TOWN COUNCIL

Matter of License Granted to Circus People

TO BE INVESTIGATED.

Engineer Burpee Reported on Reservoir. Capacity Greatly Enlarged

A meeting of the Town Council was held on Monday evening, their being present. His Worship Mayor Murray and Couns. Laughlin, Ferguson, Blair, Blackhall, Miller, Taylor and Joudry.

The first item of business after the reading of minutes was the motion of Coun. Blackhall calling for an investigation into the license issued the circus people before the Police Magistrate. The motion was seconded by Coun. Taylor and carried unanimously. A bill of $32.50 from the Provincial Hospital for board of John Gallon was referred to Finance Com.

Police Magistrate Matheson's report from March 18 to June 5 was read, showing fines collected amounting to $310.00.

A communication from G. E. Asker, harbor master, in reference to refuse from dumping ground falling into the river, was referred to Public Property and street Committee.

Reports on accounts were submitted by the chairman of the different committees and accounts passed.

After discussion it was moved by Coun. Laughlin, seconded by Coun. Miller that the Finance Com be authorized to engage a solicitor to assist in closing up the past cases of R. L. Duncan and Joseph Duncan; also to have solicitors advise on the report in connection with the survey and raising of the reservoir as contained in a plan to Council from the Water and Sewerage Com. Motion carried.

It was moved by Coun. Joudry seconded by Coun. Blackhall that a memorial be sent to Dept of Public Works, Ottawa, asking that money voted for repairs to the west side of Shivers' wharf (so called) be expended on a crib wharf to be built from the western side of Ramsay street extending northward as far as the south side of the proposed wharf to be built to accommodate the Interprovincial Navigation Company.

Carried.

A resolution was also passed giving all power to the Dominion Gov't to build the wharf above referred to.

Council adjourned to meet on Tuesday evening.

Tuesday evening—Council opened at 8 o'clock. Present—His Worship Mayor, Murray, Couns. Blackhall, Ferguson, Laughlin, Taylor. Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed.

Clerk read communication from D. W. Burpee re capacity of new dam. This showed that when the water was raised to 240 feet the reservoir would hold 10,205,095 gallons of water. The highest elevation that could be reached was shown by Mr. Burpee to be 260 feet, and this would give the reservoir a capacity of 39,952,684 gallons of water. Mr. Burpee also showed that the town would have to buy 6.56 acres of land from R. L. Duncan and 4.29 acres from Jos. Duncan.

It was moved that the communication be attached to plan of reservoir and referred to Water and Sewerage committee.

Clerk read petition from a number of ratepayers re strip of land running from Water street to I. C. Railway, praying that the said strip of land be taken over by the

PROPERTY TRANSFER

Wm Richards Co Sell Valuable Timber Lands

AMOUNTING TO $700,000

Lands Along the Taxis River and the Boiestown Property

For some time negotiations have been going on for the transfer of the large tracts of land on the Miramichi now held by the Wm. Richards Company, Ltd. Several representatives of different large pulp and paper companies of the United States have been here, and looked over the properties.

In March last the Bayless Pulp and Paper Company of Birmingham, N. Y., sent down a number of their directors, headed by George C. Bayless, President of the concern. They inspected the property and Mr. Bayless said at the time that he was much impressed with the tracts of land which they had cruised. The Bayless Company at that time secured an option on the property, which option has since expired.

A short time ago President Christolm, of the International Paper Company accompanied by several of the directors of the big concern was here. The party spent several days in inspecting the properties at Boiestown and on the Miramichi passed through here enroute home. In the meantime they secured an option on the property. The amount of the option was between $600,000 and $700,000 and it is understood it will expire on the 15th of this month. The property includes altogether about 166,000 acres. Part of it, about 114,000 acres, is on the Taxis river and it is all excellent timber land.

Yesterday the Wm Richards Co. received a telegram asking them if they would send an authorized representative to New York to close arrangements for the transfer of the property. In response to this message Mr. H. H. Gunter of Boiestown and J. H. Rundle of Chatham left last evening for New York. It is thought that to-day or to-morrow the transfer of the property at the figures of the option, somewhere about $600,000 or 700,000, will take place at New York. If the company takes over the property they will at once install an up-to-date lumbering plant and within a few years they propose to build pulp and paper mills. Their headquarters will probably be at the Mouth of the Taxis River on the line of the I. C. R. or else at Chatham and they may have offices in this city.

When Mr. Bayless was here he expressed the opinion that the lands would be much more valuable to his company if the Grand Trunk Pacific did not adopt the centre route, which would go through the property—Gleaner.

Coun. Blackhall submitted report of the Finance committee. He stated that he had secured H. F. McLatchy as solicitor to represent the town in the reservoir matter.

Couns. Laughlin submitted report of Electric Light committee.

Coun. Blackhall explained to the council the overdraft at the Bank of Nova Scotia and the provision the Finance Committee had made for same.

Coun. Taylor submitted report of the Water and Sewerage committee.

HEROIC ACT.

Of I. C. R. Driver King on Friday

SAVED CHILD'S LIFE

By Jumping from his Engine and Snatching her from the Track.

On Friday last as the heavy special freight train, with Driver James King at the throttle, was nearing the Lansdowne crossing, a little child was noticed by the driver sitting between the rails. The train was moving at a good rate of speed and after whistling for brakes, the emergency brakes were applied and everything possible done to stop the train, but the driver saw that the child's life was still in great danger as the heavy train, although perceptibly slackened in speed would not come to a standstill before reaching the little one. Driver King promptly climbed out through the cab window and out onto the running board, made his way to the front of the engine, and within a short distance of the child made a desperate and daring leap from the engine, snatched up the little child and carried it out of harm's way just as the huge iron horse slowly moved past. The child ran a length or more past the place where the little child was playing and but for Driver King's prompt action and presence of mind would certainly have met instant death.

The child is the two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peterson, who have been staying at the Lansdowne for some time past.

The exciting incident occurred in plain view of the horrified mother who fell in a faint when she realized that her child was saved.

Driver King's action ought to be brought to the attention of the Royal Humane Society.

BEFORE THE COURT.

Application to Quash Liquor Licenses.

RULE GRANTED.

Will Come up for Argument Tomorrow at Fredericton.

No little interest is felt in the case that is now before the Supreme Court at Fredericton. The Campbellton Temperance Alliance, through their solicitor, Mr. W. A. Mott, last week made application to the full bench for a rule certiorari to quash the liquor licenses granted on the 28th of April last. The action is taken on the ground that the Liquor License Commissioners exceeded their powers in granting more licenses than the number allowed by law.

The court granted the rule forthwith and the case will come up for argument tomorrow.

We understand that this is the first time a case of this kind has been entered in this province and the result will be awaited with interest not only by Campbellton people but by temperance people throughout the province.

Atlantic & Lake Superior Sulf

In the Exchequer Court last Friday morning the case of Atlantic & Lake Superior Railway Co. was heard. The petition of right alleges that by failure of the Government in 1894 to carry out an agreement to pay interest on certain bonds of the suppliants amounting to five hundred thousand pounds sterling, and by reason of the repudiation of such agreement, the bonds became valueless, whereby the suppliants lost a large sum of money. The suppliants claimed $1,575,000 as damages. The crown denies the argument or that suppliants lost any money by reason of the Government's action in denying their liability. W. D. Koegs, K. C. and F. H. Chrysler, K. C., for the respondent—Ottawa Cor.—Toronto Globe.

ASSASSINATION

Premier of Greece Murdered

ATHENS, June 13.—Theodore H. D. Ilianna, the popular premier of Greece, was stabbed and mortally wounded by a professional gambler named Gharkaris, at the main entrance to the chamber of Deputies this afternoon. The premier died within three hours. The assassin claims to have committed the deed in revenge for stringent measures taken by the premier against gambling houses, all of which were recently closed up. The popular feeling is high against the assassin and he had to be hurried to prison to escape the angered populace.

Nervous Women

Their Sufferings Are Usually Due to Uterine Disorders Perhaps Undiscovered

A MEDICINE THAT CURES

Miss L. Stowell

Can we dispute the well-known fact that Canadian women are nervous?

How often do we hear the expression, "I am so nervous, it seems as if I should fly," or, "Don't speak to me." Little things annoy you and you are unable to quietly and calmly perform your daily tasks or care for your children.

The relation of the nerves and generative organs in women is so close that nine-tenths of the nervous prostration, nervous debility, the blues, sleeplessness and nervous irritability arise from some derangement of the organism which makes her a woman.

It is of depression or restlessness and irritability. Spirits easily affected, so that one minute she laughs, the next minute weeps. Pain in the ovaries and between the shoulders. Loss of voice; nervous dyspepsia. A tendency to cry at the least provocation. All this points to nervous prostration.

Nothing will relieve this distressing condition and prevent months of prostration and suffering so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Miss Lela Stowell, of 177 Wellington St., Kingston, Ont., writes: "Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Your medicine is indeed a Godsend to suffering women, and I only wish that they all knew what it can do for them and there would be no need of their dragging out miserable lives in agony."

I suffered for years with bearing-down pains, extreme nervousness and excruciating headaches, but a few bottles of your Vegetable Compound made life look new and promising to me. I am light and happy and I do not know what sickness is, and I have enjoyed the best of health now for over four years. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has sent sunshine into thousands of homes and hearts."

Will not the volumes of letters from women made strong by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound convince all women of its virtues? Surely you cannot wish to remain sick and weak and discouraged, exhausted each day, when you can be as easily cured as other women.

WILD EXPENDITURE

SIX THOUSAND WOMEN IN NEW YORK

Said to spend $40,000,000 a year on Dress

"Six thousand New York women spend a total of over $8,000,000 a year on dress."

So says Mr. Cleveland Moffett in an article in a recent number of success.

And that leaves Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, and the rest of American cities out of consideration.

Mr. Moffett's remarkable statement has called forth some indignant protests from New York women, but he still sticks to his guns.

In order to re-verify his facts Mr. Moffett has been over to America again. He now maintains that if he erred at all he has done so on the side of under statement.

For instance, he originally said that New York women spend up to $1,200 on a sable coat, fondly imagining that this was a high price. Now however, he finds that it is only a moderate one—very low indeed for a coat of fine sable.

At a leading New York furrier's he told an American Messenger representative, "a short coat of rather light skins moderate quality," was priced at $2,000. Mr. Moffett humbly inquiring what a good coat would cost, this magnate of fashion replied that the real imperial sable, "very dark, with silver lights playing through the soft fur," comes to $110 a skin, or $2 a square inch. A moderately long sable coat, say thirty inches, would come to $6,600 and a coat reaching to the ankles to $8,800.

"And you sell coats at such prices?" was the amazed question. "We sell this kind of sable as fast as we can get it."

And Mr. Moffett, who has been attacked for stating $8,000 "as the maximum yearly sum that a few New York women spend on dress, including everything," thinks himself more than justified now that he finds that merely a fur coat, bonnet and muff may come to nearly $10,000.

Again, he made the statement that a New York woman would spend up to $160 to $200 on a special ball or dinner dress.

"Well," says Mr. Moffett, I have from an expert the details of a certain wedding dress on which the lace alone Devonshire Honiton, cost $100 and a friend of mine saw at Miss Routh's in Canham, a robe of embroidered linen handspan, and hand woven with threads so fine that they had to be handled in a dark cellar lest they snap in dry sunlight; over this was a solid mass of hand embroidery patterned by a prix de Rome artist, with inserts of point d'aiguille lace and this robe alone sold for forty thousand francs before the dressmaker began her work."

This same arbitress of fashion Mme. Rouff, considered $800 delivered in New York for an American bride's trousseau lingerie (no household linen, of course) was mean to a degree—a trousseau only fit for a schoolgirl.

The accused was a New York lawyer and has succeeded in postponing the ultimate decision of his fate for over three years by a display of acumen and resourcefulness that has existed the wonder of the members of the bar and the public at large.

The crime for which Patrick was convicted was the killing of William Marsh Rice in the latter's apartments, 500 Madison avenue, on Sept. 23rd, 1901. Rice was a millionaire recluse, eighty-four years old. His only attendant was Charles F. Jones, a valet. Patrick, in his capacity of lawyer, was opposed to Rice in litigation over Rice's wife's will. In the course of litigation Patrick learned all about Mr. Rice's wealth and business affairs. He also got acquainted with Jones, the valet, and it is alleged, induced him to enter a conspiracy to get possession of the property by the double crime of forgery and murder. With Jones's assistance, Patrick is said to have forged a will, a general assignment and several checks, by means of which he, if the documents were not questioned, would come into possession of all the Rice property after Mr. Rice's death. Then, it is ascertained, Rice was chloroformed to death by Jones at Patrick's instigation.

Suspicion was aroused next day when Patrick tried to raise $25,000 on one of the forged checks, which had been carelessly drawn. Patrick and Jones were both arrested. Jones confessed that he killed Rice. He had been Mr. Rice's valet and almost inseparable companion. He declared that he was instigated to the crime of murder by Patrick, in order that Patrick might get the Rice millions by means of a forged will. That will was rejected by the Surrogate. Patrick was convicted of murder in the first degree, after a trial of unusual length mainly on the testimony of Jones. After Patrick was convicted and sent to Sing Sing prison under sentence of death, Jones was taken to a boarding house. He was being watched constantly by four policemen, who "relieved each other in the duty of seeing that he did not commit suicide. They watched him when he ate and when he slept. They were expected to see that he lived well and kept in good health. The salaries of the policemen amount to $5,600 a year. The cost of board, clothing and the luxuries of life that Jones enjoyed were paid by the city. The expense of Jones' maintenance was about $7,700 a year, counting the salaries of the men who guarded him. Later Jones was sent back to Texas.

A BELLE'S BILL

Mr. Moffett set forth the following summary of items of expenditure submitted to and contabulated over by a number of New York dressmakers and milliners on Fifth avenue.

Estimate of the amount spent on dress per year by many rich American women.

Furs and accessories $1,000
Dinner gowns 1,000
Ball and opera gowns 1,000
Opera cloaks evening and carriage wraps 500
Afternoon visiting and luncheon toilettes 600
Morning gowns, shirt-waists and informal frocks 600
Automobile furs and costumes 400
Negliges 160
Lingerie 300
Hats and veils 240
Riding habits, boots, gloves, etc. 150
Shoes and slippers $160. hosiery $100 260
Fans, lace, small jewels etc. 500
Gloves, $20; cleaner's bill, $200
Handkerchiefs, 120 410
Annual total 7,120

Mr. Moffett is not pleased with American women for what he calls their preposterous extravagance in the matter of dress. He says that fashion can regulate benevolence as well as the width of the sleeves, and suggests that they should set aside a percentage of their dress allowance for their less fortunate sisters. Ten per cent, on dress would mean $800,000 a year from rich New York women alone—$800,000 a year for the poor. And he adds, the rich women feel it.

TO BE ELECTROCUTED

Patrick who Murdered Rice has to go to the Chair

Albany N. Y., June 12.—The court of appeals has by a divided court, voting 4 to 3, sustained the lower court in adjudging Albert T. Patrick, the New York lawyer, guilty of murder, first degree, in causing the death of William Marsh Rice, an aged millionaire, formerly a resident of Texas. On April 7, 1902, Patrick was convicted on an indictment charging him with the murder of Rice by chloroform and mercury, administered by him during his sickness on Sept. 23, 1901. The case reached the Court of Appeals on March 24 of this year, when David B. Hill, who appeared for the appellant, based his argument for a reversal mainly on the contention that the condition of Rice's body, revealed by the post-mortem examination, might have been caused by fluids used in embalming. The prevailing opinion [is by Judge Oray, with whom concur Judges Bartlett, Haight and Werner. There is a dissenting opinion by Judge O'Brien, Chief Judge Cullen and Judge Vann concurring. Chief Judge Cullen filing also a memorandum.]

The accused was a New York lawyer and has succeeded in postponing the ultimate decision of his fate for over three years by a display of acumen and resourcefulness that has existed the wonder of the members of the bar and the public at large.

REAL SEA SERPENT.

Alas, it is Dead at Old Orchard, Me.

New York, June 9.—The Tribune prints this special despatch from Old Orchard, Me.:

A real sea serpent, old sea captains declare, lies dead on the beach here. For more than forty-five feet its sinuous body stretches along the sands. Scientists from Yale and Harvard will arrive and will attempt to classify the monster which floated in on a high tide.

The object was discovered by Fred Sidelinger, who was along the shore when he saw what he took to be a huge mass of seaweed. He approached nearer and was within a few feet of it when he was terror-stricken by the sight of two mammoth eyes. Sidelinger did not pursue his investigation, but as soon as he could recover the use of his limbs he took his departure.

The old whalers, to a man, declared that the body on the sands was of no animal or fish they ever hunted. The tail and upper jaw were missing, but the lower jaw ran back fifteen feet. The tongue, more like a snake's tongue than that of an animal, was ten feet long and as big as a man's leg, being encased in a peculiar kind of bone.

Dr. Henry Reynolds, who is considered an expert in sea life, is of the opinion that the elusive sea serpent has been found. "It was without doubt over a hundred feet long when alive," he said. "It has evidently been dead for several weeks. It is not unlikely that it died somewhere in the Arctic ocean and has been buffeted about by wind and sea, collecting seaweed ever since."—Scientific American

COUNTESS POTOCKA.

The Woman Who Sang to Chopin as He Sank to Death.

As the great Chopin lay dying his soul was ushered out by the song of the beautiful Countess Delphine Potocka, who had been his dearest confidante and friend. The romance of their friendship, one of the sweetest in history, is related by Gustav Kobbe in the Delinestor. The last tragic scene in the life of the composer has often been described and has been painted by Barrios, but it is so touching that one may well read another version of it. Mr. Kobbe writes:

"Then came what is perhaps the most touching scene that has been handed down to us from the lives of the great composers. When Delphine entered what was soon to be the death chamber Chopin's sister Louise and a few of his most intimate friends were gathered there. She took her place by Louise. When the dying man opened his eyes and saw her standing at the foot of his bed, tall, slight, draped in white, resembling a beautiful angel, and mingling her tears with those of Louise his lips moved, and those nearest him, bending over to catch his words, heard him ask that she would sing."

"Mastering her emotion by a strong effort of the will, she sang in a voice of bell-like purity the canticle to the Virgin attributed to Stradella—sang it so devoutly, so tenderly, that the dying man, 'artist and lover of the beautiful to the very last,' whispered in ecstasy: 'How exquisite! Again, again!'"

"Once more she sang, this time a psalm by Marcello. It was the haunted hour of twilight. The dying day draped the scene in its mysterious shadows. Those at the bedside had sunk noiselessly on their knees. Over the mournful accompaniment of sobs floated the voice of Delphine like a melody from heaven."

BEGGARS' APPEALS.

How the Professionals Base Them on the Appeal of Pity.

Never do panhandlers make the mistake of appealing to the reason. The emotions of the crowd only are attacked. There is always a complete human story in the pose. What, for instance, could be more compelling of sympathy than the spectacle of the bent old graybeard patiently and despairingly as it seemed grinding a weary old organ which he had tied into a broken down baby carriage? The suggestiveness of that perambulator, coupled with the wails of that organ, more forcible than a child's cry, was worth dollars a day to the old fellow. It was reprehensible art, of course, but art nevertheless. And the artist grew rich, for when investigated by the police he was found to be the owner of many houses in Hoboken.

Again, could there be anything more likely to excite compassion than the crust throwing trick? It was invented by a German beggar named Lang, whose French disciple, Lemaire, practiced it subsequently. I have seen a crust thrower operating in Sixth avenue. He was a semi-well dressed man, who walked swiftly down through the crowds of shoppers. Suddenly he uttered a hoarse cry and darted out into the roadway, where, pouncing upon a crust of bread which he had thrown there previously, he began gnawing it ravenously. He did not wait for sympathy. He walked rapidly away, but a number of women who saw the act ran after him and crowded one another for the privilege of giving him money.

JURIES IN GERMANY

THEY ARE ONLY PERMITTED TO ACT
IN CRIMINAL CASES.

A Unanimous Vote Is Not Required
In Finding a Verdict Only a Majority of Two-Thirds Is Necessary.
Jurors Serve Without Pay.

It may not be generally known that under the original constitution of the United States provision is made for the trial of criminal cases by jury, but not of civil cases. This in 1780 caused dissatisfaction, the people claiming that the omission was intended to abolish trial by jury in civil cases, and the seventh amendment was soon adopted, securing the rights of trial by jury in suits at common law where the value in controversy shall exceed $20.

In many countries juries decide by a majority. In France since 1831 a majority of two-thirds is required. This is true also in Germany, where the operation of the institution is so complicated and so interesting that it is especially valuable to note some of the methods adopted in the land of the Kaiser to secure justice and protect the rights of the accused.

According to German law, trial by jury is limited to criminal procedure and to cases within the competence of a single court composed of three judges and twelve jurors. The juror receives no pay for his services, because the office of juror is an honorary one.
Many classes of persons are excluded from jury service. Among these may be mentioned for jury service who are deemed to be excluded, but whose presence on a jury does not of itself necessarily invalidate a verdict. In this group are persons under thirty years of age, persons who within three years have received support from public charities for themselves or their families and persons who are employed as servants.

A great many people are as a special privilege exempt from jury service in Germany. These include officials, persons employed in a public capacity in the service of religion, persons in active military service and teachers in the public schools, but attorneys are not numbered among these so privileged. Physicians, however, and apothecaries who have no assistants, persons above sixty-four years of age and persons who show that they are unable to bear the expense of this unpaid jury service are among the privileged.

The basis of the list upon which the jury is selected is a list of persons who are eligible to service as lay members of local courts. None of these lay members are more than thirty-five years of age, and this provides a large list for jury selection.

The presiding official in each commune must each year prepare a list, which is submitted to the president of the court for one week, at the end of which time the unopposed names are sent to a judge in the district to which the commune belongs.

Eventually from each "year list" are selected thirty jurors who constitute what is known as the "verdict list."
In any given case these thirty jurors are brought before the president of the court, who tells them the name of the accused and the nature of the offense charged. The names of the thirty jurors are written on tickets which are placed in an urn, from which the final twelve jurors are drawn by lot. There may be as many challenges as the names in the urn exceed twelve.

One or more persons may be drawn by lot to act in the place of regular jurors in the event of the disability of any of the latter. They sit in the case, take part in the trial, ask questions if necessary, but assist in rendering a verdict only in case any of the regular jurors be suddenly incapacitated.

The jury determines the degree as well as the fact of guilt and is in no wise bound by the instruction of the presiding judge as to whether a given act is within the definition of a crime under the law.
The jurors elect their own foreman,
but only after they have retired to the jury room to agree upon a verdict. A unanimous vote is not required in finding a verdict. Only a majority or two-thirds is necessary—that is, if the vote is seven for conviction and five for acquittal the defendant is acquitted; if it is eight to four he is convicted.

"Pedigree" of "Fog."

If any Londoner crawling up to business by train or tram through the fog turned his idle mind to wondering why it was called "fog" he would probably decide that it could not have been called anything else. "Fog" is its obvious name. Yet there is much speculation among philologists on this point. Dr.
Murray's dictionary suggests an interesting pedigree. As far back as the fourteenth century "fog" meant after-grass, the rank grass that sprang up after hay harvest or grew in the winter, while in the north it meant moss.
Then "foggy" came to mean boggy.
Next it was used to mean boggy or puffy of the flesh of men or animals,
and finally, as applied to air or water,
it meant thick, and our modern fog was derived from this "foggy." Skat, however, goes straight to the Danish
"fog," as in "snee fog," a snowstorm, from "tyge" to drift. The worst of London fogs is that they do not drift fast enough—London Chronicle.

The better a man is the less ready
he is to suspect dishonesty in others—Cicero.

CHICAGO'S GREAT HOS- PITAL.

The Chicago South Side Daily Sun
publishes the following account of the magnificent new hospital that is being erected at Englewood, Chicago.

It will be remembered that Rev.
Sister LaBillois, a native of Dalhousie
and sister of the Hon. C. H. LaBillois, chief Commissioner of Public Works, left the Chatham hospital last fall to associate herself with other sisters in the management of this great institution for the care of the sick. The following is the account that we copy
from the Western newspaper.

Construction work on the new St.
Bernard Hotel Dispensary at sixty-fourth street and Harvard Avenue is rapidly progressing, and it is expected to have the structure completed and ready for occupancy by the first week in July. The building, which is sixty-four feet high and has a footprint of sixty-four by sixty-four feet, is a modern, fireproof, and well-lighted structure, and is being erected in accordance with the very latest advances in sanitary science and convenient arrangement. The outside walls,
except the front are of pressed brick,
of which over 400,000 were used. Ordinary brick to the number of 2,500,000
have been utilized in the masonry of the
new structure and steel to the amount
of 800 tons was required for the skeleton work. The front wall of the hospital and the crowning beauty of its outside construction is made of Georgia marble, of which forty-eight carloads were used. Georgia marble
is superior in many ways to that produced in other parts of the country, and
is beginning to be used extensively in
northern cities for construction work.

ONE OF THE FINEST IN COUN- TRY.

When completed the new hospital
will be one of the best in the country and will rank favorably with any institution of its kind in the world. The building is "T" shaped and has a footprint on Harvard Avenue and Sixty-fourth street of 230 and 176 feet respectively. In architectural design it is distinctly modern, fireproof in construction and designed throughout in accordance with the very latest advances in sanitary science and convenient arrangement. The outside walls,
except the front are of pressed brick,
of which over 400,000 were used. Ordinary brick to the number of 2,500,000
have been utilized in the masonry of the
new structure and steel to the amount
of 800 tons was required for the skeleton work. The front wall of the hospital and the crowning beauty of
its outside construction is made of Georgia marble, of which forty-eight
carloads were used. Georgia marble
is superior in many ways to that produced in other parts of the country, and
is beginning to be used extensively in
northern cities for construction work.

In addition to the offices of the Mother Superior and her assistants
there will be 125 private rooms for the accommodation of patients. Besides these there will be five large wards,
each with a capacity of twenty beds,
and four small wards containing six beds each. For children there will be four small wards of six beds capacity, making a total of 276 beds.

A feature of the new hospital will be the new operating rooms, of which there will be five. One of these is to be used exclusively for emergency purposes and will be located on the first floor. The remaining operating rooms will be found on the fourth floor and will be reserved for the use of the physicians and the others will be used exclusively by the members of the hospital staff. In addition to the operating rooms, the quarters of the staff physicians will be placed in the rear of the fourth floor and it is planned to use the entire space in this part of the building for those purposes.

When completed the new structure
will have cost approximately $375,000 which with $26,000 that was paid for the ground, makes the entire cost of the new hospital about $400,000.

In the selection of contractor to build the new hospital no preference was shown and no discriminations were made on the basis of religious affiliations. The carpenter work, roofing, terra cotta fireproofing, and the marble
work and out, was done by Protestants, while the masonry work was done by Catholic contractors, as was the building of the heat and lighting plant. This spirit of tolerance in the employment of labor with regard to their religious inclinations notwithstanding that the hospital is being erected by a Catholic organization, is but a sample of the liberality and broadmindedness that are to characterize the latest extension of the society's work has been so successfully consummated.

Assisting Mother Hopkins are six

FOR PEACE

Roosevelt's Efforts Being Crowned With Success

London, June 10, 10.40 p. m.—
The keenest interest is manifested in President Roosevelt's efforts in deavoring to bring Japan and Russia to an understanding. While the British Government is not taking any part in the negotiations it is giving the most cordial support to the President, whose actions in the matter,
it has been comprehensively informed of. Diplomatic circles are fully in accord with what they consider to be the only way in which the difficulty between the two nations can be settled
without being entangled in any way, really the only country which could take action, but even President Roosevelt could not do more than endeavor to bring about a settlement between the two nations. Japan it can be stated, refused to start the negotiations until fully assured of the earnestness of Russia and that her proposals would be seriously considered. Her demands will include an indemnity, the amount of which has been fixed by the Japanese Government and on this point the President is urgently endeavoring to bring about a settlement. Here Japan has been entitled to an indemnity, and it is pointed out that while payment of the indemnity might affect the standing of Russia among the powers, it is not so serious as the loss of territory and will be forgiven sooner than the loss of territory. Financial circles in London are of the opinion that the Japanese demand an indemnity amounting to about $1,000,000, that being their estimate of the cost to the Japanese of six months' fighting.
This is considered in some quarters to be too high an estimate of the expenditure which is thought to be nearer $600,000,000.

ENQUIST'S STORY

Russian Admiral tells His Story of The Fight

St Petersburg, June 10.—The Emperor has received a long telegram from Rear-Admiral Enquist dated at Manila, June 5 describing that portion of the battle of the Sea of Japan on May 27, which took place between Tsu Island and Kotsu Island. Admiral Enquist says in part:

"There was a clear sky with a fresh south wind and a very foggy horizon. The Japanese squadron at 1.45 p. m. to the north engaged us in a tactical conflict not permitting us to pass them in the direction of Vladivostok. Every time our squadron turned toward the north the superior speed of the Japanese enabled them to outstrip us, while at the same time they concentrated their fire on our leading battleships.
The Japanese squadron consisted of nine battleships and cruisers and the Japanese battleship Chiyouen manoeuvred separately trying to take our ships between two fires.

Fifty minutes after the opening of the battle our battleship Oslabya
was sunk and the battleship Boro-dino was disabled. Soon afterwards the battleship Kniaz Souvar-off was on fire, losing her masts

"Our squadron turned to protect the Kniaz Souvaroff, but the Boro-dino resumed her place in the column, which was now headed by the battleship Alexander III.

"The Japanese tactics compelled
our squadron to move in a circle around the transports and torpedo boats, while the Japanese moved in an exterior circle. Owing to the inferior speed of our vessels it was difficult to escape this position, but before sunset our squadron resumed its voyage to the northward."

"At this time one of our torpedo boats near the Kniaz Souvaroff hoisted a signal that the command
had been transferred to Rear-Admiral Nebogatoff. The Alexander III, then left the column severely injured.

"The Borodino, which was then at the head of the column, received the enemy's concentrated fire, and at sunset, after firing her last shot, sank.

"My cruisers in fighting the Japanese cruisers suffered greatly by the large calibre of the Japanese projectiles. With the coming of night the Japanese torpedo boat attacks commenced, the results of which I am unable to report, owing to my inability to distinguish between the Russian and Japanese vessels.

"Several times I endeavored to escape to the northward, but was always re-attacked and obliged to return to the southward.

"On the morning of May 28, not knowing the whereabouts of the remainder of our squadron, facing the risk of meeting the whole Japanese fleet, and having been greatly damaged and waiting coal, I decided that the ships then under my command should make for Manila.

STOP WHISTLING

We believe there is a standing order of the management of the I. C. R. that no whistles are to be blown within the limits of the town and yet this order is not carried out. It would not be so noticeable if there was some regard for the order on Sundays. Not long ago Rev. H. E. Thomas was preaching a sermon on Sabbath observance and referred to the freight traffic on Sunday, when as if to give point to his remarks freight train came thundering by the church, which is within a few yards of the track. The reverend gentleman calmly waited until the train had passed, not thinking himself equal to the task of making himself heard above the sharp, prolonged whistle of the locomotive and the rumbling of the train.

When comparative quiet was restored he looked up and smilingly said "Sometimes a preacher doesn't have to go very far for a practical illustration". But this whistling should be stopped, especially on Sabbath. There is no need for it as the ringing of the bell is quite sufficient to warn people of an approaching train.

In considering the various diplomatic "approaches" reported to and possibly from the Russian Government, it is necessary not to lose sight of the position of Japan. She has persistently and uniformly advertised to whom it might concern that she would not impart her terms of peace to any third party or power, but that she would deal with Russia alone. Only Russia was entitled, and only Russia could expect to learn the Japanese terms.

This is perfectly, indeed it is the dictate of common prudence on the part of Japan. Ten years ago she was in a position to make peace with China, absolutely on her own terms and allowed her terms to become public in advance of their irrevocable execution. The result was that, by a combination of three Powers, under the lead and instigation of Russia, and by the defection of another Power on which she had a right to count, since it was the battles of that Power as well as her own that she had been fighting, Japan was robbed of the fruits of her victory, the trading nations were robbed along with her, and the door she had opened in Manchuria was slammed shut by Russia. In consequence of that interference Japan has found herself under the necessity of fighting this second and far more costly and exhausting war.

Surely she is amply justified in taking precautions against a recurrence of the events of ten years ago. Surely she is justified in declaring that "no agents need apply" and that she will deal this time only with principals. And that in turn means that "mediation" is absolutely excluded, and that the only "good office" a third Power can render without offense is simply to bring Japan and Russia together. It will be observed that this position of Japan greatly narrows and simplifies the scope of the "negotiations" which now appear to be in progress.—Ex

Wouldn't it be a good idea for the Town Council to take the proper steps to have I. C. R. driver King's bravery in saving the life of a little child acknowledged ged by the Royal Humane Society Medals have been awarded for acts requiring no more bravery or nerve than that performed by Mr. King on Friday last.

We would like to know if the Town Council have ever forwarded that memorial to the I. C. R. authorities regarding the electric signals at the crossings. At all events, no signals are yet in evidence. Will the matter rest there?

POLITICAL RUMOR

Toronto World Says Hon. Mr. Emmerson is to take G.T.P. Chairmanship.

TORONTO, Ont., June 11.—An Ottawa special to the World says: "There is a report circulating round parliament lobbying that the government has decided on a man to fill the vacant chairmanship of the Trans-Continental Railway Commission. The man is no less a person than Hon. Mr. Emmerson, the present minister of railways."

Mr. Emmerson's successor as a cabinet minister is said to be Hon. Mr. Pugsley, the present attorney general of New Brunswick. There appears to be very good grounds for accepting the report as authoritative.

It is expected that the appointment of Mr. Emmerson will take place as soon as the season is over, and Mr. Pugsley will also be taken into the cabinet at the same time. The new minister will seek election in Mr. Emmerson's old seat.

The report bears many of the hall-marks of truth, as the chairman of the commission by the natural order of things, must come from the Maritime Provinces."

All Rail Route o Paris.

NEW YORK, June 13.—The Tribune says: "The author of the project to tunnel under Behring Strait in the building of an all rail route from New York to Paris, M. Loicu de Lobel of Paris, who has been in New York for the last month, sails on Thursday on the La Savoie, taking with him, he asserts, the legally attested signatures of more than thirty well known American capitalists and engineers who approve of his general plans and who will act as the American executive committee. This organization will co-operate with similar committees already formed in both France and Russia. Out of the membership of the American committee an advisory committee of consulting engineers have been named, including J. L. Harrington, chief engineer of the Montreal Locomotive and Machine Company."

The question of a scheme for a submarine route from Prince of Wales, in Alaska, to East Cape, on the Siberian coast, was in the mind of M. de Lobel, in 1898, when, as a member of the Paris Geographic Society, he visited Alaska and made a study of the ethnography, climate and geology of the country. He made soundings of the strait and a preliminary survey for a tunnel in 1900 and since that time has given his entire attention to making known in government, financial and engineering circles in Europe and America, the prospects of the project.

The members of the American council dined at the Waldorf recently and afterwards held a meeting at which John A. Waddell of Kansas was delegated to undertake the official survey. He starts tomorrow for Seattle.

The enterprise, it is said, will probably be capitalized at $250,- 000,000) to $300,000,000 and the money centres of France, Russia and the United States will be asked to share in the financial phase of the project.

SPARTAN VIRTUE.

It is a Fine Thing if it is Not Advertised Too Much.

A Spartan virtue seems to have the inherent quality of making its possessor a 44 caliber bore of the worst sort. Take the man whose supreme if not only virtue lies in the fact that he takes a cold water bath every morning the whole year round. You meet him in the car, in the street, in the course of his distant his home from his office the more he will talk about it, and he will tell you that he has become so accustomed to it that the only time he can get an extra thrill out of it is when the streets are deep with snow and the wind is blowing a hurricane.

Then there's the man who walks down to his office every morning, rain or snow, in sunshine and in storm. The more distant his home from his office the more he will talk about it, and he will tell you that he has become so accustomed to it that the only time he can get an extra thrill out of it is when the streets are deep with snow and the wind is blowing a hurricane. Heaven may forgive the man who rises at 5 summer and winter, spring and fall. We know none. The early riser is not a criminal simply because the law does not designate his offense as a crime. But it is admitted that the law has its defects. Nothing can approach the look of superiority on the face of the early riser. He has found the only road to health or wealth. The books he has read before breakfast would if collected in a heap make the Congressional library look small.

There are some who would place in the first rank of this group that rugged, hardy, vigorous, full blooded gentlemen who can breathe the air in all the windows and doors are open. The lower the pressure of steam in the radiator, the lower the mercury in its tube and the wider the play of the winds over the roofs and around the corners the more insistent is he that you are imperiling your very life by not occupying an office wide open to every wind that blows.

Oh, Spartan virtue is a fine thing, but it would be simply sublime if its modern exponents and inculcators would just keep still about it.

BITS FROM THE WRITERS.

Marriage was invented, like trustees, to save lovers from beggaring themselves.—Alfred Austin.

Of all slaveries this sad world knows there is no slavery so terrible as the slavery of a sensitive man to a hysterical, selfish woman.—T. P. O'Connor.

A popular novel is a compound of amusement and admonition, and the most popular are those in which clowning is sandwiched with preaching.—George Moore.

That we have a knocker on our doors means that we are not bores and barbarians, that we do not call on a man by climbing into a window or dropping down a chimney.—G. K. Chesterton.

A woman will self deny herself off the face of the earth to save a few pence, which a man will have the good sense to spend on himself to keep up his strength, for work, of course.

Scotch Stories.

It was late in the afternoon when the Scotch minister arrived at the farmhouse. The housewife suggested that perhaps he would like a cup of tea before engaging in "exercises." "Na, na," said he, "I ay tak' my tea better when my work is done. I'll just be gaun on. Ye can hing the pan on and leave the door ajar, an' I'll draw to a close in the prayer when I hear the haan fizin'."

Another woman of Scotland when asked if she had understood the sermon to which she had just been listening replied, "Wad I hae the presumption?"

Liberty Halls.
"This is Liberty Hall, and you may smoke in the garden," is a maxim which has become typical of one sort of hospitality. Another version has just been perpetrated by a member of the early rising fraternity. "I wish," said the host, "every one to do as he likes in my house." It sounded very friendly, but on going to his bedroom the guest found a little card stating the times of meals. "Breakfast at 7.30," and in an N. B. was added, "It will be cleared away at 8.30."

Conceit of the Rooster.
Were it not for the disgusting self conceit of the roosters one might enjoy a poultry show. The rooster is near to nature's heart. He has not civilization enough to veneer his opinions with common politeness and savoir faire, and his disgusting exhibition of the art of being it offends good taste and refinement. How the hen manages to put up with it is certainly one of the mysteries of the coop. If six or eight hens would join a hens' club modeled after Sorosis and throw the rooster down good and hard once or twice, he would soon discover that he was not the only kernel on the cob.

The Golden Mean.
The motto of the Greeks was "Nothing too much." An excess of courage is brutality. An excess of economy is penuriousness. An excess of taste is disgust. An excess of gentleness is timidity. An excess of confidence is egotism. Who will show us where to draw the line?—Ernest N. Lyon In Everybody's Magazine.

A Happy Pair.
Sylla—How is it that you and your husband agree so well? Mrs. Ray—Well, you see, he has given up his club. Sylla—And you? Mrs. Ray—I have given up amateur cookery. With those two destroyers of domestic felicity gone, why should we not be happy?

His Title.
"If it were customary in this country to confer titles upon men who go in for literature, what should I be?" asked a conceited journalist of his editor. "Baron of Ideas," was the terse reply.

Filial Piety.
Mother—Do you like my new gown, Millicent? Millicent (aged five, with conviction)—If there is a lady god, you look just like her in those clothes.—Life.

Home Truths.
"Isn't your husband dyspeptic?" "I rather think he is. I know he always disagrees with his meals."

True diplomacy is to get all you can with as much courtesy as you can.—Rev. Boyd Carpenter.

If Your Liver is Wrong You are Wrong all Over

A torpid, inactive liver goes hand in hand with constipation. Such a chronic condition requires a systematic effort to overcome it and establish good health and perfect body drainage. Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills, containing the two needed elements to increase liver activity and muscular action go accurately to the sluggish liver and bowels, restoring them completely.

Suppose your bowels failed to move for a week or ten days. Don't you know you would be quickly prostrated? It is just the same, differing in degree, when your bowels do not move at least once a day. You know you soon become languid and tired, your blood gets bad and you feel mean and sick all over. You should have a full, healthy passage daily. Don't let serious conditions develop. Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills will drive bowel poison out of your system and establish regularity. They are purely vegetable, and cure in one night. We will send you a generous sample of these pills absolutely free, sealed and postpaid, that will convince you beyond doubt of their wonderful curative properties. Address, W. F. ## The Gentleman From Indiana

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

Copyright, 1899, by Doubleday (McClure Co.)
Copyright, 1902, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

Soon she smiled at the blue ribbon, patted the chair gaily on the back and, seizing upon pencil and pad, dashed into her work with rare energy. She bent low over the desk, her pencil moving rapidly. She seemed loath to pause for breath. She had covered many sheets when Fiske returned, and as he came in softly in order not to disturb her she was so deeply engrossed that she did not hear him, nor did she look up when Parker entered, but pursued the formulation of her fast flying ideas with the same single purpose and abandon. So the two men sat and waited while their chieftainess wrote absently. At last she glanced up and made a little startled exclamation at seeing them there and then gave them cheery greeting. Each placed several scribbled sheets before her, and she, having first assured herself that Fiske had bought his overcoats, and having expressed a fear that Mr. Parker had found her umbrellas too small, as he looked damp (and indeed he was damp), cried praises on their notes and offered the reporters great applause.

With the humblest, proudest grace in the world.

"It is all so splendid," she cried. "How could you do it so quickly? And in the rain too! It is just what we need. I've done most of the things I mentioned, I think, and made a draft of some plans for hereafter. Doesn't it seem to you that it would be a good notion to have a woman's page—'For Feminine Readers' or 'Of Interest to Women'—once a week?"

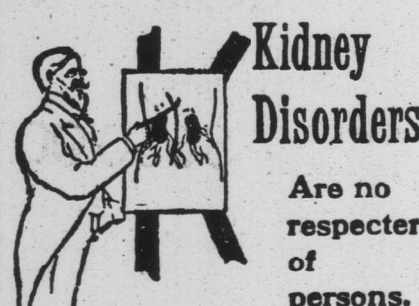

"A woman's page!" exclaimed Fiske. "I could never have thought of that. Could you, Mr. Parker?"

Before that day was over systems had been introduced, and the Herald was running on it, and all that warm rainy afternoon the editor and Fiske worked in the editorial rooms. Parker and Bud and Mr. Schofield (after his return with the items and a contents message from Ephraim Watts) bent over the forms downstairs, and Uncle Xenophon was cleaning the storeroom and scrubbing the floor. An extraordinary number of errands took the various members of the printing force up to see the editor in chief, literally to see the editor in chief. It was hard to believe that the presence had not dawned, hard to keep believing without the repeated testimony of sight that the dingy room upstairs was actually the setting for their jewel, and a jewel they seemed to sit up great commotion among the others. All the voices burst forth at once in exclamations, almost shouts. Then Minnie saw her father, seated on the porch, with his hand on the table a great blow with his clenched fist. "Will I make the nominating speech?" he cried. "I'd walk from here to Rouen and back again to do it."

"What in the name of common sense you laughin' at, Cale?" he asked.

"What are you laughing at?" rejoined the other.

"I dunno!"

The day wore on, wet and dreary outside, but all within the Herald's bosom was snug and busy and murmurous with the healthy thrumming of life and prosperity renewed. Toward 6 o'clock, system accomplished, the new guiding spirit was deliberating on a policy, as Harkness would conceive a policy were he there, when Minnie Briscoe ran joyously up the stairs, plunged into the room water-proofed and radiant and caught her friend's hand, eager arms and put out to policy for that day.

But policy and labor did not end at twilight every day. There were evenings, as in the time of Harkness, when lamps shone free the upper windows of the Herald building; for the little editor worked hard, and sometimes she worked late; she always worked early. She made some mistakes at first and one or two blunders which she took much more seriously than any one else did. But she found a remedy for all such results of her inexperience, and she developed experience. She set at her task with the energy of her youthfulness and no limit to her ambition, and she felt that Harkness had prepared the way for a wide expansion of the paper's interests, wider than he knew. She brought a fresh point of view to operate in a situation where he had fallen perhaps too much in the rut, and she watched every chance with a keen eye and looked ahead of her with clear foresight. What she waited and yearned for and dreamed was the time when a copy of the new Herald should be placed in the trembling hands of the man who lay in the Rouen hospital. Then she felt if he, unaware of her identity as he was and as he was to be kept, should place credence in her hands unreservedly, that would be a tribute to her work. And how hard she would labor to deserve it!

After a time she began to see that as his representative and editor of the Herald she had become a factor in district politics. It took her breath, but with a gasp of delight, for there was something she wanted to do.

Rodney McCune had lifted his head, and the friends of his stricken enemy felt that he and the cause that Harkness had labored for were lost without the leader, for the old ring that the Herald had beaten rallied around McCune. "The boys were in line again." Every one knew that Harkness, a dull but honest man, the most available material that Harkness had been able to find, was already beaten. If John Harkness had been "on the ground to work for him," it is true, the Herald could have received the nomination again, but as matters stood he was beaten and beaten badly, and Rodney McCune would sit in congress, for nomination meant election.

But one afternoon the Harknesses, weary, demoralized, broken, hopeless, woke up to find that they had a leader. Minnie Briscoe, sitting on the porch, pretending to sew, heard Helen's voice, clear, soft and trembling a little with excitement. She talked for only two or three minutes, but what she said seemed to stir up great commotion among the others. All the voices burst forth at once in exclamations, almost shouts. Then Minnie saw her father, seated on the porch, with his hand on the table a great blow with his clenched fist. "Will I make the nominating speech?" he cried. "I'd walk from here to Rouen and back again to do it."

"We'll swing out!" exclaimed Mr. Keating of Amo. "The wonderful thing is that nobody thought of this before. There are just two difficulties—Harkness and our man himself. He wouldn't let his name be used against Kedge. Therefore we've got to work it quietly and keep it from him."

"It's not too difficult," said the speaker, Mr. Boswell. "All we've got to do is to spring it as a surprise on the convention. Some of the old crowd themselves will be swept along with us when we make our nomination, and you want to stuff your ears with cotton. You see, all we need to do is to pass the word quietly among the Harkness people and the shaky McCune people. Rod may get wind of it, but you can't fix men in this district against us when they know what we mean to do now. On the first ballot we'll give Harkness every vote he'd have got if he'd run against McCune alone. It will help him to understand how things were afterward. On the second ballot—why, we nominate. Of course it can't be helped that Harkness was to be kept in the dark, too, but he's got to be."

"There's one danger," said Warren Smith. "Kedge Harkness is honest, but I believe he's selfish enough to disturb his best friend's deathbed for his own ends. It's not unlikely that he will get nervous toward the last and be telegraphing Harkness to have himself carried on a cot to the convention to save him. That wouldn't do at all, of course. And Miss Sherwood thinks maybe there'd be less danger if we set the convention a little ahead of the day appointed. It's dangerous, because it shortens our time, but we can fix it for three days before the day we'd settled on, and that will bring it to Sept. 7."

"It's a great plan," said Mr. Boswell, who was an oratorical gentleman. He thrust one hand in his breast, raised the other toward heaven and continued, "For the name of Harkness shall!"

"Wait a minute," said Keating. "I'd like to hear from the Herald about this policy, if Miss Sherwood will tell us."

"Yes, indeed," she answered. "It will be very simple. Don't you think there is only one course to pursue? We will advocate no one very energetically, but we will print as much of the truth about Mr. McCune as we can, with delicacy and honor in this case; but as I understand it the work is almost all to be done among the delegates. We shall not mention our plan at all, and we shall not receive his copy of the paper containing the notice of the change of date, and I think the chance of its seeing it in any Rouen paper may be avoided. That's all I think."

"Here's to our candidate?"

"Thank you," said Keating. "That is certainly the course to follow." Every one nodded or acquiesced in words, and Keating and Boswell came over to Helen and engaged her in conversation. The others began to look about for their hats, vaguely preparing to leave.

"Wait a minute," said the judge. "There's no train due just now." And Minnie appeared in the doorway with a big pitcher of crab apple cider, rich and amber hued, sparkling, cold and redolent of the sweet smelling orchard where it was born. Behind Miss Briscoe came Mildred Upton with glasses and a fat, shaking, four storied jelly cake on a second tray. The judge passed his cigars around, and the gentlemen took them blithely, then hesitatingly held them in their fingers and glanced at the ladies, uncertain of permission.

"Let me get you some matches," Helen said quickly, and found a box on the table and handed them to Keating. Every one sat beaming, and fragrant waifs of smoke ascended the room.

"Why do you call her Miss Sherwood?" Boswell whispered in Keating's ear.

"That's her name."

"Ain't she the daughter of that old fellow over there by the window? Ain't her name Fiske?"

"No, she's his daughter, but her legal name's Sherwood. She's an adoptee."

"Great Scott! I know all about that. I'd like to know if there's a man, woman or child in this part of the country that doesn't. I guess it won't be Fiske or Sherwood either very long. She can easily get a new name, that lady. And if she took a fancy to Boswell, why, I'm a bachel!"

"I expect she won't take a fancy to Boswell very early," said Keating.

"Go way," returned Mr. Boswell. "What do you want to say that for? Can't you bear for anybody to be happy a minute or two now and then?"

Warren Smith approached Helen and inquired if it would be asking too much if he petitioned her for some music, and she went to the piano and sang some dainty songs for them, with a quaint suggestion of the dialect. Two or three old fashioned negro melodies of Foster, followed by some rollicking modern imitations, with the movement and spirit of a tin shop falling down a flight of stairs. Her audience listened in delight from the first. But the latter songs quite overcame them with pleasure and admiration, and before she finished every head in the room was nodding from side to side and forward and back in time to the music, while every foot shuffled the measures on the carpet.

When the gentlemen from out of town discovered that it was time to leave if they meant to catch their train Helen asked them to wait, and they gathered around her.

"Don't go," she said. And she poured all the glasses full to the brim. Then, as she stood in the center of the circle they made around her, she said: "Before you go, please, I pledge each other to our success in this good home grown Indiana cider that leaves our heads clear and our arms strong? If you will—then—"

She began to blush furiously, and her voice trembled, but she lifted the glass high over her head and cried bravely, "Here's to our candidate!"

The big men, towering over her, threw back their heads and quaffed the gentle liquor to the last drop. Then they sent up the first shout of the campaign and cheered till the rafters rang.

"My friends," said Mr. Keating as he and Boswell and the men from Gaines drove away from the brick house—"my friends, here is where I begin the warmest hustling I ever did. Now, I guess we all think this is a great plan!"

"It is a glorious idea," said Mr. Boswell. "The name of Harkness!"

Keating drowned the oratory: "But that isn't all. That little girl wants it to succeed, and that settles it. He goes."

That night Mr. Parker, at work in the printing office, perceived the figure of Mr. Tipworthy beckoning him mysteriously from the pavement.

"What's the matter, Buddie?"

"Listen. She's singin' over her work."

Fiske stepped outside. On the pavement people had stopped to listen. They stood in the shadow, looking up with parted lips at the open, lighted windows whence came a clear, soft, reaching voice, lifted melodically in song. Now it swelled louder unconsciously; now its volume was more slender, and it melted liquidly into the night; again it trembled and rose and dwelt in the ear, strong and pure, and hearing it, you sighed with unknown longings. It was the "Angels' Serenade."

But Tipworthy's sister, Cynthia, was with him, and Parker saw that she turned from the window and that she was crying quietly. She put her hand on the boy's shoulder and patted it with a foolish gesture which to the foreman's eye was as graceful as it was sad. He moved closer to Bud, and his big hand fell on Cynthia's brother's other shoulder as he realized that red hair could look pretty sometimes, and he wondered why the editor's singing made Cynthia cry, and at the same time he decided to be mighty good to Bud henceforth. The spell of night and song was on him; that and something more, for it is a strange, inexplicable fact that the most practical chief ever known to the Herald had a singularly sentimental influence over her subordinates from the moment of her arrival. Under Harkness' domination there had been no more steadfast bachelors in Carleton than Ros Schindler and Caleb Parker, and like timorous youths in a graveyard, daring and mocking the ghosts in order to assuage their own fears, they had so glibly and jeered at the married state that there was talk of urging the minister to preach at them, but now let it be recorded that at the moment Caleb laid his hand on Bud's other shoulder his associate, Mr. Schindler, was enjoying a walk in the far end of town with a widow, and it is not to be doubted that Mr. Tipworthy's heart also was no longer in his possession, though, as it was after a week, the damsel of his desire had probably long since retired to her couch.

For a faint light on the cause of these spells we must turn to comment made by the invaluable Mr. Martin some time afterward. Referring to the lady to whose voice he was now listening in ecstasies, which shows how great the enthralling of her voice was, he said, "When you saw her or heard her or managed to be around anywhere she was, why, if you couldn't get up no hope of marryin' her you wanted to marry somebody."

Mr. Lige Willets, riding idly by, drew rein in front of the lighted windows and listened with the others. Presently he leaned from his horse and whispered to a man near him, "I know that song."

Nature's specific for Dyspepsia.

Miss Laura Chicoine, Belle Anse, Que., says of its wonderful curative powers:—

"Last winter I was very thin, and was fast losing flesh owing to the run-down state of my system. I suffered from Dyspepsia, loss of appetite and bad blood. I tried everything I could get, but to no purpose; then I finally started to use Burdock Blood Bitters. From the first day I felt the good effect of the medicine, and am now feeling strong and well again. I can eat anything now without any ill after-effects. It gives me great pleasure to recommend Burdock Blood Bitters, for I feel it saved my life."

LIFE IN GREENLAND.

The Ways of the People, Their Pleasures and Their Food.

Greenland's west coast is considered to have the grandest scenery of any coast in the world by Roger Wolcott, who writes of a journey thither as follows: "The sunny arctic day, which lasts for months; a sky all flaming glory, the fretted spires of the Alps flanked with stupendous cliffs and based on the restful levels of the sea, cities of crowded bergs, compound of dazzling light and radiant color—such scenery as that bleats out one's former memories. Our first port of call was Jakobahavn, at the head of Disco strait, biggest of the northern villages, a metropolis of nine white people and 400 natives. Beside a pocket harbor, perched on round shoulders of the naked granite, are the buildings, all tarred black, of the Royal Trade company. For a background to the dismal scene rise higher rocks, littered with garbage and turt huts, the homes of the natives. At heart the place is gay, for our sailors went ashore every night to dance with the Eskimo girls, while the officers of ship and colony swapped dinner parties, breakfasts and luncheons all through a nine days' festival. "Men and women alike," the writer continues, "were linguists, well read, accomplished, a little too polite for comfort, living a metropolitan life on one batch of letters a year in an arctic outpost. Expecting the pathos of banishment, I found the gayety of perfect content. The Dances of all the settlements were alike in social charm, gentleness and polished—arant gossips, too—and the indoor life had little to remind one of the outdoor wilderness. The Inuit servant maids wore the furry breeches, boots to the hip and cotton topknot of their national dress. One had to fall promiscuously in love with all of them.

"Even the Danish men wore native dress, but there was one important distinction—they washed. The food, apart from Danish groceries, was seal meat, fish, reindeer, venison, shellfish, ptarmigan, sea birds and their eggs, which, as served in Greenland, are always pronounced in flavor."

THREW UP HIS HAT.

The Story of Cockrell's Election to the United States Senate.

The truthful story is told in Missouri that the charming of a broad and that to the ceiling of the hall of the house of representatives in the capitol at Jefferson City made Francis Marion Cockrell a member of the United States senate. The state had been stirred by a contest for the Democratic nomination for the governorship. The lines between supporters of opposing candidates were sharply drawn. In a state convention numbering a thousand delegates Charles H. Hardin had won by the narrow majority of one-half of one vote. So close was the result and so bitter the feeling that the Democratic leaders feared irreconcilable division in the party ranks. The result, however, had scarcely been announced from the secretary's desk when the tall figure of the defeated candidate, General Cockrell, was seen coming to the platform. A moment more, as the hush of expectancy fell upon the crowded hall, Cockrell's voice rang out: "No man," said he, "will more loyally support the nominee of the convention than myself. No man will throw his hat higher for Charles Hardin than will I." And away to the ceiling went the broad-brimmed Cockrell hat. The convention, frantic with enthusiasm, heard not another word. But the following spring General Cockrell became United States senator by the unanimous vote of the Democrats of Missouri. For five successive terms after March 4, 1875, with never a Democratic vote against him, he was elected to the senate, the first political office he ever held. No senator from his state surpassed his record in length of years, and none equaled it, save Thomas Hart Benton, the great Missourian—Walter Williams in The World Today.

Stockbrokers and Justice. A prominent New York stockbroker says: "The newspapers do not get wind of even a small fraction of the suits brought against brokers because of misunderstandings between us and our customers. Ninety-nine customers out of every hundred think we rob them when they lose their money in the market and give us no credit when they win. We do our hardest to settle all suits out of court, for there is not a jury on earth that will find a verdict for a stockbroker. Why? Simply because every juror has been scorched now and then in the market and holds a grudge against all brokers."

Willing to Oblige. On one occasion, when Robin Allison, who was bearded at Kilwinning, had carried some goods for a traveler visiting his customers, he was delighted with the order and above his pay. "Deed, that's a rare guid o' ye, noo," said Robin, "but maybe I'll be able to dae ye a guid turn yet. Ye ken I'm the gravedigger. Dae-dae ye like your head high?"—London Standard.

His Originality. Uncle George, I have read your article, over, and I must say it shows a great deal of originality. Arthur—Thanks, I'm sure! I flattered myself I was a good idea. In it I wrote, 'George—Oh, I was not speaking of the composition, but of the spelling.'

The Customary Climax. Noddy—How did the new play end? Butts—Oh, in the usual way. Noddy—And what do you call the usual end? Butts—in a whirl of hats and feathers and opera cloaks.

It is not helps, but obstacles; not facilities, but difficulties, that make men.—Mathews.

FOREST FIRES

Mills Shut Down, Crews Fighting Fires

Blackville, June 10.—Very serious forest fires are raging on the Alexander Gibson Company's lumber lands in a westerly direction from Weaver's siding on the Intercolonial Railway. Weaver's is seventeen miles southwest of Blackville and seven miles north-west of Doaktown and the fire is twenty miles from land regarded as a very valuable property. The smoke in this direction is very heavy and the indications are that the fire is covering an extensive section of territory. Word of the fire reached the village last night and immediately arrangements were made to get men off to fight it. The two Gibson mills here are closed down to-day, and their crews, about 80 men, went to the woods to give all possible assistance. The mill at Doaktown was also closed down, and their crew sent out to fight the fire. What progress they have made our correspondent was not able at one o'clock to ascertain, but the atmosphere is as densely clouded with smoke now as it was three hours ago, and it is feared that nothing short of a heavy rain will stop the progress of the fire and save some of the most valuable lumber lands on the Miramichi from destruction. The fire is certainly a very serious one. There is a belief that the woods were set on fire by some designing persons, and there is talk of arrest being made.

FROM DOAKTOWN

Doaktown, June 10.—A moderate breeze is blowing, just enough to fan the flames; the smoke is thickening and very serious results are feared. The fire will certainly spread unless rain comes. The lands are mixed hardwood and softwood. The loss will amount to a good many thousands of dollars. The fire is about Otter Brook, running thence to Rocky Brook. The whole woods in that vicinity are ablaze. There are about 150 men now fighting the fire and at ten o'clock this morning the flames were about three miles northwest of the Intercolonial track at Weaver's. Fire Warden Price is endeavoring to locate the persons responsible for the starting of the fire and it is now said that Joe Chesnut of Bartholomew river and a man named Fitzsimmons of Weaver siding are the men upon whom he has his eye.

The Tonic of Health.

Most be more than a stimulant—be a food as well. There is one medicine that is both a food and a tonic—it aids digestion, promotes assimilation, converts food into nutriment that builds up nerves, blood, brain and bone. That tonic is Ferrozone which contains exactly what a run-down system needs. Ferrozone supplies oxygen to purify the blood, phosphorus to develop the brain, iron to harden the muscles. No wonder it makes such vigorous men and women. You'll eat, sleep, think and feel much better by using Ferrozone; try it—now. Fifty cents buys a box of fifty chocolate coated Ferrozone tablets, at all dealers.

AN UNUSUAL INCIDENT OF CABLE WORK

The submarine cable between Valdez, Prince William Sound, Alaska, and Sitka, Alaska, was suddenly interrupted on November 6th, 1904. The cable had been laid about a month before by the cable ship "Burnside," operating under direction of officers of United States Signal Corps, and had been in perfect working order up to the time of its interruption. Tests from the Sitka office located the trouble about ten miles out from Sitka. The cable ship proceeded to Sitka to make repairs on Jan. 24, 1905. While heaving on the cable to the fault, the dynamometer began to show considerable strain. At first it was thought the cable was caught under a rock, and the ship was accordingly maneuvered to loosen it. Having in was slowly continued, when the carcass of a whale appeared, with a loop of the cable fastened around the lower jaw. The loop was twisted as well, thus securely holding the whale. The carcass was badly decayed, and the stench made the task of loosening the cable from the jaw most trying. During its struggles the high animal had badly twisted and torn the cable in its vicinity, making several breaks in the conductor, thus interrupting communication. The steel armor wires, with the exception of three, were broken at the twist of the loop, and had the cable not possessed great tensile strength (20,000 pounds) it would undoubtedly have been broken. A splice was soon made, and communication between Valdez and Sitka restored.

One theory as to this peculiar accident is that the whale in feeding along the bottom was swimming slowly with jaws open. The cable being suspended on irregularities of the bottom, it came across the whale's open mouth, and the animal in its endeavor to disengage itself threw a loop in the cable. The whale was about 50 feet long. The depth at the place where it was found is sixty-five fathoms.

NORWEGIAN TRI-COLOR

Hoisted at Christina. Entusiastic Ceremony

Christina, Norway, June 9.—The Norwegian tri-color was hoisted this morning over the Shershus fort and over the country in place of the Union flag. The substitution was attended by great ceremony at the fort where the members of Sorthing were assembled and public witnesses the event from points of vantage. The garison was paraded in front of quarters of commandant effort, and the commandant read the resolution of Sorthing, dissolving union with Sweden. As the clock in tower of fort chimed ten since 1814, was hailed down, the troops presented arms, the band played the patriotic air, "Sons of Norway," and after only a momentary interval the salute boomed, the flag was broken out and the troops again presented arms. The people then uncovered and cheered wildly, the band adding to the general enthusiasm, by playing the popular air "Yes, we love this country." First one and then another took up the words of the song, until the whole crowd of cheering again greeted the flag. Three cheers were given for the fatherland and the singing of the national anthem concluded the ceremony.

Baron Von Wedel, of Jarlborg, who was the minister of Sweden and Norway, is leaving the Spanish capital to-day for Christina. He has telegraphed asking to be relieved of his post owing to the dissolution of the union. His example will be followed by the ministers at Washington and Rome both of whom are Norwegians.

A telegram from Bjornstjerne Bjornsen, the Norwegian dramatist, published here today sums up the popular feeling as follows: "The address of the King is an expression of the will of the entire Norwegian people. The dissolution is a blessing for the entire north."

The department of commerce has furnished all the consuls-generals with copies of the Sorthing resolution and have invited them to notify their respective governments of dissolution of union. Minister of State Covelands appointed a foreign Minister of Norway becomes effective June 25

Anyone can build a flour mill

and equip it with what is ordinarily known as modern milling machinery and perhaps, if they have the experience and the millers, they can make as good a flour as ROYAL HOUSEHOLD, up to the point where ROYAL HOUSEHOLD reaches the electrical process. Beyond this, no Canadian miller, at present, can go and the result is that in ROYAL HOUSEHOLD we have flour distinctly different from any other in Canada; one which any good miller or practical flourman could tell the difference in and note the superiority of, without a moment's hesitation.

FEELING THEIR OATS.

Canadian Soldiers kick up a row at Halifax.

HALIFAX, June 9.—Soldiers of the Royal Canadian Regiment in garrison here do not take kindly to discipline. Thirteen privates who were imprisoned in the main guard room at Glacis Barracks, to-day kicked up a lively time. They started to break their way out and smashed everything in sight. The guard was called out and attempted to enter the room, but the Canadians had barricaded firmly. Then a squad of twenty-one military police were hurried to the scene and they battered down the door and overpowered the unruly Canadians, who were removed to a stronger guard room at the Citadel. All had been imprisoned for petty offences, such as absences without leave, beyond bounds, etc.

A American Disease

Some doctors go so far as to say that indigestion is the national remedy for indigestion and that remedy is Dr Hamilton's Pills which accelerate the action of the gastric glands and give tone to the digestive organs. They strengthen the kidneys and liver, cleanse and purify the blood and add general tone to every organ of the body. Flesh and strength are fast restored and the patient can eat and digest any food he pleases. Test Dr Hamilton's Pills yourself.—25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00 at all dealers.

DO ANIMALS REASON?

There is much diversity of opinion on the question "Do animals reason?" even among scientists. But so long as scientists and doctors disagree, it is an open question as to how much more learned they are upon many subjects than the common, every-day man with equally as good reasoning powers, and neither with facts to prove his assertions other than reasoning powers.

I take great pleasure, however, in presenting to the readers of the Scientific American, that they may judge for themselves, an illustration to this article of a photograph of a cat opening a door, and thus gaining an entrance to the house. I took this photograph on March 17 last, about 3 P. M., after first watching the cat open the door two or three times, that I might the better judge of the best location for my camera, and as I had no shutter to my lens, I was obliged to make the exposure by uncapping and capping the lens.

The photograph speaks for itself. The cat is of the yellow type, of good size, and belongs to Latson Wiswall, a farmer living about three miles from Ballston Spa, N. Y. Mr Wiswall says the cat was not taught to do this trick, if such it may be called; and how it came to understand or reason out that, even though the door was fastened with the old fashioned thumb latch, it could gain admittance to the house at will, by simply jumping up and grasping hold of the handle of the latch with one paw, and striking the thumb piece with the other until the door swung open, is as much a mystery to him as it is to strangers who have witnessed the act.

Now, does this act not show reasoning powers on the part of the cat, when, finding that it could not push the door open with its nose or paw, it looks about and discovers that there is a latch, by climbing up to and striking which with its paw, it can open the door?

My experience and study of animals of the higher order of intelligence has induced me to maintain that most, if not all, animals do possess reasoning powers, and the above act simply adds to and strengthens my belief.

I am not disposed to agree with Mr Burroughs, who says: "Such traits in animals are simply physical."

But there is, however, considerable philosophy in Mr Deacon's statements. He says: "Whenever we find an animal able to learn by its own individual experience, we have the same right to predicate mind as existing in such an animal, in any human being other than ourselves." Huxley observes that a race of dumb men deprived of all communication with those who could speak, would be little indeed removed from the beast."

Thus, it would appear that the mind of man in childhood, or in savagery, is not by any means so superior to that of the higher animals as is claimed by some. Such animals are speechless by reason of an anatomical accident, and not from absence of ideas or ignorance of words.—Scientific American.

DETECTIVE STORIES.

The Literary Weakness in the Novel of Crime and Detection.

I know of one good reason, and only one, which really prevents detective stories standing among the noblest forms of art. Most of the objections raised against them by the vague minded world of modern culture (probably the most vague minded world that has ever existed) are quite narrow and childish. To say that the detective tale is sensational is simply to say that it is full of feeling or is aesthetic. Aesthetic is the Greek for sensational. Sensational is the Latin for aesthetic. To say that the thrill which it gives is connected with bald and positive sin, with bald and positive death and not with any of the fine spun drawing room emotions which it is now the fashion to consider "deep," is to pay it a high compliment.

The Bible is concerned with these great plain sins and judgments. So are the great Greek dramas, so are the tragedies of the Elizabethans, so are the old ballads, and so are all men anywhere who live lives sufficiently real to have ever seen the great plain sins and judgments.

There is one good argument, as I have said, and one only, against the police mystery, and that is that police mysteries exist to destroy mystery when they have created it. A tale should be saddest when we finish it; a happy tale should be happiest when we finish it; a stirring tale should be most stirring at the end, a fantastic tale most fantastic at the end. But this kind of mysterious tale is not most mysterious at the end. It is then least mysterious, or, rather, not mysterious at all. Instead of making a commonplace thing mystical (the sin of all good art) the detective reverses the process and makes a mystical thing commonplace. And from this comes that one fatal weakness in the sensational novel of crime and detection, the one thing that does separate it, I am afraid, from great fiction, the fact that there is no impulse to read it again. A detective tale we have read is an empty bottle of wine, an exploded shell, a thing destroyed. The mystery of the sanity of Hamlet is alive and kicking still.—G. K. Chesterton in London News.

Quite Natural. "What's his name?" "Bill Short."

"Why does every one call him Jones?" "For Short."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A Spelling Rule. At a school inspection some of the boys found a difficulty in the correct placing of the letters "r" and "e" in such words as "believe," "receive," etc., when the inspector said blandly, "My boys, I will give you an infallible rule, one I invariably use myself: The pupils were all attention, and even the master pricked up his ears. The inspector continued: "It is simply this. Write the 'r' and 'e' exactly alike and put the dot in the middle over them."—London Telegraph.

Not What He Meant. Mother (to her daughter)—Will you play that new sonata for the doctor? Daughter—But, mamma, the doctor has had so much sorrow lately—Doctor—But, my dear young lady, to hear you play will not be pleasure.

Slidesteped It. Miss de Muir—Mr. Foxey, am I younger than I look, or am I older? Mr. Foxey—All I know about that is that nobody could possibly be half as young as you look.

BAD RUN-OFF

Locomotive and Six Cars Ditched Near St. Louise

A bad run-off occurred Monday afternoon, on No. 152 train, known as the Seaside Express, running from Montreal to Little Metis. The train was running along at an ordinary rate of speed, some two miles east of St. Louise, when the locomotive and six cars left the rails and ran off into the ditch. For about one thousand feet the track and road-bed were ripped and torn up, while the cars and locomotive were also damaged.

No one was injured fortunately. The locomotive, as far as can be learned was one of the new Pacific type. It was rumored that the engineer was beneath the engine, but this is incorrect.

The locomotive and three of the cars were gotten on the track without any great difficulty.

The maritime express reached here about 6.30 Tuesday evening eleven hours behind time, while the Ocean Limited was about seven hours late.

WEDDING BELLS

A very pretty wedding took place at the residence of Samuel Laughlin, Esq., Black Point, when his youngest daughter Martha was united in marriage to Milton Hicks Esq. of Presque Isle, Me by Rev. J. Whitefield Keirstead B. A. of Campbellton. Only the near relatives of the Laughlin family were present but these constitute quite a host, and everything was done to grace the occasion. The bride was dressed in cologne with trimmings of silver sequence and carried a bouquet of bride roses. Her travelling dress was brown with hat to match.

The chief presents consisted of a gold watch and chain from the groom, checks for considerable amounts from Mr. Hicks two brothers and S. Laughlin of Campbellton brother of the bride. The other presents which consisted of silverware chiefly were quite valuable.

Mr. and Mrs. Hicks came to Campbellton by the Local Express immediately after the marriage where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. Laughlin and left this morning for an extended visit to P. E. I. and U. S. They will make their future home in Presque Isle Me where Mr. Hicks carries an important trade as a dealer in produce.

Cuban Diarrhoea
U. S. soldiers who served in Cuba during the Spanish war know what this disease is, and that ordinary remedies have little more effect than so much water. Cuban Diarrhoea is almost as severe and dangerous as a mild attack of cholera. There is one remedy however, that can always be depended upon as will be seen by the following certificate from Mrs. Minnie Jacobs of Houston, Texas: "I hereby certify that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy cured my husband of a severe attack of Cuban diarrhoea which he brought home from Cuba. We had several doctors but they did him no good. One bottle of this remedy cured him, as our neighbors will testify. I thank God for so valuable a medicine." For sale by all druggists.

CARRIED OFF BY QUEBEC CONSTABLE

Caught at Newcastle and Rescued by Writ of Habeas Corpus.

Mr. Charles B. Champion was arrested by a River du Loup constable, the other day, on a charge of obtaining money on false pretences, and narrowly escaped being railroaded to Quebec in a summary fashion. He persuaded the constable to take him to the office of Tweedie and Haviland, and Mr. Tweedie after asking two or three questions, shrewdly inferred that the criminal process had been resorted to only as a means of collecting a civil judgment, and informed the constable that he would apply to a Judge. The constable hurried his prisoner out, rushed him to the station without allowing him to see his family and explain his absence, and placed him on the train for the north. Mr. Haviland drove up to Judge Wilkinson's, secured a writ of habeas corpus, and headed off the constable and his captive at Newcastle. Mr. Tweedie had expected to have to depend on the telegraph to stop them at Campbellton, but his young partner had forced the pace. The constable not caring to face an examination as to his instruction to settle for a consideration, did not attend the hearing was postponed till 29th. It appears that, some time ago, Mr. Champion gave the prosecutors an option on some land for $100, which they forfeited and subsequently demanded the return of, asserting that he was not the owner of the property. Mr. Champion replied that, though it was not in his name, he had the right to sell it and would have given a good title if the holders of the option had decided to purchase. They sued him for the $100 and got judgment, and this judgment and costs now amount to about $580. The constable who made the arrest was, it is known, authorized to settle the matter and stop proceedings for a money consideration.—World

The Scheffer Bros. Co.

CAMPBELLTON, N. B.
