Poetry.

The Old Friends. The old friends, the old friends We loved when we were young, With sunshine on their faces, And music on their tongue;
The bees are in the almond-flower,
The birds renew their strain:
But the old friends, once lost to us. Can never come again.

The old friends, the old friends!
Their brow is lined with care;
They've furrows in the faded cheek,
And silver in the bair;
But to me they are the old friends still
In youth and bloom the same,
As when we drove the flying ball,
Or shouted in the game.

The old men, the old men. The old men, the old men,
How slow they creep along!
How naughtily we scoffed at them
In days when we were young.
Their prosing and their dozing,
Their prate of times gone by,
Their shiver like an aspen leaf
If but a breath went by.

But we, we are the old men now, Our blood is faint and chill; We cannot leap the mighty brook, Or climb the breakneck hill. We maunder down the shortest cuts, We rest on stick or stile, And the young men half ashamed to laugh Yet pass us with a smile.

But the young men, 'he young men,
Their strength is fair to see;
The straight back, and the springy stride,
The eye as falcon free;
The shout above the frolic wind
As up the hill they go;
But, though so high above us now,
They soon shall be as low. Oh, weary weary drag the years afflicted with Chronic Constipation. Have been treated by several physicians here and in the States, and have tried many of the cures advertised through the press without receiving any permanent benefit.

In consequence of the complications arising from this disease I have been obliged to undergo a painful surgical operation, and was compelled last year to give up work. About six months ago I consulted Dr. Milier, who gave me a box of his DINNER PILLS, and I can cheerfully testify that their effect in my case has been little less than magical. Since then I have recommended them to some of my friends, who have experienced like good results from their use and returned me their warmest thanks, and I confidently give them a public recommendation, as I PASTURE! I made the acquaintance of Leonora Lennox in an unusual way. Her father, Porfessor Brittain, falling into brown study in the busiest part of Broadway, had nearly got himself run over, when I, rescuing him from a policeman who was about to arrest him for being drunk and disorderly, escorted him home. He was greatly obliged to me and was very hospitable and shortly told me that he must introduce me to his danghter. The lady proved to be a charming woman, a young widow of about twenty-five.

She was overwhelmed with gratitude and nsisted ou asking me to tea, and to cut a it to you." long story short I fell in love with her, and in a very little while we were engaged and about to be married with the full consent of he professor, her father. struggle. Throughout the silver producing states immense mass meetings are being held where inflammatory speeches are made by the governors of states, mayors of cities and other men prominent in public affairs. These men talk of wading through blood, and openly advocate civil war, and even of withdrawing from the union, or, of attempting it, in case congress, under the leadership of the east, persists in repealing the silver tegislation.

There is of course a good deal of sound and fury about these speeches, but without doubt the people of |the Rocky Mountain states are terribly in earnest over this question, as they may well be. Their one source of prosperity is their silver mines. It was the residence of the Rev. J. Cassidy. Both these alone which drew to those states their population. The country developed rapidly, towns and cities sprang up, real estate multiplied in price many times over in a few years, and fortunes were made quickly and spent as freely. Now the people find themselves confronted with a condition of affairs which is likely to close the greater number of the silver mines in the west, and by so doing sap the life-blood from a number of these states. Nothing can be more disastrous to a mining town than the closing down trous to a mining town than the closing down of the mines. There are places in Nevada today without a solitary inhabitant, which a few years ago had a population of ten or fifteen thousand people, and which at that time built $25,000 school houses and splendid churches. The mines gave out or seased to be profitable, and were shut down. There was then nothing else to do but for the people to get out, leaving the place desolate and alone save for the bats and the owls. Numerous instances of such could be given. Is it any wonder then that the people of the westare up in arms now that there is a probability of such silver legislation as will render silver mining unprofitable? It simply means ruin to those states, and poverty to many men who now consider themselves rich.

Capt. Amos Burns, the veteran representative of the lold and reliable commission that the sign part of the world's Columbus view of the World's and of the east in particular, demands that the silver legislation should be changed. It is simply impossible for the United States to go on purchasing tons of silver bullion yearly and paying for it with silver certificates, Miss Kate Fraser and Miss Minnie Gibson, y and paying for it with silver certificates, ly and paying for it with silver certificates, which have to be redeemed in gold, in order to keep these certificates at their face value. That is merely buying silver, which the government does not want, and paying for it in gold which it does want, and stands absolutely in need of, if the finances of the nation are to be kept on a sound basis. So solutely in need of, if the finances of the nation are to be kept on a sound basis. So, it looks as if the western people will have to grin and bear it, no matter what the result may be.

The solution of this silver question is likely to produce effects more lasting and farreaching than would at first appear. For the last half century the tide of immigration has been westward. Eastern capital, energies and business enterprise have poured in to such an extent as to give to everything out there an unnatural value. An eastern man on fresh arriving in a western city is struck with the extravagant price of real estate. In Vancouver, B. C., a city seven years old, land on the principal streets sells at $500 per front foot. That is for land one the principal streets sells at $500 per front foot. That is for land one the principal streets sells at $500 per front foot. That is for land one the principal streets sells at $500 per front foot. That is for land one the principal streets sells at $500 per front foot. That is for land one the principal streets sells at $500 per front foot. That is for land one the principal streets at law, of their leative, Mrs. Gibson, Church, Street. Misses Gibson, Church, Mrs. Agistate, and Mrs. Adayust the lst, the first Tuesday in August the lst, the foot wide on the street and running back a foot wide on the street and running back a hundred feet the usual price is $500, and lots are sold at that rate. In Seattle, Tacoma, Portland, Oregon, and Denver, the usual price is $1,000 per front foot. Such prices are extravagant and beyond the bounds of reason, and must eventually come down to a reasonable basis. The fall in the price of silver will be one of the principal factors in bringing down prices in the west, and as this takes place the wave of immigration which has been flowing westward for the last half century will turn back again towards the has been flowing westward for the last half century will turn back again towards the east. Then will the problem of the deserted farms and of the depreciated value of the agricultural lands of the east solve itself. For the last half century the west has been increasing in population and wealth at the expense, largely, of the east. That part of the continent appears now to have reached high-water mark, and there is now every high-water mark, and there is now every ication that the first half of the twentieth century will see a reaction, when the east will again become the most progressive and Burglars are again on the war-path, as the people of Nictaux and Middleton can well testify.

After spending several days with friends here Miss Annie Johnson left by Saturday's train to visit relatives in Springfield.

Mr. Wm. Ryar, while driving a young beast on Saturday experienced a genuine runaway. One of the tugs becoming unhitched from the singletree of his wagon, allowing the shafts to drop, the horse became unmanageable and started up the road at break-neck speed. Mr. Ryar was thrown out and the horse cleared himself of the wagon, thus averting any serious consequences, the interest and intelligence of the nursing staff. The rate of wages offered to those who will attend the school will not be lower than that now given to attendants. But it is shoped that the opportunity of acquiring a useful and remunerative profession will induce many intelligent and qualified young women to undertake the course, and that in this way the efficiency of the staff will of course develope upon the medical officers, but they are always willing Andover near Lawrence, Mass., died at the residence of his uncle, John D. Morehouse To Torchard St. in that city Tuesday after noon July 11th at quarter past two, from the effects of a wound that he received while handling a revolver on the fourth.

The circumstances attending the accident are as follows. Ralph at noon of the fourth went on his bicycle to the residence of Geo. Tuttle at No. Andover Centre, in response to an alarm of fire, from that section. He had with him a revolver which he had been using during the day, firing blank cartridges. While at the Centre he fired the revolver several times, when it got out of order. He attempted to take the revolver apart and while doing so, it was discharged, he receiving the receiving the contents of a blank cartridge in the left hand. After receiving the wound he went into Mr. Tuttle's house and lay on the lounge awhile, when a team was procured.

OTTAWA, July 17.—W. F. Ever since attacked, Mr. Sparham tried physicisms' prescriptions and nine months. Ever since attacked, Mt. Sparham tried physicians' prescriptions and other medicines, but none had any effect. He constantly suffered pain, which finally became so intense that he could not sleep. Death seemed the only possible deliverance Death seemed the only possible deliverance from his suffering. He got a box of Dodd, skidney pills from Henry Watters, a druggist here, and that one box effected a perfect cure. Mr. Sparbam is to-day the happiest man in Ottawa valley, and he has many friends who rejoice with him.

Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a cup by standing in on the back of the range; let it cool enough so that it will not curdle the eggs, and add it to two eggs yolks that have been beaten smooth with a half-teaspoonful of salt and one of sugar; now add slowly two tablesponfuls of good vinegar and set the saucepan over boiling water until the contents thicken: remove from the fire and stir until it cools, add two ablespoonfuls of French mustard or one of English mustard mixed with cold water beat the whites stiff and add them and lastly a gill of cream. STAWBERRY TAPIOCA. - A delicious mer desert may be made as follows:-One teacup each of tapioca and granulated sugar, ne quart of water, one quart of fine rin been previously soaked) with water, wash and strain half of the strawberries through a sieve and stir in the dish with the tapioca and sugar. Cook all slowly until a smooth jelly. When cold, spread a thick layer of strawberry on the surface. Serve with whipped cream or a meringue made of the whites of two eggs with a little powdered sugar. A pleasant addition to the cream is nade by mashing the strawberries to a smooth mass and beating in enough to give the cream a delicious flavour.

The Home Girl. WHEN SHE IS ABOUT THINGS MOVE VERY The girl who makes home happy is the girl who can always look at the bright sid of affairs, who has a kind, cheery word for all home people, and does everything in her power to make them happy. She keeps her emper well in hand, and thinks twice beore uttering an angry retort, and tries always not to be finding fault, though at the same time she may be feeling much annoyed she'll say: He's been real deaf since he had and displeased, and perhaps rightly, too. There is much to put up with in the uncertain and varying tempers of a large family. There are many little daily worries and grumblings to be patiently borne and list- and waiting with a dress on that cost you ened to, and if they are met with kind words and happy smiles from the girl listener, though at the same time her heart may b crying out silently, "How sick of it all I your wife is dressed instead of dillydallying am!" still her kind, forbearing manner en around in this way. What are you doing, dears her to all her people, and is rewarded anyhow? by their love. Who has noticed how de- Mr. Cox (from next room, meekly).-One voted boys will be to such a sister? They love her dearly because she is a ready list ner to their growls and grumbles, sympathi zes with them in their misfortunes, and help themout of their scrapes, keeping at the same time a discreet tongue about them all.

Being a sensible girl, she knows how to take the boys "chaff," and instead of "turning crusty," gives it merrily back, so that they look upon her as the jolliest and dearest of sisters. The home girl has to be thoroughly unselfish to conscientiously do her duty. There is such a constant demand upon her kindness of disposition, a hundred and one things to be done for her people, so that no girl in the house should ever feel she is lead ing a useless life and has not yet found her vocation. It adds a great deal to the com fort of a home, too, if a girl is able to cultivate tidy habits, to possess a good memory for trifles, and who knows the meaning the word "punctuality." Such a girl produces a feeling of confidence, for she is to be depended upon. Strawberry Sponge.

INCREDIENTS. - One quart of strawberries one ounce of gelatine, one cupful and a hall of water, one cupful of sugar, the juice of a lemon, the whites of four eggs. Soak the gelatine two hours in half a cupful of the water. Mash the strawberries, and add half the sugar to them, boil the remainder of the ugar and the cupful of water gently twenty ninutes. Press the strawberries through sieve. Add the gelatine to the boiling syrup and take from the fire immediately; then add the strawberries. Place in a pan of ice water and beat five minutes, then add the whites of the eggs and beat until the mixture thickens. Pour into a mould dipped in cold water, and set-away to harden. Remove from the mould, and serve with sugar and Boiled Dressing.

"I will hold it so that it will not hurt you till the doctor comes, and he will fix it all right." "Well, mamma," the little one said, pressing her lips together and trying to be brave, "do hold on tight, so that the sawdust won't run out!"

They Had No Accidents.

A story is told that recently the captain of a cricket team decided to start the bowling with one of his players who was more noted for speed than accuracy. The batsman went to the wickets ready to play, but, before beginning, one of them shouted to the bowler understanding. If ye hit me with that ball
