STEWART'S Home Made Bread,
THE BREAD MY DADDY LIKES.
Daddy is evidently not one of those back number lords of creation who believes that woman's place is in the home—and only there. His taste in a wife is an up-to-date woman who will prove herself a real companion. He knows that if she is a slave to her kitchen she can't enjoy the poise or have the interest in world affairs that a little extra leisure would make possible; and so he is pleased to eat MRS. STEWART'S HOME MADE BREAD—the loaf with the home made flavor.
The smiling, well-nourished kiddie doesn't look as though suffering because mother is progressive enough to buy good bread made by a bread specialist, instead of wearing out her life in the kitchen.

Burns

Vaseline Petroleum Jelly

is a dependable remedy which gives quick relief to the burned skin, stops the pain, and keeps out the air, allowing the tissue to heal properly.

It is also valuable in the treatment of wounds, sprains, skin diseases, chilblains, etc., and, taken internally, for coughs, colds, sore throat, etc. It should be always on hand—in every house and on every vessel—for emergencies.

Start a Medicine Chest with a liberal supply of "Vaseline" Petroleum Jelly and the other "Vaseline" preparations shown here on the lid of the chest.

Sold at all drug and general stores.

Cheesebrough Manufacturing Company, New York City.
W. G. M. Shephard, Distributor,
137 McGill St., Montreal, Canada.

CHAPTER XI.
HUMANITY.

Jeanne leans forward until her head rests against his heart.

"Because—because," she says, softly, "we shall always be together, like poor people, and you will not learn to forget me; because I shall be company for you while you work, and you will need me, and be glad of me ever so much more than if you were rich. Yes, I am glad you are poor!"

"He does not speak, but he passes his hand over the golden head that lies against his heart.

"And you will never be sorry, darling?" he says, "and never look back and think what might have been if I had found my queen, and laid a title and his money at her feet?"

"No!" she says, "I know my Jeanne—my Jeanne!"

Then they go slowly back—very slowly, in silence.

Just as they are in sight of the house, Aunt Jane's slovenly figure, covered by its cooking apron, appears in a doorway, and without a word Jeanne slips from his arm and vanishes.

Vernon Vane emits his short laugh and makes for the foe.

"Good-morning, Mr. Vane," says Aunt Jane, holding out a floury hand and withdrawing it with a laugh. "Wasn't that Jeanne with you?"

"Yes," says Vane, with a smile. "May I come in?" and he follows her into the kitchen.

"You'll get all over flour," she says, as he sits himself upon a broad table and looks at her with a quiet smile on his handsome face. "Do you want to peer into the mysteries of puff-paste? Where is Jeanne?"

"Jeanne has fled," he says.

"Fled?" echoes Aunt Jane; then she looks up, struck by the way in which he says "Jeanne," and half reads the story in his eyes.

"Oh, what is it?" she says.

"Will you give her to me?" he asks, very gently. "I love her with all my heart."

Of course, Aunt Jane sinks into a chair, and, equally, of course, having gained her breath, she cries.

"Jeanne is a child!" she says, at last. "And—oh, I can't believe it! She doesn't know what love means."

"Not till last night," he murmurs almost to himself. "You see," he goes on, "I came to you first, and you shall go with me to Uncle John. Don't refuse her to me, Mrs. Dostrell; she breaks off, with a sudden, sharp earnestness that terrifies Aunt Jane into tears again.

"No—no!" she says; "but if she is willing, and you think—"

"I think so," he says, with a deep light in his eyes.

"Then I must say 'yes!'" says Aunt Jane, suddenly.

"And not a word about myself and my position?" he asks, with a faint smile.

"Well, not now," replies Aunt Jane. "Jeanne does not know what it is to be rich. If you have enough to make her happy—"

"I have that; you can trust me," he says, quietly. "Jeanne shall be happy."

"And they have not eaten me, you see!" he says, half an hour afterwards, as Jeanne and he are sitting in the arbor. "There is only Hal left."

"Dear old Hal!" murmurs Jeanne.

"And I do not greatly fear him. And now, my Jeanne, you shall be my queen, and I will be your slave. Now, what are your majesty's commands. By the way, I have received a command already this morning," he breaks off.

Jeanne looks up eagerly.

"No, that was down on the beach; some one who deems himself of more importance than all the Griffins in the world. What do you say to the Honorable Clarence Fitzjames?"

What Jeanne says is—nothing; but she starts suddenly and looks aside.

"Yes," continues Vane, leaning back with his hands behind his head; "I met him riding down the street excited and agitated—for the first time in his life, poor fellow! I wonder you did not see him."

Jeanne does not speak, but that unlucky promise given so solemnly rises in her throat and keeps her dumb.

"He had cause to be upset," Vane goes on, more gravely, "for he had just received news of his brother's death, and he is now Viscount Lane!"

He pauses, faintly surprised at the absence of any expression of surprise on Jeanne's part; she feels that his eyes are upon her, and Jeanne, open and candid Jeanne, who has never told a lie in her life, or known a concealment, is in agony.

The tall-tale red gives her face for one moment; then leaves it pale.

But Vane for a wonder is not looking her way, but is gazing musingly at the sky.

"Viscount Lane!" he repeats; "it was a surprise for him, and for the moment had frightened him out of his assumed skin of impassive languor."

"And—and the command?" says Jeanne, speaking at last, "what was that?"

Vane frowns.

"A comical one, but one which, being in a good humor this morning, I promised to obey. I am to go up to the Park, and break the news of his lordship's death to the Lambtons!"

Poor Maud! Poor Georgina!—happy Maud! happy Georgina! if they were only wise enough to know their escape from a man who would have married them for their money. If poor Lane had lived another six months, one of them would have been the Honorable Mrs. Fitzjames, Ah, Jeanne!" he says; suddenly, with a spark of scorn, "you wanted to know the world. Here is a little piece of it for you! What do you think of it?"

"No—no!" she says, still pale and troubled. "I do not now. I will stay in Newton Regis all my life; I may, may I not?"

"For just one month, darling," he whispers, "and then you shall see the world, with me by your side, to keep all harmful things from even touching the skirts of my little white dove."

"A—month!" says Jeanne, innocently. Then her face crimsoned.

"Oh, no—no! not so soon!" she says, catching her breath—"not so soon!"

But mingled with her fear is a tremulous gleam of half-terrified delight in her dark eyes; and Vernon knows that she will yield.

—And the Worst is Yet to Come

CHAPTER XII.
A STRANGER IN EDEN.

It is a month since Vernon Vane sat on Aunt Jane's kitchen table among the four, and the June sun, as it sinks slowly and regretfully to its rest, turns the red bricks of the old house into a vivid crimson. Every door and window is open, and the passer-by, if he cares to listen, may hear, from the first floor, that confused commingling of chatter and exclamation which proceeds from women in excitement. The aforesaid passer-by may also, if he be observant, remark an unwonted air of movement stirring about the place; something is going to happen. Up in the room, from which the voices float down into the road, the mystery is explained, for a small group of ladies are gathered around the bed, wrapped in an ecstasy of admiration and delight at the vision of a white satin bridal dress smothered in lace, together with the usual paraphernalia considered necessary for those young ladies who are about to change their condition.

At the centre of the group is Aunt Jane, half triumphantly, half tearfully, holding up the veil and orange-blossoms, and clustered around her are Georgina and Maud and Mrs. Lambton.

It is also a month since fatness

Regimental Nicknames.

Every regiment has its nickname, but some of the oldest and most interesting ones have been forgotten.

A Dorset battalion got the name of "Green Linnet" from the green facings on their uniform and a habit they had of singing on the march. The "Piccadilly Butchers" were the 1st Life Guards, and the name is a reminder of the part which they took in the Burdett riots in 1810.

For some unknown reason the Royal Horse Guards (Blues) were dubbed "Tin Bellies," and the nickname for the 2nd Dragon Guards was "Bags." In the battle of the Boyne the 7th Dragon Guards lost their boots in a bog, and had to swathe their feet in straw. Ever after that they were called "Strawboots."

Because they fought in their shirts at Delhi, the Munster Fusiliers have ever since been known as "Dirty Shirts."

The standard of height for the 19th Hussars was formerly very low, and men of that regiment were given the uncomplimentary name of "Dumplings."

Keeping The Sword Sharp.

The German Military Commander-in-Chief did not beat about the bush any in his New Year message to the army, but made as blunt, and therefore very significant, statement as any made previous to or during the war by the Kaiser himself. 'We will keep our sword sharp,' said General Von Seeckt. 'The army must and will remain a real national army.' This is a frank admission of German intentions militarily. The sword is to be kept sharp and the army must remain national. What is the purpose? Is it to repel anticipated invasion, or is it with the object of again entering upon a war of aggression and revenge, when Germany thinks she is strong enough to take the offensive? While other nations have been reducing their military forces keeping only such a strength as deemed necessary for home and foreign service, the aim of Germany still is apparently to evade the terms of the Treaty of Versailles and maintain a vast military organization to the members of which the official message to 'keep the sword sharp' has been sent. Because of this and other defections from the provisions of the Peace Pact, is it any wonder that France has become genuinely and unaffectedly alarmed over the conduct of Germany. Since the signing of the armistice in November, 1918, up to the present day the tone of the Germans has been arrogant, and more of the tenor of the victor than the vanquished. Insolent in bearing and speech when summoned to Paris for the acceptance of the conditions of peace, the Hun envoys declared that they were but signing because they had no alternative, and that they would afterwards repudiate as many as possible of the terms to which they were but nominally agreeing.

And they have kept faith with themselves and their threats, for they have neither surrendered nor destroyed arms and munitions according to agreement. The fortresses named to be dismantled have not been. The manufacture of weapons and munitions, clearly a gross violation of the treaty, is being carried on. Their police force has been converted into a military body, representing a large standing army. William Hohenzollern, in his Dutch retreat, is being paid a huge sum annually, while the German authorities plead poverty for their inability to meet their financial obligations to the Allies. The 'keep the sword sharp' injunction of General Seeckt, might have been a paraphrase of Maximilian Harden's testimony, published in a recent German journal: 'The Chief of the German Army, and before him, the Chancellor, has appealed for armament for vengeance. The President of the Empire (note the Imperialistic expression) has glorified the old army, which, he said, was never vanquished by any enemy.' Some days ago the French Premier, speaking to the Chamber of Deputies, told the members of that body that the new German Army is costing that nation, which declares itself bankrupt, five billions of marks yearly, and that its ranks are 'bloated with officers,' there being one for every twenty privates. The War Department has on its staff the most competent and capable military experts, among them being the greater portion of the officials of the General Staff. The French Premier further pointed out that the police have been formed into the nucleus of an army, ready to undertake a war under cover of the Peace Treaty, and added that Germany had evaded all her obligations at every opportunity, and that he was convinced that vast quantities of arms had been concealed, regardless of her treaty undertakings. Other deputies corroborated the statements of Premier Leygues, the consensus of opinion being that the more there is ceded to Germany, the more will have to be ceded, and that Germany sees in the generosity and well-meaning of the Allies, signs of weakness and timidity, 'which but serve to reawaken her primitive instincts of conquest and all her old inherited passions.' Such may sound as approaching the extreme of sentiment, but France is so near Germany that the doings of the latter country can be observed clearly, and there can be no doubt but that there is moving apace in Germany circles an idea that the time to strike for revenge is not far distant. Long the enemy of Britain, it were folly for Britons to treat Germany as a friend, as it appears is the misguided intention of a certain section in England. In keeping the German sword sharp, its point may, at the opportune moment, be directed at the heart of the Empire, for the German spirit is exceedingly bitter toward Britain, and the toast of the Hun may well continue to be 'Der Tag.'

Explanation.

In the Evening Telegram of December 15, 1920, an item referring to certain cablegrams received from Mr. W. A. Mann, who was then at Genoa, contained the statement, in commenting upon the Italian situation and the Consorzio that 'The Consorzio absolutely refuse to have anything to do with Hawes.' On several other occasions assertions have been made in our columns which have been considered to reflect on the business of Mr. Hawes in a similar manner. We have since learned that these statements are altogether incorrect, and being reluctant to do any injury whatever to the business of Messrs. Hawes & Co., or anyone else for that matter, we can only say in justification for publishing the allegations in question that they were deduced from reports in circulation at the time. We regret exceedingly if anything in the extracts quoted above, or in any of our other references, has been damaging to Messrs. Hawes & Co., and though these statements have been circulated through the medium of the Telegram yet we trust that they have not caused any serious reflection on the relations between Consorzio and Messrs. Hawes, either in the past or present.

Leaves From a Diary.

A very interesting article from the facile pen of Mr. H. F. Shortis, will be published in the Telegram tomorrow. The title is 'Leaves from a Diary and some Recollections.' It is needless to say that this article, as is usual with all the contributions of Mr. Shortis, contains a fund of information regarding the seal fishery and many reminiscences of the 'Captains Courageous' who flourished in the days of the sailing fleet.

Newfoundland Club a Success.

The twelfth Annual Meeting of the Newfoundland Club was held last night at 8 o'clock in the Board of Trade Rooms. The first important phase of the evening's business was a hearty discussion on changes in the constitution, held over from last meeting. One important change regarding the raising of the percentage to constitute a quorum was passed after several exchanges of diversified opinions. Great enthusiasm was displayed when the president, C. F. Davis, read a letter from Sir Thomas Roddick, M. D., L.L.D., F.R.C.S., accepting the honorary presidency of the club. Sir Thomas is one of the many Newfoundlanders who have made good in their adopted country. Three new members—R. H. LeMessurier, J. O. Fraser and Martin Cashin—were elected to the executive. It was decided that a skating party be held immediately after the mid-term exams, whereas other club functions will be discussed at the next meeting. The success of the annual dinner has meant more for the success of the club than was conceived by the most astute optimists.—The McGill Daily, Dec. 17.

New Vice-Consul.

Mr. T. J. Kennedy, the well-known manager of the Furness Withy Co's Shipping Department received a notification by yesterday's mail, of the fact that he had been appointed Vice-Consul for the Netherlands in Newfoundland. The notification, which was sent by the Consul General of the Netherlands in Canada, is as follows: To T. J. Kennedy, St. John's. Dear Sir,—I have the honour and pleasure to inform you that Her Majesty the Queen of the Netherlands, has been pleased by Royal Decree of Nov. 24th, 1920, to appoint you to the post of Vice-Consul for the Netherlands at St. John's for Newfoundland. I wish to add my congratulations in connection with same. Yours truly, A. NORDHEIMER, Consul General for Canada.

Wedding Bells.

On Sunday, Jan. 9th, at St. Joseph's Church, a very pretty wedding was solemnized, when Miss Violet King of this place, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. King, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to ex-Pte. Andrew Evoy of Haricot. The bride was neatly attired in a bridal gown of cream silk and large picture hat and was attended by her cousin, Miss Bride King of Bell Island, who was dressed to match that of the bride. The groom was ably supported by his brother, Thomas Evoy. The bride entered the church leaning on the arm of her brother, Denis King, who gave her away. After the ceremony was performed the happy couple drove to the home of the bride's parents, where their immediate friends and relatives were entertained, and from there they proceeded to their future home at Haricot, where a very enjoyable time was spent, dancing being kept up till the small hours of the morning. Many and useful were the presents received by the happy couple, showing the esteem in which they are held by a large circle of friends, with whom we join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Evoy many years of wedded happiness.—Com. Salmoner, Jan. 15th, 1921.

Personal.

Mr. A. Forsythe arrived in the city recently to relieve Manager Glennie of the Bank of Nova Scotia, who is leaving by the next Sackin for a three month trip to the West Indies. Mr. Forsythe has been transferred here from Sussex, N.B. Mr. H. D. Archibald of Archibald Bros., Ltd., St. John's, is in town on route to Boston on business for the firm.

Shipping Notes.

S.S. Digby leaves Halifax to-morrow for this port. S.S. Rosalind leaves for Halifax to-morrow evening. S.S. Coban sailed this morning for Loughsborough in ballast. Schooner Energi has cleared for Alicante with a cargo of fish from the Monroe Export Co. The schooner Duty which sailed from Port Union on Dec. 29th with a cargo of 4,300 qts. Labrador fish arrived at Gibraltar on the 15th inst., making the passage in 17 days. The American tug Balena which left Halifax at 7 o'clock on Sunday morning for this port had not arrived up to one o'clock to-day. The Balena is coming here to tow the disabled steamer Passant to Norfolk, Va.

Poultry Association.

ROLD ANNUAL MEETING. The twelfth Annual Meeting of the Newfoundland Poultry Association was held last night at 8 o'clock in the Board of Trade Rooms. The first important phase of the evening's business was a hearty discussion on changes in the constitution, held over from last meeting. One important change regarding the raising of the percentage to constitute a quorum was passed after several exchanges of diversified opinions. Great enthusiasm was displayed when the president, C. The success of the annual dinner has meant more for the success of the club than was conceived by the most astute optimists.—The McGill Daily, Dec. 17.

Ladies' Auxiliary Formed.

A large number of lady friends of the Elks met yesterday in the club's rooms for the purpose of forming a Ladies' Auxiliary. After the matter had been fully discussed the election of officers took place, and resulted as follows: Pres.—Mrs. (Dr.) Perkins. Vice.—Miss O'Mara. Treas.—Mrs. J. Larkin. After the election general business was taken up, a programme arranged for the first item being preparations for the grand ball to be held by the Elks in the C.C.C. Hall Wednesday, March 30.

St. Andrew's Society.

At the annual meeting of the St. Andrew's Society held last night Vice-President A. K. Lumsden occupied the Chair. The report for 1920 was submitted and showed the Society to be in a flourishing condition, and although there was a big outlay in fitting up the new club rooms nevertheless there still was a substantial balance on hand. The report referred at length to the splendid efforts of the Ladies' Auxiliary during the past year, who not only assisted in the various social undertakings but were able to hand over the splendid amount of $1,500 to the Society. After the adoption of the report the election of officers for the current year followed as below: Pres.—H. D. Reid. Vice Pres.—A. K. Lumsden. 2nd V. P.—R. G. Ross. Sect. Treas.—R. H. Tait. Asst. Sec. Treas.—W. Curran. Committee—J. Wallace, D. McIntosh, J. Irvine, T. Curran, D. McPherson, W. B. Edie, W. R. Neal, R. B. Innes.

Police Court.

ASSAULT CASE.—A man who was charged with assault pleaded guilty through his counsel, Mr. W. J. Higgins, K.C., who asked for leniency, stating that an apology had been made. Hon. Mr. Gibbs, K.C., for plaintiff, opposed the motion for leniency as the assault was entirely unwarranted. He put plaintiff in the witness box. The facts of the case as gleaned from the witness's statement are as follows: After the Rosalind arrived here on her last trip from New York, defendant applied, with about 200 others, for work in connection with discharging the ship's cargo. Plaintiff, whose duty it was to hire the men required, wanted only 70, whom he had already selected, and as a consequence there was no work to be given accused. The latter returned in the afternoon seemingly under the influence of liquor, and removing part of his clothing, he made a mad rush at plaintiff, hitting him in the face with his head. Mr. Higgins, cross-examining, asked if it were not true that defendant apologized. The witness replied in the affirmative. In reply to other questions, however, he insisted that defendant must have had some 'spice' against him, although he did not know the cause of it. Two other witnesses were examined after which Mr. Higgins addressed the court, asking for leniency as the man had a wife and seven children to support and was out of work. His Honor said the assault was a deliberate one and if it were not for the man's family he would impose a heavy fine. He fined the defendant $10 or 20 days.

Police Court.

CURIOUS PROHIBITION CASE.—The case of Constable Wade against a man of the West End for selling intoxicating liquor was next heard. The Inspector General prosecuted and Mr. Higgins acted for defendant. The Government Analyst gave evidence as to the strength of liquor contained in two bottles submitted to him. It was over 50 underproof. The next witness called admitted buying two bottles of rum from the defendant at $5 per bottle. He brought it up to some friends of his in the West End, who after sampling the stuff objected strongly to it, saying it was unfit for human consumption. Cross-examined by Mr. Higgins he admitted offering his services to the police as a private detective but was not accepted. On the night of the 18th he drove in a sleigh to the house of defendant and asked him to come for a drive. He could not remember the name of the cabman whom he had engaged, but the British Hall he paid the defendant $12. They had some drinks in the sleigh, leaving only what was now in the bottles. About 1.30 a.m. witness informed police of the transaction and gave them the bottles. Constable Wade swore to seeing one of the principals at a boiler house in the West End, who spoke of an awful soaking he had received and told the police the story. Constable Case confirmed the testimony of the last witness. This ended the case for the Crown. Mr. Higgins testified that witness called and asked him to come for a drive. He thought he wanted to give him a drink. They had several drinks during the drive. He left him at Queen Street and went home. The latter returned at 11.15 and said he had sold two bottles to a man at Reid's who wanted either his money back or better booze. He had not sold any liquor to witness. Mr. Higgins, in concluding, said that it was up to the prosecution to prove his case. The defendant and the complainant had contradicted one another. He thought it ridiculous, however, that complainant should buy liquor to give it away. The defendant had answered the accusation and now the onus of proving the charge was on the prosecution, whose evidence had been entirely unconvincing. The Inspector General said that it was up to the defendant to disprove the charge. His Honor said the burden of proof was cast on the complainant. He believed the defendant's story and dismissed the case. Incidentally he suggested that complainant is open to prosecution under the Prohibition Act for having intoxicating liquor in his possession.

EXECUTION POSTPONED. DUBLIN, Jan. 17. An appeal against the infliction of the death penalty on Joseph Murphy was heard before the Court at Appellate today. The decision was adjourned until January 25...

SIX ARRESTS MADE. LONDON, January 17. Six men were arrested this morning in connection with the attempt to blow up the premises of the Sun Oil Co. at Wandsworth last Saturday. The police allege that it is their belief one of the prisoners is the leader of the so-called Sinn Féin terrorist gang in London...

FAKED PHOTOGRAPH. LONDON, Jan. 17. A supplementary report of Irish investigations into conditions in that country was issued this evening by the Labor Party. It stated that the publication of the testimony of one witness before the investigating commission resulted in a visit to his home by armed men, who, not finding the witness, proceeded to damage the furniture. The supplementary report challenges the accuracy of the Government's accounts of the battle of Tralee, drawing the conclusion that the battle was a fragment of the imagination...

HOLD UP GANG ARRESTED. TOLEDO, Ohio, Jan. 17. Five men were arrested late to-night in connection with a robbery today of $22,000 from a New York Central Railway agent here, and the shooting to death of Detective Louis Schroeder and A. E. Long. The five men were taken in a raid on a Broadway lunch room, less than a mile from the scene of the holdup.

LIMITED TO 175,000 MEN. WASHINGTON, Jan. 17. Congress voted to-day to limit the size of the regular army of the United States to 175,000 enlisted men. The Senate by a vote of 41 to 33 set aside a decision of last week to reduce the army to 150,000 men, and then without a record vote adopted the original resolution of Senator New, Republican, Indiana, directing the Secretary of War to stop recruiting until the army is cut to 175,000 men. The House, ten minutes later, adopted a similar resolution also directing the Secretary of War to cease enlistments until there are not more than 175,000 enlisted men in the regular establishment. The House vote was 285 to 4.

WILL LIGHTEN REPRESSION. LONDON, Jan. 17. Since the suspension of the negotiations, with O'Flaannigan there has been a complete cessation of unofficial conversations for an Irish truce, and it is not likely they will be renewed for at least two months. During this interval, the authorities in Ireland will be permitted to lighten up repressive measures and prove their belief that Ireland can in this manner be restored to order and the extreme quietness.

L. G.'S BIRTHDAY. LONDON, Jan. 17. David Lloyd George, Prime Minister of Great Britain, was 55 years old to-day. He has been a member of the British Cabinet for fifteen years, and Prime Minister since 1916.

WON NEWSPAPER DECISION. PITTSBURGH, Jan. 17. Johnny Wilson of Boston, middle-weight champion, won a newspaper decision over Joe Chip of Newcastle, Pa., in the thirteenth round of a bout here to-night.

CLOUDBURST CAUSES DAMAGE. HONOLULU, Jan. 18. A cloudburst in the Poloto Valley, of the unprecedented rains of the last few weeks, caused damage estimated at one quarter of a million dollars. A few small houses were swept away, and four persons are reported drowned.

UNIFORMED WOMEN. LONDON, Jan. 18. Two uniformed policewomen, says the Daily Mail, participated in a search for wanted men at Tournafulla, County Limerick, on Sunday.

MAY CAUSE TROUBLE. DELHI, India, Jan. 18. Unrest prevails in the Indian Army at the Government's decision to demobilize thirty thousand Indian troops and two thousand five hundred British officers.

FOR BURIAL IN PALESTINE. LONDON, Jan. 18. Bodies, supposed to be those of the Grand Duchess Olga, daughter of former Czar Nicholas of Russia, and her maid, are aboard the British steamer Devanha, due to reach Egypt shortly. They will be taken to the Holy Land for final interment.

ANOTHER ENQUIRY. LONDON, Jan. 18. The Times says there is good reason to believe that the fires in Cork will be made the subject of another inquiry by another commission, about to be appointed.

SEARCH ORDERED. U.S.S. New Mexico, at Sea, Jan. 18. Two divisions of destroyers were ordered yesterday to search for the Naval Seaplane NC-8, off Costa Rica.

INTERNATIONAL BARTER. LONDON, Jan. 18. Trade by barter will soon be in full swing between Great Britain and Baltic States, which are lacking in bare necessities, says the Daily Mail.

STRICKLAND'S REPLY. LONDON, Jan. 18. In a letter to the Deputy Mayor of Cork, relative to a request to remove martial law, Major General Strickland, British Commander, says that...

the present state of affairs in Cork cannot be allowed to continue, and he will be compelled to "take such drastic measures as may be necessary to make the lives of Crown forces secure from assassins and cowardly attacks."

JAPAN CALLS IT "BLUFF." TOKIO, Jan. 18. Proposals from United States for "naval holiday" are intended more for the help of United States than for the peace of the world, said Marquis Shigenobu Okuma, former Japanese Premier, in an interview to-day. "The Japanese naval programme is fixed at a minimum necessary for national defence," he said.

U.S. PRESS ON BIG SHIP POLICY. NEW YORK, Jan. 18. Reports from London to the effect that the Council of Imperial Defence views with disfavor, the continuation of "Big Ship Policy," has aroused considerable attention in the press of the United States. The New York Times attributes the change in attitude to consideration of expense. The Evening Sun recalls the fact that it was such splendid vessels as the Queen Elizabeth, the Malaya and Barham that kept mastery of the seas and forced the German fleet to cover.

ROBBED U. S. MAILS. CHICAGO, Jan. 18. Five youthful bandits held up a United States mail truck at the Union Station here to-day, escaping in an automobile with twelve bags of mail, ten of which were registered. The pouches are said to contain part of a Federal reserve bank money shipment.

DANISH INDUSTRIES CRISIS. COPENHAGEN, Jan. 18. Danish industries are facing a critical situation, the majority of large concerns working only half time and others being closed down. Unemployment is rapidly increasing, and the market is being glutted with foreign made goods.

Mayoral Comedians. A. M. Sullivan used to tell a delightful story of a loyalist mayor in Ireland—rarer during the 'eighties than snakes. Having occasion to propose the toast of Queen Victoria at a local banquet, he said: "Gentlemen, I give you the toast of Her Majesty the Queen. She is popular at home; she is popular abroad; she is popular with the rich; she is popular with the poor, and gentlemen, what is a truer test of good womanhood, she is popular in her family."

McMurdo's Store News. TUESDAY, Jan. 18, '21. Many people seem to share our belief that McMurdo's Emulsified Coconut Oil Shampoo is the very thing the public have been searching for in the way of a shampoo preparation that can be used with the minimum of trouble to reach the fullest of results. This no doubt is what explains the increasing popularity of this elegant preparation, and makes new friends for it day by day. Price 40c. a bottle. If you need a tonic which will increase the appetite and nerve force quickly, try Gault's Cod Liver Oil Compound. 'Twill give results. Price $1.00 a bottle. For informal dances the slipper with the fancy strap is new. Slit pockets are outlined on the outer edge with tiny buttons.

No Home Life in China.

Seven hundred and seventy-nine of every one thousand babies in the great Chinese republic die before they are two years old, according to the latest and most accurate statistics available in that great and disjointed nation, reports Mrs. Egbert Hayes, just returned from several years of residence in the ancient city of Soochow.

And the average Chinese reaction to this appalling fact is the stolidly practical rejoinder, "What would we do if they didn't?" The strangeness of this casual attitude toward the tragedy of infant mortality in the world's oldest nation is matched by the queerness of the whole domestic system. It is perhaps significant, Mrs. Hayes thinks, that among all their fifty thousand characters or picture words there is none which translates what we mean by "home."

Every Chinaman of any consequence has besides a first wife, who is almost invariably a despot in her relations with the rest, a "little wife," and others according to his means. The first wife has as one of her autocratic prerogatives the right to claim for her own any child she fancies of any of the other wives. Moreover, she must be consulted in all matters concerning the upbringing of all the children of the complex household.

But even the first wife, much as she lords it over her less fortunate successors, is a meek person when the man of the house comes home. No woman is allowed to eat at his table. Women of the upper classes, those of the useless, deformed feet, spend their days, Mrs. Hayes explains, gambling and smoking. Those of the coolie class slave like so many oxen, while their babies, their poultry and the family pig roll round in one untidy but relatively contented mass on the floor of their one roomed shack. The great are very great, and the poor very low, in this four thousand year old land, just as it has been always. The sedan chair of an official must be carried by at least four of the swarming coolie population. A fifth runs ahead, showing the world in his outstretched hand the name card of the great man behind him.

The sedan chair is still, perhaps, the commonest of conveyances, Mrs. Hayes notes. In Soochow there is no wheeled vehicle. There are the chairs, and in the Venice-like waterways boats, and nothing else, not even a jitricksha.

Coastal Boats. GOVERNMENT. S.S. Prospero left Nipper's Harbor at 10.20 a.m., going north as far as Tilt Cove. S.S. Fortia left St. John's for Western ports at 10 o'clock this morning. GOVT. RAILWAY COMMISSION. Arrive to leave Placentia to-day for Bay route. Clyde arrived at St. John's at 1 p.m. yesterday. Kyle at St. John's. Sagona at North Sydney.

TO CORRESPONDENTS! Correspondents are requested to accompany contributions with their real names, not necessarily for publication but as a guarantee of good faith. NOTE OF THANKS.—Mr. and Mrs. Tracy and family wish to express their sincere thanks to all those who helped them during their son and brother Edward's illness, especially Dr. Mitchell, Mr. Chas. Hutton, Mr. Albert Blackler, Mrs. Jas. Tolm. Mrs. Aspell; also those who sent wreaths and flowers: Mrs. N. J. Smith, Master J. Russell, Mrs. A. Harwood, Miss Teresa Dumphy, Miss Kathleen Hayes, Prof. P. J. McCarthy, Mr. N. J. Fanning, the Bugle Band and N.C.O.'s Mess of the C.O.C. and also members of Terra Nova Lodge No. 923, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen for their letters of sympathy.—adv.

Large advertisement for Kearney's clothing store. Features the headline "Here Beginneth the 4th. four days" and lists various clothing items with prices, such as Raincoats, Fleece-lined Camels, and Gent's Dressing Gowns. Includes a circular stamp that says "Kearney's Memorial Library" and a signature "Kearney's".

An Innocent Fleeced. One of Vienna's most debonair social vamps has been arrested in the person of Julius von Szemso, a Hungarian aristocrat, aged 39, on the charge that at a game of baccarat in his private house, he and his brother won no less than 28,000,000 kronen, or nominally more than £1,000,000 from a young Viennese, aged 21, whose name has not been disclosed. It seems that the two Szemso brothers were nearing the end of their financial resources, despite their ostentatious life, and resorted to the shearing of this young lamb, who is the son of a rich manufacturer. They proposed that though they played for, kronen, losses should be paid in some foreign currency. At the end of two days' play the young innocent found to his horror that he had lost 28,000,000 kronen, and was obliged to sign seven bills of exchange for 2,000,000 dinars. In case of trouble with the police, the sum was stated on the bills to be in consideration of a loan of 28,000,000 kronen received from Szemso. Even here, however, the young innocent had been swindled, Szemso having calculated the dinars at twice the rate of exchange prevailing. This Julius Szemso is well known in certain strata of society as the Man with the Yellow Gloves, owing to his habit of wearing such gloves when playing cards at various clubs. He lives in a house called Palais Szemso, where he keeps a large establishment of servants, six motor cars, seven rickshaws, and two milk cows, these being a considerably rarity there nowadays. He has been previously arrested for engaging in what is known as valuta smuggling, or smuggling currency across the frontier, and for having illegally stamped Austrian kronen notes so as to give them higher value. He has had many matrimonial adventures, and not long ago his present wife caused some diversion in a fashionable restaurant by throwing vitriol in the face of a married lady of whom she thought she had grounds for jealousy. (From the London Morning Post.) A newly-married lady was being interviewed by the reporter of the local newspaper just after the ceremony. "And after the honeymoon, where do you intend to settle down?" was his final question. "At the old manse," said the bride, as she hurried away. The reporter thought it sounded unusually familiar, but he decided to use it. When it appeared in print the report finished up: "After the honeymoon the happy couple intend to live at the old manse."

Powerful Sermon by Rev. Dr. Bond.

At Cochrane St. Centennial Church Sunday morning the pastor, Rev. Dr. Bond, delivered a sermon which had a strong appeal to the congregation because of its forcefulness and its applicability to every-day life. The Reverend Pastor said in part:

"When you want to find a man you must strip him of his business, you must strip him of his position, his money, his friends, his home, his clothes, you must strip him of his whole body. All this you must do to get to the man. And when you have done all that you have him. Inside all the wrappings, inside all the conventions; inside of all the animal accessories and vehicles, you have the man. That is you. That is I. Neither more nor less. We must not think of ourselves in terms of our wrappings, we must think of ourselves in terms of the essential, invisible, spiritual, entity which we are. That is clear. That is common sense. The man is that individual, naked spirit, stripped of everything but his own essential and individual spirituality. You grant that, I know, when you come to think it out to logical conclusion. But I am after something more than that. I want you to see it as to feel it. So to feel it as to shape your life and conduct by it; you may gain a whole lot of inferior things but lose the greatest of all things. And Jesus Christ who was the Sovereign of the universe and your Maker, put the question with an unanswerable force when he asked, 'What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?'

So much being promised, it is clear that efficiency is not the last word in the development of manhood. We have made a great deal of that word—efficiency. Perhaps the most efficient people on the face of the earth were the Germans. They were educated for efficiency. It was the first and last thought in all their training. It was that efficiency that produced all those diabolical inventions, such as poison gas, flame throwers, the ruthless submarine, the horrible crimes which should cause the German nation forever to bow its head in shame. But it did not make them men, not that kind and quality of men that the world can tolerate. If German efficiency had had its way, remember there would have been no world worth living in to-day. 'Deutschland uber Alles' would have spelled the destruction of real manhood. For Germany had left the spiritual out of count. She had abandoned God. And it was the rush of men who felt that there was something more important and essential than business or home or comfort or even life, it was the rush of those noble men, some of them from Cochrane St. Church, who threw their bodies in the way and stopped, at awful cost, the efficiency of Germany from trampling on the rights of men, that saved the situation, and made the world safe for men to live in. But we are in danger of aiming at efficiency and stopping at that aim. For the efficiency that we aim at has a purely material content. It leaves the man out of account. We train a boy to be a business man or a professional man. We tell him if he does his work well, if he prepares his lessons well, if he uses his time well, he will get on, he will make good, he will be a successful man, but what do we mean by 'getting on?' What do we mean by 'making good?' What do we mean by a successful man? Do we mean a successful development of the manhood of the man? Do we mean that he will be more the man his Maker intended him to be, a more kindly, sympathetic, upright, honest man? No, we do not. We mean that he will acquire money or position or power of some sort entirely outside the spiritual. In a word we have been training him not to make a life but a living, and many men to-day are making a living, but losing their lives. Our education of him has been all of it on the purely material side. He will not think, he will not reason on any other, if he follows the course we have fitted him for.

The spiritual world is not efficiency but personality. Our age has nearly lost the spiritual in the material. It has nearly lost the man in his clothes and in his house and his position and his business and his capacity for making money. This is stating facts very badly. What among other things did the Incarnation teach? 'Is not this the Carpenter?' asked the crowd, while the answer comes down from Heaven. 'This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased.' They were the same persons. The Carpenter was the well beloved Son of God. The business did not spoil the man. It gave him scope enough for uttermost divine service for all the years at Nazareth. 'I remember,' said Dr. Bond, 'when a couple of business merchants on Water St. and the most famous sealing captain of his day would be found without fail at the Friday night prayer-meeting. But the Friday night prayer-meeting is not on the manifest to-day. God is not on the manifest. We have reached the day of efficiency carried to such an extent that the Ministry of the day is not getting recruits to fill its ranks because fathers and mothers do not want their children to be ministers, because material good and not spiritual development and usefulness are held up before them. 'How many of you fathers and mothers,' said the speaker, have ever prayed, 'O God make my boy a Minister of Jesus Christ?' How many of you have ever set the ministry of God's word before your boy as the greatest of all callings, the very best investment any boy can make of his talents and his time? And that is only one test of whether personality and personal usefulness are our goal.

We are in a backwash. We are not going forward. We are going backward. Contrast the life of the mercantile community of to-day with that of thirty years ago, or the activities of the public men of the present age with that of thirty years ago, or even the recruits for the Christian Ministry with those of thirty years ago. The present will not stand comparison with the conditions of thirty years ago. We are spending 'our money for that which is not bread, and our labour for that which satisfieth not.' We ought to be ahead, and our children ought to be ahead of us. It is no use to point to better business premises, or larger production, or better houses, or more wealth as proof that we are going ahead. Have we more MAN? 'Man doth not live by bread alone.' Have we more MAN? 'Christ was right when he said, 'How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the Kingdom of God.' Money is a grand thing when used for beneficent purposes, such as ministering to the necessities of those who through no fault of their own, are in dire distress, but when used for selfish indulgence it is as a millstone tied round the neck of the possessor and will eventually hurt him into the sea of destruction. It is a common question to ask of one at his death, 'How much was he worth.' The value of a man cannot be estimated in terms of dollars and cents. His true worth is in proportion to his honesty and sincerity, his beneficence, his usefulness, the good man that he was and the good that he did. So live that it will be said of us at our passing, he was a good man, she was a good woman.'

'He was a good man, she was a good woman.' The above is a synopsis of what constituted a most sincere and powerful appeal for genuine Christian living, and the writer considered it a duty to pass on the message through the medium of the press, beyond the confines of the four walls of the church in which it was delivered to that larger congregation of readers, who during the quiet leisure of the evening hour, may read, with profit and appreciation these words. Previous to the sermon Dr. Bond made touching reference to the passing of Mrs. Arthur Peters, and said that while the sting of death was in a measure mitigated by anticipating the sad event, yet the anguish was none the less, but on the contrary, all the more poignant under such circumstances and the deceased all the more missed. Mr. Peters has the prayers and sympathy of the whole congregation in his sad bereavement.

Pedestrian Complains.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—Time after time I have wondered if the cabmen have a "sole right" to the sidewalks immediately opposite their horses, as they wait at the cabstands. The men gather in groups and discuss the current topics of the day, and I have repeatedly seen ladies and others being compelled to manoeuvre their way through the congregated cabmen, at times even having to step off the sidewalk to pass them. This is particularly noticeable near the Post Office. While we all agree that the cabmen has to endure many hardships, particularly in winter time, still we must not forget the pedestrian, who when passing up or down that part of Water Street during slippery or wet weather, would almost need to understand navigation so as to be able to manoeuvre his way past the cabstands. Citizens, will, I feel sure, be glad to see something done in this matter. No doubt it is without thought that this practice has been allowed to go on.

Thanking you for publishing this in the paper that is ever ready to bring matters for the benefit of the citizens to the fore—the Evening Telegram. Yours very truly, PEDESTRIAN. Jan. 17, 1921. MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR DIPHTHERIA.

Is It Not Time to Act?

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.—There must be but few of your readers who have not been saddened by the sight or report of a young woman or girl being arrested for loose and disorderly conduct, but how quickly we forget it as we move about and see other and more pleasing scenes that we delight to keep in our memories. But let us consider, let us take time and review the evil effects of the above and if possible endeavor to wake up some persons with abler pens and means at their disposal to work out a remedy for this fast growing evil.

The young girl that we have seen being arrested by the police may not have had the advantages of home comforts and loving parents in her early life, and therefore she has wandered from the right course of living, consequently she is placed under arrest, brought before the magistrate and given a term in the Penitentiary. After serving her term there she is released, unfortunately more hardened than before. But this is not all nor the worst feature in the case. The unfortunate one now sees nothing for her but to continue in her disorderly way, and is sure to associate with other young women and girls, and young men as well, and the influence on their lives by this misguided one is without doubt almost beyond our imagination. I feel sure that many young girls and boys are in this way given a wrong and dangerous start in life.

But is there not a remedy for this rapidly increasing evil? Without a doubt there is, and to my mind the remedy is very simple and inexpensive, or it can at least be made so. The Penitentiary is no place for such incarcerates as I refer to above, and if we want our young people, male and female protected, we must have a place to put these girls, not for a term specified by a magistrate, (that punishment will only tend to harden them), but a place where they must be kept until they learn to be better citizens and learn more to respect themselves and others.

But some persons say: 'Look at the expense of such a place as you refer to?' True, but look at the danger and risk of contamination when such are allowed at large to continue their evil ways. Weigh them both and I doubt if there is a father or a mother in this city who will not agree with me that expense should not stand in the way when the subject of the betterment of the future men and women of St. John's is at stake. But will there be much expense for the upkeep of such an institution? It must not be a 'home,' in the real sense, for there must be some form of punishment there. But the only punishment I would suggest would be work. Let the place be so fitted that all sorts of work for girls could be done there, such as sewing, knitting, matting, or in fact, anything saleable. The girls should be given certain work to do, and be 'compelled' to do it. This work should be sold and the money realized held to pay for the upkeep of the institution. In the same building, perhaps arrangements could be made for the training of boys in different trades, and the boy that unfortunately goes astray could be placed there instead of put in the Pen with more hardened criminals. It would be an easy matter to convince the Government of the necessity of such a place and get help for the scheme.

Now, I hope I won't be misunderstood when I use the word 'compelled to work.' There should be very strict discipline displayed, and the matter of good meals should be the motive power to incite these unfortunate to good work, and good work will make them good citizens in time. Should any refuse to work the only punishment should be a reduction of food. But sir, these are perhaps rambling thoughts, but it must be admitted it is time to act, and we cannot longer close our eyes to the growing evil above referred to, but look about us earnestly for a remedy.

Beautiful Parks and such like are all right in their way, but are they not sources of danger unless properly kept, which I feel sure they are (well kept) in this city. Is there not some person in the city willing to make a move in this matter, some person who can afford to back up ideas by a few thousand dollars, which unfortunately the writer cannot do, but which would be a source of great pleasure to him if in his power. Think the matter out carefully, gentle readers, and try, and estimate the value of such an institution as I refer to; is it not impossible to estimate such value?

Yours very truly, SYMPATHY. Jan. 17, 1921.

Girl Highwayman.

The ranks of Chicago highwaymen have been depleted by the arrest of a young and pretty girl, who has been identified by three men as having taken them up with a pistol. The girl appears, stopped men in the street, ask the way to an address which was usually closed by the police. She was usually shown the way to a block of flats she professed to be living for. On arrival there the girl, a victim to accompany her upstairs, would be forced into a flat where she would be bound, relieved of her valuables, and then departed. The police arrived at the flat and found three men tied to beds.

Will Newfoundland Remain Silent?

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—If a nation is guilty of an act of injustice towards another, it is not only the rulers and governments that are involved in the guilt of that act. Every soldier who fights every citizen who does not protest is guilty, as well as the King, the Government and the Generals.

Knowing then our responsibilities, the question we might ask ourselves as citizens of the British Empire: "Are we performing our duty now in remaining silent in this country when we know the governing power in England has gone mad in the desire to terrorize by every conceivable form of persecution a people who have not in themselves the power of defence against these onslaughts of brutal passion? They call the terrible acts committed as reprisals. Mr. Asquith in speaking of these reprisals says: "Since the adoption of this practice of reprisals, without a parallel so far as my knowledge goes in the annals of British Administration, justice has been put in the background, and vengeance has been enthroned in its place."

So bad is this reign of terror in Ireland that A.G.G. in Daily News has been compelled to write the following: "The Government have created a monster which is out of hand. They have let loose the Hun upon Ireland and their servants have become their master. They began the policy of frightfulness deliberately; they believed as the Prussians in Belgium believed, that they had only to adopt it in order to terrorize the nation. They made the blunder which the Hun mind in any nation always makes. It believes that if you are only barbarous enough—throughout, to use the expressive word of one of Mr. George's predecessors in the vain art of subjecting Ireland—you can reduce a people to submission. "Ireland must be bloodied," that was the phrase in the Army. Sometimes the figure was put at 500, Kill 500 or so and all the rest would be as quiet as lambs and the blessings of Carsonsism would bring peace and happiness to a chastened people. It is the dream of vulgar, ignorant and brutal minds—of minds for whom the teachings of history have no meaning.

We will give only a few of the thousands of the new name of reprisals, that are happening in Ireland. The following account is taken from the Irish Times (Unionist paper) of October 26th: "Michael Ryan, only son of a widow, acted as the Registrar of the local Arbitration Court, and enjoyed the reputation of a man who was anxious for peace. Margaret Ryan, his sister, stated that to-day about 12.30 a.m. when her mother, herself, another sister and her brother, were in bed, a knock came to the front door. She opened the door and saw a man at the back door. This man told her to go around to the front and admit the men who were there. She did so and two men entered. One of them wore a scarf and khaki trousers. Both were of ordinary height. One wore a black mask and the other a trench coat. The man wearing the trench coat seemed to act as leader. He said they came to see her brother. She said he was sick from pneumonia all the week and could not be seen. On hearing this the men went into the yard and held a consultation with the others. They returned and brought with them a man wearing a white mask. They insisted on seeing her brother and threatened to force their way to his room. She ran upstairs, they followed with revolvers pointed. She ran into Michael's room and told him. He said they will not shoot me, let them in. Meanwhile the men came into the room. One man told her to clear out or he would shoot her dead, while another snatched the lighted candle out of her hand. She screamed, the man with the white mask muttered something. Michael lay in the bed with his face turned towards his assailants. I heard him say he was an innocent man. I was then thrust out of the room and immediately I heard four shots. The men came out and threatened to shoot me and my mother and used brutal expressions. I ran back to Michael, who was bleeding from several wounds in his breast and unable to speak. All that he did was to moan several times, then he fell off and died."

Hugh Martin in the London News tells how after Linnox Creamery was burned down by the Black and Tans, the hair of four girls cut off and six lads brutally beaten with rifle butts. Uninformed men arrived next day to look over the damage and make formal report to Dublin Castle. Several of the Creamery employees says Mr. Martin, "identified at least three of the parties who had committed the crime."

The most brutal of crimes was the murder of Mrs. Ellen Quinn of Kiltartan. She was standing by a stile in front of her home with her baby in her arms when a lorry of uniformed men passed by at a rapid rate. Suddenly there was a burst of fire and Mrs. Quinn was hit in the groin and a number of fowls was killed. Mrs. Quinn staggered to the door with her baby, which she handed to a servant, and then collapsed in a pool of blood. She died to death. She was attended by Rev. John Considine. This is his account of her death: "I have heard of Turkish atrocities, he said. I have read of the death of Joan of Arc. I have read of the suffering of Nurse Cavell and as I read those I often felt my blood boil and I often prayed that the good God would change the hearts of the perpetrators, but little did I then dream that I should witness a tragedy more cruel than any of these things and that here is our own peaceful parish. My God! It is awful." At about 3 p.m. Malachy Quinn, weeping bitterly called for him and said he had just heard his wife had been shot. Father Considine procured a motor car and hurried to the scene. At the gateway there was a large pool of blood on the roadside, about three yards away there was another pool, and the porch leading to the kitchen was actually covered with blood. In a room was the poor woman lying on her back with blood oozing out through her clothes. Oh, Father John, she said, I have been shot. Shot by whom? I exclaimed. By police, she answered. After Fr. Considine administered the last Sacraments she whispered, "Bring Malachy to me." I did so. He fainted off. Gradually she became worse. It seems the poor woman who, I am informed, was within two months of her confinement, was sitting on the wall outside her house holding her nine month old child in her arms, when the lorry passed from which the fatal shot was fired.

Henry W. Nevenson writes in the London Daily Herald: "A sixteen year old girl named O'Donnell, a daughter of a butter-maker employed at the Dingle Creamery was running across the road near the village carrying a child and leading another by the hand. In a moment she fell, shot dead. Two eye-witnesses maintain that two Black and Tans had bet on which was the better shot and one resting his rifle on the wall shot her. It makes one sad when reading the account of those terrible atrocities and it makes one shudder with horror reading the statement issued by the Anti-Reprisals Association of London that for the first time in modern English History a Government has deliberately condoned not the condign punishment of assassins or offenders against the law, but the infliction upon innocent people, some of them women and children—of organized and terrible cruelty.

It behoves us as members of the Empire to lend our strength to combat quickly this brute creation known as the Atrocities of Ireland. Surely we must be concerned in believing that the English heart is sick of these terrible doings. Let us hope that Sir Philip Gibbs is voicing the views of the English mind when he says: "I am an Englishman and I speak therefore from an Englishman's point of view, when I say I view the state of Ireland at the present time as a great disgrace to the British Empire."

Another strong condemnation comes from Lord Hartington, son and heir of the Duke of Devonshire, speaking at Matlock, that for the Government of England to shelter itself behind troops seemed to him little short of criminal. He advocated independence being tried for the Irish in such a way as to safeguard loyal southern Irishmen and declared that the Irish question had caused us to be looked upon by the world as humbugs and monsters. There is every evidence that the people of England are awakening to the horrors of the situation—let us hope before it is too late, that they may act and demand the immediate withdrawal of troops from Ireland so that immediate peace may come.

Thanking you in anticipation for the use of your space.

Yours very truly,

Wedding Bells.
PEDDLE-RYAN.
On Saturday, Jan. 8th, St. Joseph's Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding, when Miss Bridie Peddle, of "The Goslier" and Mr. William Ryan of this place, were united in the Holy bonds of Matrimony by Rev. J. M. Enright, P.P. The bride entered the church leaning on the arm of John MacDonald, who gave her away. She was neatly attired in a blue silk gown and a bridal veil to match and was attended by the groom's aunt, Mrs. John Ryan. After the ceremony was performed the happy couple drove to the home of the Groom's uncle where their immediate friends and relations were entertained and a very enjoyable evening was spent. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Ryan a prosperous voyage over the matrimonial sea.

Chimnies Ignite.
FIREMEN CALLED OUT TWICE.
The Central and Western Fire Companies were called out at 4.30 p.m. yesterday to a house in Young Street where soot had ignited in a chimney. A few pails of water extinguished the slight blaze before the firemen arrived on the scene. At 8.15 the Central and East End Companies were called to the house of Capt. Snow in Bannerman Street where soot had also ignited in the chimney. Here again the services of the firemen were not required. It seems a pity that the firemen should be called out on nights like last, for petty fires which can easily be quenched by a pail of water or so.

To Repeat Cabaret.
"FOLLIES" WILL AGAIN BE PRESENTED.
For the benefit of those who were not privileged to see the Cabaret entertainment presented with extraordinary success at the C.C.C. Hall last week, it has been decided to repeat it on Friday next in the Casino. This announcement will be undoubtedly welcome to all who were unable to gain admission to the previous representation and the repetition should be especially well supported as the proceeds are going towards aiding the city poor. The entertainment consists of singing, dancing and vaudeville and the C.C.C. Band will be in attendance. No one who has not as yet seen this unique entertainment, should miss the opportunity which is to be given them on Friday night.

Annual Meeting
N.F. BRITISH SOCIETY.
The annual meeting of the Newfoundland British Society was held last night, a large gathering being present. After the adoption of reports, which showed the institution to be in a flourishing condition, the election of Officers for the current year took place, with the following results:—
Pres.—C. Bowden, elected.
Vice-Pres.—H. Cowan, re-elected.
Treas.—Mark Downton, re-elected.
Secretary—G. H. Cook, re-elected.
Marshal—W. Benson, elected.
The following committee was also elected, Jas. Rendell, Reg. Downton, W. Butler, Thomas Voisey, W. Boone, Reg. Cook, W. E. Rose, Ron Noseworthy, H. Crocker, W. Benson.

Stafford's Phoratorine contains 13 different ingredients and every one of these ingredients are absolutely pure cough remedies.

Merashen, P.B.
The blessing of the new school at Merashen took place on Jan. 6th inst. The ceremony which was performed by Rev. A. Fyfe, P.P., was very impressive. At 4 p.m. a large congregation assembled at St. Joseph's Church, where the prescribed prayers for the occasion were offered. Then a procession was made to the school, during which hymns were sung by the pupils. The congregation having assembled at the school, the solemn blessing of the building took place. After which a procession was made back to the church, where Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was held. A sermon dealing with the importance of the school was then delivered by the Pastor, after which he expressed the hope of having a high school at Merashen in the near future. That his efforts may be crowned with success is the sincere wish of all.—COM.

War Bride's Fate.
A tragic story has come to light at Liverpool in connection with a beautiful war bride, Teresa Hopkins, aged 18. She fell in love during the war with a young corporal of the American Army, Tom Adams, who was billeted in the city. He was attracted by the girl and wooed her with ardour, and in a subtle way, he let it be known that he was well-to-do and had a good home in Portland, Oregon.

Tessie's parents agreed to an engagement, and the wedding took place at St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church, Liverpool, in February, 1918. After the demobilization of the bridegroom the girl followed him across the Atlantic and over the great rail track to the Pacific.

She again met the husband of her choice, but Adams had changed. He was cold and indifferent. He grumbled and quarrelled, and the girl realized that in her absence his love for her had died. Worse was to follow. She found not only that there was no stylish home for her, but the district in which Adams lived was far different from what he had represented. A dull despair seized her, which grew worse when she found that her husband was cruel, compelling her to work to keep the home going.

Cheerful letters were sent to her mother in England by the girl. Then there was a long silence, until the dramatic telegram reached the English home saying, "Tessie Adams shot and killed. Husband arrested and confessed crime." Tessie, whose features were so beautiful, was painted at Liverpool before her marriage in the role of the "Angel of Peace," and the picture was hung in the Liverpool Walker Art Gallery and purchased by a Liverpool Church.

Poisoned Two Husbands
A sensational poison trial at Geneva, later two days' hearing, closed at Zurich, when a handsome Swiss woman named Buchmann, wearing in the latest fashion and dressed in expensive jewels, was sentenced to imprisonment for life for poisoning two husbands with arsenic during the last three years, and also attempting to administer arsenic to a prospective third husband. The latter's suspicions were aroused, and he informed the police, who examined the bodies of the two victims. A medical expert stated that he found enough arsenic in the bodies to kill a dozen men. The question of the mysterious deaths of two lovers of Buchmann, though mentioned at the trial, was not pressed by the Court, which had sufficient evidence on the first two charges. The jury promptly returned a verdict of guilty, the foreman adding that the woman was a Swiss Borgia without scruples of honour. The Cantonment Zurich has abolished capital punishment by the guillotine, and the murderers left the Court smiling between two gallows.

Red lacquer buttons give a quaint effect when used on a dress of seal brown velvet.

With the lingerie blouse and silk sports skirts are worn jaunty coats of bright duvetyne.

Evening dresses of velvet or heavy satin show twin trains dropping from the girle.

The smartest sports hats are made of braided rags and crocheted around the edge.

Gold and silver tissues are veiled with black lace or delicately embroidered red malines.

Bright-colored scarf sets have rainbow stripes and smart wool pompons as trimming.

Masses of velvet berries in capucine shades are used on the brim of a black velvet cloche.

One-piece dresses of tricotine, duvet, de laine, serge and the like are generally collarless.

A favorite costume for early spring will be the fancy white skirt and black sports coat.

Hat and scarf of bright blue wool jersey are trimmed with red velvet flowers, sewn down with wool.

A dress of blue charmeuse has collars and cuffs of beige duvetyne and is embroidered in gold threads.

The apron tunic may be made of contrasting material, and is generally embroidered in colored silk or wool.

The newest sweaters are rich in fancy ribbed effects with tuxedo collars and cuffs and pockets in a plain tone.

A Suit or Overcoat at Maunder's, selected from a splendid variety of British Woollens, cut by an up-to-date system from the latest fashions, moulded and made to your shape by expert workers, costs you no more than the ordinary hand-me-down. We always keep our stocks complete and you are assured a good selection. Samples and style sheets sent to any address.

the North Sees It.

announcement of the proclamation of the Fish Regulations will come too late to have any value on the market especially in Italy. It is reported that the French have made sales of suit codfish at forty shillings, as against the price demanded by Mr. Coaker's sales.

Our back files recently we saw that the Regulations were the price of codfish to fishermen. How the catcher of fish out this year is now a matter of history, and the apparent price of $3 on paper rarely worked out at much more than five when the fish was considered throughout.

Did the Fish Regulations do harm? Obscured as the whole matter has been by party politics on both sides of Government and Opposition, it is not easy for the man-in-the-street to size matters up.

Certain facts are conclusively proven. West Coast shippers were refused permits for cargoes, which were delayed as much as two months, with the result that cargoes, when they were permitted to proceed, reached market in a deplorable state.

West Coast--business and fishermen alike--suffered very severely. Several insolventcies have occurred, and many men left the fishery entirely. Many of these men are now in the lumber woods, where our people will meet them and hear the tale from their own lips.

The New York market, which always played a large part in boosting fish prices, was entirely shut out, as American firms declined to put up the bond of $10,000, which could be cancelled at will by the Fisheries Board.

Thus many sales were lost through this channel, local business men losing more than one order on this account, documents to that effect having been seen by us.

The effect of the Regulations, but chiefly the very rough and undiplomatic manner in which the Minister of Marine & Fisheries enforced them in the case of Italy, utterly antagonized that country, and the Consorzio, a body appointed by the Italian Government, set about getting supplies from other sources, not a quintal of fish going into that market until the four cargoes of Hickman & Co. and Moores, who defied the Regulations, and were successful in making sales.

These points seem to show that the Regulations were far from being the success that Mr. Coaker has advertised, and though they were not the whole cause of the collapse, they aggravated, rather than lessened, a difficult situation.

Moreover, the regulations regarding cure and the elaborate system of inspection, which has cost so much money to this country, seem to be very nearly valueless, as European buyers refuse to accept the Newfoundland Government's inspection of codfish, and will not purchase on it, making their own estimate of quality.

The Fisheries Regulations seem to have been aimed largely at placing the control of matters in the hands of Mr. Coaker and three or four of his exporter friends in St. John's.

The result was, as would naturally follow, loss of confidence on the part of business at large, which was reflected in the buyer in Europe.

As a concrete instance of the damage of the Regulations, we hear on good authority that a month ago Mr. Ashbourne could have sold the Ardeen's cargo in Italy for 70 shillings, but could not close as the Regulation price was 75. Now that market is down to 40 to 45 shillings.

To-Night's Charity Dance.

From present indications the Charity Dance, which is to take place tonight in the C.C.C. Hall, promises to be one of the most enjoyable affairs of the season. Besides the dancing, teas will be served by a committee of young ladies, who have been most energetic in their efforts to make tonight's dance for the poor a big success. The proceeds will be devoted to the needs of the city's poor through the Dorcas and St. Vincent de Paul Societies, and judging from the sale of tickets a goodly sum will be realized.

Fire at Melrose.

Saturday night Inspector General Hutchings received the following message from Sergt. S. White, stationed at Catalina:--
