STEWART'S Home Made Bread,

THE BREAD MY DADDY LIKES.

Daddy is evidently not one of those back number lords of creation who believes that woman's place is in the home—and only there. His taste in a wife is an up-to-date woman who will prove herself a real companion. He knows that if she is a slave to her kitchen she can't enjoy the poise or have the interest in world affairs that a little extra leisure would make possible; and so he is pleased to eat MRS. STEWART'S HOME MADE BREAD—the loaf with the home made flavor.

The smiling, well-nourished kiddie doesn't look as though suffering because mother is progressive enough to buy good bread made by a bread specialist, instead of wearing out her life in the kitchen.

Hints to Home Decorators.

The decorating of the home is a fine art, the best results can only be obtained by careful study of surroundings the following hints may be helpful:

If your room faces North use a Warm Coloured Paper such as Brown, Yellow, or Red.

For rooms which get a good deal of sunshine, paper of cooler shades such as Greys and Blues may be used.

Care should be taken to Harmonize Your Wall Papers with the Paints. Fawns and Tans usually blend nicely with natural wood finish or grained doors and wood-work.

Remember Green is Nature's Colour for a Decorative Background, and Green Papers of the softer shades usually contrast well with rugs, curtains, and pictures particularly if the latter have gilt frames.

Small Rooms may be made to look larger by the use of Striped Papers.

On low ceilings only use a narrow bordering, or perhaps better again a drop ceiling of white paper which, done up almost unnoticeably with the white ceiling, and so gives the room the appearance of more height than it really has.

It is important to buy your Papers at TEMPLETON'S who keep a Splendid Selection of the Newest Patterns at Prices which defy Competition.

CHAPTER XXXII.
WHEN THE HEART SPEAKS.

They come back to the room talking together, and Jeanne does her duty as hostess by hunting out the players. The count goes to a distant table, and is about to enter into a conversation with the members, when Jeanne drops her bouquet. It is so palpably a sign—for Jeanne is a bad conspirator—that the four watchers start and look at Clarence. But all they see for their pains is that admirably dressed youth approach the count, and lead him to a card-table.

"I'm an indifferent player, count," he says, before starting.

Now the count would rather play with an indifferent player, and seats himself, all smiles, and the companion finds herself also caught.

Jeanne looks around. If she could but get Vane to sing, her scheme would be complete. But Vane does not sing now; she has not asked him to sing since—since—

Thinking only of Hal, she goes across to Lady Lucelle.

"Will you sing that duet from 'Martha,' with Lord Ferndale, Lady Lucelle?"

Lady Lucelle looks up softly.

"Will Lord Ferndale sing?"

"If you ask him," says Jeanne, smiling.

Lady Ferndale wishes us to sing our duet. Lord Ferndale," says Lady Lucelle, looking over her shoulder with a smile.

Vane bows, and without a word leads her to a piano.

Jeanne looks after them for a moment with a sudden pang; she has sacrificed herself, sister-like, and none can tell how bitter in her ears is the sound of that soft, silky voice mingling with her husband's.

She goes across to Hal, lurking behind the curtain, and taps him with her fan.

"Well," she says, "and you have been a good boy and not gone near her, although you have been eating her with your eyes all the evening."

"I did as you told me, though I don't see the good of it," says Hal, sullenly and ungratefully, of course.

"Stupid boy! Do you think the count or that woman would have let you say more than ten words to her? And if you go out into the hall and around to the further end of the room—out of sight of the count's table—I'll bring her to you, and you can talk for a quarter of an hour. There!"

"Jeanne, you—you are a brick," whispers poor Hal.

"Hush!" says Jeanne, "don't go just yet; they are watching us."

Then she wanders from one to another, new style; sunflowers and sage-green way, arrives at the princess, who is sitting talking to Mr. Bell like an old friend; most people learn, very quickly, to regard Bell as an old friend.

"Princess," says artful Jeanne, "are you an admirer of the fashionable art-needlework? There is a banner screen in the recess; come and look at it. Mr. Bell, I know you are an authority, will you come, too?"

Artful Jeanne! The two watches, all ears, hear her ask Bell, and their suspicions are allayed.

Quite as unsuspecting, Verona arises and takes Mr. Bell's arm; arrived at the recess, Jeanne displays her banner.

"What do you think of it? They tell me it is very admirable and quite in the new style; sunflowers and sage-green birds; I never saw a sage-green bird, excepting a linnet, but—oh, here's Hal!" she says, innocently, as that young gentleman appears at a door leading from the conservatory into the recess. "Hal knows more about birds and beasts, and fishes, too, than all of us put together, I'll be bound. Hal, come and tell us what you think of my new screen."

Hal comes forward, and stares at the screen.

"Oh, confounded ugly!" he says, candidly.

"Oh, I'm shocked!" says Jeanne, laughing. "So is Mr. Bell; in fact, we won't stop to hear such heresy. Can we, Mr. Bell?" and Bell, all unconscious, finds himself led away.

The princess looks after them, and is about to follow, when Hal, still staring at the screen, says:

"Do you admire this sort of thing, princess?"

"Not much," says Verona. "I like things that are natural, and these modern antique sunflowers and green birds are not, are they?"

"Come and see," says Hal, throwing open the glass door of the conservatory. "Here are some products of nature—ferns, and fish, and the birds of the air stuffed; they were alive once, and so are natural."

The princess looks around hurriedly.

"Where has your sister gone?"

"Jeanne," says Hal, "she is close at hand. Are you afraid of me, princess?"

She looks at him with a sudden, confiding smile.

"Afraid—no!" she says, and she enters the conservatory. "How beautiful!" she adds, looking around, "and how musical is that fountain!"

"There is a seat there, let us sit down; it is too hot in that room, and the noise of the shuffle of the cards is maddening," says Hal, pushing his short curls from his forehead, and leaving the scar very plainly showing.

"It is because you are restless," says Verona, smiling up at him. "Do you know that I have not been so happy for a long time as I am tonight! Every one is so kind and—natural, free—unrestrained. And your sister, she is so kind to me!"

"Why shouldn't people be natural and kind?" says Hal, warmly. "You—you are a princess—a great lady! You ought to do as you like."

Verona looks down, and then up at him, with a smile at once sad and amused.

"I am not a great lady," she says, "and I have never done as I have liked."

"But you are going to do as you like now, aren't you?" says poor Hal, his lips quivering; "you are going to marry the count?"

"Yes," says Verona, looking away with drooped eyelids.

"And that's of your own free will?"

"Of my free will—yes," she says, almost inaudibly. "The count is an old friend of papa's, and he has associated with him in so many things. I have known him since—"

"Since you were in your cradle—I can just believe that," says Hal, between his teeth, "and he wasn't over-looking you. And when did you fall in love with him?" he asks, in his blunt fashion.

"In—love?" echoes the princess, looking around, pale and startled.

"When did the count fall in love with you first, then?" asks Hal.

"I—I do not know," says the princess, trembling.

"When you were in your cradle, perhaps," says Hal, bitterly. "And—do you think you will be happy when you have married the count?" he adds, bending forward and clasping her hands tightly, for the simple reason that if he does not he feels he must throw them around the small, graceful, yielding figure; "do you think you will be happy?"

Verona looks at him with a half-frightened glance.

"Happy?" she says; "no, I do not think—I try not to—what is the use? But why do you talk to me so?" and she looks up at him—she is standing now—with an anxious, sorrowful expression in her dark eyes. "What can I do? What can I say? I have never thought of all this—until—until lately. Do not let me speak of it."

"But," says Hal, his broad chest heaving, "I must! Princess, we look at this sort of thing in England, although too much of it goes on there, with different eyes—I am looking at the future—at your future. It is no business of mine, you might say, but it is business of mine because—because I am your friend!"

"My friend! Yes!" says poor Verona, catching at it like a drowning man at a straw. "You are my friend!"

Hal turns away, and wipes the perspiration from his forehead.

"Not," he says, "that word won't do. A friend means some one who looks on while you are in the greatest danger, while you are dying, and says: 'What a pity! I am not a friend in that sense, princess. I don't speak to you, and I know I ought not, that I have no right to do so! But how can I help it? Princess—Verona—I am the most miserable of fellows! I am obliged to stand by and see you at—at all this, and am powerless to stop it, though I know, which you don't—what it all means. Verona—and he puts one brown paw on the seat behind her, and bends over her—"I must say it or I shall go mad! I love you."

Hal bursts out with his confession so rapidly that it leaves him pale and panting.

White and panting also, Verona looks up at him; for a moment a light shines in her dark eyes, brightens all her exquisitely lovely face, and she half-turns toward him, as if he had called her, and she could not resist.

Then with a sudden thrill, she shrinks away from him.

"Princess—Verona!" says Hal, kneeling on the seat and leaning over her. "Don't—don't shrink from me! It is true I ought not to have said it, but it is true, and I couldn't help it. And I do love you—yes, I love you wretched, miserable, mad, when I think of how much divide us. I am so poor, and you are a princess, and going to marry this count—old enough to be your father. And I can see—any one can see—you are not happy. How should you be?—and how can I help speaking? And, princess—Verona, dear Verona—don't shrink away like this—I know it is wrong, and that I ought not to have said it; but how could I help it? You are so beautiful, and I love you so! Look at me—only look at me. Don't turn your head away! I'll go away at once, forever, if you say the word—I will indeed! I will never come near you again; I'll go to England—I'll go to the dev—! I mean I'll do anything, say anything, if you will only look around and forgive me!"

Hal is only a boy—knows no more of the art of eloquent speaking than a crew; but not the most soul-stirring oration could move the girl, trembling under his passionate voice, than do the blunt, honest words move Verona.

She trembles under every word, every letter vibrates with a sudden, ecstatic joy. If she were to die the next moment—she has lived, she has loved.

Pale and quivering, she turns her eyes—Italian eyes, full of yearning, wistful love—on his.

"I am so sorry—so sorry!" she says. Then she catches his hands and grasps them, feels them lovingly, lingeringly. "Oh, why did I ever see you; why did you ever speak to me, if it was all to end in this? I am sorry—sorry—sorry!"

"Hush, for Heaven's sake, hush!" says Hal, brokenly, as she covers her face with her hands, and sobs. "Don't think of it—forget it—I'm nobody. Oh, Heaven! don't cry or I shall go mad. There, I'll go—" and he moves two inches away; but her small hands stay him.

"Verona," he murmurs, "I can't un-say what I have said. It is true, I love you, I love you! But I won't persecute you, and make you unhappy. Say the word 'Go,' and I will go; and—try and forget you! I shan't do that, I know! But I will go if you send me away."

The little hands close on his strong arm.

"Or," he says, "I will stay and—save you. I can't know I can do it, for anything is possible to such love as mine. Only say—no, I will not ask you—yes, I will! Only say, 'Hal, I love you!' Say that. Never mind what happens afterward; say that. Oh, my darling say that!"

She looks around at him, and, bending like an over-weighted passion-flower, droops on his broad breast.

"I—love you!" she murmurs.

Hal catches her to him in an embrace which hurts her, and which is all the more delightful on that account and presses his lips to her hair, her eyes, her lips themselves.

"Verona! My darling! And I love you—oh, I love you with all my heart! And—don't tremble—I'll find a way to make you my own. How beautiful you are! And you love me—me, such a rough, uncultured wretch, not fit to be named in the same breath with such a delicate, pure, lovely flower as you are! Oh, my darling, my darling!—ah!"

He breaks off suddenly, for a shadow falls across them as they stand closely embraced, and the short, erect figure of the count appears among the ferns.

Hal starts upright as a dart as Verona springs away from him and sinks into a chair; upright as a dart, and quite ready to seize the count by the throat, and throttle him there and then, to pick him out on the terrace, whichever his excellency might prefer.

But the count comes forward, his yellow face wrinkled with the sweetest and most courteous of smiles.

"Ah!" he says, amiably, "I thought I should find your highness among the ferns. You, too, Mr. Bertram. You admire nature; I also am a worshiper at her shrine. Nothing charms me so much as her manifold marvels. A delightful conservatory, truly! Princess, if you are quite ready, the carriage is announced."

And with a bow which is as polished as a Chesterfield's, he takes her upon his arm, and carries her off.

Germany Must Pay.

Allies Will Insist on Reparations-- Revolution in Petrograd--U. S. Senate Favors Disarmament-- Armed Forces to be Employed Against Germany.

METHODS OF PRESSURE.

LONDON, March 2. Reuters Limited says it understands from French quarters that among the proposed penalties for Germany if she does not agree to the reparation demands are the levying of fifty per cent on sales of goods from Germany in Allied countries, the establishment of special customs, which from an economic viewpoint would separate the left bank of the Rhine from the remainder of Germany, the occupation of coal ports on the right bank of the Rhine, and as last resort the use of German customs.

AN APPROPRIATE TEXT.

BERLIN, March 2. The Zeitung Am Mittag, in its editorial today, said it had been informed that the London Conference was to be opened with religious services conducted by the Archbishop of Canterbury. The text of the Archbishop's sermon, the newspaper added, would be found in the Gospel of St. Matthew, 23rd chapter, twenty-sixth verse. The verse referred to reads as follows: "Verily I say unto thee thou shalt by no means come out thence till thou hast paid the utmost farthing."

FRANCE AND TURK NATIONALISTS TO SIGN PEACE.

LONDON, March 2. Peace will be signed probably tomorrow, but at any rate before the break between France and Turkey.

ISH NATIONALISTS, IT WAS LEARNED TONIGHT.

LONDON, March 2. Reuters Limited says it understands from French quarters that among the proposed penalties for Germany if she does not agree to the reparation demands are the levying of fifty per cent on sales of goods from Germany in Allied countries, the establishment of special customs, which from an economic viewpoint would separate the left bank of the Rhine from the remainder of Germany, the occupation of coal ports on the right bank of the Rhine, and as last resort the use of German customs.

REVOLT IN PETROGRAD.

WASHINGTON, March 2. Sailors and laborers have united in the revolt in Petrograd, which started on February twenty-four, and the city has been placed under martial law, the Finnish Legation announced, it was informed last night. Cases with casualties have occurred at many places and Vassily Ostrov is occupied by insurgents and shut off from the rest of the city. The military distributed arms, but took no part in the revolt, it was added, and the laborers in all factories have struck.

THE POLISH STRIKE.

WARSAW, March 2. A wireless message from Soviet Russia, encouraging Polish strikers in their efforts to "better their conditions," and urging them to continue the strike to the bitter end, was picked up yesterday by the Polish government. Seventeen wholesale dealers in foodstuffs were arrested yesterday in Warsaw.

BULLION STOLEN ON MAIL BOAT.

VICTORIA, B.C., March 2. When the liner, Empress of Russia, arrived in port to-day from the Orient, it was reported that twenty thousand in gold bullion had been stolen from the ship's mail. It is understood that the liner was carrying a large shipment of gold bullion on this voyage.

SENATE FOR DISARMAMENT.

WASHINGTON, March 2. By an unanimous vote the fifty-eight Senators answering the roll, the Senate to-night attached an amendment to the Naval Bill section calling upon the President to call a conference of the United States, Japan and Great Britain to consider naval disarmament.

TEXTS OF THE MANDATES.

NEW YORK, March 2. Nations which are members of the League of Nations are given exclusive rights to open door privileges in former German territory of East Africa, Togoland and Cameroons, under the terms of the Mandates for these territories now under consideration by the Supreme Council of the League at Paris. The text of Mandates which are to be taken by Great Britain, France and Belgium, were received here to-day by the League of Nations News Bureau. In a statement the Bureau says that these texts "reveal features which may cause serious controversy when the Assembly meets again, provided the Council accepts these mandates as submitted."

WILL NOT AFFECT BRITISH MANDATE.

LONDON, March 2. W. M. Ormsby Gore, recently appointed British representative of the permanent commission of the League of Nations, declared yesterday that the United States attitude on mandates would in no way affect the British mandate over Palestine.

STRIKE ENDED.

FLORENCE, March 2. The strike here ended at midnight. The communists have published a proclamation urging workers to return to work.

WORKERS AND MILITARY CLASH.

TRIESTE, March 2. Heavy fighting took place between workers and military at San Marco yesterday, in which one person was killed and a number wounded. One hundred and fifty arrests were made. The general strike continues and the city is almost in complete darkness.

SCHOOLS CLOSED BECAUSE OF PLAGUE.

BUSNOS AIRES, March 2. Schools have been closed at Cordoba, following the discovery of a number of cases of Bubonic plague.

BATUM BEING EVACUATED.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 2. Batum is being evacuated by Allied traders and bankers and by refugees who reached the city from Tiflis. Russian Bolsheviks in large numbers are invading Georgia from all directions, despatches say.

ANTI-BOLSHEVIK RISING CONFIRMED.

LONDON, March 2. Reports received in official British circles to-day confirmed the despatches telling of an anti-Bolshevik rioting in Russia. They state that the situation in Russia is serious.

GENERAL HORNE POSTED.

CHAMP CLARK DEAD.

WASHINGTON, March 2. Champ Clark, Democratic House leader, died this afternoon within two days of his retirement from the House of Representatives, after service of twenty-six years. His death was due to an attack of Pleurisy.

WILL USE FORCE.

LONDON, March 2. Premier Lloyd George consented to-day to employment of armed force against Germany in the event of her non-compliance with the Allied reparations demands to the extent of occupation of Mannheim by British, French and Belgian troops and also of Ruhr ports on the Rhine where coal is handled.

Columbus Economical.

It cost Columbus little more than $7,000 to discover America. Two of the three ships that made that wonderful voyage, the Pinta and the Nina, were captained by two brothers, Martin and Vicente Pinzon, and they paid all the expenses attached to those ships, as well as furnishing the craft, themselves. The account books of the Pinzons show that Columbus, in his capacity of commander, received 1500 pesetas a year, or about $300. The sailors received the magnificent sum of $2.50 a month, or about eight cents a day. The cannon for all three ships cost 14,000 pesetas, or about what it would cost to fire one of our modern guns, while the whole outfit and the wages of the sailors and officers came to only 36,000 pesetas. The accounts cover the time between August, 1492, to March, 1493. The queen's share is believed to have been less than $2,000, and even at the valuation placed on jewels at that period, it would not have taken many of large ones to raise this sum.

The Street Railway.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—Can you tell me for the benefit of the public, as well as myself, why the street cars are still lying in the barn and no effort is being made to clear the track? It is reported that the Company were stopped to remove the snow which is thrown off the tracks, and who, for some reason now refuse to do so. While everyone knows it is a big undertaking at present to clear the belt line, there is no reason why the Water Street track should not be cleared, as there is very little snow or ice and in many places the pavement is bare. The interruption of the car service is causing serious inconvenience to hundreds of citizens, who have always depended on it as a means of getting to and from their work. The street railway is for the convenience of the public and they certainly have every right to protest against being put to unnecessary inconvenience and expense. The Council should certainly be encouraged in their efforts to economize, but in such a case as this when the public are protesting on every side, they should spare no effort to have the matter adjusted at once. There is absolutely no reason why the service should not be resumed on Water Street at least by the end of the week.

Many thanks for space, Mr. Editor, Yours truly,

March 2, 1921. CITIZEN.

Royal Duel Prevented.

Eighty years will have passed on March 3, since a projected duel between Prince Louis Napoleon and Count Leon, a reputed natural son of the great Emperor, was prevented by the police on Wimbledon Common, when the adversaries met at 7 o'clock on the morning of March 3, 1840. The quarrel originated through the ex-kings of Spain and Westphalia refusing to receive Count Leon, who ascribed their lack of courtesy to the action of Napoleon. Just as the combatants were presenting their pistols at each other the police arrived on the scene and took both the principals and their seconds—Count D'Orsay and Colonel Parquin—as well as a servant who was present, into custody. When charged at Bow Street, Prince Louis Napoleon and Count Leon were bound over to keep the peace on their own recognizances of £500 each, and the seconds were called upon to find sureties to the extent of £200. Strange indeed, was the fate of the wonderful family of Bonaparte—the first Emperor, our bitter enemy, the third, in his youth, scolding his wild cats here, and eventually dying in exile on our shores, while the widow still resides with us: their son, heir to the Empire, fell fighting for our flag in savage Zululand.

Lighter Than Cork.

Many "corks" or bottle stoppers are now being made not of the bark of the cork tree, but of the wood of the balsa tree—a tree of exceedingly light wood which grows in South and Central America and generally springs up on land that has been denuded of hardwoods. A great growth of balsa came into being in the Canal Zone on those areas which were cleared of jungle growth to make the zone mosquito free and, therefore, malaria free. The wood of one variety of the balsa tree weighs only one-half as much as ordinary cork and is said to be in use as a safe and practical filling for life preservers. Because of its quality as a non-conductor of heat it seems to be coming into use as a lining for refrigerators. The balsa tree is a rapid grower, and some trees in favorable soil and situation have reached a height of ten feet and a diameter of four inches in a single year, and there are trees 10 years old which measure eighty feet from root to top and thirty inches through the base of the trunk. The color of the wood of the most sought-for balsa is creamy white, very much like the color of basswood, which is the timber of the linden, but the white wood of the balsa turns reddish as it ages. There is one variety of the tree called red balsa, and this is bright red when cut. It is considerably heavier than the white balsa.

AN OLD MAN'S RIGHTS.

Hey, you rough and tumble tyke, Doing everything you like, Thinking this old world's a place Just for you to romp and race, Get the notion in your head 'Fore I pack you off to bed Or begin to get severe— Old folks have some rights down here.

Listen to me, when I say Just becuz my hair is gray An' my back is bent a bit, Just becuz I'm not so fit, Now let climin' up a tree As one time I used to do, Or my eyes are not so clear— Still, I've got some rights down here.

You are eight years old an' strong, You can run pell-mell along, An' you're never out o' breath; You can run me most to death; You can eat green apples, too, In the way I used to do, 'Fore my teeth got out o' gear— Still, I've got some rights down here.

If I took it in my head, I could pack you off to bed, I could order you away, When you come and want to play, I could make you stop your noise And clear out with all your toys— But somehow, when you are near, I don't claim my rights down here.

The Cost of Living Forced Still Lower at the Royal Stores

The Moral is Obvious—Do All Your Shopping Here

Uppermost in your mind to-day is the cost of living. You are quick to study figures appearing in the newspapers on the subject, and inevitable you compare them with your own experience when shopping. The cost of living has fallen definitely and sharply for those who are wise enough to do all their shopping at the Royal Stores. Hundreds of customers have expressed surprise at being asked to pay so little for goods of superfine quality. For many months now we have been asserting that prices were on the downward grade. In the face of much disagreement we insisted on this assertion and used every effort to keep on forcing prices down.

That, we felt, to be our duty and privilege as a progressive store. To-day, it remains our duty to hasten a return to normal, and we feel sure that our decision to let Annual Sale Prices rule during March month will achieve a healthy measure of success.

Horse Races

a Splendid Success.

In spite of unfavorable weather conditions, a large crowd assembled on Quidi Vidi Pond yesterday afternoon to witness the series of horse races under the auspices of the N.H. Horsemen's Association. There were four events on the programme, the first being the Championship Trotting Race. Owing to the non-arrival of some of the contestants on time, it was decided to run the Cabmen's Race first. The conditions of the races were best three out of five heats; the horses starting abreast and no time limit. In the Cabmen's Race, there were five horses listed. The winners in the first heat were Chess, Queen, Sweet William and Billy. In the second heat the order stood, Chess, Queen, Billy, Sweet William. In the third heat, Chess came first, followed closely by Queen. Billy took third place and Belle came fourth. The race proved exciting, Chess, owned by Wm. Wylie and driven by P. Bulger, won first prize; Queen, owned by Frank Keen taking second place; third place being decided by another heat between Billy and Cabman Halsey's horse Sweet William. Billy, owned by Reg. Brown, won by a couple of lengths.

The Championship Trotting Race in which there were four entries proved most interesting, as there was a dark horse in it, the same coming an easy first in the first heat, beating Howard Mann, a recognized winner, the latter breaking when about half way up the course. The order of the first heat was Sweet Echo, Finnister, Lou Dillon, Howard Mann. In the second heat Howard Mann, Sweet Echo and Finnister finished in the order named—Howard Mann winning by about a neck length. In the third heat Howard Mann came first, Sweet Echo second, the horse running so closely that the winner only had a head to the good. Finnister came third. As the horses had won three heats to get their places, fourth heat was run. In this Sweet Echo was by about two lengths. Howard Mann and Sweet Echo each not having won first place twice in the four heats, a fifth one was run. The bet was high and it was with difficulty the course was kept open to the officials. At the close of the race Sweet Echo came an easy first and the spectators went wild with applause. Howard Mann, owned by Mr. Harold Macpherson, had met match. Sweet Echo, the winner of the Championship Trotting Race, owned by Mr. Jack O'Driscoll, may well be proud of his victory. Finnister, owned by Mr. Mat. Keen took third place.

The Farmers' Race, although very interesting, did not run too smoothly. The course had been shortened, there was a horse entered, owned by a merchant, which some of the contestants thought should not be allowed. However, on some one suggesting "not to spoil sport" the horse was permitted to run. The following horses entered for this race: Bob Mount Cashel; Geo. (G. of E. Orphanage); W. Coffield; Phyllis, Patrick Roach; Bob, Andrew Walsh; Wm. MacDonald; Fan, Patrick Brian; Jen, Pierce O'Brien; Frank Henry Cowan; Mat, G. Clooney; Bob and Phyllis won three heats, the order named. Geo. owned by C. E. Orphanage, although 14 years old, proved an easy winner in each of these three heats. Bob, the second horse, is owned by Mr. Geo. Campbell who has a farm on the Mount Road. The owner of this horse, who was the one in dispute, satisfied the judges that the animal was used for farm work and was entered by farm servant, Mr. Frank Walsh. Between the second and third heats there was one called off, as there being a bad start, one of the horses being at the starting line.

In the Championship Pacing Race there were three entries, the race being decided in four heats. Howard Mann, owned by John Duff, won easily in the first. Sir John, owned by Mr. Campbell, came second, while May Taunton came last. In the second and third heats May Taunton came first, and Helen 2nd. The fourth heat was won by May Taunton in splendid style. Helen took second prize, Sir John not running the heat, was not awarded a prize.

The awards were:
 Cabmen's—1st, Wm. Wylie, $25.00 cash; 2nd, F. Keen, 5 sacks oats; Reg. Brown, horse rug.
 Championship (Trotting)—1st, O'Driscoll, Silver Cup; 2nd, H. Macpherson, $25.00 cash; 3rd, M. Keen, $20.00 cash.
 Farmers'—1st, W. Coffield, $25.00 cash; 2nd, F. Walsh, 1 brl. beef; P. Roach, Ayreshire calf.
 Championship (Pacing)—1st, John Duff, Silver Cup; 2nd, J. Duff, $25.00 cash.
 The gentlemen of the N.H.A. deserve great credit for the manner in which the event was conducted. While it is true a finer evening would have been chosen the committee were wise in their decision, as with other day's mild weather the pond would have been flooded.

Candidates Nominated in Harbor Main.

JONES AND LEWIS ACCLAIMED AS WINNERS.

Hundreds of Voters Bear Testimony to Their Popularity.

The nomination of Dr. W. E. Jones and Capt. John Lewis, the candidates of the Liberal Labour Progressive party in the Harbor Main bye-election, took place at noon yesterday in the Harbor Main Court House amidst scenes of such unbounded enthusiasm on the part of the great crowd of electors present, as defy description, for never before in the political history of the District have two candidates received such unanimous and whole-hearted support. The special train which left town at 7.15 a.m. taking Sir Michael Cashin and other members of the Opposition party was cheered along the whole route in a manner which left no doubt as to the feelings of the people of Harbor Main. It is rarely, if ever, that electors of any district have gone so much out of their way to manifest in such an ungrudging manner, their loyalty to any cause, and the fact that Sir Michael and his party were so acclaimed proves without a doubt that the people of the district realize the tyrannical oppression under which they are now labouring and intend to show their disapproval of the Government's misdeeds. From Quigley's to Avondale, every station was thronged with people waiting to demonstrate to Sir Michael their loyalty to the cause of the party under his leadership and at Woodford's fully 400 men got off the train and marched to Harbor Main to witness the nomination of the Opposition candidates. Nothing could surpass the enthusiasm shown at the nomination. For some hours before the time fixed for the event, hundreds of people thronged the Cross Roads and when Dr. Jones and Capt. Lewis returned from the Court House they were greeted with an ovation which exceeded any of the previous efforts of the electors in proof of their support. Nothing like it was ever heard or seen in the district before. In spite of the fact that it was raining, the meeting which the Opposition candidates then held at the Cross Roads kept the attention of the assembled crowd, who had no thoughts for the weather when they were given an opportunity to hear their favourite candidates speak.

Mr. William Woodford first addressed the gathering and was accorded a welcome that made the echoes ring. In an earnest speech he addressed the issues confronting the electorate; the crisis through which Newfoundland was passing; the incompetence of the present administration; the necessity for calling a halt to their depre-ditions. He was repeatedly called upon to continue in a manner that showed how genuine and deep-seated is the admiration and esteem in which he is held by the people of Harbor Main.

Capt. Lewis next took the platform, and his enthusiastic reception will be long remembered. For several minutes he found it impossible to speak owing to the loud and continuous shouts of welcome from the people. His address was most effective. In clear incisive language he hurled back the insult the Squires-Coaker Party had attempted to put upon the fair name of Harbor Main, when they filled their newspapers day after day last year with lurid and maliciously untrue tales of corruption and dishonesty on the part of a people that was, and always will be free and independent. He severely criticised the Government for its sins of omission and commission; showed how the fish trade of the country had been ruined; the failure of the Government to redeem its pledges to the people; the hopelessness of the outlook if the present administration were to continue; and appealed to the people for support to enable Dr. Jones and himself to unite with Sir Michael Cashin and his party in the great endeavor TO SAVE THE COUNTRY. Shouts of "Long live Lewis," "Capt. John is our man," "Well done Lewis" rent the air, and time after time Capt. Lewis had to appear and acknowledge his thanks to the audience.

Sir Michael Cashin, Messrs. Higgins, McDonnell, Puddister and Fox then briefly addressed the audience and were accorded a most hearty welcome and listened to most attentively.

At 3.30 p.m. with ringing cheers for Sir Michael Cashin, Messrs. Jones and Lewis and the Opposition Party, the gathering dispersed to proceed to Woodford's where the party entrained for town reaching the city shortly after six o'clock.

The nomination of Messrs. Jones and Lewis proceeded as follows:—
DR. W. E. JONES—Proposed by Gordon Miller, Topicalist; seconded by John M. Hearn, of Colliers; Witness, James Woodford, Mr. Main.
CAPT. JOHN LEWIS—Proposed by John Kennedy, Mr. Main; seconded by Samuel J. Hynes, Kelligrews; Witness, Ml. C. Dunphy, Holyrood.
The Government candidates nominated were Charles Furey and Matthew E. Hawn.

Oh, How Funny!

Since reading the last few editions of the Advocate, we have begun to wonder if people who write for the papers choose as their noms de plume, names meaning the very opposite to what they should express. Take, for instance, that humorous fellow who signs himself "Common Sense." How he pats himself on the back! What person of the most limited intelligence could read the nonsense this screamingly funny fellow writes without feeling a spasm of sympathy for him who could pen such waddle! And has this fellow so little common sense that he tries to make the readers of the Advocate believe that the people of Harbor Main are so gullible as he tries to make them out to be! And not only must our humorous friend praise Hecoco and Porey to the skies, though little good it will do them, but he must also descend to that old game of the Advocate's, personal abuse. How the Advocate does revel in making personal attacks. It reminds one of the slimy serpent squirming on the ground always ready to strike unseen with its poisonous fangs. Nothing pleases the Advocate more than hitting below the belt! But the poor old thing must be humoured. Although it isn't a paper we would like our children to see, nevertheless it does prove so amusing at times, it has such an irresistible attraction, that one can't help picking it up and reading some of the literary gems it contains, such as that epistle which Common Sense (3) has written. Common Sense is, of course, that very funny fellow who wrote about the "gent from the waggamwaggam slopes." We know he must have been alluding to "Doc" Campbell. But, no, how could he have spoken of the "Doc" who scatters sunshine wherever he goes with that genial smile of his. As an "evil genius, he must have meant Super Six, or perhaps it was a bird of the corvine type, but then, who can tell? Whoever he meant, however, one thing is certain, and that is that there is nobody who can write in the same picturesque, humorous yet delightfully literary style of that particular person who calls himself "Common Sense" but possesses "No Sense."—COM.

LONDON GOSSIP.

PRINCE AND HENLEY.

LONDON, Jan. 31st, 1921. The Prince of Wales has promised Henley Regatta next summer. Somebody has even started a bet that he is going into training in order to row for his old college, Magdalen—but that can scarcely be believed, for he has been down for a good many years and the muscles which a hunt-husband develops are very different from those of an oarsman.

POB AND THE TAILOR.

Robes have been extolled as a virtue. The man with the red sleeves has been commended a patient patriot. But the average man is a fastidious human, and no amount of indignation against high prices will entirely reconcile him to seeing his clothes to the last thread after that the day of rock bottom prices might be heralded the next. The continuous fall, therefore, the price of clothes is being met with relief, although even yet the firms are experiencing a timid ity on the part of the public to purchase. This is attributed to a general impression that the prices will ultimately fall to pre-war level. I am assured, however, that this is a fallacy, and that to-day the prices are sub-normal. The huge stocks on the hands of the distributors and the fall in foreign exchanges have combined to bring about an artificial slump. When, however, the present stocks have been disposed of, and trade has flowed back into normal channels, the tendency will be towards a hardening of prices, although the peak of 1919-1920 will never be reached. According to a nice calculation, the average tailor will be selling at the bottom of the market in early spring, so that the man of proud independence and "baggy breeks" would be well advised to replenish his wardrobe between now and then.

NEW FIDDLES FOR OLD.

The Berlin report that any third rate modern fiddle can be made to equal the best Stradivarius appears a little startling to the uninitiated. As a matter of fact, the claim has been made many and many times before. The test the inventor proposes is still the same—the skilled player, the screen, the distinguished audience and jury on the other side. The new factor is provided by the supernatural means employed toward the trick. It is said that the discovery was consequent upon a consultation with the ghost of Stradivari, and of course there is no saying what the great fiddle maker may have revealed. So far, however, all experiments have failed because the quality of a violin cannot be tested in an hour or a day. An unvarnished fiddle is always more brilliant in tone than the finished article, but a couple of months are sufficient to rob it of its virtue. The claim of the Berlin spiritualist goes, however, much farther, for he proposes to match not a good modern fiddle but any modern fiddle against the old, and as most second-rate fiddles have congenital faults of structure one can only conclude that the claim is based on faith, which, if it can remove mountains, can obviously add to the age of the instrument and remove faults of construction.

RE-MARRIAGE OF PENSION WIDOWS.

The number of widows of sailors, soldiers, and airmen who re-marry is surprisingly large. Altogether about 225,000 widows of non-commissioned officers and men have been awarded pensions since the beginning of the war and approximately 50,000 have re-married. Then pension ceases on re-marriage, but a gratuity equal to a year's pension at the 1918 rate is paid. The average number of re-marrriages per month is at present somewhat between 1,000 and 1,200, but during last summer the average was 2,000 a month. It is a curious fact that of those who have again re-married the number of widows with one child is in excess of the number without children, and those with two children are almost as numerous as those without children. Ordinarily, of course, children's allowances are continued, although the widow's pension ceases. A considerable number of widows with three, four, and even more children have re-entered the marriage state and relinquished their pensions.

UNCONQUERABLE SLEEPINESS.

Heston-Hounslow, in the extreme west of London, the starting point of the new outbreak of unconquerable sleepiness which is disturbing the minds of Londoners, is a large semi-rural area lying between the Bath and the Uxbridge main roads, and is normally one of the healthiest sections of the outer belt. The malady is covering, in fact, a large region of western Middlesex than the district named. It is supposed to have originated in Hounslow town, from which scores of thousands of soldiers from all the theatres of war have come and gone for six years past. A medical man practising in the locality says that there is nothing to be alarmed about. It is not sleeping sickness such as is known in the African Equatorial, nor will he describe it as encephalitis lethargica. He likens it to a form of influenza of which he had a full experience while serving with the Salonika Expedition. It is a variety of influenza accompanied by drowsiness, and thereafter an imperative obligation to sleep. If the patient will yield to this and go to bed, he will probably sleep for the greater part of a couple of days and nights, and find himself quite well again. There is nothing dangerous about the affection. What is peculiar about it is its spread among a population which, outside Hounslow town itself, lives in most favorable health conditions. The higher medical authorities of the Ministry of Health are studying the outbreak locally.

WHOLESALE DRAPERS' LOSSES.

During the past few months the wholesale drapery trade, and particularly the mantle branch, has suffered to an exceptional extent from the practice among retailers of throwing back on the merchants goods which had been ordered, but for which, when delivered, there was found to be very little or no demand. One London wholesale firm has had stock to the value of over £8,000 ($32,000) returned in this way in a single department during the past three months. In this practice, which is known to the trade as "cold-pilging," there is nothing new, as it always has been a grievance with the wholesaler, but it has especially had effect at the present juncture. Formerly much of the returned goods could at once be shipped abroad, but this outlet for unwanted stock is for the time closed, as foreign countries are not buying, even at knock-down prices. Accordingly the wholesaler has to bear nearly all the loss, and it is no wonder, therefore, that one trade association after another is making a determined stand against the delectable dish known as "cold pig."

PILFERING A MILLION A YEAR.

Pilfering on British railways has become a gigantic evil and is the more inexplicable inasmuch as the railwaymen enjoy high wages and good conditions of work. I have been authoritatively informed that the railway companies are paying over a million pounds a year in compensation for pilferage. Traders themselves are often to blame, because of faulty packing, which puts temptation in the way of the railwaymen. The broken package gives the pilferer an opportunity he is not slow to grasp. The system of "Nominated loadings," the object of which is to concentrate small consignments of traffic and obtain a sufficient quantity to load direct to destination, is steadily becoming more general; and as the scheme expands it should go far to restore the prestige of the railways by eliminating opportunities for the sneak thief. Every through load obtained minimises the risk of damage and loss, and reduces the number of claims against the railway companies. "Nominated loading" has evidently come to stay. It is being used extensively on the principal railways. But the private trader does not always recognise the system. Making, as it does, for improved transport is for his benefit. He is too apt to suspect any suggestion of change coming from the companies as a bureaucratic scheme to upset his time-worn habits.

CLIPPING THE PROFITS.

Hair-dressers are up in arms at the invasion of their professional work by amateurs, armed with mechanical clippers, who cut hair for what, in the opinion of the fraternity, is an inadequate fee, and thus keep prospective customers out of the saloons. It is apparently in the North that this dire evil is at its worst, and in the words of a prominent member of a Sheffield society of hair-dressers, "the grievance of our worthy fellow-craftsmen has reached an acute stage." In factories and workshops, amateurs, unskilled in the traditional methods by which large sums are exacted for shampoos, stings, and bottles of hair wash from people who ask for hair cut, are wielding clippers for very small charges. Anyway, the outraged hair-dressers are demanding that all cutters of hair, whether with scissors or clippers, should forthwith be licensed, and that the holder of a license should be at liberty to remove hair.

Saved by Sister Ship.

Disabled Liner Towed Through Fierce Gale.

How a sister ship went to the rescue of a disabled liner is the subject of an exciting story. The Furness Withy liner Sidlaw Range, reported on Jan. 23 that she was disabled in the Atlantic with the loss of all blades of her propeller. An S. O. S. sent out by her when off Rockall Islet, west of the Hebrides, was picked up by the same company's steamer Digby, then 500 miles distant. The Digby steamed to the distressed ship and took her in tow, but owing to high seas and a violent gale the wire hawser parted, and it was impossible to make fresh connection for 12 hours. A second and third time the towing cables snapped, but Captain Chambers of the Digby stood by the disabled vessel, and ultimately for the fourth time a towing cable was passed to the Sidlaw Range, and a course shaped for the North Channel.

Humiliating Fate.

EX-GERMAN DREADNOUGHT USED AS EXPERIMENTAL TARGET.

As the result of experiments carried out by the naval authorities at Spithead, the ex-German super-dreadnought, Baden, has been sent to the bottom. One of the most modern warships surrendered after the armistice, the Baden was towed out of harbor to a lodge between the Isle of Wight and the mainland, where tests were carried out by gunnery and torpedo experts. The vessel was also used as a target for bombing aircraft. The Baden, a vessel of 25,000 tons, was in the scuttling of the surrendered German fleet at Scapa Flow in 1919. It was one of the few vessels which did not sink, being towed into shallow water. It is understood that the Admiralty will save the ship in preparation for a further series of experiments.

A Vapor Treatment for Coughs and Colds

The time for Vapo-Cresolene is at the first indication of a cold or cough. It is simple to use, you just light the little lamp that vaporizes the Cresolene and place it near the bed. The soothing antiseptic vapor makes breathing easy, relieves the cough, eases the soreness and congestion, and protects in epidemics. Becomes a habit for the household.

LOOKED LIKE THERE WAS NO HOPE FOR HER.

Halifax Woman Had to Spend Most of Her Time in Bed Before She Got Tanlac—Gains 30 Pounds and Says Health is Perfect Now.

"I had lost twenty-five pounds in weight and had reached the point where I didn't think I could ever get well, but in less than two months I have gotten back all my lost weight and five pounds besides and was never before in better health," said Mrs. William Muir, 22 West St., Halifax, N.S.

"It was a year ago that I suffered a general breakdown. I ate so little that I lost weight and became so weak that I broke down completely. I had bursting headaches that kept me in bed for days at a time and left me so weak that when I got up I could hardly walk.

"My stomach was upset and sour all the time, my nerves collapsed and at night I worried so over my condition that I could hardly sleep at all, and lots of mornings was unable to get out of bed. At last I had to spend most of my time in bed and I was so despondent that it looked like there was no hope for me.

"I have taken four bottles of Tanlac and to-day I am perfectly well in every respect. The stomach trouble has all disappeared and my big gain in weight shows what a splendid appetite I have and how well my food agrees with me. I am completely relieved of headaches and nervousness and sleep like a child. I can do my housework with ease and don't know that I ever felt better in my life."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connor, 11 Paradise, by Mrs. Martin F. Byrne, in Upper Gullies, by Heber Andrews, in Portland, by H. C. Haines, in St. Joseph, Salmonier, by Mrs. J. Gushue, in Marytown, by Exploits Valley Royal Stores, Ltd., in Flat Islands, by William Samson, in Jamestown, by Christopher Haines, and in Lewisporte by Uriah Freake.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

UNCONSCIOUS SELF PORTRAITS.

RUTH CAMERON

When anyone criticizes another person, he gives the person to whom he makes the criticism not only a deliberately planned idea of that other person but an unconsciously sketched impression of himself. Especially if you have a nifty previous knowledge of the two.

Don't you think so? Here is the sort of thing I mean.

Paints Her Own Picture, Too.

I have in my acquaintance two sisters who do not get along at all well together. One of them told me positively the other day how the other had refused to do a small favor she had asked of her. The picture she intended to present of her sister was of great ungraciousness and ingratitude, for she is better off than the latter and often gives her presents. And I did get a renewed memory of the personality of the sister who made the criticism—her habit of doing things for you and then of asking what she calls small favors at times so inconvenient that they become large favors, and of being most resentful when you ask to make your payment in some other way.

An Unfair Single Picture.

Of course if you do not know both parties to a criticism of this sort you may not get the double reaction. Sometimes I have had the experience of knowing just one and of getting such a very vivid and unpleasant impression of the person criticized that I conceived a violent dislike for him or her until I knew him—and realized anew the old truth that the right of any matter is never all on one side. After that, when I had criticisms of that person poured into my ears they gave me a double picture.

I often think that if people realized what was going on in the minds of their hearers when they made criticisms of this sort they would soon learn to make fewer.

Especially criticisms of close relatives, because even when they are entirely just, they are had taste and consequently leave a bad taste in the hearer's mind.

Passing Judgment at the Same Time.

Of course there are listeners who like to draw their friends out to make criticisms of this sort by giving them all the sympathy and justification they crave. But don't you deceive yourself into thinking that they aren't passing judgment on you at the same time. In all likelihood they are.

Tells the Secret of Their Success.

QUEBEC LADY SAYS DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS ALWAYS RELIEVE.

Great Canadian Kidney Remedy Has Been for Over Thirty Years on Trial in Canada and the People Are Still Paying Grateful Tributes to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

St. Edouard de Frampton, Que., March 2nd. (Special)—"I have used with success Dodd's Kidney Pills. They always relieve.

"I can also recommend Diamond Dinner Pills. I have used them with splendid effect for constipation, bad headache and biliousness."

Short and sweet are these two tributes to two of the Dodd's Kidney Pills. These are Mme. Lehouillier's words. They are the secret of Dodd's Kidney Pills success.

For kidney troubles and the ills that spring from kidney troubles are very common in Canada. Among them might be mentioned rheumatism, backache, dropsy, urinary trouble, diabetes and heart disease. The way to avoid them is to keep your kidneys strong and well.

Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills are not the best remedy for sick kidneys.

HAPPINESS.

I had a little shanty, and I was happy there, with wife and niece and auntie, and grandma in her chair. I did not owe a shilling upon that small abode, no creditors came drilling to dun me, up the road. And I was always saving against the day of rain, and all the time behaving like some one safe and sane. My aunt, whose name was Alice, was dippy as could be; she said a costly palace was none too good for me. And grandma, in her sweater, backed aunt, and said, "Tut, tut! You should have something better—why live in this punk hut?" My niece indorsed their kicking, and nagged all day and night, for she was tired of sticking in such a lawdry shack. With women thus embattled, what can a poor man do? At last they got me rattled, and all my coin I drew; I mortgaged and I borrowed and built a costly home, and ever since I've sorrowed, and care has creased my dome. I owe the village plumber who piled his art with skill; and at my house each corner is some one with a bill. I owe the gifted painter, whose language freely flows, and smokier and quieter that language daily grows. I owe the paperhanger, the joiner for his beams, and I can hear their clangor at midnight in my dreams. They all are rude and ranty, and I dissolve in tears when thinking of the shanty that knew my younger years.

GERALD S. DOWE, Distributing Agent, Water Street, St. John's.

"Heroic Sport."

Mother Nature has been in sportive humour this winter. And horsemen have found it difficult to interpret her moods, whilst, yesterday witnessed a riotous contribution of her caprices. Dense fog, down-pours of rain, ice surface floating with water, double decker holes and pockets of water lurking everywhere, and nothing but herolism born of the sport could determine men to match their fiery nags under such circumstances.

The feature event—the free-for-all trot—was fraught with interest and surprise, that race after five heats going to the good little mare "Sweet Echo." We congratulate this trim little horse and her courteous owner "Gentleman John" on the victory. The laurels won by "Sweet Echo," she will carry with grace, as her breed for more than a hundred years have been wearing them. This mare is an aristocratic little mis, being by "Echo Todd," 2.14% property of A. B. Hastings, Torrington, Mass. Her grandpa, the great dead Todd, which twice sold for $30,000, her great grandpa, the illustrious Bingen 2.06%, whose purchase price was $35,000. Our veteran friend of the horse, R. A. Brehm, Esq., had the distinction of a personal acquaintance with Bingen. "Sweet Echo" is richly bred being scarcely exceeded by the great "Howard Mann" himself. Finistère was there, but like Howard Mann carried too much flesh and was not keyed up to a hard race. The pacing race was markedly interesting, being won by the good little native bred mare "May Taunton" after losing the first heat to Helen. May Taunton is worthy of note, being the country's product, and her driver owner has the gratifying distinction of bringing both her parents to the country as his property and racing the offspring to a successful issue against imported horses. A most interesting race could be arranged for, ice permitting, between "Sweet Echo" and "Howard Mann," the defeat of Howard Mann being directly attributed to the double decker through which he was continuously foundering.

150 Ex-Enemy Steamers Still to Be Sold.

All ships allotted to the British Empire by the Reparations Commission under the terms of the Treaty of Versailles have now been advertised with the exception of 28 steamers and some 12 sailing vessels, which are interned in South American ports, and which are repairing or about to be repaired. The total number of vessels advertised, including passenger and cargo steamers, sailing ships, and trawlers, is 301, and of these there have been sold 145 steamers, 4 sailing ships, and 2 trawlers. There remain, therefore, for disposal, besides a few doubtful vessels, 128 steamers and 22 trawlers, a total of 150, unsold. The gross tonnage of the passenger vessels sold to date totals 168,497, and the dead-weight tonnage of the cargo steamers 755,531 tons, a mixed total of 924,028 tons. Of the unsold vessels, excluding trawlers, etc., the gross tonnage of the passenger steamers is approximately 332,654, and the deadweight of the cargo steamers 715,132 tons.

Murdo's Store News.

THURSDAY, March 3.

To-day our Centre Window contains a display of goods put up in our own Factory. The display includes a pretty wide list, Toilet Articles, Household Remedies, our well known Red Cross Line, Acme Liniment and Flavoring, Spices, and a number of miscellaneous preparations. We believe that the quality of these goods is quite up to any similar articles imported, and in their price can certainly compete with imported goods. It will easily be seen that the more locally made goods that are bought, the more money is kept in the country, and the more labor is enabled to be paid for, to the advantage—in however small or large degree—of the whole community. Have a look at these goods as you pass, and take a mental note of them.

Train Notes.

The weather along the line morning was calm and fine, the thermometer registering from 20 to 30 degrees.

The Placentia branch line is all clear.

The incoming Carbonate train connecting with the Placentia to-day and is not due till 3 o'clock.

The Bonavista branch will be clear to-day. The train left St. John's yesterday evening, commencing its run to-day.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

NO MORE YIELDING.
LONDON, March 2. After a meeting of the Allies to-day a statement was issued by the Conference, embodying a summary of the German reparations proposal, and comment thereon. "The plan prepared by the Allies at Paris for payment of reparations," says the statement, "relieves Germany of a substantial proportion of the amount payable by her under the Treaty of Versailles." Then follows a summary of the German proposal, and the statement says this proposal does (not) merit either examination or discussion. To demonstrate its due character it is sufficient to note the following: "First—The German Government assumes they are at liberty to calculate the present value of fixed annuities on an eight per cent basis. This table is applicable, in the Paris plan only, to discounts of fixed annuities made in the first two years." "Second—The German Government ignores the value of variable annuities provided for in the Paris plan, the amount of which depends upon the value of German exports." "Third—Annuities payable under the Paris plan are in addition to whatever sums may be found to have been paid on account of reparations." "Fourth—The German Government assesses at twenty billions the value of deliveries made by them on account of various obligations imposed upon them by Treaty. The Reparations Commission assesses their value at less than half that sum. The amount to be credited to the German Government in respect of these deliveries on reparation account, will be found to be very small." "Fifth—Germany uses an eight per cent table for the purpose of arriving at the amount due from them; they propose at the same time that interest upon their debt shall be limited to five per cent." "Sixth—The German Government proposes that their securities shall be relieved of taxation in the country of issue, thus burdening the country of issue with a part of their liabilities." The Germans at noon to-morrow will hear the unanimous decision of the Allies on counter proposals, which Dr. Simons, German Foreign Secretary, and head of the German delegation, presented yesterday at the reparation conference in Lancaster House, and the consequences which will follow their failure to comply with the Allied terms.

points out that if such propositions were accepted, the Germans, who were the aggressors, would progress, bearing only a moderate burden, while the French nation, victims of German aggression, would be forced to struggle painfully under a colossal weight of taxation.

THE HIND OF THE HUN.
BERLIN, March 2. Newspapers in their editorials to-day, are unanimous in declaring that Germany's counter proposals to the Allied reparations demands go to the extreme limit of Germany's economic capacity.

REVOLT QUELLED.

ALLIES DETERMINED.
LONDON, March 3. Germany was to-day given until noon, to accept the fundamental conditions laid down by the Supreme Council at Paris. German delegates were informed by Allied representatives to-day that if Germany does not accept these terms, the Allies will take immediate steps. The first will be the occupation by Allied troops of Duisburg, Dusseldorf and Ruhr regions, containing important mines and iron plants. The second is that each Allied country will place such tax on Germany's merchandise as it may deem proper. The third, a customs boundary along the Rhine under Allied control will be established. The German delegation was informed the Allies would not reduce the period of forty two years allotted for the total amount of reparations by Germany.

CONFIDENCE IN GOVERNMENT.
MONTREAL, March 2. A London cable to the Montreal Star says: "A vote of confidence forced to-day by the opposition, concerning the Government's policy regarding General Crozier, who recently resigned as Commander-in-Chief of the Black and Tan troops in Ireland, resulted in a victory for the Government by 250 to 36."
