LADY LAURA'S RELEASE

THE STORY OF A SPOILED BEAUTY.

INTRODUCTION.

"Honestly consider I have done the best thing for both."
 "If you think so, there is no more to be said," returned Mr. Sansome. "But there is one question I must ask. In making a will of such importance, one requires a clear understanding on every point. In the event of your death and the death of Miss Rooden, how is Lady Rooden to dispose of the property?"
 The baronet thought for some moments, then answered:
 "In that case I should lay no restrictions whatever upon it; she can dispose as she will. I have no near relatives, and, unless it should please Heaven to bless me with a son, the title, so far as I know, will become extinct at my death."
 "You have nothing more to add, Sir Charles?" asked the lawyer.
 "Nothing, except that as soon as you have the will drawn up, I shall be glad to sign it. It will be of my mind, and I shall feel more satisfied."
 "It shall be done at once," said Mr. Sansome. "Have patience with me while I recapitulate your instructions. In the event of your death, your whole fortune and estates go intact to Lady Rooden, and she is to have full benefit of them during her life time. At her death they pass to your daughter, Angela. If I understand rightly, Lady Rooden is not to have the power to dispose anything—not an ounce of the family plate, not a picture from the gallery, not a tree from the woods."
 "That is so," agreed Sir Charles.
 "Her ladyship can, if she thinks proper make Miss Rooden an allowance, or if she should marry, it is in her mother's power to give her a dowry."

 "Yes," said Sir Charles briefly.
 "If, however, Angela Rooden should die, the property would be entirely at Lady Rooden's disposal."
 "Entirely," repeated Sir Charles, his handsome face glowing with pride and generosity.
 "She can bequeath it to charities, missions, or anything else she chooses?" queried Mr. Sansome.
 "Yes—she will make a wise use of it," said Sir Charles.
 "Those are my instructions, and I have simply to carry them out," concluded Mr. Sansome.
 "That is all," said Sir Charles.
 The lawyer was silent for a few moments; then, raising his head, he glanced keenly at Sir Charles.
 "I cannot help it," he said—"I may forget your friendship—but I must say that yours will be the most imprudent and I will add, the most foolish will I have ever made or heard of."
 Sir Charles laughed.
 "An honest opinion, at least!" he remarked. "Thank you for it; but in this matter you must permit me to know best. I know what a noble, honorable woman my wife is, and I take an especial pride in showing practically how perfectly I trust her."
 "Is it of any use for me to suggest that Miss Rooden ought to have an income of her own?" asked Mr. Sansome.
 "Mother and daughter will have a common purse between them," answered Sir Charles.
 "Forgive me once more. Suppose that Lady Rooden, as we may naturally hope, lives to a ripe old age; do you think it will be just or prudent to force Miss Rooden to be dependent all that time on her mother's bounty?"
 "It will simply bind them together; it will keep their interests one," replied Sir Charles, and there was a note of impatience in his voice.
 "It is a false idea," said Mr. Sansome.
 "Still I will carry it out," persisted the baronet. "It is my wish and desire, and," he added, with a smile, "every man can do what he likes with his own."
 "True; but no man, even with his own, ought to do that which will injure others," returned the lawyer.
 "And you believe honestly that my will may injure those it is intended to benefit?" questioned Sir Charles.
 "I do," replied Mr. Sansome; and the baronet was thoughtfully silent for some moments.
 "Thank you for your candor; but my opinion is not in the least changed. I will take all the responsibility. When shall I call at your office to sign my will? I am really in town for that purpose."
 "Will Tuesday morning suit you, Sir Charles?" asked the lawyer.
 "Yes," he said; and on Tuesday, the twenty-third of April, the will which the lawyer had stigmatized as "imprudent" and "foolish" was duly signed and attested.

WHAT MADE ME HAPPY

"I was congratulating myself that I had passed the winter without catching a cold, when I got one at the beginning of last May. It was because I was run down. Being run down I had some trouble in getting rid of this cold. I was a nervous wreck. I would wake up regularly morning after morning, feeling that some terrible calamity would take place. Although we were comfortably off, I felt sure my husband was going to lose everything. The children worried me. If they made the least noise, I would get into a terrible temper. I would scold them so that I am sure they hated me. I would be mad with myself mind never to let it happen again. I would go to bed at night and begin to think and picture dreadful things which might happen to me and my family. I would lay awake for hours, sometimes until daylight, until I was so weak that I could scarcely raise my head. I would wake next day just as tired as when I laid down. After a while I got so that I didn't care what happened. The children annoyed me and I wouldn't have cared if they had left me for good. I felt that it was only a matter of time before I would lose my mind. I knew that my symptoms were due to a run down condition and that if I could only get something to build me up, I might be all right. I knew that there must be some good tonic but most of them made such foolish claims that I was afraid of them. Happening one day to run across a leaflet about Carnal, I was impressed with the moderate way this preparation was described, so I made up my mind I would try it. I did and today I am the happiest and healthiest woman living. I haven't a care in the world. Instead of running away from me, my children are now with me all the time. My husband tells me that my disposition is as near an angel as any human being's can be, but of course he is prejudiced. I don't believe I have a nerve in my body now."
 Carnal is sold by your druggist, and if you can conscientiously say, after you have tried it, that it hasn't done you any good, return the empty bottle to him and he will refund your money. 6-232

CHAPTER I.
 A spoiled beauty—spoiled by a devotion and love such as fall to the lot of few women—Lady Rooden did not know the meaning of the word "care." She was only seventeen when Sir Charles Rooden wooed and won her; and from that time he had surrounded her with such loving care that her lot amongst women was quite exceptional.

Few knew such unalloyed happiness as she enjoyed. At times a fleeting regret that she had no son to succeed her husband would come over her; but even that regret was softened when she remembered how deeply he loved their little daughter.

The Roodens of Rood Abbey had been for many generations owners of that fair and fertile domain. Like many of the old ancestral homes of England, Rood Abbey had originally been the property of a religious order; but, falling victims to the rapacity of the reigning monarch and the bigotry of the times, they had been expelled the country, their property confiscated, and house and lands were given to Guy Rooden, a court favorite, whose descendants had lived there ever since. Many parts of the old Abbey had successfully resisted the wasting hand of Time, notably the massive battlemented towers and the ponderous old entrance gates through which king, queen, and mitered abbot had often driven. Many a solemn procession had passed through these portals, many a long train of armored knights and fair ladies had ridden through the grand avenue of giant chestnuts.

The Abbey itself was a substantial old building of gray stone, the towers of which were almost covered with ivy. It stretched its turrets round the great arched windows; it climbed to the very top of the tall towers; it clung in rich masses to the ancient walls. Rood Abbey, as seen by the light of the summer sun or by the moon's pale beams, presented a picture at once picturesque and imposing.

The estate, which situated in one of the most beautiful of the Midland Counties, was singularly favored by Nature, and not the least of its charms was the bright flashing river Letr smooth and peaceful in places, spanged here and there by rustic bridges and widening in its course until it developed into the broad, deep reach in front of the Abbey itself.

Sir Charles Rooden had succeeded when quite young to the inheritance of Rood. He was one of Fortune's favorites, handsome in face and figure, with a gentle, kind, cheery manner that made him universally beloved.

Ligue of Nations
Saves Austria From Ruin.

Hughes Resigns Australian Premiership --
Russian Bolsheviks Refuse to Sign Near East Treaty -- W. R. Hearst Appears in New Role.

AUSTRIA GRANTED LOAN.

PARIS, Feb. 1.—The financial salvation of Austria announced to the Council of the League of Nations to-day by Earl Bessborough, as virtually an accomplished fact, was the last resort for Austria where problems had been discussed for several days. The Council set the needed loan of six hundred million gold crowns guaranteed to the amount of four per cent. by Great Britain, Italy, and Czechoslovakia. The loan was placed by Spain, Switzerland and Sweden. Denmark, Norway and Holland guarantee the rest. This bank-guarantee will be fully guaranteed for any time by the Committee. Cancellation of Austria, threatening the Council, came to the rescue of his country, said it enables Austria "to have its political independence." It was taken as an allusion to the conditions made prior to the League intervention that if Austria's independence were not restored she would be the arms of Germany.

HUGHES RESIGNS.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—Morris Hughes, Premier and leader of Australia, has resigned, and a despatch to the Central News Agency.

BOLSHIEVS REFUSE TO SIGN STRAITS TREATY.

LAUSANNE, Feb. 1.—The action had been expected, the Bolsheviks' refusal to sign the Near East Peace Treaty, setting forth the conditions for opening of the Dardanelles, Bosphorus and the demilitarized Straits zones, caused a deadlock in the Near East Conference. The Turkish delegation, led by Titchener, argued that the question with regard to the demilitarized zone should be reopened. By doing this, the Allies would repair their treaty, which Russia had not accepted. The Allies had not been refused; by the Allies, the demilitarized zone was also seized the opportunity to discuss the demilitarized zone.

SPRINGFIELD WRECKED.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Feb. 1.—An explosion of gas in the purifying plant of the Springfield Gas Light Company, wrecking one section of that city to-day, spread damage through a section. Three were killed and fifty injured, while buildings within a radius of two miles were wrecked and the city tonight presented the appearance of a place bombed, with some of the finest structures in partial ruins. The known dead are: Harry W. Edgerton, Stanley M. Cole, Frank Coleman.

editorial says, "Britain owes it to the world to keep out of war on the Turkish question," and later asserts "the day will come when England's strength will be needed in defence of liberty, democracy, civilization and religion of Europe." France again is given a severe drubbing by the Hearst article speaking of that country's "ruthless militarism and scheming imperialism."

HONORS ABOUT EVEN.

DUESSELDORF, Feb. 1.—Honors are about even on the 22nd day of the gigantic economic battle which is being waged between France and Germany. Sober second thoughts is increasing and a scarcity of food and growing unemployment to-day caused a body of German workers to make their first appeal to the French for assistance since the troops entered Ruhr. Six thousand paper mill workers, threatened with closure of the Dusseldorf plants owing to lack of coal, sent a delegation to General Degoutte, requesting the French to supply the fuel necessary for the continuance of the work. General Degoutte answered that the German railwaymen were responsible for the plight of the working people by their failure to transport coal into Dusseldorf. The French had never prevented their comrades from working but in the end General Degoutte promised he would have coal brought to the Paper Mills. The Germans scored when M. Frantz, one of the leading engineers of the French Economic Mission, speaking officially to the correspondents, admitted the work of the Mission depended upon the return to Ruhr of the coal syndicate and their co-operation with the Mission, virtually admitting that the French were powerless to work Ruhr industries without the Germans. The output of the mines is gradually dwindling. Empty cars are everywhere to be found, but the food situation appears the greatest argument furthering the surrender of the population to French terms.

C.N.R. HEADQUARTERS AT MONTREAL.

TORONTO, Feb. 1.—It was officially announced tonight that the headquarters of the Canadian National Railway would be removed to Montreal.

CANDLEMAS.

"If Candlemas Day be dry and fair, The half of winter's to come and fair. If Candlemas Day be wet and foul, The half of winter's gone at Yule."

In Germany the peasants have similar popular sayings, two of which we here quote. "The shepherd would rather see the wolf enter his stable on Candlemas Day than the sun," and "The hedgehog peeps out of his hole on Candlemas Day, and when he finds snow, walks abroad; but if he sees the sun shining, he draws back into his hole."

The church festival at Candlemas was designed in celebration of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary, and the use of candles in the diurnal ceremonies refer to the words of Simeon, who on beholding the divine infant used the expression that He was "a light to lighten the Gentiles and to be the Glory of Thy people Israel."

Prior to the sixteenth century, Candlemas Day was celebrated with great religious pomp and ceremony in England, but the reformation toned down many of these observances. The festival is, however, still celebrated in the old church of the Quirinal at Rome, where candles are presented at the altar and blessed by his Holiness the Pope, who afterwards distributes them to the faithful with his own hands, and the clergy in turn hand them out to the people, who in solemn procession carry them away while lighted. At one time in England, failure to properly observe Candlemas Day was penalized by imprisonment, but in the reign of Edward VI this was declared against. Very few old customs now remain outside the church observances, but in the Hebrides Islands, where old customs live long, an ancient rite still exists. On Candlemas Night the mistress of the house and her servants take a sheaf of oats, and, dressing it up in the clothing of a woman, place the image in a basket, and, laying a wooden club alongside, leave it on the hearth overnight. This is called the "bride's bed," and before leaving it for the night, the mistress and her servants call loudly three times, "Bride is come Bride is welcome." If, in the morning they find an impression of the club, this is taken as a sign of prosperity for the coming year, but failing such sign, it is an omen to the contrary.

Bishop Mowll's Mission.

RECORD ATTENDANCE LAST EVENING.

Never in the history of St. Thomas's Church, was there such a warm welcome given to any man as has been extended to his Lordship Bishop Mowll; and never such a gathering seen in the "Old Garrison Church" as that which assembled last night, for the Church was filled beyond its seating capacity, while many went away unable to obtain admission. The Bishop took for his text the 37th and 38th verses of the 13th chapter of St. Luke's Gospel. "The whole multitude of the country of the Gadarenes round about besought him to depart from them; . . ." but "the man out of whom the devils were departed besought him that he might be (remain) with him." In this chapter, from the 26th to the 38th verse, we find three groups of people; firstly, there was the man possessed of devils; secondly, the law-breakers, they were law-breakers because they kept pigs which was against the law of that time; thirdly, there was the group of people who tried to do good but failed; i.e., they bound the madman "with chains and fetters" but he broke them. Jesus appeared in the midst of them. He had made the double journey across the Lake of Galilee for one person, and when he arrived, all was changed for that individual. The devils, whose number was legion, went out of him, and the love of Jesus filled his heart, and he besought Him to remain. The law-breakers, however, thought a lot about their wealth, they thought more of their swine than of the Saviour, so they besought him to depart. Just as Christ appeared in Gadara 1900 years ago, so He now appears here in our midst, for "where two or three are gathered together in My name, there am I in the midst of them." No doubt all the groups were represented in the congregation. People who, like the madman, had never felt the presence of Jesus because their evil spirits (evil desires) had controlled their living. Others who, like the second group, loved wealth, or who were so much engaged in pleasure making and pleasure seeking, that they had never opened their hearts to the deep and lasting influence, and the rich soothing influence of the power of Jesus. Then, again, there were those who belonged to the third group, those who had tried and failed. That is they have tried to live good lives, they have tried to bind that evil influence, and have failed, because they have not sought through prayer that power which alone can make them succeed, in fact in their self-sufficiency, they have perhaps fought against good influences. The Bishop told a story of a mother and her son who were in danger. The son endeavored to save her, but she struggled so that he was obliged to let go his hold. Later on, as he stood by her grave, he cried: "Mother, I tried to save you, but you would not let me." What a terrible thought, to think that Jesus may have to say to us "I tried to save you, but you would not let me." At the end of the sermon, while the side-men distributed Resolutions Cards (a pledge and memorial of the Bishop's Mission), the Rector sang as a solo "Jesus Saviour, pilot me," and "O Love that will not let me go."

The Bishop concluded the service, with an all too short "intimate" chat after which he pronounced the blessing. It is doubtful whether Bishop Mowll has given addresses of such appreciative audience and one feels that it is a great privilege to have the opportunity of listening to a man who is so forceful a speaker, and who in a quiet manner, a manner free from emotionalism, commands the earnest attention of a vast congregation. After the service the Bishop addressed the members of St. Andrew's Brotherhood in their chapel in the basement of the Church. He was pleased that the Brotherhood had invited him to speak to them, as he is himself a member of the Chapter, a fact which may justly give every member pleasure to recall. The members of the Brotherhood were all introduced to the Bishop who received them with a warm greeting and a hand-shake.

Anita's Secret.

Entertainment for Child Welfare Fund.

"Anita's Secret," a delightful play, will be produced this evening at Grand Hall by Miss Kathleen Fraser and her class, in aid of the Child Welfare Fund. In addition to the play there will be a musical programme by some of the city's leading talent. There will also be dances by Miss Fraser's pupils and the entire affair will be of exceptional merit and interest. Miss Mary Halley and Master Harry Milley will provide the accompaniment. As the object, Child Welfare, is a particularly worthy one no doubt the Grand Hall will be crowded to-night. The affair commences at 8:30 o'clock.

TEMPERATURE.—The thermometer at Valley Nurseries last night registered 12 degrees. This morning it showed 8 degrees, a fall of four.

Ave Atque Vale.

TO THE RIGHT REVEREND HOWARD MOWLL, D.D., BISHOP COADJUTOR OF THE DIOCESE OF WESTERN CHINA.

We bid thee Hall, upon whose youthful brow Has pressed in faith the Apostolic hand With grace of Consecration, for that Land On which the Day of Christ is dawning now After long night of waiting; yet thy vow There to fulfil thy Master's high command Thou didst forego a moment, that a grand Message for us might from thy clear lips flow. Rich blessings on thee from thy God and Ours Descend, the former and the latter showers! Our prayers shall follow thee in that far clime; In weariness, in perils, in thy need, Upholding thee through all thy task sublime: In Jesus' Name we bid thee Speed, Godspeed!

G. W. V. A. Luncheon.

PLEASING PRESENTATION MADE.

The Executive of the G. W. V. A. tendered a farewell luncheon and presentation to past Vice-President Chesley Kearley, ex-R.N.R., at the West End Restaurant yesterday. President A. B. Baird spoke very appreciatively of the work done by Mr. Kearley who was severing his connection with the G.W.V.A. and said that this organization was extremely fortunate in having such a man to serve it, and that he had in the highest sense deserved their gratitude. Mr. Baird had much pleasure in seeing the acceptance of Mr. Kearley of a small token of appreciation, and hoped that the old Association would not be forgotten. Mr. Kearley in replying, expressed his sincere appreciation of the newly elected executive. He was sorry he had to resign office, but felt assured that with the wise counsel of the executive, all would be well with the organization. He appreciated the kind gift, but said that he always felt that his reward was ample in knowing that the disabled ex-Servicemen and dependents had benefited from the work done by the G.W.V.A., in which he took a small part. During the afternoon songs and choruses were rendered. Mr. Aubrey Crocker presided at the luncheon.

Portia Due To-Night.

An Appreciation of The Press.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir—I am directed to transmit to you the following Resolution which was unanimously passed at the Annual General Meeting of the G.W.V.A. held on January 23rd:—

"We, the members of the Great War Veterans' Association, in annual General meeting assembled place on record our grateful appreciation of the courtesy extended this Association by the daily newspapers of St. John's during the past year for gratuitous publicity."

Yours faithfully, GERALD J. WHITTY, Dominion Secretary. Feb. 1, 1923.

FREE STATE TROOPS ACTIVE.

DUBLIN, Feb. 2. Twenty-four Irregulars, believed to be members of Active Service Units, responsible for many recent attacks on National troops in Dublin were captured in an extensive raid, and searches, conducted by Free State troops throughout the city. Most of the prisoners were in possession of arms and ammunition when taken.

A GERMAN LABOR PROTEST.

BERLIN, Jan. 2. German Labor Units, with a registered membership of twelve millions, male and female, addressed an appeal against the French invasion of Ruhr to congress of United States. They claim that the French invasion and the Versailles Treaty will force future generations into economic bondage; that German men and women are being evicted from their homes, because they refused to become traitors and slaves to their country. They have been reduced, they claim, to a nation of chronically hungry laborers, wrapped in paper instead of swaddling clothes, while men and women are succumbing to physical misery.

WANT INVADERS TO LEAVE.

COLOGNE, Feb. 2. An understanding has been reached between the Cologne railway directors and the Inter-Allied Railway Sub-Committee, that from this morning, German railwaymen will begin as soon as Belgian and French armed guards leave the stations, and neither coal nor reparations trains will be moved, until they do.

Danish Prince

MUST EARN HIS LIVING. COPENHAGEN.—Prince Aage of Denmark, whose fortune was wiped out in a recent bank failure, has gone to Morocco to earn a living as a major in the French colonial forces. Just before he departed, during the Christmas holidays, he said he was genuinely sorry that he could not take up an active business career in his own country. He had never enjoyed anything more, he added, than the job he once held for several months in a foreign branch of a well known American firm, neither his employers nor the other employees knowing his real identity. In Denmark Prince Aage was called the American prince. His habits and tastes were similar to those characterizing the citizens of the United States. Most of his intimate friends were Americans, and their mode of life was his. Soon after the war the Prince visited the United States, plunged into society, and adopted many American ways. Recently it was thought desirable to use the Prince in an ambassadorial capacity, but with his fortune gone, he was unable to accept a post paying only a small income. So he has entered military life, having the reputation of being one of the finest soldiers in Denmark. The Prince's Aage and their five year old son have gone to live in Italy at the home of the Princess's father, Count Calvi di Bergolo.

Albanian Official Accuses Greeks of Atrocities.

LONDON.—While Greeks have been raising pathetic cries to the world against the treatment of her subjects at the hands of the "terrible Turk," she has been practicing the same sort of brutality and unwarranted persecution upon thousands of Albanians within her own borders, according to Mehmed Bey Konitza, the Albanian Minister to London, who has just made a vigorous protest to the British Government on this subject. This protest was made after Mr. Konitza had received official reports from his government at Tirana stating that the Albanian population of Tchamouria, a province near the island of Corfu, was in terror as a result of atrocities committed by the Greek Civil and Military authorities, Tchamouria, although it was ceded to Greece in 1913 by the Conference of Ambassadors in London, contains about 100,000 Albanians, constituting the great majority of the population, who have been attached to the soil since antiquity.

CRUEL TREATMENT PRACTISED.

When Greek refugees began to pour in from Asia Minor, said M. Konitza, the great problem of finding homes for them became a perplexing one, and the Greeks, it is alleged by the Albanians, began their campaign of persecution in order to force the Albanian peasants to leave their ancestral soil to make room for incoming refugees. Instances after instance of cruel treatment is recited in the official reports received by M. Konitza. One of the most striking was that which took place late in September when a Greek officer, according to the report, summoned the inhabitants of Rakitica, in the neutral zone, and marched them off to unknown destinations, under the pretext that they were to be searched for arms. The men of this group, the report says, were beaten almost to death and the women were handicapped and forced to walk barefooted over a specially prepared spiked path. Another instance recited was that of a large number of Albanian Moslems and Christians, who were seized under the accusation of being pro-Bulgarian, placed in a stream up to their necks, forced to remain over four hours, taken out, cruelly thrashed and then killed. Albania, declared M. Konitza, looks to Great Britain and America to come to the aid of those unfortunate Albanians. Since these things have happened, he said, all the Albanians in Greece are living in constant terror lest the same treatment be visited upon them.

Mexican Monk Predicts End of World.

MEXICO CITY.—Considerable anxiety is being shown by the Indian population of the village of Mircoac, near Mexico City, following the recent declarations of Father Genaro Rivera, a Carmelite monk residing there, that the end of the world will come on December 13, 1924. The monk bases his prediction on highly complex astronomical observations he has been conducting for years, and he asserts that the millennium is a certainty on the date mentioned. Inasmuch as he is a highly respected man of the village, his assertions have caused great excitement among the credulous Indians. Local newspapers have given much prominence to the predictions.

M.C.L.I.
Another unusual topic occupied the members of the Methodist College Institute last night; the resolution under discussion being, "Resolved, That the defection of the churches more than makes up for the loss of the fanaticism of the uncultured." The leaders were Rev. R. E. C. Bowen and C. Newell, for the affirmative, and Rev. J. Derby and Wilson Clarke for the negative—the third speaker following the Rev. Mr. Fairbairn began an address by clearly defining the meaning of the resolution. Two members were admitted of which one was interpreted as intellectualism and fanaticism as excess of zeal over the Church by ignoring it, and the other as fanaticism, he claimed, in using it. Their detection of the more serious fanaticism possible, what made fanaticism possible, the fanaticism war in Germany and the absence of intelligent leadership in ably presenting the negative. The Rev. T. B. Darby dealt with the same illustration and claimed that the excesses of the peasants, had called forth strong condemnation from Luther, were due not to the lack of leadership as to the fanaticism of the peasants to be controlled. Their fanaticism against the cause, Mr. Darby in regard to the fanaticism as "the voices of devoutness" emphasized that not all the uncultured had suffered through the fanaticism and undoubtedly benefited from the fanaticism of their members. His point was that if the education had been kept out of the church fanaticism, and they undoubtedly that of itself was proof of the fanaticism more greatly crippled it. The debate, and it is regrettable that a lengthier report of their discussion cannot be given. When the question was thrown open for discussion, quite a number of members participated and while there was some wandering from the question, the debate proceeding. On the vote being taken, it was found that the affirmative was by a substantial majority. Instead of the usual debate, Mr. Hogz, the Science Master of the College.

The Evening Telegram.
Sir—The Advocate of last week carried a most foul attack on a gentleman who is not here to defend himself.
Jesse Winsor sailed yesterday morning by the Senec for St. John's, and this fact was well known to the Editor of the Advocate. I would like the coward that he would like this moment for a reply to me sent him last Monday.
Jesse Winsor? Insolently the coward struck the Advocate, he proceeds to answer his own lies in his own filthy style, and he mixed foul insinuation and direct personal insult, and all this because the Editor of the Advocate has had the courage to accept the gauntlet of the name of the fisherman of his land, thrown down by Coker who supports him.
It is supposed to be a free country and we are going to have it. The Advocate and Coker, who are no autocrats in their free press, are according to their own people consider that things are wrong, they have the right to express their views, and they are the essence of freedom, and the lover of his native land, every fair play must feel resentful when anybody attempts to suppress this natural right.
Jesse Winsor is the honored name for the thousands of fishermen who manfully have banded together as the United Fishermen to demand certain rights to be respected, nor will the government tolerate any abuse from the Advocate.
The only are the fishermen's interest, the outcome of this struggle between the forces of right and wrong, every man, woman and child in the land has an interest at stake. I say nothing just now of the people's nobility further than to the editor of that paper that the chief is not always a Chester.

Yours truly,
WATCHMAN.

Striking Growth
OF FACIST MOVEMENT IN MEXICO.

MEXICO CITY, (Associated Press)—Conceived in jest and at first accepted by the nation in the same spirit as the Fascist movement in Mexico has made such rapid strides during the past few weeks that it is now reckoned as an important political factor which doubtless will figure largely in the presidential elections two years hence. Starting in the small city of Jalapa, capital of the state of Veracruz, it was declared even by its founders to be a mere local society without definite aim and certainly not nation wide in its scope. The name Fascist was adopted more because of the ideas sponsored by the Italian organization. But certain persons who have suffered at the hands of a government which has pressed down rather harshly on property owners during the past few years, grasped at the movement as a safe and effective means to protest against alleged injustice. It offered an opportunity for the landed classes to fight certain radical reform laws that have been imposed on them during the past few years. Without becoming actual revolutionists against central authority, they were able through the new society to organize their interests with a view to gaining sufficient strength ultimately to make demands on the Mexico City government.

Against Bolshevism.
The Jalapa Society was immediately copied in Tampico, and Monterey, Mexico City, Puebla, Guadalajara, Merida, Oaxaca and Mazatlan followed suit. Within a few weeks a temporary national Fascist organization was perfected with Gustavo Sainz de Sicilia, a young engineer, as provisional chairman. Offices were established here and within a few days 22 traveling representatives were sent to scattered parts of the republic to spread the propaganda of protest against Bolshevism and radical law-making. The second week in January was fixed as the time for a national convention at which time the Jalapa and Tampico societies, which have been operating independently, will join the larger organization. With more than 100,000 members already enrolled it is stated that by June next there will be at least 1,000,000 Fascist in Mexico. Meanwhile officials at the national palace here were undergoing a change of attitude toward the movement. President Obregon at first scoffed at the idea and dismissed it as a local society of no importance. He declined to consider it as a movement similar in any respect to the Italian Fascist. Indicative, however, of the fact that high officials now see a threat in the impetus gained by the society, is a recent declaration by Adolfo de la Huerta, secretary of the treasury, who described the Mexican Fascist as an "exotic plant that cannot flourish in this republic." He ridiculed its importance and expressed the hope that the Mexican proletariat would not "commit suicide" by adopting it. And in deprecating the movement he did what its supporters desired—recognized it as a factor to be considered in the political future.

Movement Encouraged by Church.
With the growth of the Fascist there is a general understanding current in the republic that the Catholic Church in Mexico, although not actively sponsoring it is not at all averse to its spread. Official denial has been made by the Archbishop of Mexico that he or the church is in any way interested. Senor Sainz also says the church has nothing to do with the movement. But there is nothing to prevent the individual Catholic from joining the society. According to Senor Sainz the Mexican Fascist is not a military organization. "We do not intend to copy the complete program of the Italian Fascist," said Senor Sainz to the Associated Press, "although their fundamental ideals are also ours in that we are both organized to fight for a new order of things and to combat bolshevism. We do not want to shed blood, but if we are attacked, we shall be prepared to defend ourselves. We intend to fight our battles through exerting economic pressure. There will be no street demonstrations, no parades. We shall go about our work quietly, organizing our forces, and weeks, perhaps months, may pass with but slight indications of our activity. But at the proper moment we intend to strike. Backed by our hundreds of thousands of adherents we shall make certain demands on our government. If it fails to meet them, then it must deal with us directly. We are in no sense anti-government and we have every desire to construct not destroy. We are recruiting our forces from all classes of society and we make no distinction in creed or political faith. We have declared war on radicalism and we are prepared to carry on." Mexico City newspapers have adopted varying attitudes toward the movement. Excelsior has openly espoused the cause and EL UNIVERSAL vigorously opposes it. EL DEMOCRATA and EL HERALDO are not enthusiastic in its praise. EL MUNDO sees in it an attempt by the Catholic church to gain ascendancy in the republic. The January convention is awaited by all with keen interest.

St. John's Ambulance.

The present St. John's ambulance association was originated from the Order of St. John of Jerusalem.

Medieval legend tells us that this order was first instituted by certain wealthy merchants who founded a hospital in the Holy City for pilgrims and dedicated it to St. John the Baptist.

During the first crusade the head of this hospital earned the gratitude of the knights by nursing their wounded. Consequently, after the capture of Jerusalem, the crusaders did every-thing in their power to show their appreciation. The hospital was enlarged and donations of land and money were showered on the new establishment.

The order now consists of knights whose duty was to take up arms if any holy cause, priests and those who did the nursing. From the time of the first crusade they took a regular part in all religious wars. But, owing to the privileges granted by the church and their ever-increasing wealth, the order was becoming very independent of the clergy. At length it practically broke away and became a military organization.

In the thirteenth century the order was driven from Palestine by the Turks. They captured the Island of Rhodes, however, and established themselves there. But from that time the organization commenced to deteriorate. At length, as things grew worse, headquarters were opened in England. It was then that the present St. John's ambulance association was first formed. The king is its head, and anyone performing a service for humanity receives a medal of appreciation. This association did its part nobly towards alleviating the sufferings of our soldiers in the last great war.

Mr. Andrews has very kindly interested himself in forming a St. John's ambulance class for our staff and friends in Kamloops, and Doctor Willoughby of this city is to be in charge. The class is to consist of forty members, who will meet every second Tuesday.—E. D.

Zita of Austria May Live in Bavaria.

BERLIN—Zita, former empress of Austria, has been visiting her mother, the Duchess of Parma, in Bavaria for the last two months and will probably remain with the duchess for several weeks longer. Zita left her Spanish retreat in the Pyrennees, which had been placed at her disposal by the King of Spain, because of the excessive cost of keeping up the establishment. She has purchased an estate at Starnberg, near her mother's estate, on which it is understood she will erect a house. She has still a number of faithful retainers from among the Austrian nobility who act as her court officials.

Our Alphabet.

No one really knows all about where the alphabet came from, because it grew slowly. But we know quite well that no ingenious man sat down and made the alphabet, and we know quite well, too, that the alphabet began as pictures.

Just as a child reads or takes things in by pictures long before it can read letters, so men used to read and write by pictures, and then these pictures were gradually made simpler and simpler, until at last they could be used in every and any way, as our letters can.

We know that the letter O was at first the picture of an eye, and that gradually men made the picture plainer, until at last they drew an O. The letter H was once the picture of a house and very likely a capital A may have been at first the picture of a pyramid.

Ages and ages ago, in Egypt, men used both hands in writing. The priests used the oldest kind, which was the picture. This was called the sacred writing. But the ordinary people used a different and newer kind of writing, in which the pictures were turned into letters.

Not very many years ago men tried in vain to read the old sacred picture writing of the Egyptians, but they could not. Then they found the wonderful Rosetta stone, and this had written upon it the same thing three times—once in the picture and once in the letters, and also once in other letters, and so men got the key to the picture writing, and now it can be read easily.

New Typesetting Device to Set Radio Copy Direct.

PARIS, Jan. 20.—A French engineer claims to have invented a new machine for composing and setting type which is a great improvement on and simplification of the linotype. The new machine has far fewer parts and can be handled by a child, according to the statement of the inventor. A special device is attached which allows wireless copy to be received direct on the machine.

Austrian Crown Has Become Stabilized.

VIENNA.—That the Austrian crown will remain indefinitely at about the exchange value of seventy thousand to the dollar is the opinion of Austrian financiers. The League of Nations plan for restoring Austrian finances provides that there be no further increase in the quantity of paper money in circulation, but it makes no provision for reduction. The quantity of paper issued is regarded as absolutely necessary for the normal working of business, since its purchasing value is something like 14,000 times less than before the war. Eventually all bills of denominations lower than a hundred will be eliminated. Even a hundred crown note is of little use; it is scorned even as a tip.

BUSINESS RELATIONS ADJUSTED

Austrian business is in such a sensitive condition that any sudden rise in the exchange value of the crown would be a disaster almost equal to a sudden fall. Interior affairs, as well as foreign business relations, have gradually been adjusted to the abnormal relation of the crown to other money and it is considered best that it remain unchanged for the present. As there is nothing left in Austria so insignificant as to be reckoned in single crowns, tens of crowns, or hundreds, bills of those denominations will gradually disappear to be replaced by five hundreds and thousands.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

WHEN SHALL WE MARRY.

"Do you believe in marrying young?"

A Letter Friend wants me to answer that question.

It's really altogether too big a question and too much a matter in which circumstances alter cases to answer, and so I'm not going to try to. Instead I'll tell you a few of my thoughts on the subject.

Years ago I would have said yes and positively that it was better to wait until 25 to 30 before you marry, because then you are more likely to know what you want in the mate.

I think I would put it this way: "If you can pick out the right man and if you are economically sound so that you can do it, it's a good thing to marry young."

Nature Throws Her Vell.

In picking out the right person, I am not sure that we do it so much better at 25 than we do it at 20. We can throw the veil of glamor and a personality that makes it impossible for the person interested to see the character outlines clearly, at any age.

On the other hand, if married life is to be a normal family life, it is an advantage the woman who marries young has over the older woman. Children come natural to her, and she has them at the age nature means she have them. She both bears them more easily and has them more easily. Children never so much of a care and anxiety to a woman of 21 as they are to a woman of 31. A friend of mine was married at 18, at 19 her first baby born and she had three before she was 25. I never saw any one take care so easily or so naturally of them more. I don't mean she didn't take excellent care of them, but she didn't fuss the way the older, less resilient mother is apt to.

"Don't Wait."

A woman of whom I know has recently adopted a child. She had none of her own and thought that if she still had none when she was 30 she would adopt one. "Don't wait," advised the doctor, "for if you do, bringing up the child will be so much more difficult. Do it now while the maternal instinct is strong." On the other hand, I know a woman who adopted a child when she was 35 and had nervous prostration over it's care.

Of course the girl who marries young misses that period of freedom between school days and wifehood which the modern girl regards as her right. And I will not pretend it is not a loss. But on the other hand, think of the period of freedom that comes to her as a young matron of 35 or 40, when her children are old enough not to require constant attention. That, too is a great joy and privilege, and I have seen many women flower out into greater joy in life and greater charm than they have had at any other period. The woman who wants to marry and have her children does not get that freedom in the very prime of life.

The Young Mother's Reward.

And then the young mother can enjoy her children so much more, can companion and play with them and enjoy going about with them when they are older, as the mother separated by a gap of years cannot do.

Moreover, other things being equal, it seems to me that the woman who marries young and have their children young keep young looking and young-feeling the longest.

All of these are just personal opinions, of course, and if others have good reason to think differently we shall be glad to hear from them.

The Retiring Chief.

(Halfax Morning Chronicle.)
The retirement of Hon. George H. Murray from the office of Prime Minister of Nova Scotia brings to a termination a career of public activity as leader of a Government which, we believe, is unmatched in the records of British constitutional government. To have occupied the position of First Minister of a Province continuously for nearly twenty-seven years is an epic achievement in itself, an achievement which has not been equalled by any other man, so far as we know, under the British system of government.

But, if we add to that distinction, that he held during the whole of this period the unchallenged leadership of his party, winning and enjoying in a constantly growing degree the loyalty and affection of his party followers, it is a unique experience.

Mr. Murray retires from office, not through any waning of his popularity or any failure of the public confidence which he has enjoyed in such a large measure all these years. He goes out, in fact, in the high day of his political prosperity, with his personal prestige high and his place as leader of his party beyond rival or challenge.

But it is well known to Mr. Murray's intimate friends that for a long time he has felt that the condition of his health demanded that he should be relieved of the heavy responsibilities which he carried, and only his strong sense of public duty and of loyalty to the Liberal Party and his associates constrained him to continue in office up to this time. His retirement now, and the severance of relations which have been so happy and successful, naturally mean a great wrench to him, but it was a duty which he felt he owed to himself no less than to the Province, that he should take this opportunity of handing over his trust to younger and more vigorous hands.

Mr. Murray has been so long Premier of Nova Scotia that it will be difficult to dissociate his name from that office. Although his official relations are ended, we may be sure that he will not lose his lively interest in Provincial affairs and that his party will continue to have the benefit of his counsel and wisdom in promoting the best interests of Nova Scotia. He lays down the burden of office, but he will retain in full measure an abiding place in the hearts of his countrymen.

This is not the time to appraise the magnitude of the service which Mr. Murray has rendered his native Province as leader of the Government and Chief of the Liberal Party. During his tenure Nova Scotia has witnessed notable progress in every department of Provincial activity. Suffice it to say that he did his part ably, dutifully and honorably, and that no public man in the long history of our Province has striven more faithfully and capably to administer a great trust. He leaves behind him a splendid record of substantial achievement, in progressive legislation, competent administration, enterprising development and careful and prudent management of the finances of the country.

Best of all Mr. Murray retires from office without blemish on his public or private character. No man can point the finger of reproach at any personal or public act of his. It is natural that he should take leave of his high office with mingled feelings, regret that he is severing pleasant and happy associations with trusted colleagues, but with a feeling of relief that now, after forty years of strenuous political life, he will be free from the cares and worries which beset every man in public office. He retires from the Premiership without an enemy, counting his friends, political and personal, not singly, but by battalions, and wherever he will go throughout the Province, which he has served so long and so loyally, he will be welcomed as an honored guest and loyal son—still as the premier Nova Scotian.

So in congenial company and converse may it be given to him long to enjoy freedom and ease, that otium cum dignitate, which he has earned by matchless public service. Nova Scotians of all sections will wish him well, cherishing the hope that with a restoration of his customary health and vigor, he may yet have the opportunity for further public usefulness and service to the State for which Canada's Reparations Share Will be Delayed.

Though Canada will continue to be a technical claimant for its allotted 4.35 per cent. of the total of German reparations payments due to the British Empire, it is understood that the French occupation of the Ruhr region, the Canadian authorities immediately in charge of the reparations matter have abandoned all hope of receiving anything for years to come. If ever. The effect of the French move will no doubt be to confirm the view that the Dominion should retain the $20,000,000 worth of sequestered enemy property in Canada. This property is now being held as security for the discharge of individual Canadian claims against Germany, which country has for some months neglected to pay any claims money into the war claims clearing-house in London. After private Canadian claims against Germany have been satisfied, however, the larger part of the $20,000,000 will still remain. It will probably be the only source from which Canada can ever hope to obtain any part of its reparations, but the amount is small compared to the theoretical total of the Canadian Government's claim. It will be more than enough, however, to meet what are known as necessitous cases, such as the claims of fishermen who lost their boats and gear in war-time, if the Government acknowledges these claims.

There is a possibility that Germany will resume payments of claims money to the clearing house, for the sake of her future commercial prestige. Meanwhile the work of weighing-up private Canadian applications for redress is being proceeded with by the Canadian officials in London, Germany, for instance, was induced some months ago to acknowledge a large claim made by the Massey-Harris Company of Toronto, and it is understood that another demand by the same firm against Hungary will shortly be taken up.

A Job Story.

"Mother," said little Eva, on the way from church, "babies aren't so good as they used to be, are they?"
"Whatever makes you think that?" replied her mother.
"Well, little Willie can't talk yet, and he's nearly two, but Job could talk when he was a baby."
"Where does it tell you that, dear?" asked mother.
"Don't you remember the lesson this morning, mother? It is said that Job cursed the day he was born!"

The Relation of Hog to Bacon.

"A story of a Tudor judge is told of Sir Nicholas Bacon, who in the time of Elizabeth was imperturbed by a criminal to spare his life on account of kinship.
"How so?" demanded the judge.
"Because my name is Hog and yours is Bacon; and hog and bacon are so near akin that they cannot be separated."
"Aye," responded the judge, dryly, "but you and I cannot yet be kindred—for the hog is not bacon until he is well hanged."

ary will hold a Card Party and Dance on Feb. 12th. Pancakes will be served during the evening. Bennett's Orchestra will furnish the music.—Jan 29, 21.

MEMOIRS.

All my friends are writing books, treating of their mis-spent lives, telling tales about their cooks and their wives; memoir writers come in troops, writing stories of their coops; modesty will loop the loops, if this memoir graft survives. Ten cent people buy some ink and indulge in pompous prose, telling of the dope they drink and the color of their horse; of their journeys far and near, of the kind of cars they steer, of adventures making beer where the wild budwaiser grows. Silly women take their pens and relate in great detail narratives of setting hens, and of doings fat and stale; gossip of a frowsy past makes the reader cry, "Dearest! These punk memoirs are the last I shall read while out of jail!" Every gent his pen will grab, since we have the memoirs fith, though his life may be as drab as a mudhole in a ditch; though he has no writing skill, endless pages he will fill with his egotistic swill, memoirs readers to bewitch. Every delegate embarks on the moaning memoirs tide, and we are such easy marks that no writer is denied; and we tread the pavement stones to blow in our hard-earned bones for "The Book of Jackson Jones," by all dealers now supplied.

White Man And Two Indians.

DEVoured BY RAVENOUS WOLVES IN ONTARIO WOODS.

Stories of the earlier days in northern country when settlers lived in constant fear of wolves are equalled by that of a gruesome tragedy detailed by railway men coming into Port Arthur from Kenora, Ont. The story is of the death of three persons, an elderly white settler and two Indians, who were devoured by the ravenous animals.

The tragedy took place seventy miles north of Ignace, around the Sturgeon River county. Several miles from the nearest settlement containing a post office lived an old man with his two sons. Trapping was the medium of their livelihood. Each summer they would go into Kenora to dispose of their winter's catch. In order to get their mail, the father or one of the sons would often travel to the settlement. Two days before Christmas the father set out on such a mission with his dog team. On arriving at the post office and being informed he had not arrived the old man left, promising to return on Christmas morning.

At noon Christmas Day when the elderly trapper did not return, the Postmaster became alarmed. He sent two Indians out along the trail to try and locate him. When the Indians had covered a few miles, they found a trampled down spot in the snow which had fallen but a short time before. A few feet on they discovered the bones of the old trapper, harness torn and strewn about also told of the fate of the dogs.

The Indians hurried back to the settlement and told of their discovery. Realizing that many wolves must be about and mindful of the bounty for their ears, the two Indians at once armed themselves and set out in search of the pack.

When they did not return to the settlement within a reasonable time anxiety was felt. A search party was immediately organized led by the Postmaster. It is told that less than four miles from the settlement and about a quarter of a mile from the main trail the search party discovered the remains of the two Indians.

Their guns lay near the spot where the bones were discovered and empty cartridges and the carcasses of sixteen wolves, some gnawed at and others only half devoured, told of the stand made before their ammunition ran out. That they made good use of their guns after that was shown by the condition of one of them which was twisted and the stock broken. Trees abound in numbers about the scene of the tragedy but it is presumed that the Indians were circled by the pack before they could take refuge by climbing them.

Hunters and woodsmen who have spent much time in the woods are of opinion that the pack would consist of about forty wolves so ravenously hungry as to attack even a large number of men. One trapper related a similar experience a few years ago while trapping along the Port Arthur-Duluth Railway, near Whitefish. Threatened with a similar death he climbed a nearby tree and cheated the hungry pack.

A Great Mediaeval Religious Manuscript.

VALUABLE BOOK GIVEN TO VATICAN BY BISHOP SHAHAN.

It is not often that a great mediaeval manuscript finds its way back from the New World to the Vatican library.

But that happened this Christmas-tide, when Pope Pius XI received through the Right Rev. Thomas J. Shahan, rector of the Catholic University, an illuminated choir-book that once belonged in Rome.

The book is made up of three hundred and twenty-three parchment leaves or six hundred and forty-six pages, and for five hundred years served for the public recitation of the Breviary in open choir, particularly from the antiphons of the Psalms and the responses of the Scripture lessons. The book is seventeen inches long, twelve inches broad and five inches thick and every page is studded with initials in vivid blues and reds, with most delicate scroll work along the edges of many pages.

Colours still brilliant.
The colours of the book are so fast that they seem to have been laid in quite recently, despite the fact that the manuscript is believed to be of the fourteenth century. Each initial is executed with a curious perfection of finish that suggests the hands of mediaeval scribes to whom such work was often confided, as peculiarity added to their sacred calling. There are nearly one hundred initials, as elegant and intricate of design as a Persian carpet, and marvels of colour. The initials are usually found at the beginning of the great feasts of the Calendar, such as Christmas and Easter, while favourite saints, like St. Dominic and St. Ambrose, have exquisite miniatures encased in the great initials with which their feasts begin.

The manuscript was the property of an American priest who considered that a religious book of such size and beauty could find no more appropriate home than the Vatican library and, through Bishop Shahan, desired to send it to Pius XI. with sentiments of filial love and homage.

Binding Almost Intact.
The book, it is said by scholars, will not be the least of the manuscript treasures of the wonderful repository in Rome. The binding of the manuscript, almost intact save for the great clasps of hammered brass, is the original covering and has held the beautiful leaves with security for fully five hundred years. The pages themselves permit very curious and interesting observations as to the methods, the writing instruments, and the difficulties of a mediaeval scribe of the highest class.

"Looking on an object of such exquisite beauty," said Bishop Shahan in inspecting the book, "and reflecting that it is only one of many thousand familiar mediaeval books, who could have the heart to accuse of idleness, selfishness, moral grossness or ignorance the men and women capable of executing a work of such refined perfection? Very few could even attempt such a work to-day."

According to Bishop Shahan it would probably take one person ten years to execute the book in perfect facsimile.

Happiness.

The essentials to true happiness are: Something to do, something to love, and something to hope for.

Idleness should be avoided because it breeds misery, while activity is good medicine for mind and body.

Nothing worth while was ever accomplished without labor. God intended no man to live without working, so there is little excuse for not having something to do in this world.

We can all find something to love if we have learned how to see the beauty in nature all about us; but the homelife gives us the first glimpse of true love if consecrated by a watchful mother and the innocence of childhood.

Hope is usually the last thing that dies in a man, and, although it is sometimes a delusion, the habit of looking on the bright side of things lightens the burdens of life.

As individuals it may be assumed that we believe we possess the essentials to happiness, but organized as workers and employers we are selfishly disregarding the rights of others—and this is the cause of most of the unrest in the world to-day. To be happy in a "day's work" we must sooner or later come to understand that it will pay larger dividends to both sides if we will get down to a basis of dealing with each other. What is needed is ordinary common sense, and plenty of it, and the organized worker and the organized employer must begin to recognize the fact that the unorganized public have some rights in the situation.

Impulse must often be subdued in obedience to principle—the common course of things is in favor of happiness. Happiness should be the rule, misery the exception; but happiness is only built on virtue.

Mrs. L. Whiting, 202 King St. West, Brockville, Ont., writes—

"I took very sick with my nerves and stomach, and seemed to be all run down. At times my heart would flutter and palpitate so and I would take such weak spells in the pit of my stomach that I sometimes thought I would never get better. I had almost given up hope when a friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I did not stop until I had taken twenty-five boxes. It has done wonders for me and I want to recommend it to everyone."

THE OLD YEAR.
Was it a good year, was it a bad year? Was it a happy, or was it a sad year? Where is the man who can tell us its history?

Where is the mind to unravel the mystery?
Closed is the record and, ended the story.
But who knows the sum of its pain and its glory?

Turn to your brother or turn to your neighbor,
Each had the same days for pleasure and labor.
Ask them to tell you this last of December;

What of this year they shall ever remember;
Ask of the father, and ask of the mother,
Never the tales shall agree with each other.

One shall declare that the old year was splendid;
One shall rejoice that its journey is ended;
One tell the day that some fond hope miscarried;

One proudly boast of the day that he married;
Sadly some mother, by anguish still shaken,
Shall call it the year when her baby was taken.

Good year or bad year? Unnumbered the stories
Which men shall repeat of its griefs and its glories.
Some found it lovely with joy and achievement,
Some found it bleak with the winds of bereavement;

The day that my neighbour was dancing with gladness
The house of his neighbour was entered by sadness.
Each of us marks it, this last day of December,
As he has lived and as he shall remember.

Now that the old year is written and ended,
Was it a sad year or was it a splendid?
Shrouded with sorrow or laurelled with glory?
We who have lived it must pencil its story.

"The Rosary" is a Tremendous Story.

NEW ADAPTATION AT THE NICKEL LAST NIGHT.

In the midst of this wholesale campaign for reform, censorship and what not comes "The Rosary." And it is not only an opportune production, but incidentally furnishes entertainment of a high class nature.

In the first place "The Rosary" is a magnetic title with which every man, woman and child is acquainted. One does not have to guess at what to expect. There is enough adventure to meet the prevalent public thirst for melodramatic entertainment.

These are days when the public goes shopping. It "picks" its entertainment. "The Rosary" is the sort of picture that makes the patron rave about it to his relatives and friends. The producers of this play are to be congratulated on providing such an exceptionally excellent picture. It is splendidly directed with a cast that is out of the ordinary. Particularly entertainingly human is the work of Lewis S. Stone as Father Kelly and the beautiful Jane Noyak as the lovable Vera Mather. Everybody declares this to be the very best story from the world famous play ever witnessed. There are only two more nights to see this truly great photoplay at the Nickel, the premier house of attractions.

Municipal Council

WEEKLY MEETING.

The weekly meeting of the Municipal Council was held yesterday afternoon. Mayor Cook presided. Councillors Martin, Ousey, Collier, Ryan and Dowden were present. Minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The meeting was a short one, only routine matters occupying the attention of the Board.

A communication was read from the Deputy Colonial Secretary acknowledging receipt of the statements of Estimated Revenue and Expenditure for the year 1923.

C. F. Brown protested against permit being issued one Mr. Antle for erection of stable adjoining his residence, Prince of Wales Street. As the Council gave no permission for such erection it was ordered the Solicitor take action in the matter.

A communication was read from the Inspector General with regard to the taking of water pressure; that he considered the statements made by the Engineer were somewhat misleading and that he could not permit the Council to labour under misapprehensions thus created, without some effort to dispel them. That he was prepared to do everything that is reasonable in connection with this important subject, but would not allow such assertion of rights that do not exist. The Council was of opinion that while the said tests, may give the Fire Department information as to pressures in various sections of the city still the practice of opening the hydrants in frosty weather is most dangerous and must be avoided.

Work on the piling at Job's Bridge commenced last Saturday and the structure is now being put in safe condition.

The City Clerk stated Tax Bills for the current half year were now being delivered. After the 10th instant legal proceedings will be taken against all persons in arrears for City taxes, Poll Tax, etc.

The contract for supplying water hose was awarded Messrs. Ayre & Sons, Ltd.

The Health Officer's report showed 8 new cases of Scarlet Fever and 1 of Diphtheria in the city during the past week.

After reports of the different departmental heads were read and pay rolls and bills presented were ordered paid, the meeting adjourned.

Lessons by Correspondence!

A number of teachers and private students are desirous of obtaining help in their studies and are unable to secure it near their homes. I have, therefore, organized courses of study (each course consisting of 20 lessons) in the subjects named below, the work being done by correspondence. Twenty notes of lessons are provided for each student, 20 tests are likewise provided and the students' answers are carefully reviewed and corrected. Each student has the privilege of asking for any information or help needed in connection with the course.

The fee for each course is $12.00 and include text books, mathematical instruments (where required), blank exercise books for the answering of the tests; the fee is, in fact, inclusive. Each lesson is set for a week's work and will occupy about five hours a week of the time of the average student. Students cannot take Course 3 unless they are masters of Course 2, nor Course 2 unless they are masters of Course 1.

COURSES:

Any course can be begun at any time. Those who need help for the June examinations or for entering College in September should begin at once. Some of these courses may be helpful to busy teachers who have classes in them. Applicants should state precisely what their knowledge of their chosen subject is and forward the fee with the application, when the lessons will be begun at once.

When you are "waiting around again" or at functions where full dress is usually worn, don't you feel out of place with a jacket on? Now is the time to leave your order for Full Dress or Tuxedo. Our prices for these Suits are remarkably reasonable. For special parades, or social calls, we can give you something within your means in a Prince Albert, or Morning Coat. We specialize in these garments.
