TEMPERANCE COLUMN.

By the Women's Christian Temperance Union of St. John.

Trust the people—the wise and the ignorant, the good and the bad—with the gravest questions, and in the end you educate the race.

Pasadena, California, April 10, 1896.—The present week is a week of women's conventions in the "land of sunshine." In the city of Los Angeles the woman's suffrage association is in convention, while here in Pasadena the W. C. T. U. is holding its county convention in the Baptist church, which is beautifully decorated for the occasion.

The county treasurer reported that the W. C. T. U. of Los Angeles county has a membership of 722. She announced that $700 was collected during the past year for carrying on the work. Monrovia and Duarte had done especially well, $5 being raised for each member belonging to the union of those towns. The corresponding secretary gave her report, which embraced all the unions in the county; its general tenor was hopeful and in every department indications are being made for the laying of the foundation.

Rev. Father Ryan (B. A. '89) of St. Mary's, N. B., spent yesterday at the college.

VANCOUVER FIRE.

Vancouver, April 22.—A small house on Prior street occupied by Samuel McColl and family was destroyed by fire this morning and a baby boy, six months old, burned to death. Both parents were absent and the ten year old daughter was in charge of the baby and two brothers, seven and five. The girl went out to play and in her absence the boys made a fire in the cooking stove with coal oil. The oil, which had run over the floor, became ignited, and dazed with fear the boys ran out of the house screaming, forlorn in their excitement of the baby. The house was in flames when help arrived too late to rescue the child.

M'KINLEY FAILS.

Baltimore, April 22.—An unsuccessful attempt was made by the friends of Major McKinley to stampede the Maryland republican state convention held here today in instructing the four delegates at large to vote for him at St. Louis. He failed because the leaders of the party in this state have agreed that the delegations shall go to St. Louis free to act as shall be deemed best after they shall have looked over the field, and resolutions having this end in view were adopted by a decisive vote. The convention declared for protection and for a gold standard in a platform noticeable for its brevity.

OSMAN DIGNA'S DEFEAT.

Saukin, April 22.—Spies report that Osman Digna's forces have been demoralized by their recent defeat and number have dispersed to the hills. Osman Digna had over a hundred killed and a hundred wounded in the defeat. Osman is furious against the friendly Arabs who assisted the Egyptians.

AGAINST THE WOMEN.

Baltimore, Md., April 22.—Complete returns received from the Methodist and Episcopal conferences show that the Baltimore proposition to make women eligible as lay delegates to the general conference has been defeated by only eighteen votes.

PORTLAND.

Vessels Not Compelled to Take Pilots When Entering Port.

The Labor Question Has No Terrors for Steamship Men—All Work Together in Harmony.

Some Facts About the Income and Debt of the City and its Public Schools—Compulsory Attendance and Higher Education versus the Common Schools.

(Special Correspondence of The Sun.) Portland, Me., April 21.—Compulsory pilotage does not exist in this port is concerned, and masters can exercise their own discretion whether they take a pilot or not. So easy is the entrance that only a short time ago a captain on his first voyage to Portland brought his large vessel right up to the wharf without any local assistance. The harbor lies on the south side of the city, and there is a rise and fall of about ten feet of tide. There is secure anchorage within a mile of the shore. The port charges are light and are only such as are common to all American harbors. Connected with the harbor is a white, as remarked in a previous letter, the wharfage rates are a matter of private bargain between the respective owners of the piers and of the steamships. There is a dry dock, but it is little used. It, however, forms one of the essential parts of modern equipment of a first class port and stands there ready for any emergency. The harbor is a matter of constant demand during the winter season is owned by the Grand Trunk railway, by which corporation it was built, the city of Portland is the owner of its construction. The elevator barges, too, are a matter of private contract between its owners and the steamship lines and just what rate is fixed depends very largely on the circumstances attending each particular transaction.

The Grand Trunk railway has made Portland what it is in a commercial sense. Connected with the railway in 1842 and with Montreal eleven years later, it has grown and thrived on the business it has acquired as the great winter port of Canada. Denied of the business of grain and lumber for lines, the port would be reduced to a slim figure so far as trans-Atlantic sailings are concerned, for there is no local deal trade to fall back on in the case of a strike.

Tracts from the customs returns of the port will make this fact very clear. In 1891, there were entered at Portland as engaged in foreign trade 140 vessels of 39,800 tons, and 1,019 were sail and 31 steam vessels. Out of the 31 steamers with a total of 71,286 tons, 30 totaling 70,271 tons, sailed for foreign ports, and of the 109 sailing vessels, only 27 were American. In 1892, '93, '94 and '95, not a single American steamer engaged in trans-Atlantic trade entered the port, as against 166 British steamers of 378,855 tons. Of the sailing vessels, 109 were British, 109 were American, and 109 were foreign ports. There were but 215 of 28,295 tons flying the American flag as against 320 British and other foreign vessels of 627,110 tons. In 1896 (this is during the fiscal year ending June 30th) there were entered at Portland from the United Kingdom 25 steamers of 68,743 tons and only one sailing vessel of 964 tons, the latter in ballast, while there were cleared for the United Kingdom in the same period two sailing vessels of 1,778 tons and 32 steamers of 70,774 tons.

The volume of Canadian imports at Portland is a most important factor in the business of that port. In the year ending June 30th, 1895, that is, in the winter of '94-'95, there was $4,538,474 worth of goods imported from the ocean via this port, and the figures of the season now about to close will largely exceed that amount. In the year last mentioned, according to the returns of the customs, there were cleared through the United States, of which Boston handled fully as much as Portland. The imports into Canada through the ports of the United States, the reports of the revenue, so that it is safe to say that the United States handles some $40,000,000 worth of our trade that could be largely diverted through the ports of St. John and Halifax.

The labor question is one that possesses no terrors for Portlanders or the steamships that frequent this port. Some years ago there was more or less friction, but whatever troubles then existed have been threshed out and employe and employer now work together in harmony. Thirty cents per hour for day time and 50 cents per hour for night labor is the scale of remuneration that now obtains, with extra, in fact, double pay on Sundays, and the union is content with these figures. There are no vexatious regulations as to hours and parts of work, the number of men to be employed at a time, etc. These things are matters of agreement and, as one of the most prominent members of the labor society said to the writer: "We have to work hard while we're at it, but the pay is good and it's right in your fist." The supply of labor is fully equal to the demand at the busiest season, and at other times considerably in excess of it.

The warehouse arrangement of the Grand Trunk wharves are such as to afford the speediest handling of cargoes. The warehouses are in tiers or rows, with door-ways, opposite each hatch of the steamer, and with railway tracks bi-sectioning each warehouse, they being in double rows. The trons are likewise laid down along the piers so that freight can be put directly aboard the steamers with the least possible labor.

Portland is the smallest town in the state of Maine in superficial area. It occupies a peninsula three miles long and three-quarters of a mile wide in Casco bay, exclusive of many islands and peninsulas. Its area is two and three-quarters square miles. It has 17 miles of streets, 47 miles of brick sidewalks, 37 miles of paved gutters, and 17 miles of sewers, of which 17 miles are cement pipe and 1-2 miles brick; also 761 catch basins. Its population is estimated at 40,000 (it was 39,585, according to the last city census), of whom some 11,000 are scholars of school age.

The valuation of real estate, according to the latest available official returns, was $24,520,000, and of personal estate, $13,026,000, a total of $37,546,000. The rate of taxation is twenty dollars on the thousand. It is worthy of note that twenty years ago the rate of taxation was $24.50 per thousand dollars; the valuation of real estate was but $15,422,300 and that of personal estate about $600,000 higher than it was last year.

The income of the city in the year 1895 from all sources was $1,390,067, of which $738,240, or 53 per cent, was derived from taxation. The total city debt on March 31st, 1894, was $2,794,750, but by March 31st, 1895, it had been reduced to $2,761,050. The income of $1,397,000 was incurred in subsidizing and assisting the Portland and Ogdensburg railway and against which it holds 23,500 shares of that railway's stock, which at the market value, say $50 per share, form an asset of $1,175,000. There will fall due before the present date and July 1st, 1897, P. and O. bonds to the amount of $545,000. The indebtedness was incurred on Portland's part in reaching out to get its share of the Portland and Ogdensburg railway and to strengthen its hold upon that of Upper Canada.

Portland takes great pride in its public schools. The total school appropriations for the past municipal year were $126,690, of which two-thirds went for salaries and one-third for maintenance, heating, fuel, bookkeeping, etc. The average number of pupils belonging to the schools was as follows:

Table with 2 columns: School level and Number of pupils. High school: 635; Grammar schools: 1460; Primary schools: 2800; Kindergarten: 73; Total: 4876.

The average number of pupils belonging to all grades was 4,676, and the average cost per pupil for teachers' salaries was as follows: High school: $26.55; Grammar schools: 17.92; Primary schools: 12.57; Kindergarten: 7.92.

The state school law makes it compulsory on the city to supply textbooks for the pupils. The law was passed seven years ago, and a sufficient opportunity has been given to observe its workings. According to the reports of the Portland board of education, the cost of the books issued, "the most that can be said in its favor is that the books in the aggregate have probably cost somewhat less than if bought by the city, and that since the law was passed, there has been an increased attendance in the high school which may be a result, the books in that school being more expensive than in the lower grades. It is, however, not the fact that the cost of the books has increased because the city provides the books, and all the reasons urged against the new system are believed to have been proved false by actual experience. The common use of books does tend to spread contagious diseases and many of the books have been burned the past year in those schools where cases of diphtheria existed. The sense of proprietorship in books is lost, and the child does not possess what he afterwards would highly prize, the books he studied at school. In many homes the little libraries the children have roomed are now wholly wanting." The city appropriated $2,558 last year for the purchase of text books, but the sum actually expended was $7,419, covering books bought for the purpose of excess of the city's grant.

An act of the state provides for the compulsory school attendance of children between 8 and 15 years at least 12 weeks per year, under severe penalties, and the Portland truancy officer appears to have been kept pretty busy in the discharge of his duties. According to his report for 1894-'95, he investigated over 3,600 cases, visited over 3,000 families, took back 15 pupils to school under arrest, while 51 returned without the formality of being arrested, and furnished 156 with clothing supplied by the provident association and other charitable sources to enable them to attend school. But one pupil was committed to the state reform school.

An evening school is one of the features of Portland's educational system and it is doing good work. The board say in their report for 1895-'96 on this subject: "No one can doubt the great value of the evening schools and the advisability of furnishing instruction to all those who are disposed to avail themselves of the privilege of learning the common branches. Many persons of foreign birth in this way make up for deficiencies of their youth spent in less favored surroundings, are helped over the difficulties of our language and made more useful citizens. Night schools where there is need result from waste or lack of opportunities it is the duty of the public to provide for all such as have the ambition and inclination to learn reading, writing and arithmetic. The school is good for those that give and those that receive, for teaching becomes a pleasure instead of drudgery when scholars are keen and eager for knowledge."

One point that is steadily forcing itself upon public attention in other places as well as Portland is the tendency to build up "higher education" at the expense of the common school.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder ABSOLUTELY PURE

The trustees in this year's report remark, when treating of the high school:

"The many have given generously of their means for the education of a favored few, believing that from the higher education of those few there comes a general benefit. But costly as this school is, it is likely to become more costly. Whenever it is necessary to supply the place of one who has been educated, the committee are made aware of the fact that those competent to teach the higher mathematics, the classics, languages and the sciences demand and can get liberal salaries."

"However much our citizens may take pride in the high school and find the considerable expense in maintaining it justified by the benefits of the higher education given to a larger number of the youth of the city, we should not forget that the common schools are the bone and sinew of our public school system. It is our duty to see to it that every child in this city is able to read, write and perform the simple processes of arithmetic. One whose knowledge and culture gave him a commanding position among the graduates of the high school said that the possession of such acquirements made a man educated. Since free high schools came into general existence in this state it may be safely said that the number of those while the common schools have been starved. Let us not neglect our foundations in our care for our superstructure."

DEATH OF GEORGE MUNRO.

The Millionaire Publisher of New York, a Native of Nova Scotia.

Halifax, April 22.—President Forrest of Dalhousie college received a telegram tonight announcing the sudden death of George Munro, the millionaire New York publisher. Seventy years ago George Munro was born at Mill Brook, Pictou county, Nova Scotia, the lit of a farmer and received a liberal education. Munro was a good teacher, and for some time was on the staff of the old Free Church academy in this city. He was a member of the Presbyterian church, and his name is on the roll of graduates of the Halifax Presbyterian college. But he was never licensed to preach. He went to New York and started the publishing business, making the Seaside library famous and creating a fortune for himself. His beneficence to Dalhousie college have been on a grand scale. Five children have been endowed by him at a cost of $200,000, and he gave $100,000 more in bursaries and scholarships. Two years ago he retired from active business. George Munro was twice married, his second wife being a sister of President Forrest, and one of his daughters the wife of President Schourman of Cornell college. One of his brothers, Walter Munro, still lives on the old homestead in Pictou county.

The convocation of Dalhousie takes place on Tuesday, and Geo. Munro's death will probably give it the character of a memorial service.

BRITISH AFFAIRS.

The Negotiations With the United States Regarding Venezuela.

Norfolk and Suffolk Farmers Ask the Government to Withdraw the Cattle Disease Bill.

London, April 22.—The secretary of state for the colonies, Joseph Chamberlain, announced for house of commons today that the reply President Kruger to the invitation sent him to visit England was now on its way to the latter country.

Replying to another question, Mr. Chamberlain said that the West Indian colonies had represented to Great Britain the importance of improving telegraph communication to Great Britain for the purpose of imperial defence and commerce, and the government was now considering proposals which it was hoped would lead long to the laying of a sub-marine cable.

The under secretary of state for foreign affairs, Geo. M. Curzon, answering a question in the house of commons today, said that the negotiations with the United States regarding Venezuela were proceeding, and it was not advisable to make a statement on the subject until they were concluded. Mr. Curzon also said that the government unquestionably hoped for a favorable termination of the Venezuelan negotiations.

A deputation of farmers and grazers from Norfolk and Suffolk waited upon Walter Long, president of the board of agricultural, today to urge the government to abandon the Cattle Disease Bill, which aims to regulate the importation of cattle from Canada. The deputation contended that there is no disease in Canadian cattle and no risk in their importation.

Mr. Long's reply was unpromising. He said it was useless to send a commission to Canada. The question was not whether the disease existed, but the character of it. The government had reason to believe that British breeders were already taking steps to meet extra demands. The government had acted in the interest of the farmers generally.

THE RESCUE HOME.

Salvation Army Annual Meeting in Leinster Street Baptist Church.

The Speeches of Brigadier Scott, Ensign Jost, Mr. Teasdale and Others.

(Daily Sun, April 24.)

The Salvation Army annual meeting of the Rescue Home was held last night in Leinster street Baptist church school room. There was a very large attendance.

In addition to the Salvation Army officers and soldiers a number of ladies and gentlemen interested in the Rescue Home were present. On the platform with the chairman, Brigadier Scott, who has charge of the Salvation Army work in the lower provinces, were Mrs. Hay, Mrs. MacMichael, Mrs. McNichol, Adj. Bradley, Mrs. Scott, Ensign Jost and other Army officers.

The meeting opened with the singing of a hymn, after which Adj. Gage and Mrs. Scott, both in prayer. Brigadier Scott in his opening address spoke of the object the meeting had in view and generally of the work of the Rescue Home. Among those present and those working in the interior of the home, he said, were people of many denominations, who had joined hands in this great work of carrying out Christ's commands. He asked for their sympathy and support. He did not think it was necessary to speak of the need of such an institution as a Rescue Home; they all knew there was a need. At present there was a cry going up that reached all the ears of the murdered Armenians, whose wives and daughters were being subjected to such fearful deeds of violence and outrage; there was a great need of assistance here, and so it was with the Rescue Home, they need the same assistance. It was estimated that there are one million fallen women in the civilized world, one million souls that could be won back to Christ. They have sixty rescue homes in the world, and on an average 3,000 pass through these homes yearly. Of these eighty-five per cent turn out satisfactorily. Last year in England alone 156 women passed through the homes. Of these 1,276 were satisfactory and 281 were unsatisfactory.

Identifying of Fairville followed the brigadier with a letter, and so it was Ensign Jost then gave an outline of the work during the year, and told of a few cases that claimed special attention from her. During the past year, she said, 34 women have passed through the home. Of these, 18 have procured situations, 2 returned to friends, 1 is in the hospital, 7 were unsatisfactory, and six are yet in the home. The figures don't tell the whole story, she said, but the history of those 34 hearts amounts to a good deal. Every one of them is a soul that Jesus died for, and by that death they can be saved, and we hope are saved. The thing many people don't realize is the varied and many temptations thrown in the path of these poor girls, who are in the most part homeless, and working for a living. People don't see this and don't feel for these poor women who have fallen.

The followed a long account of her work in Newfoundland.

After some music by a string orchestra, Mrs. McNichol, who watched over the infants' home until it was closed recently for want of financial assistance, spoke of the very pressing need of the home and the good work accomplished in it.

Rev. Mr. Teasdale spoke briefly of the home work and urged all present to contribute generously to the collection.

Mrs. MacMichael representing the order of the King's Daughters and Sons, assured them of their hearty sympathy and told some plain facts of the work of the King's Daughters.

She told of the efforts of the King's Daughters to provide some sort of a home or club for working girls and their limited success. She complimented the army on their success and attributed it to the fact that where the King's Daughters had to hire some one to work for them, the members of the army did the work themselves. What love cannot do, money can never do.

Brigadier Jost then said that he desired Ensign Jost to express the sincere thanks of the army to Mr. and Mrs. Bullock for their recent gift to the home.

Ensign Jost then read the financial report for the year ending last September. The total receipts were $679.77 and the expenditures about the same.

NATURAL HISTORY SOCIETY.

The interesting lecture last evening by Dr. Cox on Extinct Birds was well attended and much enjoyed by those present. The doctor gave a brief explanation of the organs used in swimming, tracing their evolution from lower to higher forms...

The early types of birds were of the multiple type, that is, they united in one bird characteristic, which now are specialized in separate species. Of this type were the winged dinosaurs, generally as the Dodo and Solitaire, which have now become extinct.

The first referred to which has become extinct in historic times, was the Great Auk, which was extinct in Iceland in 1844. It used to be very abundant along our shores from Newfoundland to Virginia...

The Dodo, which existed on the island of Mauritius up till the sixteenth century, has so utterly disappeared that all there is to show that it ever existed is an old oil painting said to be a very good representation of the bird and a few bones which have been dug up from the island.

In concluding, the doctor asked the question, "Why is it that certain birds, as in the case of the Labrador Duck, have disappeared, apparently without sufficient reason?"

It turns out that the War Cry was responsible for the row in the Booth family.

Turner & McClellan's steam saw mill at Riverside started on Monday for the season's work.

Messrs. Atkinson's steam mill is in operation in New Ireland.

C. Archie Moore, teacher at Forest Glen, and Donald Moore, who has been attending the commercial college at Halifax, were called home on account of the illness of their mother, who is very low with paralysis and heart trouble.

There is very much sickness at the present time in the surrounding villages, and the doctors are unusually busy.

Grippe has made its appearance at Albert.

Mrs. Wm. Stiles of Riverside is suffering from chronic lung trouble, her condition being considered serious.

Mrs. J. S. Allen of Richibouctou, wife of Rev. J. S. Allen, is making an extended visit among her old friends here at Halifax.

Miss Annie E. Peck, assistant in the Hill post office, left on Thursday on a visit to Boston.

The recent Scott act case against Mrs. Dorcas Downing, which had many interesting features in itself, has been the cause of several other cases of a different character, not the least interesting of which is that against Lavina Decker of this place, which is now being tried at Albert.

Lavina, who is housekeeper for C. N. O'Regan, one of the prospective witnesses in the Scott act case, is charged with aiding O'Regan in escaping from the hands of Constable D. W. Stuart and driving the constable from the house with an axe.

From reliable reports the Seventh Day Adventists, who have been holding forth at Hopewell Cape all winter, have found a fruitful field at the shiretown for sowing the seeds of the Adventist doctrine, and have made many proselytes among the village folk.

The new adherents by their changed mode of living and disregard of the Christian Sabbath have caused no little commotion. The usual quiet of the Sabbath is broken by the noise of the artisan's hammer and saw, the housewife hanging the week's washing out to dry in the Sabbath breeze, and work of all kinds, in a certain portion of the village, proceeds in the ordinary way.

It is said that a considerable session has been created among the members of families, and many law abiding citizens greatly regret the innovations whose effects are, it would appear, proving so detrimental to the prosperity and happiness of the community.

The death of Peter Duffy, councillor of Hillsboro, which occurred a few days ago, was heard with much regret by his many friends here. Mr. Duffy was one of the best known residents of this county, and among his many other good qualities of heart and life was a life long prohibitionist.

A short time ago elected president of the Albert county prohibition convention. It was while acting as chairman of the public meeting in connection with this convention at Albert that he contracted a severe cold that resulted in his death. Mr. Duffy was a deacon of the Hillsboro Baptist church for many years, and was in every way a man of refinement, intelligence and uprightness of character.

Since the establishment of the County News at Hillsboro, Albert county has again two newspapers within its boundary. The publisher, E. M. Brewster, who also runs a well equipped job office, has shown considerable pluck and enterprise, and deserves to succeed. Mr. Brewster is probably the youngest newspaper publisher in the province.

John Lord of Knoxford has recently purchased the property near Tracy's Mills, recently owned by the late James Adams, to which he has moved his family.

Those engaged in the sugar making business have had a good season, with encouraging results.

Stores, millinery and dressmaking establishments are well stocked with the needful, waiting for cash customers.

Mrs. Charles Margison of Knoxford has been obliged to go to St. John seeking relief for deafness, with which she has been afflicted. It came on gradually, without any apparent cause.

The spring rains and deep frosts have left the roads in almost impassable condition. This has caused a cessation in trade, which with the low price of produce, especially potatoes, does not give an encouraging prospect for the near future.

Mary, wife of William Simpson, and daughter of James Buchanan, died at Glasville on the 14th inst., of pneumonia, leaving a family of six children to feel the loss of a kind parent. Peace be to her soul.

And obliging to all with whom she associated, her death will be missed in the community and family circle.

Deacon G. W. Curry is still confined to his house. His many friends hope that the return of warm weather will bring a return of his strength and restore him again to the family, the community and the Baptist church, of which he is a worthy member.

In March last Mrs. Stephen Nichols fell on the ice and broke her leg. Being 75 years of age, the shock caused a return of heart trouble, ending in death. She was buried in Bloomfield cemetery, Rev. J. Cahill officiating.

Deceased with her husband came from Digby, N. S., 40 years ago, and settled in the parish of Simonds (now Wilmot), at that time in a wilderness state, where by hard work and economy a good home was made. In that early day schools and churches were not known in that section, but as settlers came in the people supplied this want, and now the settlement called Digby is second to none in the county. She leaves an aged husband and four children to mourn her loss.

Mrs. Geo. Foster died on the 9th inst. and was buried in the Baptist cemetery, Rev. J. Cahill officiating. Deceased was the wife of the late George Foster, who died two years ago. For many years this aged couple lived in this village, quiet, unassuming and respected by all. Their only daughter, and well carried out by the late George Foster, died three years ago. Three sons are left to mourn the loss of a sister and parent. The deceased was 75 years of age and was the daughter of the late Joseph York of Victoria corner, and a member of the Free Christian Baptist church.

Lakeville, April 20.—A. B. Carvell & Sons have an average supply of lumber to save this year. The mill has been running for some time. The shingle machine was started last week. About six men are employed. Besides hauling for the mill they got out about 200 cords of lumber this year.

Wm. Wilson has been renovating his house, and Colin King has a carpenter and plasterer to work.

Wm. Page, whose house was burned last fall, is preparing to build again. There are several drag saw and circular machines around cutting up fire wood.

Hartland, April 17.—The ice made a move this morning and jammed at the point some miles back. The water is away over the banks and into the stables and cellars. During the process of jamming the derrick supporting the ferry wire was thrown down and one of the ferry boats was smashed to kindlings. The loss to the owner will be heavy, while the inconvenience to the public will be very great. Efforts are being made to secure aid from the government with the prospect of running a free ferry.

A. H. Sawyer's mill has been running full blast for some time until today, when it was considered imprudent to take any more logs out of the jam, lest it should give way.

The freight export business at this point now exceeds any previous time.

Newburg Junction, April 18.—Wm. Cummins has gone to Boston to purchase a cork leg and to have it fitted there. He lost his leg by an accident some years ago.

Geo. Downey got one of his legs badly jammed on Wednesday by twisting logs, but no bones were broken. Maple syrup is being made in large quantities here this spring.

Miss Minnie Owens returned on Thursday from Boston, where she spent the winter.—A number of young men left on Thursday for Bangor to work at stream-driving.—Manzer Downey has the position of engineer in J. F. Richardson's mill.

Tracy Mills, April 17.—The sudden rise of water and the ice have worked havoc in this place. Last fall J. W. Adams & Son put in a stone dam a few feet below their old wooden one, but did not shut the flood-gate, so when the water came the flume in the old dam broke, and the ice, logs and driftwood piled through and tore the dam completely to pieces.

The stone threw rods or more down the stream, and carrying away 300 feet of the raceway that carried the water from the dam to the mill. Messrs. Adams have already begun to fix up the raceway and will make connection with the old flume so as to be ready to take wood by the 10th of May.

Reynard Wheeler has moved into the house of the late Theodore Carlie.

Woodstock, April 20.—A meeting of the board of trade on Friday evening, the following were elected new members: Ham & Smith, Balmal Bros., A. Dowd & Hawshaw. After a debate of some length the board decided in favor of affiliation with the Maritime Board. During the discussion the C. P. R. in its relation to the people of Woodstock came in for some criticism.

J. T. A. Dibblee, M. P. P., contended that the Beaver line, using St. John as a winter port, had conferred no benefit on this county, since the C. P. R. got tied up whatever they were to be secured. This company charged more for a load of freight from Woodstock to any point north than from St. Stephen to the same point, and so ruled Woodstock merchants out from competing with St. Stephen. By the action of the C. P. R. a St. Stephen dealer could undersell by 50c. on a load of coal shipped to any point north of Woodstock. Rates from Woodstock to Hartland were higher than from St. John to Hartland. He was inclined to doubt if the Maritime Board would be disposed to aid in remedying this unfair burden.

W. Fisher of the Small & Fisher Co., vice-president of the board, said that he had the same difficulty in his business. He had tried to sell stoves at Edmundston, but found that while he could quote prices as low as the St. John firms, the St. John merchant had a rate of 16 cents to Edmundston while he had to pay 48 cents. True, he had recently secured a rate of 32 cents, but this was double what the St. John men had to pay.

An important matter relating to the advisability of exempting certain new industries from taxation was made and discussed, but finally referred to the council of the board. The next meeting of the board will be the evening of the first of May.

The past few days have been engaged at the police court in the trial of Scott act cases against Mrs. Gould, John McDougall and Jas. Doherty. In the last case the informant is a man named Eric Mikson, who recently came from France Isle, Me. He says that on certain days near and including the first of the month, intoxicating liquor was sold him by the parties accused. An emphatic denial to the charge was given by John McDougall and Jas. Doherty, both of whom went on the stand and claimed that the man had not been in their places of business at all. Judgment has been reserved until Monday.

Rev. H. E. Dibblee, of Marguerville takes Archdeacon Neale's duty today.

The railway bridge at Upper Woodstock was not damaged as seriously at first thought. One of the piers was somewhat knocked out, but repairs have been made so that trains can pass on all right.

CHARLOTTE CO.

Grand Manan, April 18.—The cold weather still prevails, but the appearance of the swallow reminds us that summer is not far distant.

A social entertainment was given in the hall at Grand Harbor on Friday evening under the auspices of members of St. Paul's church. The programme, which consisted of readings and recitations, vocal and instrumental music, was an interesting one, and well carried out by the entertainers. Refreshments were served. A most enjoyable time was spent by all. Proceeds amounted to thirteen dollars.

The lobster fishing season has commenced, but the prospect so far is not very encouraging. The fish are scarce and the prices are low. The canning factory at Grand Harbor is about commencing its operations next week.

Councillor W. Dehl McLaughlin arrived home on Tuesday afternoon with his new yacht, Ouida, which was built at Deer Island, the designer and builder being George Richardson, whose fame as a boat builder is well known around the Bay of Fundy. The Ouida is a beautiful craft, and without doubt has the handsomest boat of her class that has been brought to Grand Manan. She will carry fifteen tons, is 47 feet over all, with a keel of 26 feet, and a 13-1/2 foot beam and 5 foot hold. Her mast is 48 feet, boom 34 feet and gaff 26 feet, and carries 200 yards of canvas. She has two cabins, fore and aft, and is Irish rigged, the rigging being done by Capt. Jas. W. Leonard, which is a sufficient guarantee for the excellence of the work. For neatness and strength she is all that skill and material could make her. Her hull is painted white, and her broad spread of canvas not only gives her great speed, but an excellent appearance. The boat is a great credit both to builder and owner. Councillor McLaughlin took a trip up the St. Croix before leaving her to the island.

No. 5, met it at the train and formed a procession and preceded it to All Saints church, where the beautiful rite of the Episcopal church was performed by the Rev. Canon Ketchum, D. After the service was concluded, the procession was re-formed and proceeded to the cemetery, where the concluding rites of the burial service were performed by Dr. Ketchum. He was a member and spiritual director of Chatham branch of the C. M. B. A. By his kindly disposition Rev. Father Knight endeared himself to a very large number of people, all of whom sincerely regret his demise.

Amherst, April 22.—A report was given last night that the manager of the Hotel de la Reine had been found dead in his room. The cause of death is not yet known.

The funeral took place at 10 o'clock at the Palmer burying ground, Central Hamstead. The deceased was a farmer of Hamstead. He held the office of collecting justice for the parish of Hamstead for a few years.

Salmon Creek, April 23.—The river has been clear of ice for some time. A heavy squall passed over this locality on Monday, laying many of the fences low and doing considerable damage in other ways.

BE CAREFUL WITH THAT LAMP!

I sincerely hope that Mrs. Filmer has abandoned the custom of keeping an oil lamp burning in her room at night. She does not know what the necessity was, but I trust it no longer exists. If possible to avoid it, no light should burn in a room wherein people are sleeping. The reasons ought to be plain enough, but we all need lessons in common caution. This lady had hers, and was fortunate in coming out of the affair as well as she did.

Writing about it, she says: "It was the summer of 1886, not long after the death of my husband. I had been in my room for convenience during the night. One night I accidentally overturned the lamp, and a blaze kindled in an instant. Terrified, I ran out of my wits, I sprang from bed, seized the burning articles and ran down stairs with them just in time to prevent further disaster. Happily for me, I escaped with slight burns, but not from consequences of another kind."

"The right and stoic quiet prostrated me. Do what I would, after the danger was over, I was unable to banish the subject from my thoughts. My nerves seemed completely unstrung, and I rapidly grew feeble, excitable and debilitated. My appetite failed, and I had no relish for any ordinary food. There was a bad taste in my mouth, headache, distress after eating, loss of flesh and ambition, with a disposition to worry and fret over things which, when I was well, had no influence with me whatever. I sought to build up my strength with beef tea and other nutritious and digestible forms of diet, without success."

"The doctors whom I consulted said I was suffering from nervous debility and weakness. They gave me prescriptions, which the chemist made up for me; but they had no effect, and what I suffered I have no words to tell. My health appeared to have been broken up suddenly, as a railway train goes to pieces in a collision. Month after month I struggled with this strange ailment, but could find no remedy to relieve me. Not until January, 1887, did I see my way out of the trouble which followed my adventure of that fearful night."

"At that time (January, 1887), I chanced to come upon a little book about Mother Selge's Syrup, as a cure for indigestion and dyspepsia and the complaints attending it. Letters that were printed in that book from others who had been cured by this remedy, gave me confidence, and I got a bottle from Mr. J. H. Brown, patent medicine dealer, of High street, Margate. After taking it I felt decidedly better. I could eat and digest needed food; my nerves were more under control, and I got better sleep and rest. I will merely add that, feeling sure that Mother Selge's Syrup was helping me, I continued to take it, and eventually recovered my health. For this I thank Mother Selge's Syrup; and if
