CHAPTER XXVIII.

"Have I, who have sinned against you so deeply, any right to be angry?" he says, with self-reproach.

"Then Hugh, give me a week, one little week to consider," she says.

He frowns, his old grim frown.

"See, Hugh," she says, putting her hand on his arm, "it is for your sake, not mine. Give me a week; come to me then—do not come to me before—and repeat your offer and I will give you an answer. Will that satisfy you? Is it too much to ask? Think, Hugh, it is so important for both of us. Only a week; it is not long, and if, at the end of that time, you still wish me to be your wife—"

She stops and looks up at him.

Hugh stands, with the frown upon his face.

"Very well, Lucy. You have the right to ask that much of me. I will come again in a week."

"In a week, dear Hugh," she murmurs. "May I go now?"

"No," he says, with his usual chivalry. "I will go," and he takes her hand. "Good-bye, Lucy! I shall come again in a week. I shall not come before. You shall have time to think it over. Good-bye!" and he grasps her hand. She holds his hand for a moment, then she says in a whisper:

"You may kiss me, Hugh, if you like," and he stoops and kisses her; then, without a word, he goes out.

And as the door closes, she sinks back into her chair with a low, soft laugh.

"In a week," she murmurs. "It is not long. But it will serve my purpose."

Then she takes the red camellia from her bosom and holds it up so that she can see every leaf of the blossom.

"A baronetcy or a dukedom," she murmurs. "Which will it be, I wonder? Well, a week will show!"

CHAPTER XXIX.

Between the Duke of Gretnam and Sir Hugh Falconer! This was Lucy Fairfax's choice, for with her natural keenness, added to the wit of her sex, Miss Fairfax had discerned the, at least, "sneaking fondness," which was surely growing into love within the bosom of his grace.

Duchess of Gretnam! Mistress of Gretnam Park, of Glengowrie in Scotland, of the Abbey near Windermere, of the huge mansion in Queen's Gate, to say nothing of the many chalets and palatial "cottages" in sunny Italy and smiling France.

To wear a ducal coronet, and be addressed as "your grace"; to own the magnificent Gretnam diamonds, whose spinedor and quality are world famed; to hold a position in society second only to royalty itself; to take precedence of old Lady Falconer, who had patronized her for so many years, and to be able to look down from a giddy height on Maud and Edle.

It is very tempting! On the other hand, would it not be better to take Sir Hugh, the famous soldier, young and handsome, and—well, whom she loved? Yes, she assured herself with a little smile, as she sat in her own room after Hugh had gone, sat looking at the duke's rose in her hand, she had loved him, and did love him, as well as it was in her nature to love any one except herself.

Such natures as Lucy Fairfax's are incapable of pure, disinterested love, but as far as was given to her to love at all, she loved Hugh; and as she sits, rose in hand, and ponders, with the little sympathetic smile on her face, these two pictures rise before her.

The one that of an old man with grizzled hair, and with a gait that was on the verge of tottering, the other, the tall, manly form of Hugh, with the grave, handsome face.

But the grizzled hair belongs to a duke, and Sir Hugh is only a baronet. It is difficult to decide, and at length she rises with a little soft sigh.

"After all," she murmurs, as she places her little red rose in water, "the duke has not spoken and Hugh has; a bird in hand is worth two in the bush. If I were quite sure the duke would speak—well, then," with a sigh, "poor Hugh would have to go. Dukes are not so plentiful that one can snap one's finger at them."

As she speaks, the door opens and Maud comes in, her thin form clad in the lightest of riding habits.

"Are you alone, dear Lucy?" she says.

Lucy Fairfax turns and looks at her, and quickly drops a piece of lace over the rose.

"Yes, dear; come in. Have you been for your ride?"

Then she looks at her curiously, for there is a bright flush on Maud's cheeks, and an unwonted light in her eyes, and as she drops into a chair she puts her hand up to take off her hat, and keeps her hand shading her face.

Lucy Fairfax watches her keenly, but with the sympathetic smile all ready if it should be needed.

"Enjoyed it, dear?" she says, encouragingly. "You look particularly happy. Whom did you see?"

Maud simpers bashfully.

"Oh, lots of people, dear. We could scarcely get away. The duke said we had quite a reception."

"Oh," said Lucy, with a fine smile. "So you had the duke with you dear?"

"Yes," says Maud; then she blushes and simpers again, inviting questions.

"You seem to have the duke a great deal with you, dear," says Lucy. "He is very attentive, I think."

"That's what mamma says," responds Maud, eagerly. "But—but I tell her it is all nonsense."

Lucy Fairfax goes behind her chair, and leans over to pat her cheek.

"What a simple, unsuspecting child it is," she murmurs. "Quite unconscious and innocent! Yes, Maud, your mamma is right; the duke is very, very attentive. Oh, Maud, Maud!"

Maud flushes and attempts to look around at the sympathetic face, but Lucy Fairfax keeps well behind her.

"Do you really think there's—there's anything in it, Lucy?" she asks, with poorly-concealed anxiety.

"He—he was always kind and polite, you know."

"But not so much as lately, my dear, was he?" suggests Lucy, gently.

"No, Maud, Lady Falconer is quite right. The duke has spent a great deal of his valuable time on us—no, on one of us, young ladies, Maud. You know which of us is answerable for it."

Maud laughs softly and consciously.

"Do you know, Lucy," she replies, "I thought at one time that—that you were the attraction?"

The false laugh comes rippling from behind the chair.

"I, my dear Maud? How absurd! I! And she gently pats the flushed cheek chidingly. "I am the last person the great duke would be attracted by, dear—little, insignificant body, with red hair and a plain face! No, no, Maud."

You wonder why

is so delicious.

If you could see the choice oriental fruits and spices being blended with Pure Malt Vinegar to make H.P. you would know.

Just a few drops of H.P.—it makes the meal so enjoyable.

"Well, I did think so," says Maud, with a sigh of relief. "At first I thought it was you, because he used to talk to you so much."

"You silly child! Don't you know that men never talk so much to the woman they are in love with?"

"But after a time," goes on the simple Maud, "I—I didn't think so. And then, you know, of course we all knew that Hugh was your beau, Lucy, dear."

"Dear Hugh!" murmurs the soft voice, purringly.

"We do hope that it will come all right between you and Hugh," goes on Maud, "now that it is all over with that horrid girl."

"Yes, it is all over with Miss Dornmore," assents Lucy, smiling not very pleasantly. "And so, Maud, you're to be the great Duchess of Gretnam?"

"Oh, Lucy!" exclaims Maud, "how fast you go. Why—why, he has not spoken—he has not said a word—"

"But looks and gentle pressures of the hand go for more than words, dear," breaks in the sympathetic voice. "The duke is not the man to waste his attention or to ride in the park beside a young lady unless he means something definite. Well, Maud, at least you will have one who wishes you every happiness, and who will not cry you."

"Dear Lucy!" purrs Maud.

"And you must not forget your poor little friend when you have become a great lady in the land," goes on "the poor little friend" from behind the hair, with an unusual light in the green eyes. "You must ask her down to Gretnam now and then—"

"You foolish Lucy—of course you will always be welcome."

"And sometimes give her a day or two in Queen's Gate! It will be well to know a duchess so intimately. But perhaps the duke will not care—" and she sighs softly.

Gin Pills

FOR THE KIDNEYS

SUCCEEDED

Where Travel and Change of Climate Failed to Restore Health

Hamilton, Ont., Apr. 10th, 1917.

"About four years ago I wrote you of my condition from Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble and my efforts through travel and change of climate to rid myself of these unwelcome guests, and how I only found relief in Gin Pills after spending a lot of time and money in foreign lands.

"Since then Gin Pills have been my sheet anchor. I find in advancing years a tendency of the kidneys to get out of order more easily than formerly but a few doses of Gin Pills put them right and sends off other and more serious trouble. When I remember what I endured through Kidney Trouble and Rheumatism and the freedom from these which I attain and feel it not only a duty but a pleasure to recommend Gin Pills for Kidney and Bladder Troubles to my thousands of personal friends throughout Canada to whom I am well known as a commercial traveller of over forty years' active service."

Got His Hwn Back.

I heard General Sir Francis Lloyd tell an amusing story recently.

It concerned a very small drill sergeant and a tall, burly recruit from Yorkshire.

Though diminutive as to stature, the sergeant's temper was fierce, and he possessed a ready and a rasping tongue.

"Now then, you, Private Knaggs," he bawled to the tall Yorkshireman, "old yer 'ead up. There ain't no threepenny bits lyin' about in this parade ground."

"Shall I always have to look oop, sergeant?" asked the country lad.

"Always!" was the fierce reply.

"Then," answered Private Knaggs, as he lifted his face to the skies, "Good-bye, sergeant, for I shan't never see thee no more."—Pearsons.

Nidrs With Canadians

Ex-Sergeant J. Smith received a letter recently from England informing him that his son Walter J., who is with the 26th Canadians in France, have been again severely wounded in the fighting at Lens, in the latter part of July. He was buried from shell fire, and it was nearly two hours before he was rescued, when it was found that his ribs and breast, on the right side, was crushed, and that his heart was also affected. He arrived in England on the 31st July, and was placed in hospital at Sidmouth S. Devon, where his recovery has been very favorable. He is now at a convalescent hospital at Epsom, and expects to go to the front again as soon as he is sufficiently recovered. Walter relates that previous to being wounded this time, and while going up the line in France, he met his nephew, Max Moore, who was also on his way to join his regiment, the Princess Pats. The meeting was purely accidental and they were both surprised at meeting each other in France; more especially was Walter surprised, because when he left home three years ago with the first conting-ent, Max was a mere boy and was in the employ of Mr. N. Burt, at Scott's, New Gower Street, as messenger boy. He went up several times here to volunteer, but was rejected because of being under the required weight. Finding that he would not be accepted here he resigned his position with Mr. Burt and went to Halifax and en-listed there in the 2nd Co. of the Princess Pats, and was accepted, and shortly afterwards he went to Eng-land. Max seemed to be in good spir-its when met by his uncle in France, and expressed a desire to get in the firing line. However, his wish has been gratified, and although he es-caped being wounded, he is now in hospital in England suffering from trench fever. Walter J. Smith has seen some hard fighting in France since he went across the second time, having been wounded in the big drive on Verdun, last summer while with the 40th Canadians. In that battle he received a bullet in the leg and was wounded in the head likewise, and he expects to go to the front again as soon as he is pronounced fit which will be the fourth time since he joined the Canadians.

Walter is in good spirits and wishes to be remembered to all his old friends of Terra Nova. St. John's, Nov. 14th, 1917.

Linking England and France.

Shattered by War, Most of the Objections to the Scheme for a Channel Tunnel Have Disappeared. Here Mr. Arthur Fell, M.P., explains the reasons of the Plan. Tells How the Tunnel Would be Made and What It Would Mean.

(By ARTHUR FELL, M.P.)
In modern times there have been three great engineering works to be carried out on this world of ours—the Suez Canal, the Panama Canal, and the Channel Tunnel. The French completed the first thirty years ago; the Americans the second last year; and the third awaits the sanction of the British Government before it can be built. The French Government has given its sanction for the construction of the French half and is waiting to begin.

It is difficult to say which of these three great enterprises will prove of the greatest benefit to this country and to the world.

Chalk Right Across.
The Suez Canal has been a great success than even its founder ever dreamt of. The traffic through it exceeded even the most extravagant estimates, and as a result the profits derived from it have been immense.

The Panama Canal was much more difficult and costly. The citizens of Panama were notoriously hot and bad, and vast sums were spent to make it healthy. It has been, however, recently opened for traffic, and many New Zealand and Australian ships have already passed through it, instead of going round Cape Horn.

The tunnel from England to France will be a marvellous engineering work. It will be about three times the length of any tunnel hitherto built, and in the case of great tunnels under water great difficulties and delays have generally occurred.

The Straits of Dover, however, have the chalk extending right across from the chalk cliffs at Dover to the chalk cliffs near Calais, and the grey-chalk bed forms an ideal tunnelling substance, and has been proved by thousands of soundings which have been taken in the Straits to extend right across without a break.

Waiting For Orders.
The improvements in boring machinery in recent years have been great. The Tubes under London prove with what skill and speed and certainty the engineers now work, and the highest engineers say the work is practicable, and they are ready to commence when once the Government gives permission. American firms have offered to do the whole work very rapidly if their help is desired.

Tunnels used to be built of great size to take the two lines of rails for the up-and-down traffic; but now they build separate tubes or tunnels for each line running parallel but connected frequently. These tunnels, big enough to contain the full-size restaurant and sleeping cars of the modern train, will be of about twenty feet diameter. The trains will pass through the tunnel by electric power, and the atmosphere will be kept quite pure. There will be two stoppages between London and Paris—one at Dover, where the locomotive will go off and the electric motor come on, and one at Calais, where a locomotive will be put on again.

No More Rough Crossings.
By this means it will be possible to start from London at seven or eight in the morning, have breakfast in the train whilst passing through the tunnel, and arrive in Paris for déjeuner, or lunch, spend the afternoon in Paris, and leave again by five or six, have dinner in the train, and be home again to sleep in London before midnight.

Business-men in Paris and London and Brussels will be able to attend meetings in either capital with a loss of one day, instead of two, as at present, and with half the fatigue. The facilities for visiting Switzerland and Italy will be greatly increased, and the discomfort and delays of the sea-crossing done away with.

The advantages for passengers will, however, be nothing to the gain to commerce by the shipment of goods from either country without breaking bulk. This will save the unloading on to the quays at the seaport, the stowing on the Channel steamer, and the loading at the French or English port, and the putting on the train. More labour and expense is now involved in the freight of goods from London to Paris than from London to New York. With the tunnel in operation goods could be loaded at the factory in England without packing and delivered at the factory or destination in France, and the saving to be effected by this should double the commerce between the two countries.

The First Lord of the Admiralty told Parliament, when introducing his Estimates last March, that during the two and a half years of war upwards of ten million men and eleven million tons of goods had been conveyed across the Channel. The Channel Tunnel could convey that traffic in twelve months without due pressure, working, that is to say, twenty hours a day, and leaving four hours for repairs and change of staff in the tunnel. This would be by running trains following one another at ten minutes' interval, whilst under pressure they could follow at five minutes apart, if necessary.

An Annoying Delay.
The whole of our Army and all its food and stores and munitions could therefore have been transported through the tunnel without any difficulty, and, in fact, there would have been such surplus transport facilities that leave could have been given much more freely, and the badly-needed coal could have been sent to Paris. The wounded would have been transported directly from the bases on the battlefields to the hospitals in England without the delays and sufferings which have been caused by the Channel crossing.

The saving in expense would have amounted to tens of millions of pounds, and it would have freed large numbers of transports and cargo-boats for other work, and relieved the Navy from the arduous work of keeping the Channel passage always open. Food would have been more plentiful and much cheaper, for freights would have been lower.

This is part of what the Channel Tunnel would have done for us in war. But it is a work of peace for which we now advocate it.

Its construction will give employment for labour after the war. It will give an untold impetus to our commerce, and enable us to recover more quickly from the losses of the war. It will, beyond all, unite us more closely to our great ally, France, and increase the knowledge and appreciation of the two nations.

Would There Have Been War?
If the world is to live in harmony in the future, the great Western Powers of Europe must draw near together. England will be united to France, Italy, Belgium, Spain, and Switzerland, and this unity will be a pledge that peace in Western Europe, at least, shall not be again broken.

The Channel Tunnel will be the greatest factor for peace.

One of the most disastrous and expensive blunders ever committed by men was the refusal of our War Office to allow the tunnel to be built thirty years ago. If it had been built, there would have been strong defences in France to guard the tunnel mouth between Calais and Boulogne, but probably they would not have been needed, for if the tunnel had been built, and we had given this pledge of our determination to defend Belgium and France in case of a German attack, this war would never have taken place.—Answers.

OTTAWA, To-Day

The wounded Canadians now receiving treatment in the hospitals of Britain number 19,253, according to the latest report from England dated on October 26th. ### CANADIAN SICK AND WOUNDED.

OTTAWA, To-Day. The wounded Canadians now receiving treatment in the hospitals of Britain number 19,253, according to the latest report from England taken on October 26th. The men returned from overseas as totally unfit for further service who are now convalescing in Canadian hospitals and the sanatoria of the Military Hospitals Commissions in Canada number 10,199. Of these 8,311 are in convalescent homes, 1,222 in sanatoria for tuberculous patients and 666 in various other hospitals.

WAR SUMMARY.

The situation in Russia is still clouded by uncertainty owing to interrupted communication with Petrograd, where by the last reports the Bolshevik faction was in control and fighting was in progress in the streets, as a belated despatch to the Associated Press sent from Petrograd last Wednesday morning reiterates, the forces of Alexander Kerensky, Premier of the Provisional Russian Government, met with defeat at the hands of the Bolsheviks south of Petrograd while endeavoring to march upon Tsarkoe Seloe and were compelled to retreat back to Gatchina, whence they started for the attack. A more belated communication, a despatch from Petrograd last Tuesday, contained more hopeful news concerning Kiev, where it was said the Cossacks and Military Cadets had gained control of the city after considerable fighting, during which the leaders of the reactionists were arrested. Moscow, however, was partly in the hands of the Government contingents holding the central position of the city, and the Bolsheviks its environs. The casualties in Moscow as a result of the street fighting are estimated at from 700 to 7,000. On the Italian front, which is the only theatre in the world war where intensive fighting is in progress, the Italians continue to stiffen their front from the region of Lake Garda to the Adriatic Sea. Nowhere have the Teutonic forces been able to penetrate their front for new gains of great importance. On the other hand their attacks have met with fierce resistance and ultimate repulse except in the north, where the town of Osimon on the east bank of the Bretna River and several hill positions have been taken by the invading forces. All along the Piave furious artillery action is in progress and Italy's airplanes have come into the fray and are doing notable work in dropping bombs on the enemy lines. To the south, near the mouth of the Piave, in the region known as the Holland of Italy, Italian engineers have opened the dykes against the enemy forces, which crossed the stream at Grisolera, and who possibly have been trapped by the inrush of water. The inundation at all events will make harder the task of the enemy in bringing up guns with which to shell Venice from the northeast. The British in Palestine continue to press forward against the Turks. They now have reached a point three miles south of Jaffa and are meeting with only slight resistance. Since the operations began on Oct. 31st more than 9,000 Turks have been made prisoners. A new French Cabinet is formed under the leadership of George Clemenceau, one of France's most virile statesmen. M. Clemenceau, in addition to his post as Premier, has assumed the portfolio as Minister of War.

KING RECEIVES AMERICAN MISSION.

LONDON, To-Day. Those present at the King's reception to the American Mission were Premier Lloyd George, Arthur J. Balfour, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, and the principal members of the Royal Household. All the arrangements were simple and informal, in accordance with the strict method of rationing constantly practised by the King and Queen. There was no music or special floral decorations. The King chatted with each member of the Mission concerning the United States and displayed deep interest in their work in England.

INTENSE ARTILLERY ACTION.

LONDON, To-Day. Intense artillery on British front in France and Belgium occurred to-day, according to the War Office report to-night. The communication reads: There has been intense artillery activity during to-day on both sides of the battlefield, particularly in the neighbourhood of Passchendaele. Our patrols brought in a few prisoners. On the remainder of the front there is nothing of special interest to report.

FRENCH AND BELGIAN REPORTS.

PARIS, To-Day. The following official statement was issued this evening: Active bombardments have taken place on our front in Belgium in Champagne in region of Mont Teton, and also on the right bank of the Meuse. Belgian Communiqué—Both artilleries were moderately active. On the 15th we silenced several enemy batteries which were in action against our defensive works and our artillery in the region of Ramscapele and to the south of Dixmude. We shelled the enemy's cantonment at Praetboh in reply to a bombardment of Dunkirke by enemy airmen. On the 16th the enemy kept up a violent fire with his artillery in the region of Merveken. The enemy in this region attacked one of our advanced posts and succeeded in breaking into it. Eventually a counter attack repulsed the enemy, who left a dozen prisoners in our hands. The activity of the enemy artillery continued violent to the south of Dixmude until evening. Our batteries energetically counter-shelled the enemy. Army of the east, Nov. 16th. In the region of Pegradek strong enemy reconnoitering parties were compelled to fall back before the fire of our artillery. In the regions of Doiran and Monastir we carried out a destructive fire against enemy batteries. In the region of Pribope and in the Valley at Yavdar, French and British aviators bombed some air-dromes.

GERMAN STATEMENT.

BERLIN, To-day. A supplementary statement issued by General Headquarters to-night, reads: There was more intense fire and an engagement near Dixmude. New attacks brought us successes in the mountains between Bretna and the Piave. In the east, nothing of special importance occurred.

KERENSKY'S FORCES DEFEATED.

PETROGRAD, To-day. Wednesday, Premier Kerensky's forces which advanced from Gatchina to Tsarkoe Seloe, have been defeated by the workmen and soldiers' forces between Tsarkoe Seloe and Pulkova, 12 miles from Petrograd. The Kerensky contingents have retired to Gatchina.

CLAIM COSSACKS KILLED.

LONDON, To-day. A belated despatch from Petrograd to Reuter's Limited, says: 1,500 Cossacks were killed or wounded in the fighting that occurred near Alexandrovsky Station, five miles southeast of Petrograd. This information came from a Maximalist source dated November 12th.

AERIAL REPORT.

LONDON, To-day. An official statement issued by the War Office to-night dealing with aviation work, says: During the early part of Thursday a heavy ground mist considerably hampered aerial operations. Later in the day the mist partly cleared and considerable activity ensued in the air. Many targets were successfully engaged by our artillery with the aid of aerial observation and a number of reconnaissances were carried out by our aeroplanes. On the battle front our low-flying machines engaged several ground targets with machine gun fire. Hostile machines dropped bombs on our side of the line. In an air fight five hostile machines were downed and one German machine was shot down by our anti-aircraft guns. Four of our machines are missing.

SATURDAY, Nov. 17, 1917. For an obstinate cough—and such coughs are not uncommon during the damp fall weather—Gaul's Syrup of Tar and Cod Liver Oil is conceded to be one of the "quickest and most effective remedies." Not only is it pleasant in use, but there is no chance of its upsetting the stomach or masking the appetite. It is not merely a cough mixture in the ordinary sense—though it is that in its direct effect upon the cough—but is as well an excellent builder and tonic. Large bottle, 50c. ### Your Boys and Girls.

Another lesson in hygiene for the little woman is that of keeping her own brush and comb. No amount of scrubbing in soap and water will satisfactorily clean between the teeth of a comb and so she should use a strip of muslin and pull it back and forth between the teeth as though she were a toothbrush. A small quantity of borax or ammonia should be added to the water in which both comb and brush are washed. They should be allowed to soak half an hour before they are thoroughly cleansed. The ammonia may be placed in the soaking water and a strong soap used in the second water. The brush should then be rinsed in hot water and then in cold to stiffen the bristles. Still another precaution must be taken with the tooth powder that boys and girls use. Let them have their own little box of it or their own tube of paste. Tooth powder, by the way, should never be shaken out in the hand, but should go directly on the brush.

News was received in town yesterday that Messrs. R. D. McKee and Son's sloop, Hilda R., Capt. W. Tetman, had been torpedoed on the other side. The crew escaped in their boat.

An old resident of this town passed away this morning in the person of Mr. William Stevenson, son of Stevenson's Village. Mr. Stevenson who had passed his 80th year, was a well known figure in our midst. The funeral takes place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

We regret to report that Mr. Edward Parsons, of Ship Head, is very ill at present and his friends are very anxious about him.

A very successful Sale of Work was held by the ladies of the Methodist Church, on Wednesday and Thursday nights. The very fine sum of $176.00 was realized. The ladies are to be congratulated on the result.

The election of the Road Board took place at the Court House yesterday. The election was conducted most satisfactorily by Judge Oke, assisted by Messrs. J. Casey, J.P., John Trappell, J.P., and J. P. Fox. A goodly number of citizens assembled and keen interest was centered on the contest. Eighteen of our citizens were nominated, and as it was decided that the Board should comprise seven members the voters were asked to select 7 out of the 18 candidates. Voting closed at 8 p.m., and counting then commenced, resulting in the following being elected:—William Carson, John E. Walker, Robert French, W. A. McKay, Paul Higgins, John Dove, Eliel Martin. The new Board will have its hands full to keep our roads, bridges, &c., worthy of our town, but if they receive the wherewithal from the powers that be, then our citizens will, we feel sure, have no cause to complain as to the expenditure. If the seven shoulders are put to the wheel in a determined effort to make our town admired we see no reason why much improvement cannot be made. Success to the new Board. Personally we will compliment them where necessary and find fault when there is cause for complaint.

From Labrador.

The Minnie M. Mosher, Capt. Freeman Ernst, put in an appearance after twelve days coming from the Labrador coast, a passage which is often made under four days. Captain Ernst said that in all his experience in the Labrador trade, the weather this trip was the limit, excepting the voyage to Labrador which was made in four days. Arriving at Harrington Harbor the worst of weather set in with snow squalls and every other kind of a squall and it took thirty days to load her 1,800 quintals of dry fish, which could have been done with three days of fine weather. On the return trip Capt. Ernst harbored at Sydney and Whale Head. The cargo is for H. R. Silver, Ltd.—Halifax Mail, Nov. 12.

Absenting Jurors Summoned.

Three absenting jurors, who failed to put in an appearance on the morning of the Strickland trial, were summoned to appear in the Supreme Court this morning and give their reasons for not attending to Mr. Justice Kent, who presided. Jurors James Hennebury and Henry B. Peach were excused on furnishing a certificate of ill-health from Dr. Anderson. Edward Shaw, who arrived at the Court House on the morning of the trial shortly after roll call, about 10 o'clock, informed the court that he had no intention of absenting himself on the occasion, but was under the impression that the jurors were called for 11 o'clock as on former occasions. He was fined the sum of four dollars.

THE FIGHTING OUTSIDE PETRO-GRAD.

LONDON, To-day.
Reuter's despatch from Petrograd dated Tuesday, November 13th, says: Tzarkev Sloe has twice changed hands in the last three days. The adherents of Premier Kerensky first occupied it after a short conflict and continued to advance. They were reported at one time as being within five miles of Petrograd. According to the Maximists' account, in the fighting at Alexandrovsky Station an armored train commanded by the Kerensky forces opened fire against the Bolshevik ranks with guns and machine guns but the attack was not successful. The Cossacks attempted to advance near Pulkova, but were promptly checked by armored cars with machine guns. Maximist scouts reported that the Kerensky Cossacks were so few in number that when they went forth to fight they were able to leave only small parties in (Tzarkev Sloe).

ferred from its severities to the extent of being compelled to change the name of his newspaper. Although no official announcement has been made, it is understood the new Premier will suppress the censorship entirely, putting newspapers and correspondents on their honor not to infringe the rules which will be drawn up for their direction and any transgression of which will lead to immediate prosecution.

Thoughts Upon the Times.

(By PATRIOT.)
With a state of anarchy and confusion existing in Russia and the fate of Serbia and Roumania hanging over Italy, the Allies are face to face with perhaps the most serious chapter in the history of the war. Little did the Venetians think that within six weeks from the time the victorious Cadorna was driving the Austrians before him in defeat, practically the whole population of their ancient and beautiful City of Venice would have to flee for their lives, before the Hun. Once again the Hun, headed by a modern Attila, the plunderer of mankind, is threatening Italy. Will she be able to hold the Prussian hordes in check until help arrives? Those who recall the fate of Serbia and Roumania fear it is too late. The attention of the whole world is centered upon Italy to-day. There are those who believe that Germany's present plan is to conquer Italy, land troops in Tripoli on the North Coast of Africa, and strike at the British Empire by attacking Egypt. This seems like a bold and impossible policy for the Germans to undertake. But have not their plans always been bold and surprising to the Allies? Did not Lord French warn the British public a few days ago not to be surprised if the Germans attempted the invasion of England? The Hun like the Hun of old, wages war with great skill. Their Generals seem to be as capable as those who commanded them fifteen hundred years ago. If the plains of Italy are overrun by the Germans, it will mean that the war will be prolonged and it will very seriously affect us as a country. Do we as a people seriously consider this?

In yesterday's account of Dr. Lloyd George's address before the F.P.U. Convention at Catania, mention is made of the seriousness of the situation confronting us by the German invasion of Italy. Dr. Lloyd is also credited with warning the people that if the present appeal for recruits fails, the Government will adopt other measures. It is to be hoped that the Acting Premier's decision will not be over-ridden by his colleagues. The time has come for "Selective Conscription" to be enforced. The country expects it. In yesterday's Star we read of an item where a prominent clergyman's life was anonymously threatened, if he married any eligible young man who might be fit to go to the front. A few nights ago a large and influential number of the citizens of Grand Falls met and pronounced themselves by secret ballot, in favor of Conscription. The writer knows of other cases where lodges and societies have voted in favor of Conscription. The Government should not forget that there is no means at present for the people to express their opinion on the matter. There is no Opposition in the Government, and nearly all the newspapers are supporting the present administration. Then again quite a number of Districts have no representation in the House of Assembly. In matters which concern our national existence the Government should lead and direct the people. Imagine an untrained and undisciplined army advising its Generals in matters of strategy. This is what is happening in Russia to-day. When our public men learn to place national issues before party politics then and not till then, will they deserve the good will of the people.

If they continue dilatory in the matter they should not be surprised if popular opinion manifests itself in some unexpected manner as a protest against their want of real patriotism.

Socialism Defeated
Gen. Cadorna.

Socialism is probably responsible for the disaster which has befallen Italy. It has been known that General Cadorna was aware of the German intention to attack him, but it has been assumed hitherto that he was deceived about the place. The Germans are supposed to have struck him unexpectedly in a weak spot, taken him by surprise to that extent. This, it now appears, was not the fact. "Cadorna," General Maurice informs us, "knew of the approaching attack, its place and approximate date."
Why, then, did his troops give way before it? It was not because of any overwhelming concentration of Germans; General Maurice disposes of that legend too. The Italians gave way before the same Austrian Army which they had previously defeated, reinforced by German units whose number has been greatly exaggerated. Why did they give way? The Italian official bulletins, in the first shock and horror of the catastrophe, ascribed it to "cowardice" on the part of certain units, but subsequently eliminated the word. What was back of that charge and its subsequent withdrawal without retraction? General Maurice says:
It is clear that a great part of the disaster, for it can be called nothing else, was due to insidious propaganda which has gone further than Cadorna suspected.
But not further than Von Below suspected, not further than he positively knew. The German peace propaganda is a military manoeuvre, conducted with the intention of bringing about German victories in the field. It brought about such a victory in Galicia last summer. It has brought about another in the Julian Alps this Fall. It intends to bring about more. A peace propagandist, a Socialist, is doing more effective work—actual military work—for the German arms than Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm, Hindenburg, and Below put together.
Nor need we expect that our own armies will not be attacked in the same manner that those of Italy and Russia have been. The German propagandist will do his best to weaken their morale in the same way in which he weakened those of Korniloff and Cadorna. It is time to recognize him, not for a misguided theorist, but for a German soldier doing military work for Ludendorff, and for the same purpose for which Below is doing it—to bring about disaster to our arms. Throughout the war socialism has worked on the side of Germany, always helping the enemy of the democracies of England, France, Russia, and the United States.—N. Y. Times.

Demands Death Penalty
FOR HUN EDITORS IN U. S.
New York, Nov. 12.—The penalty of death for Benedict and Edwin S. Prieth, former publishers of the New Jersey Freie Zeitung, if they are convicted on charges of treason and violation of the espionage act, as a result of alleged treasonable utterances made in their paper, will be demanded by United States Attorney Lynch. The United States attorney said that no act could be more treasonable than a newspaper poisoning the minds of its readers with seditious and disloyal remarks. He said that he would make every effort to have the extreme punishment of death inflicted upon the Prieths and their three former associates—Henry Waechter, former city editor of the New Jersey Freie Zeitung; William J. von Katseler, former managing editor, and Hans von Hundelhausen, former associate editor and now president of the Washington Publishing Company, which is now conducting the paper—who have also been indicted for treason by the Federal grand jury, should they ultimately be convicted.

A New Thrill For Blaze Motorists

Driving a Willys-Knight is a greater enjoyment than the novelty of your first motor car.

It registers an altogether new and different motoring experience.

While many engines perform well when new, the Willys-Knight retains its maximum efficiency, in fact grows better with use.

Can you conceive of a greater boon? It explains why the passive tolerance of many motorists has been changed into active enthusiasm by the Willys-Knight.

One veteran motorist says his car glides as smoothly and evenly as though there were a vacuum in front of the radiator instead of the powerful and faithful Willys-Knight engine back of it.

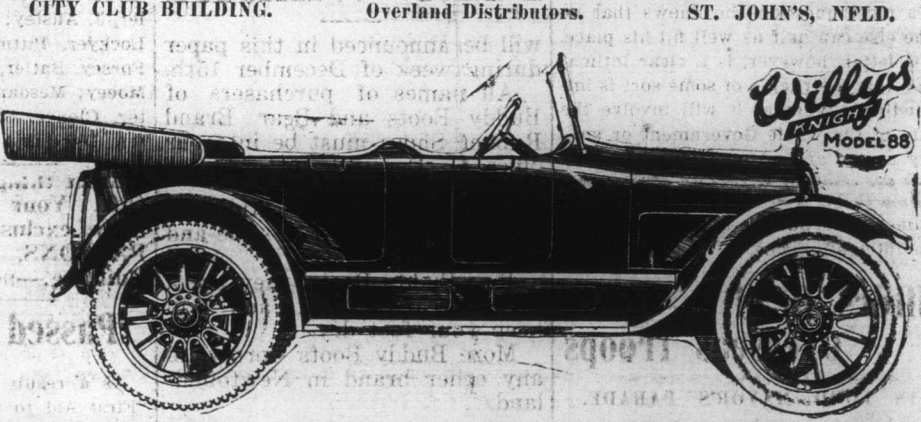

Begin now to enjoy the engine advantages obtainable from this engine that makes beneficial use of carbon; that thrives on carbon; that for thousands of miles grows stronger, and more flexible through carbon; that never needs carbon cleaning and valve grinding to "set it up."

The Hardest Thing.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"Do the thing that's nearest
Though it's hard the whiles
Helping when you meet them
Lame dogs over stiles."

That is a good little poem. I have always liked it. Sometimes, too, the first line comes into my mind with a slight commendation. "Do the thing, a business man and the heap of details that's hardest," says my brain to me, and this is what it means. If you have a number of things to do, and you particularly dread some one of them, do it first.

Get It Off Your Mind.

You don't know (unless you have the habit) what a help it is to get the hardest task off your mind. It makes the rest of your tasks seem easier by contrast.

Also it is good discipline to make yourself do promptly a thing you dislike.

Also the impetus you have to get up carries you straight through your easier tasks with a rush.

Take a very humble instance.

I Hate To Brush Off The Crumbs.

I have the most inexplicable and deep seated dislike to one little household task connected with my dishes. I simply hate to brush the crumbs off the table.

I am always tempted to leave this task until after I have washed the dishes and gotten them ready to put away. If I do that, I am subconsciously dragging it while I wash and I am apt to be more lackadaisical, more prone to let things interrupt me. If, on the other hand I fling myself briskly at the task the minute I get the last dish cleared off, and am conscious that I have a clean table, my dishes are apt to go much more briskly.

The same is true when I have anything difficult to write. If I leave it till the last, my whole day's work drags. If I do it briskly, while my morning courage is good, the whole day goes better.

Write The Hardest Letter First.

I should think it would be so with you don't shut out those people who deliberately manufacture their duties and call them "social."

Or with a teacher and the many problems of school discipline and routine to be faced.

Or with anyone who has any duties of any sort, which I suppose includes practically everybody. If you don't shut out those people who deliberately manufacture their duties and call them "social."

atmosphere of the home. This is a very expensive form of conciliation, and leaves heartburnings and chills in its wake.

It must be admitted, however, that a neat, highly-muscled hired girl with four speeds forward and no reverse is worth her weight in gold, and usually gets it.

FREE SPEECH.

Free speech is certainly a blessing! Without it life would be distressing. It is a boon we long have cherished; for it our well known fathers perished. It is the rock on which this nation was built to all men's admiration. While I am privileged to chatter, I'm sorry, no "bods" what the matter. While I can't roast our statute makers and call them mutts and boobies and fakers, I'll stand for all the laws they're passing; my safety valve is harmless sassing. Free speech, sweet boon! We must not lose it, and therefore never should abuse it. Some gens, who wish to awe or dazzle, are working free speech to a frazzle; they hand out sentiments exotic, they're saying things unpatriotic; they're toiling like so many yonemen to dish up comfort to the foemen. These skates, to whom tact is a stranger, will put our free speech graft in danger. Because of guys who've no discretion, no common sense in their possession, I may be pinched when I'm unreeeling a mild and harmless lien of spiling. So I maintain we should be stopping all venomous and rancid yawping.

THE HIRED GIRL.

The hired girl of the present day is a lone remnant of a once populous species which roamed from home to home at $2 per week. Twenty-five years ago good, plain hired girls of serious purpose and complicated features could be rented at any hour of the day without making it necessary to mortgage a new, pin-oak upright piano. Life is becoming so complex, however, that to-day it is harder to find a hired girl who is willing to work for anything less than the wages of a master bricklayer than it is to locate a solvent American in Mexico.

In the effete and highly-cultured east the hired girl has disappeared entirely from the haunts of man. The maid who dresses in silk poplin and a haughty mien has taken her place, and is giving general satisfaction in homes where the housework is not allowed to interfere with the moving picture show. If an uncouth westerner in Congress shoes should stray into an aristocratic home in Boston, Massachusetts, and address the maid as a hired girl, he would have to be shipped back to his relatives, showing a total lack of animation and front teeth. The Boston Transcript once accepted a want ad. calling for a rugged, plain-visaged hired girl at $12 per week for a family of two, with washing and ironing sent out and beds made on the second Tuesday of each month, and the editor has not been heard of since.

In the teeming and frost-bitten corn belt of the middle west, where fresh creamery butter is accepted as collateral on a promissory note, great inducements have to be held out in order to restrain a hired girl who intends to strike immediately prior to housecleaning time. Many a depressed husband, after a night of toil over the pool table, has found it necessary to build four fires, grind the coffee, set the table and officiate at the wringer, so that a blase and unfeeling hired girl may be conciliated with the at-

Your Boys and Girls.

It would be an excellent thing if all people kept liquid soap in their bathrooms. In France it is considered bad form among well bred people to use another person's tooth brush. The soap should be held under the hot water for half a minute before using if it is a family cake but it is better to give each child his individual piece of soap. This will be a good opportunity to teach them economy also. Tell the children they must not let the soap lie in the water, because it will take father's money that is needed for something else. They will thus become interested and will co-operate in saving it.

If it happens that a child is obliged to use a cake of soap used by other people teach the little one that the soap must have a bath before and after using.

ROME, Nov. 16. The Italian official follows: On the mountainous front from Asiago Plateau to the Piave River combats have developed and are continuing. Yesterday the enemy kept our positions under intense fire and launched violent attacks. Our troops, supported by artillery, resisted everywhere with great courage and counter attacked with boldness, inflicting losses on the enemy and capturing prisoners. All positions remained in our hands. The Regina brigade 24 and 10th regiments, fought with its usual valor at Melotta D'Avanti and on Monte Fior at Monte Tondarcar, where three successive attacks were repulsed. On Monte Marloa a battalion of Alpini showed firmness at the defensive line of San Marino. In the Bronta Valley enemy parties were driven back with heavy losses. At Monte Prassolan a party which had retired from Monte Roncone made a counter attack, having received reinforcements, and repulsed the enemy who had followed close on its heels. During the withdrawal at Monte Cornelle our troops with stubbornness and admirable courage victoriously resisted a formidable effort of the enemy lasting from the afternoon until midnight. Enemy troops massed north of Asiago and Gallo Wood, were bombarded by our airplanes. On the plains intense artillery activity continued across the Piave River. From Stivello to Astico some artillery firing is reported. There were local infantry actions in Giuvarie and Ledro Valleys. Yesterday and last night airplanes and airships repeated their bombardments of enemy troops along the Fluvial lines and ways of access.

FLOOD GATES OPENED ON HUNS.

Italian Headquarters in Northern Italy, Nov. 16.—The flood gates of the Piave and Siles Rivers, northeast of Venice, have been opened by Italian engineers. The action of the Italians in opening the flood gates of the Piave and Siles Rivers probably means an attempt to drown out the Austro-German forces which crossed the Lower Piave several days ago at Grisclera.

THE POPE APPEALS.

ROME, Nov. 16. The Pope has asked the Governments of the Central Empires to instruct their military authorities operating west of the Isonzo, to follow the rules of international law in respecting the lives and property of civilians and in protection of women and children, clergy, hospitals, churches, bishops, palaces and presbyteries. The Pontiff has also ordered the Papal Nuncio at Munich and Vienna, if necessary, to appeal personally and directly to Emperor William and Emperor Charles to obtain the fulfillment of his wishes.

VENICE MAY NOT BE DEFENDED.

VENICE, Nov. 16. Venice is almost empty, the population having been reduced from the usual 160,000 to 20,000. The city may not be defended in case of an attack in order to save the monuments and art treasures.

IN PALESTINE.

LONDON, Nov. 16. The British army which is pursuing the Turks along the coast in Palestine has made further substantial gains, the War Office announced. The official statement follows: General Alamey reports that during yesterday our troops after slight resistance reached a line from Ramleh Ludd to some three miles south of Jaffa. In one part of the zone of operations an attack by a Turkish regiment on New Zealand mounted troops was beaten back by a bayonet charge with heavy losses to the enemy. The total number of prisoners verified since Oct. 31 now exceeds 9,000. Ramleh Ludd is on the railway between Jaffa, on the Mediterranean coast and Jerusalem, the junction of which line with the railway between Beersheba and Damascus was captured a few days ago by the British. Jaffa is fifty-four miles northward of Jerusalem.

Reuter's correspondent with British headquarters in Palestine telegraphing last Wednesday says: Within a fortnight of the inception of the British offensive the Turkish army occupying apparently an impregnable line strongly fortified and provided with guns, ammunition and supplies have been driven headlong from its defenses and chased across the country. Its losses have been enormous. The feature of yesterday's fighting was a brilliant charge by the Midland Counties Yeomanry. The enemy had been clinging tenaciously to a position above Mughair beyond Radi Rubin where he had hastily entrenched himself supported by field and machine guns. The mounted troops charged across the swelling uplands straight upon the enemy. They were received with heavy fire, but nothing could stop them. They cut right through the Turks sabring right and left. When the enemy found themselves surrounded eleven hundred of them laid down their arms. The Turk is fighting bravely, but he is hopelessly outclassed.

IN TOUCH WITH PETROGRAD.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 16. The first word received direct from Petrograd for some days, with the exception of the brief day wireless statements announcing the absence of communications from army headquarters, came today in the form of official wireless messages mentioning Col. Mouraviev, Bolshevik leader, as in command of the Petrograd military revolutionary districts.

ONLY MINOR ENGAGEMENTS.

LONDON, Nov. 16. Only raiding operations on the British front in France and Belgium are reported in to-day's official statement. It reads: Worcestershire troops made a successful raid last night northeast of Tampeux. A hostile reconnoitering party which endeavored to approach our lines north of Poelcapelle, was repulsed. There is nothing further of special interest to report.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, Nov. 16. A German attack in Belgium was repulsed last night by the French. The war office announcement follows: In Belgium the Germans attempted to capture one of our points of support north of Veldhoek. The attack was repulsed and appreciable losses inflicted on the enemy. The night was calm on the remainder of the front, except on the right bank of the Meuse, Verdun front, where heavy artillery firing continued. German aviators bombarded the region south of Nancy. There were no victims.

AIR ACTIVITY.

LONDON, Nov. 16. Yesterday a bombing raid was attempted by our naval aircraft on Wysterke, Belgium, airdrome, but owing to very high winds our formation did not proceed to its original objective but dropped a large number of bombs on airship sheds near Hundzaema, says the Admiralty report. In the course of offensive patrols enemy aircraft have been destroyed and two driven down completely out of control. All our machines returned safely.

ENCOUNTERS BETWEEN AMERICANS AND GERMANS.

Nov. 16.—There have been further encounters between American patrols and Germans in No Man's Land. Last night there were a number of clashes but the night was dark and showery and firing was mostly at a distance. There were no American casualties.

NEWSPAPERS CRITICIZE NORTH-CLIFFE'S LETTER.

LONDON, Nov. 16. Newspapers comment extensively on Lord Northcliffe's letter to Premier Lloyd George in which he declined an appointment as Air Minister.

The Globe says: "The gravest of all Lord Northcliffe's warnings is that concerning the temper of the American nation, that the American people think and think rightly that Britain's rulers have muddled the war." This paper declares the letter while addressed to the nation, and adds: "If we don't heed we shall deserve any fate that may befall us." The Pall Mall Gazette says: "The present government has been almost a year in office and it wouldn't be too soon for the Premier to see whether it can't be revised in the interests of greater energy and a clearer perception of what is meant by war."

The Westminster Gazette says: "Other distinguished men have felt like this, but none of them hitherto have expressed their sentiments in this blunt vernacular and made the refusal of such a high office the occasion for lecturing the Prime Minister on the shortcomings of his administration. Those who make others scapegoats are always in fear of being made scapegoats themselves." Both the Globe and Pall Mall Gazette regret Lord Northcliffe's decision. Many of the newspapers take occasion to point out the nation's demand for steadiness and composure on the part of statesmen and need for more vigorous administration.

COWDRAY RESIGNS.

LONDON, Nov. 16. Viscount Cowdray, Chairman of the British Air Board, has resigned as a consequence of Lord Northcliffe's letter to the Premier. Baron Cowdray was appointed Chairman of the British Air Board on Jan. 2nd of this year, in succession to Baron Sydenham. Baron Cowdray accepted the post on condition that he receive no salary.

LONDON, Nov. 16. In reply to a question in the Commons to-day, Sir Eric Geddes, First Lord of the Admiralty said the good return of tonnage, sinking by enemy submarines last week, and indeed the comparatively favorable result of the last two months ought not to be taken as indicating that the sub. menace is a thing of the past or defeated.

SYMPATHY FOR BELGIUM.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16. Renewed expressions of sympathy for Belgium's sufferings and assurances of the determination of the United States to prosecute the war against its oppressors to a successful conclusion, were sent to King Albert to-day by President Wilson in a cable congratulating the King upon his birthday. The message follows: "I take pleasure in extending to your majesty greetings of friendship and good-will on this your fete day. For the people of the United States I take this occasion to renew expressions of deep sympathy for the sufferings which Belgium has endured under the wilful, cruel and barbaric force of

He Lives in Constant Fear Who Has Neurasthenia

SUCH ideas often dominate the mind of the sufferer from nervous exhaustion or neurasthenia.

He may be strong and active physically, but he finds himself unable to concentrate the mind, fearful to depend on himself, and shrinking at the thought of any responsibility.

Some fear to be in a crowd, while others dread to be left alone. Some dislike meeting people, while others live in constant, morbid dread of the future, fearing insanity or accident or disease.

Fear brings worry and an irritation of the nerves, so that sleep is interrupted and digestion fails. In this way is formed the vicious circle of neurasthenia, and the nervous system becomes weaker and weaker, until it collapses, and the result is some form of paralysis.

Fear of Self—Fear of Others—Fear of the Future

New vigor and energy and vitality must be instilled into the depleted nerve cells if cure is to be effected, and this is most certainly accomplished by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

The Food Cure

Mr. Laurence E. Dorsey, 39 Stanley Street, London, Ont., writes:—"About three years ago I got my foot smashed in an elevator in Detroit, which completely wrecked my nerves. I doctored with the doctors there, but they did not seem to be able to help me. My nerves were in such a state that I could not go down town alone, or go any place where there was a crowd. Sometimes my mother would have to sit and watch over me at night, and sometimes I could not get any sleep at all. But one day last winter I commenced using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and before I had completely used the first box I could see a difference in my condition. I continued using these pills for some time. The result was splendid. I feel so much better, can sleep well at night, can go out on the street and attend gatherings like the rest of people. I am so pleased to be able to tell you what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has done for me, and to recommend it to other people."

Since the digestive system is incapacitated it is most essential to get into the blood stream the very elements which are found in this great food cure.

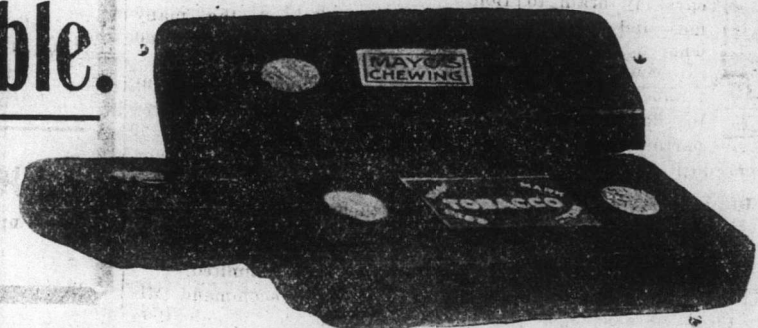

The blood is made rich and red, the starved nerve cells are restored and revitalized, and with returning vigor and strength and confidence the harmful notions of a diseased brain soon disappear.

Nervous diseases take different forms with different people, but to effect cure in any case the depleted nerve cells must be nourished back to health and vigor by such reconstructive treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

disappointed Prussian autocracy. ## THE IRISH SITUATION.

LONDON, Nov. 16. In the Lords last night Marquis Lansdowne and others expressed apprehension over the situation in Ireland. Earl Curzon, government leader, in reply, referred to the Premier's recent declaration of policy for Ireland. He contended that the declaration had been effective, that a change had come over the scene in Ireland and that the Government is pursuing the Premier's policy with firmness and without provocation. Curzon denied that the Sinn Fein movement was a dangerous factor; its importance should not be over-estimated. Eighty per cent. of the Sinn Feiners, he said, were opposed to armed rebellion. The Sinn Feiners, Earl Curzon added, had alienated the sober elements of the population, and it was a good sign that the Catholic church had repudiated the Sinn Feiners. Strong action was growing in Ireland against the Sinn Fein movement, and it would be a great mistake to check it and thus play into the hands of extremists. Violent Sinn Fein speeches were as safety valves for pent-up emotions. Mr. Duke, Secretary for Ireland, the speaker continued, recently refused to call out the military on the occasion of an apprehended rising which fizzled out. That was a feather in Secretary Duke's cap, and a great blow to the Sinn Fein. It would be most unwise for the Government to risk jeopardizing the opportunity they now had for a thorough convention and offering a solution to the Irish problem.

FETCHING UP FERDIE — Some People Are Every Bit As Unreasonable As This Guy Who Borrowed Ferdie's Benzine Buggy?

BY CARL ED

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, Oct. 29th, 1917.
LONDON OCTOBER 1917.
Well-to-do people, as well as poor, suffered in the last series of raids, and neither seem able to get their dwellings put rapidly into a habitable state. London would strike one who has been absent from it for some time as having become uncommonly shabby. But this is the fourth year in which very little house-painting has been done, and with the extension of manufacturing enterprise the atmosphere has not become less dirty. The people also are less smart than they might keep themselves. Most of the women one sees in the West End are in mourning, and the world of fashion has grown dowdy. As for male civilians, they go about in old and shapeless clothes and slouch hats, and it appears to be the aim of every wealthy man to look as shabby as he can. Grosvenor Square might be inhabited by seedy commercial travellers whose firms had gone into bankruptcy. Nature, however, keeps noticeably fresh and bright. The sward in the parks is as green as in June, and the trees have scarcely begun to shed their foliage or to change their color. But there are no flowers. That luxury the Office of Works sternly denies us.

PACIFIST ORGANISATIONS AND THEIR FUNDS.

A question is to be put to the Home Secretary shortly, suggesting an enquiry by the Government into the origin of the funds possessed by the various pacifist organisations which at this moment are in full blast. Comparatively little of their work seems to be done in London, but in the cotton districts of Lancashire, as well as the mining belt of South Wales, together with the West Riding and the Clyde, there is a very active propaganda, largely engineered and participated in by women. That kind of thing costs much money to work, and it would be of especial interest to know at this moment where it all comes from. Even such of the organisations as publish lists of subscribers, often give no other clue than initials and initials are not always to be accepted at their face suggestion.

KOSCIUSZKO.
We have just had the centenary of the death of the great Polish hero, Thaddeus Kosciuszko, about whom most of us, I am afraid, know very little except the scanty information in Campbell's famous line "and freedom shrieked when Kosciuszko fell." And even there the poet has misled us, for, in spite of the interest he professed in the Polish cause, he was not at the pains to find out how to pronounce his hero's name. I once heard a small Polish child recite this passage of the poem. She got on splendidly until that fatal line, and then, unable to make Kosciuszko a word of syllables as Campbell did, ruined the line by giving it only three. One gets pretty near the Polish pronunciation if one remembers that the middle and accented syllable sounds like the English word "stew"—Kos-tew-shka, with all the stress on "stew."

SIR THOMAS LIPTON AND YACHTING.

A correspondent of mine who met Sir Thomas Lipton the other day on the pier at Bournemouth tells me that the owner of all the Shamrocks is as keen as ever about yachting. "I have no boat now," said the genial baronet, "so am obliged for the time being to take my sea-faring this way. But," he added, "as soon as the war is at an end I intend to be really afloat again." My friend asked what the plans were with regard to the Nicholson Shamrock which is on the other side of the Atlantic. "That matter has been arranged," said Sir Thomas. "When the hostilities are over the Challenger and the Defender which were built for 1914 will race. There is to be no new Defender and no new Challenger." Sir Thomas was asked why he did not buy Margherita for racing in British waters after the war. "I am going to race here after the war," said the baronet, "but if I had brought the big Nicholson schooner there would have been nobody to race against. I am agreeable, and have said so in the proper quarter, to build any size of British yacht from 15 metres up provided one or two other men come in to make a class."

NEW COLOR FOR FLYING CORPS.

A few weeks back those officers of the Royal Flying Corps who do not "go up" were ordered by the War Office to give up wearing the double-breasted tunic and flying officer's cap, substituting ordinary officer's array at their own expense. Now it is rumored that the whole Flying Corps is to be reclothed, khaki disappearing in favor of some blue more inconspicuous. Sky blue is the obvious color, but if the change is made the authorities are more likely to choose a green tint.

WOMEN AIR PILOTS NEXT.

Simultaneously with the change in the command of the military branch of the flying services, I learn from a reliable source that an interesting development is under consideration. This is nothing less than the employment of women as pilots. There is, of course, no intention of permitting the female flying officers to fight in the air, but it is quite possible that before long they will be employed to take machines across the Channel for delivery behind the lines. I am told that applications for the work—or perhaps I should say for commissions—have already been made by a few daring women. The Royal Flying Corps has employed women as chauffeurs for some months. The majority of these are ladies of good family, who have taken up the work because they have driven cars for years.

COMMON SERJEANT DICKENS.

London's new Common Serjeant, Henry Fielding Dickens, K.C., is the only surviving son of the novelist. The youngest of Dickens's six boys, he was named Fielding after the, until then, greatest English novelist, although in his father's first intention was to call him Oliver Goldsmith. H. F. Dickens named all his own sons Charles. One of them, Cedric Charles Dickens, fell in battle last year. The new Common Serjeant is approaching his seventeenth year. He was called to the Bar forty-two years ago, and has long been one of the most notable figures in the Temple. He was once briefed to examine a witness who bore the name of Pickwick. The opportunity seemed too good to be missed. Sir Frank Lockwood was so anxious to see a Dickens confronting a Pickwick that he got Mr. Justice Hawkins to adjourn a case to let him be present. The witness turned out to be a lanky, lugubrious individual.

SIMPLICITY AND SERGE.

Society women are giving a lead to others in the matter of dress suited to the dictates of war-time economy. Simple coat and skirt costumes, or equally simple coat frocks of navy or black serge, are the favorite wear of girls who have lately married heirs to dukedoms and earldoms, good furs and a modest string of pearls being the only indications of wealth. The skirts are of decent length. The ultra-short frocks and extravagantly high boots of past winters are now out of date in Mayfair, and have been relegated to high-salaried munition-

Bread and Milk is a Balanced Ration

Any food or combination of foods that supplies all requirements of nutrition is called a "balanced ration." Food experts point to bread and milk as a splendid example.

When baking bread you surely owe it to yourself to select with care the flour that will provide the most nutrition and energy-producing power.

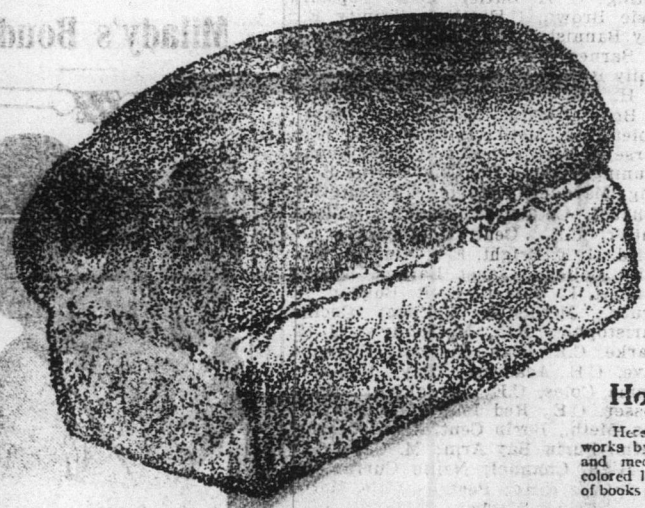

Dr. Wiley, the famous food expert, a former chief of the Department of Chemistry at Washington, states that there is more energy in a pound of bread than in a pound of meat.

You can always depend upon the fullest nutrition value and rising quality of Canada's best hard wheat when you use

WAR INFLUENCE ON TOYS.

The toy warehouses here offer an interesting commentary on the influence affecting production and distribution. There is no lack of dolls, "soft" animal pets, and the like, while certain generic types of puzzle appear in quasi-novel forms suggested by current problems of defence and objective. Small stocks are to be seen here and there of French mechanical toys, but the English product is scarce, and it would seem that Birmingham (the center of this industry here) does not look for a new outlet in that direction. Some of the more ambitious boxes of lead soldiers are admirably modelled, and present the details of modern equipment with fidelity. There are good models of anti-aircraft guns operated by barrel springs, besides a few hydroplanes and other flying types of a practical construction; and bomb cases converted into inkstands, match-holders and the like are also available.

PARLIAMENTARY HOURS.

There seems to be some reason to believe that Parliament will consider changing its hours from three to eleven, as at present, to ten or eleven in the morning to five in the afternoon. According to one statement, arrangements are already being made to keep Christian hours during the air-raid season—that is, whenever there are moonlight nights. Of course all arrangements depend on the decisions of the House of Parliament themselves, but I think it is very probable that the change of hours is really being considered.

Don't Forget Your Boy Who is Fighting for You.

You are in perplexing circumstances when you want to know what to send him. We will try and help you out. We will try something to break the strain always on his nerves. We want to be taken away from his surroundings for a time, even if it is only his mind.

WE SUGGEST A BOOK.

You think, Oh what a Book? When he is finished with it it will be no good to him. But you send him cigarettes and cigars which give only about five minutes enjoyment to him. He has read it, lingers in his memory. And even after he has finished it it can be passed from one to another in the trenches.

We have the largest collection of Books.

We will save you the trouble sending it.

Write your letter at home or at our store.

We will supply writing materials and a place for you to write in quietness.

We will mail it for you.

We will try and help you in your selection. Call on
