Mass Meeting Of Pacifists In Leeds

Extremists to be Addressed by James Ramsay McDonald and Others — A Dutch Socialist's Views

London, June 2.—The extreme pacifist socialist organizations, including the independent labor party, have arranged for a big mass meeting at Leeds on Sunday afternoon. The meeting will be held to work for peace without annexation and indemnities and to demand that the British government support that formula in harmony with the Russian government. James Ramsay McDonald and Philip Snowden, members of the British cabinet, will speak. The meeting will be widely advertised through local and other opposition which led to the refusal of the use of one hall, but another was obtained.

London, June 2.—British participation in the Stockholm conference figures prominently in the morning papers. The Daily News and the Telegraph agree that George Roberts, the labor whip in the House of Commons, will not go either to Stockholm or Petrograd, and that the western branch from which he comes has decided, as said, to send Mr. Roberts and names possible companions in labor ranks. The minority of the delegates, it says, is not changed, being swayed affected by yesterday's decision.

T. JOHN HEADQUARTERS OF CANADIANS NOW IN STATES WHO ENLIST IN KHAKI FORCES

Authority has been granted for the recruiting of British subjects, living in the United States. They will be recruited at first only for the Canadian forces, but also for imperial regiments. The men, when recruited, will be brought to St. John, where a depot is to be established.

This will probably mean that within a short time St. John will be the quarters for several hundred soldiers. Already several St. John boys who were living in the States have returned home for the purpose of serving with the Canadian forces.

The quarters have as yet not been decided upon, but in the course of a few days all arrangements will be made. This will mean the appointing of a staff to whom the returned men, from St. John, will be returned men. From St. John the men will be sent to England after they complete a certain amount of training.

WILL BE CARED FOR.
A young lad before the Juvenile court this morning for not attending school will be sent for a term to the Boys' Industrial School at Silver Falls, arrangements having been so made. The case was brought in by the Children's Aid society.

SCHOONER STRIKES END OF THE WHARF

The Hattie McKay Was Making Market Slip When Current Took Her

The Hattie McKay, a two-masted schooner, met with a serious mishap last evening and as a result is tied up in Market Slip badly crippled. She came across the bay from Digby and struck the end of the wharf, which was built out into the water, and became fast, but while endeavoring to swing around at the mouth of the ship she got caught in a current and crashed into the end of North Wharf, tearing away her bowsprit, jibboom and headgear.

The schooner, owned by Captain R. L. Card, who was in command of the times representative this morning, he said it was a wonder the schooner was not sunk as she struck with terrific force. Fortunately, the blood did not damage the hull, although the damage to the bowsprit, etc., would entail a loss of at least a couple of hundred dollars. It will be a week or ten days before the damage is repaired.

Prior to leaving Digby a thief or thieves had broken into the schooner at night and made off with forty-five fathoms of new inch and three-quarter rope. This was a bad loss in itself as it was of the best Manila make.

ONTARIO TO ENCOURAGE INCREASED USE OF FISH

Toronto, June 2.—The organization of resources committee of Ontario has adopted a recommendation of the sub-committee to institute an immediate campaign to increase the use of fish as food and thus relieve other food-stuffs for the Canadian soldiers overseas, the Mother Land and Allies. Another matter dealt with was the appointment of a number of field secretaries to assist in the organization of the province.

New York, June 2.—It has been established by the sinking of the British steamship Gena, which was torpedoed by a German aeroplane, that Germany has stolen the idea of Rear-Admiral Bradley A. Fiske's torpedo-carrying seaplane, and thus put into practical operation another tremendous weapon of war invented by an American, but neglected in this country, according to a statement by the Aero Club of America.

Since it was announced on May 2 by the British Admiralty that the Gena had been sunk by a torpedo discharged from an aeroplane, officials of the Aero Club of America have sought information about the type of flying machines used by the Germans for this exploit. The British ministry of defense, which arraigned Fiske, brought pictures of a German torpedo-carrying seaplane, which showed that the mechanism for discharging the torpedo was practically identical with that patented by Fiske.

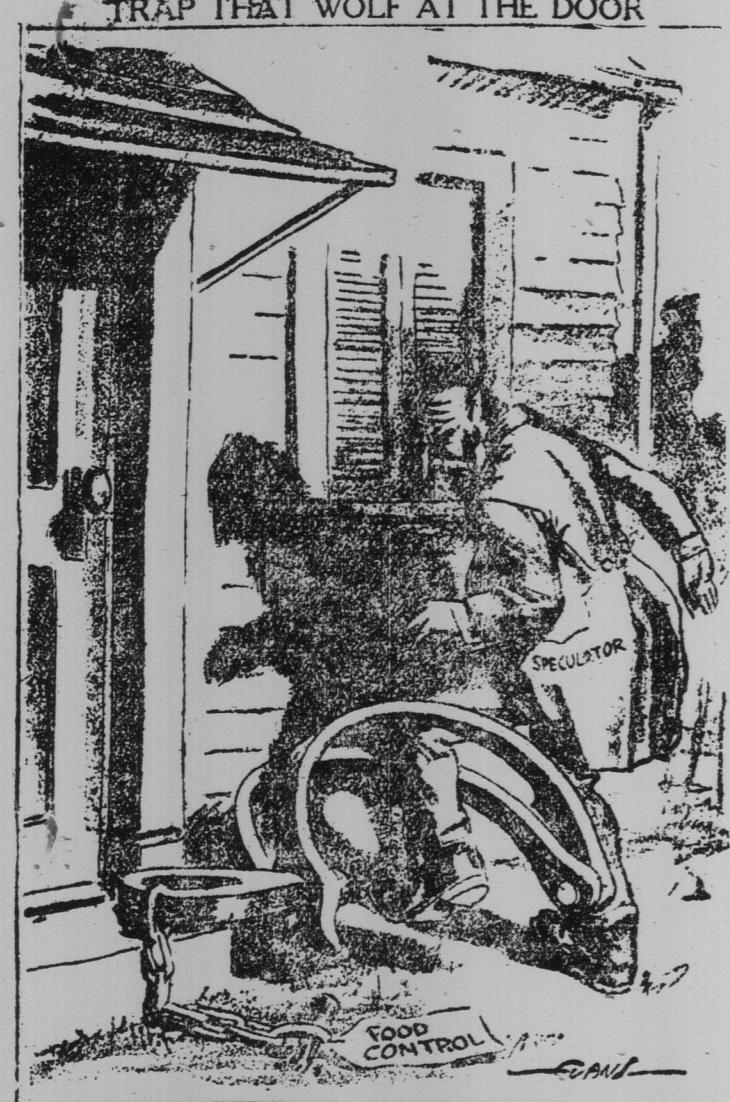

Tests of Admiral Fiske's torpedo-plane are being made at private expense, but with the approval of the Navy Department. Admiral Fiske patented his invention in July, 1912, two years before the war started. He explained that the device had been developed since that time had been at private expense.

Henry Woodburn, a director of the Aero Club of America, said last night that a special torpedo, which meets the conditions of ligament and explosive necessary for a torpedo, had been developed by Frank M. Leavitt, a torpedo expert of the E. W. Bliss Company, and would be discharged from one of the seaplanes at a target in the sea, which is to be held secretly this week. The club, he said, as well as the Germans, have been developing Admiral Fiske's invention.

The chief stumbling-block to its use is a stumbling block which the Germans have evidently overcome. They possess, it is said, a new type of torpedo, which will be light enough to carry considerable distances in a speedy seaplane, and yet powerful enough to do plenty of destruction.

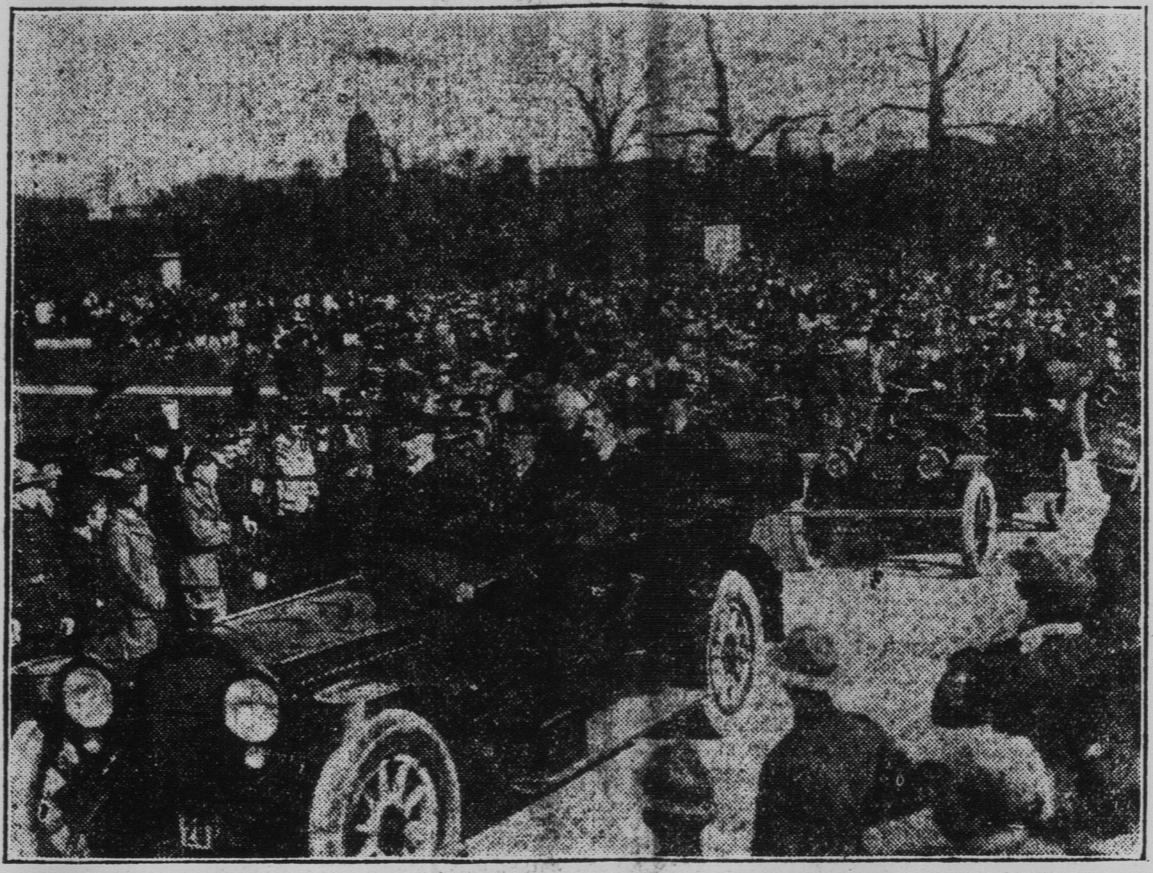

In the bulletin issued yesterday the Aeroclub said: "It is feared that the German torpedo-launching seaplane will become an even more terrible weapon in destroying the Allies' ships on the North Sea, Baltic Sea, Adriatic Sea and Black Sea than the submarine has been, because seaplanes can fly quickly and easily, two men to operate them and can operate against ships swiftly and almost with impunity, and twenty torpedoes can probably be built for the price of one submarine."

BALFOUR VISITS "MY CANADIAN NEIGHBOR COUNTRYMEN"

Hon. Arthur J. Balfour is seen in procession to the Ontario parliament Buildings in Toronto, smiling happily while thousands cheered. After spending the week-end in Toronto, Mr. Balfour proceeded to Ottawa to address parliament. The scene is in Queen's Park, Toronto. Lieut.-Gov. Sir John Hendrie sits beside the British Foreign Secretary.

Anarchy In The Russian Capital

Armed Men Parade Principal Thoroughfares—"Down With Authority" Their Cry—Incite People to Rob Banks

London, June 2.—Petrograd despatches to Reuter's says that a few score of anarchists, accompanied by some soldiers and sailors, marched through Nevsky Prospect and other main thoroughfares at mid-day on Friday carrying black banners inscribed: "Down with Authority," "Down with Capitalists," "Long Live the Social revolution and the commune."

They were armed with daggers, rifles and grenades. The parades stopped outside the Kazan Cathedral and harangued a crowd of spectators. One sailor proclaimed that they were only dangerous to capitalists and not to the workers. Subsequently agitators went from one assemblage to another along the boulevards, inciting them to rob banks and declaring that the social revolutionists would be proclaimed on the occasion of the approaching municipal elections. The authorities did not interfere with the demonstration.

The quarters have as yet not been decided upon, but in the course of a few days all arrangements will be made. This will mean the appointing of a staff to whom the returned men, from St. John, will be returned men. From St. John the men will be sent to England after they complete a certain amount of training.

WARTIME COSTS ARE TERRIFYING

Owner of Baltimore News Compelled to Sell Back to Munsey Because of Increase in Burden

Baltimore, June 2.—The Baltimore News, one of Baltimore's leading afternoon papers, was passed into the hands of Frank A. Munsey, its former owner. Stuart Oliver, who bought the paper and the sixteen-story building here in 1915 from Mr. Munsey, is to remain president; Mrs. J. Carson, 2nd vice-president; Mrs. R. Morrissey, recording secretary; Miss Marion Mahoney, corresponding secretary; Mrs. W. D. Nice, president of wool committee; Mrs. S. Sewall, convenor of tobacco committee; Mrs. Horace Tapley, convenor of towel committee; Mrs. W. G. Nice, convenor of packing committee.

During the last week the circle packed with parcels increased a large consignment of socks, maple sugar, cigarettes and other comforts.

A short time ago reference was made to the fact that soldiers of the first contingent were being neglected by those who were sending parcels. In response to this, the circle secured a long list of names of men who have been at the front from the first and sent parcels to them. The following letter refers to their receipt:

Headquarters, 1st C.D.A.C.,
Dear Mrs. Young:

Thank you very much for the boxes from your circle containing comforts and individual parcels, which have been duly distributed.

I need hardly tell you how much the thoughtfulness on the part of your circle in sending these parcels is appreciated by the fortunate recipients of the articles.

Again thanking you, I am yours sincerely,

J. M. DUNLOP,
Captain and Adj't, for Lieut. Col.,
1st Canadian Divisional Ammunition Column.

Shadow Hanging Over Jerusalem

Turkey Has Twice Ordered Evacuation, but Was Dissuaded by Germany

Copenhagen, via London, June 2.—According to information received in the Zionist circles from Palestine, the Turks have twice given orders for the evacuation of the Jews from Jerusalem, but the orders each time were suspended owing to representations from the German government, which feared for the safety of the shrines and other holy places, and feared still more the effect upon the world's public opinion. The order of expulsion, however, is still hanging over the heads of the residents of Jerusalem, and the consuls and public institutions have their belongings packed and their affairs in order so as to leave should the Turkish commander, Gen. Pasha, enforce it as a general measure.

The expulsion of the Jews from Jaffa, according to the same source of information, was due to the activities of the Turks, effected by the time when the first Galilee sent horses and carts to aid their co-religionists in their exodus, requisitioned all the horses and then provided for their transportation, vermin-infested railroad cars, which caused an immediate outbreak of spotted typhus among the wanderers. The Jewish colonists were permitted to remain, owing to the urgent representation of German officers who pointed out that the provisioning of the Syrian army would be affected if the Jewish farmers were expelled.

EIGHTY PER CENT. OF STUDENTS IN KHAKI

Kings College Record Since War Begun—Nearly One Hundred Old Boys Enlisted—An Interesting Report

At the meeting of the Anglican Synod of Nova Scotia, this week, the report of the committee on education was given by Dr. Boyle. In presenting the King's College report, the president stated that while finances were not as they ought to be, yet he was optimistic for the future, and trusted that the advance movement would receive the united support of the Synod.

The report showed that 80 per cent. of the male students since the war, are at present in khaki.

Beginning in a school at 18th avenue, 18th street, the fight was waged back and forth with varying success as negroes and policemen arrived to fight the police.

James Mohan, a policeman, who was off duty, was passing the saloon when he heard calls for help.

He had his revolver and pistol with him, took up the gun and went to the scene of the trouble.

He found a negro, Walter Clark, of 71 West 137th street, protesting about the price of liquor and threatening to kill the employer of the saloon.

He seized Mohan and sought to throw him to the floor.

Clark refused to give up his weapon.

Germany's Hold Upon Russia

Beginning Traced Back for Two Hundred Years

Not Shaken Off Yet

Germany's grip on Russia began two hundred years ago, and has steadily increased in strength until the present time. Even now it has not been wholly shaken off. If the revolution fails, that then the future relations of Russia and Germany will be to the detriment of China and Japan or an elephant and his mahout. It is not to be supposed that two hundred years ago the King of Prussia had any idea of gradually making Russia a colony. Russia at that time was one of the most powerful nations of the world; Prussia was a mere province. But as time went by and the German population multiplied in Russia, leading Germans did undoubtedly shape their policy to the point of making Russia a mere store of wood and drawer of water for the Fatherland. In the present generation it has been an outstanding feature of German policy:

THAT ORDER-IN-COUNCIL

(From the Montreal Herald)
It will soon be several months since the government passed that order-in-council for the punishment of those who manipulate the supply or boost the price of the necessities of life. The results of that order may be summarized as follows:

Cases of boosted prices....Innumerable Prosecutions....None

Reductions in cost of living....None

Total benefit to public....N/A

"Yes, mamma," replied the girl, "but I don't think he'll get away."

To keep well is to keep clean, inside.

To relieve headache, and to prevent it, keep the liver active and industrious and the bowels as regular as a clock.

Colorless faces often show the absence of Iron in the blood.

CARTER'S IRON PILLS will help this condition.

How You May Change Your Face Completely

Any woman not satisfied with her complexion can easily remove it and dead cuticles are an encumbrance and should be removed to give the flesh a chance to show itself and to breathe. There's a simple self-medication remedy which will do the work. Get an ounce of pure mercurized wax from your druggist and apply it to the face in half an hour or two. It will melt in the morning. The wax will gently remove all the little skin pustules which are the result of the complexion. It is pleasant to use, and removes the face to a treated young person.

To keep the skin free from wrinkles and fine lines there is nothing quite so good as the old reliable axonite lotion. It is only necessary to dip in an ounce of this lotion in a half cup of witch hazel and bathe the face in this and wonderful the result is instantaneous and wonderful, and there is no harmful effect whatever.

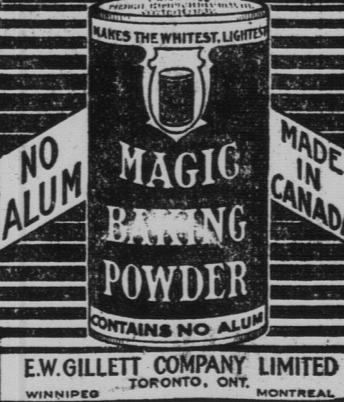

Their influence in Russian court circles was steadily increasing. German ambassador in Russia devoted his time to furthering German influence, assisted greatly by the Czarina, Rasputin and others who set Germany before the throne. The Russian newspapers were not allowed to call attention to crimes and scandals in which Germans in Russia were implicated. It was said that the real press censor in Petrograd for years past was the German Ambassador. All was written referred to the German chariot by tariff laws. What the outside world was permitted to learn of Russia was usually gleaned through German channels. Germany was a bar between Russia and the rest of the world she sought to put the ring in the bear's nose and exhibit him abroad. It is too early to say what degree of success she will have.

THE OTTAWA SITUATION

If this country is thrown into the turmoil of the general elections it will be because the Conservatives are unwilling to sink partnership to the extent necessary to form a real national government. Sir Robert Borden has around him a group of politicians looking to their own interests or the interests of party. Having had their own way in matters of patronage and rackets for their friends ever since the war began they are unwilling to let go. All the profiteers are unwilling to have them let go. This element in his party, and unfortunately it is represented in the cabinet, is causing the prime minister a great deal of worry and trouble. It is perfectly obvious that there are some men in the present cabinet with whom the Liberals want nothing whatever to do. There are also the Nationalists, with whom Liberals have nothing in common, but who can make a lot of trouble for Sir Robert Borden. They are not at all disposed to give up place and patronage. In the face of these difficulties the prime minister hesitates and apparently lacks the courage to declare himself outright for a truly national government, which would throw patronage and partisan considerations to the winds and proceed to organize Canada for war as every other country save Canada has already been organized. There is still a possibility that an agreement will be reached to avoid an election, and that would best serve the interests of the country, always providing that there is a government which would command the confidence of both parties in the house and of the people at large. There is much to be done, and there should be as little delay as possible. It is most unfortunate that in the matter of conscription Sir Robert Borden announced a policy he was not prepared promptly to carry out. The result of his very injudicious course has been an agitation all over the country, which is certain to have a bad effect, and to make the path of any government more difficult. The temper of the country today is not partisan. If Sir Wilfrid Laurier were asked to form a government he would be expected to make it truly national and non-partisan; for only by united action, by a people engrossed with the one idea of throwing the whole strength of Canada into the war, can we redeem the nation's pledge and save the nation's honor. The initiative is with Sir Robert Borden, fresh from his conferences with the leaders of the Empire, and fully informed concerning the urgency of the case. It should not be made possible for any to say of him that he feared to trust the people of Canada, represented by a national, win-the-war government.

Last night's report from Ottawa is to the effect that there seems a fairly good prospect of coalition. Sir Robert Borden knows that he cannot go on, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier is now, as he has been throughout the war, ready to sink party differences for the good of Canada and the Empire. He doubtless insists, however, and rightly so, that partnership is entirely dropped by the government before any attempt at reconstruction is made. And just there is Sir Robert's difficulty. If he can overcome it he will do the country the highest possible service.

PROHIBITION.

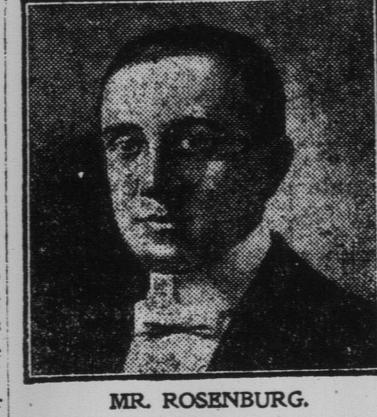

Whatever strengthens the prohibitory law and makes it more effective is in the public interest. The government need entertain no fear of making the law unpopular by providing machinery for its more effective enforcement. No doubt some persons will object, but there are always objectors, and there is no just ground for opposition to such action as will make it hard and harder for anyone in this province to evade the prohibitory law. If the views were taken in St. John tomorrow, prohibition would be endorsed by probably the largest majority ever recorded in the city; for even those who were formerly opposed are now convinced of the enormous benefit conferred upon the community by the closing of the saloons. Of course there are persons who object to any interference with their personal privileges in the matter of beverages, and in the public interest they must give way, just as the people of England today are consenting for the common good to the restrictions imposed by the food-controller. The harder it is made to get liquor for drinking purposes the better for New Brunswick. So far as advertising the sale of liquor goes, it should be prevented to the full extent the constitution of the country will permit. It is not in the interest of bigotry or fanaticism, but of the people of New Brunswick, of this and later generations, that the liquor traffic and the use of alcoholic beverages should be abolished. There is no danger of a reaction against prohibition if it is enforced. Only where it is not enforced is there a demand for a return to the license system.

The legislator who wants to make it easier to bring liquor into New Brunswick is the spokesman of a small and rapidly diminishing element of the population.

The woman suffrage bill is to come before the legislature at Fredericton on Wednesday next. The bill should pass.

NOTED MUSICIAN OF MONTREAL

Advises the Use of "FRUIT-A-TIVES," the Famous Frukt Medicine.

MR. ROSENBERG.

589 Casgrain St., Montreal, April 20th, 1916.

"In my opinion, no other medicine in the world is so curative for Constipation and Indigestion as "Fruit-a-tives." I was a sufferer from these complaints for many years, and had a sedentary occupation. Music brought about a kind of Intestinal Paralysis—with nasty Headache, belching gas, drowsiness after eating, and Pain in the Back. I tried pills and medicines of all kinds, but nothing helped me. Then I was induced to try "Fruit-a-tives," and I have been entirely well.

I advise any one who suffers from that horrible trouble—Chronic Constipation with the resultant Indigestion, to try "Fruit-a-tives," and you will be agreeably surprised at the great benefit you will receive."

LIGHTER VEIN.

The Candidate (questioned)—"From the day I was twelve I earned my own living. I owe no man a penny! Gentleman, I made myself!"

The Voice—"Well, you made a mistake."

"We have followed the example of Lincoln—so as the system of conscription is concerned. The country has been divided into twenty districts. A military census has been taken of each district and we know the exact number of men of military age in each district. When reinforcements are required we assign a proportionate quota for each district. If the men come forward voluntarily there is no conscription. If the quota is still to be made up the men are selected by ballot from among the eligibles. There are tribunals to whom appeals may be made, but among the men themselves it is very few exemptions have been made.

"We consider wealth by war taxes. We have placed a tax on everything that will stand it. The railways belong to our government and we have made slight increase in the railway fares. The postal rates have gone up slightly too. Then we borrow money locally in the dominion. Over and above the usual income taxes we have placed a war tax of 45 per cent. on all war profits and an additional 5 per cent. for general war purposes.

"Most of the labor people support the government. Generally speaking, there is no fault to find. Labor has done its share in the war so far in our country. Of course there are some few exceptions, but they can't be helped."

Hon. Dr. Pugsley Again Urges Construction of Small Vessels

Present Policy No Aid to Shipbuilding in Maritime Provinces — Smaller Craft Could Relieve Coal Situation

Ottawa, June 1.—At the opening of the house this afternoon, Hon. Dr. Pugsley asked whether the coasting regulations had been suspended as affecting ships of the Allies. Sir Robert Borden replied that no action has been taken as yet.

When the house went into committee of supply on the marine department estimate Hon. Dr. Pugsley again brought up the question of governmental policy regard to the construction of ships in Canada. He declared that the policy of the imperial munitions board in restricting the orders placed in Canada on behalf of the British government to ships of only twenty-five thousand tons, or over, was not helping to build up any shipbuilding industry in the maritime provinces. Moreover, said Dr. Pugsley, the board was actually discouraging any shipbuilders in the east from taking contracts if they had to transport lumber from British Columbia. He drew attention to the necessity for increasing water transportation facilities for bringing in coal from the United States and urged that the government should have taken steps long ago to have secured the construction of vessels of comparatively small tonnage in Canada.

Hon. J. D. Hazen declared that the imperial munitions board could only obey instructions from the British government and it had not secured any amendment to proceed with the construction of smaller vessels. He, himself, had urged upon the British authorities that Canada was in a position to turn out a considerable number of wooden vessels of less than twenty-five thousand tons as yet no reply had been received to his representations. He pointed out the difficulties in the way of securing steel plates or timber for a large scheme of shipbuilding at the present time and declared that the question of the government itself entering into a policy of constructing ships was being considered.

What the government ought to do, said Dr. Pugsley, was to take the ten million dollars which Mr. Cochrane proposed for highways and use it to build ships. The government should not build roads at the present time for the automobiles of the rich. There were thousands of opportunities in the maritime provinces for the building of small craft.

Mr. Pugsley said the government of every country in the world except Canada was building ships to carry food to its greater neighbors or if he understood correctly before a British judge, an Indian judge administering British law, and receives even handed justice with the richest in the land. MRS. BESSIE B. INGALL

The community at Cody's, N.B., was sad at the news of the death of Mrs. Wm. M. Gourley. B. church after the interment.

AN APPRECIATION

The Montreal Journal of Commerce says of a former New Brunswick: "Easterners seem to have a faculty of getting to the top, and the Hon. J. De B. Harris, the new attorney-general and labor minister of British Columbia is no exception." Mr. Harris is a young Vancouver lawyer, and was first elected to parliament a few months ago. Harris comes from New Brunswick but has been in the west for ten years. He is a radical of the first water, and is evincing by the fact that he holds a double portfolio, the rather unusual combination of an attorney-generalship and the minister of labor.

The annual meeting of Fairville Methodist Sunday School was held last evening in the church parlor, and there was a good attendance of teachers and officers.

Reports of the Treasurer, B. L. Wood, showed the school to be in a healthy financial position, with a balance of $47 on hand when the books were closed. Missionary giving for the year amounted to the very creditable sum of $140.

Harry Sweet, assistant secretary, read a detailed report of the activities of the school, showing an average attendance of 104 for the year on a total enrollment of 365.

Miss Gladys Shaw presented a comprehensive report on the library.

It was decided that the school during July and August would meet immediately after the morning church service.

Eleven of officers resulted in the return to office of the entire staff of last year, with the exception of the assistant librarian, Grey Townsend resigning and Leslie Linton being appointed in his stead. The members who remained over the winter, Rev. Gilbert Earle, who was tendered a standing vote of appreciation for his services in the Sunday school during his four years' ministry. The resolution was passed by the superintendent.

Mr. Earle, who will leave the circuit in July, replied feelingly and spoke of his regret in leaving the present staff.

'Bean Ball' Rule
Will Cause Umps.
More Trouble

New York, May 31.—More trouble and work are in store for the umpires of the National and American leagues since the national commission, the governing body of baseball, has legislated against so-called "bean ball," and means to take some action to prevent the pitchers from using it.

"That is going to cause more trouble or the umpires than they have ever had before," said Fred Mitchell, manager of the Cubs.

"It is true that I have seen pitchers throw in close to a batter for the purpose of driving him from the plate when he is too confident and is taking a too bold to crack the ball. That is legitimate, and do not let me get into any trouble. I never have ordered any man to hit anybody, and would not do that, because the players in the game are in it for the same purpose I am, and would not want to see anybody maimed."

"What I want my twirlers to do is to drive the players back from the plate when they are hugging it, and every smart pitcher in baseball always has and till it does it. He does not do it with his intention of beaning a batter, but to give him away, and to scare the batters."

That positively is untrue. It would be unkind for me to make any statement of that sort, because the fans would think I am a rowdy."

It has been reported that I said I would punch Johnson in the nose, taking exception to the stories I gave out about instructions to the batters.

HELP!

Would all the advertising friends of The Times do their utmost to have their advertising copy in this office at the earliest possible period for insertion in each day's issue—the night before if at all possible?

The crush of advertising which The Times has been carrying the last few months makes a call for HELP on the part of business office an urgent necessity.

Early ad copy means early closing of forms for the Street—means a larger sale of papers—HENCE A LARGER MARKET FOR YOU!

It also means that your advertisement will receive the best of attention as regards typographical treatment, will be dressed in the way your PUBLIC SALESMAN should be dressed. Best work of course can't be done in a rush, and neither you nor The TIMES is satisfied with a poorly dressed ad.

The unfortunate fact that quite frequently advertisements have to be omitted from the Times on account of late copy prompts this S. O. S. call and really your own best interests would demand that it be heeded.

The River Of Life

The Gospel Message is stated in very beautiful and varied pictorial language. The statement, River of Life, calls our attention to the source:

"IF ANY MAN THIRST, LET HIM COME UNTO ME AND DRINK"

According to the Scriptures eternal life can be attained only through the merit of the sin-sacrifice given at Calvary.

Mr. Marchant's lecture should be interesting to all.

"IN THE NAME OF OUR GOD WE WILL SET UP OUR BANNERS"

The following is a portion of a sermon preached by Dr. Ashley A. Smith, of the Universalist Church, Bangor, last Saturday to the Grand Army veterans assembled for memorial services, his text being: "In the name of Our God we will set up our banners":

"Stand by the Flag. On land and ocean pillow. By it your fathers stood unmoved and true. Living, defied; dying, from their pillow With their last blessing, passed it on to you."

They are worthy and loyal sons and daughters of those patriots, prophets and martyrs who have given us our freedom to the light of our own times, to the duties and ideals of our own day, because if needs the same unswerving courage, the same clear vision and outlook, the same noble idealism and spiritual strength which distinguished the tasks and problems of '76 or '61. And as they were faithful to the fair and penetrating light that streamed forth from the words Justice, Liberty and Democracy, so we must be unto this world, and make the principles of Americanism prevail, not in our borders alone, but in the great world of humankind."

"Again we have set up our banners as a hollowed herald of spiritual and moral law, upholding the rights and standards for peace, for law and for humanity in all the world. It is a banner of peace and good will and under its folds for two and a half years, we suffered humiliation and submitted to wrongs and indignities, condemned repeated offenses and committed rights and even principles.

To call the catalogue of infamies and crimes from the rage of Belgium and the murder of Miss Cavell, to the last outrage and carnage of the Boer War, and the treachery and arraignment that still the blood of every free-born American makes the hyphen a symbol of reverence and disgrace. Our present situation means a new birth of liberty and a new dedication of ourselves to the cause of the past generations who fought and died beneath that banner, "shall not have died in vain," as our incomparable Abraham Lincoln had said in words that America will not willingly let die. We belong to a nation of right, whose rights, which you can't outrun the Ten Commandments and cannonade Mt. Sinai, bombard the eternal law of justice and righteousness and shatter the granite foundations of civilization and progress.

Terror Reigns Anew in Belgium

Huns Condemning Thousand
a Month

Spies in Pay of Kaiser's Officials Play Abominable Trade—Forcing Confessions From the Innocent

London, May 30.—(Through Reuters' Ottawa Agency)—An interview was had by a representative of Reuter with a Belgian gentleman of high social position, who succeeded in escaping from Belgium, knowing that he was about to fall into the hands of the German secret police. He gives a terrible account of the Germans' so-called judicial methods. "In a vague way," he said, "the world knows something of Germany's military actions, which are committed every month for patriotic offenses. During the three months preceding January last forty-two death sentences were inflicted in one court alone."

"Nobody who has not gone through it can realize the extent of terror which prevails owing to the methods employed by the German secret police, and for obvious reasons very few people are able to give any precise facts. Only those who, like myself, have narrowly escaped the hands of the German spies and 'agents provocateurs' have some knowledge of their methods."

A German sergeant was ordered to arrest 'Franc-Tireurs' in the early days of the war, but as he was unable to find any before his chief enemy, he simply arrested the first offending peasants he met on the road. This sort of thing now happens daily in the campaign of persecution directed against the patriots.

Spies Busy Everywhere
"Large towns like Brussels and Antwerp continue to swarm with spies, and they often visit small towns and even villages where they think there is the slightest chance to prosecute their abominable trade. Whether their zeal is stimulated by fear or greed I cannot say;

CROSS, SICKLY BABIES

Sickly babies—those who are cross and fretful; whose little stomach and bowels are out of order; who are sick from constipation or overeating colds or any other of the minor ills of childhood—can be promptly cured by Baby's Own Tablets. Concerning them Mrs. Jean Paradis, St. Bruno, Que., writes: "My baby was very ill and vomited all his food. He was cross and cried night and day and nothing would quiet him. I gave him Baby's Own Tablets. They soon set him right and now he is a fat, healthy boy." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Willard's Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

but the result at any rate is the same. If they do not succeed in curing a genuinely ill child, they will force an apparently innocent people to confess imaginary crimes or denounce friends. Occasionally the secret police disguise themselves as escaped French prisoners, or pose as guides ready to help the distressed to escape through the electric wire frontier. When they have succeeded in gaining the confidence of their victims they promptly denounce them to the Kommandant. The next stage in the tragedy is arson, from which escape is almost impossible, for every day the torturers visited in their cells and the victim was tortured by German officers and police bullies, who wring confessions from them. I know one man who was cross-examined in this way for eight hours without intermission, and without food. When the first torturer was exhausted he was replaced by a second, who continued the ordeal. The prisoner refusing to confess was threatened and struck in the face.

Hunchback Lad Tortured
"In a prison where I have been I met some peasants who were charged with helping a young man to join the Belgian army. These prisoners were led into a separate room, and every time I returned the fate was bleeding. Another batch of prisoners was suspected of circulating forbidden newspapers. Among them was a weak hunchback lad from whom the police hoped to extract information. He was removed from his cell and invited to a room, a town coupled a police agent and his mistress. They gave the man drink and promised him all sorts of things, but he still refused to confess. The woman

Master of Oratory—Style of Speaking Very Virile—His Tribute to United States a Classic

By common consent the finest parliamentary tribute to the United States, on its entrance into the war, was that delivered by Lord Curzon. One who heard it says of it that it literally left an impression not less by its recall of suggestion than by the charm of its language. In a passage of exceptional power he characterized the action of the United States as a response to the call of freedom. "That call," he said, "had again sounded in the ears of America. It was the call which they had responded. It was the voice of freedom calling to the freest people in the world to strike a vital and decisive blow for the sake of freedom itself. The entry of America into the war was a great event in the march of civilization of the human race. Not merely did this act invest the figure of America with a glory that would never fade, but it stamped the scope and character of the present struggle as a uprising of the spirit of the British Islands, of a sturdy, honest, and perfect literary form is called for; he has no equal in the British Isles. His style of speaking is very virile, his phrasing is exquisite, and his voice, at once resounding and modulated, adds immeasurably to the effect of his utterances. A very young man who is sedulously cultivated the art of public speaking, and to lay (according to those who hear him often) is wonderfully impressive."

War Cabinet Work
But, of course, he has much else—other than public speaking—to engage his attention just now. Of the five members of the war cabinet, he has been, by far, the most frequent attendant at the cabinet's sessions, and he has attended nearly every day all. On 125 working days the War Cabinet have had 182 separate sittings, in addition to fourteen of the Imperial War Cabinet. As at practically every sitting it has been necessary to take quite a number of sessions, heavy with business, some one can be formed to the extent and weight of the burden which rests on him. Why, he has been the most frequent attendant at the War Cabinet sessions, and thus has been more intimately concerned with the affairs of state than any other member. It is due to the fact that his four colleagues are less inclined than he to be preoccupied with the necessities of keeping constantly in touch with the industrial machinery of the nation. Thus it has come about that the major part of strictly cabinet work has devolved on him.

Disguised as Prisoners
"Sometimes agents provocateurs" disguised as prisoners mix with the patriots, abusing the Germans and the Belgians, to the sympathy and confidence of their companions, and if the latter are unwise enough to trust them, they are promptly confronted with them and obliged to confess their guilt. I also know cases where relatives and friends of prisoners were brought to the War Cabinet and told that their mother or sister had denounced them. Knowing the sufferings to which they would be subjected, the prisoners preferred to confess even an imaginary crime rather than to see their dear ones ill-treated by the Germans. A pregnant woman was awakened in the middle of the night by an electric torch flashed into her eyes and a revolver applied against her forehead in order to terrify her into a confession. She fled, but was captured and sent under such circumstances many enter the prisons, but few succeed in getting out. Whether or not they committed the offence of which they are accused, they generally admit guilt, preferring imprisonment, or even death to such moral and physical tortures.

Enemies of Tea

If tea is left open near oranges, soap, spices, matches, etc., the tea will take on the flavor of any of these articles.

In fact, tea absorbs odors as readily as does butter. This is because it becomes so dry and brittle in passing through the firing or drying oven that it becomes very sensitive to the moisture and odors in the air.

When loose in the chest or bin or bag it quickly loses flavor and strength. Tastes flat, weak, old; dear at any price.

This is why Red Rose is never sold in bulk—but always in sealed packages. The armour that keeps out dust and odors and keeps in the flavor and strength.

The price printed on the package protects you against overcharge. It is the lowest price for which a tea of Red Rose quality can be sold—a price which allows the grocer only a fair profit.

You will enjoy the distinctive flavor and rich strength of Red Rose Tea. Try a package.

But it was about this time that a Roumanian prince threatened to carry her off to the mountains of his native land, cave-man fashion, despite her past record. To the Rt. Hon. Arthur James Balfour.

'Twas thine to hold the helm of State,
While pondering philosophic truth,
Yet higher, thy self-chosen fate
To live unsplashed from thy youth.
Flesh of our flesh, bone of our bone,
Thine welcome, 'midst the joy and tears
We crave to hear and make our own
The wisdom of thy years.

Hold high before our younger eyes
The Law believed beyond the wave,
Whose burning flame and shining prize
Is man divine no more a slave.
Lo, we have bled from fervid breast,
And tho' we dreamed, again we rise,
Our souls awake from foolish rest
To utmost sacrifice.

Beyond the crude material goal,
And nobler far than rank or birth—
The cause that thrills thy cultured soul,
And liberates the bleeding Earth:
The sacred Liberty of Man.
Abhorred of all enslaving rod,
Man's first true human life began,
His heritage of God.

LORD GREY ON ORIGIN OF WAR

Letter of Remarkable and Historical Interest

GERMANY RESPONSIBLE

Prussian Military Men Had Decided That the Time to Strike Successfully Had Come—Germany Believed Herself So Superior That She Would Impose Her Will on All Europe

(Christian Science Monitor)

The following extract is from a private letter, written by Lord Grey of Fallodon, and dated from Fallodon, Lebury, Northumberland, March 5, 1917.

It is of such remarkable and historical interest, as containing the delineation with every phase of world policy, during the last quarter of a century, as to the origin of the war, that permission has been obtained, from the writer, for its publication in these columns.

"We know that the origin of our entente with France and then with Russia was a desire to avoid war and to put an end to our quarrels with those powers and to the embittered feelings of their side and ours that had so often brought us into mutual strife due to the brink of war." This was one motive, and a policy of encircling Germany was not in our thoughts.

"Latterly the restlessness, ill conce-

ed ill will and enormous strength of Germany on sea and land made us feel that war was dangerous. But we made no binding alliance with France or Russia before the war; we kept our hands free as regards participation in war with France and Russia, and even aggression against Germany or even an aggressive policy would get no support from us. With this they were content and I never found an aggressive spirit in French or Russian policy.

"We wished to keep our friends, but also to keep the peace of Europe, and in the Balkan War we gave proof of this and came through that without reproach and indeed with the credit of having worked for peace.

"One of the tragedies of the situation is that there was in London machinery and personnel that could have settled honorably and fairly every dispute such as that of 1914, if it had been permitted to try and be trusted again. That this was so close to the privilege of the amanuenses in London of the five great European powers, including, of course, Lichnowsky and Mendorff, the German and Austrian ambassadors. I would have trusted every one of them to do his duty, and I believe they would have trusted me to play fair and not to try for anything but a fair settlement.

"But in 1914 Germany thought the time had come to take advantage of the situation and to force the pace, and I suppose that the Prussian military men had decided that the time to strike successfully had come.

"As far as I can see the Germans believed that if England had promised

Germany to remain neutral in a European war; in other words, that England had given France and Russia to understand that under no circumstances should we help France, and thus parted all company with them, France and Russia would have given in to Germany without fighting. England would have been isolated and discredited and German domination would have been secured without war.

"And Germany holds us to blame for the war because we did not act according to their idea.

"This view can only be justified in the assumption that Germany is un-morally and intellectually superior to all other nations, that it is wrong not to desire her will to be imposed on Europe and a crime to put any obstacle in her way.

This, it seems to me, is the belief and the ground on which consciously or unconsciously the Germans do justice to themselves after the outbreak of war.

There were some outbursts (from one German professor, I think) that said this quite definitely, and the conclusion of the matter is that there is no greater danger to the world than a nation which believes that itself is superior to all else, and that others have no rights as against it.

many see and land made us feel that was passing in every capital in the world.

This knowledge of men and nations made something of a citizen of the world of the man whom many people regarded as the most brilliant statesman of his day, and able to talk him for a few minutes to learn how deep were his sympathies with other people and with other countries. There was no desire whatever in his diplomacy to merely get the better of them. He judged their aims largely from their policies, and he endeavored to estimate their passions in the light of their difficulties and interests, so that he came to be a quiet and sympathetic judge of all sorts and conditions of men, in all countries under the sun. It would be impossible to imagine Lord Grey arguing from an armchair, with all the ardor born of complete ignorance. He was far more likely to stop, in the middle of explaining to you, of inquiry of a political intrigue, to make allowance for the culprits, and to show you how they deserved what they got, and of what they deemed their necessities to force them into indefensible positions. Herein lay the strength of his position, and it was this which, when attacked by the ultra-Socialists for hurling the empire into the war, and by the anti-war being half-heated in his prosecution of the war, enabled him to keep a perfectly even keel and to handle his boat, in the most violent squall, with all the ease, dexterity, and fearlessness that another man might have shown, in a summer's day, on dry land.

No doubt much of this philosophy comes from his reading. Isaac Walton, White of Selborne, Thomas Lever Peacock are amongst his acknowledged favorites. There is a quiet dignity about all his writing which is reflected in his speeches; a certain mellowness of judgment begotten not of plunging violently into violence, which has distinguished all his acts; a serene atmosphere of the sky, and of the hills, and of the river, flowing not too fast, and yet not too slowly down the valley, which is reminiscent of the transparent honesty of his policies.

Of course he loves the Northumberland Hills, and the great rock-ribbed coast, and the hills at Painswick, the rolling pastures, the gardens. But he has never consented to sacrifice these for what he conceives to be the demands of his country, and if there were nothing to hinder him, Lord Grey could tell you what his obedience to them. Still there are moments when it is a joy to him to pitch the Blue Books and Hansard recklessly aside, and to quote to you, per-baps, from Lord Verulam's famous essay, "Of Gardens"—"God Almighty first planted a garden. And indeed it is the purest of human pleasures."

Prohibition Pays! The Story of the Two Dakotas

BEWARE of the empty claim that Prohibition is just a "war baby," which can be effective only for "duration of the war." Now, twenty years is plenty of time for a thorough-going try-out of any law. Let us see how North Dakota has prospered under Prohibition during that long test. During the same period South Dakota under license provides an eloquent comparison—a striking example of the failure of license. Here are the facts:

Both states adopted Prohibition in 1890. After six years South Dakota returned to license. North Dakota has continued under Prohibition to this day. The area of the two states is about alike. South Dakota began the period with a population just about the same as New Brunswick has at present, North Dakota with about half as much. In twenty years (1890 to 1910) South Dakota's population increased 67 per cent., while North Dakota under Prohibition increased 202 per cent.

Between 1910 and 1915 South Dakota lost 4,350 people, while North Dakota gained 51,000! The increase of town and city population in South Dakota in twenty years was 168 per cent., while that of its "dry" neighbor jumped 494 per cent.

The increase of wealth in the Prohibition state, between 1890 and 1912, was a trifle less than double that of her rival. Values of the northern state's farm products were greater in proportion than those of any other state in the whole union. From 1898 to 1913 her bank deposits increased by more than 1,000 per cent. Prohibition pays!

How do the rivals compare in regard to employment and production: South Dakota, increase in ten years 87.5 per cent.; the Prohibition state, 205.7 per cent.!

In dry North Dakota, for year 1909, 2,789 men produced, $19,137,000 worth of manufactured goods. In the licensed state it required 3,602—811 more men to produce only $17,870,000 worth of manufactured goods, $1,267,000 less! That is worth reading again.

In 1890 commitments to insane asylums in South Dakota were forty persons per 100,000 less than North Dakota. After twenty years of license they were forty more!

South Dakota has since joined the "dry" column. Twenty-five states now enjoy Prohibition, and nine others are preparing to vote.

"IN THE NAME OF
OUR GOD WE WILL SET UP OUR BANNERS"

(Continued from page nine.) said that a massacre of innocents, children and chilidng mothers, unparalleled since the days of Herod the Great, and ranking in the same catalogue of horror and shame with the like of St. Bartholomew's massacre. He said that the tearing in shreds of honored and binding international laws, and sacred treaties, jeeringly termed "scraps of paper," must cease; the horrors of Louvain, the atrocities of Rethme, the pitiless tragedy of Lusitania, victims engaged in the most abominable outrages by soldiers, the stoned masterpiece of art and sculpture destroyed, the hallowed architecture of the ages ruthlessly raised, on the list is longer and more terrible still, these we have seen, and no longer will we stand by, like Saul in the stoning of Stephen, and stand in passive guilt, to such atrocity. Our republic is awaking out of its lethargy, like a slumbering giant of the west and shaking and testing its limbs for action, and going forth to protect the innocent and to avenge the persecuted and honored and revered to protect the innocent and orphaned, helpless widows and oppressed and enslaved peoples. Wrestling not against flesh and blood alone, against all the grim engines of war, but against the spirit of the mechanism genius of the age in arms and armaments, but against principaliies and against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world and against spiritual wickedness in high places."

This is the truth of the matter, the message of the hour for each of us, whether we serve in uniform and march beneath our flag of freedom, or raise the humble products of field or factory or live more frugally and modestly in our homes and make our sacrifice for suffering in the Cross work and in a thousand other ways.

Justice and truth, freedom and democracy alone live and abidingly endure; doomsday is written, the eternal judgment is decreed as of old upon Persian who was oppressed and crushed for his love of freedom and slavery, for falsehood and iniquity. The silent fateful "Mene Mene, Tekel, Upharsin." (Thou art weighed in the balance and found wanting,) appears to be uttered again in light of need to say to what royal eyes or upon the walls of what imperial palace?

"Our Lord and Master once spoke these clear and suggestive words: 'It must needs be that offenses come'; and surely we have in these brief few years seen our own civilization, earth and justice, against reason and against right, setting back the civilization of the world and amounting almost to a reversal to barbarism. The Divine eyes of old saw the woeful price that must be paid for these offenses, and then pointing to the vast and terrible judgment day his history will point to certain individuals of our own time who are responsible for the misery and carnage of the world-war; Jesus said, 'Woe unto that man who causes others to offend.' And so we may well repeat some such word as that, 'Woe unto that man, that group of men, whoever they may be, czar or emperor or kaiser. Woe to their dynasties and dominions, their sceptres or their souls for this unparalleled suffering and blight of this world, this assault upon civilization.'

The Mailed Fist is covered with immortal shame as the light from the uplifted Cross of the Master streams upon it. Let us be very sure that the word of Paul is not outgrown, 'Be not deceived. God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.' Let kings and their counselors take heed that there is such a thing as God's Justice, and that Divine vengeance and stern and unalterable retribution will come in the secret of the Eternal, though clouds and thick darkness seem round about his throne. The pages of history are full of warnings, and the lesson of old, 'Not in might nor in power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts.' And hand in hand with justice will come war, war upon the inner oligarchs which had blinded and thwarted the people by means of a most one-sided constitution. Nerves Weak
Had Hysterics

Orillia Lady Dies of Her Pitable Condition When the Nerves Gave Way and She Became Sleepless, Irritable and Excited.

Orillia, Ont.—There is an abundance of proof found right here that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is unrivaled as a means of forming new, rich blood and building up the exhausted nervous system.

At this season almost everybody feels the need of a restorative tonic treatment to keep up vitality and ward off the tired, languid feelings. This letter will give you some idea of the splendid results to be obtained by using this great food cure:

Mrs. Percy Moulding, 28 West street, Orillia, Ont., writes:

"Some years ago my nerves got the better of me. I became so bad that on one occasion, during a thunderstorm, I had a severe attack of hysterics. Then I became so weak that I could not sleep, and my nerves became worse. Some nights it would be 1 o'clock before I could get to sleep. Knowing the good results obtained from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I took a few boxes, and gradually I found my nerves becoming steady and my appetite returning. I could sleep well, and stay alone without any difficulty. Some little time ago I commenced losing in weight, and was losing the weight again as a tonic. I used only two boxes, and recovered the weight I had lost. I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and when I see any one looking ill or nervous I say, 'Get busy and use some Nerve Food.'

One box of Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

A Well Known Resident of Port Hawkesbury is Restored to Health and Strength.

One of the best known men in the town of Port Hawkesbury, N. S., is Mr. William Duff. He has been a member of the municipal council for 16 years, chairman of the school board, and held other responsible positions. Mr. Duff's health deteriorated to a point where he was unable to work, and he was soon seen, and no longer with natural man by like Saul in the stoning of Stephen, and stood in passive guilt, to such atrocity. Our republic is awaking out of its lethargy, like a slumbering giant of the west and shaking and testing its limbs for action, and going forth to protect the innocent and the persecuted, the honored and revered to protect the innocent and orphaned, helpless widows and oppressed and enslaved peoples. Few drops of Freezone take all pain and soreness from corns instantly

No humbug! Any corn, whether hard, soft or brittle, will loosen right up and lift off, but shrivels or rather loosens them without even irritating the surrounding skin.

Just think! No pain at all, no noise, no smarting when applying the drops. Try a little and see for yourself. It is surprising.

FILM STARS WHO MAKE MILLION DOLLARS IN YEAR

Charlie Chaplin, Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks

WHAT OTHERS ARE DOING

George M. Cohan, Elsie Ferguson, Geraldine Farrar, Bellie Burke, Marguerite Clark, Theda Bara and Clara Kimball Young Among High Priced Stars

(New York Times.)

He who runs and reads may have observed that the movie actors' salary contest which raged in the newspapers a year or more ago has been settled off late. New contracts have been made and new companies organized, and while there has been no diminution in the size of salaries, no press agent blur about the millions paid to the world's greatest comedians or stars of the movies has made the wiskin ring.

This unwonted silence on the part of the movie makers who so recently were crying from the skyscraper tops the affluence that could pay such enormous salaries was due to the fact that many studios had been organized and that the boards were impressing the legislators who levy taxes, as well as the picture "fans" to whom the figures were addressed. The reaction came in the form of investigations held in various states. One of these in New York last week to determine whether an industry that could afford to pay Charlie Chaplin $670,000 a year might not be capable of paying a special tax. Now a war tax that promises to do its job is given general acceptance, and pending, between the threat of it and the proceedings of the state tax commissions the proverbial camel would pass through the needle's eye more quickly than boastful figures through the lips of a movie magnate.

No inference is intended that an evasion of any tax is contemplated by star or producer; these new money barons have merely adopted the policy of more experienced financiers that even silence is golden when the tax assessors are at work. Having assimilated this axiom the industry has adopted an unwritten rule that salaries of six figures must be discussed exclusively with the recipients and then only in the quietest way. Thus has come into the possession of the public the computing of approximate salaries and of the gentle reader—the estimating of the true figures—been removed. Consider the mental anguish of the publicity men of the new Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, who had to announce the engagement by his company of Maxine Elliott and Mary Garden, or of the feelings of the young man who is paid to act when that same company, without his own name, without a cent of creditable gain over his Gargantuan income.

The reader who has been staggered by the size of the reputed earnings of many movie stars has doubtless wondered how nearly they approach the sum total of all the money which was diverted into the pockets of the players. Shortly after the announcement of Mr. Chaplin's coup Miss Pickford began to show signs of unrest. After her brief return to the speaking stage at the Grand Little Devil Miss Pickford established herself as a great favorite in the photoplays in which she was the star. The famous Players Company starred her. She became, in fact, the most popular screen actress, and when her old contract finally expired she demanded a raise which is said to net her a yearly guarantee of $820,000 and a percentage of the profits from her pictures that probably swells her earnings to the million mark.

Much of the same thing happened to Douglas Fairbanks. When the Triangle Film Corporation began its career with a share of trumps, Mr. Fairbanks, an agreeable young actor unknown to the movies, was engaged for a term of years at a gradually increasing salary that averaged perhaps $2,000 a week. He insisted that he be given the right to inspect his pictures before they were exhibited, and this arrangement, which is practically the same as Miss Pickford's, it is reported that Mr. Fairbanks will receive a guarantee of $820,000 a year and a share of the profits that should bring the figure up to $1,000,000.

Others. These form the Big Three of the movies, but they are by no means the sole recipients of huge stipends. Ever since the movies began to be a factor in important amusement factors the producers have been the contractors, and the contractors to the movie man that makes it the financial marvel it is, the possibility of the shadow of one person appearing in thousands of different places at the one time. One hundred and fifty-five prints of Mr. Chaplin's films are dis-poration had signed a contract with the company, and to receive $10,000 a week, plus fees for his services, with a cash bonus of $100,000 for signing the contract; and a world gasped that a funny walk and a funny kick could earn so much. Mr. Chaplin was photographed in a scene of his picture, and was heading east toward the Metropolitan Tower and thanking President John R. Freuler with his hand on his new employer's shoulder as he gazed south. Then he boarded a special train and went west to begin earning his new salary.

The only ones who didn't gape were the men who hired Chaplin, for they felt certain they would come out ahead. There was nothing philanthropic about their offer; on the contrary, it was based on calculations which showed that they would be well repaid for their investment and daring. It is generally accepted in film circles that Mr. Chaplin's Mutual contract did call for a $10,000 weekly salary, with perhaps a percentage in the profits that would aggregate about half of the original sum, so that if this theory is true there was little discrepancy between the claim and the fact.

As Mr. Feuerle subsequently explained, the transaction was based on figures available from Mr. Chaplin's past record. The demand for a $10,000 weekly salary was the possible revenue, he said, that there was no appreciable diminution in his popularity, from the rental of eight films could be computed.

Mary Pickford

The luck of Mr. Chaplin and the wife of the Mutuals cost the founders a lot of money which was diverted into the pockets of the players. Shortly after the announcement of Mr. Chaplin's coup Miss Pickford began to show signs of unrest. After her brief return to the speaking stage at the Grand Little Devil Miss Pickford established herself as a great favorite in the photoplays in which she was the star. The famous Players Company starred her. She became, in fact, the most popular screen actress, and when her old contract finally expired she demanded a raise which is said to net her a yearly guarantee of $820,000 and a percentage of the profits from her pictures that probably swells her earnings to the million mark.

Much of the same thing happened to Douglas Fairbanks. When the Triangle Film Corporation began its career with a share of trumps, Mr. Fairbanks, an agreeable young actor unknown to the movies, was engaged for a term of years at a gradually increasing salary that averaged perhaps $2,000 a week. He insisted that he be given the right to inspect his pictures before they were exhibited, and this arrangement, which is practically the same as Miss Pickford's, it is reported that Mr. Fairbanks will receive a guarantee of $820,000 a year and a share of the profits that should bring the figure up to $1,000,000.

Others. These form the Big Three of the movies, but they are by no means the sole recipients of huge stipends. Ever since the movies began to be a factor in important amusement factors the producers have been the contractors, and the contractors to the movie man that makes it the financial marvel it is, the possibility of the shadow of one person appearing in thousands of different places at the one time. mathematical calculations; the fact that they get the money they are asking for, and the fact that they earn it for the money they are asking for.

It is the shrewdness of the bargainer as any other man. It is the ubiquitousness of the movie man that makes it the financial marvel it is, the possibility of the shadow of one person appearing in thousands of different places at the one time.

One hundred and fifty-five prints of Mr. Chaplin's films are distributed and shown synchronously and about 80 of Miss Pickford's. These prints work for indefinite periods until they wear out and are renewed, so that by the end of a year there are hundreds of films in circulation. Miss Barrie's "A Picture Story" is another good seller, and some of Miss Plotkin's early pictures enjoy a wide circulation today.

Film rentals are determined by two factors—the age of the film and the size of the theatre and community. Naturally the Pickford first run, which has been a smash hit by millions, would be as valuable as her latest, nor could the manager of the Bijou Dream in Emporia, Kan., a town of 10,000 inhabitants, be expected to pay as much for the privilege of showing it as the manager of the Strand in New York. The Strand and the Rialto have each paid as high as $3,000 for a week's rental of a film, and the prices scale down from this to a few dollars.

The Theatres

It is estimated that there are 15,000 theatres in the United States, exclusive of vaudeville and other theatres in which pictures are shown as a part of a programme, devoted to movies. There have been as many as 17,000 at one time, but the number has last year been down to 15,000,000, which is a fair estimate. Picture houses are scattered all over the country, due to local causes, as it did in New York last summer during the infantile paralysis epidemic, but these losses are quite as often offset by gains in attendance in other places. The general concession operating in the larger cities seems to be that while the movie may have reached the zenith of its popularity they have not passed it. They are at least holding their own, and students of the industry believe they will continue to do so as long as the standard of excellence is maintained. The standard has risen steadily, as the world and his wife now go to see the pictures.

On the other hand, it is pointed out, the movie public can never be much greater except as the world's population increases, because the world and his wife now go to see the pictures.

A Difficulty Solved

Webster defines a Razor as "A sharp-edged instrument used for shaving," but failed to specify the method of keeping it sharp.

The Invention of the AutoStrop Razor has provided a precise method of keeping its blades in perfect condition for shaving.

To renew the edge you need only insert the strop through the head of the Razor, and the stropping of the blade is at once automatic.

The edge is renewed for each shave and daily improves with use.

Try it without cost by asking your dealer to lend you an AutoStrop Safety Razor on approval. You will like it so well that you will gladly pay for it.

You may return the Razor without further obligation if its service is not totally and unusually satisfactory.

If your dealer cannot supply you, write to us.

RUSSIAN ARMY WANTS BETTER WAR EQUIPMENT

Delegates From Front Declare Soldiers Willing to Fight For Common Cause, But Deem Conditions

Petrograd, June 1.—The congress of delegates from the front, after a debate on the war, has unanimously voted the following resolutions:

"First, the army in the fields declares that it is indispensable to take every measure to put an end as quickly as possible to the internal carnage and procure peace without annexation or indemnities, without the loss of territory, all nations to dispose of themselves, proclaiming at the same time the watchword, 'Whoever wishes for peace must prepare for war!'

Second, the army, pointing out that the Russian soldiers have been fighting harder under conditions infinitely worse than those of the allies, that the Russian soldier has had to march almost unprotected against the enemy's bullets and break with bare arms the barbed wire entanglements, which the army and the country prepared for the artillery preparation, declares that the Russian front must be provided with munitions and everything necessary to maintain the principle, 'the more metal the less gun powder.'

In conclusion the congress declares that the army appeals to all to whom free Russia is dear to rally around the Council of Soldiers' and Workmen's delegates and the provisional government to permit "adventurers to let the army become masure for foreign fields."

ENGLAND EXPERIMENTS IN WATER TRANSPORT

London, May 12.—(Correspondence)—The first stage of a striking experiment in water transport was completed with the arrival in London the other day of two barges laden with coal from collieries in the north of England. The barges were propelled for 160 miles by a detachable motor.

The new service consists of a four-cylinder 17-horse-power marine engine capable of hauling two boats with a load of 100 tons. It is mounted on the top of the cabin and controlled from the helm. Petrol is employed for starting, and paraffin when running. The engine and attachments can be transhipped from one barge to another in a few minutes, and it is stated that its use means economy in time and money by comparison with towing by horses.

HUN ATTACHES KEEP THEIR SUBS INFORMED

U. S. Permits Many of Former Remain at Large in Washington

(Fredericton Mail)

Washington, June 1.—The announcement by Secretary Daniels of secret German agents giving advance information concerning the arrival of American destroyer forces in the war zone has focused attention of diplomats here on the fact that the United States is permitting certain diplomatic and naval attaches to remain in Washington and enjoy all the privileges of diplomatic immunity and secret code messages to Europe.

These alien enemies, including one of the most expert of Count von Bernstorff's former aides, have simply been transferred to the Swiss and Swedish Legations. The State Department has called attention to the danger of this situation, but the Department of Justice has simply replied that "the men had been engaged and were believed to be harmless."

Diplomats, including one official of a neutral legation, have expressed surprise that this situation is tolerated.

PATRIOTIC NOTES

(Fredericton Mail)

Mr. Young, M.P.P., has not asked any questions in the House since the Humble and Pond affidavits were read by Mr.

Vincent.

In the discussion on a bill in the legislature yesterday, Hon. Mr. Byrne pointed out that since the close of the fiscal year on October 31 last, over $4,000 had been paid to Mr. Baxter as commissions on succession duties. In 1915 the then attorney-general was paid $5,000 for this service.

The opposition in the legislature nevertheless opposed the bill to provide for the appointment of diplomatic attachés.

Their action was rather surprising in view of the well known fact that the old government had promised to create such a position for T. J.

Carter, ex-M.P.P., in the event of it being returned to power. The old government also failed to increase the salaries of the members of the executive and to abolish the attorney-general's commission on succession duties.

The present government will abolish the commissions, but the members of the executive are to get no increase of salary.
