The Broken Circle!

CHAPTER XXXV.

"How strange!" she said, "I was just thinking of you."

He longed to tell her that there was no moment, night or day, in which he was not thinking of her, but he restrained himself. He was there to say good-by. He might wait a few moments. He was on the brink; let him pause there, let him stand by her in silence for the last time and watch the waves breaking on the sands.

"I was thinking of you," repeated Hettie. "I knew that you would come."

"I have a motive in coming," he said. "I will tell you presently what it is. Let us watch the setting of the sun together."

He knew that the sun of his life would set with it; he felt somewhat like a soldier who, condemned to be shot for some act of insubordination, stands by the side of his own open grave. "When the sun has set, I shall have told her, and I shall have gone too," he said to himself. He bent his pale, troubled face over the glossy ivy.

Hettie looked more fair and serene than ever, feeling sure that he had come to tell her that he loved her—she had seen it in his face on the previous night. She folded her white hands, and they stood side by side in perfect silence while the sun set. As it seemed to touch the water's edge, the clouds turned crimson. The change was so quick and so marvellous, it was as though the restless heaving sea was suddenly covered with flame.

"Look," cried Hettie—"how beautiful!" For with the roselights came shadows of the richest purple. The sun seemed to sink into the water; the day was dead.

Sir Basil turned to her, wondering in his own misery at the light on her fair face.

"I came to tell you something, Miss Ray," he said. "I know it will interest you. I am going away."

He purposely avoided looking at her. If he had seen the sudden change in her face, the deep anguish, he would not have come at all. She made him no answer, for the simple reason that her lips had suddenly grown mute.

"I have business that compels me to leave," he said, "and I come to say good-by to-night."

The western wind seemed to grow chill. Hettie's heart was heavy with pain and fear. He had been so much to her, and her life was so cheerless. She thought of her sick father and her hard work, of her joyless, loveless life that he had so suddenly brightened. She thought of the happiness that had been hers so short a time, and then, with a passionate burst of tears, she cried—

"Do not go away!"

"I must," he said, briefly. "There is no choice left to me. I must go."

He saw the fair head bent until it rested on the ivy leaves. He was only human, and he could bear no more. He drew closer to her.

"Hettie," he said—"let me call you Hettie for the first and last time—tell me, why do you shed these tears? Are they for me?"

"I am sorry you are going," she sobbed.

"Are you really so grieved as this?" he asked. "Oh, Hettie, can it be true? What am I to you? Why should you care?"

"It is quite true that you are nothing to me, but you have been kind to me, and my life is so lonely."

His heart beat fast with the greatness of his temptation. It was stirred to its very depths by her loveliness, her love, and her bitter tears. He constrained himself with a desperate effort—"Death before dishonor!" Great drops stood upon his brow, and his limbs trembled. The mad thought came into his mind; if but for once he might take her in his arms, kiss her face, and die!

"I am glad to have been able in some small way to comfort you, Hettie," he said; but the restraint he placed upon himself was so great that his views sounded stern and even harsh.

"Perhaps," she said, looking up at him through her tears "you will come again. You have been interested in my poor father. You have enjoyed your visits to our home. You seem to have no enforced occupation, and to be able to please yourself. You will come again!"

He could hear how her breath caught at every word. There was nothing for it but to tell her the truth, and then she would see that he must go. The autumn wind moaned; all the light had gone with the sun; a gray shade had crept over the sea; the waves rose and fell with a mournful wail which was the forerunner of a storm.

"Hettie, I will tell you the truth," he said. "Strange that there should be a scene like this between us—who were strangers some weeks since—and you do not even know my name."

"No," she said; "I have never heard it. My father always calls you Glen. It is singular, but in that first hour that we talked together I felt—as though I had known and trusted you all my life."

"I need never tell you my name, Hettie. We must part to-night, and we must never meet again. Do not cry, dear it is harder for me than for you."

She clung by his arm, still weeping. He felt the quick beating of her heart, and he stopped yet another minute before he said the fatal words which must part them for ever. He felt in that moment that, if this grief of hers were caused by him, he deserved any punishment.

"Hettie, listen to me, dear. How we have drifted into this matters but little, whether I have been blind or careless matters less; the fault must be mine. I ought to have resisted the first temptation. After I had seen you that first time in church, I ought never to have seen you again. My senses, my honor, my conscience, tell me so."

"But why," she cried, in amazement, "I do not understand you. Tell me why."

"Because I am engaged to be married, because I am bound by the most solemn pledge; and because of this promise, I must go."

"Why," she said, in a faint, low voice—"why must you go? If it be some one who loves you, and some one whom you love very much, surely she would be kind, and let you stay—at least, while my father is so ill. If he were well, it would all be different."

"Hettie," he said, "I will trust you as I have never trusted even my own heart yet. I will say to you what I have never admitted even to my own thoughts. I—oh! how shall I tell you? My engagement was less my own voluntary seeking than the consequence of circumstances. I can never explain. I did not understand the nature of the power of love—I knew nothing of it; but she whom I am to marry loves me. Every arrangement is made for our marriage; and—oh, Hettie, listen to me!—she loves me, and, if we were parted, she would die. She could not grieve over it and recover; she would die. I must marry her; I am bound in honor and in conscience. And let me tell you my mad folly. I have learned to love you. I do love you. I love you with the whole love of my life, with the one love of my manhood. I may live many years, but I shall never love any other woman. If Heaven helps me, I will do my duty; but my happiness dies in the hour I leave you. Now you see that I must go."

Her hand dropped until it lay upon his shoulder, and she whispered something there—words that were both life and death to him.

"Yes, you must go," she said; "I see it plainly. There is no help for it; you must go."

He wished that he were lying under the gray water, dead; the pain seemed greater than he could bear. Then her soft whispered words came to him again.

"It will be the one dream, the one memory of my life," she said. "On the shore of this sweet southern sea I have lived and died. Do many people throw away their lives like this?"

"I cannot tell," he replied, dreadingly, "nor can I tell why Fate has treated us so cruelly. If I had been true when I met you, Hettie, you are the one woman I should have chosen to be my wife."

"And I," she said, in a voice sweeter than the cooing of doves—"I should have loved you."

"It seems to me," went on Sir Basil, "as though we stood on either side of an open grave."

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Back From Materialism.

Evolution remains the accepted key to the growth of life, but it is more and more seen to have been concerned with life from the utmost beginning of things. As Professor Thomson says, Evolution is forcing us "to think of everything as with a history behind it, for we have travelled far since Darwin's day. The solar system, the earth, plants and animals, Man himself and his social institutions—all must be seen as the outcome of a long process of becoming, and such phrases as 'dead' matter and 'inert' matter have gone by the board." Then again, the atom, conceived during the reign of merely "modern" science, and, indeed, for two thousand years, to be the ultimate and indivisible particle of matter, is becoming a new atom. It is not indivisible; it has been divided. It has the majesty, the complexity almost of a world. What we thought was elementary is not so. The atom is populated. It seethes with life, the energy, the fierce vitality of electrons. These marvellous new glimpses into the infinitely little are enabling our scientists to look with prophetic eyes and understanding into the universe as a whole. Radium, X-rays, the spectroscopic and laboratory instruments and methods of a delicacy undreamt of before have been the means to these results. Electricity is no longer an indefinite something. It is the rush of released electrons from atom to atom. And from all this there emerges the great question of the hour, "Is there a primordial substance from which all the varying forms of matter have been evolved?" The answer begins to tremble on the tongue of science.

The constituents of food from Canada, in accordance with the system established by the Save the Children Fund, allow the children to be given one nourishing meal a day, consisting possibly of cocoa, bread, and bean soup, varied with milk and rice. Russian Famine Relief.

Some American statements about the peak of the acute famine period being passed seem liable to be misunderstood in Canada. The American relief organization, supported by the financial resources of the nation to the extent of $20,000,000, is undoubtedly helping to save the situation. But it should be clearly understood that some of the worst provinces are still being cared for by British funds, including Canada's growing contribution through the Canadian Committee of the Save the Children Fund.

American corn is being shipped into all the famine-stricken provinces. Temporarily, to allow the American shipments all possible facilities for inland transportation, the British relief organizations—the Save the Children Fund and the Society of Friends—have waived their claim on Russian railway service. It is especially urgent that seed should be distributed within the next few weeks to stem off another famine next autumn. But when the immediate rush of American supplies is over, the British relief workers will still have to continue operating food kitchens, especially to feed the children until the end of August.

Sir Benjamin Robertson, the British authority on Indian famine relief, after visiting Russia in January and February of this year, with the approval of the British Government, anticipated the present claims about the peak of the famine period being overcome, due to the arrival of American corn and seed. He expressed the hope that the optimism of the American relief association would prove to be correct. But, in any case, Sir Benjamin added, it did not relieve the British organizations from the task they have undertaken, to feed the famished people in certain provinces, until next harvest.

A balanced ration is necessary for the children. When they are brought in to the rescue stations, they seem to be in such a condition physically, that the greatest care has to be taken in feeding them. They need something more than corn. The constituents of food from Canada, in accordance with the system established by the Save the Children Fund, allow the children to be given one nourishing meal a day, consisting possibly of cocoa, bread, and bean soup, varied with milk and rice. Under the efficient British administration, the cost of feeding a child is only 2½ cents a week, including all overhead charges. Four dollars is sufficient to feed one child till the middle of August; and Sir George Burn, the venerable treasurer of the Canadian Committee, is gladdened by the arrival, in almost every mail, of substantial contributions to the fund.

The Treatment of Carbon Monoxide Poisoning.

Carbon monoxide poisoning is one of the most widely distributed and most frequent of industrial accidents, says the U.S. Public Health Service. The gas is without color, odor, or taste. It is an ever-present danger about blast and coke furnaces and foundries. It may be found in a building having a leaky furnace or chimney or gas stove without the best connection, such as a tenement, tailor shop, or boarding house. The exhaust gases of gasoline automobiles contain from 4 to 12 per cent of carbon monoxide, and in closed garages men are not infrequently found dead beside a running motor. A similar danger may arise from gasoline engines in launches. The gas is formed also in stoke-rooms, in gun turrets on battleships, in petroleum refineries, and in the Leblanc soda process in co-

Famous Beauty Regains Health and Strength through Ironized Yeast

"A Wonderful Help in Keeping My Figure Perfect" Says Beautiful Elsie La Bergere, in Telling of Her Amazing Restoration to Health.

"It was by purest accident that I picked up a package of Ironized Yeast just as I was about to give up the struggle for a long needed rest. The results that it brought in me proved that it was just what I needed. For today I actually feel like a new born woman!"

Such is the amazing statement of Elsie La Bergere, known to vaudeville lovers all over the continent for the beauty of her figure. Miss La Bergere, for those unacquainted with her work, presents plastic poses in porcelain and marble, with her remarkable posing dogs.

"My stage work," continued Miss La Bergere, "put such a severe strain on my nervous system that every performance became a hardship. I lost my appetite, and always felt tired and worn-out. Then I discovered Ironized Yeast—and I really cannot give enough praise to it. I find it keeps me absolutely fit in every way, and that it is a great help in keeping the shape of my body in wonderful condition. Ironized Yeast has a permanent place of honor in my traveling bag."

Ironized Yeast Can Help You, Too!

If you need more flesh—if you are pale, lacking in energy—or if your complexion is diminished by humiliating skin eruptions—try IRONIZED YEAST at once. Very likely you will be actually astonished at the improvement shown in you even after the first 48 hours. For IRONIZED YEAST embodies a remarkable new scientific process—a process which enables yeast to bring its splendid results often in just half the usual time!

How New Process Makes Yeast Doubly Effective

The reason plain yeast or ordinary "vitamine tablets" fail to produce 100% results is because most run-down people cannot fully assimilate the wonderful health-building elements found in yeast. Some other agent, it is found, is necessary in order to quickly convert these vital substances into rich red blood, strength and energy.

Iron, Science says, is of great value in converting the food we eat into living cells and tissues. So working on this process, Scientists finally discovered the amazing process of ironization. It is this process which helps us to derive from yeast all of the wonderful benefits it holds.

No Agreement Reached at Daily Peace Conference.

Dublin Expects Developments--Russia's Reply to Allies Made Known--Northcliffe Warns English Politicians--Three Mile Limit to be Tested.

PEACE IN IRELAND FAR OFF.

DUBLIN, May 10. Peace in Ireland seems far off. The Daily Eireann Peace Committee report presented to-day was confined to the bare announcement that after eleven sessions the two sides had failed to agree even on a basis for peace. Furthermore they were not agreed on a joint report for reasons of failure. Both sides will present reports to the Daily to-morrow. The question was raised whether the truce terminated by the afternoon or be continued until to-morrow. Daily did not pronounce on this point. Speaker MacNeill saying that the discussion of such a question would imply the addition that before the Conference there existed a recognized state of war. Griffith said the truce must be left to the military as it was a transaction between rival factions of the army. Dublin prepared to pass an uneasy night.

DELIVERY DELAYED.

GENOA, May 10. The Russian reply, says the Central News, requests that clause 7 of the memorandum be referred to an International Committee of Experts with Russia represented. With regard to war debts, the Allies are asked the exact amount that would be made if the debts are acknowledged. On the whole, it is said, the reply is evasive. Clause 7 relates to the status and disposition of foreign-owned property in Russia, nationalized by the Soviet Government. The Russian reply, which was ready for presentation this afternoon, was not delivered to the Allies as expected, as at the last moment, after a conversation between Foreign Minister Tchitcherin of Russia and Schumanzer of Italy, it was decided that the reply would have to undergo some alterations.

RUSSIA'S REPLY.

GENOA, May 10. The preamble of the Russian reply to the Allied memorandum, it was learned to-night, urged the point that the entrance of foreign capital into Russia depends far more upon Russian guarantees for the future than upon discussion of claims. The Russians protest against the attempts of some of the powers to compromise their responsibilities without carefully weighing the possibilities of fulfilling them. They emphasize the fact that the conditions of the Cannes resolutions provide for mutual recognition of government systems and urge the right of the Soviet Government to maintain nationalization. Regret is expressed that the Allies did not pay more attention in their memorandum to guarantees and proposals for investment of capital in Russia, rather than controversial political questions dealing with the war. In discussing Clause 1 of the Allied memorandum which forbids Bolshevik propaganda abroad, virtually restricts Russia to her present boundaries and asks Russian neutrality between Turkey and Greece, the Russian reply emphasizes the great friendship between Russia and Turkey, and offers Russia's services as intermediary between Turkey and European nations in an effort to restore peace in Asia Minor. The reply criticizes the Memorandum on the ground that it shows no disposition to treat Russia as a sovereign nation of equal rank and protects that the European States continuing economic and political quarantine against Russia will support military adventures against the Soviets under the pretext of being the Gendarmes of European civilization.

NORTHCLIFFE AND CANADA.

LONDON, May 10. Lord Northcliffe, welcomed on his return from his world tour by the Empire Press Union, warned Britain against alienating the affections of Canadians by neglecting the affairs of the Dominion. Small differences, he said, caused the revolt of the American colonies. In Canada the most important question he encountered was "the great air upon the people of Canada by the British embargo placed on their cattle." At present, Northcliffe said, there was no desire in Canada for severing connection with the Crown, but he was glad he did not accept the invitation to join the present Cabinet if only because

IT CANNOT BE SAID THAT HE HAD HELPED the beginning of the end of the Empire by losing the prairie provinces of Canada.

A TEST CASE. BOSTON, May 10. The recent seizure by coastguard cutters of the British schooner Grace and Ruby, a rum runner with 20,000 quarts of liquor aboard, is to be made a test case in the Supreme Court of the United States, to determine whether the Government has any jurisdiction over vessels outside the three mile limit. Forfeiture proceedings against a dozen other rum runners seized outside the three mile limit have been held up pending the decision on the Grace and Ruby.

Women at Oxford.

The decision of Oxford to admit women on practically the same terms as men is being followed by an overwhelming demand for a University education for women. St. Hilda's Hall, Oxford, with accommodation for forty students, scattered in fifteen different houses. An extension has therefore been planned which will make it possible to give full residence to about 100 students. For this extension $50,000 is required, and an appeal for the amount has been issued.

Tarvia Prevents Dust; Tarvia Preserves Roads.

In the United States and Canada Tarvia is the standard by which all other road-binders and preservatives are judged. Tarvia is made in three grades—"Tarvia X" for road construction, "Tarvia B" for preservation of road surface and "Tarvia K-P" for repairing roads. Both "Tarvia B" and "Tarvia K-P" have been used in St. John's Municipal works for several years. "Tarvia B" actually enters the road surface, acts as a cement and resists the tear and wear of traffic. By cementing together the dust particles "Tarvia B" prevents the formation of dust. After the application of "Tarvia B" to a road surface a thin layer of sand should be applied to take care of the excess liquid and to prevent tracking. This layer of sand will prevent horses from slipping and automobiles from skidding and will prolong the life of the road surface. Broken stone is not as satisfactory or as economical as sand for this purpose. A road after being treated with "Tarvia B" does not become muddy in rainy weather, but sheds the water and dries off quickly after the rain, leaving the road in admirable condition while untreated roads are still deep with mud. "Tarvia B" surfacing should be applied annually but only when roads are in good condition and free from surplus dust. All holes and depressions should be repaired with fine broken stone and "Tarvia K-P."

Victim of Science.

Science has claimed another victim in Mr. Arthur Racot, F. E. S., who died in Cairo from typhus, which he contracted while carrying out research work, for which he was recently lent to the Egyptian government by the Lister Institute. Mr. Racot is well-known for his researches into the conveyance of plague by rats and also for his work in connection with trench fever during the war. Dr. Arkwright, a colleague of Mr. Racot, who was also lent to the Egyptian government by the Lister Institute, has likewise contracted typhus and is in a serious condition.

Millionaire's Suicide.

Major F. W. Duryea, a member of the millionaire family which controls the great Duryea starch concern, has committed suicide at San Francisco with a revolver, adding one more grim chapter to the tragic history of the Duryeas, says a New York correspondent. His uncle, General Hiram Duryea, was killed in 1914 by his eldest son, who was later adjudged insane. His first cousin, Mr. H. H. Duryea, was found dead in his New York office last July with a discharged revolver close by him, and another first cousin, Mr. W. E. Duryea, broke his neck by diving into shallow water. No motive for Major Duryea's suicide is known. He was in the Army Finance Department but there is no irregularity in his accounts. His wife, who is living in Greenwich village, New York, says that recent letters from him were in most cheerful strain.

Gift to Public.

Henry E. Huntington, of Los Angeles, is to give the public his art collection, including Gainsborough's famous Blue Boy, and several other noted Gainsboroughs and Rembays, and his library, the finest in the world, which contains some of the most precious manuscripts and first editions in existence. Enough money will go with the treasures which are valued at several millions of dollars, to support them and keep the collections intact for all time.

His proposed gift to the public of his estate, San Marino, near Pasadena, with all the treasure within its gates, is comparable to the gift to the public by the late Henry C. Frick, of New York, who bequeathed his Fifth Avenue home and its art treasures to the public on the terms that the transfer should take effect after the death of Mrs. Frick.

Mr. Huntington's gift is made under similar terms. Although the library probably will be thrown open to the public within a few months, the mansion and the art treasures will not be turned over entirely to public use until after the death of Mr. and Mrs. Huntington.

Mr. Huntington announced that he intended to create a self-perpetual trust, to be called the Henry E. Huntington Library and Art Gallery. For the creation of the endowment funds Mr. Huntington's lawyers have taken as their model the trusts creating the Leland Stanford Jr. University at Palo Alto, Cal.

THE ART OF CHEWING.
 Your whole system depends for its health and strength on the stomach. The stomach, in turn, depends on the teeth. The very foundation of health is therefore laid at the first step in food conversion--the act of chewing. Food improperly chewed enters the stomach in a wrong condition, and it brings about a wrong fermentation which causes first, indigestion, then hundred ailments. The proper chewing of the food will prevent these things. Chew your food plentifully.

Certainly.

The family was seated at dinner, and the conversation turned to school lessons, much to the consternation and disgust of little Cynthia. "What period in English history are you doing?" asked the father. "The Stuarts," said Cynthia curtly. There was a long pause as the father thought out a question to put to his daughter. He was a little hazy about facts, but at last he propounded his poser. "What was the first thing James I. did when he came to the throne?" asked father solemnly. "Sat on it, I suppose," replied Cynthia, with calm assurance.

Customs Bonds.

The Bill now being debated by the Legislature concerning the repeal of Sections 32 and 33 of the Customs Act, does not appear to meet with universal favor. Many business men complain that any amendment of these sections will impose greater hardship upon them pecuniarily, and will have a tendency to restrict importations, as they claim that the giving of a Bond for duties made it much more easier than if immediate cash was demanded. No law was ever yet made that met with out and out popular favor, and perhaps it is more difficult to devise or revise laws relating to the Customs than to any other Statute that may be incorporated into the code. The main idea of entering into a Bond for the payment of duties on imports was arranged for the benefit of the trade, in order that it might be possible to secure a release of warehoused goods without causing inconvenience and handicapping business. Apparently, however, this privilege was greatly abused. Questions asked in the House of Assembly not so very many months ago discovered the fact that many bonds had been dishonored, and the scandals thus disclosed have led the Government to abrogate the payment of Customs duties in this convenient manner. Whether benefit or otherwise will result from the step about to be taken only time can tell.

For the information of those who do not require to enter into a bond in payment of duties, and in order that all who read may know the contents of the Sections of the Customs Act about to be repealed, we quote the text verbatim:

Section 32. In any case where the duty set forth in any entry shall not amount to two hundred dollars, the Collector of other proper officer shall forthwith collect the same before granting his warrant for the removal of the articles imported; and in case such duties shall amount to two hundred dollars, the Collector or other proper officer aforesaid, may secure the said duties by taking bond in the form prescribed by the Governor-in-Council, from the importer, owner or consignee, to His Majesty, with two sureties for the payment thereof in four months from the date of such bond.

Section 33. Wherever under the provisions of this Chapter a bond shall be taken in security for duties, interest at the rate of six dollars per centum per annum shall be payable on the sum thereby secured, and shall be included in such bond, and the amount of such bond and interest shall constitute and be a prior claim upon the estate, lands, goods, chattels, credits and effects of any person signing such bond from the time such person shall become insolvent until the amount of such bond and interest shall be paid.

HIS DIARY.
May 10th.—A dull, rainy day. To the Board of Trade where I did hold discourse with Sir P. T. McGrath and Mr. Morine, the attorney, of constitutional code. The House did not meet to-day so I to devote myself to arranging of my books, which do now make a goodly number but are not yet equal to the library that the great Samuel, my ancestor, did leave to Cambridge University.

Arbecco Submerged.

CABOT RETURNS FROM WRECK.
S. S. Cabot, Capt. Dalton, returned to port last midnight from Renew's scene of the wreck of the steamer Arbecco. The ship brought along Capt. A. Cameron and fifteen members of the crew who landed at Cap-pahaym. The Arbecco is practically submerged, and only the bow remains above water. When the Cabot left heavy seas were breaking over the ill-fated ship and it was only a matter of a few hours before she would go to pieces. The Arbecco was 14 days out to Quebec, where she was to be handed over to her new purchaser, the Kirkwood Steamship Co. Capt. Cameron was endeavoring to pick up Cape Race when at 10 o'clock yesterday morning the ship was going at low speed when she struck Renew's Rock. She immediately took a heavy list to port and began to break up. A swell was heaving in causing the ship to pound heavily, and the men were ordered to launch the lifeboats, she landed on Renew's Rock where they remained for 8 hours without shelter. Fortunately the sea was not rough, but at 9 o'clock when the tide began to rise the men took to their boats and began to row to the main land. On their way, fishermen of the place were met coming out to the wreck in boats, having heard the steamer's whistle during the night, and surmised that a ship had gone ashore. They gave the Captain his course and the men found little difficulty in landing. Very little was salvaged from the ship and the boats that put off to the wreck succeeded in getting only one of the steamer's lifeboats and some of the deck fittings. The majority of the crew of the Arbecco are Canadians and they are quartered at the Seaman's Institute until arrangements are made to send them to their homes.

B.I.S. Billiard Dinner

A BILLYANT SUCCESS.

The annual Billiard Dinner under the auspices of the B.I.S. L. and A. Committee was held in the Club Rooms last night and was voted by those present to be a record success. The Ladies' Auxiliary under the direction of the President, Mrs. W. J. Higgins, catered and rendered service at the tables which were profusely decorated with fresh-flowers and the colors of the society. The musical and of the programmes which was in charge of Mr. William Wallace was a pleasant surprise. The renditions of Messrs. Bennett, President Higgins, Mr. Pippy, Mr. Comerford, Mr. Joe Long, Mr. MacDonnell and Mr. P. F. Moore, were of a high order and well merited the approval manifested by the assemblage.

PLEASANT TIME AT METHODIST ORPHANAGE.
It was a happy thought of the promoters that by combining the Young Ladies of the Wesley Mission Circle, with their baskets of cake and pies, etc., and the Methodist Guards Band with their cornets and trombones, etc., could afford such an evening of delightful entertainment to the residents of the Methodist Orphanage. The Lady Superintendent made all the visitors very welcome, and in the spacious dining room Rev. Mr. Bugden, Hon. Secretary, opened the programme with a very happy speech and then selections from the Band interspersed with songs and recitations from popular entertainers followed. The items which afforded the greatest delight to the kiddies was the amusing conversation of Mr. Wheeler, the Ventriquist and his wooden headed little boy, and the piano and spoon performance of Misses Chancy. The marvel of all present was the music that Mr. A. Diamond produced out of a hand saw, accompanied by the piano. At times it was sweet and inspiring, then weird and peculiar. It was quite a novelty. The management feel very grateful to Miss Howell, the President, and all her assistants, who looking so charming although they were kitchen maids and waitresses for the time being, and to Capt. Post, Mr. Harry Chaplin and others of the Guards Band. The guests present felt that at no time since its inception has the Orphanage been what it very really is now, a home of loving sympathy and mutual affection, a training institution for domestic and helpful duties, enlivened with musical and educational and social environment.—A.W.M.

The Succulent Flipper

MANITOBA ENJOY PIE.
On Saturday last a parcel of Newfoundland Rippers despatched at the C.F.R. depot, says the Nopwapa Press of April 28. Our genial vet, whose home is in Newfoundland, was relating to some of his friends vivid recollections of flipper suppers which are held in his part of the world at this season of the year, when the seafarers return to port. We might say for the benefit of the uninformed that Rippers are seals front legs and are considered a great delicacy. We venture to say that this is probably the first time that Newfoundland Rippers have made such a long journey west. They arrived in perfect condition and Mrs. Caris, where Dr. Pournaux is stopping, undertook to prepare the pie and although this was somewhat out of her range of culinary attainments, the meal was a wonderful success and was thoroughly enjoyed by those who were fortunate enough to partake of it.

The Telegram understands that the parcel of Rippers above referred to were forwarded on April 28th, by Mr. J. H. Clark of the G.P.O. Mrs. Clark having prepared them for the somewhat long journey, and the "Rippers" arrived at Brookdale after being en route 18 days, but in perfect condition.

Most appealing melo-drama picture seen at the Nickel since "Man-Woman-Marriage" shown last night in "Love's Pen Plot, characterization, and all combine in making this one of the most finished photoplays with local movie fans this season.

The story is acted in a manner harmonious with the spirit of the plot and the elaborate sub-plot and the director has let no hold up the action. "Nobody's Kid" production Mae Marsh, opened at the Theatre last night, and program is just what "The Doctor" it has been many moons the local movie fans have view-ature in which they found such with of pathos and comedy. Miss was always a prime favourite nature followers, and it is certain from the reception with which nature was received yesterday that she lost none of her prestige be-her two year's absence from screen. Patrons found a real "Lynham H. Howe's Ride on" train, such as seldom ex-perience in witnessing a screen.

This subject is replete with beauty and unusual excite-ment. Miss Betty Donn sang "Tell Me Betty" and "Love's Old Song." Miss Donn's audience light and applauded vigorously. She does Miss Donn sing with style, but puts clever interpreta-tion on each song.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR GARGET IN COWS.

Prohibition as it is.

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir—A few days ago I wrote, and you were good enough to publish, a letter in which I endeavoured to present my reasons for believing that the system at present in force in Newfoundland is not calculated to serve best the interests of the individual citizen or the country as a whole. Since then a couple of letters have appeared by way of rejoinder to my remarks, and with your consent, I now propose to make reply to these critics of mine. I am sorry that my former communication does not appear to have made my meaning as explicit to your readers as they were to my own mind. Capt. Kean, for instance, professes to believe that I argue for abolition of control of the liquor traffic and that I am advocating a return to the old system of licensing the sale of ardent spirits. While I do not quite understand just how he could read such an interpretation to any of my remarks, let me state right here that he misunderstands and misrepresents my contention. I do not favor any such reversion to the old regime nor was any advocacy intended to be made by my letter of the other day.

One of my critics—Capt. Kean, I think—shows an inclination to sneer at my contention that the liquor traffic can be controlled by the government in such a manner as at the same time to produce the moral and economic effect desired and still to lift from the shoulders of the people some of the burden of revenue-producing taxation they now have to carry. He professes to see in such a contention a contradiction in terms and in principle and attempts to laugh it out of court. Still, if Capt. Kean's attitude toward the drink traffic governed all our life and conduct, this would be a mighty unpleasant world to live in. Capt. Kean's argument, in effect is: some men indulge in liquor to excess; by so doing they dissipate their mental and physical resources and play ducks and drakes with their money, while at the same time making a nuisance of themselves, therefore all men should be prevented from using. Because some men use alcohol to excess, therefore all men must be prevented from using it even in moderation. The Church, says Capt. Kean, cannot persuade the few sinners to see the error of their ways, therefore the Church invokes the law, introducing intolerance into our civil life and makes scapegoats at the same time of the great mass of our population, who are sober and temperate by inclination as well as from habit. Well, the advocates of a morality through act of Parliament are quite sincere and quite consistent, they must now insist on legislation for the repression of cigarette smoking, because excessive indulgence—fairly common nowadays—results in the lowering of the mental and physical stamina. They must insist upon the enactment of laws forbidding such practices as gambling with cards or on horse races because these habits are result of time and of substance. As a matter of fact, such a principle applied generally and consistently to the affairs of everyday life would pile up legal "Thou Shalt Not's" until the average citizen would find it easier to take up an abiding residence in jail rather than devote his memory exclusively to futile attempts to remember multitudinous laws and put in his time almost entirely trying to avoid breaches of statutes innumerable. All of which reminds us that the Great War was fought to save the world from domination by the German nation whose civil and military life was pretty much monopolized in order to avoid what was "Verboten" (Forbidden) by the All-Highest and his minions.

Temperance in all things is commendable; rigid prohibition of any ordinary line of conduct that can safely be left to the individual conscience is objectionable, in that it saps the moral fibre and lessens the moral resistance. Prohibition aims at moral reform through act of Parliament. But Prohibition can be successful only in the moral and spiritual sentiments of a people be behind it. If it were true, then there would not be such wholesale and persistent attempts to break the law as it now exists. That such breaches are attempted is testified by the developments of the times. Only the other day a schooner captain was fined for attempting to smuggle a cargo of spirits worth ten thousand dollars into Newfoundland. Further testimony to this effect is borne by a statement made by a member of our local parliament who declared from his place in the House of Assembly that within a short period of time and within a limited area eight hundred gallons of rum were smuggled into Newfoundland. And, when Capt. Kean and other champions of prohibition "as is" in Newfoundland, they claim that the regime is as popular as ever, they ignore the effect that the majority of the signatures were secured in districts that voted most strongly for prohibition when the plebiscite was taken in 1915 then it is very manifest that a marked change in public sentiment regarding this matter has taken place during the seven years of the "dry" regime.

And, after all, what evidence is there to incline former supporters of the regime faithful to prohibition? The regime came in under a cloud of misrepresentation. Moderates were told that every effort would be made to make it possible for outport people to obtain their necessary household stocks. Nothing of the kind has been done. Yes, even though cases of habitual drunkenness have been very materially reduced and intoxication has been very materially reduced from our streets, the fanatical section of the prohibitionists persist in efforts to cut off even the very moderate supplies available in the city and outport folk. And what are we to say of the testimony the other day of a minister of the Crown to the effect that under a prohibition regime the penitentiary and asylum are filled to overflowing? And now very ardent prohibitionists are arguing for an increase in the detective and police forces to make possible the continuance, with effect of an anti-drinking campaign that is degenerating into little better than persecution.

Surely, then, every intelligent Newfoundland will admit the validity of my claim that there is grave cause for discontent with the prohibition regime as we know it in Newfoundland. It has lessened our revenue and increased the burden of our taxation; it promises to further increase our public expenditure. And, if more conclusive testimony of my word be demanded, then I must refer readers of this letter to the findings made by the Royal Commission, composed of Sir W. F. Lloyd, Rev. L. Curtis, D. D., Rev. E. Jones, Ph. D., Drs. A. Anderson and T. M. Mitchell, and Messrs. J. V. O'Dea and G. F. Grimes. These gentlemen admitted the necessity for modifying the existing law and suggested the issuing of ration cards of spirits, wines and beer to heads of households. Their claim was that only by such a course could the use of dope, the manufacture of moonshine and the practice of smuggling be discouraged, such a modification of the prohibition law, applying equally to all parts of Newfoundland, would meet the suggestions I made in my last letter. It would result in an increase in the revenue; it would remove hardship and handicaps under which our outport people suffer and it would attract tourists in large numbers to any up-to-date hotel erected in St. John's or in other parts of the country. To be practical, the conditions and needs of the times must be met.

We have had seven years of prohibition and the opponents of the regime cannot argue that it has not had sufficient trial. Let the people now be given a chance to express their sentiments through a referendum. They can then vote for a wide-open regime such as existed before the prohibition era. Those who object to such a referendum simply proclaim their lack of faith in their own cause. Yours truly,
B. B. STAFFORD.

Wedding Bells.
SNEIGROVE-BELLMAN.
On Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Cochrane St. Centennial Church by Rev. Mr. Johnson, Miss Cynthia Bellman was united in marriage to Mr. Geo. Sneigrove. The bride looked charming in grey costume with hat to match and white furs, carrying a bouquet of white carnations. She was given away by her uncle Mr. Pretty. The groom was supported by Mr. G. B. Snow and W. Simms. The bridesmaids were Miss Gladys Sneigrove, sister of the groom and Miss Stella Peckford. A reception was held at the home of the groom's parents, Battery Road, where congratulations were extended and an enjoyable evening spent. The grooms present to the bride was a check, to the bridesmaids gold brooches. The wedding presents were both numerous and serviceable, testifying to the esteem in which both bride and bridegroom are held.

Just Folks

TWO COUNSELORS.
Courage whispers: "Go ahead!"
Doubt will murmur: "Don't you do it."
There is danger grim ahead."
Courage answers: "You'll pass through it."
Doubt will strive to hold you back.
Talking always of disaster,
Courage bids you to attack.
Just to prove yourself a master.

These two counselors attend Youth and age on every journey.
In the cloak and guise of friend,
Each appears as man's attorney.
Doubt will bid you to beware.
Failure's sad and sorry story,
Courage then will bid you dare,
Picturing the victor's glory.

Doubt will save you from a blow,
Courage have you stand and take it,
Doubt will urge you not to go,
Courage always says: "You'll make it."

Even though you're black and blue,
Courage whispers: "Keep on trying,
Stand and see the struggle through,
You'll come out with colors flying."

Boy o' mine, when courage calls,
Heed not doubt's disturbing teaching;
Dare to brave a thousand falls
If your goal is worth the reaching.
Rather than to fall with Doubt,
Faint of heart and battling never,
Better die with Courage stout
On a field of fair endeavor.

THE ONE SOLACE.

I smoke my grand old pipe by day, I keep it going half the night; and moralists come up and say, "Such dissipation is a fright; the young behold you as they pass, and then for briar they yearn, in which to smoke buds, leaves and grass, or any herb that will burn." I've cut out all the ancient sins that blighted once my wide renown; I have foregone sported gins, the pallid beer and porter brown. My conduct is so pure and nice it might become a king or queen; no longer do I shake the dice, or play the croaking slot machine. I've cut out cards and dominoes, and crokinole, and all such games; I read good books while grandma goes to play bridge, whilst with other dames, I know that wickedness is vain, I know my old time course was rank; it's long since I have robbed a train, or pulled a gunplay in a bank. I've cut out all the evil things, except the pipe that soothes my soul, and now the moralists, by Jingo, would see my briar in the hole. And that's the trouble, all the time, with those good souls who lead crusades; they'd make make this old world so sublime that all its comfort wits and fads. They know not when it's time to stop, since they have squelched the Demon Rum; soon we'll be pinched for slipping pop, or chewing fragrant sticks of gum.

Household Notes.

If you buy your canned fruit, improve the flavor by boiling for a few minutes and adding a little sugar.

Mark the middle front of a little child's garment with a cross-stitch in red. They will have less trouble in dressing.

When cleaning the carving on furniture, use a soft toothbrush to apply polish. Rub dry with a piece of cheesecloth.

When preparing spinach for children, it is best to rub through a sieve, so as to avoid any coarse leaves or particles.

Instead of making hamburger steak into small parts, form it into one large compact cake, and boil. It will be much more appetizing.

If you do not have whipped cream, here is a good substitute: beat the whites of two eggs stiff and dry with four tablespoons of powdered sugar.

When cleaning the gas stove thoroughly, it is best to turn off the gas supply in the feed pipe. One may then work without fear of accidentally turning on one of the burners.

If an egg is cracked, it may be boiled without danger. Turn egg over, top other side, making the crack opposite the other one. It will now boil safely, since forces are made equal.

Maple fondant is made by boiling 1 cup maple syrup, 1/2 cup sugar and 1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar until a firm ball forms when dropped into cold water. Cool; heat until creamy.

If you wish a large heart-shaped cake and have no heart mold, bake the cake in a round pan and then cut it heart-shaped by a paper pattern.

When loaf the cut edges will not show. Staff the baked tomatoes with crab meat; heat one cup crab meat in a cup of white sauce; fill fresh tomatoes after removing one-half the pulp; cover tops with buttered crumbs and bake.

Keep the large manila bags in which your bulk groceries come. When the dusting of your electric cleaner needs supplying insert the mouth of the dustbag well inside the paper bag, and shake thoroughly.

After rolling out the top crust of a pie, place a circular plate on it, which is a little smaller than the top of the pie, and cut around it. Place on top of pie. This makes a pretty pie and is a saving of crust.

This makes a good salad: Cut large, firm tomatoes across in thick slices, and spread with cream cheese, seasoned with melted butter, salt and paprika. Put tomatoes together, sandwich fashion, and serve on crisp lettuce.

To 3 cupsful of chopped cooked spinach add 1 of breadcrumbs, 2 table-spoonfuls each of butter, grated onion and grated cheese and 1 egg. Let stand a few minutes, shape into balls, dip into beaten egg, roll in crumbs and fry in deep fat.

If you are going away for a week and wish your house plants to be well watered, take a strip of soft white cloth one inch wide and two feet long. Place one end of cloth in a large jar of water and bury the other end in the dirt around plant.

If you buy your canned fruit, improve the flavor by boiling for a few minutes and adding a little sugar.

Mark the middle front of a little child's garment with a cross-stitch in red. They will have less trouble in dressing.

When cleaning the carving on furniture, use a soft toothbrush to apply polish. Rub dry with a piece of cheesecloth.

When preparing spinach for children, it is best to rub through a sieve, so as to avoid any coarse leaves or particles.

Instead of making hamburger steak into small parts, form it into one large compact cake, and boil. It will be much more appetizing.

If you do not have whipped cream, here is a good substitute: beat the whites of two eggs stiff and dry with four tablespoons of powdered sugar.

When cleaning the gas stove thoroughly, it is best to turn off the gas supply in the feed pipe. One may then work without fear of accidentally turning on one of the burners.

If an egg is cracked, it may be boiled without danger. Turn egg over, top other side, making the crack opposite the other one. It will now boil safely, since forces are made equal.

Maple fondant is made by boiling 1 cup maple syrup, 1/2 cup sugar and 1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar until a firm ball forms when dropped into cold water. Cool; heat until creamy.

If you wish a large heart-shaped cake and have no heart mold, bake the cake in a round pan and then cut it heart-shaped by a paper pattern.

When loaf the cut edges will not show. Staff the baked tomatoes with crab meat; heat one cup crab meat in a cup of white sauce; fill fresh tomatoes after removing one-half the pulp; cover tops with buttered crumbs and bake.

Keep the large manila bags in which your bulk groceries come. When the dusting of your electric cleaner needs supplying insert the mouth of the dustbag well inside the paper bag, and shake thoroughly.

After rolling out the top crust of a pie, place a circular plate on it, which is a little smaller than the top of the pie, and cut around it. Place on top of pie. This makes a pretty pie and is a saving of crust.

This makes a good salad: Cut large, firm tomatoes across in thick slices, and spread with cream cheese, seasoned with melted butter, salt and paprika. Put tomatoes together, sandwich fashion, and serve on crisp lettuce.

To 3 cupsful of chopped cooked spinach add 1 of breadcrumbs, 2 table-spoonfuls each of butter, grated onion and grated cheese and 1 egg. Let stand a few minutes, shape into balls, dip into beaten egg, roll in crumbs and fry in deep fat.

If you are going away for a week and wish your house plants to be well watered, take a strip of soft white cloth one inch wide and two feet long. Place one end of cloth in a large jar of water and bury the other end in the dirt around plant.

WRITE HER A LETTER.

Let me forget—next Sunday is Mothers' Day. Doubtless you have already planned what you are going to do for mother on her special day.

Maybe it's the gift of some special luxury, maybe it's flowers or a growing plant. But whatever it is, don't think it is complete unless there goes with it some word that will make mother feel that you are not merely dutifully following a convention but trying to express your love and gratitude and a growing realization of how much she has done for you.

If you have not a gift to give, a letter carrying such a message will fill her day with sunshine as surely as a gift.

The Letter One Keeps.
Just after Mothers' Day last year a mother who had received such a letter sent me a copy of it. If any child doubts how much it means to a mother to have her children try to express their love, they should have seen what the mother wrote about her joy in the letter.

She gave me permission to print part of that letter. Here it is. Perhaps it may serve as a suggestion to someone who is not quick at self-expression and does not know just how to go about putting his or her heart on paper.

"Dearest Mother:
"I would like to have sent you some flowers but it's a long way to send them so you'll have to be content with heaps of love.

"I wish I could tell you what a wonderful mother you are. Perhaps I can best tell you by this. Whenever I think of the sort of woman I'd like to be I think of you as my ideal. I can't begin to mention all your good qualities but maybe I can a few.

She Tells Her Mother.
"One is your sweet serenity. No matter what happens you always keep calm, serene and self-possessed. One of the big things I've learned to appreciate about our home was the blessed, peaceful atmosphere. There are few homes of that kind. The discord and inharmonious in homes is astonishing even with people who seem to care for each other.

Flowers of Death.

Some years ago an orchid hunter named Dunstan caused a sensation by his announcement that he had discovered, in the district of Lake Nicaragua, a sort of vegetable devil fish, in the hanging fronds of which his dog was caught and killed.

The story has never been substantiated, but there are at least two plants known which, like the fabled upas-tree, have the power of killing large animals.

One is the so-called vulture lily of Borpeo and Sumatra. The plant stands six feet high, and grows in patches, each covering a space the size of a large room. The leaves are enormous, being ten or twelve feet long.

A dog and a goat, brought close to one of these clumps, both became violently ill and died, and the explorer who tried the experiment was so ill that it was all he could do to get out of range of the paralyzing odour of the plant.

Loathsome Loveliness.
The other, and even more terrible plant is the death orchid which grows in Venezuela, beyond the head waters of the great Orinoco River.

This was discovered by an orchid hunter called Grayson, who was directed by Indians to the lonely spot where this amazing plant grew.

Grayson says that the odour was so strong that he first perceived it miles from the place where he eventually found the plant. The Indians refused to accompany him farther, saying that to do so was to court certain death. Grayson himself, however, insisted upon going forward, although his head was spinning with the opium-like fumes thrown out by the plant.

At last he reached a point from which he became aware of flowers of great size and gorgeous colouring, glowing through the tree trunks ahead. He was just able to crawl away, and the next thing he knew was being carried in a litter by his men. For weeks afterwards he was seriously ill, and very nearly died from the effects of the terrible fumes.

Many afternoon gowns have sleeves with points which almost touch the ground.

Laces in many colors will be used in the skirt of a black crepe de china evening gown.

Hats and Fashions.
Hats show their individuality being trimmed with yellow
Checked net is used for the colored cuffs of the new voile dresses
A costume of Normandy lace trimmed with hand-made flowers
Collars and cuffs of white crepe de chine are used on an overblouse of red silk jersey.
The new box sleeve is seen on wool wraps and is sometimes finished with fine tucks.
Crisp white organdie slips are worn with organdie overdresses of brilliant color.
A girle of straw daisies is charming with a frock of patterned crepe de china.
