Business Opportunity in the City of Sydney, N.S.

The waterfront of the city is the only desirable location for any business connected with the fishing industry. Admitted. A firm now wanting cold storage space wishes to locate in Sydney and is ready to go ahead and do business providing a fish dealer, wholesale commissioner or any other business man will jointly unite with the firm. The firm alluded to as wanting cold storage space will use but the basement of a proposed building and first and second floor tenants are desired. The cold storage plant could be used by the public and more than one tenant.

The proposition will work the other way as well, that is to say: The firm will take a long term lease providing the other firm interested will erect a suitable building. The property has 65 ft. frontage on the Esplanade, and includes a water lot.

The city of Sydney is unquestionably one of the very best markets in Canada for fish of all kinds, and a firm or branch establishing there will certainly get all the business they are equipped to handle.

I am prepared to arrange and finance any desirable proposition presented. Apply

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using the well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) from any druggist, pour it into a 16-oz bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

For Her Sake;
—OR—
The Murder in Furness Wood.

CHAPTER XLII.

But no color came to the pale face, no light to the eyes dim with weeping.

"I do not believe I can rise," said Diana. "I am so tired."

Susanne had her remedies at hand, in the shape of a cup of fragrant tea, and some scented water to bathe her mistress' face; and after a few moments Diana was able to proceed with her toilet.

This was the day of her supreme revenge. She had taken Evadne's lover; she had sent away Sir Lisle; she had carried out her resolution; she had avenged her own wrongs. The Scar-sdales had come to Furness, had taken possession of it; they had usurped her place, had treated her with insolent contempt, lessened her father's love for her, sneered at her, laughed at her, and then coolly ordained that she should marry their kinsman and endow him with her fortune for the glory of their house. They had been so sure of triumph; Lady Cameron had even been amused at the idea that she would bear a name she was well known to hate. The tables were turned now; but Diana, in the hour of her triumph, was wretched.

Presently Thea came in; then the bridesmaids, one after another; and lastly Lady Cameron made her appearance. Diana could hear the noise of the carriages, the sound of voices; the house resounded with laughter and merriment.

The marriage was to be celebrated at the old church at Edenwood at eleven. Had the country were invited to it, and to the wedding-breakfast afterward. Such a wedding had not been seen in that locality before. The old town of Edenwood was greatly excited; the streets were lined with people, and triumphal arches spanned the roads. The old church was decorated with a profusion of flowers, and nature herself had donned her brightest garb. Diana shuddered when the wedding-dress was brought in to her. The bridesmaids were there—Thea among them—and two or three lady-maids. When the dress and the veil were spread out for the admiration of all present, she gave a longing, hopeless look round. Would nothing happen to save her? And why, through all the confusion of her brain, should she hear so plainly the words of "Young Lochinvar"? Ah, if Sir Lisle, like young Lochinvar, would but break in and carry her away!

There was a knock at the door, and a pause. Then a superb bouquet of orange-blossoms, white roses, and lilies was carried to the bride—"from Lord Clanronald." And with these flowers, so rich and rare that the whole room was perfumed by them, came a costly bouquet-holder made of purest silver set with pearls. What a bridegroom! What a happy, much-to-be-envied bride. The bridesmaids gathered round the bouquet and pronounced it a floral gem.

Would nothing happen to save her? They had now thrown the bridal veil over her; the orange-blossoms were fastened on her fair head; she held the bouquet in her hands. Diana, in her bridal robes, appeared unconscious of anything that passed around her, until the bridesmaids kissed her. As Thea did so, she whispered, "Poor Diana!"

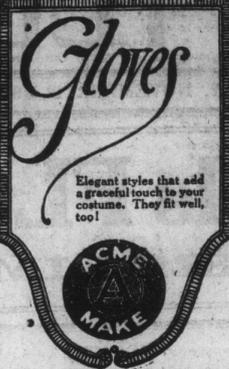

It was the sound of those words that nerved her, that once more roused the spirit of pride almost dead within her. "Poor Diana!" She had won a victory over those Scar-sdales; they should not now, in her hour of triumph, say anything in her to pity.

As she passed through the great hall, a vision of radiant loveliness leaning on her father's arm, some smiled, some wept, some blessed her, some prayed for her.

There were two in the company who were stern and silent—Sir Royal and Richard. The bride swept on, and, as she passed him, Sir Royal saw that she wore none of the superb jewels presented to her that day—nothing but the diamond heart he had given her; and his eyes filled with tears.

The carriage was waiting; the horses, with new harness and white wedding-favors, were hardly to be restrained. The sunshine was brilliant, the birds were singing, the trees in all the beauty of their fresh green foliage—it was a lovely May-morning. Yet, as the moments chased each other with relentless rapidity and the fatal one drew near, Diana had a vague presentiment that something would intervene to save her from the fate she dreaded yet courted.

"Now, my darling!" said her father. Servants with white favors were lowering all round her. The carriage door was open; Diana stepped in, and they were soon driving through the park. The trees were laden with pink-and-white may; the tender leaves of the lime were yellow and gold; the chestnuts were in bloom; the purple lilac and the golden laburnum were in perfection; the odor of the hawthorn was wafted to her; the whole glad earth laughed in the summer sun, while the black chill of death lay in her heart. Would nothing intervene to save her? Surely horses had never traveled so quickly before! They were of the crowding of people to look at her, of a few hurried words from her father. The golden sunlight, the blue sky, the green trees, the cries of the people, were to her eyes all but indistinguishable; and then she found herself in the cool, darkened aisle.

Was it her fancy? Were the people really crying, "Miss Diana's wedding-day?" She looked at her father to ask him the question, and he was terrified at the expression in her eyes. She tried to hear, but the pealing of the organ through the church drowned all other sounds.

Then the faces of fair women, their rich dresses and glittering jewels, seemed to close round her, and Lord Clanronald was standing by her side. She saw the great stained-glass window, and she realized that she was before the altar, and that the marriage service had begun.

Nothing could happen now to rescue her. She was hemmed in by hundreds of people, she was surrounded by friends, and a voice seemed to pierce through space—a voice which said:

"Diana Cameron, wilt thou have this man to be thy wedded husband?"

There was a moment's awful pause. She tried to speak; but in that moment she believed Heaven had stricken her dumb. No sound came from the white locked lips.

The minister looked at her wonderingly, her father touched her arm, one of the bridesmaids stepped forward; and then her voice and her senses returned to her.

"Yes," she answered firmly; and the deed was done.

Diana Cameron lived no longer; Lady Clanronald stood in her place.

CHAPTER XLIII.

She stopped to think whether, if she answered "Yes," he would defer the wedding; but, if that were done, what a triumph for the Scar-sdales!

"Are you ill, my darling?" he repeated. "You look so very pale. I feel quite anxious."

"No; I am well," she answered. Then a quiver of pain passed over her face. "Papa," she said, "do you realize that, when I drive home, I shall be Lady Clanronald, and never Diana Cameron again?"

"I do realize it, my dear," he answered, "but you will always be the dearest of daughters to me. You look so ill, Dian," he added, "I am anxious about you. The church will be crowded; you will never be able to bear the heat."

"It will not affect me," she replied. There were infinite pain and longing in her eyes as she looked at her father. "Papa, let us talk for one moment as we did before your marriage—heart to heart."

"We have always been the same, dear," he said, quietly.

"Oh, no," she contradicted, with a shudder; "we have not been the same since they came—not quite the same! We have never been together and alone since then. Just for two minutes let it be old times again. Papa, I am going away from you for life—not for a few years, but for life!"

"It is the rule for children to leave their parents," he said.

"Tell me, are you sorry," she cried—"sorry that I am going, that you are about to lose me?"

"I am sorry beyond measure," said Peter Cameron; "home will have lost its greatest charm for me when you have left it."

"Will it, papa? I am sorry, yet so glad to hear you say that," and the white pained sadness of the beautiful face broke into swift sweet blushes. "Do you love me, papa, as much as you have always done?"

"Just as much, my dear," he replied—"better than all the world."

"Kiss me, papa," she said.

And Peter Cameron kissed his daughter through her bridal veil. The millionaire never forgot that drive to the end of his life, and he would not have repeated it to double his fortune.

Presently they came in sight of the town of Edenwood, where the streets were crowded with people who had come to look at the bride—the beautiful happy bride. They cried out when they saw her—a radiant vision, with an exquisite face, and eyes that haunted those she looked upon.

There was the church standing in the midst of a clump of oak trees. Diana looked almost wildly up the long crowded avenue, and again there came ringing through her brain the words of "Young Lochinvar." Would some one come galloping through the surging mass of people, and take her away? Then she was conscious of a sudden stoppage, of some confusion,

Murdered Whole Family
CUT THROAT OF WIFE AND THREE CHILDREN.

Vancouver, British Columbia, November 2.—The wife and three sons, aged 7 and 5 years and eight months, respectively, of Buta Sakata, a Japanese, living at 1201 Cedar Street, in the Japanese section of Kilsalano, were found dead in their beds with their throats cut, late this afternoon. They had been dead for some hours. Sakata is in jail, charged with the murder and is alleged by the police to have confessed to the crime to neighbors and to the officers. The police say that the alleged murderer gives every evidence of being mentally unbalanced.

Prince Now Guest of U. S. -- Elaborate Reception Ceremonial -- Press Strike in Paris -- Lipton's
"Shamrock IV" Ready for Launching.

THE PRINCE AT WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.
With a simplicity in keeping with the ideals of Democracy, the Prince of Wales was welcomed to Washington to-day and became the guest of the nation. Owing partly to the illness of President Wilson, which prevented his personal participation, the reception ceremonies on arrival of the Prince were very informal although Vice President Marshall and members of the Cabinet and high officials of the army and navy stood in a drizzling rain at the station to greet the distinguished visitor.

WELCOMING THE PRINCE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.
Elaborate welcoming ceremonies had been arranged for the arrival here at noon to-day of the Prince of Wales as the guest of the nation. The afternoon was set for receiving visitors and paying calls, that at the White House being the chief one.
Rear-Admiral Grayson, the President's personal physician, informed the State Dept. yesterday that the Prince might visit Mr. Wilson in his sick room if he desired to do so. Vice-President Marshall will give a dinner in honor of the royal guest to-night at the Belmont residence, after which an informal Congressional reception is to be held in the Congressional Library.

YUDENITCH COUNTER ATTACK-ING.

HELSINGFORS, Nov. 11.
General Yudenitch is counter attacking with an offensive against Cachka, according to a communique issued by the north-west Russian army Sunday. The attacks on the right and left flanks of Yudenitch's army, the statement says, were repulsed.

SMALL POWERS WILL BE AD-MITTED.

PARIS, Nov. 11.
Representatives of the small Powers are to be admitted to mixed tribunals appointed to judge persons guilty of offences under the common law, as provided in articles 228 and 229 of the German Peace Treaty. This was decided upon to-day by the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference which met this morning with Premier Clemenceau in the chair.

UNITED AGAINST STRIKERS.

PARIS, Nov. 11.
The principal morning papers joined forces and produced an edition this morning under the title 'Presse de Paris.' This was necessary by the strike of linotypers and typographers called last night.

NOT VERY SERIOUS.

CORK, Nov. 11.
Discontent collisions between the military and civilians culminated in serious rioting last night, when soldiers enraged in consequence of frequent attacks on them, broke through the police and came in contact with the crowds. Sticks and stones were freely used and belts were removed and forcefully swung. There were also a few revolver shots. A captain and private of troops were badly wounded.

ARMISTICE DAY.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.
The first anniversary of the signing of the armistice and ending of hostilities in the world war was observed generally to-day throughout the United States.

PLOTTING AGAINST SULTAN.

BERLIN, Nov. 11.
A plot to depose the Sultan of Turkey has been discovered, says a Constantinople despatch dated Monday, received here to-day.

ACTION OF MINERS APPROVED.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 11.
Judge Anderson, in the Federal Court at ten o'clock this morning, approved the order of the executive board of the United Mine Workers of America, calling off the strike of the bituminous coal mines.

POINCARÉ WELCOMED.

LONDON, Nov. 11.
President Poincaré, of France, the guest of Great Britain this week, was heartily welcomed by the city to-day at Guildhall where the corporation presented an address to the French Executive.

HONORING THE DEAD.

LONDON, Nov. 11.
The anniversary of Armistice Day was solemnly observed throughout the United Kingdom to-day. Two minutes of silent thought were given to the dead not only in the Kingdom but in the Colonies all over the world at 11 o'clock this morning, the hour when the armistice took effect a year ago. Most impressive scenes were witnessed everywhere as the solemn moments were observed.

SHAMROCK IV.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.
Shamrock Fourth, challenger for the American Cup at the International yacht races next year was inspected to-day by her owner, Sir Thomas Lipton at a Brooklyn shipyard where it has been in dry dock since the summer of 1914. The boat will be launched to-morrow morning and taken to winter quarters for her race with the American entry. "That's the boat that will do the trick," declared Sir Thomas Lipton as the canvas was pulled off her craft and she was exposed to public view for the first time for five years.

ALLEGATION UNSUPPORTED.

LONDON, Nov. 11.
The House of Lords Committee which has been conducting an inquiry into allegations that girls of the Women's Royal Air Force Service at the Hurst Park Camp had not always conducted themselves properly, concluded its labors to-day.
Baron Wrenbury, the Chairman announced the Committee unanimously found the allegations of immorality absolutely unsupported by any of the testimony presented.

LORDS REJECT AMENDMENT.

LONDON, Nov. 11.
The House of Lords to-day rejected the clause in the bill for the removal of sex disqualifications which would permit women to sit in the House of Lords. The clause in the form of the amendment was added to the bill by the House of Commons.

In a Nutshell.

Like the sun, the modern gas fire warms solid objects—such as the furniture of a room or its occupants —without appreciably raising the temperature of the intervening air.
At the same time the products of combustion in their passage up the chimney flue keep the atmosphere in healthy motion.
That is gas fire science and gas fire hygiene in a nutshell.

Poorness Accounted For

A clergyman who had accepted an invitation to officiate at Sunday services in a neighbouring town entrusted his new curate with the performance of his own duties. On returning home he asked his wife what she thought of the curate's sermon.
"It was the poorest one I have ever heard," she replied, promptly; "nothing in it at all."
Later in the day the clergyman met his curate, and asked him how he had got on.
"Oh, very well!" was the reply. "I didn't have time to prepare anything, so I preached one of your unused sermons."

Throwing Fire
at Soldiers.

It was generally believed that the Germans had invented a new kind of horror when they used liquid fire in the present war, but this idea is a mistake. Like most other things the Germans have scored in, liquid fire was known more than a thousand years ago. It was called Greek fire, but had several other names—wild fire, liquid fire, wet fire, and fire rain—and it was the most destructive war material used before the introduction of gunpowder. Discovered by Callinicus, a Syrian, it was first used in the siege of Constantinople, 672-678, and at Mecca, 690.

According to one historian, it looked like a dragon flying through the air, and made night light as day. This, allowing for a vivid imagination, gives its striking characteristics when poured from cauldrons, shot from copper tubes in balls of twisted flax, or expelled from catapults in phials during sieges and naval engagements.

Water made it burn more fiercely, and wherever it fell it spread a torrent of fire. So well was the secret of its production kept that its precise ingredients and admixture are still unknown, but it is certain that naphtha, sulphur, gums of resinous trees, charcoal, saltpetre, pitch, and other bitu-mens were used. "Greek fire" was also used at Charlestown, U.S.A., by the Federal troops, in 1863; so the Germans have simply copied ancient warfare.

TESTIMONIAL!

The White Clothing Mfg. Co., Ltd. Oct. 15th, 1919.
GENTLEMEN,—We received your bill and the 59 Suits O.K.
and let me congratulate you and the working people on the workmanship of the clothes.
I inspected the Suits and they were done to the "point." You can show this letter to your workmen as they deserve it. I just came from the States and I consider the style and fit wonderful, and we can assure you that as long as we receive work-rs good as these you can be assured of our trade.
Hoping you will do all of our work like this, and thanking you very much,
I am, respectfully yours,

We received the above testimonial from one of our most particular outfit merchants. We value his opinion and pass it on to our many customers.
Testimonials like the above have helped us to overcome the many difficulties essential to the starting of a new industry.
WORKMANSHIP AND VALUE

More Heat on Less Fuel.

Many thousands of users in City, Town and Country have learned from natural experience that the Caloric, the Original Patented Pipeless Furnace, heats the homes better than they were ever heated before, in all kinds of weather. Also that it saves one-third to one-half the Coke, Coal and Wood. If you want real winter comfort, if you want to turn your houses into homes, and if at the same time you want to cut your heating expenses to practically one-half, install a Caloric. The cost of installation and maintenance, in money and labor, is much less than the number of stoves required to heat the same space. Thousands of Caloric users have paid the first cost of their furnace through the saving of fuel. It can be installed as quickly in the old houses as in the new, frequently in a day, because it has but one register, and requires no pipes in floors or walls.

More than fifty thousand Calorics are giving satisfactory and economical service in all types of homes, up to eighteen rooms in size, as well as in churches, stores, factories and other buildings.

Read the following testimonial from one of our customers:—

St. John's, Newfoundland,
November 12, 1919.

Messrs. Bowring Brothers, Ltd.,
Hardware Department.

I have installed the Caloric Pipeless Furnace in my home (it is also the first Caloric in Newfoundland) and find it to give all the satisfaction claimed by its manufacturers. I would therefore recommend it to anyone that wants the most perfect system of heating by the circulation of warm, moist air through one register.

To-day's Messages.

DISORDERS IN DUBLIN.

DUBLIN, Nov. 11. During the remembrance day celebrations, Sinn Feiners parading the streets, singing soldiers songs, met a body of Trinity College students, who had been singing the National Anthem. On St. Stephen's Green the parties engaged in a free fight, lasting an hour and stones and sticks were frequently used before the combatants separated.

CENTENARIAN DEAD.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 11. Chas. Joseph Leroy, believed to have been the oldest man in Canada, died at his home in North Vancouver this morning, aged 104 years and two months. He was born at Versailles, France, and was the son of one of Napoleon's soldiers, and he himself fought with the north in the American Civil War, before settling in British Columbia.

SEELY RESIGNS.

LONDON, Nov. 11. Major Gen. John E. B. Seely has resigned as head of the Air Ministry.

ARMISTICE DAY IN GREAT BRITAIN.

LONDON, Nov. 11.

Great Britain to-day celebrated the first anniversary of the Armistice with impressive ceremonies. The foremost and most striking of these came in response to the appeal of King George to commemorate the event by a universal simultaneous suspension of activity throughout the country, and the observance of silence for two minutes at the moment corresponding with the signing of the Armistice, the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month. The orders for silence, and the standing at attention by the British Navy, were adopted also by all the American warships in British waters. The military arrangements were similar to those of the navy. In addition to a general suspension of industrial and commercial activities and the cessation of traffic by railroads and tramways, the celebration included solemn religious ceremonies in the churches of every denomination conspicuous among the churches, which celebrated, were St. Paul's Cathedral, Westminster Abbey and Westminster Catholic Cathedral. One large department store in London had a local clergyman to conduct service in its building, so that all the customers present might attend.

"Sachem's" Passengers.

The S.S. Sachem, Capt. Ritchie, arrived in port yesterday from Halifax, bringing the following passengers:—
Capt. H. A. Anderson, Mrs. H. A. Anderson, Mr. C. R. Archibald, Mrs. C. R. Archibald, Miss M. Archibald, Master J. Archibald, Mr. F. Butler, Mrs. F. Butler, Mr. G. Butler, Mrs. G. Butler, Mr. J. T. Craig, Miss J. F. Lett, Mr. H. Low, Mr. W. E. Mullaly, Dr. R. L. Murray, Mrs. M. Outerbridge, Mr. E. Peckham, Mrs. W. Snow, Miss D. Snow, Mr. W. H. L. Usher, Hon. M. G. Winter. The ship sails Friday morning for Liverpool.

Shipping Notes.

The schooner Annie Maria, Capt. Hansen, with 2920 qtls. codfish, cleared yesterday from Baird Ltd., for Oporto.
The S. S. War Witch, coal laden from North Sydney to W. B. Fraser, arrived in port yesterday.
The S. S. Inad Head, seven days out from Quebec, arrived at Browning Bros., lumber laden.
The S. S. Wainika, owned by the Dominion Iron & Steel Co., arrived to Harvey & Co.'s to-day with 2500 tons of coal from North Sydney.
The steamer Cabot is at the King's wharf landing some cable, left over after the necessary quantity had been used between Shambler's Cove and Greenspond. The cable was originally laid at Pamea, and was taken up for use elsewhere.

What He'd Forgotten.

A Canadian farmer noted for his absentmindedness went to town one day and transacted his business with the utmost precision.
He returned on his way home, however, with the firm conviction that he had forgotten something; but, try as he would, he could not remember what that something was.
As he neared his destination this conviction increased, and three times he stopped his horses and went through his pocket-book in a vain endeavour to discover what it was he had forgotten.
In due course he reached home, and was met by his daughter, who looked at him in surprise.
"Why, father," she said, "where have you left mother?"

CAN YOU BLAME
A neighbor of mine who has four children had been trying to get a maid. When I have written that sentence, I know I have already written a chapter for those whose experience interprets and enlarges it for them. She thinks it's outrageous.

She came home in a most indignant state of mind. "I think it's perfectly outrageous," she fulminated, "the way they discriminate against busy mothers. I'm sure I don't know what the world is coming to. If they had their way the race would die out. I guess. The last one said she might come if I would promise the children shouldn't ever come in the kitchen—said they bothered her and made her nervous. Too bad about her nerves I say. Of course, I wasn't going to be dictated to like that."

Now I sympathized in one way with my neighbor. If one has four children one needs help almost four times as much as the women without any children, and its exasperating (to say the least) to find that it is about four times as hard to get it. But when I looked at the thing from the houseworker's standpoint, I could see her side of it.

She is selling her strength and naturally selling it in the best market. Children do make a great deal more work and confusion in the household. (I don't know how many times I have heard this mother complain of that fact.) If the maid wishes to and can go where there are no children, why shouldn't she? As to her wanting the children kept out of the kitchen, I have heard their mother send them irritably from the room again and again when she was trying to do something, with an impatient, "Get right out of this room, children. I can't think what I'm doing with you round." They are her own children, she loves them more than anyone else could be expected to.

STRAIGHT TALKING IN WAUKEGAN.

Waukegan has adopted a unique method of letting the world know of her patriotism. Deputy Sheriffs have posted signs on street corners reading: "This is an American town. Don't criticize our President, our Allies, or our Government." "If you don't like our country, go back to your own country. If you have no country, go to hell."

THE OTHER FELLOW.—Hindenburg, Ludendorff and Bethmann-Hollweg are to be witnesses at the German investigation into the guilt of the war starters. From what they have already said, it will not be surprising if each points the accusing finger at the other and declares: "He did it."—Montreal Gazette.

Just Folks by Edgar A. Guest

LITTLE GIRL WILES.

What's a fellow going to do when his busy day is through And a dainty little miss Places on his cheek a kiss. Boldly climbs upon his knee. Fondles him caressingly And then whispers in his ear: "Near a new dress, daddy dear?"

What's a grown up man to say When soft little fingers stray O'er his eyes so he can't see All the many things which he Wants and hopes and ought to do Which are passing in review And he sees but one who pleads For the finery she needs?

Who could duty's summons hear With so sweet a charmer near? Who could count the cost and bring Tears to eyes so glistening By rejecting such a plea, Telling her it cannot be? When love wants another dress Man can only answer "Yes."

Little girl so young and wise, Well you use those glorious eyes, Well you use those dupled arms And your many tender charms! You have learned, whatever it be, How to have your way with me. And your mother sits and smiles As I fall before your wiles.

Works and Words.

(From the Spokane Spokesman.) Words, it has been wisely said, are the only things that last forever. The books in which they are embodied may be destroyed, but the soul of the word has immortal life. Wherefore cultivate words and seek out acceptable words. They are apples of gold in baskets of silver, pearls of price, wizards whose spells are mightier than those of Prospero. Some of them are battle cries, others litanies, others birds of song, others the shout of the sea. Some flash like the star, others melt like the eye of love. Some have the freshness of morning on the mountain, others the soft mellowness of the summer sunset.

The words of the man who knows their power and beauty are deeds.

Prince's Gift to Colored Lad.

Louis Groat, a London boy at present in Calgary, has written to his parents of an interesting experience he had with the Prince of Wales at the time the Prince visited the West. The Prince noticed Louis, who is a colored boy, among the crowd at one of the receptions, and, as every person who has been through Western Canada knows, there are few negroes in that district. The Prince remarked this to his aide-de-camp, and requested that the boy be brought to him. On learning this Louis was, to say the least, very much embarrassed, but after a little persuasion he went forward and shook hands with His Royal Highness, who thereupon took from one of his fingers a gold ring, and placed it on the little finger of his delighted subject. In his letter to his mother the boy states that he will never remove the ring from the finger where the prince put it, but perhaps some dusky maiden in the Forest City will persuade him to change his mind.

Tested Them on Dad.

Fresh from his dreams, the professor descended to his breakfast. "Not mushroom, surely!" he exclaimed, raising the dish-cover.

"Yes, dad," replied his botanically-inclined son. "I got them especially, early this morning. They're all for you."

The professor chuckled, and devoured them greedily. Mushrooms were his favorite dish.

"Daddy," asked his son, next morning, "did you sleep well?"

"Yes, my boy," replied his father. "No aches—no pains—no anything?"

"Of course not," replied the professor.

"Hurrah!" cried the young botanist, joyfully flinging up his cap. "I thought they were toadstools!"

The Prince's Tour.

It is perhaps most fitting that the tour of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales should culminate with his visit to President Wilson of the United States of America. The extended visit of the Prince, coming so soon after the war, has been of more than passing interest, not only to those countries visited by the Prince, but to all countries more or less, and especially to all portions of the British Empire, and his travels and reception have been eagerly watched. That he should end his present travels by visiting the American daughter of the British nation is more than an act of courtesy to the now head of that country, and is more than a careless tribute to the great republic. It is the act—whether premeditated or not—of binding more closely together these two great Anglo-Saxon families, and of imbuing each with more of each other's merits, cementing thereby not only a closer friendship but tending towards the maintenance of world peace, and in a measure emphasizing the need of a league of nations in order to ensure the progress of the higher order of the world's civilization.

From the visit of His Royal Highness to Newfoundland in the month of August past, up till now, the Prince has been viewing some of the units that make up the British Empire. The Royal visitor by his manly bearing and cheerful personality endeared himself to all with whom he came in contact, nor was the charm which he possessed diminished by the fact that, in keeping with the majority of the world's great men, he preferred moments of quietude and temporary absence of ceremonial pomp as witnessed by his landing at Topsail ere coming to St. John's. In his tour throughout Canada, the Prince showed the same traits, for we read of his purchase of a ranch in Western Canada, and of his determination to do some hunting in that country as soon as a favorable opportunity is presented.

To those who talk and rant of democracy and the death of kings, there is something unanswerable in the Prince's character and democratic ideas. A son of a king, and in the natural course of events destined to be king, his character and speeches as well as his general behaviour are such as to captivate all but the few radicals and socialists among us. Besides the good done to the Prince himself individually by the trip, in the acquisition of colonial knowledge, and possibly broader ideas, the British peoples of the North American continent have benefited generally in as far as any Royal visit tends to coalesce, more closely the different units of the Empire, and in as much as the Prince stands out as a symbol of that freedom for which our own Regiment so heroically fought. May we not express the wish that ere many months have waned we may again have a visit from our democratic Prince.

Contemporary Piety!

While, as a rule, we do not deem it necessary to either admit or deny articles appearing in the Advocate, yet on this occasion we say that the statements in the Telegram re faked messages appearing in the Duckworth Street organ, are supported by the fact that men publicly affirmed through the columns of the Telegram that articles appearing in the Advocate signed by them, were published without either their consent or knowledge. Has it taken the Advocate so long to read the Telegram that only now it has seen these statements? Re the boasting of the Advocate, may we ask if there is anything in the rumor that Coaker wired Squires saying that he would lead his quota of candidates independently of Squires? We give the rumor as we heard it. We might also ask if it is true that Coaker is even now negotiating for the allegiance of some of those whom it styles the "Tory gang," forgetting that Squires was always a professed Tory follower. As to the rest of the Advocate's vapourings, it is sufficient to say that an election whose results are governed by fear of money losses through trading concerns, cannot long remain the choice of the people.

Teachers' Small Salaries.

That Newfoundland is not the only country in which members of the teaching profession have to work under difficulties and with totally inadequate salaries the following specific instances from the Truro (N.S.) Daily News will show: "We know of young lady teachers, who are doing good work in sections not many miles from Truro, and who are getting for 42 weeks' teaching the miserable pittance of $310 or $320 (including their Government Grants) and probably paying $4.00 a week for board! "Imagine a well-to-do school section paying a teacher $250 for 42 weeks' work and then charging her $4.00 a week for board—leaving her the beggarly pittance, as far as the section is concerned, of $2 for her year's work! "This must cease or many more schools will be closed, or will be filled with these 'mamma youngsters' of whom our Sheldrake contemporary has such a horror."

Burgeo Goes Opposition.

Complete polling returns from the District of Burgeo and LaPoile were received last evening, the votes going solidly against the Government candidate. The final figures were: Small . . . . . 1428 James . . . . . 231 That the electorate of this District desired a change is obvious from the above, which is one of the biggest votes ever polled in that District, and to Mr. Small belongs the honor of having to his credit the largest individual vote ever cast for a candidate in Burgeo and LaPoile. Ten Districts have now declared for the Opposition. Three others, St. Barbe, Twillingate and Fortune Bay are yet to be heard from. The standing of the different parties to date is as under: Government . . . . . 12 Squires . . . . . 12 Coaker . . . . . 7

Crew Abandoned Schooner.

RESCUED BY STEAMER. Minister of Marine and Fisheries, J. G. Stone received this message from the S. S. Craigmere last evening: "The schooner Gigantic, of St. John's, abandoned latitude 46.20 north, longitude 56.35 west, still floating with foremast set. The Craigmere rescued the crew of six men, taking them to New York at once. Signed, Fletcher, master."

FRENCH SHIP IN PORT. — The S.S. Moretania, a French steamer, arrived in port yesterday, after a run of 23 hours from St. Pierre. She has a cargo of codfish and put in here to have repairs made to her boilers.

Political Rumors.

Yesterday there was much comment on the political situation heard on the street, and rumour was exceedingly busy ascribing various fixtures in the make-up of the new Ministry, the current one being that Mr. Squires was ready to submit his cabinet to the Governor as soon as the present Government had tendered its resignation, his slate being: Mr. Squires, Prime Minister. Mr. Warren, Minister of Justice. Mr. Halfyard, Colonial Secretary. Mr. Brownrigg, Minister of Finance. Mr. MacDonnell, Min. of Agriculture, and Messrs. Shea, Barnes, Coaker and Foots. The former, it is said, will be made Minister of Shipping, with a seat in the Upper House, while Mr. Barnes has prospects of being appointed Minister of Education. Messrs. Coaker and Foots are not Messrs. portfolios. The Public Works and Marine and Fisheries Departments will, so rumour says, be offered to Messrs. Hibbs and Jennings.

It will be at once seen, providing the arrangements are made as suggested, that the F.P.U. has but two Executive seats, viz., Messrs. Coaker and Halfyard, which is by no means fair representation, seeing that both Twillingate and St. Barbe are likely to return Coaker men, giving the latter eleven seats in the House against Squires' twelve. Numerous other rumours were afloat, as to what might happen in the event of the President of the F.P.U. demanding an equal share of Executive representation but it is patent that there are uneasy times ahead for the new leader, who will have to square all the discordant elements of his party following, ere he can straighten out the tangle into which he has gotten himself by his political affiliations.

Storm in North Not Yet Abated.

HEAVY NORTH-EASTER BLOWING GREEN BAY. A heavy North-East wind, thick snow and high seas were reported from Green Bay, N.D.B., yesterday. The S. S. Home was safely harbored at Springdale.

A message from Capt. English yesterday says that the S. S. Ethie had arrived at Humbermouth, and that she had made all ports of call as for as Battle Harbor. The ship brought back 42 men of Brigus and Hr. Grace; crews of three schooners which had been wrecked at Red Bay and Henley Hr.

Successful Opening of Convent Bazaar.

LARGE CROWD PRESENT—MANY STALLS. A large number of people was present at the opening of the three-day Bazaar of the Presentation Convent in the C.O.G. Armoury yesterday afternoon, when Rt. Rev. Mons. MacDermott, acting for the Archbishop, performed the simple ceremony. Some fourteen stalls were around the hall, which was itself very prettily decorated. The holders of the stalls were: Fancy Work — Mesdames Curtin, Shortall, Payne, Cotter, Redmond, Jameson, Kennedy, Foley and Miss Clancey. Tea and Suppers—Mesdames Higgins, Kelly and Miss Whelan. Refreshments—Mrs. W. Howlett. Candles—Misses Sinnott, Power, O'Neill and Fortune. Vegetables—Mrs. Lawlor.

For the younger folk special provision for their entertainment had been made, and so well was this carried out that they enjoyed themselves thoroughly. The children's Hospital proving great attractions. From 3 to 5 p.m. teas were served, supper being put on from 6 to 9, the ladies in charge of the tables being kept particularly busy, especially after six o'clock, when numerous patrons began to arrive. A large quantity of goods was sold, but the booths will be replenished for the continuance of the bazaar, which re-opens this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The final closing takes place to-morrow night with a grand dance for which the C.C.C. Band will provide the music.

Future of Nfld. Iron Mines.

The enormous demand for iron during the War gave a new impetus to the mining industry of the island, some of the Newfoundland iron mines, at Bell Island, are among the most remarkable in the world. There are two areas, both rich in iron ore, one of which has an annual output of 700,000 tons, and is credited with a supply which should be sufficient to last at this rate for nearly eight hundred and fifty years; while the other, is believed to contain enough ore to last for about three thousand three hundred years. Newfoundland may be regarded therefore as having an almost inexhaustible supply of iron. The mines are most conveniently situated near the coast, where ships of 7,000 tons can be loaded in the space of about six or seven hours. The iron is then sent to Nova Scotia for smelting and finishing purposes.—United Empire Magazine.

Vessel Arrives Safe.

Word was received last night that the schr. Elsie L. Corkum, owned by F. Twynham, and commanded by Capt. W. Edgecombe, had arrived safely at Bay Bulls. Much anxiety was expressed for the safety of the vessel as she had left Lisbon for here forty-one days ago. She will proceed to Catalina.

A message from Capt. English yesterday says that the S. S. Ethie had arrived at Humbermouth, and that she had made all ports of call as for as Battle Harbor. The ship brought back 42 men of Brigus and Hr. Grace; crews of three schooners which had been wrecked at Red Bay and Henley Hr.

Booze Row and Shoot Up

THE EVILS OF INTEMPERANCE. Constables Green and Burke had a hurry-up call last midnight to a residence on Lime Street, where a big row and an alleged shooting had taken place. Arriving on the scene the police found James Golding, bleeding from the mouth, whilst two men, Rodgers and Gibbons, with a woman, were in a very excited condition. The injured man was taken to Dr. Scully's Surgery, where, upon examination, it was found that the wound was not serious. The row was the outcome of a spree which was held earlier in the night. It is stated by those on the premises that Gibbons, in an encounter with Golding, used a revolver, or some other explosive weapon, as a report was distinctly heard. Search by the police failed to locate any firearms. Golding was arrested and taken to the lockup.

Improving Mitchell's Hill.

The City Council's street roller in charge of engineer Stamp, is at present engaged in making improvements to Mitchell's Hill, near Remond's Bridge. This is the first time a street roller worked on this hill, and a much needed improvement is the result. If a smaller roller with digging attachments could be procured, it would be a decided advancement in the methods of repairing our suburban roads. We understand that negotiations to procure an engine of that sort were undertaken by the Board of Works department, and we hope the matter will not be dropped.

Church Lads' Brigade.

As announced in the press Armistice night, November the eleventh is also the date of the Brigade's Birthday in London, England, some twenty eight years ago and the 41st Battalion known as the Avalon Battalion was founded here one year later and has the honor of being the first Colonial Regiment. The late Colonel Geo the founder visited this branch of the Brigade on two different occasions. The record of the Brigade has been unique. It had only three Colonels in twenty seven years namely, Sir Joseph Outerbridge, Col. R. G. Rendell, C. B. E. and the present popular Lt. Col. A. F. Goodridge, Officer Commanding. Lt. Colonel Goodridge is a veteran in Brigade work having joined some twenty years ago as Second Lieutenant and won his promotions from headquarters in England through hard work and genuine merit until the Commander in Chief at C. L. B. Headquarters honoured him by appointing him as Officer Commanding in Newfoundland succeeding Lt. Col. R. G. Rendell, C. B. E.

The Brigade continues to progress and prosper and we feel sure that Lt. Col. Goodridge will continue to uphold the Battalion traditions. Last night after the torchlight procession the lads were given a bounteous spread by the following ladies—Mesdames Tasker Cook, Vavasour, Alex Morris, Pippy, R. G. Ash, Nicholson, Hammond, Campbell, I. F. Perlin, Chaffey, Philip Knowling, Motty, E. Fletcher, Shears, R. R. Wood, W. W. Willis, H. D. Carter, James Rendell, Thos. Potties, E. M. LeMessurier, Wright, Spooner, Fred Reid, William Knowling, G. R. Williams, H. Carter, F. A. News, Samuel Feaver, J. A. Winter, and the Misses Lush, Miller, Pike, Edwards, Colton, Roberts, Ayre, Butler, Mary Rendell and Carter.

On the platform was Lieut-Col. Goodridge, Chairman, with former Colonels Sir Joseph Outerbridge and Lieut-Col. Rendell, C.B.E., on his right and left respectively. On the front of the stage were nineteen silver cups and other trophies won on the fields of sport in former years.

A tea and concert was arranged in which the following took part besides selections by the Band, Messrs. Lieut. Colley, Chairman Dicks and others. Colonel R. G. Rendell made a very happy address and expressed his great pleasure to have been able to do what he could always for the Brigade. He congratulated Colonel Goodridge on his excellent work up to date and referred to the glorious part of the 27 years' work of the Brigade Institution in Newfoundland, particularly of C.L.B. work in the war, where C.L.B.-ites have won some 530 decorations, including 17 Victoria Crosses. He was proud to think that in the 41st Battalion we had as a sergeant Newfoundland's V. C. Sergt. Ricketts. The early organization of the Royal Nfld. Regt. certainly was helped nobly by lads of our battalion. Colonel Rendell finished his address by reading a selection from a patriotic poem. A feature of the programme was the presentation of a smoker's cabinet from the W.O. and N.C.O.'s Mess to Lt. Col. Goodridge, who replied to the presentation in a neat speech.

Col. Sir J. Outerbridge made an interesting address in which he exhorted the lads to devote their spare time to fitting themselves as citizens and worthy members of the Empire, which is no longer a collection of dependencies but one great united family. He was proud of the work of the C.L.B. in peace and in war, and said some of the finest British troops were men of the Brigade who entered the great conflict not only with military training but with the character and high ideals which counted so largely in achieving the victory. Referring to his late trip to England, he said one of the sights which impressed him most while there was that of a C.L.B. review of some 2500 men, one company of which was made up of ex-members of the local organization attached to the First Nfld. Regt. He felt sure the example of these would be emulated by his hearers, and in conclusion wished the Brigade every future success.

A flash light photograph of the lads sitting at the tea tables was taken by the Holloway Studio Ltd., which will make an interesting souvenir of armistice night and the 27th birthday of the battalion in Newfoundland. The thanks of all ranks are due to the 30 kind ladies who provided tea as well as to the firm of G. Knowling Ltd., and R. G. Winter, Esq., a former officer, for a generous supply of two barrels of apples for the lads.

Princely Diplomacy.

Prince Albert, who is acknowledged to be the most outspoken member of the royal family, can be as diplomatic as anyone when he chooses. At the Buckingham Palace garden party he was being teased by a charming guest to say what he thought of the "dobe." "All debutantes are pretty," he replied, "but some are even prettier."

Methodist National Campaign

A banquet was held in Gower Street Church basement last evening which was attended by the committee of one hundred having in charge the Methodist National Campaign. There are five divisions in this committee, men, young men, women, young women and older boys. One hundred persons sat down to the table. Twelve Boy Scouts acted as waiters. After the feast the chairman, H. R. K. Bishop, introduced the speaker, Rev. Dr. Fenwick, who spoke on the general aims of the great campaign. He was followed by Mr. Reuben Horwood, who brought greetings from George St. Church and described some of the benefits that had resulted from similar campaigns in that congregation. Messrs. of the Church, Rev. E. Forbes, outlined the value of the work to the congregation. It is volunteer work, a demonstration of selfless service. It is social work. There is value in getting acquainted. It is informing work. The result would be a knowledge of the constituency of the church, which would be of great value in planning the work of the church. Knowledge is power. It was seeking work. The church is interested in them. There is co-operative work, and organized effort. The organizer of the church, Mr. Albert Soper, then made a demonstration of the method of filling in a census card, and gave out of needed information to the workers. Cards were then distributed and assignments made to the canvasser, and the meeting brought to a close with the Doxology and Benediction. The workers go to call on each family in connection with the church during the next days, and bring back the reports of the work done. Banners will be awarded to the division and making the best report. Next Sunday is Every Member Present Sunday.

Towed to Port.

The S.S. Lake Elenora, assisted by the tugs Ingraham and John Green, successfully towed the steamship Avondale to port yesterday afternoon. The Avondale has a loss of oil, and was bound from Philadelphia to England, and was about 700 miles north of the Azores when trouble occurred in the engine room. The steamer drifted about for several days while attempts were being made to repair her machinery. Meeting with an American repair ship the trouble was patched up and the ships proceeded toward their destination. It was not long, however, before trouble again befell the Avondale and from calls sent out she was picked up by the S.S. Lake Elenora which was on her way to England. Both ships are owned by the United States Shipping Board.

Hydro Aeroplane Line, Newfoundland—Greenland—Iceland.

Oberleut Goring, the well-known "jagd" pilot and late chief of the Jagdgeschwader von Richthofen, represented German aviation at the Copenhagen flying week and exhibition. On May 8th he left Schwerin on a Fokker D. VII with a 185 h.p. Bayer motor, and arrived at Copenhagen (250 km.) in the record time of 1 1/4 hour. According to "Der Motor Wagon" of June 20th, this record and his various exhibition flights made a good impression on the Copenhagen public. The German Aviation Industry can point out with pride the admiration and interest shown for German aerial technique and German aerial industry in the first foreign competition in which it enters. In a report from Copenhagen dated July 17th, Reuter states that the Danish Minister of Justice has issued an order provisionally forbidding flying with passengers, and stipulating that foreign aviators desiring to fly to Denmark must obtain official permission. A regular air service is intended to be started between Reykjavik, the capital of Iceland, and the eastern ports of the United States. Two hydro-aeroplanes have already been obtained and will be tested in a flight round Iceland. The route will be from Reykjavik to the southern tip of Greenland, where a station will be established; from thence to Newfoundland, and then on to the United States. The distances of the first and the second stages are roughly 600 nautical miles.—Canadian Motor Boat.

OWNERS NOT YET LOCATED.
Detectives Head Constable Byrne and Sergeant O'Neill made an interesting discovery a couple of days ago, when they made a search of a certain part of the West End and located a couple of kegs of whiskey which were concealed in some bushes. They had been paying their respects to some alleged smuggling and the fruit was the aforementioned moisture. The latter was brought into the city and put in the Station for additional safety, as the vigilant officers wished to protect the owners' property.

Candidates Thank Committee.

Last evening the West End candidates of the Liberal Reform Party for the West End district met their committee in the Botwood Hall for the purpose of thanking the members for their work in the late campaign. The meeting occupied two hours, during which Messrs Squires, Brownrigg, Campbell, and Mesney spoke. It was closed by the singing of the National Anthem.

At the Majestic.

Geraldine Farrar, who starred so in that great production, "Joan the Woman," is featured at the Majestic this evening in the picture, "The Stronger Vow." This is a story of Spanish feuds and all that goes with them. Everybody has heard and read of Spanish feuds and this is an opportunity of witnessing them from an altogether new angle. Geraldine Farrar's name carries any picture and in this one it is her acting. A Ford Educational Film, on a par with those of a similar nature already shown, will also be screened and will be sure to prove of interest to every patron. On Monday next week a very unusual picture, by name "The Cavell Case," will be put on. Picturizing the tragic story of that heroic British nurse, Edith Cavell, this picture is sure of meeting a great reception. Do not fail to see it on Monday next.

Derelict Reported.

"SABLE I" PASSES VESSEL BOTTOM UP.

The captain of the Sable Island reports that at 10.30 this morning he passed a vessel bottom up about 6 miles due South of Cape Spear. The sea was very rough at the time and the heavy boats carried by the ship could not be launched to ascertain the name of the derelict. The vessel, so the captain says, appears to be a new one about 200 tons and is painted white, two spars are floating alongside having evidently been broken off from the deck. She was down by the head and showed sixty feet of her keel, but the seas breaking over her prevented the name from being ascertained. Capt. Murley thinks the upturned hull has three masts. A boom, broken in two places, was sticking up alongside, entangled in the wreckage. No bodies or sign of life was seen.

Coal Seam Widening.

Late advice received by the Manager from the St. George's Coal Fields state that some 30 inches of coal had been cut in the Diamond Seam, at first opened at a foot and one inch in width. The indications are that, according to they continue into the solid ground, it will run into a six feet seam, as the walls on either side are exactly six feet apart and run parallel for miles. This will probably be one of the mother seams, as it will apparently underlay the whole property. Work on the Howley Seam is also progressing favorably and it is now expected that, by another month or so, the whole of this property will be ready for inspection.

The champion tennis player of Norway, Molla Bjurstedt, has married Franklin L. Mallory, a New York stock broker, and so becomes an American stepmother. They met on a train going to Palm Beach, one seeking rest, the other after the tennis championship of Florida. She came to America in 1914 and failed. Her first winter here she lived on $6 a week. Her husband is a man of wealth.

Patrick O'Connor, who is at present in South Africa, is stated to be the biggest man on earth. A veritable modern Hercules, O'Connor is almost 5 feet high, and a person 6 feet 6 inches high can walk beneath his arms when outstretched horizontally. He has a chest measurement of 55 inches and weighs 357 pounds, while the ring which adorns the index finger of the giant's right hand is so large that a half-dollar can pass easily through it.

Arnold Bennett's first literary earnings came in the form of a guinea prize for the best humorous condensation of a story in Tit-Bits. At that time he was a shorthand clerk earning 25s. a week. He began to write articles. "When I received a postal order from the first one," he says, "I saw the world opening before me like a flower." At that time however, his literary earnings amounted to about 3d. an hour. Now they are estimated at about 50 pounds an hour.

Sir Arthur Currie, commanding the Canadian Corps, who has recently been promoted and made Inspector General in Canada, is fond of telling the following story. "In the early days of the war," says Sir Arthur, "an old farmer living way back on the far Western prairies was feeling rather out of sorts, and sent his 18 year old son, George, to the nearest settlement, 10 miles distant, for a sedlitz powder. Arrived there, George promptly enlisted. He fought right through the war, was twice wounded, rose to commissioned rank, and returned recently to the farm, his breast covered with medals and decorations, including the V.C. and the French Croix de Guerre. "Well, dad?" concluded the returned hero, after briefly and modestly recounting his exploits. Then the old man replied: "George," he said, "what have you done with my sedlitz powder?"

The Bank of England In Danger.

There are no fewer than seven distinct occasions on which the Bank of England has come very near to falling, but perhaps the most critical period in its history followed the scare which was raised by the expectation of a French invasion in 1797. Parliament found it necessary to sanction the suspension of cash payments until six months after the signatures of a treaty of peace. These were not resumed until 1823, and in the meantime notes fell to a discount, varying between ten and twenty-five per cent. In 1825, during the great panic which brought down 770 banks, a run on the Bank of England began, but, fortunately, there was just sufficient gold in hand to meet it.

Since 1844, when the Bank Act was passed with the intention of making the recurrence of these financial difficulties an impossibility, the Bank has been hard pressed three times—in 1847, during the panic which followed the railway mania in 1857, during another panic which was brought about by failures on the other side of the Atlantic; and, lastly, in 1866. On each of these occasions the Bank was only saved by suspension of the Bank Act.

"That's right!" answered his son, who looked thoughtfully about the place.

"But why—why haven't you stayed on?"

"Changed my mind," came the brief reply. "And I'm not going back, either! Don't like the school."

"But, Thomas," expostulated the aggrieved parent, "it is an excellent establishment! That school has turned some of the smartest men in the country!"

"I know all about that," returned the holiday-maker, sorrowfully; "and it's turned me out, too!"

A Damaging Admission.

Many a true word is still spoken in jest, and every little while, a witness for the defense makes a damaging admission unwittingly, as happened recently in the case of the Liquor Dealers Protective Association of New Jersey. This association is reported to have voted to ask the brewers to discontinue the manufacture of "near beer," declaring it "an outrage to ask people to drink it." And there stands Hobin Hop, convicted by his erstwhile friends. If it is an outrage to ask decent people to drink this mild and less intoxicating form of liquor, what a tremendously greater outrage must be to sell the stronger stuff that formerly provided the inmates for jails, prisons, and almshouses, and that the liquor interests still seek a legal opportunity of selling!—Christian Science Monitor.

Where Prohibition Hits.

From an official of one of our large savings banks I have this significant statement:

"The gain in our deposits since July 1st is the largest in the bank's history. This is the more curious, since there has been a large decrease in deposits due to the withdrawal of funds to purchase Liberty bonds."

"This banker would not say whether the "dry" law that went into effect on July 1st was the cause of this great gain in deposits. Rather he said he did not know, but of the fact there is no doubt."

We have now, as Mayor Smith said in a speech the other evening, a savings bank deposit for every fourth man, woman and child in Philadelphia. But if prohibition swells savings bank deposits, it will as surely diminish after-dinner oratory.

In the first place, so-called public dinners will become less frequent when the diners must dine dry.

And at the dinners where the diners dine dry they will the more readily note oratory heard at these affairs, extra-dry.

As one bon-vivant puts it:—"Half the point in an after-dinner anecdote is in the wine which makes you tolerant of the fact that you have heard it before."—"Girard's Talk of the Day" in the Philadelphia Press.

A New Kind of Unionism.
The conviction that in union there strength has seldom been put in practice by the joint action of persons or companies each seeking to sell the same commodity to the same buyers; but the motor truck companies have apparently seen a great light and joined forces to educate the American farmer in the agricultural uses of motor trucks. Eighteen trucks, each of a different make, are touring rural America, and showing the farmers how the lumbering but lively motor truck adapts itself to work on the farm. The object lesson, of course, is designed to show the desirability of motor trucks in general, and it then remains for the individual companies to persuade the farmer of the supreme desirability of this, that, or the other truck in particular. It is fairly evident that the manufacturers of motor trucks confidently believe that there is business enough for everybody.—Exchange.

Still Collars in Vogue Again.
For a time it appeared that the soft collar and cuff would completely displace stiff linens for every-day use. When first they came on the market almost every person gave them a trial and liked them well enough to purchase a supply. Doubtless to many they will always be preferable, but for some reason during the past two seasons there has been a drift back to the old style, until to-day we find an official announcement that stiff collars are in vogue once more. In the September number of the Laundryman's Guide we read the following:
"Haberdashers the country over are asking the question these days, 'Do you feel dressed up in a soft collar?' They are making the inquiry because the stiff collar has come into vogue again."
Once upon a time it was the only collar that was in style. Then French cuffs and soft collars came in and masculine America abandoned stiff linens for every-day use and reserved them for affairs of state.
In their present convolutions, collar producers and clothiers restored the stiff collar and the stiff cuff to the good graces of Dame Fashion.
They will be "proper" and very much in vogue this season.
The old reliable held its own against the terrific onslaught of a more comfortable competitor. The soft collar and cuff will always find a welcome, but it is now no longer a question about the stiff collar and cuff being permanent pieces in the haberdashery of Americans.—Charleston American.

U. S. And Armenia.
Despite the tradition of the novelists, the gallant rescuer is not always obliged to marry the maiden in distress. Because Uncle Sam has saved the remnant of Armenia from starvation it is not at all necessary that he should become politically wedded to the young Armenian nation. "for better or for worse."
There is a deal of sentimental agitation to the contrary. Well meaning but uninformed persons are insisting that because they suffered at the hands of the Turks the Armenians are therefore a perfect people, and that every political claim they may advance is entirely warranted, and that since they desire bountiful America as mandatory over their new nation, yet to be constituted, therefore it is America's duty to acquiesce without questions or conditions.
In the interest of clear thinking the distinction between the two causes should be pointed out, especially to those altruistic men and women who are directing the campaign for the raising of funds for the succor of Armenian sufferers. Relief work, especially of an emergency nature, has a clear claim upon America's interest and generosity, a claim she has been nobly quick to recognize. While it is both impracticable and unwise that this country should indefinitely continue to seek to alleviate all the suffering and poverty of the human race, yet in special need our hand will be instantly and powerfully stretched forth.—New York Herald.

will have not only a brilliant rising, but that, in the course of his whole career, he will spread around him a lustre at once comforting and beneficent. Mr. Drury has a magnificent opportunity to show that he is a great Canadian and do for the union of the great races what none of his predecessors were able to accomplish. Owing absolutely nothing to the lodges, and bound by no electoral promises, he will enjoy the most complete independence, and may have the clearest vision of the question of bilingual education. Abolish Firearms.
There is legislation before Parliament designed for the purpose of preventing people carrying firearms. The object is to make it unlawful for any persons having concealed weapons about their person unless permitted to do so by law. It is a prudent piece of legislation. There should be no need in this country for people going about with concealed firearms. The numerous police court cases and the all too frequent murders are proof enough of the folly and danger of permitting the promiscuous use of firearms. If people must fight and beat each other up they should do so by their fists alone and without the use of guns. We do not want or need any professional thugs in this country. The legislation should make it necessary for all needing the use of firearms to take out a license. If this were done there would not be so much crime, the result of hot headiness, etc. The avenues should be closed to many people too anxious to carry firearms for no useful purpose.—From the Brockville Recorder.

ENGLISH.
"Police Science."
Germany is suffering just now from a crime wave among other things. So bad have things become that operators who have paid a hundred marks each for their tickets are adding for a deposit on the nickelled knives and forks they use in eating their sandwiches before they are handed to them over the buffet, and in a Czechoslovakian village the fire engine house of wood was stolen for fuel. Only last week an attempt was made to steal an express train, and I am told that it would have succeeded had not the driver lost his nerve at the last moment. With commendable foresight the German Government has decided to provide a University training for the detective branches of the police, and Chairs of "Police Science" have been established at Leipzig and Frankfurt. At Frankfurt Dr. Popp, a noted analytical on "Sherlock Holmes" lines, has been appointed to the chair. His previous services to the German Criminal Courts should stand him in good stead in training the budding "Hawkshaws" of Germany.—From the Westminster Gazette.

Sealing Water in Fleet Street.
The Corporation of London had to watch very carefully over the protection of the conduits, in the days of old, and inflicted severe punishments on anyone who interfered with the flow of water through them. A curious instance of this is contained in the City Corporation's Records (Index No. 1, 1840), from which it appeared that, on the 15th of November 1478, one, William Campion, resident in Fleet Street, had cunningly tapped the conduit where it passed his door, and conveyed the water into a well in his own house. "Therefore occasioning a lack of water to the inhabitants." Campion was immediately had up before the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, and after being confined for a time in the Compton in Bread Street, further punishment was inflicted upon him. He was set upon a horse with a vessel like unto a conduit placed upon his head, which being filled with water running out of small pipes from the same vessel, he was taken round all the conduits of the city, and the Lord Mayor's proclamation of his offence and the reason for his punishment was there read. When the conduit had run itself empty over the culprit, it was filled again. The places at which the proclamation was read were the following:—At Leadenhall, at the pillory in Cornhill, at the great conduit at Chiepo, at the little conduit in the same street, at Ludgate and Fleet Bridge, at the Standard in Fleet Street, at Temple Bar, and at St. Dunstan's Church in Fleet Street, from whence he was finally marched back to the Compton, there to abide the will of the Lord Mayor and Aldermen.

THERE IS ONLY ONE GENUINE ASPIRIN
Only Tablets with "Bayer Cross" are Aspirin—No others!

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the tablets, refuse them—they are not Aspirin at all.
Your druggist gladly will give you the genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" because genuine Aspirin now is made by Americans and owned by an American Company.
There is not a cent's worth of German interest in Aspirin, all rights being purchased from the U. S. Government.
During the war, said imitations were sold as Aspirin in pill boxes and various other containers. But now you can get genuine Aspirin, plainly stamped with the safety "Bayer Cross." Aspirin proved safe by millions for Headache, Toothache, Earache, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Colds, Neuritis, and Pain generally.
Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger "Bayer" packages.

Lining Bottles of Ink.
Along the coast of New England there is a common species of sea snail that is a living bottle of indelible ink. It is a crimson ink, very beautiful and quite as durable, when applied to light-colored surfaces, as any that one can buy.
The mollusk in question is found clinging to rocks just below the level of low tide, and the ink is contained in a whitish vein beneath the skin of its back. The fluid is at first yellow in color, but when a garment marked with it is exposed to the sun, it turns green, then blue, then purple and finally to a brilliant unchangeable crimson.
There is one of the two species of whelks from which in ancient times was obtained the famous "Tyrian purple"—a dye considered too splendid for the adornment of any but kings and nobles. Indeed, it was so costly that none but the very rich could afford it, wool dyed with it being worth $175 a pound.
The liquor was procured by crushing the snails in a mortar. Six pounds of it were required to stain a pound of wool, the ready-woven fabric being soaked in it and afterward exposed to sunlight. Stuffs thus dyed are said to have had a remarkable color effect, presenting changing hues to the eye, like modern "variable" silks.
The chemistry of to-day, however, is able to produce Tyrian purple in the laboratory, as one merely of a list of coal tar derivatives that come under the general had of "aniline" dyes.

A Poser for Mamma.
She was not what you would call an interfering kind of mother, nor was she unduly inquisitive. But young Woodcombe had called so often of late, and when he called he had shown so little inclination to depart, that she thought it her duty to speak.
"Mildred," she said to her daughter one morning, "you were a long time in the summer-house with Mr. Woodcombe last night. What were you talking about all the time?"
"Mother dear," answered her daughter, "did you ever sit in a summer-house with father before you were married?"
"Er—well, perhaps I did—sometimes. But what—"
She paused, and Mildred mournfully shook her head.
"Well, mother mine," she answered, "don't forget it's still the same old world!"

Secret Societies of the Underworld.

DESPERATE RUFFIANS WHO ARE BOUND TOGETHER AND MUTUALLY PROTECTED BY VOWS, SIGNS, TOKENS, AND PASS-WORDS.

It was a noteworthy saying of the late M. Bertillon, one of the most famous and efficient of Paris detectives, that the continuance of crime was made possible only by the systematic combination of the lawbreakers.

The apache, much more formidable than our London hooligan or Birmingham peaky blinder, invariably works in gangs, and with a distinguishing name, special methods, and deathly vendetta against traitors. One man particularly active in forming these criminal combinations, a person named Excelsior, was known as the Prince of Receivers, but so well laid were his plans that it was only after a particularly atrocious murder, and by finger-print identification, that he was brought to justice and the guillotine.

Even to-day the underworld of Paris is honey-combed with societies whose representatives are "out" to commit any and every outrage.

The Vanished Mafia.

You have heard of the Mafia—the association of the Black Hand—and know a good deal of its sinister activities. This was at one time the most dreaded secret society in the world.

From its centre in Southern Europe, its radiations, like the threads of a potential spider's web, encircled the globe, then suddenly disappeared; mutilated bodies were discovered in the byways of big cities, prosperous citizens were blackmailed till, in despair, they ended their lives. The catalogue of crimes engineered under the auspices of this society was, indeed, so long and so terrible that special police, armed with exceptional authority, were "told off" to trace the mischief to its source.

Their task was one of extreme danger and difficulty. The creatures of the Black Hand were well served. Like Pryor or Moriarty—the arch-criminal with whom Sherlock Holmes performed on one traveller, who gives the following account of the ritual: "My left arm and left breast were bared, and by means of a primitive, but quite effective syringe, drops of blood from one of the brethren were injected. I was then given some weird and fantastic signs or sounds, by which I could always be recognized as a member of the order."

Like a Thrilling Film.

No vows are more consistently kept than these. Members have died to serve a brother in distress, while the Black Brotherhood has led to tribal wars and battles in which the inhabitants of whole villages were wiped out.

Immediately before the outbreak of war, the police of the extreme west of the United States were kept in constant activity by organized bands—all the members of which were bound by solemn obligations—who carried on such interesting pastimes as "holding up" trains, highway robbery, and organized raids on banks. They were armed to the teeth, and as untamable as a lot of desperadoes as ever collected in the real wild west.

"Hobos" (tramps) also had a habit of collecting themselves in groups. They invented strange calls and peculiar whistles, which were readily recognized among the initiated. These were always ready with the knife and revolver, and terrorized the districts they infested.

London Has Its Share.

The intrigues of aliens in our own country were manifested by the formation of secret Anarchist bodies, which had as their avowed purpose the utter destruction of all semblance of law and order. Their headquarters were chiefly in Soho, though some met, and wickedly schemed, in the East End of London. One of these gangs actually planned a score of bomb outrages during the visit of a crowned head to England. In the conclave, however, was one of the cleverest men of the special branch of Scotland Yard, and on the occasion of the royal tour all the conspirators were placed safely behind bolts and bars.

More amazing, however, if less alarming in their programme, are the secret societies formed by bands of young hooligans which have sprung up in many quarters of the Metropolis. They assume such distinctive titles as "The Weesels" and "The Whilks." The Weesels had an elaborate ritual, with definite rules, and a system of penalties well calculated to strike fear into the hearts of the weak-kneed and faltering of the young rascals.

They worked methodically, mapping out the districts, and noting victims—generally homeless tradespeople—for periodic raids. And so greatly were they dreaded that many shopkeepers submitted to blackmail rather than run the risk of a raid. "The Weesels" were ultimately broken up, but there are other bands still in existence. The police know of them only too well, but their plans are so cleverly arranged that they avoid capture; while if a single member is arrested, he seldom gives his pals away.—Answers.

He Didn't Want It.

A certain gentleman owns a row of houses, and in one of them lives a married son of his who is, noted for his miserly habits.

This has got to such a pitch that for several years his father has not only been unable to get a single penny of the rent due to him, but has had to pay the rates and taxes.

As he did not want to take harsh measures he at last went to his son, and said:

"Look here, Tom; it's no use me trying to get any rent out of you for that house of mine, so I've decided to give it to you."

"No fear," interposed the son. "I shan't have it."

"Why not, pray?" exclaimed the astonished parent.

"Because then," replied the unabashed son, "I'd have to pay the rates and taxes; and goodness knows they're heavy enough in these parts!"

Capt. McDonald Dreaded to Go Out on His Run

Was So Run-Down He Was About to Give Up His Job—Feels Fine, Now.

Most everybody who travels over the Canadian National Railroad—between Dartmouth and Windsor Junction—knows Captain Ronald McDonald, who has been running as passenger conductor between these two points now for the past several years.

It is, indeed, doubtful if there is a more widely known or popular railroad man in all Canada than Captain McDonald, or "Curly," as he is familiarly known to his many friends, for he has been with the Canadian National in his present capacity for the past thirty years, and twenty-five years on the main line—and his uniform courtesy to the travelling public have for him the friendship of and esteem of all who travel him. Captain McDonald makes his home at Truro, but his headquarters are at Dartmouth.

Captain McDonald has suffered much annoyance during the past three years from stomach trouble and a general run-down condition, and a few weeks ago he decided to try the new medicine, Tanlac. The first bottle helped him so much that he obtained another, then another and so on. But let Captain McDonald tell his own story in his own words. Here is his statement:

"Tanlac has put me in shape to where I am just like a brand-new man. In fact, I am now feeling just about as well as when I first got my run, thirty years ago. But just before I began taking this medicine I told my wife that unless there was improvement in my condition pretty soon I would just have to give up my job as I was almost played out."

"I have been suffering from indigestion for three years. My appetite was very poor and what little I did force down would sour almost as soon as I had eaten it. I would blast all up with gas, turn almost deathly sick and there was the worst kind of pain in the pit of my stomach nearly all the time. It was almost useless for me to go to the breakfast table for I would invariably vomit up everything I would eat. Even toast and the very lightest of things disagreed with me. I suffered constantly from heartburn and the gas on my stomach would crowd my heart so at night that I would simply have to get out of bed and walk the floor to get my breath. I seemed to get no nourishment from what I ate, as I lost weight and strength continually. I finally got to where I actually dreaded to eat, for when I did I would suffer from it for hours. I also had a nagging cough, said to be due to the bad condition of my stomach, and I not only felt miserable, but was getting worse all the time. I would wake up in the mornings feeling 'all in,' hated to get up and dreaded to go out on my run."

"I had about made up my mind to give up the job and go West for a change of climate, as nothing in the way of medicines did me any good. But there was something about the Tanlac testimonials that caught my eye. The statements seemed so sincere that they appealed to me, and made me want to test the medicine out in my case. I am now on my fifth bottle and the results have been nothing but astonishing. My appetite was never better, and I can eat three rousing meals a day and all the gas and pain and every sign of indigestion has disappeared. As a person feeling like they have been made new I do. I have recommended Tanlac to many of the boys on the road and I am only too glad to give this statement for what it may be worth to other men who are trying to find relief."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative.—Advt.

Deepest Lake in World.

Lake Baikal is the great lake of Russia in more than one sense. It is the deepest in the world, one of the largest, and besides it is, to the Russians, holy. The people who inhabit the region of Lake Baikal firmly believe that both the lake and its surroundings are endowed with supernatural powers and inhabited by unearthly beings. All manner of weird tales mingle with their explanation of any feature of the lake.

Even so simple an object as a great rock lying in the middle of a river just where it flows from Lake Baikal takes on a mysterious significance. If this stone were to slip from place, they say, the whole of Lake Baikal would pour out of its basin and flood the river and probably the continent.

Yet, even without native interpretation, many things are strange about the great Russian lake. One of Baikal's phenomena is a species of fish that inhabits the deepest part. These fish have been seen by few persons, for as soon as they are lifted out of their accustomed atmosphere of high pressure they explode.

Lake Baikal has played an important part in Russian affairs. It lies directly in the way across the continent, and before the railway was built around the southern end of the lake it had to be crossed by Siberian travellers going either east or west.

In summer steamers carried freight and passengers, but in winter, when the lake was ice-bound, traffic depended on the slow work of an ice-breaker—a steel ship that could cut ice four feet thick—and when the ice became too thick for the breaker, sledges made the forty-mile trip over the ice.

During the Russo-Japanese War, when troops had to be rushed from one end of the empire to the other, Lake Baikal was a great obstacle to speed until engineers laid tracks across the ice sheet and ran trains across it.

The Teacher and His Salary.

There is a wide gulf in these days between the high ideals that the public set for the profession of the school teacher and the actual value that they place upon those ideals as measured by teachers' salaries. In a time when the whole of the industrial class is moving toward by leaps and bounds in the matter of increased reward for its labor, the teachers, in common with one or two other professions, notably the ministry, have gained so little that they have become a by-word for meagre income and straitened conditions of life. This is more noticeable in view of the increased emphasis which the time place upon education in all its aspects. Are the salaries of teachers our estimate of the real value of the education of our children, or are we degrading these men and women out of what is their due? This is the question in a nutshell.

Through all recent times reformers have looked to education for the advancement and regeneration of society. In these days, particularly, when the whole structure of society seems to be shaken at its foundations, the prophets of our times are calling for a spread of knowledge and a training of mind that will counteract those tendencies that lead to degeneracy. Moreover, there is an insistent call everywhere that the training of the children who are to be the citizens of the future shall be left to chance nor entrusted to unskilled hands, but shall be the work of specialists, well trained in mind, healthy in body and as healthy as well in their outlook upon the world. And to those who seem to meet the necessary requirements in those respects we pay a wage that is less in many cases than the common laborer on the street will receive for his eight hours of work. This situation is not peculiar to our country nor to Canada. It is quite marked in the United States and Great Britain. It is resulting—already resulted in fact—in making the profession one largely occupied by women. The men with gifts of teaching have discovered that there are other professions that make less drain upon the physical strength, that are quite as satisfying and from which the returns are double or triple that paid to teachers. Not that alone, but men in recent years have undergone a great deal of training for the profession are going it for business. This is a serious thing for the training of youth of the country, but the more if they refuse to remain in economic bondage imposed by their citizens. This is the lament of the part of it that it is not the Ag

The Teacher and His Salary.

There is a wide gulf in these days between the high ideals that the public set for the profession of the school teacher and the actual value that they place upon those ideals as measured by teachers' salaries. In a time when the whole of the industrial class is moving forward by leaps and bounds in the matter of increased reward for its labor, the teachers, in common with one or two other professions, notably the ministry, have been so little that they have become a by-word for meagre income and straitened conditions of life. This is more noticeable in view of the increased emphasis which the state places upon education in all its various aspects. Are the salaries paid to teachers the reflection of the actual value of the education of our children, or are we defrauding these men and women out of what is their due? This is the question in a nutshell.

Through all recent times reformers have looked to education for the advancement and regeneration of society. In these days, particularly, when the whole structure of society seems to be shaken at its foundation, the prophets of our times are crying for a spread of knowledge as a training of mind that will combat those tendencies that lead to integration. Moreover, there is insistent call everywhere for the training of the children who are to be the citizens of the future shall be left to chance nor entrusted to unskilled hands, but shall be the work of specialists, well trained, in mind, healthy in body and lively as well in their outlook upon the world. And to those who seem to meet the necessary requirements in all these respects we pay a wage which is less in many cases than the common laborer on the street will receive for his eight hours of work.

The situation is not peculiar to Ontario or to Canada. It is quite marked in the United States and Great Britain. It is, resulting, already resulted in fact—in making the profession one largely occupied by women. The men with gifts of teaching have discovered that there are other professions that make less drain upon the physical strength, that are quite as satisfying and from which the returns are double or treble, that paid to them. Not that alone, but men in recent years have undergone a change of training for the profession are doing it for business. This is a serious thing for the training of youth of the country, but there is a remedy that remains in the hands of the citizen. This is the lamentable part of it, that it is not the inertia of governments outside, but the indifference of fellow-citizens to the rights of a certain class that is responsible for this state of affairs. Is there any city, town or county in Ontario that could not remedy conditions in six months if it made up its mind to tackle the job? On the face of it, the people of Ontario must plead guilty to the charge of caring little what sort of teachers educate their children when they permit conditions to continue that are driving the best teachers to other work.

No man or woman owes it to our prosperous Canadian communities to work for starvation wages. We hear a lot in these days about strikes, lockouts, collective bargaining, etc., as correctives for industrial conditions, and corporations are often denounced as cruel and heartless in the treatment of their employees.

Could Not Sleep

Mr. Earnest Clark, Police Officer, 388 King St., Kingston, Ont., writes:
"For three years I suffered from nervousness and sleeplessness. I believe my condition was brought about by overwork. I had frequent headaches, neuralgic pains and twitching of nerves and muscles. I had indigestion, was short of breath and easily tired. I commenced a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and seven boxes of this medicine cured me of all my symptoms. I am now feeling one hundred per cent better than I was, and have to thank Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for the good health I am now enjoying."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.75, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food
Dr. Chase's Medicines at all Drugstores and Dealers. GERALD S.
DOYLE, Water St., St. John's, Sole Agent.

What is shown is that a municipality can be heartless as any corporation. For after all, the utter indifference of the public towards the reward its teachers receive would never exist in business, where ability and energy do receive their reward. The question of teachers' salaries is coming to the front to-day as never before because the members of the profession see ruin ahead of them. With wage increases for almost everybody else, with the most of living double what it was before the war and little prospect of any decrease for some time to come, the teacher finds it hard to make both ends meet and can do nothing towards providing for the future. And all the injury that has been done in the past by striking teachers to other professions and by creating intense dissatisfaction in the ranks will be yet further increased by permitting further continuance of the present conditions.—London Advertiser.

SQUARE DEALING.

You'll have customers contented if the goods in which you deal always are as represented in your advertising spiel. But if you deceive your patrons, lured by falsehoods to your store, there'll be angry men and matrons thirsting for your rich red gore. Claiming wool and selling shoddy will not get you anywhere, and excuses large and gaudy will not make the matter square. I can sell a thorn sonnet to consumers now and then, but when they want odes, doggone it, they won't come to me again. I must do the best I'm able every time I sell a song or some gem that will prod my sables with a pitchfork's rusty prong.

Such excuses as I offer, broken health or Jim H. Jams, find the scorners and the scoffers, and I cannot sell my psalms. Once you've fooled a human being, you have earned an obnoxious mark; and a hundred, that mark being, will avoid you as a shark. Let no blinking schemes enchant you, but temptation on the loe; you may sting me once, I grant you, but you cannot do it twice. And the dealer who is wiser than a wise old setting hen is the honest advertiser who would have you come again.

Gray's Inn Chapel is one of the most ancient edifices in London. It was, in 1315, assigned by the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's to the Priory of St. Bartholomew, Smithfield, and after 200 years as a chantry chapel was assigned to the ministry at Sheen. The saint dates from 1388.

Found in the Net.

QUEER HAULS FROM THE SEA.

North Sea fishermen are having anything but a happy time of it. Although the stock of fish is larger and more plentiful than it has been for thirty years past, there is much besides fish lying about on the great Dogger banks, and the amount of gear lost, in consequence, is a very serious matter.

If a trawl gets caught in a sunken wreck there is nothing for it but to cut the warp and the loss. All sorts of relics of the sea fights of the past four years are being fished up. Only the other day a trawler brought up a rusty machine-gun which proved to have belonged to one of the many private U-boats which our men sent to the bottom.

Fetched £27 10s.

The trawl net, remember, is like a purse which is dragged, for hours on end, slowly along the bottom, and which gathers not only fish—principally soles, turbot and plaice—but also a mass of every sort of rubbish that litters the floor of the sea.

"BEST MEDICINE FOR WOMEN"

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did For Ohio Woman.

Fortsmouth, Ohio.—"I suffered from irregularities, pains in my side and was weak at times. I hardly get a day to do my work, and as I had four in my family and three boarders it made it very hard for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. I took it and it has restored my health. It is certainly the best medicine for women's ailments I ever saw."

Mrs. SARA SHAW, R. No. 1, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Mrs. Shaw proved the merit of this medicine and wrote this letter in order that other suffering women may find relief as she did.

Women who are suffering as she was should not drag along from day to day without giving this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. For special advice in regard to such ailments write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its forty years' experience in all women's ailments.

country which is now the broad North Sea, and fragments are often washed up on our East Coast after storms. A year or two before the war, a Lowestoft trawler found in her net a lump of amber weighing just on two pounds—the finest piece discovered for very many years. The lucky finder sent it to London and sold it for £27 10s.

In 1906 another Lowestoft trawler, when working on the northern edge of the Dogger, got her trawl hung up in what at first her people thought must be an old anchor. There are plenty of these at the bottom of the sea. But by degrees the object was worked loose and came up.

Worth Hundreds of Pounds. It proved to be the right hand tusk of a mastodon. It was eight feet long, and so heavy that it took three men to lift it. How many million years ago its original owner lived it is impossible to say. The find was sold to a museum for seven pounds.

Bones of extinct animals are quite commonly found in trawls. Unfortunately, the fishermen generally throw them overboard as rubbish.

Trawling in the Channel, a Brixham craft brought up a queer old vase, black with age and long immersion in salt water. The skipper kept it as a curiosity, and when he returned to port, stuck it up in his room, on a shelf. Some years later a visitor who happened to notice it, offered him a sovereign for it. The offer was accepted; he took it home, had it cleaned, and found that it was solid silver, a very fine specimen of French sixteenth century work, and worth several hundred pounds.

An Ostend trawler had a most strange experience a few years ago. Working off the Belgian coast, she began to wind up her net, when her men found that she had an extraordinary heavy capture. To their astonishment they found it was another net.

The Message in the Bottle. But this feeling was nothing to their amazement when it was discovered that the net was their own old one which they had lost in a sudden storm just a year previously.

On one occasion, off the Isle of Wight, a trawler's crew got hold of a torpedo, and managed to bring it ashore. It was one that had been lost during practice, and they claimed and obtained the regular £5 reward from the Admiralty.

Another fever was more easily earned by two French fishermen of Eretret. They found in their net a bottle, carefully corked and sealed which, being opened, proved to contain a sheet of paper on which were these words: "£5 will be given to whoever brings or send me this scrap of paper." Address—Greenwich Street, New York. The bottle had been dropped overboard by a New Yorker on his way across the Atlantic.—Associated Press.

No Idle Threat.
Recently, an English Bishop, whose name is much in the public eye, wrote a magazine article which was distinctly annoying to the strange people who think that we ought to believe everything the Germans tell us, irrespective of their past record in the line of veracity. His lordship received a number of abusive letters and postcards—anonymous, of course. One was so delightful an effort that it ought not to be allowed to remain in obscurity. "Two friends and myself," it ran, "praying earnestly for your speedy decease. Do not think this an idle threat, we have been very successful in two other cases."—(London "Guardian.")
