and develop into a loathsome and torturing skin disease with its years and years of misery. Don't take any chances! scores of bombs, which exploded in the air. But the operator got his picture. Elated with his success, he took down his camera, and as he did so a couple of bullets went through his cap, which fell into the trench. Dragging his camera, which weighs thirty-five pounds, he hurried down the trench and soon got to a village. As he entered it the Germans started to drop "tear" shells. Finding his car at the appointed spot he rushed out of the village where the air was clear. Then the car fell into a ditch and the operator had to carry his camera to headquarters, where he made his report and delivered the films—which the public will shortly see from the comfort of an armchair.

German Prisoners made Useful.

The last of the operators to leave for the front was a man who three years ago directed a film battle of Waterloo. With forty-eight hours' notice he left England a few days before the memorable First of July. He is now in London for a few days before returning to follow up the British troops in the advance, having brought to England some remarkably fine pictures of the early stages of the advance at Fricourt and Mametz.

With bullets whizzing all around them, knocking up spurts of dirt almost at their feet, the camera operators who accompanied the British Army in the advance calmly turned the handles of their machines, securing pictures of mine explosions, fine pictures of the intensive bombardment of the German lines, and, when the infantry advanced to the charge, equally good pictures of prisoners being brought in, and, in the distance, our troops marching across open country.

One operator tells me that he borrowed a German prisoner, who carried his camera for him, to the front. In his five days of picture-taking he experienced the discomforts of arrest, although he was wearing a British officer's uniform. But these things must be, and are part of the risks one takes when armed with nothing more than a camera.

These men, straight from civil life, accustomed, it is true, to adventure in the search for pictures, are undoubtedly brave. Their work deserves a better fate, as Lord Derby recently said, than to be sandwiched between pictures of Charlie Chaplin. —W.G.F.

Germans Won't Molest Dutch Ships.

London, August 2.—The German government has given a pledge to hold and not destroy or molest Dutch ships carrying foodstuffs to England, according to a Copenhagen dispatch to the Express. This decision is the result of a visit to Berlin of Cornelius J. K. Van Aalst, president of the Overseas Trust, and another Dutch commissioner. The Express says Van Aalst presented an ultimatum to the authorities in Berlin to the following effect: "Unless Germany agree not to interfere with Dutch ships bound for England with food cargoes, Holland will close her eastern frontier. Otherwise the Entente may stop dealing in exports from America and the Dutch colonies."

The trip of the Dutch commissioner was the result of representations by the Entente that Holland was selling large quantities of food stuffs in Germany, while her food trade with Great Britain had almost ceased. Holland replied that trade with England was made dangerous by German submarines. Van Aalst, fearing reprisals by the Entente, then undertook the trip to Berlin and after a series of conferences obtained Germany's acceptance of his demands.

A Word about Carpet Squares!

We have just opened the finest display of Wilton, Axminster and Tapestry Carpet Squares that have ever been seen in the Island.

Another—a Tapestry in quaint Grey Tints has a lovely Pompadour border of roses in subdued colors. Yet another in lovely Old Rose and Reseda.

Harold Bell Wright's Latest Novel,

"WHEN A MAN'S A MAN,"

is a fine big wholesome Novel of simple sweetness and virile strength, while the pages are crowded with the thrilling incidents that belong to the adventurous life of the unfenced land depicted, one feels, always, beneath the surface of the stirring scenes, the great primitive and enduring life forces that men and women of the story portray. In the Dean, Philip Acton, Patches, Little Billy, Curly Elson, Kitty Reid and Helen Manning, the author has created real living, breathing men and women, and we are made to feel and understand that there come to everyone those times when in spite of all, above all, and at any cost, a man must be a man.
