Owing to the cosmopolitan character of the population, problems of governfnent will arise, from which the older provinces have been almost exempt, In Quebec two races have managed to work out these problems satisfactorily. In the other provinces the population has been homogeneous or almost so. In Alberta and Saskatchewan there are many races, many creeds, and many languages. Fortunately the direction of affairs, during the next few years at least, when the new provinces will become adjusted to the framework of their new constitution, will be in the hands of Western Canadians, who have had public experience as members of the Territorial Legislature or the Dominion Parliament. Smallpox Scare Breaks Out in the County of Northumberland.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Toronto, Aug. 31. - Dr. Bell, inspec or of the provincial board of health, has gone to Hoord's Station, Seymour township, in the county of Northumberland, where a smallpox scare has broken out. As a result of this the cheese factories, in which is stored about $1,500 worth of cheese, has been quarantined, as well as its maker. There has been a prevalence of chickenpox in the vicinity and the impression is that what some doctors describe as smallpox is only chickenpox of pronounced type.

TELEPHONE TALKS.

TO TELEPHONE USERS AND THE GENERAL PUBLIC,-

The net result of five years' effort at municipalizing the exchange telephone service of Great Britain is that five exchanges are still in operation. The Municipalities have about 20,000 subscribers, or four per cent. of the total exchange subscribers in the Kingdom. As about half of these have the National Company's service as well, the two and a half millions of dollars that have been spent on municipal telephone plants have given telephone service to only 10,000 new subscribersan enormous waste of capital in support of a theory.

That there are not more municipal telephone plants in Great Britain is not for lack of agitation, or lack of interest on the part of municipal representatives. Forty-one municipalities have considered the matter, made a thorough investigation of the questions involved, and have decided that a municipal telephone service was an unwise venture.

It must be borne in mind in considering these results that in Great Britain all local telephone exchanges have the same service and facilities over the long distance lines, which are owned and operated by the Government. This refutes the theory that ownership of the long distance lines by the Government would enable successful competition against an established company.

Following the disclosure made in evidence before the Special Committee, of the disastrous results financially, of Government operation of telegraphs, the question naturally arises why the Government should have also taken over the long distance telephone lines. The reason is plain. The long distance telephone lines owned and operated by an agressive company were encroaching on the business of the already unprofitable Government telegraphs. The Government therefore decided to take control of the telephone service to avert competition.

Government ownership of long distance lines with the local exchanges in the hands of a company having but aggravated the condition of Government monopoly, the final step has been decided upon, and the whole exchange business, whether in the hands of a Company or of the municipalities, will be taken over by the Government within a few years. The opinion of experts is that the last state will be found worse than the first or the second stage, bad as they have been.

This is confirmed by the experience of other countries which have a complete Government control of the telephone service, as we shall be able to demonstrate later from the sworn evidence of those who are familiar with the existing conditions in European countries.

The ferryboat Harlem was leaving the foot of East Ninety-second street. Brown leaped for it, missed and splashed into the river. Unafraid, he began swimming rapidly after the boat. McClarys are in hard luck just now, and it will keep them hurrying to land the bunting. "Doc" Hutchison is out of the game for the season, and so is Eddie Jackson. Tommy Steele will not catch for a game or so, either. They have a good lead, but not such a long one that will permit them to take too many chances. Good players to fill in are very scarce, too.

Pittsburg is making a bold bid to beat the Giants out in the National League, and are finishing very fast. Not many games separate them from the leaders, and if, for some reason, McGraw's bunch take a slump, the Pirates may land the rag. They are making a game finish, but do not look good enough to nose the Giants out at the tape. It makes a good race, neverthe-

It looks for all the world like the Athletics for the American pennant. Their trip through the west has been highly successful. They have beaten the Cleveland Blues easily this week, and now have a safe lead for the home series. "Rube" Waddell handed Larry's outfit two shut-outs in three days. "Rube's" doing fine. Griffith's Invaders are falling down hard on the western trip, and the Boston crew likewise. The White Sox are going to drive the Athletics hard through the stretch.

Final preparations are being made for the Rugby road race to be held on Monday next. The Advertiser cup and the fine medals are drawing out a number of competitors. Interest in the Rugby Club is increasing, and the season promises to be a good one. Several letters have been received from outside points regarding the road race, and asking if outsiders are eligible. It is simply necessary to state that the prizes were offered to encourage early training among the Rugby boys, and to get good sprinters and runners to take up the game. It is for bona-fide amateurs only. The development of good football material is what is desired. These are a fine lot of athletes.

The Labor Day bowling tournament is attracting considerable attention among the lovers of the game, and it promises to be a great success. All three clubs are taking a keen interest in it, and working hard to get every available man out. It is expected that over 20 rinks will compete. Entries will be received up till 6 p.m. today, so hurry up if you wish to get in the game. "Jimmy" Tytler will receive your name.

That good old campaigner, Dr. Strong, won the inter-city competition for amateur road drivers at Chicago this week. Pittsburg, Cleveland and Chicago matinee clubs were entered. The prize was a magnificent gold cup. The race was fine, and the interest shown was keen. In conversation with a prominent driver in this city yesterday. the subject of an inter-city meet with Toronto was broached. It was voted a splendid idea. It is somewhat too late in the year to hold the meet, but it would be a splendid thing for London and Toronto drivers to keep on their programmes for next year. The matinees would receive a decided impetus, and all lovers of good horses and good races, without the gambling accompaniments, would have a chance to indulge their desires. Come, Toronto, let us see what can be done with this.

The Toronto Globe contains the following description of one of the greatest trotting races ever held in Canada:

"One of the hardest and most bitterly contested races ever decided in Canada was the 2:17 pace and trot at De Lorimier Park, Montreal, last week. It took eight heats to decide it, and so evenly matched were the horses that no less than four of them won heats. It took two days to decide it, On the first day, in which six heats were gone, no less than four of the entries captured heats, and on the second heat Major B. O., the sensational winner on the ice at Ottawa, came out and won the last two heats. Heat winners were: Major B. O., fourth, seventh and eighth; Purity, second and third; Minnie Keswick, first and sixth; Maud Wilkes, fifth."

Congratulations to our good marksmen, Capt. Murphy and Pte. Allen. They have done splendid work at the ranges, and will no doubt do better work at Bisley. Here's that either of them bring back the King's prize.

The Hamilton Herald sporting writer is out with a suggestion that Hamilton, London and one or two other cities put teams in the Western Ontario Baseball League next year. He is decidedly in favor of cutting out the international part of it, and making it a compact little circuit of Western Ontario cities. He is persuaded that Hamilton's city league winners are good enough for the league, and that's about right. London has always supported a professional team in good style, and would do so again. The writes likes the idea. A team could be chosen from this league that could hold its own anywhere. It would not interfere with the City League's Saturday games, if the Herald suggestion is followed out. It would be unwise to kill the City League for any professional or semi-professional team. Say, take the Wednesday afternoons, and the holidays, with one or two exceptions, and a good schedule could be arranged. Hamilton will enter a team next year. What do the management think of it?

Why could not the road race be started up-town, say, in front of The Advertiser office? It would add much interest to the race Think it over.

The first big Rugby practice will be held tonight at Tecumseh Park at 5:30 p.m. Every player is asked to turn out, as the management are desirous of getting the team into shape as soon as possible. The success of the club depends on the amount of practice done. Let every player be on

The Toronto Star on Saturday last issued 40 pages to mark its installation in its handsome new home on King street. The Star, under its present management, has had a phenomenal success and has forged to the very front rank of Canadian journals. In Saturday's edition it prints an interesting disquisition on the evening newspaper, in reply to the argument of an admirer who wishes it converted into a morning journal. The Star tells him he is the victim of a prejudice which is fast dying and adds: "He will realize that he himself

An Uncomfortable Breakfast.

"Now, if The Star were a morning palper, it would be but a fraction of the comfort to him. The paper containing practically the same news would not reach him until the following morning. One can imagine him getting up just in time for breakfast, and finding the paper on the dining-room table. H tries to read it during the meal, but finds it very uncomfortable. The corners flop into his porridge and tea cup, and in some unexplainable manner a large spot of bacon grease gets on the under side. With Imperial Help Large Sums Will Be Spent on Militia.

London, Sept. 1 .- A Melbourne dispatch states that speaking on the Government proposals to increase the personnel of the partially paid forces by 1,300 men and to store a two years' supply of ammunition, Mr. McCary, ex-Minister of Defense, made a power ful speech in Parliament, declaring that the time had arrived when Australia should frankly abandon the attempt to provide defenses entirely out of revenue. The Commonwealth, he urged, must borrow at least threequarters of a million sterling immediately to rearm the forts. Australia can no longer burke her responsibilities. The speech created a deep impression and was approved by all parties. Premier Deakin, Senator Playford, the Minister of Defense, Mr. Ewing, vice-president of the executive council, are working out the details in co-operation with the council of defense, to com-plete a defense policy which will have far-reaching effects. Premier Deakin promises a public statement in one month's time. It is said that if the Imperial Government fulfills its promises to improve the Australian squadron the Commonwealth is prepared to make great efforts, involving a large expenditure, on coast defense and the enrollment of thousands of additiona men in the citizen military forces.
