NOT DEAF AND DUMB.

London, Sept. 6.—The Lancet, the leading medical journal of Great Britain, in an article taking notice of rumors which have been circulated through the American papers that the young son and heir of the Duke of York is deaf and dumb, says: "He is a fine child, notably intelligent for his age, and already repeats a number of words. Do our go-ahead American cousins," it asks, "expect a child nowadays to speak as soon as it is born?"

STANLEY COMING TO CANADA.

London, Sept. 6.—Before leaving for America, Henry M. Stanley, M.P., said to an interviewer: "I have nothing to say or do that concerns the public. I am simply going over to Canada and British Columbia for my health and to see what may be seen in the new land." Mrs. Stanley, who is in Switzerland, will not accompany her husband, whose tour will extend two months. When the news of Stanley's voyage reached the lobby of the House of Commons it was surmised immediately that he was in all probability concerned in behalf of the King of the Belgians, to whom he recently paid a visit at Ostend, in the promotion of a big emigration project to Canada.

BRITISH TRADES UNION CONGRESS.

Cardiff, Sept.6.—Messrs. Samuel Gompers and P. J. Maguire, who represent the United States in the Trades Congress, were given a hearty reception at yesterday afternoon's session. President Jenkins, in welcoming the American delegates, said that although geographically divided, the workers of America, Great Britain and Ireland were united on all the important questions pertaining to the elevation of their class. Mr. Gompers, in replying, spoke of the solidarity of feeling and sympathy that existed among the trades unionists of the countries represented in this congress. Mr. Gompers said he believed that the British Trades Union Congress and the American Federation of Labor would compare favorably with the British Parliament or with the American Congress. Mr. Gompers said further that America had many difficulties to contend with, but that it would be cowardice on the part of the wage-workers to defer the struggle, for the longer the contest was postponed the fiercer and more intense it would become. With labor united, swords shall be beaten into plowshares and spears into pruning hooks, and nations would learn war no more.

KILLED A SQUAW.

Two Indian Women Drink Whisky and Fight—One Clubbed to Death.

Wheatley, Ont., Sept. 6.—Yesterday some Indians living about 7 miles east of here went with baskets to Leamington, where they got drunk. After returning home two of the squaws named Mrs. Joseph Peters and Mrs. Thomas Dodge, got into a fight, which resulted in the former striking the latter in the head with a club killing her instantly.

PIRATES FIRED THE WRECK.

Canada's Inquiry Proves More Than Was Told of Freebooters of St. Lawrence Gulf.

Quebec, Sept. 6.—The investigation into the charges of piracy made against the fishermen of the lower part of the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the Straits of Belle Isle bears out all the complaints of the master of the steamship Mexico, and the stories told by many survivors of wrecks.

There is a shadow of excuse for these highwaymen of the sea in helping themselves to provisions from a ship that is going to pieces. Butter, cheese and bacon the Labrador fishermen know only by name. Their fare is of the roughest, and it is only when the fortunes of the sea cast such temptations in their way that they know the taste of them. The appropriations of such good things is not regarded as theft, because seldom does a ship stranded there survive the first gale of wind, so that in any event ship and cargo become a total loss.

In the case of the Mexico, however, the pirates not only declined to aid the captain to save anything from the wreck when it could have been saved, but they overawed the crew and notified the captain that whatever they saved would be their own. Then they stole the belongings of the captain and crew before their eyes.

Not content with carrying off the cargo, the pirates plundered the vessel of verything they could carry away. They stripped off her sails, took away the nautical instruments, and worse than all, set fire to the wreck to get at the more valuable cargo stored in the lower hold.

The locality in which the wreck occurred is beyond the Dominion's jurisdiction, and there is little hope that Newfoundland will do anythings towards punishing the marauders or checking their piratical operations.

Demoralized.

The Conservative Party in Cornwall and Stormont.

Their Picnic Proves a Great Fiasco.

A Row Over the Chairmanship—Montague Could Not Make Peace—Two Candidates.

Cornwall, Ont., Sept. 6.—The political picnic held at Newington yesterday proved a great fiasco. It was to have been held in the interest of Dr. Bergen, M.P., and it was announced that Sir Adolphe Caron, Hon. W. H. Montague and Hon. John Haggart would be present, while R. R. MacLennan, G. H. McDonell, S. Ross and Dr. Bergin would be present and deliver addresses. Previous to the picnic the annual meeting of the Conservative party was held, and a request was made on behalf of R. A. Pringle, chosen some time since as the Conservative candidate for the Commons, that a committee in his interest be allowed to attend the meeting to endeavor to settle differences that existed. Mr. Pringle was informed that he was not considered a Conservative, and that neither he nor his friends were wanted, and would not be admitted.

Only Hon. Mr. Montague and Dr. Bergin turned up of the speakers promised, but Hon. A. M. Ross, M.P., came with them.

A disturbance arose as to who should be chairman of the meeting, the name of A. F. Mulhern, of Cornwall, being put to the meeting, and carried by a large majority, while John McLaughlin, of Avonmore, claimed the position as his by right.

An address was presented to Dr. Montague, who endeavored to quiet the opposing interests, but without success, and as there was no prospect of settlement, he wished them good afternoon and took his departure, along with Dr. Bergin and Mr. Ross. This brought the meeting to a sudden termination. The entire proceedings did not take more than half an hour.

The demoralization of the once strong Conservative party in Cornwall and Stormont is complete. Dr. Bergin, the sitting member, has been effectually turned down, but will probably run anyway, while Mr. Pringle is also bound to stay in the field.

Windsor, Sept. 6.—An attempt to kill John Thompson, 157 Mercer street, was made when he was returning home on Wednesday at midnight by a man who stepped from behind a tree,pointed a revolver at Thompson's head and fired, but the latter dodged, and the bullet furrowed his scalp, and the would-be murderer escaped. Thompson said that his wife deserted him to live with an employe of the race track, with whom he had sworn to get even, and that the attempt to kill him, he thought, was the outcome of that trouble.

A High Old Time.

Two of London West's Councilors Have It.

Call Each Other Names and Indulge in Personalities.

The Deadlock Over the Debenture Question Continues.

The Reeve and Councilor Hamilton Pummel Each Other With Words—Meeting Breaks Up in Disorder.

Amid mud-slinging, insinuations, and the re-opening of old sores, the finance committee of London West (commonly called the council) broke up about 9:30 o'clock last night, after another unsuccessful attempt to unite the members on the tax rate question.

As four or five meetings of the council had been held in an endeavor to break the deadlock, and each one had proved a signal failure, the councilors thought they would try their luck in committee last night, and every member was in his place. There were some minor matters to dispose of anyway, and they came first on the order paper. Councilor Moore was in the chair, being the presiding officer during financial deliberations. He did everything nicely, and the very best of friendly feelings seemed to prevail. Although the village only has a few cents in its treasury, a $300 note coming due and no taxes coming in, a large grist of accounts were ordered paid, the reeve moving to that effect in most cases, and Councilor Hamilton, who leads the opposition to Mr. Macdonald's consolidation scheme, seconding the motion. Everything went along so smoothly that the ratepayers present really expected to see the tax rate bylaw pushed through so that they could figure on the amount they would have to contribute to the village coffers.

Disappointment was their doom, however, but in place of the passage of a tax bylaw they witnessed a magnificent exhibition of cross-firing, in which Reeve Macdonald and Councilor Hamilton were the principals, and in which the former repeatedly challenged Mr. Hamilton to resign his seat, put up the necessary money to defray expenses, and run for the reeveship on the debenture question alone. The row came about in this way.

After the committee had pushed through the routine and decided to recommend to the council that a bylaw be passed for the immediate collection of dog and poll taxes, the reeve brought up the stickler. The councilors had plenty of time to consider the question, and Mr. Macdonald urged them to talk it over in their cool moments. Some members of the council had stated, he heard, that they would never pass a consolidation bylaw as long as he was in the chair. Such a bylaw, however, was passed by the dying council of 1893, and an act passed by Parliament in accordance without any objection. Even his friend opposite (Councilor Hamilton) consented. The reeve had spent time and money to have the scheme carried out. The village councils were defaulters for ten years. The fact remained that the council was just as poor in 1893 as when the debentures were issued in 1883, and if it continued till the end of 1903 as at present the poverty would continue. The consolidation would be a mortgage on the village for a long period, but what one of the council would be alive 30 years hence? The reeve offered to leave the question with any financier in the city. As a financier, as one who, when a young man, had negotiated a very large loan in 1876, he was never accused of peculation until the debenture question came up. As a friend, he offered to let the opponents of it—Messrs. Hamilton, Andrews and Murdock—have all the business to do in connection with the consolidation. "The village had been victimized by peculation in every branch," concluded the reeve, "and I was the man who jumped into the gap and stopped it."

And Mr. Macdonald dropped his fist on the table with considerable force.

Councilor Hamilton thanked the reeve for his many explanations on the question, but he held that there were two ways of looking at every question. As for being Mr. Macdonald's opponent, he (Hamilton) did not consider himself as such. He thought that the reeve was a first-class fellow in every respect. Mr. Hamilton said he had made a mistake in the estimates presented the other night, and he wished to submit new figures, which would easily allow the rate to be struck at 26 mills. His new estimates were:

Interest on $29,000 debentures	$1,650
Interest and principal on $10,500.	633
Sinking fund on $29,000	1,061
Schools	2,800
Salaries	600
Lighting	850
Board of Health	75
Guarantee bonds	50
Printing	75
Expenses	50
County rate	500
Board of Works	450
Total	$8,774

Twenty-six mills on the total assessment would bring $8,814. Then there was the guarantee company's $1,000, $200 for licenses and other minor accounts.

When Mr. Hamilton moved the third item in the list the reeve and chairman laughed. "Don't jeer now," said Mr. Hamilton; "the horse that is hooted sometimes comes in first."

As chairman of the finance committee Mr. Moore distinctly stated that he would refuse to put a motion to strike the rate at 26 mills without consolidation. Messrs. Murdock, Hamilton and Andrews were a majority of the board, and if they persisted in their motion he would resign his seat.

Mr. Moore left the chair, picked up his hat and was making for the door.

He was interrupted by Reeve Macdonald, who said there was no necessity for such action.

Councilor Andrews, who generally plays the silent partner, urged a settlement of some kind. He wanted the rate struck at 26 mills for this year and the consolidation left to the ratepayers at the next election.

"Hear, hear," said a ratepayer in the back of the room.

At this stage the reeve and Mr. Hamilton got worked up, and the fun began.

Reeve Macdonald repeated his challenge to resign and run with Councilor Hamilton for the chief office.

"But you made that challenge before," replied Mr. Hamilton.

Mr. Macdonald—I will put up the money tomorrow. Come on.

Mr. Hamilton—But you need the money yourself badly enough. The only genuine reeve we ever had—Mr. Spence—made a similar challenge to you, and you took a back seat.

The spectators began to enjoy the turn of affairs immensely.

The reeve replied to Mr. Hamilton, claiming that he did not want to and would not run against a disqualified man. "And you will be disqualified next week," said Mr. Macdonald, as he shook his finger at Mr. Hamilton.

"Try it! Try it! I will show you a thing or two," was the reply.

Reeve Macdonald—I dare you to resign.

Both men were on their feet and vied each other across the table.

"I tell you when I run for reeve I want to run against a man. You are no Scotchman," said Mr. Hamilton.

Mr. Macdonald made reference to Mr. Hamilton's being in Geo. T. Hiscox's yard. And the ire of Mr. H. was raised to a high pitch. "That is all right, now; if you batter me with mud. I will give you all you want of the same thing," he replied.

Mr. Macdonald repeated his challenge. "Resign! Resign!" he shouted.

"It is not worth while," shouted Mr. Hamilton, amidst the uproar. "A man that will do what you did the last two elections will do anything. You are a bag of wind."

Mr. Macdonald stuck to his challenge, and intermingled with the laughter of the crowd were remarks about payments of debts, drinking whisky, etc. "The people would not trust you with the debenture question. You are a small man. I can pay my debts, and maybe that is more than you can do," concluded Mr. Hamilton.

When this point was reached the meeting broke up and nothing was done. The Hiscox incident happened eleven years ago, when Mr. Hamilton became somewhat jubilant on a holiday, lost his watch in Hiscox's livery yard and damaged the rig considerably. Mr. Hamilton is not backward in admitting it, but has long since "sworn off."

BY MAYOR LITTLE.

The London Bicycle Club Members Hospitably Entertained

At the Summer Residence Near Springbank—Over 100 Riders Were There—Decorations and Speeches and Good Things to Eat and Drink.

The members of the London Bicycle Club have in turn been entertained by the Two Johns, the Three Macs, Mr. Arthur Kingsmill and Col. F. B. Leys, but by none more hospitably than they were last night by Mayor Little.

At the invitation of Mr. Little, the club went to his summer residence, opposite Springbank, and spent the evening. It was a jolly time from the hour of leaving the club house until the city was reached on the return trip about 11:30 o'clock. The mayor's beautiful house and spacious lawns were thrown open to the guests, and the natural scenery of the surrounding country was immensely enjoyed.

Shortly before 8 o'clock the wheelmen and ladies—including several of the latter from Detroit, Sarnia, Petrolea and Wiarton—assembled at the club house on Dundas street, and proceeded to the mayor's residence, escorted by Mayor Little's eldest son, Mr. Bert Little. he route was by London West, and alongthe line the shouts of the merry wheelmen could be heard informing residents that it was the L-o-n-d-o-n Club. Arrived at the host's, wheels were stacked, and the riders were received by the Mayor and Mrs. Little, and extended a cordial welcome. A survey of the grounds was first taken, and its beauties greatly admired. The house was decorated with scores of Chinese lanterns, and trees were laden with them. Perhaps the most attractive sight was the pond. In the center were three small islands, and around the edge of each were arranged lanterns in such a position that they reflected in the water, clear as crystal, but only a specimen of what Londoners have to drink. When the inspection of the grounds was completed, the guests were invited to a luncheon prepared on the lawn, and comprising everything necessary to satisfy the appetites of the hungry wheelmen. The good things were greatly enjoyed, and Dr. Balfour called the assembly together. On behalf of the club he thanked Mayor and Mrs. Little for the hospitable entertainment. He assured the mayor that the club would do all in its power to assist the city officials in carrying out the laws regarding wheelmen, even to the five-mile limit in Victoria Park. Dr. Balfour concluded by calling for three cheers for the hosts, which were heartily given, with a tiger tacked on.

Mayor Little, on going forward to respond, was loudly applauded. He thanked the club for the kind words of the president, and stated that if they were pleased at being his guests, he and Mrs. Littlte were delighted at being their hosts. He hoped to again have the privilege of entertaining the club.

The riders lined up, sang "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and left for home amid a fine display of fireworks.

LATEST FROM MANITOBA.

Winnipeg, Sept. 6.—The Patrons' Advocate claims there is a wheat ring here. Prices are only from 40c to 45c cents per bushel.

A private report from Red River Valley says that there is considerable trouble with smut there. It is believed that the use of the same seed over again year after year causes some of the smut.

A report comes of one field of 21 acres which yielded over a thousand bushels of wheat.

On George Simpson's farm, near Portage, a field of 40 acres of summer fallow yielded 45 bushels per acre of fine wheat. This is authentic.

Thomas Charlton had an average of 32 bushels off 40 acres from a field inside of the town limits.

Banquetted.

Labor Delegates Receive Another Mark of Hospitality.

Entertained to Supper by the London Trades Council.

A Pleasant Evening and a Host of Happy and Congratulatory Speeches, Toasts, Music and Song.

The Trades and Labor delegates were banquetted at the City Hotel last night by the local Trades and Labor Council. The chair was occupied by Mr. Walter Toll, who, after an excellent repast had been eaten, introduced in a neat speech the usual patriotic toasts of the Queen, the Governor-General of Canada and the Lieutenant-Governor. The first was received with the National Anthem. The second was received by the delegates standing, but no one sang "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows." There is a motion before the congress to do away with the Governor-General, and the author of it, Wm. Darlington, resolutely retained his seat when the toast was being honored.

"The Trades and Labor Congress" brought replies from P. J. Jobin, president of the congress, and Alex. McDonald, Ottawa, vice-president. With honeyed words and a slight French accent, Mr. Jobin dilated on the hospitality of London, which he held to be the very essence of that quality. But he promised delegates from London an equally hospitable reception at Quebec next year, where it was hoped the congress would be held. Mr. Jobin eulogized the mayor and aldermen, and was particularly happy in dilating upon the fact that the mayor, when introduced Felix Marois, the head of the Quebec labor party, had accompanied a hearty hand-shake with a cordial welcome in French. Mr. Jobin then made a remark in French on the pleasure of hearing one's native language when far away from home.

"There are some of you who do not understand it," said he, "but those who do not should learn it."

Vice-President McDonald made an equally witty speech, in which he advocated the adoption of the early closing movement among London shop-keepers. He also spoke of the advisability of holding the next congress in a smaller place than Quebec, holding that such manufacturing centers as Sherbrooke and St. Johns, Que.; Cornwall, Kingston and other Ontario points should be given a show.

"The father of the congress"—D. J. O'Donoghue, Toronto—was next called on. "Taking all things into consideration," said Mr. O'Donoghue, "I have no reason to be ashamed of my children. (Hear, hear.) They are not deficient in intelligence. Man for man they will compare reasonably and very favorably with like numbers of any ordinary people. I am not now referring to those who constitute city councils." (Laughter.) Mr. O'Donoghue expressed the hope that his grandchildren would double or treble in numbers and intelligence. He said Toronto was the mother of the Trades Congress, and in a very humorous manner he described the history of its inception and progress.

Mr. O'Donoghue spoke very highly of the courtesies extended to the delegates by the mayor. He took that way of thanking him, because if somebody else told the mayor it might be thought that some favor was required in return.

"And as I speak of the mayor," said Mr. O'Donoghue, "just so do I speak of every employer who treats his employes like men. Were there more of them there would be less need of labor bodies."

"Labor Day, or the day we celebrate," was responded to by R. H. Hessell and H. B. Ashplant, London. Mr. Hessell referred with pride to the growth of Labor Day celebrations in London during the last four years.

Mr. Ashplant referred to the debate of the afternoon and hoped that the congress would never regret the step taken in admitting the younger Socialist party. He hoped they would never get to that extreme point when they would lose reason, judgment and discretion.

"The Knights of Labor" was responded to by A. Laforce Langevin and J. Scott, Quebec.

R. H. Hessell, vice-president, then took charge of the programme and introduced the toast "Trades Unions."

Michael Powell, Wm. Geary and D. J. Ryan replied.

"Visiting Delegates" brought happy responses from W. Darlington, Montreal; J. L. Langevin, Quebec; C. C. Steuart, Winnipeg; J. Flett, Hamilton; Geo. Dower, Toronto, and D. A. Carey, Toronto.

Joseph T. Marks and Frank Plant, London, replied to the toast "The Trades and Labor Council."

"The Mayor and Corporation" brought replies from Ald. J. W. Jones and Ald. H. Dreaney.

R. K. Cowan replied to the toast of "The Ladies," while "The Press" was responded to by Felix Marois, Quebec; D. A. Carey, Toronto Telegram; W. Hewitt, Toronto News, and local pressmen.

During the evening Mr. Geo. Beales, Toronto, sang several tenor solos, and sang them so well that encores were demanded. J. and G. Birmingham, Michael Keough, D. J. Marson and H. Fisher also contributed to the evening's programme.

Letters regretting inability to be present owing to previous engagements were received from his Worship Mayor Little, T. S. Hobbs, M.P.P., C. S. Hyman, M.P., and Dr. Cl. T. Campbell.

The banquetters dispersed at an early morning hour after singing "Auld Lang Syne."

GOLD FIELDS OF VANCOUVER.

Historian Begg Tells of Two Hundred Pounds of the Yellow Metal From One Pocket.

Quebec, Sept. 6.—Alexander Begg, the historian of the Canadian Northwest, has just returned from the mining districts of British Columbia and the newly discovered gold fields of Vancouver Island. He says that the district of Alberni is full of prospectors and that more are flocking in every day.

All American companies operating in British Columbia, Mr. Begg claims, are making large returns. The wealth of West Kootenay in both gold and silver is enormous. American capital is largely invested there and Americans own many of the best paying mines. East Kootenay is exceedingly rich in low grade ores of a better quality than those of Alaska.

The Caribou district is proving even richer than was expected, and there is great activity all along the Fraser. The Horsefly mine, owned by California people, has been most successful. Mr. Begg says that a party of five men in this district took out in a short time 200 pounds of gold quartz from one pocket, near the camp of Robert Beaven, while his men were taking 24 pounds. This was before the miners had appliances for working on a large scale.

TORONTO'S BIG FAIR.

Society Day at the Show—Notable Exhibits—Fireworks.

Toronto, Sept. 6.—Yesterday was Society Day at the Industrial Exhibition. There are fifteen social and beneficiary organiations represented in Society Row, their tents being uniform in size and arrangement, and handsomely decorated. Several excursions of societies arrived yesterday, including a large party of the K. O. T.M. from Meadville, Pa. Hon. D. P. Markey, supreme grand commander, and other leading officials accompanied it. The I. O. O. F. band, of Cleveland, has arrived.

Last night the evening programme of specialties was carried out, including the fireworks and the great military spectacle, "The Relief of Lucknow." Signor Balandez appeared in operatic selections, the grounds and buildings were brilliantly illuminated, and all departments of the exhibition were in operation until 10 p.m.

CHAS. BOECKH & SONS.

One of the most attractive exhibits last year, and one which proved of great interest to the general public, was that of Chas. Boeckh & Sons, in which was shown probably the largest variety of brushes, brooms and woodenware ever seen here, all exhibited by one firm. Their intention was to make even a much larger display this year, but were unable to secure the necessary space required to make an attractive show of their goods. The wares of this firm are known from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and one could hardly ask for Boeckh's brushes or brooms in any leading store in any village, town or city in the Dominion and not be able to procure them. They make it a strict rule to supply only first-class, reliable goods, which are always as represented, and as they have undoubtedly one of the best equipped factories on the continent, and are in a position to turn out their goods at the smallest possible cost, it may well be said of their wares that they are "good enough for anybody and cheap enough for a Chinaman." At their warehouse, at 80 York street, may be seen a full display of their different lines of manfactures, including painters', varnishers', kalsominers', artists' brushes, etc., of the very highest quality and workmanship; household brushes, toilet brushes, stable brushes; brooms for carpets, kitchens, yards, warehouses, factories, ships, etc.; pails, tubs, washboards, clothes pins, matches, and all the articles so necessary to modern house-keeping. We will endeavor to give a more complete description of the goods manufactured by this firm, which will no doubt prove of interest, and also of benefit, to our readers, as a brush or a broom is an article which is used by everybody, more or less, every day of their lives. b

PRINCESS THEATER.

By far the most interesting event of the season's amusements was the opening of the charming new playhouse, the Princess Theater, which took place this week, with the celebrated actor Frederick Warde as an attraction. The Toronto public may well be congratulated upon their good fortune in possessing such a charming and airy home of the drama as was presented to them on Monday night. The numerous cosy smoking and reading rooms, its wide aisles, its brilliant arches, provoked much admiring comment. The decorations of the approaches to the auditorium, which were a model of good taste, the pleasing tints of walls and columns, and the illumination of soft lights, formed a fitting introduction to the remarkable transformation that the house has undergone during the recess. The improvements looked their best when the uplifted curtain revealed the enchanting scenery of Sherwood Forest. Last night's production was somewhat of a novelty, both as to play and chief actor. Mr. Frederick Warde has not appeared here for many years. Although now a man of middle age, he produces an effect of entire youthfulness. His well-made form, handsome eyes and graceful bearing make him in appearance a romantic actor par excellence. Mr. Warde has the boards until the 9th, when he will be followed by Mr. Joseph Hart and his company, who produce "A Gay Old Boy," a musical comedy of more than usual merit. Toronto may indeed congratulate itself on gaining such a notable addition to its means of amusement, and visitors have a treat in store who visit this charming playhouse.

HURON LAY WORKERS.

Annual Convention at Windsor Next Month—Papers and Addresses to be Given.

The annual convention of the Huron Anglican Lay Workers and Sunday School Teachers with the clergy of the Diocese will be held in the school house of All Saints' Church, Windsor, on Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 23 and 24, beginning at 2:30 p.m on the first named day. There will be divine service in All Saints' Church on Wednesday evening, the 23rd, at which it is confidently expected that Mr. Eugene Stock, of London, England, will be present and speak on some topic connected with church work. The Bishop of Huron, who will preside at all the meetings, has very kindly consented to deliver an address on "A Missionary Church" at the open and final session of the convention. A women's meeting, to be held in the church, will be addressed by Mrs. Tilley, of London, on "Life and Its Opportunities." In addition to the foregoing subjects, the following papers have already been secured: "Christian Endeavor, in Relation to the Anglican Communion," by Canon Richardson, M.A., London; "The Lay Pioneer in Church Extension," by Gen. Trowbridge, of Detroit; "Defects of the Modern Sunday School," by Rev. Robert McCosh, Chatham; "The King's Daughters," by Mrs. Tilley, London; "How to Support the Church," by Rev. Trilby's Foot.

The step 'twixt the sublime and the ridiculous is quickly made. Surely literature presents no more grotesque idealization than Trilby's foot, and the numerous worshippers that have, figuratively speaking, bent knees and kissed the big toe of the foot when reason once more comes to their rescue will feel as if the production of the genus Ass were perennial. By the way, did you notice when reading Trilby how highly it commended Putnam's Corn Extractor, which renders impossible the discordant excrescence, corns. Trilby's foot would not be worthy of homage if marred by corns; neither would yours. Use Putnam's Corn Extractor.

"Well," said the bright woman who had asked for Pearline, to the grocer who wanted to sell her some imitation of it, "whether you do sell more of these other things or not, there must be something in Pearline which makes the flies avoid it. I notice that all the Pearline packages are clean and fresh. All the others are fly-specked!" This is a true story. Everything is true that we print about Pearline. The thing in Pearline that keeps flies off is its popularity. It doesn't stay on the shelves long enough to become soiled.

The Scrap Bag

"You would be surprised at the number of mental travelers there are in a community," said a railroad man recently to a Pittsburg Dispatch reporter. "I mean people who travel only in their minds; who, to indulge this mania, make a collection of railroad literature such as is issued in time-tables, excursion books, pamphlets, etc. You have often heard people talk knowingly of a place which you may have best evidence they have never visited. They can discourse fluently upon the hotels and principal sights of the city, even tell you of the trains and the connections they make, or describe the small stations through which they passed going there. If you have ever known a man or woman like this, then you have met a mental traveler. He might also be dubbed the railroad literature fiend, as this is the title by which he is known among the employes of railroad offices, who look no further into the motives of men than the surface.

"We have an old man who comes from Westmoreland county who never fails to appear upon the same date of each month. He seems to revel in going through the large batch of time-tables and books that have accumulated since his last visit. He never varies in his mode of procedure. After supplying himself with a sample of each one he comes over to the window, and with his face wreathed in smiles, in the intoxication of his delight, he says, 'how're you now, anyhow?"

"After being assured that our health still permitted us to continue at our business, he always asks, 'well, kin you tell me how much's the fare to Boston?'

"When this information is given he invariably remarks, 'Well, that's gol darn cheap, that is.'

"Then he lapses into a thoughtful mood, from which he breaks by making the assertion, 'Confound me, I'll go down there next year.' Then, picking up his grip, he starts off and we do not see him again for a month. He has been going to Boston 'next year,' to my own knowledge, for six years.

"These mental travelers get more satisfaction out of their dreamy wanderings than the usual tourist of the day who travels not to learn, but to kill time. One man told me that he had never been to Washington in his life, yet he was as familiar with the getting there and the city itself as if he had lived his lifetime there. He can talk about the streets and numbers and can direct people from one place to another with more accuracy than the average Pittsburg policeman can give you information about his town, and he gets it all from railroad literature. You watch the time-table racks of a railroad station and notice what a high class of people these mental travelers are."

Little Bertha came home from school the other day in a state of great excitement. Rushing in upon her mother, she exclaimed: "Oh, mamma, guess what we are going to do?" "Nothing very dreadful, I hope, my dear." "Why, our class is studying botany, and we're going to tantalize the flowers next week."

Gentlemen are generally supposed to be sportsmen (i. e., of course, when they incline to sport); that is why we endeavor to elect a gentleman to the captaincy of college teams and crews and put them on the committees of clubs who have to do with yachting, or polo or other sports. That is why, too, amateur sport has in the last ten years attained such universal recognition while professional sport has passed to degradation and almost out of existence. Not all gentlemen are sportsmen, but I have yet to see the sportsman who was not a gentleman by instinct, even if not by birth or education. A sportsman engages in sport for sport's sake only, and does by others as he would be done by. A "sporting man" or "sport" enters sport for mercenary motives, and prefers to "do" others.—Harper's Weekly.

POACHED EGGS ON TOAST.

There is always a best way of doin everything. Try this: Into skillet of well salted water—just to boiling point, place as many muffin rings as you wish eggs. Break the eggs carefully in a cup, then turn into the rings, one in each. Set back where they will cook slowly. When a white film covers the yolk they are done. Toast the bread evenly; dip a second in hot water, but do not soak; butter generously, lay egg on each slice. Send to table at once.

Summer fashions are getting to be more retrospective than anything else—more a case of reflecting upon what might have been than of planning new gowns for the season. There is little chance for the summer girl, who has already ensconced herself at her summer lodgings, to do anything to redeem it if is not satisfactory. She must take what mournful pleasure she can in gazing upon the good clothes of others. There is that young girl from Boston, who is always prepared for cool days with her crimson cashmere gown. It has a net over drapery on the bodice of a shade that is almost magenta, but the combination is very pretty. Black velvet ribbon is sewed on with one edge loose to simulate a sailor collar. With this gown she wears a yellow straw sailor, trimmed with red roses and black velvet, and looks provokingly comfortable on a cold day, while the

LAVENDER AND WHITE.

Savannah maiden who is prepared for nothing but warm weather shivers around in her lavender and white lawn, and makes a bad combination with her blue nose and fingers.

The Savannah gown has its day, however, when the thermometer goes skylarking up to ninety degrees in the shade. It has a white muslin skirt made over lavender silk. The bodice has a full back of the muslin with a silk front ornamented with two white lace flounces and a silk ruche for a heading. Ribbon of a deeper purple than the gown forms the collar and belt, and long stripes of the same are draped from the waist to be caught in a large bow near the bottom of the skirt. The sleeves are puffless for several inches below the shoulder, but make up for it before they reach the elbow.

REMOVABLE SLEEVES.

Placed in Summer Dresses for the Convenience of the Laundress.

Sleeves that look as if they could be unbuttoned and taken off are the latest variety. This would be a comfort to the wearer of coats. The puff could be removed and laid away where it could not get wrinkled, while the happy wearer donned her jacket and tripped off to church without a misgiving and with the comfortable sensation that one feels to know that one's arms are not in the way.

There are two occasions when the arms are very much in the way—when dress sleeves are too large for the coat that goes over them and when one first takes a coat off in the early spring. This scheme of taking the puffs off would be very nice for dresses that are to be laundered. One device for summer dresses is to button the puff around shoulder and elbow. This makes it easy to remove and launder.

Silks, by the way, have been relegated to the second best gowns. The first best are crepons even to one's fancy waist. The only silk that is really elegant is the Dresden variety which has tiny figures all over it.

The Newest Skirt.

The newest skirt is made of white moreen, and is to be worn under cotton, silk, or any light-weight material that will not stand a stiff lining. It is cut by the godet pattern and has as decoration three box-plaitings of the white haircloth, the top one having as a finish a thick silk cord. This seems a rather expensive skirt, but it will be found very useful, especially to the woman who likes pretty cotton toilettes.

The advice of physicians, as well as the teaching of experience, has convinced the average woman that it is wise to wear a woolen skirt the entire summer through. There is more truth than fiction in the old adage that "what will keep out the cold will keep out the heat." Flannelette, which is, in reality, a flannel with a large proportion of cotton in it, is shown in what might be called Dresden colors, so faint and delicate are they. They are in stripes, often simple hair lines, and sometimes lines a quarter of an inch wide are seen. Blue and white, pink and white and brown and white, are contrasts seen, while a pale blue ground will have stripes of pink and brown upon it, and a pink one white and blue. These petticoats are invariably made by hand, and are trimmed with either a coarse woven or knitted lace. Fashionable women elect to have the lace which is knitted by hand in the faint Roman colors.

These skirts reach quite to the knees and do not require an outer skirt if one's skirt is lined with silk or if one wishes only to wear a skirt of haircloth.

Drainage of Flowers in Pots.

Although all persons are familiar with the fact that the flower pot must have a hole in the bottom, very few understand why it is necessary that the water should be allowed to escape. The usual thought is that water is essential to plant life. To some extent no plant could live in thoroughly dry earth. At the same time atmospheric air is of quite as much importance if not more importance than water, and the change of air is as necessary for the roots of plants as for human beings. Air in the earth in a flower pot soon loses its life giving powers and has to be changed for fresh air. Water accomplishes this by driving out all the foul air and then after the water passes away, a new supply of air takes the place of the water. In this way continual watering thoroughly aerates the oil. A plant in a flower pot which seldom needs watering is in a bad condition.

MACKAY TO MILLS.

Rev. Dr. Mackay Refuses to Reply to Hon. D. Mills' Arraignment of His Recent Doings.

A Charge That the Bothwell Statesman Evades the Point.

To the Editor of the "Advertiser:"

Hon. D. Mills has given the press another long communication; but instead of replying to my question and defining his attitude on the prohibition of the liquor traffic he has presented the public with a considerable section of my religious, or rather irreligious biography. It is quite flattering to my vanity that such a philosopher as Mr. Mills should study so minutely all my affairs, public and private. This biography is truly refreshing in being so free from that fulsome flattery which so often mars this kind of literature. It is also thoroughly original, for the greater part of it was never thought of until it originated in the fertile imagination of the sage of Bothwell.

In my last letter I pressed Mr. Mills so hard to define his attitude to prohibition that he must say something. But what could he say? He must not in any way express sympathy with this reform, or promise that he would make it an issue, for that would alienate the liquor votes and liquor money throughout the country in the coming campaign, and then, on the other hand, he must not, in so many words, declare that he is opposed to prohibition, for then prohibitionists might vote against him. So what will he do? Why, he will adopt that exalted rule of political action, which he lauds so highly in a former communication, viz., "expediency"; and he will say nothing on the real subject, but discuss side issues, and thus hope to catch, as in past elections, the opposing parties—the brewers and the Christians, those who believe in beer and those who believe in the Bible. Glorious doctrine, this of "expediency," for politicians of the Mills stripe! He must also crush that "Woodstock preacher," who dared to tell the public how the politicians were fooling with this question, and how Mr. Mills had just lately voted with the brewers. Hence the coarse, vulgar impeachment of my motives, and the cunning evasion of the real issue that constitute Mr. Mills' last letter. Hence also the angry tone that breathes almost in every sentence.

"Error, wounded, writhes in pain." It is the old story, "No case; abuse the opposing attorney." No doubt there are camp followers and hungry office seekers, and some politicians of the guttersnipe sort, who will applaud such villification; but the better class of electors, whatever their political stripe, will refuse to accept personal abuse for argument. There is an old Scotch proverb which Mr. Mills would do well to keep in mind, 'Ye may puff lang at Stranrear ere ye winnow grain at John-o'-Groat's." I may be far more naughty than he makes me out to be. My motives may be as selfish, mercenary and devilish as he says they are, but the great question between him and the public remains untouched. What is that question? Not my motives, good or bad, but the attitude of the political parties to prohibition; and especially the attitude of Mr. Mills himself. Mr. Mills feigns indignation at what he calls "insult and calumny." But the reader will search my communications in vain for a single sentence of "calumny," and if the truth "insults" Mr. Mills, all the worse for him. I know nothing about his motives, and I said nothing about them. I did call in question the correctness of his statement of facts, and I have proved as clear as 2 and 2 make 4, that his statement was wholly and knowingly incorrect. He devoted a whole column to prove that I blundered, because I said in the town hall, Woodstock, that he was present at a prohibition caucus, and he gave the Sentinel-Review as his witness. But the Sentinel-Review, in its issue of Aug. 13, declares that I never made the statement attributed to me by Mr. Mills. Who then is the blunderer? On the 17th of June he stated in his place in Parliament that the jurisdiction of Parliament was before the Privy Council; and yet, as any reader can verify for himself, the daily papers for more than four weeks prior to June 17, published the seven questions submitted to the Privy Council, not one of which expresses a doubt as to the jurisdiction of Parliament. Does Mr. Mills not see the daily papers? It is now acknowledged that the jurisdiction of Parliament is not before the court. Hence Mr. Mills' statement in Parliament was incorrect; and, unless he failed, for a whole month, to read the daily papers, the incorrect statement was knowingly made. I care nothing about his "state of mind," or his "motives," I deal with "facts," not "motives," or "state of mind"; and Mr. Mills, with all his learned verbiage, may hiss and squirm, but the facts are there, explain them by the doctrine of "expediency" or otherwise, as he please.

I wonder what Hon. D. Mills takes the temperance people to be, when he expects their votes; and yet in Parliament he votes with the brewers, and out of Parliament he cannot be persuaded to avow any sympathy with prohibitory legislation. On May 20, 1891, he is reported as saying in Parliament, that "Prohibition would be a bad thing for the temperance cause." Does he regard temperance people as so many noodles to vote for one who sneers at them or is ashamed or afraid to avow their principles?

He tells us we have no right to ask him how he will vote on prohibition. This is an extraordinary doctrine to announce at this day and in this country. Are we living in Caffraria or in Durango? My countrymen cease your vaporings about glorious country, constitutional government, and Christian civilization. It is yours only to vote Grit or Tory, and ask no questions. This is Hon. D. Mills' doctrine of "expediency." How nice and comfortable it makes things for the politician!

But wicked people will ask questions, and just at the most inopportune time, when an election is at hand. A majority of 82,000 of the electors of Ontario are presumptuous enough to differ from Mr. Mills in his views of prohibition, and they are not prepared to set him up on some elevated pedestal, as an irresponsible autocrat. Mr. Mills, notwithstanding his lofty airs about irresponsibility, is the servant of the people. They are his master, and they have a right to ask him for an account of his stewardship. Although he disclaims responsibility for his conduct in Parliament, and says we have no right to interrogate him, yet I have never heard that he refused to pocket his salary of $1,000 a year, or to charge the country his mileage, although probably like other M. P.s he travels on a free pass. This is the "Hon." politician who is so horrified at my moral obliquity, because I have occasionally accepted remuneration for honest service rendered to a good cause away from home.

Mr. Mills is at infinite pains to prove me a Tory. He thinks thus to create party prejudice, and render less effective my charges against himself and his political party. But I beg to be excused. I am no Tory any more than I am a Grit. The Tories are as deep in the mud as the Grits are in the mire on the prohibition question. Hon. Mr. Mills may not be able to conceive of an intelligent citizen who is not labelled "Grit" or "Tory"; but I can assure him there are a great many of them, and their number is every day increasing, and when the day of election comes they may find it both right and "expedient" to leave some of the present M. P.'s at home.

Mr. Mills bears false witness when (no doubt it was "expedient") he represents me as condemning our legislators wholesale, and no exception, even including Mr. Flint. There are honorable and faithful men in Parliament on both sides of the House, and the prayer of my heart is, God help them! There are statesmen in Parliament, but there are too many sycophants, tricksters, and knaves who know no higher rule of life than expediency; and their chief characteristics are imbecility and immorality. I ask Mills & Co. what about the Tories, and the unanimous testimony is "they are corrupt to the core, and many of them should be wearing the Queen's uniform within prison walls." Then I ask the Conservatives what about Mills & Co., and the equally unanimous testimony is "they are greedy for the spoils of office like a pack of hungry wolves howling for their prey, using all cowardly and corrupt means to attain power, in order that they may sell our country to the United States, and perpetrate other similar villainies." Let any one read the reports of our Parliamentary proceedings, and what do they reveal but charges and counter charges, robbery and jobbery, peculation and prevarication, and fraud of every sort. Bribes to Provinces in the shape of better terms; bribes to constituencies in the shape of grants for local works; bribes to societies and churches by patronage through representatives; bribes to great distilleries and breweries by special legislation in their favor; bribes to railways in the shape of Government grants; bribes from railways to members of Parliament in the shape of free railway passes; bribes to the press by a liberal distribution of "pap"; bribes to the manufacturers by subordinating to them the commercial policy of our country. Whole communities are thus demoralized, and unless the people are aroused we will soon reach the stage of moral as well as financial bankruptcy. And yet Mr. Mills tells us we are not to interrogate, we must ask no questions. The Grit or Tory idol is set up, and it is for us to bow the knee and worship whenever we hear the sound of the party cornet, flute, harp, sackbut, psaltery or dulcimer. Beg your pardon, Mr. Mills, I am neither Grit nor Tory. Principle is more to me than either of our political parties, and I shall seek to serve my native land according to the best of my ability, without the party tag.

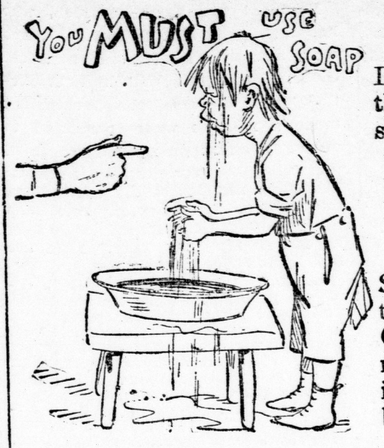

In conclusion, I decline to discuss with Mr. Mills my motives. He is not my judge. I recall Mr. Mills' attention to the real issue before us, and the only question of interest to the public, viz., his own attitude and that of the political parties to prohibition. However much Mr. Mills may try to divert the attention from this question, the intelligent reader will remember that, so far as I am concerned, this has been throughout the whole discussion my first and last and only subject. It was the subject of the Patron-Prohibition meeting. It was the subject in my Globe letter, which so alarmed the politicians and it has been the subject of every communication I have written since then, and it will continue to be my subject till the discussion is over. This is the subject Mr. Mills has not yet touched. He takes a great many words to conceal his thoughts, but he persistently refuses to avow himself a prohibitionist, or to say that he will make it an issue in the campaign. And yet he expects prohibitionists to vote for him! Again I ask him to define himself. The reader will watch whether he will do it, or whether he will not prefer to give two or three more columns of my biography. Yours truly, W. A. MACKAY.

CANADA'S INTEREST IN THE OLD LAND.

The Scottish Farmer—a leading agricultural journal in the old land—finds some consolation for the present condition of affairs in landlord-controlled Britain by looking at the position of farmers in other lands. On the European continent, where "protection" is the rule, the farmers are not as well off as the British agriculturists, and in Germany the Emperor is especially concerned about the condition of the industry. While this is true, and while it is a fact that the high tax policy has handicapped the farmers in the United States and Canada, and every other British colony where it has been tried, there are indications of a strong revolt against the system. Australia has already largely given it up, and in New Zealand the tariff has in recent years chiefly been laid on to produce a legitimate revenue only.

British farmers are beginning to see that there are many ways by which their condition can be improved legitimately. They had a taste of "protection," and it proved as offensive to them and to the great mass of the workers in factories and out of them as it has proved in Canada. But there are reforms which would help them if effected. For example, there is railway discrimination. Butter and cheese handled at Southampton are sent to London for $1 50 a ton, while for the same articles made in England the charges are $4 50 a ton. Imported hay is carried from Southampton for $1 25, and from Winchester, twelve miles nearer London, for $2 37. There is no reason at all why a railway company should thus be permitted to handicap the British farmer for the benefit of the foreigner. nor should the fictitious rental for land, established at the time of the Crimean war, longer be looked for by landlords.

Just in proportion as rents are lowered, freight rates equalized, and modern improvements in the production of crops and stock, will be the success of the British farmer. We have already shown how a former resident of this Province makes farming pay well in Britain. Let us give the experience of little Denmark as a further illustration. Out of 226,000 farms in that country, only 1,900 are over 200 acres in extent, and most of them are worked by their owners. By their great technical knowledge of their business and the gradual change from growing grain to breeding cattle and dairy farming, the Danish farmers have suffered less from trans-Atlantic competition than those of any other European country. Indeed, many of them have prospered exceedingly.

The conditions in Canada are now such that our farmers must keep continually alert to throw off every shackle that would impede their efforts to compete with these wide awake old world agriculturists, and must adopt every improved agency that will enable them to hold their own in the ever-intensifying competition which they must face. Our two great markets for produce and stock are in Britain and in the United States. In the United States, we find but one competitor, the United States producer, but nearness to market and general excellence of our exports enable us to sell many millions worth of products every year. This we are enabled to do despite the barbed wire tariff fences which we and our neighbors mutually keep erected between the two countries. There is no such fence between us and the British market, but there, no matter what we have to sell, we meet with competition from every producing land in the civilized and uncivilized world. Great Britain welcomes all we have to send to her, on two conditions—we must accept a price governed by the supply from every portion of the earth, and we must take pay in products of British industry. If, when these products reach our borders, we put a tax on them, the greater the tax the worse for ourselves. The more difficult we make trade between Canada and Britain, or any other country, for that matter, the less profit there will be in it for our traders and producers.

When we commiserate with the British farmer, who has to keep not only his own household in bread and butter, but to maintain rich and idle landlords out of the soil which he farms, let us not forget our own interest in the matter. Our farmers find it hard enough to make ends meet now. Where would they be if our "protectionist" advocates could prevail upon the British people to adopt the Canadian high tax policy of trade restriction, which would make it still more difficult to make a profit on trade with the motherland?

POINTS.

Yesterday, Dr. Barnardo, the professional London, Eng.. philanthropist, shipped to Canada 145 boys and 156 girls, who had been collected by his agents from the slums of great cities of England. Little he cares for the protests of Canadian workers against the bonused system of immigration so long as he is backed from Ottawa and by the rich people of the old country.

Imprisonment has failed to check Holmes' crimes. He has just written a book.

In three months, under the lowered United States tariff, the exports of Ontario farm products to the United States increased nearly one million dollars. High tax papers continue to sneer at the market of sixty millions.

The Mail-Empire naively announced that Hon. Mr. Patterson had finally consented to accept the Lieutenant-Governership of Manitoba. What a heap of coaxing he required!

It is no credit to civilization that Japan thinks she is best imitating the great nations by purchasing $25,000,000 worth of floating man-killers.

Toronto is bound to impress strangers. The latest method is to give them diluted sewage to drink.

The revised United States tariff removed all duties from cotton ties, and the manufacturers of them cried that they would be ruined. In the past year only $120 worth of cotton ties entered the United States, and makers there were never so busy.

Letters posted in London, Eng., last month reached Winnipeg nine days later. This is a fast age.

Tomorrow the much-talked-of international yacht race begins near New York. The owners of the Valkyrie, the British competitor, have said little, but they have been practicing much, while the Defender backers have been loud in their assertions that the United States craft is a winner. Over here we desire that the best vessel shall win. We have our doubts about the Defender.

If a storm comes on, get into a trolley car. Electricians tell us that they are the safest retreats during a thunder storm. The wires and car pole make the best kind of lightning rod.

The strength of the anti-Christian feeling which prevails among the followers of Mahomet was fittingly exemplified at Espahan, Persia, the other day, when an English missionary took home a young native woman, a peasant's wife, whom he had converted. Her relatives found out where she was and asked that she should be given up, but he refused. The Mohammedans then mobbed the mission house, and the governor of the Province, the Shah's son, requested the missionary to yield. He would listen neither to him nor to the British agent, who was also called in. Finally the agent, to prevent bloodshed, had the woman taken out of the house and restored to her friends by main force. When a missionary cares for his converts in this way he takes his life in his hand.

If bank deposits are an indication of prosperity, Ireland made great progress last year. The official returns show that the deposits in Irish joint stock banks increased $10,000,000 in the twelve months, while the savings banks held $38,855,000—an increase of $3,720,000 in a year.

Dr. Forbes Winslow, the British insanity expert, asserts that there is no such thing as "a harmless lunatic." In that case, the asylums for the insane will have to be enlarged. Places must be found for that species of the race which professes to believe that the more a man is taxed the richer he becomes.

A STRIKING RECORD.

The turn in the political tide of Canada took place in 1892, when the Thompson Ministry was formed, and the Haggart-Caron combination got the upper hand of the Government.

Since that time ten bye-elections have been contested by the two great parties—the Liberals and Conservatives.

The constituencies thus fought for were: Soulanges, North Hastings, Vaudreuil, Winnipeg, Gloucester, L'Islet, South Middlesex, Vercheres, Antigonish and Westmoreland.

Six out of these ten elections were won by the Liberals, and four of the six were seats held by the Conservatives till then. These Liberal gains were Vaudreuil, Que.; Winnipeg, Man.; L'Islet, Que., and Antigonish, N. S.

The seat for Antigonish was that held by Sir John Thompson, but it went Liberal at the first opportunity after his death by a decided majority.

When the men in power summon sufficient courage to open West Huron, it will be added to the list of constituencies that desire a change of men and methods. Public opinion cannot longer be stilled.

WITHDRAW!

Principal Grant, of Kingston, who has been on a visit to Manitoba, has written some of his impressions to the Globe. He agrees with the "Advertiser" that the Manitoba Government made a mistake when it refused to admit, in any degree, the strength of the feeling in favor of separate schools in certain sections of the community, but he even more strongly condemns the Dominion Government for issuing its foolish remedial order. Here are Dr. Grant's conclusions:

"A government is unwise which arrays a permanent force against itself, and there is no force so permanent, and at the same time so easily aroused, as religious conviction, or—if people prefer the word—religious prejudice. In the same way, it seems to me, that the Federal Government is making a mistake in arraying against itself another permanent force, and one which appeals, less or more, to every man, woman and child in the Province—I mean the sentiment of Provincial self-government. Sir Mackenzie Bowell, in the course of his first Parliamentary address as Conservative leader, on April 22 said: 'I hope sincerely that the people of Manitoba may see their way clear to settle this question among themselves. . . . If the people of Manitoba are patriots they will keep this question out of the arena of Dominion politics.' Permit me to point out respectfully that the people of Manitoba have had no opportunity since the last decision of the Privy Council was given to express their views on the subject, but that the Federal Government has thrown it into the arena of Dominion politics, and has thus aroused a state of Provincial feeling which makes it almost impossible to discuss the question on its merits. The sooner it retraces its steps the better. In the meantime, the people suffer because the kings—Provincial and Federal—are unwise, if I may be allowed a free translation of a well-known Latin line."

The first step to be taken is to withdraw the remedial order, which even strong Conservatives like Dr. Grant and the editor of the Montreal Gazette denounce as worse than a blunder.

TELEPHONIC DIFFICULTIES.

The telephone, it is said, is not making much progress in Russia. And no wonder! Fancy a man going to the 'phone and yelling: 'Halloa, is that you, Divostkivschemartvoiczski?' 'No, it'sZollemschouskaffirnochnstiffsgowiff, Who's speaking?' 'Eezimochockiertrjuaksmzyskiscokokefmoff. FULL DRESS IN CHICAGO.

Mr. Keir Hardie, on his arrival at Chicago, was dressed in a pair of Scotch tweed knickerbockers, an alpaca coat, a neglige shirt and a slouch cap. He made a capital impression on society. This combination has long passed for full dress in Chicago.—Buffalo Express.

A TREMENDOUS CHANGE.

The statistician's figures show an increase of 30 per cent in the number of votes in New Brunswick. The Conservative vote in Westmoreland in 1891 was 4,205, and an increase of 30 per cent (this year) would have been 1,260. Instead of that the Conservative vote declined by 550, although the contest of 1895, as they say, was much keener than that of 1891. What has become of those 1,810 good Conservative votes?—Toronto Globe.

REACHING THE SENSES.

All the bright advertising thoughts are by no means American. A London dealer, whose specialty was shoes for 'bus drivers, demonstrated their applicability for this purpose by keeping a pair in his window inbedded in a cake of ice—the public having been invited to convince itself of their coziness by stepping in and feeling them. This is good advertising; for people are easily persuaded through the senses. And yet for every customer made by a shop window it is not extravagant to say that a thousand are made by the larger window of publicity—the daily paper—providing always that such window is properly "dressed."—Philadelphia Record.

CRICKET.

GREAT PLAY BY LADIES.

When the stumps in the international cricket match had been drawn and the crowd had gone its way, reflecting on what might have happened, the prettiest sight of the day was seen. The women cricketers of Staten Island, anxious not to let any time expire before they emulated the Englishmen, started in with bat and ball to imitate the latest transatlantic wrinkles. The two Miss Robinsons, the two Miss Taylors, and Miss Coffin were the star performers, while the Oxford and Cambridge cricketers looked on with amazement at the catching and bowling of the fair athletes who had defeated the men. When Miss Coffin made a splendid one-hand catch the men in light and dark blue coats applauded loudly, while a disgruntled New Yorker said that it was a pity she was not on the American team.—New York Snn.

INTERNATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP

Queen's Royal, Niagara, Ont., Sept. 6.—The international golf tournament opened on the Niagara links yesterday. The open handicap had 26 entries, including many crack players of the United States and Canada. The winner was George S. Willetts, of Chicago, with a score of 98. The driving competition for distance and accuracy between flags 40 feet apart, was won by Charles B. MacDonald, who drove 179 yards 1 foot 6 inches, being the best of only three trials.

AQUATIC.

NEW DEPARTURE IN REPORTING.

New York, Sept. 6.—Saturday's international yacht race will be the occasion for an innovation in the means of transmitting news of the progress of the contest between the champion boats of England and America. Instead of depending on the guesswork of watchers along the coast, who may be fifteen or twenty miles distant from the races, the Commercial Cable Company steamer MacKay-Bennett will lay a marine cable to the scene of the race. The end of the cable will be on board, and specially connected with England and France through the company's main ocean cable, landing at Coney Island. The Postal Telegraph Company will also have an office on board the steamer, and will forward telegrams to all points in the United States, Canada and England.

AZOTE'S FAST MILE.

Galesburg, Ill., Sept. 6.—Yesterday was another record-breaking day for the Galesburg track, and the great Azote was the one to lower his own mark of 2:05 1-2 made at Fleetwood a few days ago. He was accompanied by a runner, and to the quarter they flew in 29 3-4 seconds, and around to the half they went in 1:01 1-2. To the three-quarters, with the runner close to him, Azote went and passed the pole in 1:34. Down the stretch he came like a bird, and passed under the wire in 2:04 3-4, the fastest mile trotted by any horse this year. Today Alix will start to lower her mark of 2:03 3-4 made over this track last year.

THE WHEEL.

TO RIDE 1,000 MILES.

Toronto, Sept. 6.—At 2:30 p.m. yesterday, Ferdinand Shabel, the long distance French champion, commenced his 1,000 mile journey on the island track. He is in the best of condition and expects to ride the first 24 hours without dismounting. He started off at a clip better than 20 miles an hour. He completed his 100 miles in 5 hours, 12 minutes, 30 2-5 seconds. At 10:30 he had done 140 miles in 7 hours, 32 minutes, 14 2-5 seconds, and after nearly eight hours' riding he was still going at a twenty-mile clip.

TANDEM RECORD SMASHED.

London, Sept. 6.—The bicyclists Holbein and Stokes have ridden 397 1-2 miles on the Norfolk roads on a tandem safety machine in 24 hours. This establishes a new record.

MIDDLESEX NEWS.

A Great Apple Tree in London Township—Mr. Patrick's Loss—Runaway Accident—Personal and Other News in the County.

Melbourne has a new store.

Rev. J. B. Kennedy, Kerwood, has a new top cart.

Colin Campbell, of De Sota, Mo., has arrived at Lobo.

Rev. Dr. Waters has been preaching with much acceptance in Parkhill.

Alex. Lochead, druggist, Parkhill, has gone to the College of Pharmacy.

Sneak thieves have been stealing chickens from T. W. Northcott, Strathroy.

Rev. Mr. Aylward and family, Parkhill, have been summering at Grand Bend.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Smith, Miss Smith, Strathroy, and Mr. M. Smith, of Forest, are on a visit to Manitoba.

Mrs. Janet Munro, Strathroy, is dead, aged 76, of cancer. Hugh Munro, Parkhill, is her only surviving relative in the country.

John Fuller, Metcalfe, returned last week from a month's sojourn in England and Scotland. He will go over again in the fall.

The handsome cottage on Center street, Strathroy, belonging to Mrs. Leonard, has been purchased for $1,000 by F. J. Wright.

Mrs. W. G. Young, of Port Huron, was called to Ailsa Craig Monday by the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. Graham. She died on Wednesday morning.

The largest load of flax ever seen in Ailsa Craig was brought in on Wednesday from the Granger farm at Lobo, by Joseph Hetherington, and which contained six tons of seeded flax.

Dr. Anderson, Ailsa Craig, nearly lost his life on Sunday through having taken poison in mistake. Dr. Caw was summoned, and he and Drs. Gunn and Stewart did all they could to relieve the sufferer and prevent fatal results, and the patient is now about all right.

Last Monday afternoon and evening a number of relatives and friends gathered at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. John Paine, con. 9, Caradoc, to celebrate the twentieth anniversary of their wedding day. Mrs. Benson Ward read a very congratulatory address.

Mosa and Ekfrid Fair will receive a Government grant on $286 90 of membership fees this year, nearly double that of the largest in any previous year. Last year the paid-up membership fees amounted to $180 at the end of August, and the largest in any other year was 190.

On Tuesday evening Mrs. Page, of London, and Mrs. Griffin and daughter, of West Nissouri, were driving to their brother's, Mr. Wright Hayes, con. 13, London township, when the horse became unmanageable on the hills at Plover Mills, and all were thrown out and bandly hurt, Mrs. Griffin being unconscious.

Frank Robinson, who had been in the employ of Dr. McIntyre, Glencoe, for 25 years, died at the London Hospital the other day. Deceased was 82 years of age, and was a native of Yorkshire, England. He served for thirteen years in the Twentieth Regiment of Foot, having enlisted in that regiment on April 20, 1837.

Mr. Peter Steele, Sylvan, McGillivray, met with a serious loss the other evening. While doing his chores a colt kicked the lantern from his hand. It exploded, and in a moment his barn was on fire and nothing could be done to save it. His entire crop, together with the barn, which was new, was destroyed, only horses and some implements being saved.

The loss of J. H. Patrick, lot 22, con. 11, London township, by Thursday morning's fire will reach between $4,000 and $5,000. Insurance $1,800. A blooded horse was got out just in the nick of time, and other animals were also saved. A binder and some other machinery was also got out safely, but everything else was destroyed. The fire was ignited by an incendiary. Mr. Boulton's separator was valued at $400, and was uninsured.

On the farm of James Tuckey, con. 5, London township, stands a mammoth apple tree, bearing each year splendid winter fruit, which downs the record of large fruit trees. The other day Louis Fortner, of Strathroy, measured it eight inches above the root and found the circumference of the trunk at that point to be ten feet six inches. This king of the orchard is sound and solid and has the appearance of many years of fruit-bearing life in store. It is capable of yielding 30 barrels of apples in one season.

Mr. James McGraw, formerly G. T. R. brakeman, and a well-known resident in Parkhill, was killed in a tunnel on which he was working in Milwaukee last week. When the work was completed Mr. McGraw said to his companions (merely to be last man out of the tunnel) that he would go down once more. He at once took hold of the rope of the shaft to lower himself, when the shaft over-balanced and pitched the ill-fated young man to his doom—a fall of 165 feet. He fell into about ten feet of water, and when his body was found the vital spark had departed. He was only 25 years of age, and leaves an aged mother and several brothers and sisters.

They Got In!

Socialists to be Represented at the Trades Congress.

The Most Vigorous Debate of the Week.

In Which an Old Sore Was Reopened.

Socialists Successful After Several Years' Fight.

A Margin of One Vote—A Londoner Refuses to Vote—Ottawa and London Go Nearly Solid for the Representation—Government Subsidies.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON,

After dinner the debate on the question of admitting the Patrons of Industry into representation in the Congress of the Federation of Labor was resumed, Delegate Hay, of Ottawa, moved in amendment that the matter be referred back to the executive committee, with instructions to place delegates from the National Council of Women of Canada in the same position in the Congress as other bodies.

A. W. Holmes, Toronto, favored Patron representation and Delegate O'Donoghue, of Toronto, thought it would hardly be fair to the Patrons after inviting them to be represented on the board last year to withdraw from that stand before the Patrons were even given an opportunity to state their views in Congress. He asked the mover of the motion to withdraw it.

C. C. Stewart, Winnipeg, said that the Patrons were held in high esteem by the Manitoba labor people. He enjoined Delegate St. Pierre to withdraw the motion.

This Mr. St. Pierre did "as a matter of courtesy and in order to save time."

And the Patrons will continue to have the privilege of being represented in the Congress by the new constitution.

SOCIALISM INTRODUCED.

After deciding to continue the Patrons' representation in the Congress the question arose of allowing the London Industrial Brotherhood the same privilege. Joseph T. Marks, London, explained the objects of the organization, and after a short debate the Industrial Brotherhood were granted that favor.

Then an old sore was reopened by a motion to allow representation to the Socialistic labor party. While the debate was on, words, and very bitter words, passed around the chamber.

Delegate St. Pierre ruffled the feelings of Delegate O'Donoghue during the discussion by calling him a politician, and designating him as belonging to the party that the Socialistic body had to fight,

Mr. O'Donoghue wanted to reply at once, but Delegate Darlington secured the floor first.

"The question," said Mr. Darlington, "is one that cannot work harm with us. Socialism is something that cannot do us any ill." There are a number, he said, who are Socialists at heart and yet the majority of them did not want to go so far as to declare themselves, because it might injure them with trade unions. The name was often misconstrued, and they were too often looked upon as Anarchists. He referred to the visit of the delegates to the Asylum and said that it was better at the present time to be a lunatic than it was to be a sane man. They looked after the lunatic, housed him, and fed him. If the man was sane he could tramp about the streets while his wife and family could starve.

THE DEBATE GREW WARM.

After Mr. Darlington sat down Delegate O'Donoghue proceeded to go for Delegate St. Pierre, who had referred to him as a politician. He asked the other delegates to be charitable to Mr. St. Pierre because of his impertinence, because of his untruthfulness, and because of his ignorance.

Delegate St. Pierre—Mr. President, I call upon the speaker to withdraw the word "ignorance." My education has not been neglected.

President Jobin — Bro. O'Donoghue did not interrupt you when you attacked him.

Mr. O'Donoghue proceeded and when he had finished with Mr. St. Pierre he registered his strong disapproval of the introduction of Socialistic representation.

Delegate Marks believed with Mr. Darlington that the majority of persons around the board were heartily in sympathy with Socialism. He was an ignorant man indeed who did not know that that party was endeavoring to ameliorate the present deplorable state of society. "I am not a member," said Mr. Marks, "nor affiliated with that party. But I claim to be a Socialist. After talking and writing what I believe for the last few years I will not have it said that I was not a man and was afraid here to vote for my principles." Continuing Mr. Marks said that a boulder could not be broken with a tack-hammer. They should take a sledge-hammer—and the ballot was the sledge-hammer that should be used.

SOCIALISM IN MONTREAL.

P. J. Ryan, Montreal, said that he opposed admitting Socialists to the Congress. He accused Mr. Darlington, when the laboring classes were crying for bread in Montreal last winter of advising the people to get a gun and shoot.

Mr. Darlington (warmly)—Delegate Ryan is saying what is not true, and he knows it.

"You did not?" asked Mr. Ryan, in surprise. "Well; you know differently."

Delegate Darlington—I do know differently.

Mr. Ryan—Those who were there know it to be a fact." Continuing, Mr. Ryan said that in Montreal, Socialists joined the trades unions and Knights of Labor, and remained in those bodies for a few weeks, and some had succeeded in breaking up these societies in that short time. They destroyed them because they could not carry their own peculiar ideas. They even went so far as to make a laughing stock of the Trades Congress, and to ridicule and criticize the religion of the members. "From what I know of Socialists in Montreal," said Mr. Ryan, "I can assure you that they were never connected for any length of time with any legitimate organization. What have they done for the benefit of the people in Montreal? They have kept us busy trying to hold our own, rather than giving us a helping hand to improve our condition. I have never known Montreal Socialists to be downright practical people. They placed their own interests before those of the people first, last and at all times. And those who dared to differ with them had to be killed. I know that personally. Every contemptible means which they could devise to kill or injure men who dared to think different to them was advocated."

Charles Marsh, Toronto, also opposed Socialistic representation and thought that the council would do wrong in admitting them.

J. W. Patterson, Ottawa, was in favor of the proposition, which he said would give the Socialistic labor party an equal footing with the other societies devoted to labor causes.

Mr. Joseph Brent, London, freely admitted being a Socialist, and said he would so declare himself before the municipal board or anybody in the city if it were necessary. The object of Socialism, he explained to be liberty, fraternity, and equality. Mr. Brent concluded by reciting a lengthy poem in which were described the benefits which would accrue when Socialism was generally adopted.

THE SAVIOR A SOCIALIST.

R. G. Hay, Ottawa, said that he would tell the truth. He was a Socialist, just as were those who sat around and denied it. They claimed to have been working in the behalf of humanity and yet they denied that they were Socialists. Socialism advocated the cause of humanity in every degree, and because of that he was a Socialist. "I claim," said Mr. Hay, "that Jesus of Nazareth was the first and most pronounced Socialist that ever graced the face of the earth."

Delegate O'Donoghue—What class or phase of Socialism is going to be represented? Is it the Socialism of Carl Marks, the Socialism of Herbert Spencer, or the Socialism of Prudhomme?

Delegate Darlington—"The Socialism that we advocate is based on the ideas of Carl Marks, a little of Herbert Spencer, and some of the other reformers with it." Continuing he told Mr. Ryan that the man who broke up the Knights of Labor and trades unions of Montreal never was a Socialist and never would be. One or two loud-mouthed men calling themselves Socialists had scabbed, but how many hundreds of Knights of Labor had done the same thing? Socialists were not seeking to destroy, but to build up, and were striving to purify themselves politically, and stand upon their own bottom.

SALVATION FROM THRALDOM.

H. B. Ashplant, London, said he was a member of the International Socialist party, and wanted it placed on an equal footing with other societies. He said that the Canadian Socialist movement was young. It was only eighteen months since it was instituted in Canada. He referred to the progress made in France and England by the party, and said that it strove for the emancipation of the workingmen from the thraldom and conditions which without Socialism they must ever remain under.

Felix Marois, Quebec, speaking in French, said that in Quebec instead of preaching Socialism they practiced it. He was surprised to hear the younger element come there and endeavor to educate others who had been in the movement for 25 years or more.

A CLOSE VOTE.

The question was then called for, and as the Socialist element appeared to prevail they broke into loud applause. However, the vote was so close that President Jobin hesitated before declaring the amendment lost.

The motion was to adopt the clause of the constitution and allow Socialistic representation.

The amendment was to expunge the word "Socialist."

When the president called for the yeas and nays, Delegate Hawthorne, London, arose and deprecated the introduction of the question at all. It had broken up the whole afternoon, caused hard feelings, and would make the delegates appear as jackasses before the public. He did not know enough about the question to venture an opinion and he had not come from his union armed with any official authority in the matter, so, taking his hat, he withdrew while the vote was being taken.

The vote on the amendment was as follows:

Yeas (to expunge the word "Socialist")—D. J. Marson, Felix Marois, and P. J. Jobin, Quebec; D. J. O'Donoghue, Charles Marsh, Toronto; R. G. Kerrigan, Montreal; Walter Toll, and R. H. Hessel, London; P. J. Ryan, Montreal; H. McCaffrey, John Tweed, A. W. Holmes, and G. Dower, Toronto, and John Scott, and H. L. Langevin, Quebec—15.

Against—Joseph T. Marks, M. Powell, jun., F. Plant, Thomas Crooke, John Summers, Joseph Brent and H. B. Ashplant, London; C. C. Stewart, Winnipeg; J. W. Patterson, Alex. McDonald, R. G. Hay, W. L. St. Pierre, K. Niles, Ottawa; Wm. Darlington, Montreal; John Flett, Hamilton; and Geo. T. Beales, Toronto—16.

Those who opposed the amendment pounded the table to their hearts' content when the result of the vote was announced. The same battle had been fought for several successive years, only to end in defeat.

BASIS OF REPRESENTATION.

Other clauses of the constitution were amended and adopted as follows:

"The basis of representation shall be as follows: Trades unions, local assemblies of the Knights of Labor and Federal Unions shall be allowed one delegate for each one hundred members or under, and one for each additional one hundred or majority fraction thereof. Trades councils, central labor unions, national trades unions, and district assemblies of the Knights of Labor, and the Patrons of Industry, three delegates each. Two or more trades unions or local assemblies of the Knights of Labor, whose aggregate membership does not exceed 150, may unite to send one delegate. No proxy representation will be allowed, and all delegates must be members of the bodies they represent, except in the case of trades council or district assembly, Knights of Labor, at least six months prior to and at time of election, but nothing in this clause shall be construed to prevent unions or assemblies from combining to send one representative who is a member of one of such unions or assemblies. This clause will not interfere with any new unions."

The per capita of the Congress shall be met by a per capita as follows: Trades and Labor Councils, District Assemblies of the Knights of Labor and the Patrons of Industry, 12 cents per year; trades unions and local assemblies of the Knights of Labor, 8 cents per year; Socialist labor party, Industrial Brotherhood,

The Hog Market.

It is estimated that the receipts of hogs in Chicago the balance of the season will fall short of last year 10 or 12 per cent. Exports continue in excess of last year. The domestic demand is fair and not aggressive. Sentiment continues bearish, with stocks large enough to enthuse the short sellers, especially so with the corn crop continually in view. The small pig supply and large decline in prices may yet cause buyers to reap handsome gains. Packing from March 1 to July 29, 6,055,000 hogs, against 6,755,000 last season.—Clapp & Co., New York.

—Mr. Alex. Harper, head accountant of Chicago's civic offices, is in the city on a visit.

—Mr. Baxter, of London, has taken Mr. Kernon's place as assistant at the G. T. R. station at Ailsa Craig.

—Mrs. A. C. Stewart, Ailsa Craig, is in London, attending her sister Mrs. Albert Abrey, who is seriously ill.

—The board of works met last night, adjourned and went to Mayor Little's residence without transacting any business.

—A fire in the cellar of Mr. Bert McBride's house, 418 Queen's avenue, did $100 worth of damage yesterday afternoon.

—If you consider what you have to sell worth advertising, most buyers will argue that it must be "a good thing," and help you "push it along."

—Robert Bigger, committed for trial on a charge of robbery and assault, has been sent to the assizes. He preferred trial by jury.

—Wm. Ross, city, has sold to Mr. Sheldon, Chatham, his trotting stallion Callimo for $2,250. Callimo was sired by Wildbrino, and dammed by Collita, and had a record of 2:20 1-4.

—Thirty carloads of stone were put in the foundation of the new electric railway power house in the past week. Eighteen carloads were required for the foundations of the massive stack.

—Miss Minnie Boug, one of the London West young ladies who was poisoned by eating canned salmon, was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital today, her condition having become worse. Miss Alice Boug is also in a critical state.

—Messrs. Martyn (chairman), Blackwell, Greenlees, Johnston, Keenleyside and Anderson attended a meeting of No. 2 committee of the Board of Education last night and ordered a number of minor repairs to be made and supplies to be purchased for several schools.

—The London West Board of Education at its last meeting decided to have the heating apparatus of the school entirely remodeled by Mr. Chambers, city, at a cost of $300. Inspector Dearness informed the board that if the alterations were not made before the winter the board might lose the Government grant of $240.

—The Askin Street Methodist Church still keeps on its way of earnest work and steady progress. It maintains a deep and tender interest in young people, while not forgetting those who have well served their generation. It has within the past week paid off $2,500 of its indebtedness, thus reducing its liabilities from $9,500 to $7,000 on its fine church property.

—A musical and literary entertainment of much merit was enjoyed last night, in the London West Methodist Church by a large audience. Rev. B. Clement presided. The following participated in the programme of solos, recitations and musical selections: Mr. Roselle Pococke, Miss Love, Mr. Wm. Gibson, Mesdames and Mr. Armstrong, Misses Hartson, Mr. Westland, Mr. H. A. Currie and Miss Horton.

—The question of using the river as a depository for sewage having again been brought up by the London West Board of Health, Dr. Bruce, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, came to the city to investigate the matter, and he had representatives of London West Board of Health and the city before him. A full discussion of the question from both points of view was held, and the doctor promised to report to the provincial board. The city representatives gave the assurance that the corporation would do all in its power to remedy any real grievance.

—Eighteen or nineteen of the local coal dealers left the city on the early trains for Buffalo this morning. The cause of this scramble is said to be that the disoganization that has existed among the mining companies for some time past, has suddenly ceased, the stocks of the big coal producing roads have jumped a few points, which is thought to be sure indication of an advance in the price of coal. Coal stocks in London are said to be very light at present, and an advance in price now would catch a majority of the dealers here very much unprepared for it. Heavy buying will, no doubt, be in order in Buffalo today.

CHURCH THIEVES.

The Sunday school room of Knox Church, South London, was broken into last night and some of the missionary boxes forced open and the contents taken. Entrance to the building was obtained by breaking down boards which had been put up in an opening by workmen engaged in making the alterations to the building. The amount of money taken is not known.

A FAIR WEEK ATTRACTION.

Mr. John L. Clarke, one of the cleverest actors this city has produced, and who will star with his own company this season, will spend Fair week in London and will combine business with pleasure by producing a first-class repertoire of comedies at Music (formerly Mechanics') Hall. This cosy place is being remodeled and fitted up in modern theatrical style. Mr. Clarke will be supported by his own company, his leading lady being Miss Etta Cameron. He will open on Monday evening, Sept. 16.

METHODIST ANNUITY FUND.

The annual meeting of the superannuation fund board of the Methodist Church met Thursday afternoon and evening in Toronto. Rev. Dr. Carman presided. The treasurer presented a draft report of the fund for the past year, showing that there had been an increase of about $3,000 in the annual income, and an increase of about $6,000 in the annuities paid to claimants, leaving a deficit of $3,000 in the transactions of the year. Five per cent will be deducted from annuities.

SCOTT'S DILEMMA.

Two Women Claim Him for a Husband.

He Denies One of Them—A Bathurst Street Dispute—An Alleged Horse Thief Testifies Against Himself.

Peter Brandburg, a golden-haired, intelligent Dane of about 22 years, was in the Police Court this morning charged with hiring a horse and rig from Ald. Dreaney and endeavoring to dispose of them at auction. As told by the witnesses, Peter went to the livery yesterday morning, hired the outfit on the pretense that he was going to Dorchester, and drove off. He went east on Dundas street a short distance, turned around, and proceeded to the Walsh Hotel stables, where he put the horse up. Peter wanted to sell horse, rig, harness and all for $40, but as the hostler did not have the necessary wherewithal he couldn't buy. Brandburg said he would come back in an hour, and if a sale was made he intended to take the money and go to the States. However, when Peter returned he was received by Detective Nickle and taken to police headquarters.

Brandburg could speak very good English considering that he had been in the country only six months.

In a statement for his defense Peter made out a very strong case for the crown. He admitted having taken the rig and trying to sell it. He had been working at the pork factory until Monday, but refused to go back any more.

"And you wanted to sell the horse and buggy to raise money to go to the States?" asked the magistrate.

"Yes, that was my first opinion," replied Brandburg.

The case was adjourned for a week.

BOTH BOUND OVER.

Wm. Wilkes, an old man living on Bathurst street between Maitland and William, had Mrs. Moses Miller and her little daughter up for alleged abusive language. Mrs. Miller is a colored woman and lives two doors from the complainant. Wilkes claimed that "about the time green tomatoes came in" Mrs. Miller had called him very wrong names and said that his wife was married in jail. To the contrary, however, Mrs. Miller said that neither her nor any of the other neighbors could move about without being called all kind of names by Wilkes. Mrs. Wilkes, she claimed, was in too filthy a condition to come to court. The children were fairly eaten up with vermin, and although complaint had been made to the city nothing was done. "I haven't opened my head to that man for over one month," concluded Mrs. Miller, "and I want him bound over to keep the peace. Wilkes and the defendant were both bound over in $50 for one year. Mrs. Miller's daughter was discharged.

AN AMUSING CASE.

The case of James Scott and Mary Johnston (both colored), charged by Scott's wife, Louisa, with assault, was very amusing.

Mrs. Scott stepped into the box to tell her story and carried in her arms a bright looking little boy of 3 years.

"She is your wife, isn't she?" the magistrate asked the prisoner.

"No, sir, I was never married to her," was Scott's ready reply.

Mrs. Scott—Oh, yes, you were, in Paris.

The Police Magistrate—Where is the license?

Mrs. Scott—He didn't get one. He didn't have the money.

The Police Magistrate—Well, but you had to get a license.

Mrs. Scott—Well, he didn't get a certificate.

Scott—I never married her. If I did I must have been very drunk, for I don't remember it.

"And there is his second wife over there," continued Mrs. Scott, pointing to the Johnston woman. "She can have Jim, though, because I do not want him. I won't live with im."

Then Mrs. Scott told the story of the assault to the effect that Scott came to her house on Wednesday night and hit her on the right eye, while Mary Johnston struck her with an umbrella. Scott had left her three years ago and had married Mary shortly afterwards. "And after the assault he grabbed Mary in his arms, saying, 'Come to me, my dear.'"

Mary claimed to be Jim's lawful wife, and Mrs. Scott joined in with a long string about the Stratford colored people disowning her and a Paris man striking her on the head with an axe.

Scott was remanded for a week, as he is wanted on a charge of embezzlement. Mary Johnston was dismissed on condition that she leaves town.

George Rawlings charged with breach of the market bylaw, will come up in a week.

It was also decided that the name should remain as it is, and the constitution as revised was adopted.

GOVERNMENT SUBSIDIES.

Another matter discussed was the advisibility of the Quebec labor organ Travail, receiving a Government subsidy. It was held to be contrary to labor principles, and would end in catering to the Government who subsidized it. In view of this no subsidy will be asked for or accepted, although many of the members favored printing Government advertisements where the Government would get a just return for the money, which was the people's, and should be expended just as much on labor papers as on party papers.

The Grand Trunk President Dined on a Steamer—Pleasant Things Said.

Sarnia, Sept. 6.—The civic deputation from this town met Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, president of the G. T. R., and party on board the steamer United Empire at noon yesterday, and at the outset Mayor Proctor read a very complimentary address to the distinguished visitor, who replied gratefully; Mr. Lister, M.P., briefly alluded to the position in which the subject of concentrating the company's car works at Point Edward was left by the late president, and for Sir Charles' information presented him with a written memorandum of the action taken by the town and the Point to comply with the late president's proposals.

Sir Charles said when the time arrived for dealing with the question he would deal with it as would best serve the Grand Trunk's interest, having regard also for the claims of Sarnia and Point Edward.

The party then adjourned to the spacious cabin of the United Empire and there partook of an elegant luncheon provided by Mr. James H. Beatty. Toasts followed and many pleasant things were said.

The visitors were charmed with the trip up and the scenery along the river banks. The party disembarked at Point Edward about 2:45 p.m. delighted with their reception at Sarnia.

The president's train then proceeded to the tunnel, after inspecting which they went to Port Huron, and from there to Battle Creek, en route to Chicago.

CANADIANS VS. ENGLISHMEN.

Toronto, Sept. 6.—Two days' cricket match between touring Englishmen and Canadians commenced here this morning with fine weather and a good crease. The Canadian team is the same that defeated the Americans the beginning of the week, except that Darcy Martin, of Hamilton, takes the place of Gillespie; Bristowe, of Ottawa, also being added. Both teams play twelve men each. Hemingway, one of the Englishmen's best batters, has not arrived yet, though he is expected today. Canadians are confident of success. They won the toss and elected to defend the wickets. There is a large attendance.

BASEBALL.

W. A. Reid, manager of the Alerts Baseball Club, London, was in the city yesterday. He wanted a guarantee of $40 to bring his team here, and the game will be played on Sept. 16 or 17. The Browns will probably play the Alerts at London on Thursday, Sept. 12.—St. Thomas Times.

CONSERVATIVE-P. P. A. ALLIANCE

Why the Election of Hon. Wm. Harty Was Protested.

The Kingston Freeman says that the protest against the Hon. Wm. Harty, Commissioner of Public Works for Ontario, is the outcome of a threat made by the P. P. A. brigade of Kingston, "whereby they subscribed part of the petition money, handed it over to the Conservative executive committee and demanded that the remainder of the funds be put up by the association; if not, the P. P. A.s would cry quits with the local Conservatives." It asserts that some members of the Conservative committee resisted, but that they were overruled, and the result was a surrender to a party which is endeavoring to drive Mr. Harty out of public life simply because he is a Roman Catholic. Mr. Harty's majority in the bye-election was about 800.

AN ALARMING INCREASE.

The Prevalence of Female Complaints Found to Result Largely From the Kidneys.

Saginaw, Mich., Sept. 2.—Doctors are beginning to turn their attention more exclusively to the causes for the great increase of what are known as female complaints during the past ten years, and to remedies for the same. Many cases have been investigated, and among others that of Mrs. Reany, of Ashland, Wis., who was cured of this form of trouble by the use of a kidney medicine known as Dodd's Kidney Pills, which originated in Canada, but has now become widely known and used throughout the Western States. This and other similar cases go to show that these troubles are largely due to the kidneys, and that the above mentioned remedy is likely to have a great effect in lessening the number of victims to this form of complaint.

The Secret Out.

CHAPTER XLII.

"I do not care for compliments, sir." And yet the detective looked decidedly gratified notwithstanding. "I merely wished to satisfy you and satisfy myself that it was not the adopted daughter of Mr. Gretorex whom you had made your wife. The experiment was satisfactory? You are thoroughly convinced?"

"I was convinced before. I have never had more than a passing doubt from the moment this possibility was suggested to me. There were too many facts in the past to confirm it; petty facts, ignored at the time, but showing themselves now in their true light, as the way-marks of a great and skilfully carried out deception. Her ignorance, hidden under sphinx-like smiles which made it look like wisdom, or at the worst, indifference; her caprice about names which she vowed she never remembered; her professed short-sightedness; her silence when conversation was expected; her talkativeness when silence would have been more appropriate; the wit with which she parried attacks; the glance and the smile which filled all gaps and disarmed all criticism. Then the attitude she took towards Mr. and Mrs. Gretorex, leading to those rather formal relations which were her only safeguard; her refusal to visit much except where a crowd was expected and a word and a look were all that was required of her; and finally the excuses she always found when I pressed her to sing or play, or write, or talk on anything but general subjects. It is all clear now, and while I wonder at her tact, I also wonder I never felt a suspicion of the truth, even when I found her so much more brilliant, gifted and beautiful than I had anticipated or had a right to anticipate from what I knew of Genevieve Gretorex."

"I do not think it strange. Your courtship had not been long enough, and you will excuse me if I say, intimate enough, for you to feel confident in your knowledge of her. Then a bride is never quite what a girl is, and any caprice she might show in her present capacity could so easily be attributed to the change which matrimony invariably brings. I do not wonder at all that you were deceived; I am only annoyed that I was."

"But you had never seen Miss Gretorex."

"I know; but a detective never excuses himself. I felt an incongruity somewhere, but I was not particular enough in asking its true meaning. I, who knew there were two of them, and also knew how much they looked alike!"

"Well, I cannot see that this is strange. It would have taken a most penetrating genius to detect what escaped the eye of husband and parents."

Mr. Gryce looked as if he felt himself possessed of such a genius, but he simply observed:

"It was all planned with consummate judgment, and I should like to know to which brain the credit of the scheme is most due. Had the expectations of Genevieve been realized, had she found an accomplice in Dr. Molesworth and been married to him as she hoped, I do not think your honeymoon would have been interrupted by a doubt. Only when you came to know your wife better you might have wondered at certain defects in her, but you would by that time have become so accustomed to them that you would have passed them off as many people are passing off her eccentricities today, by the simple phrase, 'Genevieve is changed; she is not what she used to be,' adding, possibly, in your own mind, 'It is not the first time a woman has dropped her music after marriage.'"

"True, true; and I will acknowledge now that I can hardly remember the Genevieve Gretorex I courted, for this dazzling, lish, creature who has taken her place. Deceitfully, I own, but with no wicked impulses to make that deceit an entirely unpardonable one."

Somewhat astonished, Mr. Gryce drew back. "You seem relieved," he remarked, "by this discovery which we have made."

"I am. How can I help it when it gives me a wife uncontaminated by a mad, innocent passion for another man."

"But—a—"

"Dressaker you would say. I know, but also Genevieve's sister and her superior intellect, beauty, and I dare to hope worth," interjected the doctor. "Even though she entered into this fraud without seeming compunction, she has since given signs of honest repentance for the wrong she has done, and with it shown such affection for the man she has deceived, that I am sure she needs nothing but a show of considerate feeling on my part to develop into a woman I can not only love, but respect."

Mr. Gryce came forward again.

"You like my duty very hard," said he.

"Your duty?"

"You seem to think the whole matter is settled by this discovery of Mrs. Cameron's real identity, and that you have nothing before you but a reconciliation with your wife."

Dr. Cameron uttered an ejaculation. "And do you mean to say you will retain the suspicions you entertained of her when you thought her the maddened and desperate daughter of Mr. Gretorex?"

The detective sighed; he was evidently weary of the tormentor's part he had had to play so long.

"I should have thought," he observed, gently, "that you would have perceived without my aid that the suspicions already attached to your wife by the police would be heightened rather than diminished by the discovery that it was Genevieve Gretorex's substitute who survived to marry you instead of Genevieve herself."te

"I had not looked at it so. I felt so sure this was her great secret that I never questioned if she possessed another."

"I wish that we were not obliged to. But when we think of the circumstances and consider the temptation she was under, we dare not let the matter slide without a legal investigation. For if Miss Gretorex had sufficient determination to undertake the re-establishment of herself as Mr. Gretorex's daughter and your bride, she certainly had enough to carry that undertaking through if she had not been stopped in some forcible way by Mildred. She did not carry it through. What then are we to think? That she threw away her life to please a sister's whim, or that that sister found some way of inducing the death which left her in the enviable position she had assumed?"

There could be but one answer.

"The poison was Genevieve's. It was in a casket in Genevieve's drawer. Is it credible that Mildred should know this, or knowing it, be able to use it upon Genevieve without that person perceiving what was being given her to drink?"

"It is a weak point. In opposition to it we offer but one suggestion. Molesworth, who was the first on the scene, and who from his services seems to have understood the situation, showed the determination and forethought we would expect from a man desirous of concealing a murder. His whole action shows that he thought Mildred Farley had committed a crime, and if he thought so—"

"We do not know what he thought; we can never take his thoughts into account; he is dead, and we have no record of his beliefs," asserted Dr. Cameron, boldly. But the blow had told, he knew—who so well—that Molesworth was afraid to communicate to him the truth as to the identity of his wife, and what could this fear argue but a belief in the guilt which this discovery would make apparent.

"We will not argue the question any further, Dr. Cameron," the detective now declared. "While there were doubts as to my duty, I was willing and more than willing to talk, but now that I see my way pretty clear, I have no desire to say anything more and would advise you as a friend to say nothing more either."

This was a new tone for the detective to take, and it struck Dr. Cameron forcibly. He saw that whatever his own convictions might be, whatever the truth even, she held in the eyes of the police at least, the position of a possible criminal and must ever hold it, now that her only witness had perished, unless by some decisive action of his, the terrific question could be at once and forever settled. Looking at Mr. Gryce and seeing how sober he had become, he took his resolve.

"I have an experiment to try," said he. "You have made your test, and satisfied us all that Mrs. Cameron's maiden name was Mildred Farley. I would like the same opportunity of proving to you that though she took her sister's place and identity, she did not take her life. Will you come up stairs again, Mr. Gryce?"

But the detective hesitated.

"I know what you contemplate," he affirmed, "and would advise you to pause. It is a risky thing you are going to do. Besides, as the lady is not necessarily your wife—"

"What?"

"No court in the country would hold you to a marriage forced upon you by such a fraud."

The doctor flushed, looked away; and for a moment was silent. Then he declared, firmly:

"She is my wife; I accept her as such, however my experiment ends. I should have no right to make it, did I not expect to share the consequences of it with her."

Mr. Gryce took off his hat. Was it in deference, or because he had determined to stay? Both, perhaps.

"Then you are resolved, knowing that in doing this, you make a witness of me?"

"Yes, for I believe in her innocence, and must have it established before the world." And he led Mr. Gryce back into his wife's room, saying, "I will not keep you waiting long. The effects of the drug I administered to her, must have nearly passed away."

The scene to which they thus returned was not that of a few minutes ago. The poor and sordid furniture had been removed, and the rich and stately belongings of the room restored. The form of Mrs. Olney had been replaced by that of the nurse, and nowhere was there to be seen the least token of that strange and remarkable transformation which had deceived the half-wakened woman into the belief that she was a girl again. Even the rings had been restored to her hands, and on the table near by, ticked the watch which her husband had given her in those happy days in Washington. As for herself, she lay quiet, though her eyelids fluttered faintly, and now and then her limbs moved as if she were in grief or pain.

Intemperance Among Women.

There is much said about the growing habit of intemperance among women; perhaps more than the facts would warrant. If this habit exists it is owing to the fact that women are often forced to perform domestic and social duties under great physical suffering, and by partaking of liquors for temporary relief or a little protraction of strength, the habit becomes a necessity. If all ladies who suffer with the complaints peculiar to their sex would take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, they would find nature's restorative, and the evil results of pernicious drugs and liquors would be avoided. For all cases of nervous and general debility, sleeplessness, spasms, periodical pains, suppressions and irregularities, it is the only medicine so certain in curative action that it can be guaranteed to benefit or cure or money returned.

More Water.

The Engineer Estimates the Cost of a Second Reservoir.

Redmon's Pond Will Yield One Million Gallons a Day

For 43 Days in the Year—The Meter Question—Important Recommendations.

At the regular meeting of the water commissioners yesterday afternoon a very important report on matters referred to him was presented by Engineer Moore. It touched upon a question which interests many residents, and dealt extensively with the proposition to enlarge the ponds at Springbank, and construct a new storage basin on the north side of the river, and gave the estimated cost of each work. The report read:

"The estimated cost of metering railway supplies is:

Grand Trunk	$1,910
Canadian Pacific	905
Total	$2,815

"I would recommend that a four-inch main be laid on St. James street to the center of the block east of William street, at a cost of $200.

"I have had an inspection made of all residences where city water is used to operate meters for pumping water for domestic uses. I find that there are 42 meters in use and operated in different ways for different purposes. Twenty-seven waste the city water direct into the drain without making any use of it. I would recommend that all meters be connected so that the city water cannot be directly wasted into drains, that a rate of $4 per annum net be placed on all meters, and that all fixtures supplied with soft waters pumped by meters using city water be charged the usual rate.

"I have made a preliminary examination of the Redmon's Pond with a view of utilizing it as a storage basin for water. The pond is situated on lot 25, con. 1, London township. The bottom of it is very soft, so much so that a pole can be easily pushed down to a depth of 40 feet. The surface of the water has an elevation of 80 feet above the well at the pumping station, and it will require about 10,000 feet of piping to convey the water to the well in order to pump it with the present pumping machinery. The capacity of a reservoir fifteen acres in extent and twelve feet deep is 48,000,000 gallons, and if this amount could be saved and utilized during the dry season as an auxiliary to the present supply it would provide a daily supply of 1,000,000 gallons for 48 days.

"The estimated capacity of a ten-inch pipe running full with a fall of 80 feet in a distance of 10,000 feet is 1,131,840 gallons in 24 hours.

"An approximate of the cost of excavating the reservoir and connecting it with the pumping plant is as follows:

Excavating 300,000 cubic yards	$30,000
Constructing 10,000 feet of 10-inch cast-iron pipe	10,000
Land and land damages	2,500
Incidentals	2,500
Total	$45,000

"The external appearance of the locality is favorable for a storage reservoir. The elevation above the pumping station is a valuable consideration in obtaining a supply of water from this source. It is impossible to say, however, what amount of water can be drawn from a reservoir constructed on this site, and I would recommend that a careful examination be made of the locality by boring and digging test wells, to ascertain the nature of the soil before coming to a decision to proceed with the construction of the said reservoir."

Mr. Moore also submitted plans for increasing the storage capacity of the present ponds at Springbank. By deepening the lower pond three feet and cutting away the south bank the capacity could be increased from 75,000 to 1,320,000 gallons. Estimated cost was $5,550. The capacity of the upper pond could be increased from 881,250 gallons to 2,000,000 gallons at a cost of $4,000, while the estimated outlay for a new storage pond was fixed at $5,000.

The recommendation remain will be carried out, but the balance of the report was held over for consideration.

Mr. Bonsor appeared before the commissioners and asked remission of two quarters' rates on one of a small tenement on Bathurst street west, which was occupied on Saturdays and Sundays as a sewing and Sunday school for poor children. One quarter was remitted, and in future no rate will be charged until the place is occupied as a residence.

DERMATOLOGY.

An Art for Which There Should be Little Use.

Why Not Have a Better Understanding With Yourself as to What Makes Your Skin Sallow and Blotchy.

The treatment of diseases of the skin has been much studied by scientific men. Soaps, lotions, cosmetics, etc., without number have been heralded all over the country for years. It is a fact that nearly all diseases of the complexion are directly caused by some stoppage of nature's drains. All the local treatment in the world cannot permanently cure these annoying complaints. The bowels, nature's drainage system, must be kept free from clogging or disease results.

Especially is this true with women. It is almost past belief to what extent female troubles are directly traceable to constipation of the bowels.

The researches of an eminent physician led him to believe that much scientific treatment, with a view to regulating the bowels, was erroneous. He demonstrated that the simple remedies of nature used in as nearly a natural state as possible, were most efficient.

These researches led to the production of Karl's Clover Root Tea, the greatest regulator of bowel disorders known to man. Its wonderful efficacy has amazed all who have used it.

Mr. Louis Goetz, of Buffalo, N. Y., President Cleveland's old caterer, says of this wonderful remedy: "I have taken Karl's Clover Root Tea every evening before going to bed, with great results. My skin looks better and the pimples are disappearing. Have been troubled for years with eruptions on the skin, and all remedies so far have failed to help me. A few doses of Karl's Clover Root Tea worked wonders."

A proper use of this sterling remedy will insure bright, clear skin, healthy color and freedom from headache, dizziness, indigestion, and all kindred ills.

It can and does cure all forms of disease resulting from a clogging of the system. This natural remedy, brewed directly from roots and herbs, strikes directly to the seat of the trouble, and is a boon to mankind.

Do not suppose that you are a sufferer from some high sounding organic complaint. Look to your bowels. Keep them free and don't worry.

Get a sample of Karl's Clover Root Tea at W. T. Strong's.

No one need fear cholera or any summer complaint if they have a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial ready for use. It corrects all looseness of the bowels promptly, and causes a healthy and natural action. This is a medicine adapted for the young and old, rich and poor, and is rapidly becoming the most popular medicine for cholera, dysentery, etc., in the market.

Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

RESULTS PROVE MORE THAN ESTIMATES.

Mr. A. N. Udy, well known in London as a most reliable and painstaking insurance agent, has been appointed city agent for the Ontario Mutual Life Assurance Company, and now occupies their office in the C.P.R. building. As those procuring life or endowment policies wish to select the company which gives the best returns to policy-holders, it will be to the interest of intending insurers to consult Mr. Udy before placing their applications elsewhere.

The following letter is appended to support the claim that the Ontario gives the best returns of all the companies doing business in Canada. Mr. Bell's reputation as a successful manufacturer of organs and pianos, and as a shrewd business manager, gives the more importance to his letter.

In the comparison of Mr. Bell's letter, it should have been stated that the Equitable's premium was $220 98, and the Ontario's $196 92. No account was taken of the interest on the annual difference in premium, which would make the result still more favorabe to the Ontario.

Guelph, March 26, 1895.

Wm. Hendry, Esq., manager the Ontario Mutual Life Assurance Company, Waterloo, Ont.:

Dear Sir,—I beg to express my entire satisfaction with policy No. 5,625, issued by your company in 1880 for $3,000, on the fifteen-year endowment plan, at age 47, annual premium $196 92.

The premiums paid, less dividends, amount to $2,472 39, so that I have received $527 61 more than I paid, besides fifteen years' insurance.

It may be interesting for you to know that I had an exactly similar policy in the Equitable, of New York. The result of that policy is as follows:

Value of policy and bonus additions	$2,628 00
Total premiums paid	3,314 70
Value over cost	$ 313 30
Your company's policy was worth over cost	527 61
Difference in your favor	$ 214 31

Yours truly,
WM. BELL.

Making Tracks for School.

That's what the boys of London and vicinity are doing now, and during the rainy weather and munny streets at this time of the year, they need a first-class article in footwear to meet the emergency. Bad shoes and wet feet go together, with sickness treading on their heels and the boys making tracks for home instead of school. Our school shoes are durable, waterproof, well-fitting, warm and comfortable. Keep his mouth wet and his feet dry and a boy will always thrive. This latter end will be provided for by buying a pair of these shoes; they will cost less and wear longer than any other shoe offered this season. Can anything be cheaper than a pair of Boys' Boston Calf Bals. for $1, or a pair of Misses' Glove Grain Button for $1?

—Rev. Charles Smith, city, lectures on "Kodaks of Laziness" in Strathroy on Thesday evening next.

—Mrs. Harry Ryan has gone to Chicago, where her sister, Mrs. J. S. Winnett, is dangerously ill.

—The Manitoba committee of the Baptist Church, at a meeting held in this city, took steps to raise $7,000 for Manitoba and Northwest missions.

—A large court of Independent Foresters was organized in Albany, Oregon, last week, by Wm. Sanderson, M.A., D.S.C.R., of Toronto, formerly of London, Ont,

On Tuesday night the barn belonging to A. McDonald, on the Neil Hillman farm, Mosa, was destroyed by fire. There was $400 insurance on the building in the North British Insurance Company. Mr. Hillman lost a fanning mill, some harness and a quantity of straw, but there was no insurance on the contents.

John A. Fleming, of lot 27, River road, Mosa, has a freak of nature in the shape of a big potato, grown as a sextette—there being six distinct murphies in a bunch, five of them surrounding a sixth of enormous size. The potato, or rather group of potatoes, weighed 1 1-2 pounds.

—The following articles are held in the "Advertiser" office awaiting ownership: Brown satchel, containing money and other articles; black purse, containing money; lady's tan gaiter; parcel containing pair of black kid gloves and handkerchief, addressed Mrs. Mitchell; also a fur gauntlet,

Mr. Hayter, Glencoe, who is at the City Hospital for treatment for appendicitis, had an operation performed, when it was found that his intestines had become very much inflamed through his being affected so long, and the doctors held out no hope for his recovery. His condition has somewhat improved and he may yet pull through.

At the Watford Division Court W. D. Cameron, liveryman, sued P. Dodds, S. W. Louks, W. Scott and John Bodaly for $80, the value of a horse, which drooped dead on the way home from London, having been engaged to convey a patient to the hospital. The defendants, except Scott, are members of the local board of health, and disclaimed personal liability. Judgment was given for plaintiff for $65 and costs. It is probable that the council will have to pay the judgment.

—J. Parsons Smith, leader of the Emerald Trio, gospel temperance singing evangelist, was in the city today. He has just returned from Michigan, where he has been engaged, with Hon. M. J. Fanning, in the good citizenship tent movement, which proved most successful. Mr. Parsons Smith will continue the work for Western Ontario at Romoka, in connection with the R. T. of T. He has been fortunate in securing the services of the Alexander Brothers, singing evangelists of Clinton, Mich., to help him in the work. The trio will be in Western Ontario the entire fall. Dates and arrangements can be made with Rev. Wm. Kettlewell, of Paris.

—The members of the Women's Christian Association were well represented at the meeting held in the "Y" rooms on Thursday. The treasurer's report showed receipts, $1,155 39; expenditure, $641 14; balance, $514 25. The following donations are very gratefully acknowledged: For Aged People's Home—O. E. Dorry, $1; Mrs. Cameron, 539 Dundas street, clothing and fancy goods; Mrs. Burns, clothing, pickles; a friend, magazines; Mr. Kent, magazines and two cuspidors. For Home for Incurables—Mrs. Smith, checkers, strawberries and papers; Mrs. Davis, canned fruit, fruit

Found With My Wife a Wonderful Cure.

The Aylmer Express reports: "Mr. and Mrs. Chute, of Aylmer, desire that we should publish their testimonial and let other sufferers know what WILLIAMS' ROYAL CROWN REMEDY (Nature's Liquid) had done for Mr. Chute. He writes: 'For ten years or more I have been a sufferer with dyspepsia, and doctored with six of the most skilled doctors in this part of the country, but with little relief and no benefit in return for the very large doctors' bills that I paid. I tried almost every conceivable remedy, but all to no purpose, until April, 1893, I took to myself a wife, and it so happened that three years previous to our marriage she had been in poor health and used part of a bottle of Royal Crown Remedy, and knowing of its excellent qualities she prevailed upon me to give it a trial. I purchased one bottle of the Remedy and Pills, and by the time I had them used my general health was much improved, and by the time I had taken three bottles I was restored to good health, and my neighbors say that I am looking healthier than I have done for years. I believe Royal Crown Remedy to be the best value for the money on earth, and am, thankfully yours, WILLIAM CHUTE.'"
