SWEARS SID MURRELL ADMITTED SHOOTING

Lloyd George In His New Book Predicts Another War

WITNESS SAYS SID NODDED ASSENT AFTER CAPTURE WHEN HIS BROTHER ASKED: "DID YOU DO THE SHOOTING"

"You Shot My Brother," Declared Campbell On Fatal Day.

WITNESS MADE BET

Robinson Admits Laying "Two to One" Sid Would Be Hanged.

"Two to one Murrell hangs."

This is the bet Burley Robinson, crown witness, made with a fellow worker at Leonard's boiler works, named Graydon, he admitted under cross-examination on the witness-stand at the fall asszies today.

All the crown evidence in the case against Sid Murrell and Slim Williams, charged with murdering Russell Campbell at Melbourne during the bank robbery of April, 1921, is not expected to be in tonight. It will be Thursday night at least before the case gets to the jury.

Both Murrell and Williams are standing up under the strain, neither of them showing the least sign of emotion when evidence against them is given by two or three witnesses corroborating each other.

Robert E. Campbell, implement agent, declared that when accused of killing Russell Campbell by the victim's brother, Stuart Murrell answered: "I'm not denying it. I fired five shots." Other witnesses corroborated this evidence.

But Campbell provided the climax of the morning evidence when he positively stated Sid had admitted the killing to his brother, William, while the two were captives at Melbourne on the day of the robbery.

Says Sid Nodded.

"Did you do the shooting?" William Murrell was said to have asked. Sid, witness declared, nodded affirmatively.

"You fool," his brother is reported to have remarked.

Then, Campbell declared, the three prisoners whispered to each other.

When Burley Robinson admitted to M. Donahue, defence counsel, that made the bet, Mr. Donahue re-ked: "That's all; I don't think jury wants to hear any more."

urrell's father and mother were rt this morning. The father d to be more worried than the son. The strain seemed to be telling on the parent. The mother, too, appeared to be breaking under the terrible suspense.

When court adjourned at noon, Crown Prosecutor T. J. Rigney spoke to the prisoners as they stood in the dock, while guards were attending to their shackles.

Murrell smiled at the crown. It was a natural smile, with not a bit of derision in it.

Murrell is conducting himself well in court. Were it not for the fact that he is surrounded by a group of guards one would hardly identify him as one of the prisoners. His demeanor is more like that of a deeply interested spectator, than of a prisoner.

Williams Is Shaken.

This cannot be said of Williams. He shows he realizes the seriousness of hi position. A look of very deep concern is on his face at all times. Nothing, not even humorous bits of evidence, are able to erase it. He looks like a wretch who has already heard his fate.

When court resumed, a great crowd had gathered on the courthouse lawn. The crowd rather resented being denied admittance to the building. They were told, however, that all available seats had been taken, that there was not the slightest hope of being admitted. Order both in and out of court is being preserved remarkably well.

The trial judge, Hon. Mr. Justice Wright, has warned against talking in the room. Violation of instructions will mean expulsion or a fine, he declared.

When court adjourned at noon, more than a score of people were waiting to be admitted to the afternoon session, scheduled more than an hour later.

Had Restless Night.

Sid Murrell did not go to sleep until late last night. He tossed in his cot until almost midnight. Williams, too, apparently, pondered over the events of the day before he finally succumbed to slumber.

This morning rings around the eyes of both prisoners testified to their loss of sleep. At times Murrell's hand was clenched nervously, but it was due more to fatigue than anything, as only minor evidence was being adduced at the time.

Sid Murrell staggered against the walls of the passageway as he was being brought up the stairs to the courtroom just before court resumed this afternoon. One shoulder was covered with dirt. When he was seated, he brushed the dirt from his new brown suit, straightened his tie, and clasped his hands on his left knee, just as Hon. Mr. Justice Wright entered.

Williams seems calm, at least more o than he was this morning. He sitting straight up in his seat, his lips.

ee hundred people were turned t the courthouse. They are against the main entrance of building.

BANDITS' GUNS AND THE FATAL BULLET.

Above, on the left, an Advertiser photographer shows the blood-stained .38-calibre revolver which Slim Williams carried at Melbourne. The bigger gun is the .45-calibre which Sergeant of Detectives Harry Down swears Sidney Murrell claimed as his on the day of the murder. The small object on the lower right is the .45-calibre bullet which was taken from the dead body of the murdered Russell Campbell. The black money bag also shown above was dropped by Sidney Murrell in his flight from the bank. It contained the loot of the tragic raid. The two guns, the bullet and the money bag are all important exhibits in the evidence at the trial.

BET ON VERDICT.
Burley Robinson, who tripped up Sid Murrell on the day of the murder, admitted on cross-examination this morning that he had made a bet of two to one that Murrell would be hanged.

SAYS BRITISH CONSTITUTION IS SOON DUE FOR CHANGE

Viscount Haldane Declares Evolution in Relations Makes Amendments Essential.

SOLVES PROBLEMS

Finds Dominions Working in Utmost Harmony With the Mother Country.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Oct. 17.—Speaking in Edinburgh University last night, Viscount Haldane said the time was coming when changes would have to be made in the British constitution. Great Britain had overcome the majority of her difficulties with regard to the dominions; she had made the privy council imperial, and had an imperial general staff at the war office. He said he would like to see the navy and the civil service united in the same way, and believed the efficiency of the government of the empire would thereby be substantially raised.

Evolution, said Lord Haldane, was always taking place throughout the empire. When stability of relations was secured it did not come from rigid bonds, but from common ends and purposes, and common appreciation of each other's aims and interests. So long as Great Britain and the dominions worked together, constantly studying each other and developing their common ends, so long they would likely hold together. The moment they tried to tie up the empire in some imperial federation symptoms of peril would appear. Therefore it seemed to him that a written or rigid constitution would be wholly inappropriate to the British empire.

REPARATION PROPOSAL IS SUBMITTED BY BELGIUM

Requires Payment by Germany of 3,000,000,000 Gold Marks Annually.

ASKS GUARANTEE

Will Consider Plan as Basis of Concrete Settlement of Problem.

Associated Press Despatch.

Paris, Oct. 17.—The Belgian reparation plan was presented to the reparation commission this morning by M. Delacroix, the Belgian member. The commission will meet again next week to consider it in detail. The Belgian reparation plan, drawn up after a detailed investigation of Germany's economic and financial positions, places the minimum reparation Germany should be required to pay at 50,000,000,000 marks, to which is added 32,000,000,000 marks in "C" bonds. Asserting that Germany can make annual payments of 3,000,000,000 gold marks, the plan recommends that this be guaranteed by hypothecation of the railroad and such monopolies as tobacco, coal, sugar, salt, wines and beer.

The Belgian foreign office recently suggested that its proposals be referred to the inter-allied reparation commission as the basis of a concrete plan for a settlement of the German indemnity question. The allies agreed to this.

FOR THE CROWN.
This is T. J. Rigney, K. C., of Kingston, who is handling the case for the crown in the Melbourne murder trial. He is believed to have some star witnesses ready with important new evidence.

PARLEY MAY SETTLE REPARATION PROBLEM

German Charge d'Affaires Confers With French Premier in Paris.

Associated Press Despatch.

Paris, Oct. 17.—Herr von Hoesch, the German charge d'affaires, arrived at the foreign office shortly before noon today for his conference with Premier Poincare, which in some quarters was believed to forecast an important step in regard to the reparation problem.

The German official came to the Quai d'Orsay while a French military guard of honor was drawn up on both sides of the entrance waiting to salute President Masaryk, of Czecho-Slovakia. Herr von Hoesch, in order to enter the building, had to pass between the ranks of the guard.

WILL NOT RETURN.
Miss E. Ross, former superintendent of nurses at Victoria Hospital, who will not return to her post at that institution. Her leave of absence has been extended until the end of the year. It was definitely ascertained at the city hall today that she would not resume her former duties.

MISS E. ROSS NOT COMING BACK TO CITY HOSPITAL

Definite Assurance to This Effect Obtained at City Hall Today.

LEAVE EXTENDED

No One Yet in View To Succeed as Superintendent of Nurses.

Miss Elizabeth Ross, now on vacation, will not return to her position as the superintendent of nurses at the Victoria Hospital. Definite assurance to this effect was forthcoming at the city hall today, with the added explanation that her leave will be extended until the last of the year.

At a meeting of the hospital trust last night, it is further reported, arrangements were made whereby Thomas Heard, former superintendent at the same institution, will be granted one year's salary. This sum is possible for payment from a fund provided for such purposes, it is explained.

Just who will succeed Miss Ross is not stated today, and while there have been several conflicting reports during recent weeks as to Miss Ross' retirement, Mayor Wenige is the authority today for the report that she will not be back.

It was reported not long since that Miss Ross was on sick leave.

SEES WORLD AGAIN FACING PROSPECTS OF NEW WAR

David Lloyd George Predicts Next Conflict Will Be Worst in History.

PREFACE TO BOOK

Ex-British Premier Declares the Constant Quarreling of Nations Leading to Ruin.

Special to The Advertiser.

New York, Oct. 17.—Another war and a worse one, is predicted by Lloyd George in his preface to his book, "Where Are We Going?" which will appear next week. Discussing the unsetled grievances among different nations of Europe, the ex-premier continues:

"And so the quarrel will go on to the final catastrophe, unless humanity one day sees the light and has the courage to follow it. But that day must not be too distant; otherwise it will be too late to save civilization. The last conflict between great nations has exposed the devastating possibilities of modern science. Henceforth progress in the destructiveness of apparatus of war has been and will continue to be so rapid that conflict of tomorrow would spread ten times the desolation caused by the great war of 1914-18.

"There is a concentration of much scientific and mechanical skill on strengthening the machinery of devastation. Incredible progress — if progress be the word—has been made in the last three or four years in perfecting and increasing the shattering powen of this kind of devilry. What will it be like five, ten, twenty years hence?

Perfecting Explosives.

"Whilst nations are piling up, perfecting and intensifying their explosives they are also saturating the ground with the inflammable passions which one day will precipitate the explosion. Injustice, insult, insolence, distilled into the spirit of revenge is everywhere soaking the earth."

President Wilson was responsible for keeping secret the records of the conversations of the Big Four at Versailles, according to an interesting chapter, which Lloyd George bestows on "unofficial publication of official information." The ex-premier also says that President Wilson later used the material on which he had imposed secrecy to defend himself in the publication by Ray Stannard Baker. Lloyd George discussed many storms which have been caused when individuals who have been retired to private life have published documents which came into their possession during public life.

In citing the authority of President Wilson for this practice, Lloyd George quotes the following from note made by him at the time of the Versailles conference.

Wilson's Contention.

"President Wilson was strongly of the opinion that these documents ought to be treated as purely private conversations, and he objected to the communication of accounts given in the notes of the private conversations, in which all present had spoken their minds with great freedom, as improper use might afterwards be made of these documents. On the other hand, he did not object to the notes being communicated to special individuals in the personal confidence of members of the council. Though he looked upon certain statements, the conclusions and the actions as being official and, therefore, available in the appropriate offices, the actual conversations were private. In the United States no one had the right to claim documents of this kind. President Wilson's view was that each government should take the course traditional in its own country with the clear and distinct understanding that no one should, under any circumstances, make the process verbal public.

Crowds Storm Courthouse Portals In Effort To Hear Evidence In Murder Trial

Provincial Officer Stratton Declares Heavy Front Door Nearly Torn Off.

MANY WOMEN COME

Interest in the Murrell-Williams Trial Greatest in Annals of County's Criminal History.

If the crowds continue to pour into the court house for the Murrell-Williams murder trial, county officials will be compelled to buy a new front door.

Yesterday and this morning, the throngs were so dense and the anxiety to witness the trial so great that the sturdy front door of the court house was nearly torn from its hinges. Another experience such as yesterday's and the mahogany portals of the ancient castle will be but a remnant of their former selves.

"The lock was nearly torn off," Provincial Officer T. Y. Stratton declared. "I never saw such a rush."

An hour before the trial resumed this morning, hundreds of curious citizens lined up outside the court house. A couple of dozen women and girls arrived at 9 o'clock, and they were allowed to enter the courtroom, while the men were forced to wait until the trial commenced. When they were finally admitted in single file seevral late comers attempted to edge in before them. Cries of indignation greeted their efforts, and the police ordered them to the rear.

"Put that guy in the brown suit back," yelled one. "He just came."

The brown-suited individual was immediately ordered to wait his turn at the end of the line. Just then a well-dressed farmer tried to rush in.

"Nothing doing," said Mr. Stratton, as the man persisted.

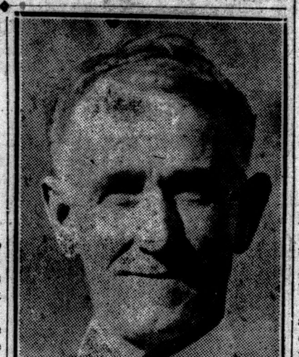

"So this is what we pay our taxes for," the farmer yelled indignantly.

He was straightaway ousted from the court house and the door slammed in his face.

The gentle sex was represented by dozens of flappers this morning. Many middle-aged women were there, too. The crowds have been orderly, officers state, and the type of citizen who desires to see the trial is most respectable. Only one person with a police record got in and he was immediately escorted out, as soon as the eagle eye of T. Y. Stratton spotted him.

Curious and disappointed citizens who were unable to gain entrance to the court house this morning, closed up against the doors the minute the morning spectators left the building.

Three women led the van for the afternoon rush. They were pressed close against the door, and as the provincial police made way for Judge Wright to leave the court house, one woman eagerly asked if she could be admitted, and registered disgust when denied permission to enter the broad corridors of the court house.

SAYS MURRELL ADMITTED.
This is R. E. Campbell, who swore at this morning's session of the Melbourne murder trial that Sidney Murrell had nodded affirmatively to his brother's question: "Did you do the shooting?"

POINCARE TO BE SPONSOR FOR EIGHTEENTH CHILD

Associated Press Despatch.

Luneville, France, Oct. 17.—Premier and Mme. Poincare have consented to act as sponsors for the eighteenth child of M. Michel, president of the local "league of big families." The christening has been fixed for the day when the premier comes here to unveil a soldiers' memorial.

DOMINION SAVINGS BUSINESS WILL BE INVESTIGATED

Shareholders Will Hold Meeting at County Buildings On October 29.

TO PROBE CHARGES

Next Monday, Oct. 29, shareholders of the Dominion Savings and Investment Company will hold a meeting in the county council chamber, when matters of more than passing interest will receive their attention.

The meeting has been called pursuant to the order of Mr. Justice Middleton, who continued applications for a winding-up of the company, made by three minority shareholders, until after such a meeting, the justice setting an outside date by which it must be held.

The Huron & Erie Mortgage Corporation, creditors of the investment company to the extent of $248,000, made arrangements for the meeting. All affairs of the company, which assigned last year, will be gone into thoroughly. According to officials of the mortgage company, the assets of the Dominion Savings are more than sufficient to meet all liabilities.

It is more than likely that the charges made by the three shareholders who entered the application for winding-up, which alleged wrongful conduct on the part of the directors of the company, will also be gone into.

Following the meeting the applications will be heard, as well as the application for an injunction, sought by the savings company against the mortgage corporation, restraining the latter from selling the Dominion Savings Building on Richmond street, and disposing of Northern Life Assurance Company stock, both of which are held as assets by the company, but which have not yet been realized on.

"DEFEND" LONDONERS FROM HOSTILE ATTACK

Officers of M. D. No. 1 Conduct Tactical Battle With Headquarters in City.

A tactical battle is being fought northeast of London today by officers of M. D. No. 1, who are participating in the staff tour conducted by the department of militia and defence.

The forces are divided into north and south, with the north occupyng Sarnia, Goderich and Guelph, while the latter occupy Hamilton, London and Chaham.

The 1st Southland Division had orders to defend London from attacks from the direction of Goderich and Mitchell and to protect lines of communication. The orders set forth the disposition of the southern forces, and the officers on the tour go over the ground and carry out the manoeuvres and tactics as they would if London were really in danger of an attack from hostile forces. Artillery, infantry, cavalry and reserve troops are stationed at strategic points, with London as headquarters.

DRAKE SAYS HE WILL FIGHT ANY MOVE FOR REPRISAL

Mayor Wenige states he proposes to "step on" those members of the council who "flopped over" on the city hall issue.

But Ald. Gordon Drake, one of the quartet selected, states this afternoon that he will "take his chances in Ward 3 any day with the mayor."

"I'll take my chance," he assured. "The mayor had better not use too strong gas when he starts in to step on us, as he promises."

HAYDEN SAYS PEOPLE, NOT MAYOR, TO DECIDE

Alderman Takes Exception to Recent Decision Announced by Wenige.

It will be the people who will decide in December, not Mayor Wenige or any member of the council, who shall sit in the 1924 council, Ald. Hayden advised today.

"The mayor talks about stepping on some of us," he stated. "Well, let him step as hard as he likes. It will be the ratepayers who will decide the city hall question.

"I am just as anxious as he is to have the new city hall built on the McCormick site, but I want to give the people a square deal, and if they do not like my record they will have their chance in December to tell me, and if they do not want me back I'll not lose any sleep over it.

"I can't see why the mayor should start that kind of a game. I have stuck pretty well with him since the first of the year and he should not adopt that attitude just because I don't see eye to eye with him on one particular issue."

UTAH MINER KILLED IN COLLIERY CAVE-IN

Associated Press Despatch.

Bingham, Utah, Oct. 12.—One man was killed and five entombed in a cave-in in the Utah-Apex coal mine here late yesterday. Twenty men were in the mine at the time of the accident, but fourteen escaped.

IDENTIFIED THE GUN.
Among the important evidence at the Murrell-Williams trial yesterday was the statement of Sergeant of Detectives Harry Down, seen above, who identified a .45-calibre revolver shown in court, as that claimed by Sid Murrell. The bullet which killed Campbell was a .45.

EXPECT TORIES WILL PUT JUDD IN FIELD

Local Organization Will Stage Another "Show" Friday Night To Find Opponent For Wenige.

A number of the local Tories are going to stage another "show" Friday night, it was announced today. Events are hastening for a definite move respecting the proposal to enter a candidate to oppose Mayor Wenige. Time is growing short before nomination day and the "boys" appreciate the fact that they will have to hurry if they are to be prepared for the battle.

The impression is strengthened, however, from day to day, that Ald. Albert Judd, chairman of the finance committee of the council, can be induced to carry the banner.

Questioned in this connection, Ald. Judd made it quite clear that he has not been formally approached on the subject. It is assured, however, from certain members at headquarters that this move will develop before long. While Ald. Judd has stated quite definitely to The Advertiser that he does not want the nomination, his supporters seem confident in their ability to convince him that he is the logical choice.

Several names have been suggested for the aldermanic race, including Chris. Hawkins, who is being urged to run in Ward Three. Mr. Hawkins is the president of the Conservative Club.

BILL NOT INTENDED FOR LONDON BOARD

Secretary Tanner Forwards to St. Catharines Account Sent in Mistake.

Secretary W. A. Tanner, of the board of education received a shock this morning when he opened his mail and discovered a bill for $7,468.70, for lockers and other equipment for a technical school.

After many minutes spent in wonderment over the document and cudgeling of brains to remember when the order had been placed and for what building, Mr. Tanner happened to notice something which relieved him considerably.

At the top of the paper was the legend, "Board of Education, St. Catharines, Ont."

Mr. Tanner will forward the account to the rightful debtors immediately.

DUBLIN IS SCENE OF MASS MEETING OF REPUBLICANS

Delegates Demand Immediate Release of All Political Prisoners.

1,500 IN ATTENDANCE

Associated Press Despatch.

Dublin, Oct. 16.—Mention of the name of Eamon De Valera was greeted with prolonged cheering at the opening session of the Ard Fheis, or general assembly of the Sinn Fein, which met today at the Mansion House. About 1,500 delegates, representing 750 Sinn Fein clubs in all parts of Ireland, filled the round room in the building, the attendance including a few members of the clergy. Dr. Kathleen Lynn, who was elected a republican deputy from South Dublin in the recent election, called the meeting to order. The assembly voted to make Miss Mary MacSwiney chairman of the convention in place of Mr. De Valera.

The agenda contains questions dealing with allegiance to "the republic" and allegiance to any foreign government. Further resolutions proposed express appreciation of the efforts of the republican "army" and condemn violations of the peace pact enacted in May, 1922, at the Ard Fheis assembly. Another extends greetings to citizens of the Irish republic in the six counties of Ulster, and still another contains a strong protest "against the use of their spiritual power by the Irish heirarchy, especially the denial of the sacrament to republicans and soldiers of the republic dying of wounds received in defence of the republic," and also the "refusal to permit the bodies of republic dead to be brought into church."

A copy of the resolution will be sent to Pope Pius with the prayer that he exclude politics of every kind from the pulpit.

The unconditional release of Eamon De Valera and all political prisoners is demanded in another resolution, which likewise congratulates De Valera on "his miraculous escape from attempted assassination at Ennis."

PARKHILL MAN IS FATALLY HURT WHEN MACHINE FALLS

Special to The Advertiser.

Parkhill, Oct. 16.—Finley Yorke, an employee of Baird's Foundry, was fatally injured on Monday when a large machine toppled on him.

Mr. Yorke was badly crushed, and although medical aid was summoned immediately, the injured man died shortly afterwards. He leaves a wife and four children.

LARGE BANK BARN BURNS AND CAUSES $10,000 LOSS

Special to The Advertiser.

Mildmay, Oct. 16.—The large bank barn of Philip Montag, one mile from Formosa, was totally destroyed by fire last Saturday afternoon, with the entire season's crop, some calves and implements.

Mr. Montag's son was doing some chopping in the barn, using a gasoline engine. While the boy was in the granary getting a box of oats to put in the chopper the engine commenced to back-fire and when he returned the interior was ablaze. He immediately called for help and saved what stock and implements he could. The loss is estimated at $10,000, partly covered by insurance. The barn was one of the largest and most modern in this vicinity.

PORT STANLEY MAN FINED WHEN HE SHOOTS COON

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, Oct. 16.—Alex Collins, a resident of Port Stanley, appeared before Squire Hunt this afternoon on a charge of killing coon out of season. Squire Hunt stated that there was too much of illegitimate hunting going on in Elgin County, and he felt perfectly justified in imposing a fine of $20 and costs. The complaint was laid by W. S. Caldwell, fish and game inspector, from London.

Pond at Aylmer Becomes Sanctuary For Wild Ducks

Special to The Advertiser.

Aylmer, Oct. 16.—White's Pond at Springwater, just west and south of Aylmer is fast becoming known to wild ducks, far and near, as a place where they may eat and rest in safety.

For years past in the fall of the year ducks have made an effort to land and feed at the pond, but they hardly spent a night there before some of the sportsmen went gunning for them. But Fred and Edward White, owners of the pond, are bird lovers and this year placed signs on their property requesting that the birds be protected, and they have asked the sportsmen to assist them in making the beautiful sheet of water a sanctuary.

The brothers have been feeding the birds for the past three weeks. A few of them have already become so tame that they may be fed out of the hand. More birds are coming every day. The pond is surrounded by woods on all sides, and the location is most suitable. The public is invited to visit the pond and see the birds.

Serve Hot Meals To Delhi Pupils

Special to The Advertiser.

Delhi, Oct. 15.—The Women's Institute of Delhi has completed arrangements to serve hot lunches at the Delhi school every day at noon.

The thirty or forty students coming in from the rural district will bring their lunches as usual but will be served with hot soup, cocoa and other foods easily prepared. This idea was put into action because that rural students who were eating cold lunches were not so efficient during the afternoon session as the students who live in town and get hot noon meals.

The public was invited to a shower held in the municipal building on Saturday afternoon and the institute was the recipient of a generous supply of foodstuffs essential to stock the school larder.

Parents sending children to the school have expressed gratitude to the women behind this work.

CHARGED WITH THEFT, FARMER IS ACQUITTED

Keppel Township Man Freed When Accused of Stealing Potatoes.

Special to The Advertiser.

Owen Sound, Oct. 16.—Angus Cameron, residing in Owen Sound, but the owner of a 50-acre farm on concession 3, Keppell Township, appeared in police court this morning to answer a charge of theft of seven bags of potatoes preferred against him by Harry Lemon.

Cameron was acquitted by the magistrate after nearly two hours' evidence had been submitted. Magistrate Creasor remarked that it was pretty hard for anyone to identify potatoes, and that he could not convict Cameron on the evidence. Crown-Attorney Dyer prosecuted and W. S. Middlebro, K.C., acted for the defence.

The offence was alleged to have been committed early Saturday morning on Mr. Lemon's farm. Tracks were seen leading from the farm, but no proof was forthcoming as to their ultimate destination. Counsel for the defence agreed that the potatoes had been stolen, but it was not proved who was the perpetrator.

Two half-sacks of potatoes were found in Cameron's house, and Mr. Lemon claimed they had come from his farm, but Mr. Cameron said he had brought them in from his farm on Friday evening. The defence presented evidence to show that Cameron had not been out of his house from 8:30 p.m. Friday until Saturday morning.

CARS STOLEN IN KINCARDINE SINCE JULY TOTAL SEVEN

Special to The Advertiser.

Kincardine, Oct. 16.—Edward Harrison, 10th concession Huron township, had his car stolen Sunday night. He, with three friends, drove into Kincardine to attend the evangelistic services at Knox Presbyterian Church, and parked the car on Princess street near the church. At the conclusion of the service he came out to find the car missing.

This is the seventh car stolen in this town since July. All have been found abandoned around the town or the nearby country.

INJURED BY TRUCK, SUES FOR $10,000

A. McKeracher of St. Thomas Asks Damages As Result of Accident.

FOR FALL ASSIZES

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, Oct. 16.—The civil docket for the fall assizes which begins Oct. 21 consists of three cases, of which the most important is Harry A. McKeracher versus Standard Paving Company Limited, the Corporation of St. Thomas, and John and Louis Lutvak. The suit calls for $10,000 damages, together with $950 for lost time, bicycle, hospital expenses, nurses' fee and doctor's expenses.

Mr. McKeracher was riding home from the Y. M. C. A., where he was employed as a physical director, on the 22nd Oct. 1922, and at the Wellington-Elgin street intersection was struck by a truck driven by Louis Lutvak. He was severely injured, and lost the sight of an eye. It is alleged that the accident was due to a quantity of gravel being left in the centre of the road by the construction company employed by the city.

Davidson & Davidson are appearing for the plaintiff, W. B. Doherty for the city, Clark, Swabey and Clark of Toronto for the Standard Paving Company, Limited, and C. St. Clair Leitch, K.C., for John and Louis Lutvak.

Rosie Dunn, infant of Sylvester Dunn of Union, is claiming damages from Warren M. Lockwood to the extent of $7,000 for injuries inflicted as a result of an auto accident on the Union Hill, due, it is alleged, to Lockwood's reckless driving, on the 9th of April, 1923. R. H. McConnell is appearing for plaintiff, and Cameron, Grant and Cameron for the defendant.

The Employers' Liability Assurance Corporation, Limited, and Percival Crawford of Aylmer are suing the Central Pipe Line Company for $2,200 to cover damages to house and $292 to furniture caused by the explosion of natural gas on 16th February, 1923.

The explosion was due to the pipeline being out of repair, which allowed natural gas to escape into plaintiff's cellar. The gas became ignited and the explosion resulted, wrecking the house. W. H. Barnum is appearing for the plaintiffs, and Kerr, McNevin & Kerr of Chatham for the defendant.

Breaks Bones of Foot.

The second bicycle accident of the day occurred at the corner of Elgin and Talbot street Monday night, when Herbert Harris, 14 Penwarden street, was thrown to the sidewalk when his wheel skidded. He suffered several broken bones in his foot.

Miss Myrtle Beal, who suffered a similar accident earlier in the day when a wheel of a loaded wagon passed over her chest, is reported to be recovering.

Faints In Court.

Three cases were disposed of at police court this morning in record time. Louis B. Precoor, who created such a dramatic scene in court a week ago when charged with non-support, again fainted away in the dock, but the effect was not quite so sensational. Magistrate Maxwell asked him to produce bail as a guarantee that he would remain in the city in the future. The surety was supplied by himself, $250, and by Mrs. John Wood, part owner in his residence on Eagle street, $200.

Abdo Abdo, the 16-year-old offender charged with stealing his father's car, was allowed to go with suspended sentence, on condition that he mend his ways in the future.

A local junk dealer was arraigned before the magistrate, and confessed to stealing cast iron to the value of $10 from a resident of Talbot street. Restitution having been made the offender was let off on suspended sentence. His wife is in poor health.

Honor Mrs. Robinson.

The officials of the court house, wishing to commemorate Mrs. Robinson's faithful services as court librarian, presented her with a beautiful parasol Monday. Mrs. Robinson leaves in the near future to make her home in Toronto. She will be greatly missed by the court house officials.

PRESENTS PLAN TO AID THE BRITISH UNEMPLOYED

OUTLINES SCHEME FOR UNEMPLOYED

Sir Montague Barlow States Conference Expected To Assist by Redistribution.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Eng., Oct. 16.—The government's proposal for the alleviation of the present unemployment was outlined by Sir Montague Barlow, the minister of labor, at a luncheon in Stationers' Hall today. He said the number of wholly unemployed last week was 1,251,600, and that the government was looking to the imperial conference for much help and success not only in the redistribution of man power, but in strengthening and organizing its markets.

Sir Montague announced that the new expenditure undertaken or initiated by the government, including road building to the extent of £14,000,000; authorized assistance to local authorities £10,000,000; trade facilities, £12,000,000; railway companies, £10,000,000.

"That is some indication of the government's program," added the minister, "and the government also is in daily contemplation of additional effort."

With the exception of a small proportion of expenditure for non-revenue-producing work, the entire amount, Sir Montague added, would go for production and the stimulation of trade along normal lines. The policy to be followed would be that of encouraging the manufacture of ordinary products in the ordinary way, and at ordinary rates of pay. He believed that policy would do much more to alleviate the situation than half work of the old could possibly be expected to do.

England's Anchor.

Referring to three front lines of government effort — unemployment insurance, trade development and relief schemes—Sir Montague Barlow said with reference to unemployment insurance that their great co-operative scheme of social self-help had proved England's sheet anchor. Last year the income was £49,000,000, £19,000,000 from the employers, £17,000,000 from the workers and only £3,000,000 from the state.

With regard to trade development, under the heading of export credit schemes and provisions for trade facilities, there was ample provision both for the individual trader who desired to export and have his risk shared by the government, and for a public company which desired to enter into big constructional developments. The export credit program still allowed of some £16,000,000 risks being undertaken in proper cases. As to trade facilities there had been considerable development, and it was satisfactory to learn, for instance, that £2,600,000 were being set aside with a view to building new ships for one or two big shipping companies.

Much Steel Work.

With regard to the construction of bridges, something like 20 to 40 per cent of the cost of every bridge would represent steel work and would give employment to sadly depressed industrial centers like Birmingham, Sheffield, Manchester and the Clyde. It was a necessary condition of all these constructional and bridge works that the material, especially the steel, should be of British make and that British labor should be employed.

For the first time, the minister of labor continued, applications from local authorities for assistance towards their loans showed a very great increase of revenue-producing schemes, which was precisely the result the government wished to achieve.

There were other proposals which had already matured or which were in process of maturing, such as the accelerating of admiralty and war office works, loans for crown colony development, etc., all of which were being pressed on, Sir Montague said.

The cabinet unemployment committee was meeting constantly, and the members thereof were almost in daily contemplation of additional efforts to improve the present conditions. The schemes outlined did not involve any interference with the financial policy of the government the minister said, and in this respect no change was contemplated.

WINNIPEG PREPARING FOR ELECTION FIGHT

Prominent Speakers Are Enlisted by Both Liberals and Labor.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, Oct. 16.—With prominent speakers from Eastern Canada and even as far as the British Isles enlisted, the campaign of the Liberal and Labor candidates in the North Winnipeg byelection is now assuming a fighting formation, and several meetings were scheduled for this week and early next week. Polling will take place on October 24.

Concentrating its platform into one mammoth meeting the Liberal party will hold a rally on October 22. Hon. E. J. McMurray, M.P., solicitor-general for the dominion, whose elevation to the cabinet necessitated the election, will be supported by Hon. Dr. H. S. Beland, minister of soldiers' civil re-establishment at Ottawa, and Robert Jacob, member for Winnipeg in the provincial legislature, who will occupy the chair.

W. C. Robinson, Labor representative for Blackpool in the British House of Commons, is aiding Ald. A. A. Heaps, nominated by the Independent Labor Party, in his campaign, while Miss Agnes McPhail, M.P. for North Grey, and J. F. Callin, M.L.A. for Fort Frances, also are supporting him. The big meeting of the campaign will be held Wednesday night, when all three speakers will place Labor's platform before the electors.

Mr. McMurray is also opposed by A. A. Martin, running as a Labor candidate in an Independent ticket, and Paul Gigcejezuk, Independent.

WILL HOLD BANQUET.

The Men's Brotherhood of King Street Presbyterian Church will hold a banquet in the church next Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. During the evening speeches will be given, followed by the election of officers. The speakers will be David Ross, president of Men's Brotherhood, Rev. FIELDING HOPES COMMISSION NOT NEEDED IN PROBE OF BANK

Finance Minister States Government Has Carried Out Thorough Investigation—Believes Trial of Officials Will Clear Situation.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—Referring to the numerous questions in the press and elsewhere concerning the appointment of a royal commission to investigate Home Bank affairs, Rt. Hon. W. S. Fielding, minister of finance and acting prime minister, said tonight that there had been no decision to appoint such a commission, and he hoped that such appointment would not be found necessary.

Mr. Fielding said that the finance department had from the beginning been carrying on investigations through its officials. A few days after the bank suspended, he said, and while the institution was in the hands of the curator, a skilled accountant representing the finance department was sent into the bank to make such inquiry as at that moment seemed to be necessary. Information obtained by the finance department from such inquiry was the basis on which proceedings were taken at Toronto against the bank's officials.

The curator's duties have now ceased, added the minister, and the affairs of the bank are in the hands of the liquidator appointed by the court. The investigations of the finance department, however, are still being carried on. Mr. Fielding said he thought that the satisfaction that was being obtained in this way and that would be obtained from the trial of the officials in Toronto would elicit all the knowledge of the bank's affairs that would serve in any useful purpose.

ONTARIO W. C. T. U. OPENS CONVENTION

Four Hundred Delegates Attend Session At Brantford —Receive Reports.

PRESIDENT SPEAKS

Special to The Advertiser.

Brantford, Oct. 16.—Over 400 delegates from all parts of the province are in attendance at the 46th annual meeting of the Ontario W. C. T. U. being held in Brantford today. The meetings are being held in Brant Avenue Methodist Church, and a splendid spirit of earnestness prevails.

The opening session was held this morning, with Mrs. T. Gully of Uxbridge presiding. Mrs. Gully gave a splendid inspirational address on "Prayer, the Channel of Spiritual Blessing." Devotional exercises were led by Mrs. J. R. Kerr, evangelistic superintendent for Brant County. Mrs. Kerr took for her subject, "Love, the Motive Power of Union Life."

Give Reports.

Mrs. W. Pugsley of Toronto presided over the general meeting when routine business was transacted.

Mrs. Gully of Uxbridge cleverly concentrated 27 reports in one in giving a review of the evangelistic department. The report recorded the many days that had been set aside for prayer and covered many helpful suggestions for the promotion of this important department of the work. Many homes had been visited and comforts of all kinds taken to those suffering or in need. Women in penitentiaries had been visited, and baby welfare was a big feature of the work covered.

The report also showed that special educational work had been done amongst the Chinese and Indians. Mrs. Gully concluded her report with a prayer that our legislators would be wisely guided in making laws and in enforcing them.

Make Many Calls.

Mrs. Virtue of Ottawa reported that nearly 6,000 personal visits had been paid in cases of illness and distress. Magazines and literature of all kinds had been distributed to appreciative recipients.

Miss Jane Ritchie of Arner presented a report of the temperance department in the Sunday schools. She pointed out that it was a field for much useful work which was being neglected, and thought the Sunday school was the place for temperance teachings. Mrs. B. O. Britton of Gananoque reported for the department of exhibition and fair ground work, and Mrs. E. A. Stevens of Toronto gave a very comprehensive report of the program department.

The session was brought to a close by prayer given by Mrs. S. G. Read, president of the Brant County W. C. T. U.

MUST TALK OBEDIENCE.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Brantford, Oct. 16.—"Let us have more talk of law obedience and not so much of law enforcement," declared Mrs. William Pugsley, Toronto, president of the Ontario Women's Christian Temperance Union, in presenting her presidential address to over 400 delegates. She reviewed liquor legislation all over the North American continent, quoting authorities to show that anything save total prohibition was evil. At the same time as she urged law obedience, she also called for support for the government in taking a stand for enforcement of the law.

She visioned a bright future for a Canada with prohibition, a Canada leading the world in its manhood and opportunities.

NEWFOUNDLAND WILL VOTE ON OCTOBER 25TH

Canadian Press Despatch.

G. F. A. Grimes, minister of fisheries, and Hon. Joseph Dowdy, minister of agriculture, were returned unopposed in the districts of Fogo and St. George's respectively. In Harbor Main district, Hon. M. E. Hawes, minister of telegraphs, is being opposed by J. J. St. John, who was his colleague during the general election in May last, but who was defeated, while Mr. Hawco was elected. Mr. St. John is an Independent.

Polling day is set for Oct. 25.

FOREST FIRE VICTIMS FOUND NEAR MARQUETTE

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 16.—Bodies of five men, trapped in forest fires near Big Bay, late Monday, were found today about seven miles from that town. They were suffocated in dense smoke when they tried to make their way back to their camp from a railroad grade.

When overcome they were only 50 feet from the railroad tracks, and not more than 1,000 feet from their camp. Four bodies were near a pile of green underbrush, and it is believed the poisonous fumes from the green wood burning caused them to collapse. The body of the fifth man was 200 feet away.

Canada's Trade Shows Increase

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—A notable increase in Canada's trade for the six months ending September as compared with the same period a year ago is recorded by the department of customs and excise. Equally satisfactory increases are shown in both imports and exports. While the total trade for September last as compared with September of 1922 shows some $7,000,000 increase, this is, however, accounted for entirely by imports.

Merchandise entered for consumption during the six months ending September amounted to $464,330,317, while for the corresponding period of last year they were $363,915,786. Exports of Canadian produce were $453,769,440, compared with $388,233,296. Exports of wood, wood products and paper increased from $107,000,000 to $140,000,000; iron and its products increased from $[illegible],000,000 to $31,000,000.

ESSEX CONCRETE ROAD IS OFFICIALLY OPENED

Deputy Minister of Highways Performs Ceremony Before Large Crowd.

Special to The Advertiser.

Essex, Ont., 16.—Clipping in two a broad band of red ribbon that barred the road to traffic Hon. S. L. Squire, deputy minister of provincial highways, this afternoon declared officially open the new stretch of cement pavement which linked up the town of Essex with the Ontario Provincial Highways system now completed to Windsor.

The ceremonies took place at the easterly section of the highway, and were witnessed by a distinguished gathering, including Warden Crimmins and members of the Essex County Council, Mayor Wilson of Windsor, and the City Council of that place, as well as by officials of the Essex County Automobile Club.

Following the opening function an automobile parade that stretched its length out for two miles or more passed over the new roadway and through the main street of Essex.

In the evening the deputy minister and his party were guests of the Essex Board of Trade at a banquet in the town hall.

Windsor and Essex are now linked by 18 miles of splendid cement pavement, the first section of which was laid from Jackson's Corners to Oldcastle, 2 7-10 miles, in 1921. The section opened today is 3 9-10 miles in length of 18 feet width. The entire route from Windsor has been planted with elm trees on each side. The cost is approximately $40,000 per mile, which includes grading and culverts.

The contract, drawn up by the special pool committee, was indorsed and plans for a campaign to obtain signatures also adopted.

SILESIAN MINERS REFUSE 130 PER CENT INCREASE

Associated Press Despatch.

Kattowitz, Poland, Oct. 16. — The Upper Silesian miners have refused the government's offer of a 130 per cent increase in wages and are demanding an advance of 200 per cent.

The movement is under control of the Communists. A general strike has been declared. Miners leaving the shafts and entering Kattowitz, accompanied by their wives and children, made a noisy demonstration. They surrounded the government office, and when the police were ordered to disperse them and threatened to charge, the strikers placed the women and children in front of them, thus preventing the police from using guns or their clubs.

WILL NOT TRANSFER BODY OF GENERAL OGLETHORP

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Oct. 16.—In deference to British sentiment Dr. Thornwell Jacobs has decided to withdraw the request of Oglethorp University that the body of General James E. Oglethorp, founder of Georgia, be transferred to the proposed shrine on the campus of the university in Atlanta. Protest has been made against the transference of the body by a number of leading newspapers.

FLOOD ISOLATES OKLAHOMA CITY

Thousands Driven From Their Homes Waiting For Waters To Recede.

TWO KNOWN DEAD

Associated Press Despatch.

Oklahoma City, Oct. 16.—Virtually isolated by the greatest flood in its history Oklahoma City tonight sheltered her little army of refugees and waited for the muddy turbulent expanse of the North Canadian River to recede and reveal the damage it had wrought.

The total damage is placed at $2,500,000 in preliminary estimates of city officials.

Although the river has fallen approximately two feet from the 35-foot crest that swept down on the city early this morning, the swift waters were still swirling through streets heretofore considered immune.

More than 2,000 of the 15,000 persons who fled before the flood still were homeless tonight. They are quartered in halls and churches. The remainder of the hosts had returned to their homes.

The known dead list stood at two, but city officials and members of rescue crews declared it probably would be greater.

The dead are Mrs. R. H. Loose and her daughter, Clara, 8 years old, who were drowned when a boat in which they attempted to gain land, after tarrying in an effort to save their personal effects, was caught in the mill race at Wheeler Park, a municipal resort, and capsized. Loose and another daughter, Bessie, 10, were rescued from the top of a large tree, to which they had clung for 12 hours, when rescued. Loose was taken to a hospital, where his condition was pronounced serious.

Rescue squads still were working at top speed tonight.

PARENTS DON'T CO-OPERATE SAY CHATHAM TEACHERS

Special to The Advertiser.

Chatham, Oct. 16.—According to Harry Collins, principal of the Central school, city teachers have conducted an investigation, and are satisfied that parents are not co-operating with them as they should in matters pertaining to the welfare of the children at school.

The principal said that he did not mean that the parents deliberately work in opposition to the best interests of the child, but nevertheless, they do through carelessness and lack of thought.

Children, he stated, should have the right amount of sleep. If parents are careless in this respect, the progress of the pupil is retarded. Healthy and wholesome reading matter in the homes for the children was also advocated by the principal.

FARMERS SEEKING HOMES IN CANADA

Sir John Pitka Arrives From Esthonia To Select Suitable Section.

POSSESS CAPITAL

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—Sir John Pitka, rear-admiral (retired) in the Esthonian navy, formerly in the imperial Russian navy, is visiting Canada in connection with the migration of a number of Esthonian farmers. Today he called at the department of immigration and colonization to discuss the coming soon of 100 farmers who have capital with their families from Esthonia. The principal purpose of Sir John's visit is to get information on what part of the Dominion he considers it would be best for these families to settle in. If they are satisfied with conditions in this country it will mean that many more families will follow.

Esthonia, which is one of the new Baltic states formed during the war out of part of the old Russian empire, is chiefly an agricultural country. It has an area of about 32,000 square miles, with a population of 1,750,000, so that, as Sir John pointed out, its population is rather congested and there is a desire on the part of many people to emigrate. Conditions, he says, since the war are not very good, and as the Esthonians were on the side of the allies throughout the war, they prefer to migrate to Canada, where geographical and climatic conditions are more nearly like their own country than in any other part of the British Empire.

Sir John Pitka has a farm near Reval, the capital of Esthonia, which is a city of about 160,000. He left Ottawa tonight for Western Canada, where he intends to spend six weeks looking over settlement prospects.

U. S. PLANS TO EMPLOY OLD IMMIGRATION LAW

Effort Will Be Made To Avoid Rush At Ports of Entry.

Associated Press Despatch.

Washington, Oct. 16.—In an effort to avoid the rush of immigrants that has clogged ports of entry along the Canadian border, United States immigration authorities plan to make full use of an old agreement with the Canadian Government.

This agreement, made before the present system whereby immigrants are admitted in monthly quotas came into effect, allows United States immigration officials to inspect arrivals for the United States at Canadian ports of entry.

It is now planned to utilize fully the terms of the agreement, and according to immigration officials at Washington the quota law will be applied at Canadian ports and immigrants in excess of the quotas will be returned to Europe from Canadian ports. Recently a large number of immigrants desirous of entering the United States have come through Canada and rushed to the United States ports of entry immediately the quota was available. This led to extreme congestion.

BEACHVILLE MAN INJURED BLASTING ROCK IN QUARRY

Special to The Advertiser.

Beachville, Oct. 16.—William Lightheart was the victim of a peculiar accident yesterday afternoon, when he sustained a scalp wound from flying stone during blasting operations at a Beachville White Lime Company's quarry where he is an employee.

Mr. Lightheart, with others engaged in the work of blasting, had taken cover behind the barricade provided to afford a safety zone, but a piece of stone must have been shot high in the air by the force of the blast, since he was suddenly felled to the ground after the blast was over.

Examination was made and disclosed a deep ragged scalp wound on the top of his head. Medical aid was summoned and there was found to be, fortunately, no fracture as was feared.

DOES NOT FAVOR GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP IF RAILROADS PAY

Sir Henry Urges More Regard For Workers in Speaking To Traffic Club in Boston.

Associated Press Despatch.

Boston, Oct. 16.—Government ownership of railroads should be resorted to only when railroads could not be made to pay, and to render a service to the public under private ownership, Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, said tonight at a banquet of the Traffic Club of New England. He told the assembled traffic men that while Canada now has government ownership the government does not operate the railroads, but leaves their management in the hands of a board of directors who are railroadmen.

The head of the Canadian National system said that one of the most important phases of the railroad industry in the United States and Canada was the attitude of the employees of the roads, "to whose temperament and welfare those wielding power in the great industries too often give too little thought."

"While the success of every large industry depends largely upon the treatment of the workers, even our universities do little to inspire students with a desire to understand the physcology of the workers," Sir Henry said. "Labor unions originated in England as a result of the rapacity of employers, and had I lived at that period I think I would have wished to be a labor union leader."

Sir Henry said the raising of wages could not go on definitely in the United States. "The only safe formula for a wage rate is that it shall be sufficient to enable workers to live comfortable amid sanitary environment and bring up their children to be self-respecting citizens of the next generation," he said.

FRESHMEN ARE GUESTS OF HONOR

Opening Function of University of Western Ontario Held in Masonic Temple.

ARE GIVEN COLORS

The opening function of the University of Western Ontario was held last evening in the Masonic Temple, when the three faculties and the student's council entertained in honor of the freshmen. Purple and white, the university colors, were used throughout as decorations. Purple and white bunting draped the balcony in the ballroom, and fringed streamers formed a canopy. The university shields were used to decorate the front of the hall, where palms and ferns banked the platform.

The years, according to priority, filed into the hall, with the freshmen, numbering 120, entering last. The freshmen were then introduced by the prefects, who later presented them with the university colors.

The guests were received by Dean Sherwood Fox and Mrs. Fox, the latter wearing a becoming gown of orchid shade; Dean and Mrs. McKibben; Dean H. W. Hill and Miss Grace Hill; Major Arthur Little, chairman of the board of governors and Mrs. Little, wearing a black beaded tunic over white charmeuse; Claude McCallum and Miss Lillian Hill, prefect and subprefect of the students' council, the latter wearing a black charmeuse gown with a silver and black georgette over-dress; and Clare Sanborn, president of the Hypocratic Society.

Dancing was enjoyed to the excellent music furnished by Ronnie Hart's orchestra. Games were arranged in the basement, where later a buffet supper was served.

REMAND SWIMMINGS ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Council For Defence Will Endeavor To Substantiate New Story of Client.

Special to The Advertiser.

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—"If we are able to substantiate what our client has told us we will be able to change the whole course and aspect of this case."

Such was the unexpected statement made this afternoon by Vivian McClenaghan, counsel for William Swimmings, charged with a serious offence against Hazel Mockett when he asked that the trial of his client be postponed until tomorrow. After consultation with counsel in the case Judge Orde announced that the representations which had been made to him were of so serious a nature that he would in fairness to the prisoner have to grant the request for the remand.

It is stated that in a document which Swimmings tendered to the court on Monday afternoon he admits that he was the man who attacked Miss Hazel Mockett of Billing's Bridge on August 11 with a criminal intent in view, but he denies that he actually committed the act with which he is charged and on which the members of the grand jury have already returned a true bill placing Swimmings on trial.

It was stated following the adjournment that a plea of temporary mental derangement might be advanced on behalf of Swimmings.

Use Preference To Boost Tariff

Associated Press Despatch.

Washington, Oct. 16.—Keen interest is being taken in Washington in the working out of the preferential tariff plan within the British Empire, which has been under discussion in the imperial conference. Although President Coolidge has made it plain this government recognizes the full right of the British Government and the dominions to adopt a preference plan, and there is no thought of retaliation from the White House, there is no doubt the high tariff leaders in congress and the country will endeavor to use the British tariff preferences as reasons for keeping up a high level of duties in this country.

Canadian and Australian exports to the United States, it is assumed will increase under the tariff preference which the British Government proposes to extend to certain products. Presumably there will be some falling off in United States business with Great Britain.

DECLARES FINANCIAL STRUCTURE IS SOUND

Ferguson Will Prosecute Persons Caught Spreading False Rumors.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Oct. 16.—Premier Ferguson prefaced his speech to the Liberal-Conservative Businessmen's Club luncheon today with a warning that the provincial government would proceed under the criminal code against any person found spreading false rumors concerning any of the financial institutions of the country. The genesis and organization of the financial structure of the country, he declared, was stable and sound. If there were weaknesses, it was not the fault of the system.

"It is not my duty to supervise the banks," he said, "but it is my duty to assist in strengthening the national fibre. The rumors that we have been hearing are, in my opinion, entirely unwarranted. The government, through the proper channels, has been making proper inquiries to ascertain the source from which these nebulous and injurious suggestions and rumors come, and there appears to be evidence of a concerted plan of some kind, emanating from evil-disposed people who desire to destroy the stability of the Province of Ontario."

MANY ARE WOUNDED IN BERLIN FOOD RIOTS

Mob Estimated At 12,000 Quelled When Police Use Bayonets.

Associated Press Despatch.

Berlin, Oct. 16.—The food riots which have been going on in Greater Berlin for the past ten days culminated this morning and this afternoon in serious outbreaks in the heart of the city. Mobs estimated to aggregate 12,000 unemployed, accompanied by women and youths, besieged the town hall in the heart of the eastern section of the capital and the rioting which followed continued intermittently for four hours and was quelled only after police reinforcements used their bayonets and fired volleys to awe the crowds.

The immediate provocation for today's outbreak was the abolition of the official bread card. This resulted in a sudden rise in the price of the four and a half pound loaf to 480,000,000 marks, or about 12 cents, as compared with Monday's price of 36,000,000 marks, which was effective, while the bread cards still were valid.

The police report that five demonstrators were seriously and a score slightly wounded during the disorders. One of the wounded in the rioting near the town hall died this afternoon. Some reports estimate that twenty persons were wounded when the police fired into the crowds.

Find Skeleton and Hatchet While Digging At Lambeth

Special to The Advertiser.

Lambeth, Oct. 16.—While digging gravel from the pit of the highways department south of the village, Roy Brown, a teamster, unearthed a skeleton. Not knowing what should be done under the circumstances, he went to the village to find someone to advise him.

Dr. Gregory accompanied him to the pit and found the skeleton of a very tall man in a splendid state of preservation. A small tool resembling a hand axe with a pointed head, and other indications on the skeleton itself lead Dr. Gregory to believe that the skeleton is that of an Indian.

After the doctor left Brown placed the skeleton to one side and covered it with earth.

Doctor Gregory stated that although the Indian's skeleton is complete and in good condition, there are no marks or indications to show whether the hatchet was buried with the Indian as a burial rite or whether the hatchet was the weapon used by an enemy to send the Indian to his happy hunting ground.

URGE CO-OPERATION TO DEVELOP TRADE

Betterment of Empire Communications Is Pressed At Conference of Premiers.

TAKE UP RESEARCH

By GEORGE HAMBLETON.
Canadian Press Cable.

London, Eng., Oct. 16.—Co-operation in technical and scientific research, co-operation in the betterment of communications with the view to the development of inter-imperial trade—these were the keynotes of the morning and afternoon sittings of the economic conference here today.

During the discussions there was general agreement that the utmost research should be undertaken, and to this end the conference decided to appoint a committee to inquire into the best method of pooling information and making it available to all parts of the empire.

On the question of communications, the conference discussed mail and wireless cable service, leaving shipping to be considered later. It expressed its view in the following resolution:

1. That representatives of the dominions and India should be associated in the work of the imperial communications committee when questions of interest to them are under consideration. (The personnel of the imperial communications committee has hitherto been entirely from Great Britain.)

Support Urged.

2. That in view of the fact that the dominions interested in Pacific cable have for a long time pressed for the provision of a state-owned connecting link across the Atlantic, all possible support should be given by the governments of the Empire to the state-owned Atlantic cable route, which has now been provided. (This is the imperial cable, owned by the British government, and operating between London and Halifax.)

3. That in case of any concessions given in the Empire to private enterprises in respect to cable or wireless services, including broadcasting stations, preference should be accorded to British Empire companies.

The proceedings brought forth some criticism of the mail services. In this regard it was felt, except in regard to the mails to Canada, the service was not what it should be, and the speeding up of communications was vital in the development of Empire trade.

Introducing the question of communications, Sir Laming Worthington Evans, British postmaster-general, intimated that experiments were now being made by the Pacific cable board to test the possibility of a wireless service as an alternative means of communication between Vancouver and either Fiji of the Fanning Islands, thus relieving the pressure on the present cable service to Australia. He indicated that a comprehensive scheme had been agreed to by the British and Canadian governments for better cable service to the West Indies. This involved the provision of a new cable from Turk's Island to the Barbadoes connecting with Canada by way of the Halifax-Bermuda cable.

Empire Wireless.

Regarding the empire wireless scheme, which has been delayed on account of the difficulty in the British Government and the Marconi Company reaching a working basis here, Sir Laming said the British Government had indicated to the Marconi Company that they would be prepared to divide the service on a regional basis, namely that the service for Canada and South Africa should be conducted by the British Government, while those for India and Australia should be conducted by the Marconi Company's station. He hoped that the Canadian and South African Governments would concur in this proposal, and observed that all traffic initiated by the imperial Government to Canada, Australia and New Zealand was sent by way of the imperial cable. Here came a word of mild reproof. He urged that dominion governments should use the imperial in preference to privately-owned cables, adding: "We have reason to know that several of the departments representing in London the Canadian and Australian Governments and some of the government departments in the dominions themselves, still use competitive routes either of American or eastern companies, and I should be very grateful if the prime ministers of Canada and Australia could see that all traffic over which they have control is sent by way of the imperial, which is certainly not inferior to its competitors, either in speed or accuracy."

SIDNEY MURRELL'S GUN IS IDENTIFIED IN COURT

DETECTIVE DOWN IN WITNESS STAND DECLARES BULLET FOUND IN VICTIM SIZE FOR GUN CLAIMED BY MURRELL

Brothers of Murdered Man Will Give Evidence in Court Today.

TELLING EVIDENCE

Melbourne Undertaker Tells of Firing Shots at Fleeing Bandit.

Swiftly the crown's case against Sidney Murrell and "Slim" Williams is moving to a climax.

Yesterday afternoon a more than mild lead to the climax was provided when Detective-Sergeant H. Down, on the witness stand at the fall assizes identified a .45 calibre Colt revolver as the one Sidney Murrell had claimed as his own, and when the detective testified that a lead slug from Russell Campbell's body, following the shooting was a .45 calibre one, and would fit Sidney's gun.

During the day T. J. Rigney, K.C., for the crown, and J. M. Donahue, counsel for the defence, engaged in a few gentle tilts, but nothing sensational developed.

It was a drowsy day. Early in the morning a deadening calm settled over the courtroom, and when court adjourned for the day at 6:35 o'clock, counsel, jury, and spectators agreed it was an irksome day.

Today action in the case is expected to quicken. Star witnesses for the crown, including Robert and Stuart Campbell, brothers of the victim, Russell Campbell, will be on the stand. They along with two other witnesses will be called to testify as to the actual shooting.

Twenty-two witnesses have been called to date by the crown. Several more will be called before the defence is begun.

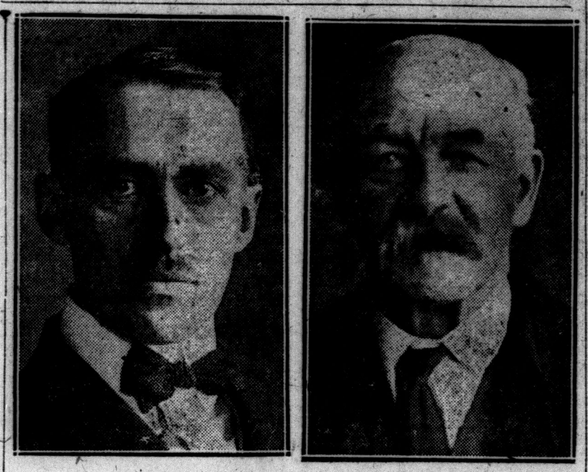

Each session of the court brings an increased crowd of would-be spectators. Yesterday they stormed the main entrance of the courthouse, and broke the hinges on the heavy doors. Repairs were made immediately.

Showed Strain.

Murrell and Williams showed the strain of the long ssssions in the prisoners' dock. They squirmed at times, leaned back, leaned forward, crossed their legs and uncrossed them—anything to relieve the monotony of sitting in one position.

Murrell was in various moods all day. At times he seemed utterly indifferent, almost oblivious to the proceedings. Again he would sit up, and showed the most rapt attention in the evidence being adduced. When one of the witnesses mentioned a "crock of liquor," Murrell smiled and nudged Williams. Williams barely grinned. Every move of Williams was a furtive one.

Murrell's father, mother, two brothers, two sisters, two brothers-in-law and several girl friends were in court. When court adjourned they gathered about the prisoners' box, while the shackles were being adjusted. Sidney Murrell had a smile and a nod for each of them. His mother bent over toward the box as if to catch a word of cheer of parting but Murrell did not speak. Williams stood beside him, apparently little interested in the little scene. He seemed like a man alone, as if he had nothing in common with the world.

AT THE MURRELL-WILLIAMS TRIAL.

Absolute quiet was the rule in the court. Hon. Mr. Justice Wright is strict on order, and there are no opening nor shutting of doors when testimony is being given. Once or twice members of the audience snickered, when a witness made a humorous remark. They were promptly squelched by judge, sheriff and crier.

Williams seemed a bit relieved when the crown had Detective Down identify his gun and show that all five chambers were fully loaded.

Several witnesses testified as to the calibre of Sid's gun, tracing it from the time he had dropped it, when he was overpowered by villagers on the street, until it was produced in court. The fact that it was identified as his gun and that a lead slug taken from the body of the victim was described as one which would fit his gun did not move Murrell. At the end of the long day, he was as calm as he was when he entered the courtroom in the morning.

Witness Absent.

Ruthven McIntyre, who was taken ill at the morning session, was called by the crown first thing yesterday afternoon, but was not present in the building.

Mr. Rigney then called George Sponnonburg. He also was absent.

"You must impress on your witnesses that they should be prompt," stated Judge Wright.

"Yes, my lord," replied Mr. Rigney, who had better luck with his next witness, George Stevenson.

Mr. Stevenson said he lived next of Melbourne.

"I never heard of this witness before," objected Mr. Donohue.

"The crown can call any witness they choose," replied his honor.

Q—What did you hear the morning of the Melbourne affair?

A—I heard a car and saw it going into the woods west of our place, one-quarter mile distant. It was between 6:30 and 7 a.m.

Q—What followed that?

A—I wondered what was taking them into the woods.

Q—How did they get there?

A—Through a gate. The car was roaring pretty hard, as the ground was soft. We had a couple of colts running in the woods, and I wondered if they would get out. Peter McDermid helped me put up the gate. The four men were sitting round a fire on the auto cushions warming themselves.

Q—Did you converse with them?

A—Yes. I said they must have had quite a time getting their car in there. They said their car would go almost anywhere. It was a Gray-Dort. They said they were there to get whiskey off the local. The railroad runs close to the spot.

Identified Prisoners.

Witness identified Murrell and Williams as being two of the men present.

Most of the conversation was with another man who was not present in court, witness said.

Q.—Any further conversation?

A.—They said they would be there till 10:30 and then leave. I said that would be all right.

Q.—What happened next?

A.—I saw the car go past the house towards Melbourne at 10:40.

Questioned by Mr. Donahue, witness said they didn't look like dangerous men and appeared sober.

Q.—Any of them wear glasses?

A.—None that I saw.

Q.—What did the fourth man look like?

A.—Fairly thick set and fair complexion. I should imagine the fourth man would be about the same size as Sid Murrell. Sid drove the car when it went past our house.

George J. Stevenson, father of the previous witness, was next called to the stand. He heard the Murrell car go by, but didn't see it.

"I went back about 10 o'clock to see if those chaps were in the woods. Sidney Murrell was driving the car and the others were shoving behind. Williams went to close the gate and I talked to the men in the car."

Witness identified Williams and Murrell in the prisoners' box.

Q.—What was said?

A.—The man who is not here said they were in there having a drink. He said he was a member of St. John's Lodge and his name was Richardson.

Was Mason.

Cross-questioned by Mr. Donahue, Mr. Stevenson said he was not satisfied the man was a Mason.

Q.—You were suspicious?

A.—Yes, I was.

Q.—The man that got away, what did he look like?

A.—I'm not prepared to describe him.

Q.—You are prepared to describe the others, why not he?

A.—He was clean shaven.

Ruthven C. McIntyre, who collapsed in the morning, was placed on the witness stand. He was allowed to sit down, and was provided with a cup of water.

Mr. Rigney—Where was Williams?

Mr. McIntyre—Tied to a post on the Longwood road.

Mr. Rigney—Know Murrell beforc?

McIntyre—Met him in London a year before.

Mr. Rigney—Have any conversation with him in the village?

McIntyre—When we had him down I said: "We've got you this time."

Mr. Rigney—What did he say?

McIntyre—He said something; I don't know what.

Mr. Rigney—Where did the conversation in London take place?

McIntyre—Clarence street.

Mr. Rigney—Alone?

McIntyre—No; I was with Clifford Grahan of Melbourne. Another man named Murray was there.

Mr. Rigney—Just saw him the once before you saw him in Melbourne?

McIntyre—Yes.

Mr. Donahue—Did you know Murray?

McIntyre—Yes. I met him on the way home from overseas.

Mr. Donahue—What were you looking for?

McIntyre—A crock of liquor.

Sid Murrell smiled broadly at the mention of a "crock."

Mr. Donahue—Did anyone have a revolver?

McIntyre—Yes.

Mr. Donahue—Anyone say anything about a robbery at Melbourne?

McIntyre—No.

Mr. Donahue—Did you suggest the bank would be a good place to rob?

McIntyre—No.

Mr. Donahue—Didn't you think it strange that a man should have a revolver? Didn't you think you were in rough company? Didn't you think it was worth reporting to the authorities?

McIntyre—I didn't think of it at the time.

McIntyre told of passing the alleyway next to the bank three times when the raid on the bank was in progress. He stated he ducked once because shots were fired.

While McIntyre was giving his evidence, Murrell and Williams were talking to each other, smiling knowingly and occasionally glancing up at the witness.

Mr. Donahue—It would be possible for men to go behind the hotel and through to the rear of the bank.

McIntyre—Yes.

Mr. Donahue—Was a shotgun discharged?

McIntyre—No.

Mr. Rigney—How did the German automatic come to be displayed when you met Murrell in London?

McIntyre—It was sticking out of his pocket. Clifford Graham and I noticed it. Clifford wanted to buy it. Murrell refused to sell. He said: "It is my living."

Mr. Rigney—Who said "It is my living?"

McIntyre—Murrell.

Mr. Rigney—Is that your evidence?

McIntyre—Yes.

Undertaker Called.

George Sponenburgh, Melbourne undertaker, was next called to give evidence. The first he knew of the bank robbery was when Miss Campbell told him. He got his revolver and went to the bank. Robert Campbell went into the bank, and I followed him, said witness.

Q.—Did you see any person else in the bank?

A.—Yes; a person going out of the door.

Q.—Anything else?

A.—I heard some shots. I don't know how many, but about two or three.

Q.—Did the person going out the door hesitate?

A.—I just caught a glimpse of him. Later I saw Williams running down the road. I turned and fired two shots at him. He went down the street about six or seven rods, threw down his revolver and threw up his hands. Looking west, a little to the right, I saw Murrell running. Just then somebody downed him. I don't know who it was. He was just about even with Williams.

Q.—What sized revolver did you fire?

A.—.32 calibre.

Q.—Were you shooting at Williams?

A.—Yes.

Q.—How far away was he?

A.—About three rods the first time and four rods the second.

Q. After you fired the second time what happened?

A.—He went about two rods and threw up his hands.

Q.—Didn't you see a car near the bank?

A.—Yes, just west of the door.

Q.—What happened to the car?

A.—It was put in my garage and locked up. It was delivered to the owner a day later. He lives at Lambeth.

Witness was then questioned by Mr. Donahue. He said he heard shots before he arrived on the scene.

Clothing Not Available.

Witness was satisfied there were no shots fired from the street toward the back of the bank.

Q.—Did you bring your revolver with you?

A.—No, it is in Melbourne. I've had it for 20 years. I don't remember where I bought it.

Witness said his revolver was a .32.

He was not present when the clothing was removed from the body of Russell Campbell.

Q.—Who got the clothing.

A.—Some of the authorities.

Mr. Donahue asked that the clothes be produced.

Mr. Rigney stated that the clothing had been left in charge of the late Crown Attorney J. B. McKillop, and was apparently not available. Personally he would like to have the clothes produced.

Warins Witnesses.

"Anybody who leaves this court without authority will be arrested," Crown Prosecutor T. J. Rigney, K.C., notified witnesses in the halls and ante-rooms, when he found difficulty in bringing witnesses into court. He called Edward Berdan, but there was no answer.

"I'm going to have someone arrested," he said as he strode to the door and made his announcement.

Mrs. Edna Arnold (nee Edna Sharp) was the next witness. She was clerking in Farr's store the day of the robbery.

Q.—What was the first you heard of the trouble?

A.—Miss Campbell from the bank came in. Then I saw the Campbell boys come down. There was Robert, Russell and Stuart coming from the garage.

Q.—Where where you?

A.—In front of the store inside.

Q.—What did you notice about them?

A.—They were all walking together.

Q.—Any person following them?

A.—I don't know. I went to the back of the store. Stuart Campbell stopped beside the telephone pole.

Q.—Would a person standing there be able to see down the laneway?

A.—Oh, yes.

Q.—What next happened?

A.—There were some shots.

Q.—How many?

A.—I think there were three. I stopped in the store for a few minutes and went outside. There were others there by then.

Witness saw two men run out of the alley towards the postoffice. They were caught and brought back.

Q.—Was that before or after the shots were fired?

A.—After the shots.

Q.—Have you seen those parties since that came out of the alleyway?

A.—Yes, the prisoners in the dock.

Q.—Did you see the unfortunate man who was killed?

A.—Yes, lying in the alleyway.

Mr. Donahue—Did you hear more than one shot strike the store?

Mrs. Arnold—I heard two.

Mr. Donahue—Are you satisfied there were two?

Mrs. Arnold—Yes.

Mr. Donahue—You're not in a position to say which one reached the sidewalk first.

Mrs. Arnold—No, I didn't see their faces until after they came back.

Barbara Staples was called to the stand.

Mrs. Barbara C. Staples recalled the day of the bank robbery. She was living two doors east of the bank. The first thing she knew was when she saw two men running from the hotel.

Q—Who were they?

A—Mr. Ed. Berdan and Mr. B. Robertson.

Q—What next.

A—I saw the Campbell boys coming along the sidewalk towards the bank. Russell went down the lane between the bank and Parr's store while the others went on to the bank.

Q—What happened?

A—I heard someone shooting and saw two men run out of the alley.

Q—Which one came out first?

A—The one that ran out on the road.

Q—How were they running?

A—Quite swiftly, but not real fast.

Q—Did you get a good view of them?

A—Yes. I knew they were strangers.

Q—Did you see them later on?

A—Yes.

Q—Were they out of your sight until they were captured?

A—No. I saw them all the time.

Saw Body In Alley.

Q—Do you see the men today?

A—Yes. I see them in court.

Q—What next?

A—I looked up the alley and saw a body. Later I recognized it as that of Russell Campbell.

Cross-examined by Mr. Donahue, Mrs. Staples declared she couldn't say how many shots she heard.

Mr. Donahue—From what direction did the shots come?

Mrs. Staples—From the direction of the Home Bank.

Mr. Donahue—Did it appear to you that each man who ran was pursued by a different set of men?

Mrs. Staples—Yes. One man ran to the crossing west of the bank. Two men caught him on each side. The other man was caught further down.

Mr. Donahue—When the men were tied to posts, did anyone have firearms?

Mrs. Staples—No.

Mr. Donahue—Did you hear any jeering or threats made to the prisoners?

Mrs. Staples—No.

Mr. Donahue—Did anyone shout any instructions to the crowd?

Mrs. Staples—No. Of course, you will understand the people were angry at what had been done.

Mr. Donahue—It was an angry crowd, then?

Mrs. Staples—Yes.

Mrs. Staples told of seeing Campbell's body in the alleyway. She saw it carried out. She didn't know whether anyone had disturbed the body before she saw it.

Ann Atkins noticed Miss Campbell of the Home Bank running down the street. She was near Mr. Lang's store and was going for the mail.

'I saw a number of men gathering round the hotel. The Campbell boys were in the lead. The other men followed," said the witness.

Q—What did you see?

A—I didn't see anything till they were running out of the bank.

Witness was with Miss Staples when she looked down the alleyway.

Q—Had there been other people in the alley?

A—I don't know.

Q—Where were the men who were closest.

A—They hadn't got to the corner.

Q—What was done to the two men by the crowd?

A—They were tied to posts.

Witness identified Murrell and Williams as the men who had rushed out of the alley and were captured.

Q—Did you see anything else?

A—I saw a man being taken out of a barn window.

Q—Where is it?

A—Behind the bank.

Q—What happened the man?

A—He was tied to a post like the other two.

Part In Affair.

Matthew L. Walker was called to testify as to his part in the affair.

Mr. Rigney—"How did you hear of the incident?"

Walker—"Miss Wright came in and told us. Mr. Theaker, the manager, took a revolver and went out. I locked up the cash in our bank, (the Union Bank) and followed. I walked about 30 feet west of the bank. I kept watching Mr. Theaker. He stepped into the lane by the Home Bank and stepped back quickly.

"I heard a couple of shots fired as he stepped back.

"I had no gun. I heard several shots. Several of them seemed to be in the Home Bank building. Mr. Theaker stood there at the lane until Williams came out of the lane running very rapidly. Williams turned on him, pointed the gun at Mr. Theaker and then flipped the revolver up in the air. Mr. Theaker was within about 20 feet of him.

"As Williams threw the gun in the air, he said. 'I'm done, I'm through.' Mr. Theaker, Robert E. Campbell and I chased Williams. Mr. Theaker covered him and Mr. Campbell grabbed him by one arm. I then saw Stuart Campbell and some others grappling with Murrell. I went over to help them, but by the time I arrived there they had him under control. Both Williams and Murrell were captured at about the same time.

"As Murrell ran from his pursuers, he tried to turn on them with his revolver. Stuart Campbell was directly behind him.

"Murrell had a large regulation army revolver. I have seen one like it since. An officer showed it to me. Murrell's gun was lying in the grass where he dropped it."

Cross-Examined.

Cross-examination by J. M. Donahue of Mr. Walker.

Q—How far were you away from the revolver?

A—Just a few feet.

Q—You didn't pick it up?

A—No.

Q—What were you doing? Following the gang?

A—Yes; It was quite apparent the revolver was empty.

Q—You don't know whether it was empty?

A—He (Murrell) pointed it at Stuart Campbell and it didn't go off.

Q—Did you hear shots before Mr. Theaker ducked or not?

A—I heard them before and after.

Q—How many shots did you hear?

A—Several shots. I couldn't say for sure. I should say three or four shots before Mr. Theaker entered the lane.

Q—Some shots were far and some were near?

A—A couple had a far away sound.

Q.—What interval between the firing?

A.—About 30 seconds.

Q.—Any bullets hit on your side of the road?

A.—No.

Witness, like the other witnesses heard during the day, stated Williams was the first to emerge from the alley.

Q.—Was Murrell alone when he came out the lane?

A.—Yes. Stuart Campbell was behind him.

Judge Wright again declared at this juncture that there must be no talking in the courtroom. Any person caught talking would be removed, he stated.

Mervin McCallum, who lived in London at the time of the robbery, stated he was on business in Melbourne on the day of the robbery.

Mr. Donahue objected to this "surprise" witness. The trial judge stated it was proper, that there was nothing in criminal practice or otherwise to prevent it.

McCallum saw Murrell come out of the alleyway. "I saw him-caught. He was caught 200 or 300 feet west of the entrance to the alley.

"Robert Campbell, the garage man, was present. I knew him before. I had called on him on business previously.

Picked Up Gun.

"I picked up a gun. It was probably a foot and a half long. I don't know much about firearms. I didn't know enough about guns to distinguish a gun from a revolver. I turned it over to Dr. Freele.

"I was there to transact business with the late Russell Campbell. I saw him when he left for the bank. Later I saw him lying dead in the alleyway.

"I heard six or seven shots when I was in Parr's grocery store."

A large .45 calibre revolver was produced.

Mr. Rigney—What do you say about this gun?

McCallum—It is very similar to the one I saw that day. As near as I can remember it is the one I picked up.

Witness was then cross-questioned by Mr. Donahue.

Q.—Did you hear shots before you saw Mr. Theaker?

A.—Yes, shot or shots. They were fired near Parr's grocery, store.

Dr. Freele was then called to testify as regards the revolver shown the last week.

Q.—By Mr. Rigney—Are you acquainted with Mr. McCallum?

A.—No, I never saw him till today.

Q.—Did you receive anything from any person?

A.—I got two revolvers, a large and a small one. I couldn't say he was the man who gave me the revolver.

Q.—You have heard him say he did?

A.—He handed me the revolver.

Q.—Will you describe the revolver.

A.—It was a large one, compared with revolvers generally.

Q.—What would you say to this one (producing revolver)?

A.—That looks like the one.

Q.—What did you do with it?

A.—I gave it to Detective Down with another one.

Admits Point.

Cross-examining Dr. Freele on evidence he had given at the inquest, Mr. Donahue asked if witness had not said one man gave him both revolvers. He admitted this.

Sergt.-Detective Harry Down told of going to Melbourne on the day of the robbery, in company with Detective-Inspector Thomas Nickle. "I saw Murrell and Williams tied to posts. I had seen Williams in London before. He had been hanging around the poolrooms in London with the boys."

Detective Down identified the .45-calibre revolver as one given him by Dr. Freele for safe keeping. He declared the gun was a Colt .45.

Handed a lead slug, Detective Down said it was a .45-calibre bullet.

He declared there were six chambers in the revolver, five with empty shells in them, and one without a shell.

"We brought the prisoners to the police station in London. We searched them and prepared them for the lockup.

"I showed the guns to Sid Murrell, Bill Murrell and Williams."

Mr. Rigney—How many guns were there?

Detective Down—Three.

"Williams said 'I was just going to give my gun to someone, when someone shot me and my gun is covered with blood.'"

Detective Down then produced Williams' gun, a five-shot .38-calibre.

"The gun was fully loaded," witness stated, taking five cartridges out of the gun.

Mr. Rigney—Was any promise or inducement made by you or anyone else to one or any number of the accused?

Detective Down—No, nothing.

Mr. Rigney—What, then?

Detective Down—Williams pointed to his gun. William Murrell pointed to his. Then Sidney Murrell pointed to the big gun and said, "That is the gun I had at Melbourne."

Detective Questioned.

Detective Down was then questioned by Mr. Donahue.

Q.—Could you distinguish between a .44 and .45 calibre revolver?

A.—No.

Q.—Are you in a position to say whether same kind of bullet could be used in rifle?

A.—I think so.

Q.—You can't identify a bullet properly without its calibre.

A.—No.

Q.—You were at the preliminary hearing and inquest?

A.—No, sir, just the preliminary.

Mr. Donahue then told the court that there were several happenings at the hearing he would like to bring out about the feeling of the people.

Q.—Was there any open demonstration by the people at the hearing?

Mr. Rigney objected to this question and was upheld.

Q.—Were there any threats?

This question was also ruled out.

Mr. Donahue—I intend to refer to the escape of the prisoners.

The Judge—It is your case, but you should give it the utmost consideration.

This ended Detective Down's evidence.

"You'd better stay within call, Mr. Down. Mr. Donahue may want you," said his lordship just before court was adjourned till 9:30 a.m.

SAYS AUTOCRACY SWEEPING WORLD

Lloyd George Declares Britain, U. S. and France Will Resist Force.

GREAT WELCOME

Associated Press Despatch.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—Five years after the great war, democracy, which in 1918 won a victory over autocracy, is in peril, David Lloyd George, the war time premier of Great Britain, declared in a luncheon address here today. A wave of autocracy seems to be sweeping over the world, he declared, but against it Great Britain, the United States and France will stand together.

"Russia threw over democracy a few months after starting the experiment," the former premier asserted. "Italy, Spain, Bulgaria and now Germany, is talking about a dictatorship. Democracy is in peril, in peril five years after the greatest triumph democracy has ever had.

"Why is democracy more sure, safer? It is slower to begin, it does not bring its forces into action in the way perhaps an autocracy does, but in a struggle it is the heart that tells, and democracy sustains the heart, and what happens is that democratic institutions alone can produce and train men that are able to appeal to nations, to rise to those heights of sacrifice which are the last citadels of freedom in all lands.

Land of Democracy.

"Now, when democracy is in danger, when I can see the throne of democracy stumbling in one land after another, here you have a land of democracy. Britain is the land of democracy, and France, I believe, will stand by democracy, and whatever happens these three great lands together will stand against this wave of autocracy which seems to be sweeping over the world."

The arrival of the distinguished visitor was marked by a great demonstration. Met at the station by a reception committee headed by Mayor Dever, Mr. Lloyd George was taken upon a drive through the Loop section preceded by a band from the Great Lakes Naval Training Station and an escort of cavalry and flanked and followed by mounted police and official cars. Crowds packed the sidewalks, while others hung from windows and other places of vantage high up on the buildings.

Roar of Welcome.

Confetti and streamers filled the air, while there was a continuous road of welcome as the automobile bearing the former premier, with bared head, passed through the streets. Arriving at the Lasalle, Mr Lloyd George went immediately to luncheon, which was tendered him by the Chicago Association of Commerge, where several hundred more applauded his appearance. It was in response to official speeches of welcome by Mayor Dever and association officials that he delivered his address of the day.

Later Mr. Lloyd George went to his headquarters at the Drake Hotel, to remain quietly until evening, when he was the guest at a private dinner given by Brigadier-General Charles J. Dawes, former director of the federal budget. The distinguished visitor plans to spend tomorrow quietly, but tomorrow night will deliver a formal public address at a mass meeting. He will leave for Springfield Thursday.

ALDERMAN TO PRESENT GRIEVANCES IN PERSON

Sarnia Police Wrangle Starts Anew With Mr. Turnbull's Declaration.

Special to The Advertiser.

Sarnia, Oct. 16.—The way of the Sarnia police commission and of Chief W. J. Lannin has been no bed of roses for several months past owing to repeated attacks on the administration by several of the aldermen of the city.

The matter came up again at the city council Monday night and Ald. Turnbull declared his intention of attending the next police commission meeting to present grievances in person. This followed a report of the mayor that the police commission had been unable to deal with a general complaint made at a previous council meeting of an alleged czar-like demeanor on the part of the chief of police, the complainant being Ald. Barr. Ald. Turnbull's complaint has reference to a purchase of two civilian suits in lieu of uniforms. Another complaint, that of Wm. Ellis, charging unwarranted arrest has been settled.

Mayor Cook announced that the police commission had revoked the order of the chief cancelling the license of J. T. Dougherty, a local taxi-driver, following a conviction for selling liquor.

The convention discussed ways and means of restricting the tobacco traffic, especially as regards young people.

"If any woman could succeed in driving tobacco out of Saskatchewan, she would deserve to be canonized," said Mrs. Bigelow.

SAYS SINN FEIN POLICY PASSIVE RESISTANCE

Mary MacSwinney Speaks Before Dublin Convention—1,200 Attend.

Associated Press Despatch.

Dublin, Oct. 16.—The Sinn Fein convention or Ard Fheis held at the Mansion House today fulfilled the expectations of its promoters. More than 1,200 attended from Sinn Fein clubs in all of the 32 counties.

Mary MacSwinney, elected president in the absence of De Valera, who is in jail, defined the future policy of the Sinn Fein as passive resistance to the Free State, and the resolutions proposed cover a detailed program with this purpose in view. One of these protests against the Free State entering the League of Nations as a British colony.

Little business was done today owing to adjournment for the funeral of Captain Noel Lemass, a Republican, who was seized by armed men in Dublin last June and whose body was found in the Dublin hills last week with a bullet through the brain. It was the most imposing funeral Dublin has seen in a long time.

DRINK WATER TO HELP WASH OUT KIDNEY POISON

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Begin Taking Salts.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.—Advt.

WALLACEBURG COUNCIL CHANGES ELECTION DATE

Special to The Advertiser.

Wallaceburg, Oct. 16.—At a town council meeting held here tonight a bylaw was passed switching the date of the municipal election for Wallaceburg. Nomination day this year will be Monday, Nov. 26, and election day on the first Monday in December. In previous years nomination day was held on the last Monday in December and election day on the first Monday in January.

In a proposed bylaw it was suggested that the fire truck should answer any call within a radius of twelve miles of Wallaceburg, but the council, after a lengthy session, decided that this be reduced to two miles. It was feared that a fire might occur in the town when the truck was a considerable distance away. A charge of $10 is to be levied for each trip, and $15 for every hour the truck is out.

WITNESS BET TWO-TO-ONE MURRELL WOULD HANG

tenants occupied seats near the south door of the courtroom, in a direct line between the door and the prisoners' box.

Two spectators who were sitting in the aisle at the back of the room were ordered to take seats in the jury box used by the grand jury Monday.

John Lee was the first witness at the afternoon session, which opened at 1:45. Mr. Lee stated he was at work in his garage when someone hollered that the Home Bank was being robbed. He saw some people on the road.

Q.—What happened?

A.—I saw what was needed, and got a rope. I went up and tied Sid Murrell's arms behind his back.

Q.—Where was the car?

A.—East of where Murrell was standing.

Q.—Anybody in the car before you got into it?

A.—No. The motor was shut off.

Q.—What became of the car?

A.—It was taken to the town hall. I don't know what happened after that.

Q.—Do you know anything about the ownership of the car?

A.—No.

Witness was then questioned by Mr. Donahue.

Q.—What kind of rope did you use to tie Murrell?

A.—Ahorse-tying rope.

Q.—What did you do?

A.—Tied Murrell's arms.

Q.—What did they do with him?

A.—I don't know.

Q.—What did you do then?

A.—My attention was taken up by the car.

Q.—Did you examine the equipment of the car.

A.—No.

Palmer Is Called.

Provincial Officer Arthur H. Palmer was the second witness of the afternoon. He was in Melbourne the day of the robbery.

Q.—Do you know anything about the case?

AA.—A car was stolen that morning from Mr. Uutigrove of Lambeth. It was stolen from a garage at Byron. Byron is about 15 miles east of Melbourne.

Q.—The car was reported as stolen by whom?

A.—Mr. Uptigrove of Lambeth.

Q.—What did you do?

A.—Just as I was starting out on a hunt for the car I heard of the Melbourne robbery. I took Mr. Uptigrove and Mr. Wadsworth of Byron with me, feeling sure their car would be there, and it was there. Mr. Uptigrove identified his car.

Q.—What have you got in your hand?

A.—A flashlight I found under the seat of the car.

Witness was then questioned by Mr. Donahue.

Q.—You saw the prisoners tied to the posts?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did they have hats on?

A.—William Murrell did.

Q.—Were the others bareheaded?

A.—I don't remember.

Q.—Were you offered any further evidence in the robbery?

A.—No.

Q.—Were you provincial officer of his district?

A.—Yes.

Q.—When you were in Melbourne would be the scope of your employment to make an investigation?

A.—I was searching for the fourth man all day. That was quite enough for one day.

Q.—You made on inquiry as to clothing of deceased?

A.—No.

Dr. Freele was then recalled to the box by Mr. Rigney.

The prisoners entered the dock at 9:25 this morning. Murrell looked slightly worried. As the trial progresses he doesn't appear to be quite so jaunty as when he first took his seat in the prisoners box Monday afternoon. There are deep circles under his eyes.

Williams was the same apathetic figure as Monday. He clasped his hands over his knees and twisted his fingers nervously.

After the roll call of jurymen, Crown Prosecutor Rigney called Inspector of Detectives Thomas Nickle of London to the witness box.

Inspector Nickle told of the trip to Melbourne with Detective Down.

Q—What happened?

A—Detective Down took up the chase for the other man. I had the men tied to the poles released and the handcuffs put on them.

Shortly after William Murrell was captured by an Indian boy. Detective Down came back in about an hour and we returned to London with Sid and William Murrell and Jack Williams.

When we got to London we searched the men who identified their revolvers.

Q—Where were they searched?

A—At the north end of the police station.

Q—Who brought them in from the automobile?

Down Had Guns.

A—Detective Down and I.

THOMAS NICKLE.
Inspector of Detectives, who gave evidence at the Murrell-Williams' trial supporting the statements of Sergeant of Detectives Harry Down to the effect that Sidney Murrell had claimed the 45-calibre revolver produced in court.

Q—Where were the revolvers?

A—Detective Down had them.

Q—When did you first see them?

A—At the police station.

Q—Where were the prisoners—within his sight?

A—Yes.

Q—What did he (Down) say?

A—He said something to the effect that each one should pick out his revolver.

Mr. Donahue objected to the manner in which questions were being asked.

Q—Did anything follow that request?

A—Yes. Each one individually described his revolver.

Q—Who was the first?

A—Sidney Murrell said the large one was his.

Q—What size?

A—A45 calibre revolver. The other two were 38 calibre.

Q—What followed that?

A.—Williams and Murrell identified theirs.

Q.—What did Williams say?

A.—Williams said that was his, picking out his gun.

Judge Wright—Did you examine the revolver?

A.—I did not.

Mr. Rigney—What was done with the accused?

A.—They were locked up in the cells.

Witness was then cross-examined by Mr. Donahue.

Q.—Have you anything else in connection with the trial in your possession?

A.—No.

Q.—What happened to the clothing?

A.—It was given to the undertaker by the late Mr. McKillop.

Sid Murrell Chose First.

Q.—You're satisfied that Sid Murrell was the first to pick out the gun?

A.—Yes.

Q.—What did he say?

A.—"It's mine, Harry." Or something to that effect.

Q.—Did he say anything else?

A.—I don't think so.

Q.—What would you say to Murrell's complexion, now and then?

A.—I would fancy it to be a little darker.

Q.—More ruddy?

A.—No. I think he has developed a little while he was away.

John Mair Called.

John Mair was the second witness of the morning. He took the stand at 9:50.

"I can't hear very well," said Mr. Mair, who is a retired farmer.

Q.—Do you remember the day the bank was robbed?

A.—Yes, I was going to the postoffice when Mr. McCrae spoke to me, but being deaf I didn't hear what he said. I knew when I got to the bank, for I saw a man with a revolver in his hand in the front of the bank.

Q.—Where was the revolver?

A.—Pointing straight out.

Q.—Who was he?

A.—The person arrested later as Williams.

Q.—You saw the man later in the day?

A.—Yes. He was standing in the same position when I came out of the postoffice.

Q.—Have you seen him since?

A.—Yes. Tied to the poles; and at the preliminary hearing.

Q.—Have you seen him since?

A.—No; I can't see very well. (Witness was then led from the box to look about the courtroom.)

Had to Change Glasses.

"I must change my glasses," said the witness. "I've got my walking glasses on. I must change them for the reading glasses."

(Witness went to within six feet of the box and pointed dramatically at Williams. "That's Williams!" he said.

Q—Who is that?

A—That's Murrell.

Both prisoners smiled as the old man identified them.

Q—What elsce did you see?

A—I saw Russell Campbell go down the laneway and look in the side door. I was standing at the corner of the bank and the alleyway.

Q—Did you continue to stand there?

A—Yes.

Q—What did you see?

A—I looked around. There were more coming down the road. Then I heard the shots.

Q—How many?

A—Two or three.

Q—Where were they?

A—Down the alleyway.

Q—How many people were there?

A—I looked down the alleyway and I saw a person dropping, and there was a person facing them. The one that was dropping was facing toward the door in the side of the bank.

Q—Just continue.

A—I saw him as he was dropping down. I saw the other, as if he was coming towards the street. There were some others behind him.

Q—Just continue.

A—There seemed to be sort of a scuffle. The party seemed to get clear and break onto the street.

Saw A Flash.

Q—How many people were in the alleyway?

A—I couldn't say for certain. I recognized Robert Campbell, but didn't notice who the others were. When I was looking I saw a flash.

Q—What do you mean by that?

A—I mean, my sight wasn't on the place all the time.

Q.—Did you remain at the corner?

A.—Yes.

Q.—What did the person coming out of the alley do?

A.—He went west. He was running.

Q.—When did you first see Robert Campbell.

A.—He was near where the other man dropped.

Q.—What was he doing?

A.—There was a kind of a mix. He seemed to have hold of someone. I recognized Russell Campbell when he went down.

Q.—Did you recognize the man hear Russell Campbell?

A.—Yes, he was the same person taken to the hotel.

Q.—There were two taken there?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Who was the man you say was close to Campbell?

A.—Sidney Murrell.

Q.—When you saw Russell Campbell fall, what happened?

A.—The parties came to the front of the lane.

Q.—First of all, you say you saw Campbell in front of a man whom you say is Sidney Murrell?

A.—Yes.

Q.—How close would he be to him?

A.—Very close.

Q.—Anything in his hand?

A.—Yes, a gun.

Q.—Who had the gun?

A.—Murrell.

Q.—Did you hear any shots after Russell Campbell fell?

A.—Not until the parties got on the street.

Q.—What then?

A.—There were shots fired, two or three of them.

Q.—Who fired them?

A.—I don't know.

Witness was then cross-questioned by Mr. Donahue.

"Was Your Sight Perfect?"

Q.—At the time of these events was your eyesight perfect?

A.—No, I wouldn't swear to anything 12 or 14 feet off.

Q.—If I were to play a trick on you and substituted someone else coming up to you?

A.—You couldn't do it.

Q.—You would be just guessing, wouldn't you?

A.—No. In this case I saw him so close and what was coming behind.

Q.—How close was Murrell to you?

A.—I wouldn't have been able to distinguish him if I hadn't seen him out of my sight.

Q.—Was he out of your sight?

A.—No, he was not; I could swear it.

Q.—Were there others in the lane at the same time?

Fixed on Murrell.

A.—There might have been, but my vision was fixed on him.

Q.—Where were the men standing?

A.—About five feet from the bank doorway. It might have been more.

Q.—Can you swear there were others in the alleyway at that time?

A.—I didn't recognize anyone, but I think there were.

Q.—Were Campbell and Murrell facing each other?

A.—I wouldn't say that.

Q.—Which side of the alleyway were you on?

A.—The west side. I looked up the alleyway and saw Russell.

Q.—Were you there when he turned up?

A.—Yes, I was wondering where he was going.

Q.—Was he running to the back door?

A.—I wouldn't say.

Q.—Are you able to tell whether he was running?

A.—I couldn't tell you the pace.

Q.—How long would it take him to get there?

A.—Not very long. Everything went off so quickly. There were other things to think of besides the time.

"What Did You See?"

Q.—What did you see going on?

A.—I saw other parties coming up.

Q.—Anyone you knew? Were you all by yourself at the alleyway?

A—I was at first.

Q—When you saw Russell Campbell going up the alleyway, was there anyone with you?

A—No. I don't think so, they were passing in front of me going to the bank.

Q—Any person at the corner of Parr's store?

A—Yes.

Q—Who was there?

A—I don't know. There were parties there.

Q—Did you recognize any person on the opposite side of the alleyway?

A—I didn't recognize them then.

Q—You turned then to see who was coming from the west?

A—Yes.

Q—For how long?

A—Till I heard shots.

Q—When you heard shots you looked again toward the alley?

A—Yes.

Q—What did you see?

A—I saw Russell Campbell falling down, facing the prisoner.

Q—Did it look as if Russell Campbell was trying to stop the man from getting to the sidewalk.

A—It looked that way.

Q—How were Campbell's hands? Were they up?

His Hands Were Up.

A—Yes. They were raised above his shoulders.

Q—Will you swear that?

A—Yes.

Q—How far down was he when you saw him?

A—He seemed to be quite a little bit lower than the other man.

Q—Were his knees bending?

A—They must have been.

Q—Did he have hold of the other person?

A—I couldn't say.

Q—How were the hands pointed?

A—Toward the person in front.

Q—This other person that you saw; how much of him did you see?

A—I could see the upper part of him

Q—How much did you see?

A—I couldn't say exactly.

Q—In what position were his hands?

A—I couldn't say.

Q—Did you see his hands?

A—Yes. He had a gun in his hand.

Q—In what position was it?

A—I'm not sure.

Q—Did you notice anything in his other hand?

A—No.

Q—How long did they remain in that position?

A—Just momentarily.

Q—Did you see Russell Campbell fall to the ground?

A—I didn't see him drop to the ground.

Q—You didn't see him drop straight down?

A—No.

Q—What prevented you?

A—I don't know, unless I just glanced at other parties from behind.

Q—Something obscured your view?

A—Something must have been fixed momentarily on my mind.

Q.—Did you see any bricks flying?

A.—I couldn't say there was or there wasn't.

Anyone at the Rear?

Q.—Did you see anyone at the rear of the alleyway?

A.—I didn't notice anyone.

Q.—There may have been others there?

A.—There might have been.

Q.—When did you hear the first shot?

A.—The shots were fired before I saw them (Campbell and Murrell) in that position.

Q.—Where were they coming from?

A.—From the side entrance, I thought.

Q.—At the time you were looking, did you know that was Russell Campbell?

A.—No, his back was towards me. I wouldn't swear to him?

Q.—You didn't see him fall to the ground?

A.—No, near the ground. He was just going down.

Q.—Was he falling backwards?

A.—He seemed to be.

Q.—Did these men have hold of each other?

A.—I couldn't say.

Q.—Did it look as if they were struggling?

A.—It looked that way.

Q.—Did you see the revolver?

A.—Yes, in his hand.

Q.—Was he using it to push?

A.—No, not when I saw him.

Q.—The whole time you were at the alleyway you cannot say who was on the other corner?

A.—I know Theaker was there. I noticed him when they broke out of the alleyway.

Q.—Did you notice him before that?

A.—I can't say that I did or didn't.

Q.—Do you know Mr. Little?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Was he there?

Q.—When you looked up the alley you saw two men, whose identity you won't swear to?

It Was Sid Murrell.

A.—The one that came out was Sidney Murrell.

Mr. Rigney—Is there any shadow of a doubt in your mind today as to the men in the alley?

A.—None whatever. Murrell was facing the street.

Q.—Who was the other?

A.—Russell Campbell.

Q.—Is it correct to say they were facing each other?

A.—Yes.

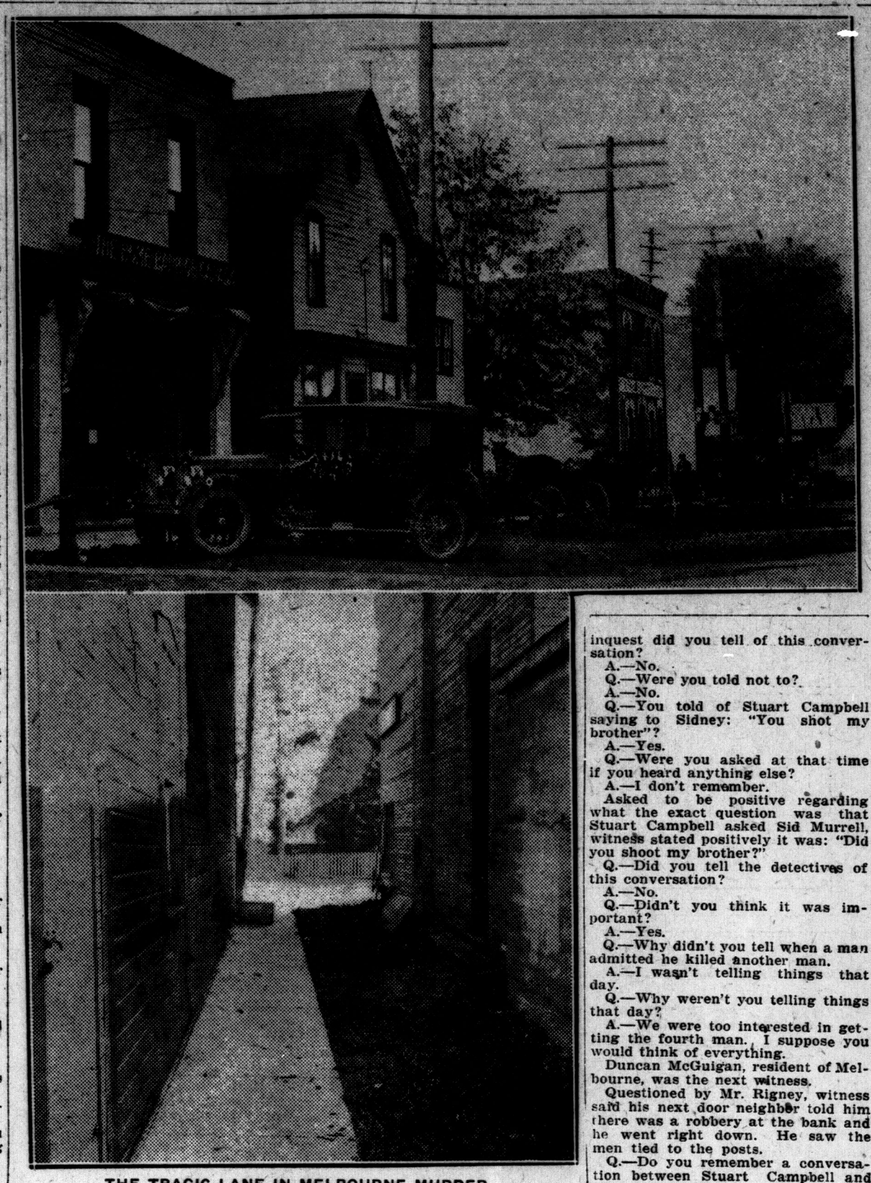

Robt. E. Campbell, implement agent at Melbourne, declared he was a witness of the bank robbery.

Mr. Rigney—Are you any relation to the late Russell Campbell?

A.—No.

Q.—Tell us what you saw from the beginning.

A.—I was coming down the townline. I was going toward the Longwood road. I walked over just in front of the hotel at the corner. I stayed there until Stuart, Robert and Russell Campbell came out. I followed almost to the milliner's shop.

THE TRAGIC LANE IN MELBOURNE MURDER.

The upper picture shows the quiet main street of Melbourne, which in April, 1921, saw the swift tragedy of the robbery and murder for which Sid Murrell and Slim Williams are now on trial. The Home Bank, scene of the hold-up, is on the left of the top picture. Murrell and Williams ran out of the alleyway beside it and were tied to the second and third telephone posts following their capture. The square sign at the right of the top picture belongs to Campbell's Garage, from which the Campbell brothers came to attack the bandits. The lower picture is a close-up of the alleyway of which the entrance is shown in the top view. The gunmen came out of the side door of the bank, and in the alley Russell Campbell confronted them in the tragic fight which cost him his life. Campbell fell mortally wounded and managed to drag himself down this alley to within a few feet of the street, where his body was found.

Robert and Stuart went in the bank. Russell went into the alleyway. There were a few shots in the bank and a few in the alleyway. Williams dashed out of the lane and Murrell followed. I followed Williams, along with Mr. Theaker of the Union Bank. Williams threw up his hands. I grabbed Williams and led him up to the alleyway. Some of the boys had Murrell. They were all in a heap.

I didn't know anyone had been shot until I saw Stuart with his arms around his brother's body in the alleyway. He had his hand under his brother's head. Then he came right out.

"Did You Shoot."

We led Williams and Murrell to the posts and tied them up. Stuart came to the posts where the prisoners were tied and said to Sid Murrell: "Did you shoot my brother?" Murrell replied: "I'm not denying it. I fired five shots." Williams was about eight feet away.

Q.—Did you hear any other conversation?

A.—Yes. William Murrell was brought to the corner. He was about four or five feet away from Williams and about four feet away from Sid Murrell.

Q.—Whom was the conversation between?

A.—William and Sidney Murrell.

Q.—Who spoke first?

A.—William Murrell.

Q.—What did he say?

A.—He asked Sidney if he did the shooting.

Q.—What did Sidney say?

A.—He nodded his head like this (witness nodded affirmatively). Then William Murrell said: "You fool." Then the three prisoners whispered together. Sidney told them all to keep quiet.

Mr. Donahue, cross-examining:

Q.—Where were you when they were captured?

A.—Near the post.

Q.—Who tied them to the post?

A.—I helped.

Q.—Who else?

A.—E. L. McGugan, Mr. McCallum and others.

Q.—Did you have to wait for ropes?

A.—Yes.

Q.—How long?

A.—Five minutes.

Q.—Who was holding the prisoners?

A.—I was holding one of them.

Q.—Which one?

A.—Williams.

Q.—Who had Sidney in charge?

A.—Two or three.

Q.—Where was William Murrell tied?

A.—He wasn't tied.

Q.—Not at that time?

A.—No.

Q.—Who brought William Murrell to the hotel?

A.—Howard Hansford and myself.

Q.—Where did you get him?

A.—We took charge of him at the barn, where he was handed out.

Q.—Was William Murrell tied?

A.—No. The others were released when the detectives arrived. Then he was handed over.

Q.—When did Sidney make the statement to his brother?

A.—When the prisoners were shackled. Detective Nickle was there.

Q.—Where were they when this whispered conversation took place?

A.—At the corner near the hotel. They were waiting with Detective Nickle.

Q.—What were they waiting for?

A.—To get hold of the fourth man, I guess.

Q.—Was Detective Nickle close enough to hear the conversation?

A.—He might have been.

Did Not Tell Before.

Q.—At the preliminary hearing and inquest did you tell of this conversation?

A.—No.

Q.—Were you told not to?

A.—No.

Q.—You told of Stuart Campbell saying to Sidney: "You shot my brother"?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Were you asked at that time if you heard anything else?

A.—I don't remember.

Asked to be positive regarding what the exact question was that Stuart Campbell asked Sid Murrell, witness stated positively it was: "Did you shoot my brother?"

Q.—Did you tell the detectives of this conversation?

A.—No.

Q.—Didn't you think it was important?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Why didn't you tell when a man admitted he killed another man.

A.—I wasn't telling things that day.

Q.—Why weren't you telling things that day?

A.—We were too interested in getting the fourth man. I suppose you would think of everything.

Duncan McGuigan, resident of Melbourne, was the next witness.

Questioned by Mr. Rigney, witness said his next door neighbor told him there was a robbery at the bank and he went right down. He saw the men tied to the posts.

Q.—Do you remember a conversation between Stuart Campbell and Sidney Murrell?

A.—Yes. Campbell said, "You killed my brother."

Q.—Where were you?

A.—Ten feet from Murrell.

Q.—What did Murrell say?

A.—He answered, but I didn't hear what he said.

Questioned by Mr. Donahue—Did Campbell ask a question of Murrell?

A.—No, just the statement, "You killed my brother."

Q.—Those are the exact words?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Were any others around?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Was there any conversation between any of the prisoners and Melbourne people?

A.—I don't know.

Q.—What were the people doing? Were they quiet spectators?

A.—Yes.

Murray Laing Called.

Murray Laing, of Melbourne, took the stand.

Mr. Rigney—What did you see?

A.—I saw Williams run out of the alley.

Q.—Where were you when he ran out?

A.—About 10 feet past the hotel, going toward the bank.

Q.—Who else did you see?

A.—Mr. Theaker.

Q.—What direction did Williams run?

A.—West.

Q.—Did you watch him?

A.—Yes.

Q.—What did he do?

A.—I saw him throw up his hands.

Q.—Were they empty?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you see Sid Murrell, the prisoner in the dock?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Where was he?

A.—Tied up.

Q.—Did you go up to either of these men after they were captured?

A.—Yes, Williams.

Q.—How was he?

A.—He was white. He looked frightened.

Q.—Did you notice anything about Mr. Theaker?

A.—Yes. He had a gun. Mr. Theaker fired at Williams when he was running.

Q.—How many shots?

A.—I don't know.

Q.—Was Williams hit?

A.—Yes. His hand was bleeding and he said he was hit.

Q.—Do you know anything about the rope?

A.—Yes. A woman brought some rope. The prisoners were tied up. They were stopped at the alleyway.

Q.—Why were they stopped?

A.—There was a body in the alleyway and a great crowd.

Q.—Any conversation?

A.—Yes. Stuart Campbell said to Sidney Murrell: "You killed my brother."

Q.—Do you know whether he made any reply?

A.—I don't know.

Q.—When they were taken down to the corner and tied to a post, did you hear any conversation?

A.—No, sir.

Q.—Where was Mr. Theaker when Williams ran out of the alley?

A.—On the road and slightly to the east.

Q.—Did you hear any shots besides those Mr. Theaker fired?

A.—Yes.

Mr. Donahue—Did you have any firearms that day?

A.—Not until about an hour after I heard about the trouble.

Q.—Did you give anyone firearms?

Laing was silent.

Gave Campbell Rifle.

Mr. Donahue turned to evidence given at the preliminary hearing and refreshed Laing's memory, telling him that he had said he had given Stuart Campbell a .22 calibre rifle.

Laing admitted Stuart Campbell had received the rifle.

"I left it in front of the store for him," witness explained. "Miss Campbell told me about the hold-up. I brought the rifle downstairs and set it in the store. I was at the back of the store when Stuart came in. I didn't see Stuart take the rifle. My father told me he had taken it."

Q.—What were you at the back of the store for?

A.—I was looking for another gun.

Q.—Did you expect to find one there?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Were you in the habit of keeping one there?

A.—Yes, I had a shotgun there.

Q.—Did you find it?

A.—No.

Q.—When do you want us to understand you saw Williams?

A.—When he crossed the sidewalk just as he came out of the alleyway.

Q.—After Williams came out of the alleyway, did you see anyone else come out of the alleyway?

A.—No, I was watching Williams.

Q.—Who had Murrell in charge?

A.—I remember the face, but I don't remember the name.

Q.—Did you see Robert E. Campbell at any time during the capture or the tying up of the prisoners?

A.—I think he was with the men who had Williams.

Q.—Where were you when you heard the first shot?

A.—In front of the hotel.

Q.—Did you hear any shots after that?

A.—Yes.

Q.—How many?

A.—I don't know.

Q.—Would you like to fix the number between certain numbers?

A.—Between three and six.

Q.—Did you see the fourth man?

A.—No.

Burley Robinson, when called to the stand, said he was a resident of Melbourne. He was at Mr. Laing's corner when the bank was robbed.

Q.—What did you hear?

A.—I heard Miss Campbell holler there was a holdup. I ran to the bank, and someone pushed a revolver in my face.

Q.—Who was that?

A.—Mr. Williams. He was in the front door.

Q.—Did you step into the bank?

A.—No. I stepped west of the bank.

Witness identified Williams in the box.

Q.—Was he pointing the revolver?

A.—Yes, sir, at me.

Q.—What did you do?

A.—I waited west of the bank till they came out of the alleyway.

Saw Murrell Running.

Q.—Who came out of the alleyway?

A.—Mr. Murrell.

Q.—Anyone else?

A.—That's all I saw.

Q.—How did he come out of the alley?

A.—He was running. As he passed me I tripped him. He was running for the car.

Q.—What car?

A.—I don't know, the engine of the car was running.

Q.—Did he reach the car?

A.—No.

Q.—You tripped him?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you see any person else beside Murrell?

A.—I couldn't say.

Q.—When you tripped him what did he do?

A.—He fell.

Q.—What next?

A.—We jumped on him?

Q.—Who?

A.—Robert and Stuart Campbell and myself.

Q.—The men pounced upon him?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did he have anything with him?

A.—He had a revolver?

Q.—Did he have it when you tripped him?

A.—Yes; it fell out of his hand. It was a big revolver.

Q.—Did you see the revolver afterwards?

A.—Yes, at the coroner's inquest.

Q—Anything said when you piled on this man?

A—I couldn't tell you.

Q—Did you say anything?

A—No.

Mr. Rigney then produced the revolver Detective Down identified as that of Sidney Murrell.

Couldn't Identify It.

Witness thought it was a big one, and looked like the one Murrell had. He didn't identify it any further.

Q—Did you hear anything said to Murrell?

A—Yes.

Q—Who?

A—Dunc. McGregor.

Q—Where was Williams?

A—Close.

Q—Did Sid Murrell make a reply?

A—I didn't hear him say anything.

Witness was then questioned by Mr. Donahue.

Q—You went past the bank door?

A—I peeked in.

Q—You saw Williams?

A—Yes. He pointed a gun at me.

Q—How many shots did you hear?

A—About four.

Q—Where were you when you tripped Murrell?

A—West of the bank near Silverwood's.

Q—Did you hear anyone threaten or question Murrell?

A—Mr. McGregor.

Q—Anyone else?

A—Bob Campbell.

Q—Did you see many people going up to them to ask questions?

A—No, sir.

Made Bet On Verdict.

Q—Do you know Mr. Graydon, at Leonard's?

A—Yes.

Q—Did you bet with him?

A—Yes.

Q—What?

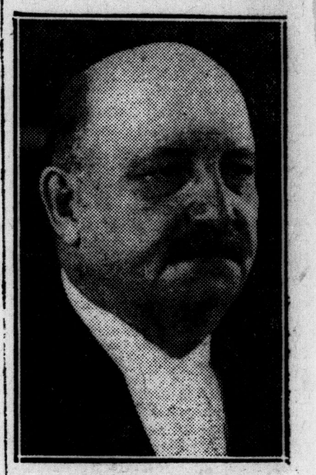

A—Two to one.

Q—What?

A — That Murrell would be hanged.

Mr. Donahue—That will do. Step aside. I don't think the jury will want to hear any more.

This concluded the morning's evidence, court being adjourned till 1:45.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1923.

The Two Main Points.

If the electors of London are going to vote on the matter of a city hall on the McCormick site they should consider the matter as they would their own business. If a man has in mind a new house or an addition to his present one, there are two things that will come to his mind (1) do we need it, and (2) can we afford it, or how can it be financed?

Apply the same reasoning to the city hall problem. Do we need it? Some years ago the need was so keenly felt that steps were taken to clear out a block for the erection. The general public have not much knowledge of the present city hall premises. They may have faced the tax collector, but as a general thing they have not been through the premises.

To attend a council meeting it is necessary to climb one set of creaking stairs from a dimly-lighted old landing. At the top a turn is made between a railing and the wall, the space being just enough for one person. Then another flight of steps to the place where the council meets in surroundings so crude and inadequate as not to be comparable to any other place around here. It is a positive fire trap, dingy, cramped, and poorly ventilated.

The outside appearance adds nothing to the street. The hydro shop and public utilities building on the corner is the one bright spot. It is a good business location, and would, if vacated, soon be turned to a useful purpose.

At present the corner across is vacant, waiting for the city hall building. It is an unsightly looking spot and a detriment to the district. There is no longer a thrill in the idea that a city hall is to be built there.

The question of the need for the building can be settled by any individual ratepayer, and it is not necessary to take any person's word for it. The buildings are there and they speak for themselves.

Can it be financed?

The figures on this subject have been published many times. The city needs $600,000. From the sale of the old Richmond street city hall, proceeds of debentures, some of which have been out for ten years already, and the price received from the public utilities for the corner, there is $406,844.50. Take from that the price paid for the Spencer Block, where the city hall now stands, $61,305.30, and there is left $345,539.20. The present city hall is worth as a business property $95,000, an increase in the assets of $34,000. That means that $380,000 is in sight by the sale of existing property, and the legislature has given the city the right to dispose of any or all this property for the purpose of securing funds to build a new city hall.

Ratepayers should not have to face a debenture issue of much over $200,000 to put a building on that important corner that would be a credit to the city, provide offices for bringing together various public and semi-public activities, and allow the Spencer Block to give way to the trend of business development along Dundas street.

Paying for Their Height.

Brantford street railway commissioners are puzzled as to where half-fare starts or stops for children. Age is a deceptive thing, because some little folks of 13 look like 10, and a well-fattened lad of 11 looks like 13.

So they are going by the height. If a child is 51 inches or over he's a full fare—under that half-fare.

Thus will the short, stout ones ride for half, while the long variety pay the full price.

So it is that the child, like the man, who is bound to go up, must pay the price.

So They Go Up.

When the financiers finished their work after the world series at New York they found that 301,430 people had attended the games.

As they passed through the gates they left $1,063,815 with the treasury.

The players on the victorious Yankee team get $6,530 each, and those on the Giants $4,363.

It is only when one looks at the figures that he realizes what a tremendous financial affair professional baseball has turned out to be. It is commercialized to the 'teenth degree.

And yet the whole game depends on the young players who start on the sand lots, and then turn to the amateur leagues. The big leagues have their scouts out all over the continent, on both sides of the line. When a player starts to show unusual ability, he is picked up, just as Brooklyn took young McPhee from the St. Thomas team this fall.

So the finished article that draws spectators from all over the continent to the annual world series is simply a reflection of the best that the sand lots have produced.

In baseball or anything else, the man who does things better than the rest is going to be beckoned to come up higher. Professional baseball is simply following proved business rules.

The Hypnotist Again.

In a murder trial at Marshfield, Ore., the plea is made that a 16-year-old boy killed his stepmother when under the hypnotic influence of an astrologist.

The boy, in his statement, says he had never been able to shake off the influence of the astrologist, who is his uncle. The result is that both the boy and his uncle face the murder charge.

Fortunately we hear and see less of hypnotism in this country than used to be the custom. Not so many years ago the traveling professor used to call subjects—rather they were victims—from the audience and put them under his control.

In one city in Western Ontario the professor took a boy and put him to sleep in a store window to advertise his business. The father of the lad came past the store and saw his own son lying there. Fortunately he was a man of fine size and few words. He hunted up the hypnotist, and gave him ten minutes to bring the lad out of his sleep and restore him to his father.

After the restoration took place the father laid hands on the professor, with the result that in about two minutes there was no hypnotism left in him. He likewise took him to the train, saw him get on, and quietly informed the professor that he would kill him if he ever returned. And there was not so much as a police court case out of the entire proceeding.

A fine riddance was made when we got rid of the professional hypnotist who used to make his easy money out of the ruinous torture he inflicted on unsuspecting boys and men.

The Market Stalls.

London city council has doubled the fees for the covered shed on the market, now charging $25 per year for an eight-foot space.

The shed in question is frequently glorified by the title of pavilion when it is necessary to distinguish it from other places on the market.

Just why the spaces there should suddenly take on a double value is not quite clear, unless it be that the producers who have them would prefer to pay the amount than lose the space they have been accustomed to occupy.

There should be far more covered sheds on the market, and they could be rented at a charge that would carry the interest on the investment and a fairly long sinking fund. Even if the rent did not do this, it would be good business for London to erect the sheds to maintain its reputation as a market center. It would be a tangible token that we wanted bona fide growers from this district to come in here and dispose of their produce in comfortable surroundings.

Never Again.

London aldermen discussed at their last meeting the question of putting bills and posters on telegraph and telephone poles, and of course they all agreed this was a dreadful thing to do.

It took no small amount of courage for aldermen to speak thusly. The average memory can reach back to the last election, when candidates for council, board of education, etc., decorated these same posts and poles with their annual greetings and appeal for votes and influence.

Yes, there was a regular galaxy of aldermanic material spiked to all the hitching places along the streets.

Note and Comment.

There is a greater crowd clamoring to get in to the murder trial in London than there will be at the church doors on Sunday morning.

The robbery of the Home Bank at Melbourne is being heard in London this week, while the robbery of the Home Bank at large is ready for the courts at Toronto.

At the coming by-election in Winnipeg an independent candidate by the name of Paul Gigcejezuk is in the running. It is pronounced just the same as it is spelled, and spelled just the way it is pronounced. This explanation should simplify matters.

Londoners hear with pleasure of the continued progress toward recovery of Principal Everton Miller of the London Collegiate. Mr. Miller has put all that he has into the work since coming here; in fact his enthusiasm was too great for his strength. He should not return to school until he is strong and fit. London collegiates can well afford to let him have all the time necessary to recuperate.

DIBS AND DABS —BY HARRY MOYER

THE LIGHT THAT QUAILED.

(Sir James Cantlie, distinguished British medical man, believes an occasional jag is a good thing for all men.)

"An occasional spree," says Sir Jimmie Cantlie,
"Is a wonderful thing for the health.
If you're limp as a rag, an occasional jag
Will bring to you physical wealth."
These words of Sir James may not go with the dames,
But for most of us old married guys,
They have brought joy and life; we can now face our wife
With a dozen or so alibis.

For now when we roam from our comfortable home
And do not return until three,
We can roll bravely in, face our wife's rolling pin,
And admit we were out on a spree.
"Tut, my dear!" we shall say in our sweet, gentle way,
As our wife takes a gun from her blouse;
"I've partaken of rye, but you cannot deny
Any man an occasional souse.
All the doctors prescribe every chap to imbibe,
For it adds many years to his life.
Put your shotgun away; it will shortly be day.
Go to bed like a good, little wife."

We expounded our scheme to a friend we had seen,
But he shook my hand, gravely, and said:
"If you go on a bat and your wife swallows that
She is surely not right in the head.
For it's all right to think an occasional drink
Is healthy—it may be or not.
But if you get drunk and you tell her that bunk,
You will lose all the health that you've got!"

The wild life of the forest is being destroyed to make fur garments. Too bad! But if it wasn't for that we'd have wild women.

Since looking at the first coal bill of the year, the head of the family can legitimately make her complaint that prices are distinctly a triumph of mining over mater.

PECULIAR.

How doth the busy bandit,
Each shining hour improve;
However can he stand it,
Being always on the move?

Miller Huggins can justifiably claim, when age withers his brow, that "there were Giants in the land in those days."

When a man is struck by lightning it must be of great consolation to know that lightning never strikes twice in the same place.

There is delicious irony in the situation of a woman suing because of a promise broken.

The song last week of The Advertiser scoreboard watchers was "Play by play in every way . . ."

The girl next door is making headway with her piano lessons. She is through her second piano.

The fellows in the front rows may be bald-headed but they are mighty good lookers.

The world series shows that "Ruth is mighty and shall prevail."

CONTRIBUTOR'S COLUMN.

"Reggie" of Stratford very kindly fills in some of the space with these shrewd bits:

A touch of rouge, if well applied
Will many an awkward freckle hide.

Rattle, rattle, little Ford;
A better 'bus I can't afford.
It takes most nearly all my brass
To keep you well supplied with gas.

The flowers that bloom in the spring, tra la,
Have withered and faded by fall, ha ha!

HUMAN MEMBERSHIP.

For we are members one of another.—Ephesians iv., 25.

Life is just the process of discovering our relationships. While they increase, we grow. When they diminish, we shrink. There is no death except for those who shut themselves up and out.

In the progress of personality, first comes a declaration of independence, then a recognition of interdependence.

It is a pity that men should be divided by their pleasures more than by their work.

We have a word in English for suffering together—sympathy. But where is the word in our language for rejoicing together?

Does this verbal lack mean that we need companionship in sorrow more than in joy? I think not. It seems to me more likely that it is an evidence of the old superstition of our race that grief is holier than gladness, and that mourning is a duty while joy is only an indulgence.

This notion is all wrong—contrary to Christianity. St. Paul tells us to "rejoice with them that rejoice, and weep with them that weep."

He translates human membership in terms of companionship—a sharing of everything in life's journey.

Your Health: Why the Anaemia of Young Women Is Disappearing.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.

There can be no better news than to learn that some serious disease is losing in virulency and rapidly disappearing. Perhaps the cheering news relating to diabetes is the most encouraging thing medicine has produced in recent years. But now there is more good news. It is said that chlorosis, the anaemia of young women, is rapidly subsiding.

This disease is a peculiar one. The victim loses her normal, healthy complexion, and the skin becomes greenish in color and like wax.

It is a condition which is confined largely to girls and young women. The age group from fifteen to twenty-one is the one most susceptible.

In spite of the anaemia, the plumpness and red cheeks may prove deceptive. There are difficult breathing, languor and sometimes heart murmurs.

Chlorosis is such an obscure and, indeed, mysterious disease that many theories have been advanced as to its actual cause. It has been thought by many to be associated with the changes incident to puberty. This would indicate that the demands for the blood have robbed the tissues of their necessary supply.

Many have advocated the idea that constipation and the absorption of the fecal poisons may produce the peculiar changes of the disease.

It used to be a very common ailment, both in America and abroad. But the latest reports indicate that in every country it is disappearing.

In a report which is put out by Guy's Hospital, London, an effort is made to explain why chlorosis is on the decline. The chief reason seems to be that the increased amount of exercise and fresh air enjoyed by young women of this period has guarded them against the ailment.

All the evidence indicates that the general health of women throughout the world has been and is getting better. This improvement appears to be associated with better living conditions.

It seems not so much a matter of better feeding as it is the greater physical activity of modern women. There can be no doubt that women are more athletic now. They wear clothing better suited to free movement of all the muscles. They walk and run, indulge in out-of-door sports, and are less pampered than women were a generation ago. There can be no doubt that they are healthier as a result.

Anyway, if chlorosis is disappearing we will rejoice. It is due every young woman that she have health and vigor. In early womanhood especially there should be preparation for motherhood and the responsibilities of the home.

Teddy in His Teddy-Bears

By ANNE CAMPBELL.

When he wakes up in the morning,
And comes creeping down the stairs,
We get out his starchy rompers
And take off his Teddybears.

And by noon when he is sleepy,
And for napping he prepares,
We take off his wrinkled creepers,
And put on his Teddybears.

Afternoon and he is spotless
In a suit he promptly tears;
Pretty soon the night will find him
In his little Teddybears.

They're the cutest kind of garment
That our baby ever wears.
He's a picture fit for painting
In his woolly Teddybears!

Thumb in mouth and blue eyes dreaming,
Thinking of his own affairs,
I'll remember him forever,
Teddy in his Teddybears!

NO SPECIAL SESSION CALLED ON STREET RAILWAY BUY

MAYOR DECLARES HE DID NOT CALL SPECIAL SESSION

No Definite Arrangements Are Made To Consider Purchase of Street Railway.

BECK'S PROPOSAL

No special session of the city council has been called for October 29 to consider the proposed purchase of the street railway, as announced in a recent edition of a local paper.

"I know of no special meeting called for that day. I would not call a session without directions from the mayor," City Clerk Sam Baker stated, "and I have received none as yet."

"I have not called any special session," Mayor Wenige stated, as well, when queried by the city clerk. "I know of no meeting on that day, as a matter of fact. The mayor is the one to call the special sessions, and I certainly called none."

At the instigation of Ald. Leonard Douglass, the mayor had made arrangements for a special session of the transportation commission for Friday next, but Ald. Douglass reported late this afternoon that from present indications it might become imperative to cancel even this.

The further report was current this afternoon that Sir Adam Beck was going to suggest a plebiscite of the people upon this issue rather than the submission of a bylaw. Why this should be done cannot be explained this afternoon by either Mayor Wenige or Ald. Douglass.

As a matter of fact, Mayor Wenige insists that a plebiscite would be, on the face of it, a sheer waste of time, as it would be merely an expression of opinion and the subsequent passage of a bylaw would still be necessary.

The feeling is strengthened today that no definite purchase price will be forthcoming from the company.

KYRO BOYS CONDUCT OPENING SUPPER IN "Y"

Kiwanians Give Youths Advice On Work For the Year.

The opening supper of the Kyro Boys was held last night at the Y. M. C. A. The ladies of the auxiliary, under the leadership of Mrs. E. J. Jenkins, served a splendid supper, which was enjoyed by all present. Rev. Hay, president of the Kiwanis Club, was chairman, and gave the boys some good advice for the coming year. Fred Ross, Neil Striker and Frank Gray also gave the boys some real encouragement in connection with their work.

H. B. Muir addressed the boys on "Playing the Game and Sticking to It." He based his talk on the recent world series, telling the boys of the gameness of Walter Pipp, who was injured and yet remained in the game. He instilled into the boys the real fighting spirit, and impressed upon them the importance of their entering into the development of their lives in a whole-hearted way.

The boys showed that during the summer months they have not lost any of their ability to sing, and under the leadership of W. H. Spearman, of the Y. M. C. A., they put across a few songs in real Kyro order. Following the meeting the boys adjourned to the gymnasimu where they enjoyed a fine physical program and games, followed by a swim. Next Tuesday evening the individual groups will be organized and the regular program for the season commenced.

CITY DOCTORS FAVOR GOLF AT ALL AGES

Declare Movement Among the English Physicians Purely an Alarm.

USE PRECAUTIONS

Advise Game For Its Benefits Due to Fresh Air, Sunshine and Exercise.

A movement in England to boycott all doctors who contend that golf should not be played by men over 50 would have little effect on the medical profession here. Local doctors are emphatic in their belief that British anti-golf medical men are alarmists and that golf can be played in perfect safety by all ranks of mankind.

The deaths of 20 persons on English golf links this summer impelled British physicians to warn their customers against the game. They say golf is too strenuous a diversion for elderly men. But local doctors claim that men who die on golf links would die anyway, and they are inclined to ... the ancient game a clean bi... health.

Dr. Edward Spence is authority for the statement that golf is harmless if played by men who have always been accustomed to mild forms of exercise.

"It's about as strenuous as walking," the doctor stated. "I'm an inveterate golfer myself and advise no man to relinquish the game through fear of possible unhealthy consequences."

Dr. Spence added that would-be golfers, unaccustomed to any kind of exercise, who expect to start the game at the age of 60 or thereabouts, should be careful. The physical condition of such persons, if they exist, would be very delicate and the slightest exertion might prove dangerous. But as this type is insignificant compared with the vast numbers who take some form of exercise, they do not justify any consideration. It is most improbable that a man who has never enjoyed mild exercise in the past should want to play golf after reaching his 60th year.

Other local physicians were equally favorable toward the game. They believe golf adds more years to human life than the most effective medicinal applications know to science. Fresh air, sunshine, exercise and competitive spirit are remedies for many ills, they claim, and the abolition of golf by any class would be an unfortunate thing.

"Golf champions are usually young men," another doctor said, "but golf is really a middle-aged man's game. Young chaps should go in more for tennis, baseball and hockey if they are physically fit. Golf should come later. In fact, I think it would be advantageous if golf clubs passed ordinances which forbade the use of the links to men under 35. This would relieve congestion and teach young fellows that they must seek other sports at their age."

Physicians who never played the game concurred with the opinion that golf was harmless. Of course if one is suffering from some acute internal disorder or from a transient headache, a little exercise would doubtless aggravate the condition, but for the average man it does much more good than harm.

OFFER TO SELL LAND FOR PARK PURPOSES

Public Utilities Commission Are Receiving Scores of Attractive Propositions.

Since the announcement was made that the public utilities commission was conducting a search for water and also looking for a site to be used for the McMahen park, land values have soared skyhigh, according to General Manager E. V. Buchanan.

Mr. Buchanan stated this morning that property owners, since learning that the commission was looking for land, have been calling on him, telephoning him and otherwise informing him that they had choice pieces of property, suitable for playgrounds or parks, or under which all the water in the vicinity of London was to be found.

Many offers had been made regarding sale of land to the commission, but in every case the value of the land seemed to increase remarkably over the value of three or four days ago.

But there is a limit, according to the commission, which has just so much money to spend on land for playgrounds, the remainder of the amount having to go towards the equipment. As far as land for well-drilling is concerned nothing is being made public, and the owners of property are being informed that nothing definite has been decided on.

In the meantime, however, prices remain high.

BYRON LODGE WILL HOLD ANNUAL CHURCH PARADE

Ashlar Lodge, No. 610, Byron, will hold their annual church parade on Sunday morning, Oct. 21, to the Anglican Church, Byron.

The chaplain of the lodge, Rev. R. D. Mess, M.M., will give the address.

The brethren will meet in the lodge room at 10:45 a.m., after which time the procession will form up outside the lodge room.

A large turnout is expected, as an invitation is extended to the lodges in London and throughout the district.

The London brethren have arranged to come out on the Springbank car leaving London at 10:30.

CASE ADJOURNED DUE TO PLAINTIFF'S ABSENCE

Vernon W. Morrison, a local lad, charged with reckless driving, arrived in police court this morning with a host of witnesses only to have his case adjourned because of the absence of the plaintiff.

Morrison is alleged to have struck a truck two weeks ago, but the citizen who laid the charge failed to show up.

"Shouldn't we be told if the plaintiff isn't here?" queried Albert Judd, for the defendant. "We've wasted a lot of valuable time."

"We can't do anything without the plaintiff," the magistrate remarked.

Paper Towels For Schools

Paper towels have been ordered for three public schools in the city, following the decision of No. 2 committee of the board, when dealing with the report of Dr. W. C. Downham, M.O.H., who reported that no towels were installed in the public schools.

The reason given for this was the expense of paper towels, and the dissatisfaction expressed at the use of roller towels. The committee then decided to give paper towels a try-out by installing cabinets in three representative schools, these being Chesley Avenue, Empress Avenue and Lord Roberts. If the result is satisfactory it will be carried out in all the buildings.

PREDICT VOTERS WILL NOT RETURN BYLAW BACKERS

Aldermen Favoring McCormick Site State Sum Purposely Set High.

SUCCESS DOUBTFUL

Advocates of the new city hall proposals, who were just recently defeated in their intentions, argue freely today that their opponents have deliberately set the amount in the bylaw going to the people in December so high that its success will be highly problematical.

"It is my belief," Ald. Frank McKay stated today, "that they are proposing to ask the ratepayers for as much as $500,000, feeling that the people will never approve of such an expenditure."

While the feeling is general that the bylaw will be defeated, the belief is expressed that the majority of the aldermen identified with the move will suffer defeat with it also.

Ald. Frank McKay pointed out today that Mayor Wenige has evidently overlooked Ald. Ernest Shaw in his list of the councillors responsible for the fact that the bylaw goes to the people.

"Ald. Shaw's position is just a little different from the others," Ald. McKay stated. "If I remember correctly he announced publicly during the by-election in Ward Four last spring, when he was elected, that he favored the immediate construction of a new hall on the McCormick site."

'LUNGE AT STONEY LAKE.

Four hours from Toronto will land any fisherman at Stoney Lake, where the 'lunge bite best in October; where the frost has tipped the trees and shrubs with brilliant color, and where nights beside a fire under the harvest moon are never forgotten. One leaves the Union Station, Toronto, at 9:05 a.m., arrives in Peterboro at 11:52 a.m., and arrives at McCracken's Landing at 1:30 p.m. This bus service from October 2 to November 5, inclusive, operates on Saturdays and Mondays only. Leaving the Landing at 1:45 p.m., the bus connects with the Canadian Pacific train for Toronto leaving Peterboro at 3:50 p.m., and arriving in Toronto at 6:25 p.m.

For followers of Isaac Walton who know the joy of trolling sometimes for hours without any result, and then suddenly hooking a big one that provides a different thrill every second until he is safely in the boat, Stoney Lake will appeal to a great many people who want to fish near Toronto for the king of the fighting finny folk—the muskellunge.—Advt.

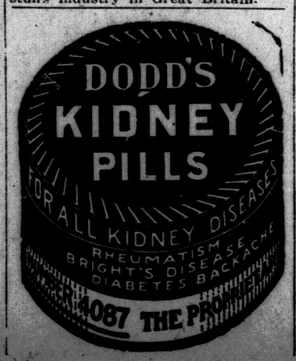

ATTACKS CONCESSIONS MADE BY DOMINION

British M. P. Raps Clauses in Franco-Canadian Trade Treaty.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Oct. 17.—"Does Canada prefer France?" Under this heading the Westminster Gazette publishes a letter from Lieut. Commander F. W. Astbury, Conservative member of the House of Commons for West Salford, complaining of the effect of certain concessions made by Canada in the Franco-Canadian commercial treaty. Astbury says the effect has been to reduce the preference on British goods as compared with French goods, which trading advantage is being very considerably emphasized by the cheapness of the franc.

A syndicate of French manufacturers, Lieut. Commander Astbury states, already has established a dye house in Canada, where gray goods imported under the trade agreement between the two countries may be colored in the dominion. Thus, he says, a needless blow is being delivered, not only at the British textile trades, but also to the young dye stuffs industry in Great Britain.

LOSS OF TEMPER ALSO CAUSES MAN TO LOSE FREEDOM

Andrew Thompson's Strenuous Defence Fails To Secure His Acquittal.

CRITICIZES POLICE

Andrew Thompson, with the evidence of two officers against him, put up such a strenuous defence on a drunk charge in police court this morning that the court seemed on the point of giving a favorable verdict. Just at the wrong moment, however, Andrew lost his temper and spoiled the effect with disastrous consequences to himself.

At midnight yesterday a police sergeant said he saw two gentlemen wobbling down the street. They rolled over to Thompson's taxi, and were promptly arrested for being "very drunk."

Thompson denied the charge. He was not one of the "gentlemen." He was standing beside his taxi when a stranger came along and hopped into the car. The stranger said: "Here come the police!" and Thompson told him to "Get out of here." But the stranger persisted, and both of them landed in jail five minutes later.

Officers who made the arrest claimed both men were intoxicated. Thompson made vigorous denials, and the emphasis of his words nearly had the court convinced.

"What have you got to say against the police evidence?" the court asked.

"They are telling lies," Thompson said. "But what can I say against them? My bad reputation has me beat."

"No it hasn't," the magistrate contradicted. "The question is, were you drunk? I shall have to look into it later. Ten days in jail might be a good thing for you."

Then Thompson lost his temper, and began pouring anathema on the two witnesses.

"Why, you haven't got over your drunk yet," the court said.

"Take him down below," ordered Chief Birrell.

Thompson was warned two weeks ago that if he appeared again on a drunk charge he would lose his license as a taxi-driver.

The "stranger" whose lack of foresight in jumping in the taxi, Thompson claims, brought him to court, pleaded guilty to being intoxicated.

"I got it in Detroit, and drank it here," he said, as the court levied the customary $10 and costs or ten days in jail.

"I guess it will have to be ten days," said the prisoner, dejectedly.

MEXICAN REBELS ARM TO SUPPORT CANDIDATE

Uprising in San Luis Potosi State Forecasts Bloody Developments.

Associated Press Despatch.

Mexico City, Oct. 17.—Bloody developments are feared in the state of San Luis Potosi, in view of an uprising by the Cedillo brothers, who are said to be marching on the state capital to support Aurelio Manrique for the governorship.

Jorge Prieto Laurens, president of the federal congress and head of the rival faction in the state, has telegraphed Secretary of War Serrano, confirming news of the uprising by the two men whose activities in past years have caused trouble for several governments. The brothers, according to Laurens' message, are deposing the municipal authorities of several towns and destroying telephone and telegraph lines as they march against San Luis Potosi.

The federal government considers the Cedillo uprising as purely a local question.

SUSPECT CONSPIRACY IN WARSAW EXPLOSION

Arrest 150 Charged With Complicity in Plot To Destroy Fort.

Associated Press Despatch.

Warsaw, Poland, Oct. 17—One hundred and fifty persons have been taken into custody and other arrests are expected in connection with the blowing up last week of one of the forts of the citadel.

The police are convinced that the explosion was due to a conspiracy hatched in a foreign country. The number of persons killed in the explosion exceeds fifty, most of them children who lived near the fort. Nearly a thousand persons were injured.

The fourth fort of the Warsaw citadel, in which explosives were stored, exploded Saturday morning, causing great damage in Warsaw, and many casualties.

DR. STEVENSON IMPROVING IN ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL

Dr. W. J. Stevenson, who underwent a serious operation at St. Joseph's Hospital last Saturday afternoon, was reported this morning to be greatly improved. Dr. Stevenson spent a good night, hospital authorities said this morning, and his condition is favorable.

ST. ANDREW'S BOYS.

Three groups of Tuxis boys and Trail Rangers met last evening at St. Andrew's Church for their regular weekly supper—the Olympians, the Arrows and the Vikings. The Pirates did not meet, but are holding a hike into the country today. The ladies who served the supper were Mrs. George Wood, Mrs. Sapulding, Mrs. Rider and Mrs. McDonald. The Olympian group decided to attend in a body the Campbell-Morgan meeting next Monday night.

Citizen Provides Place For Veteran Prospector

After scouring the city all week for a job, John Osborne, the aged prospector, who came to London to seek his son, only to find him dead, has at last succeeded in his quest.

The story of Osborne's manifold misfortunes, printed in The Advertiser two days ago, stirred a sympathetic chord in the heart of at least one Londoner who has a job all ready and waiting for the old man this afternoon.

H. M. Douglass, 206 Central avenue, read an account of Osborne's hardships in The Advertiser Monday. He immediately got in touch with the Salvation Army and told them he would be able to employ Osborne. The army referred him to The Advertiser, who, in turn, told the old man that a position was waiting for him at 206 Central avenue.

The ancient prospector has been worrying for many days. He feels he should not accept the hospitality of Alfred Fields, a workingman, with whom he is staying. For a week he has combed the city for a job, but his age was against him, and his efforts proved fruitless.

When he was informed this morning, however, that he could make money attending Mr. Douglass' furnace and probably get a dozen or more furnaces to look after within a short time, his seamed face lit up with satisfaction.

"If he can only make $40 a month it will be enough to keep him," Mrs. Fields, Ottaway avenue, said. "He has been troubled for a long time because no one would take him. Mr. Osborne has the strength of two men in spite of his advanced age, and it seems funny that nobody will employ him. He could take care of a dozen furnaces.

"It is very kind of Mr. Douglass to offer him a job. I am sure he will prove capable, and I hope others will let him take care of their furnaces."

What Makes a Woman Popular? Dorothy Dix Gives Five Sure Rules.

To Be Good-Natured and Cheerful, Tactful and Sympathetic, and Above All To Be Interested in Other People—In These Lies the Secret of Popularity.

"I greatly desire to be liked by my fellow creatures. What qualities must a woman possess in order to be popular?" asked a correspondent.

Well, I should say that the first element of popularity is good nature.

Everybody likes the woman who takes life as it comes with calm philosophy. The woman who is never looking out for slights and seeing them where they are least intended. The woman who isn't insulted if you don't invite her to every single one of your parties, but who realizes that you have many other friends besides herself, and that there are limits to the seating capacity of a small dinner table. The woman whose husband isn't afraid of her, and whose children can tell her when they do wrong because they know that mother won't make a mountain of a molehill.

The woman that we all step wide of, when we can, is the ill-natured woman. The nervous, neurotic, hysterical woman with whom life is just one scene after another. The woman who bristles with feelings, and who is so sensitive that she is wounded by the things that she imagines that people intended to do to her, even when they didn't do them. Most of us are awfully busy people, and we have no time for the woman who has to be handled with gloves.

The popular woman is a cheerful woman.

A woman who radiates sunshine wherever she goes. A woman who wears a smile that won't come off, and who puts fresh hope and courage in you, and makes you feel that somehow everything is going to come out all right in the end. Everybody likes the woman who has got a well-developed funnybone, and whose laugh is hung on a hair trigger that any old joke will set off.

But we all take to the tall timber at the approach of Mrs. Gloom. Nobody wants a morose, grouchy, long-faced woman about. Nor does anyone pine for the companionship of the lady who salts you down in the brine of her tears, and who fixes you with her watery eye while she tells you the sad, sad story of her life. We have all got troubles enough of our own without superimposing other people's upon them.

The popular woman is a tactful woman.

A woman who takes the trouble to rub our fur the right way, and say the things to us that make us purr under her hand. The woman who remembers who we are, and our family connections, and the little remarkable things that we have done, or our children have done. The woman who asks how we sleep and if our insomnia is better, and who says something nice about the new car we are so proud of, and Johnny having won a scholarship, and Mary going to Europe. Everybody enjoys being with the tactful woman because somehow she spreads salve over all the sore places in our vanity, and when we are with her there is never a jar or a hitch to mar a pleasant occasion.

But we loathe the woman who is a bull in a china shop. The woman with whom we cannot be for five minutes without her saying something that hurts or ruffles us. The woman who has an unerring touch for the wound in your heart and who never fails to tear it open. The woman who has an instinct for rattling the family skeleton. The woman who never fails to ask a divorcee about her ex-husband, or to talk to the mother of an afflicted child about cripples or idiots. The woman who makes everybody feel that there should be an open season in which it is permitted to kill conversational blunderers at sight.

The popular woman is the woman who remembers.

She is the woman who does not think that her friends are mind-readers who will take her good intentions for granted. She is the woman who never forgets to do nice little things. The woman who calls in her car and takes a friend who has no car to a party; who gives children a ride and old people a treat by taking them out on sunny days. The woman who writes us a note of congratulation when some joy comes our way, and a letter of sympathy when sorrow darkens our door. The woman who sends us postcards when she travels, and whose gifts show that she has remembered our tastes and peculiarities.

But nobody loves the self-centered woman who is too busy with her own affairs to think of any one else until she needs them. The woman who is too lazy to take the trouble to write you a line of congratulation or condolence; the woman who never gives anybody a lift in her car. The woman who never gives anyone a meal unless she is sure of getting a better one for it, and who never has any real friends. Nobody really loves an egotist.

The popular woman is the kindly woman.

The woman who is a good neighbor and a good friend. The woman who is always ready to help and to give. The woman who likes young people, and who likes to help them have a good time. The woman who is slow to criticize and quick to make excuse. The woman who can always find the good in people rather than the bad, and who has always something pleasant to say to her fellow creatures, and about them.

Nobody likes a hard, bitter, cynical woman. Nobody likes a catty woman who is always scratching everybody and whose claws bring the blood every time. Nobody likes a sarcastic woman, or a woman who rails at the follies of the young, or who smirches with scandal every one she touches. No woman is so feared and hated as the woman with a serpent's tongue.

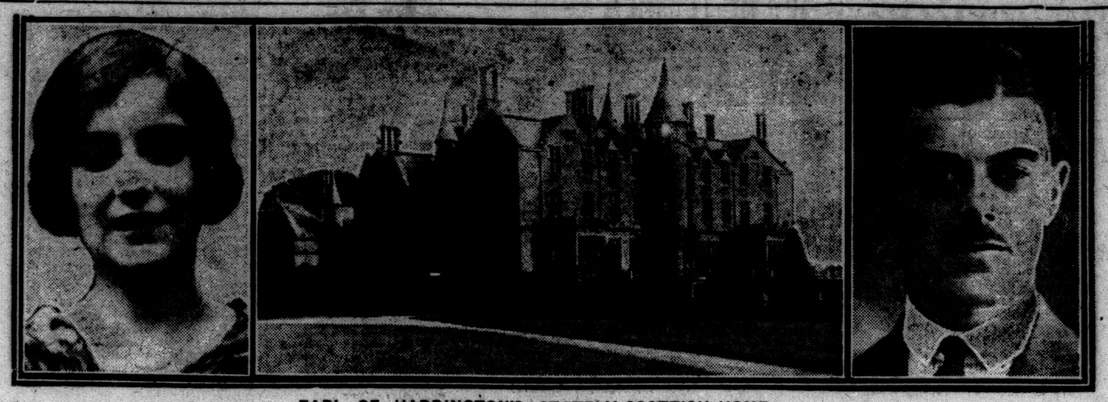

The popular woman is an interesting woman.

She never bores us by talking about herself and her belongings and family, but she listens with an absorbed attention while we tell her about ourselves, and our belongings, and our children. None of us ever get enough of the society of the one who is a great and tireless listener.

To be good-natured, and cheerful, and diplomatic, and sympathetic, and above all to be interested in other people's affairs, in these lies the secret of popularity.

MOTHERS ENTERTAIN TEACHERS OF SCHOOL

Talbot Street Club Plans To Serve Tea at Baby Welfare Clinics.

The meeting of the Talbot Street Mothers' Club last night took the form of a reception to the new teachers of the school, Miss Gwen Screaton, Miss Marion Grant and Miss Dean. A large number of the mothers, as well as the teachers of the school, turned out for the occasion, and the meeting was one of the finest ever held at the school.

Dr. Wm. Beattie was the speaker of the occasion, taking as his subject the Mothers' Club itself. He divided the club into its three elements, the mothers, teachers and children. The mother caring for her children, typified sacrifice. The teacher was like the potter, molding his clay. Not all children could be molded into one kind of vessel.

He hoped that the time would come when the teachers would have more latitude with their pupils, that when they found that a pupil was not progressing along a certain line of study, they might change that line of study to suit the pupil. Referring to the parents, he said that they must at all times be perfectly honest with their children, if they would get the best results.

An interesting feature of the meeting was the fruit shower in aid of the Day Nursery, and during the evening three dozen jars of fruit were brought in. The club decided to hold a sale of home-cooking on Nov. 16.

Another interesting work which the club has undertaken is the serving of tea to the mothers who attend the Talbot street well baby clinic each Tuesday afternoon. It was thought that the mothers' clubs of the Empress Avenue and Lord Roberts' schools, whose mothers also attend this clinic, might assist in this work.

The program included vocal numbers by Miss Elsie Orr and Master Woodrow Ward.

WEDDINGS.

McLEAN—IVERSON.

A quiet wedding took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. McLean, St. George street, when Alma Iverson, of Fargo, North Dakota, was married to Allison H. McLean, son of Mr. and Mrs. John McLean, Rev. D. C. MacGregor officiating.

The bride wore a graceful gown of white chiffon, caught with a silver girdle, with a wreath of silver leaves in her hair. She carried a shower bouquet, and her sister, Miss Amanda Iverson, acted as bridesmaid. She wore a gown of pale blue chiffon, with silver and black trimmings. Mr. Frederick G. Spry, of Oshawa was best man.

Following the ceremony a wedding luncheon was served. Mrs. McLean wore a becoming gown of gray silk.

Mr. and Mrs. McLean left later on a honeymoon which will be spent in New York. The bride traveled in a smart coat dress of navy blue, trimmed with fur, with a plum shade hat. Upon their return they will reside in London. Mr. and Mrs. A. A. McLeish, of Chatham, were the only guests from out-of-town.

LACKIE—PETFIELD.

A quiet wedding took place Thursday, Oct. 11, at Askin Street Methodist Church, when Hazel Catharine Leith Petfield, eldest daughter of Mrs. S. Hoffman of this city, was married to John Thomas Lackie, only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Lackie of this city. Rev. J. T. Morris performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a nigger brown pleated gown of georgette, heavily beaded, with satin shoes and hat to match. She carried a shower bouquet of Sunset roses and lily of the valley. After a honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Lackie will reside in the Hayman Court.

POTATOES WERE DENOUNCED IN ANCIENT TIMES.

An attempt was made to introduce potatoes in Scotland in 1725, but they were denounced from the pulpit on two contradictory counts: that they were not mentioned in the Bible, and so not fit for Christians, and that they were the forbidden fruit, the cause of Adam's fall. They were accused of causing leprosy and fever.

Kindergarten Costs City $55 a Pupil Every Year

Inspector V. K. Greer Explains to Ryerson Mothers Why Young Children Are Pushed On to Grade 1.

Inspector V. K. Greer was the speaker at the Mothers' Club of Ryerson School on Tuesday evening. Discussing the present aims of the school, he said that neatness, accuracy and speed were the points most aimed at. There was an effort being made also to do away with questions and problems that did not have any practical application to the life of the pupil after leaving school, and it was on this account that the elimination of grade four had been decided upon. The first year of school life found the child doing things in a mechanical way, but after the third grade the work was so planned that the real child would be developed and would start to show its own personality in the work.

Some of the mothers objected to having their children shoved on from the kindergarten before they were six years of age. Mr. Greer's answer to that was that some children were sent to kindergarten before they were five, and as a year in kindergarten cost the city $55 per pupil, there could be no more than one year allowed to each child.

The question was also raised that the first year in primary work was too long after the short hours in the kindergarten. The reply was that if a child's health could not stand the long hours, provision could be made for shortening. There is supposed to be a minimum of five hours for the classes outside the kindergarten. The point was also made by the principal of the school that when hours were cut down there was complaint on the part of the parents if their children did not pass or stand well in the classes.

The inspector also told the Ryerson mothers that their school had the lowest per cent attendance in the city for the month of June. This was caused by many wanting to take their children away for the summer early, and not return until some time in September.

Mrs. Arthur Kennedy presided at the meeting, and Miss Buchanan contributed two enjoyable solos to the evening's program. Arrangements were also made for the Halloween tea and baking sale on Oct. 26 from 4 to 6 o'clock. Mr. E. R. Dennis is to be the speaker at the next meeting, and his subject will be "Qualifications of An Employee from a Businessman's viewpoint."

An interesting social event of next month will be the banquet which the Women's Canadian Club will tender to the writers of the city on Friday evening, November 16. Arrangements for this function which will mark Authors' Week in the city, were made at a meeting of the executive of the club held last night at the home of Mrs. Wm. Beattie, Central avenue.

Mothers and Their Children

Mother's "Hour Off."

One mother says:

I believe it makes children selfish to feel that mother is always at their beck and call; that her time is theirs, while father's time is his, as is the case in so many homes. I have therefore trained my children to observe as sacred mother's daily "hour off." I take one hour every afternoon from my many household duties for myself, to read books that rest my mind, or challenge ideas, or to read books on "the business of being a mother," just as any business man reads his journals. The children understand that I am to be disturbed only for something extremely important, and they actually take pride in "standing guard" when I am in my room. It increases their respect for me as an individual, and keeps me from falling into a rut on my "job."

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

URGES CHURCH, SCHOOL AND HOME CO-OPERATE

Principal E. Wyatt Addresses St. George's Mothers' Club at Regular Meeting.

Religious training in the public school was the subject of an interesting talk given to the St. George's Mothers' Club by Principal E. Wyatt of the school last night. It was his belief that the teachers had done more than parents to instruct the children of the community along these lines. Religion was the foundation of everything in life, and as such should be given the greatest consideration. He referred to the fact that the New St. James' Sunday School was co-operating definitely with the school along this line, and hoped that further co-operation would come from the community.

The Rev. James McKay also spoke briefly on the subject, declaring that the mind and character were easily molded when the child was young. It was his belief that the church, home and school working together, would have a great effect on the lives of the children.

Plans were made at this meeting for a rummage sale to be held Saturday morning in the basement of the school. Miss Margaret Christopher gave a clever reading.

Mrs. C. B. Hunt Is Elected New President of W.C.A.

Women's Christian Association Spends $70,000 On City Homes and Relief Work.

Mrs. C. B. Hunt was elected president of the Women's Christian Association at a meeting of the new board of directors, held at the Y. W. C. A. residence, Wellington street, directly after the annual meeting of the association yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Hunt follows Mrs. John Currie, who has just completed a splendid term of office. The new vice-presidents are Miss Jennie Moore, Mrs. John Currie and Mrs. Wm. Lamb, and the secretary-treasurer, Miss C. G. McIntosh.

The annual report of the treasurer, submitted by Miss McIntosh, showed that the year was closed with a splendid balance to carry on. Over $70,000 was expended during the year for maintaining the Victoria Home, the Aged People's Home and for relief work in the city. Owing to many necessary improvements at the Aged People's Home there was a deficit there of nearly $6,000, which the general funds of the association had to meet. The Victoria Home in South London, however, is self-supporting, and it is only for the Aged People's Home and the relief work that the association calls on the welfare fund for help. The work is progressing at the Victoria Home, and it now looks as if an addition will be necessary shortly.

Last year the Victoria Home accommodated 66 patients, and of these 24 are maintained by the city of London, one by the county of Elgin and three by the county of Middlesex. During the year 24 were admitted, six were removed and 22 died.

One hundred and two patients were cared for in the Aged People's Home during the past year. Of these, 17 were removed, and 16 died, leaving 67 now in residence. Thirty-five of these are maintained by the city.

The general funds of the association last year were augmented by the sale of north end property, adjoining the Aged People's Home. For the first time in the history of the association the officers were elected yesterday through a board of twenty-five members. The board is as follows: Mrs. C. B. Hunt, Miss Jennie Moore, Mrs. John Currie, Mrs. Wm. Lamb, Mrs. Travers, Mrs. Jeffery Hale, Mrs. Meek, Mrs. P. MacDonald, Mrs. Max Lerner, Mrs. B. F. Brighton, Mrs. McKechern, Mrs. G. L. MacDonald, Mrs. J. K. McDermid, Mrs. P. L. Brighton, Miss M. McMillan, Mrs. J. S. Cummings, Mrs. W. E. Kelly, Mrs. Hyatt, Mrs. Bicknell, Mrs. John Bernard, Miss McCannell, Mrs. J. H. Women Should Act Quickly

When a woman finds herself afflicted with backache, headaches, nervousness, dragging-down pains, pain in her side, irregularities and irritability, dark circles appear under the eyes and her complexion gets sallow, she may be sure the underlying cause is some ailment peculiar to her sex. Such women should act quickly and take the great American remedy for such conditions, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and they may be saved years of suffering. For generations this old-fashioned root and herb medicine has been restoring ailing women to health, and it may be relied upon with perfect confidence.—Advt.

PERSIAN LAMB COAT.

Of all the coats that one sees and that lure the heart—and it might be added—the pocketbook of woman, none is more alluring than this handsome one of Persian lamb with huge collar and cuffs of gray squirrel.

It has the tube like lines which is one of the two modes sponsored by Paris. The other is the coat with the circular ripple below the knees. Some of the sports top coats flare away from the form, but the dress coats cling pretty closely to these two mentioned models.

An interesting article was written recently about the influence of motoring on women's clothes. It was held that the automobile is responsible for the smart sports clothes. The ease with which one is carried into the country for golfing, tennis, picnics, etc., call for different clothes and smarter—hence the nobby sports things that delight milady.

Not for sports but for evening wear in the motor or for afternoon calling and the matinee this wrap would be most appropriate and luxurious.

DENY BOAT COMPANY EXCLUSIVE RIGHTS

Plan of Rapids King Captain Turned Down by Port Lambton Council.

Special to The Advertiser.

Port Lambton, Oct. 16.—The attention of the general council was taken up last night with the problem of considering the offer of Captain J. Dube of the Northern Navigation Company's steamer, Rapids King. Captain Dube laid before the council on Monday, Sept. 24, a proposition to have the Northern Navigation Company given the exclusive right of carrying people between Detroit and Walpole Island. However, when a vote was taken it was found that 41 were opposed to this and 29 in favor of the plan.

The vote seemed to split into three different groups, some fearing the surrender of the lease, while others did not like the idea of one company having the sole right to land people on the island, and were in favor of letting any boat land.

A resolution was moved by Harrison Williams and seconded by Henry Riley to allow the Northern Navigation Company make improvements to the park and to run it for five years. At the end of that time all the buildings would become the property of the Indians. Objection to this was taken by Ed. Pinnance, who thought that the Indians should prepare the park and have the exclusive use of the buildings, and accordingly moved a resolution, seconded by Mosen Colwell of Point Pelee, to prepare the park.

The Highbanks Park has been idle for some time. It was the opinion of some of the members that the park cannot be made a success by giving one boat company a monopoly over the transportation.

Home Face Peeling Becomes Popular

No complexion treatment yet discovered seems to have become so generally popular as the mercolized wax process. Evidently the reason is that this method actually gets rid of a bad complexion, which can hardly be said of any other. To temporarily hide or bleach the defective skin with cosmetics cannot compare with the effect of literally removing the skin itself. Mercolized wax takes off the offending surface skin in flour-like particles, a little at a time, until there's none of it left. The new complexion thus produced exhibits a healthy glow and girlish beauty obtainable in no other way. This wax, which you can get at your druggist's (an ounce will do), is applied at night like cold cream, and washed off mornings. —Advt.

They are Happy and Well

You Should Be the Same

A LARGE number of women's ailments are not surgical ones. Serious displacements or radical changes have not yet taken place.

A tiny part in a fine clock may become loose and cause the clock to gain or lose. If not attended to in time, the part may fall from its place and cause serious trouble. So it is with women's ailments, they start from simple causes; but if allowed to continue, produce serious conditions.

When the warning symptoms are first noted, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve the present troublesome ailment, and to prevent the development of serious trouble.

River Desert, Quebec—"I used to have a severe pain in my side. I would be unable to walk fast and could not stand for any length of time to do my ironing or washing but I would have to lie down to get relief from the pain. I had this for about two years, then a friend told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she had had good results. I certainly got good results from it too as the last time I had a sore side was last May and I have not had it since. I am also glad of having good nursing for my baby and I think it is your medicine that helped me in this way."—Mrs. L. V. Bunox, River Desert, Quebec.

Woodbridge, Ontario—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles. I would have headaches, backaches, pains between my shoulders and under my shoulder-blades and bad feelings in the lower parts on each side, in the groins. I was sometimes unable to do my work and felt very badly. My mother-in-law told me about the Vegetable Compound and I got some right away. It has done me more good than any other medicine I ever took. You are quite welcome to use this letter as a testimonial if you think it will help some poor sufferer."—Mrs. Edgar Simmons, Woodbridge, Ontario.

Sarnia-London Rugby Clash Here Saturday Promises to Make Local History

BOTH O.R.F.U. TEAMS ARE OUT AT FULL STRENGTH GRIND

McEvenue Will Take Full Charge of Squad Remainder of Week.

Since McEvenue takes full charge of the intermediate workouts in preparation for the clash with Sarnia here on Saturday, and the forthcoming battle begins to take on the complexion of a coaches' battle, with McEvenue, former star player on McGill and Varsity teams, creator of championship Rugby machines at M. A. A. A. and Argos in the Big Four, and Buster Reid, former McGill star, on the one hand, lined up against Jack Newton, former Varsity star, and coach of the Sarnia Blue and White squad.

If the coaches were started on an even basis, that's what Saturday's battle would look like, with the players of the teams merely automatons. However, Newton has the advantage in that he started out with his squad in the early spring, and has been whip-lashing them through their paces ever since. The result is liable to be quite a neat little Rugby machine, streamlines and all the rest of it. McEvenue and Reid, on the other hand, have had their work broken into considerably, and neither were able to take on their duties until long after Newton had his squad beyond the grumbling stage.

The London outfit looks stronger right now than any other team that ever carried the London colors out on a gridiron. The next few practices, which will be concentrated effort under McEvenue, should oil up any parts that have been creaking. Drills on Monday

A. T. TAYLOR.
Will umpire Saturday's big tilt between London and Sarnia, at least he was named by London as the choice, and no kick is anticipated.

and Tuesday saw the biggest turn-out yet. Worthington, the new ex-Parkdale half, and Boyd Fisher were out, and these two will more than offset the casualties suffered by the squad last week. On Monday afternoon the squad lined up against the juniors, and both learned a heap. Time after time the formations were gone over, a defense is being worked out that it is hoped will turn back Newton's plunging line plays. Worthington, though only a week in harness, is husky and fast and experienced, and carries the ball well. Fisher displayed all his old speed, and it will be needed in some of the plays.

The London line looks strong enough to hold anything Newton may unleash, and they'll give the Sarnia coach something to worry about offensively.

Albert Lawrence, who turned out with the intermediates on Monday, was used last night with the juniors. He was under every one of the plays, and has all his old-time speed and accuracy in catching. Though a bit light in weight, Lawrence might be used by the intermediates. In any case, he would be a real addition to the junior squad, and every effort will be made to have him stick with the game.

No word has been received yet regarding the calling off of the St. Thomas-Elks game, billed here for Saturday, and Elks will keep on working out against the intermediates. McEvenue will watch them as well.

Ruth Takes Out $50,000 Policy

Invites Heilman to Series, Then Hands Him Business.

Special to The Advertiser.

New York, Oct. 16.—An interesting sequel to the 1923 baseball season and world series took place here today. Babe Ruth was the chief actor, and, as was the case all during the season, Harry Heilmann of Detroit also played a leading role. But this time Babe and Harry were both batting together. For six months they struggled to see who would be the leading batter of the American League. When it was all over, Babe wired congratulations to Harry at Detroit and asked him to come down to New York as his guest at the world series.

During the off-season Heilmann represents an insurance company, and when he arrived in New York, Babe handed him the surprise of his life.

"Harry," said the most valuable player in baseball to the leading batter of the American League, "I want you to sign me up for a $50,000 insurance policy."

It did not take long for Harry Heilmann to get his eye on the ball—and Babe's name on the dotted line.

The policy is in favor of Mrs. Ruth and Baby Dorothy, and the full life of the agreement is 62 years.

When Babe saw that clause he exclaimed, "That's a long time to be hitting home runs." He pulled out his check book and wrote a check bigger than the earnings of the average man for an entire year, handed it to Harry, and received the policy.

"Lord," said Babe, looking at his name, hand-lettered on the nicely-folded parchment, "is this thing all I get for my twenty thousand bucks?"

----AND STILL IT RAINS

Associated Press Despatch.

Kansas City, Oct. 16. — Lowering clouds and a forecast of rain made it seem extremely unlikely tonight that the fourth game of the junior world's series between the Kansas City team of the American Association and the Baltimore International League champions would be played tomorrow. Officials of the club asserted tonight, however, that the game would be played if no more rain should fall before tomorrow afternoon.

The fourth game was postponed for the second time today on account of the sloppy condition of the diamond.

MINISTER RECOVERS.

Special to The Advertiser.

Watford, Oct. 16. — Rev. W. K. Hager, B.A., pastor of the Watford and Zion Methodist Churches, who recently underwent a serious operation in Victoria Hospital, London, has recovered sufficiently to return to his home here. He is progressing very favorably and hopes to be able to preach next Sunday morning.

Down the Line In All Sports

The biggest crowd to witness a rugby match in years in this thriving city, which has been a thriving cemetery for quite a spell as far as rugby has been concerned, should be a good gamble when Sarnia and London O. R. F. U. intermediates mingle in a revival of an ancient and sanguinary feud Saturday, over the trickle boastingly called the Thames.

If rugby goes over the way it should this season, there will be almost as much credit going to the L. A. A. A. committee behind the game as to the splendid bunch of players who make up this year's squad. Whereas in the old days such a committee might have had most of its work cut out in keeping the park closed against storming hordes of football candidates, modern business and social life makes so many demands that the foundation work, getting the team out, is a strenuous bit of the committee's activities. The willingness with which every member of the committee is working, their eagerness to accept any task from distributing posters to shoveling sawdust and doing plain but needful jobs with the whitewash roller, means more hours devoted to rugby than the players have to give, and little glory and more criticism and knocks as the only reward.

* * * *

Nehf broke down and cried when he was taken out of the box despite the fact that the rest of the Giants pleaded with McGraw that Artie would pull out. McGraw, however, said that Nehf was through, he had been called to do more than it was humanly possible for him to do. McGraw thought Ryan would curve them into a double play. He curved them into free passes.

* * * *

However, it's fairly safe to say that the Giants secretary-treasurer's tears did not mingle with Nehf's.

* * * *

The passing of the million dollar mark in the world series of 1923 rather dwarfs the baseball season that preceded it. While the magnates naturally are reticent about their season's gate receipts, it is quite unlikely that either the Yankees or the Giants took in that much in their 154 games of the regular season. If the two stadiums had been twice as big there is little doubt that the world series would have taken in more than both teams drew in the regular season. As far as the two New York clubs are concerned baseball is a business and a paying business.

The cauliflower ear industry also has prospered during the year which is drawing to a close. While the gate receipts of the Dempsey-Firpo bout did not exceed those of the Dempsey-Carpentier bout, Mr. Tex Rickard is far from displeased over the million and a quarter taken in for the two-round bout. That he did not pass the record of over $1,600,000 made by the Boyle's Thirty Acres fight was due solely to the fact that the price for seats at a prize fight is limited in New York State. If Mr. Rickard had been permitted to charge the customers what they were willing and eager to pay his gate receipts easily would have totaled $2,500,000.

The match race set for next Saturday between the bibulous Papyrus and Zev of the magnificent bunions probably will draw close to half a million dollars worth of cash customers to Belmont Park. Certainly it will bring a bigger gate than ever was drawn to a race track before.

Just how much money has been spent on golf during the current year in the United States is hard to estimate. One can only guess at it. Statistics gathered by the American Golfer indicate that something like a million persons have played golf in the United States during the past season. It is estimated that the game costs the average golfer in the neighborhood of $250 a year. One million persons spending that much a year for the game make the nation's golf bill total something like $250,000,000 a year. At that rate it would not be long before the money spent on golf would pay off the national debt of the most heavily burdened nation. Add to this the money spent on the other sports, amateur and professional, and the total would make it seem as though sport were the chief industry of the United States.

CITIZENS WOULD SUPPORT L.A.A. IN SENDING LOCAL TRACK TEAM TO OLYMPIC TRIALS IN SPRING

Many Local Enthusiasts Believe City Athletes Have More Than Even Chance.

The L. A. A. A., when it closes up the books of this big season, which has gone to show just how much the organization has meant to sport in London, will have some unfinished business which will need quick attention in 1924. The L. A. A. managed to swing the Ontario championships, which were a success despite the usual Toronto efforts to run things the Queen City way, and thus has connected itself with track events. Local athletes were overlooked in the Halifax championships, partly as a snub from Ontario officials and probably partly carelessness, but the L. A. A. A. will have the support of the whole city if they launch a campaign to send local athletes to the Ontario track championships, which will be held prior to the Olympic trials next spring, place and date as yet undecided.

Conceded Chance.

Gorman and Wanless are two London athletes who are considered to have more than even chances of making a place in the Dominion trials. Wright, the high jumper, is another who has a decided chance. Hunter and Westman are two other local athletes who could be included on a team sent from here, although the competition in the half and the weights, in which these latter two excel, is stiffer.

Coaching would be an important factor in the local teams chances, but if preparation were made early enough, Walter Knox, Ontario coach, could be induced to time his annual visit to coincide with the training of the team here. Bill Lightfoot, who has had remarkable success with local athletes and in whom the boys have every confidence, could probably be put in charge of the team early next spring.

Captain Cornelius, according to Jack Tait of the Toronto World, will likely be selected as this year's Olympic coach. Cornelius' success has been so consistent at Hamilton Collegiate that Dominion athletic authorities are convinced that there is no element of luck about the Hamilton man's results.

At least four of the Hamilton Collegiate students are granted more than even chances of making the Olympic team, with two of them practically certainties.

The inclusion of schoolboy athletes on a Canadian Olympic team may be unprecedented, but if Hamilton can develop such material, London also has a chnce. Besides, these well-known collegians there is some great talent in London, which would justify every effort the L. A. A. A. makes in the way of plans during the early winter.

Donaghue, England's Turf Hero, Arrives Confident

39-Year-Old Mite Travels in Regal Style With Secretary.

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, Oct. 16.—Great Britain's premier jockey, Steve Donoghue, a well-built mite of 109 pounds, only 4 feet 11 inches tall, and rather boyish-looking despite his 39 years—the anniversary of which was fittingly celebrated yesterday aboard the Olympic—set foot on United States soil for the first time tonight. He was "hopeful, but not too confident" of the outcome of the $100,000 international horse race at Belmont Park next Saturday.

Steve traveled in regal style, with even a secretary in his accompanying party. He was met at the pier by a committee representing the Westchester Racing Association and the Jockey Club.

Donoghue, a quiet, unassuming little man, reticent to speak too much of his laurels, which include the winning of five English Derbies, three of them in successive years, reluctantly submitted to a "bombardment" of newspaper camera men, who "shot" him from all angles, in one of the grand salons of the Olympic.

He submitted good-humoredly to the host of inquirers who surrounded him. He was the outstanding figure among the first cabin notables.

Despite reports of a pessimistic attitude in Great Britain in regard to Papyrus's chances of capturing the $100,000 stake and the trophy which goes with it, largely because the British racer will be called upon to show his mettle for the first time upon a dirt track instead of turf, Donoghue, his face aglow with the ruddy complexion of a schoolboy, although he is the father of three children, expressed confidence in the outcome of the race.

Asked banteringly which horse would win, his blue eyes twinkled, then he smilingly said:

"The best horse, of course," and chuckled in the quiet, modest manner which marked his demeanor throughout the voyage, many of the passengers said.

"This race," said Donoghue, "will mean the attainment or no-attainment of the greatest ambition of my life. I do not under-estimate the ability of Earl Sande, who will be in the saddle on Zev, your great American horse. I feel that this international sporting event is the greatest in which I will have figured, and the interest taken in it, both in America and in England, will go far, I think, in strengthening the existing good-will between the countries."

STEVE DONAGHUE,
England's premier jockey, arrives for his ride in international matched race Saturday.

GRID GOSSIP

Jack Chandler, instead of bringing down runners for the next few days, will try his hand at bringing down a few ducks at Erieau. He'll be back by Saturday.

Montreal critics say that University of Toronto will have to improve over their showing against McGill or Queen's will win, but close followers of the sport, who have seen all the great teams in the last two decades are not so sure. They lean toward the opinion that the "T" playing the same kind of football they did against McGill, will make the Tri-color hustle.

* * * *

One fact stood out at Montreal. McGill certainly had the better of the play in the first half when Warren Snyder did nearly all the tackling, did all the kicking and was used in many of the plunges. He also went back for the catches. Single-handed he fought a wonderful duel, but the team against him had the advantage in all except the breaks. Then came the second half and with it a change. Plaxton was introduced as a drop-kicker, and intrusted with the punting. McGill was leading when the "T" tactics were changed. From then until the finish the Blue and White put it all over the Shagmen.

Queen's senior players, with the exception of "Bud" Thomas, who is still suffering from an injury received in the McGill game, are down to hard work in preparation for their game with U. of T. in Toronto on Saturday.

Saturday's defeat at Ottawa has placed the Tigers in a position where their championship chances are not the brightest, but they still have a chance to come through. In order to win the Interprovincial title they must win all their remaining games, which would put them tie with Argos, providing the oarsmen do not lose in the meantime, and it does not look as though they will. The Argonauts won at Ottawa and gained an edge on Tigers by doing so. But the Senators were supermen on Saturday and it is doubtful if they will turn in such another game this season. Tigers should defeat Ottawa at Hamilton, according to people who saw the game, but they must also win at Montreal before they meet Munro and company on the Charlton avenue lot.

* * *

Hamilton Rowing Club won its place in the football sun by defeating Parkdale here and much of the credit is due to Ross Craig. The former champion line-plunger has worked wonders with the material he had to select from and the manner in which the lighter line of the oarsmen broke through the heavy paddler front guard amazed the fans. Craig depended largely on his wing men on Saturday, and they came through like champions, pushing the heavier Parkdale line all over the lot when playing against the wind. It was a clean-cut victory and the Hamilton oarsmen really had a bigger margin than the score would indicate. The team is 100 per cent better than it was a year ago and should reach the Dominion championship finals. Saturday's game was a real test and none of the youngsters were found wanting.

CARPENTIER SATISFIED WITH RICKARD'S TERMS

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, Oct. 16.—Arangements for a match between Harry Wills, champion negro heavyweight, and Bill Tate, a veteran contender for Wills's honors, are being made by Tex Rickard, promoter.

Battling Siki, the Senegalese, asked Rickard today to postpone the date of his coming match with Kid Norfolk, the American negro, but the promoter refused.

Georges Carpentier cabled Rickard today that the terms offered him for a bout either with Gene Tunney, United States light heavyweight champion, or Tom Gibbons, light heavyweight, were satisfactory.

KID GLEASON TO HAND COMISKEY HIS RESIGNATION

Veteran White Sox Leader, It Is Believed, Will Be Let Go.

REBUILT MACHINE

Associated Press Despatch.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—William ("Kid") Gleason, manager of the Chicago Americans, today will end the weeks of talk and speculation about what he will do, or what will happen to him, when he walks into the office of Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the club, and offers his resignation. The aging Kid made known his resolution in the club house late yesterday after his team had won the city series, having taken the fourth straight game, after having lost the first two to the Cubs, which finished in fourth place in the National League chase, three notches above the White Sox.

Gleason is without plans for the future, other than soon to return to his home at Philadelphia, Pa. Should his resignation be accepted, Eddie Collins, Harry Hooper, Frank Chance and Ed Walsh are spoken of as possibly the next White Sox manager.

The "talk" also includes the possibility of Gleason going to the Detroit or St. Louis Americans. Gleason once was offered the managership of the Detroit club, and Ty Cobb, the present manager, is said to "have enough" of handling the reins.

Since 1920, when the formidable White Sox machine was wrecked after the "world series scandal," Gleason has tried hard to build up another winning combination. Last spring he thought he had accomplished something toward that desire, but subsequent injuries and failures to live up to the expectations shunted the Sox into the seventh-place berth, although at the season's halfway point the club returned to Chicago after a hard road jaunt within one-half game of second place.

"That fellow's misfortune was what broke us up," said Gleason in the clubhouse yesterday, as he pointed to a locker bearing the name of "Eddie Collins," stellar second-baseman.

"The team was never right after that."

Collins was injured at St. Louis July 2, and was out of the game two weeks. After that in order came the enforced absence of McClellan and Willie Kamm, the third baseman purchased for $100,000. In some quarters it is believed that Comiskey will refuse to accept the Kid's resignation, although in others it is said that the "old Roman" believes that despite its reverses, the team should have been fighting for the pennant.

PETROLIA EXPECTS LOCALS BEAT SARNIA

Lack of Condition Was Costly in Blue and White Game.

Special to The Advertiser.

Petrolia, Oct. 16. — Although overwhelmed by the Blue and White rugby squad here Saturday, the locals are, nevertheless, not discouraged. All they are looking for now is to see the London crew trim the Tunnel City team on Saturday, and they will give a good account of themselves in Sarnia.

If London can stop the fast Sarnia lads next Saturday—and it is the opinion of the local team that they really can—then Petrolia is out to trim Sarnia right in Sarnia, and bring about a group tie-up.

It must, however, be acknowledged that Sarnia has a fast team, but the Blue and Whites also must acknowledge that all the breaks flew their way last Saturday.

It was as Referee Smith declared—the Hard-Oils lacked condition. Had they been able to stand the hammering of the visitors, it might have been a different story.

Juniors Hard at Work.

Coach Duncan had twenty juniors out last night, and put them through two hours of heavy work in preparation for their game with St. Thomas.

Most of the evening was taken up in developing new plays, which will greatly strengthen the local kids. Several new candidates have put in their appearance, and the locals will present a strong line-up when they again meet the Flower City boys on the 27th.

Both intermediate and junior teams will be idle this week, and are training hard for their games later on.

L. C. I. GRIDDERS ARE HOSTS TO SAINTS

Open Local Wossa Rugby District At Tecumseh Park This Afternoon.

When St. Thomas Collegiate Institute sends its rugby squad against the London C. I. team at Tecumseh Park this afternoon, the Flower City lads should experience somewhat tougher going than has been the story in the past.

This fall's turnouts have gathered in a bigger, better squad than ever before, and since the grouping of London's collegiates as regards rugby, it has been possible to form a formidable team. Its actual strength will receive a truthful test this afternoon.

The team, it was announced, would line up against St. Thomas as follows: Jones, l.o.; Freel, l.m.; Chapman, l.i.; Rourke, snap; Hart, r.i.; McCausland, r.m.; Johnston (captain), r.o.; Fitzmaurice, quarter; Foote, l.h.; Bach, c.h.; Hunter, r.h.; Wanless, f.w. Spares: Aikenhead, Sharpe, Martin, Gammage, McGregor, Craig, White and Bice.

Giants Receive $4,000 Checks

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, Oct. 16.—Checks for $4,112.88, the losers' end, were distributed today to members of the New York Giants as their share of the world series receipts. The total distributed among Giant players and attendants was $110,634.91.

Manager McGraw and his assistant, Hughie Jennings, and twenty-four players were the ones to get the bigger checks. Pitchers who joined the club late, groundkeepers, trainers and assistant secretaries received checks for sums ranging from $250 to $1,500.

Baseball Commissioner Landis, who announced the award, said the world's champion Yankees had not yet submitted their list of those to receive checks.

QUEEN'S WILL DEFEND CANADIAN GRID TITLE

Confident of Win in Toronto Saturday at the Varsity Stadium.

Special to The Advertiser.

Kingston, Oct. 16.—Coach Hughes, Jack Batstone and Johnny Evans, who witnessed the McGill-University of Toronto game in Montreal last Saturday, are confident that Queen's will defeat the Blue and White in the Intercollegiate Union senior fixture in Toronto next Saturday.

The Queen's coach reports that the Tricolor players are in excellent condition and ready to play a snappy game at the U. of T. stadium. One thing Queen's players possess this season is confidence, which a year ago was lacking, although eventually the Dominion championship was won. The locals have full confidence in their coach, to whom they owe their victories, when the 1922 team was considered down and out. Queen's would rather defeat University of Toronto than any other team in Canada.

Last winter it was declared that should the Queen's players win the intercollegiate championship again, they would not enter the play-off for the Dominion honors, but it is now stated that should victory again perch on the Tricolor banner, the champions will continue right through to the Dominion final.

The referee stopped the fight in the fourth, when the Pittsburger regained his feet after a knock-down.

They are bantamweights.

Garrison A. A. Plans To Take In All Western Ontario Military Units

GARRISON A. A. WILL EMBRACE ALL W. ONTARIO

Big Move Planned For This Season—Elect Officers At Friday's Meeting.

The annual meeting of the London Garrison Amateur Athletic Association will be held in the lecture room of the armories at 8 p.m. on Friday, the 19th instant, when the election of officers for the ensuing year will take place.

This organization has met with remarkable success during the past two years, but more especially last year, when their most noteworthy achievement was the successful revival of boxing, not only in London but throughout all Western Ontario. Numerous inquiries have already been received as to when the first tournament is to be held this fall, and Chairman Burns is now working on tentative arrangements for the first show.

Amongst the most important items to be discussed at the annual meeting this year is the formation of an association to be known as Military District No. 1 Amateur Athletic Association, to include all militia units in Military District No. 1, and of which the London Garrison Amateur Athletic Association would form a part. Such an organization would be the controlling body of all military athletics in the district and would be officered by representatives mostly outside the city. In the event of such an association being formed districts could be formed as follows:

District No. 1—Chatham and Windsor.
District No. 2—The London Garrison Amateur A. A.
District No. 3—St. Thomas, Stratford, Woodstock.
District No. 4—Guelph, Galt and Kitchener.

Arrange Play-off.

The winners of the various districts in each line of sport would be brought together for the district championship and would then compete with the winners of the other military districts.

Lieut.-Colonel W. T. Lawless, D. S. O., and Q. M. S. (W. O. II) H. B. Rutherford, C. M. S. C., who have been president and secretary respectively for the past two years are retiring from office this year. These officials have been untiring in their efforts for the success of the association.

Nominations for the various officers closed with the secretary last week, and are as follows:

Honorary President—Brig.-General B. W. King, C. M. G., D. S. O., commanding M. D. No. 1—Elected by acclamation.

President—Lieut.-Col. C. H. Hill, D. S. O., the R. C. R.; Lieut.-Col. W. T. Lawless, D. S. O. (retiring from office this year); Captain H. P. E. Phillips, M. C., the R. C. R.; Lieut.-Col. G. E. Reid, D.S.O., the W. O. R.; Major A. R. Mortimore, District H. Q.

WOODSTOCK SWAMPS INGERSOLL C. I. 30-5

Open Wossa Rugby Schedule With Decisive Win.

Special to The Advertiser.

Woodstock, Oct. 16.—Playing superb football for three periods of the game, Woodstock Collegiate defeated Ingersoll Collegiate by a score of 30 to 5 in their first scheduled game here this afternoon. Ingersoll started strongly and smashed through the Woodstock line repeatedly in the first quarter, Parker finally going over for a touchdown. This was Ingersoll's only score. In the second quarter, Myers, Start and Studdor scored touchdowns, all of which were converted. Six more points were added by the third quarter when Scalisi went over for a touch, which was also converted by Stevenson. Mountford broke away in the last quarter and scored the fifth touchdown, which was also converted, Stevenson making the fine record of converting five touchdowns. Studdor did some brilliant running, and had three 60-yard gallops. His touchdown was scored after a 70-yard run. Roadhouse, Scalisi, Start, Myers and Mountford also played a strong game. George, Crellin and Parker were the shining lights of the Ingersoll twelve.

Zev Is Matched For $50,000 Go

Associated Press Despatch.

Jamaica, Oct. 16.—Trainer Hildreth of the Rancocas stable today accepted in behalf of Zev a challenge from the Laurel Track in Maryland for a $50,000 match race there Thursday, Oct. 25, between Admiral Grayson's colt, My Own, and the winner of the international match next Saturday. The acceptance is contingent, of course, on a Rancocas victory Saturday. Basil Jarvis, the English trainer, said he had completed plans to ship Papyrus back to England next Tuesday, and would do so unless directed otherwise by Ben Irish, owner of Papyrus.

WATFORD WINS THIRD GAME FROM FOREST

Score 4-3—Now Lead Series 2 to 1—Entertain Visitors.

Special To The Advertiser.

Watford, Oct. 16.—Watford public school baseball team defeated Forest public school in the third of the series of home and home baseball games which the two schools are playing in a closely fought game here in Exhibition Park on Monday afternoon, the final score being Watford 4, Forest 3.

The youngsters put up a very fair brand of ball, and what was lacking in skill was made up for in noise and excitement. Forest drew first blood by scoring in the second inning, but Watford soon equalized and drew ahead, only to have Forest come from behind and equalize the score again. Watford scored again, only to have Forest tie the score once more, until in the eighth inning, Watford put across their fourth run and then succeeded in holding Forest scoreless in the ninth.

The game resolved itself into a pitchers' duel, both Leslie McIntosh, who was on the mound for Watford, and Kimball, the Forest pitcher, using their heads well.

Watford's victory yesterday puts them in the lead for championship honors between the two schools, Watford having won two games to Forest's one. After the game the visiting players and rooters were entertained to supper in the homes of the Watford pupils.

The teams:

Forest—Prout, c.; Gray, 1.f.; Kimball, p.; McKellar, c.f.; Hall, s.s.; Fulcher, 1b; Kimball, 3b.; Ross, 2b; Cameron, r.f.

Watford—C. Spalding, 1b; L. McIntosh, p.; H. Stapleford, 2b; M. McIntosh, c.; B. Bruce, c.f.; S. McCrae, r.f.; C. Class, l.f.; B. Kersey, s.s.; F. Jackson, 3b.

Batteries: Forest—Kimball and Prout; Watford, L. McIntosh and M. McIntosh.

WHITE SOX ARE AGAIN CHICAGO CHAMPIONS

Defeat Cubs in Deciding Ten-Inning Game by 4 to 3.

Associated Press Despatch.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—The White Sox again are Chicago city champions. By beating the National League Cubs 4 to 3 in 10 innings today the Americans won the series four games to two, and regained the title, won last year by the Cubs.

Two fumbles and a wild throw by George Grantham gave the Sox the final game. The first fumble came in the ninth inning, in which the Sox scored twice and tied the score, while the second fumble and wild peg came in the tenth and let in the winning run.

It was the eighth city championship the Sox have won. The Cubs have won the title three times, the victory last year being the first in 13 years.

Kaufmann pitched for the Cubs and kept his hits scattered.

Total paid attendance for six games, 141,791; total receipts, $130,364.25; commission's share, $19,554.65; each club's share, $29,616.21; players' pool (four games), $51,577.18; winning team's pool, $39,946.31; losing team's pool, $20,630.87.

ONT. SOFTBALL FINALS AT BRANTFORD THURSDAY

Special to The Advertiser.

Brantford, Oct. 16.—The final game in the intermediate softball finals for the provincial title of the O. A. S. A. will be played here Thursday between the Bell Telephone team and the Paterson nine. The former team won the first of the home and home games by the score of 10—3, and there is little doubt that the cup for this season will go to the Bell team.

STRATFORD 1922 HOCKEY TEAM TO RECEIVE RINGS

Stratford, Oct. 16.—The city council will present rings to members of the hockey team of last winter. This action appears somewhat delayed, but the delay is explained by the fact that the council last spring offered cash to the club, to be added to a fund they had for some mark of recognition to the players. This did not materialize, so the council will make a presentation on their own behalf.

2ND LAST HOMER PLEASED CY MOST

Because It Gave Ring Well-Earned Bonus For 18 Victory —All-Round Athlete.

Special To The Advertiser. Copyright.

Philadelphia, Oct. 16.—Fred Williams of the Phillies, yclept Cy, comes to the end of his twelfth major league campaign tied with Babe Ruth for the home-run honors of the season.

"Of course, I hoped all along to beat out Ruth," said the elongated, raw-boned, clear-eyed giant of the Phillies' outfield. "I promise next year to try and turn the trick."

Just the same this upstanding man of 35 summers has reason to be proud of his record in professional baseball and particularly over the steady manner in which he has developed as a circuit clouter. Back in the days before the lively ball, Cy tied for the National League lead with Dave Robertson, then of the Giants, at 14 apiece. But by 1921 Williams had climbed to 18; his 1922 total was 26 and this year he has pasted 41 four-ply drives.

All of fandom has been eagerly watching this struggle between Williams and Ruth. The Bambino has had his share of glory. But it must be a new thrill for him to share his honors as King of Swat. With Williams it is a different story. The bronzed centerfielder, whose facial characteristics remind one of Walter Johnson, is a thorough credit to the national pastime. His views are broad; his brain is clear, and he has climbed to the pinnacle by sheer ability.

Tries to Help Team.

"There's no particular merit to hitting home runs unless they help the team," declared Williams. "It has been my experience that the fellow who goes out with the idea of hitting home runs will be left in the ruck. I've used a bat an inch shorter than in former years, and perhaps that has helped my swing. The weight has been just the same—38 ounces—but the length has been shortened to 34 inches. I can't make up my mind whether that has been a factor in my greater home run total or not.

"I guess it's probably true that a natural hitter can bat anything when he's right. The length and weight of the bat don't cut a great figure. Of course you know that it is harder to hit a slow ball with great power than it is to smash a fast one. Yet one of the fiercest drives which netted me a home run this past season was made off a slow delivery. Lee Meadows was pitching and I timed it just right. A fellow usually can tell by the 'feel' of the drive whether the ball is going out of the park.

"Which of my homers gave me the greatest satisfaction this year? Well, I guess it was the one next to the last one, the 40th. It gave Jimmy Ring his 18th victory of the season, and a bonus of $1,000. Can you think of anything nicer than to uncork a drive that will earn $1,000 for a teammate?"

After assuring Williams that we could think of nothing nicer, the interviewer asked Cy if he has a bonus clause in his contract. This started the Philadelphia star on a long, earnest discussion.

Bonus Idea Is Wrong.

"No, I haven't any bonus clause and I never will," he replied, vehemently. "I think that the bonus idea is absolutely wrong. Why, Ring would have won 22 or more games this year if he hadn't tried so hard to hang up his 18th. You ask Fletcher what he thinks about bonuses. I bet he'll tell you that no one in his club will have a bonus clause next year. If a fellow has been through a major league campaign I think he should be offered a contract on his merit. Then he can go out and do his level best. The magnates should be willing to take that much of a chance on their players, basing their offers on past performances.

"Speaking of bonuses reminds me of an incident a few years ago in Philadelphia. Fletcher and I were standing together. We were playing a late season game with Boston. The Boston pitcher stopped near us on the way out to the box and said, 'I get a bonus if I win one more game. I hope you fellows will be easy on me.' Well, we had no grudge against this pitcher, but it happened that Fletcher and I broke up that ball game."

Williams' feat of piling up a total of fifteen more home runs than he made last year is all the more notable when it is recalled that he was out of the game for nearly a month during July and August. The leg muscle which he pulled, probably while chasing a fly rather than swinging at a ball (he never did find out how it happened), made it necessary for the big fellow to start all over again in getting the range. Furthermore, Williams feels that opposing pitchers have been particularly keen while serving them up to him, which is only natural. But Cy asks and gives no quarter.

Notre Dame Graduate.

The prospective ruler of Swatdom is a college man, having been graduated from Notre Dame in 1912, but he doesn't believe that professional baseball is quite the thing for college graduates. "Baseball," he says, "is the greatest sport to wean anyone away from business. You spend about six weeks to prepare for the season, play six months, and then you need some recreation and rest. Altogether baseball takes about eight months. If a fellow can spend four months in business and make much progress he's a wonder."

Williams manages to keep busy during the off-season. He lives in the woods country of Northern Wisconsin, in a place called Three Lakes. His wife and three children stay there the year round. Majorie is 9 years old, Forrest is 5, and Marian 3. And the father of the family says that the rough life aids in keeping him in trim for baseball.

"I firmly believe that wood chopping is great stuff for a major league batsman. If it wasn't for the rugged work which I do winters I never would have stuck to the national game for twelve years. Feeding stock, logging and farming is just the thing to keep a fellow fit. Cutting down trees trains the eye, strengthens arms and legs, and I feel that it has aided me in my hitting."

You may have forgotten that Williams got his start in county ball games out in Wadena, Ind., where he first saw the light of day, 35 years ago last December.

No Sport Activities.

There were no sporting activities at his high school, but he used to hit the ball hard in those days, and a friend got him to enter Notre Dame. His batting in college made such an impression that he was signed with the Chicago Cubs in 1912, after finishing his junior year in college. He went back to South Bend to earn his parchment in architecture, but wasn't eligible to play for Notre Dame in 1913. In his undergraduate days he divided his time between baseball and track and he played some on the great Notre Dame football team of 1909—a sub halfback.

"Just a dozen years ago, in 1911, he won three places in the Western Conference meet—second in the high hurdles, third in the low hurdles and fourth in the broad jump. Considering that most of his time was devoted to baseball that was quite a showing. In the high hurdles in that meet he was just barely nosed out by Nicholson, the old Missouri star, in 15 3-5 secs. Williams has done 25 4-5 secs. over the low barriers, and was a consistent 22-foot broad jumper. He was good for 10 1-5 secs. in the 100, and used to train with Bill Martin, old Penn. State coach, who is now coaching at Harvard. During the winter of 1911 Williams won the National A. A. U. indoor broad-jumping championship. He is a wonderfully preserved athlete, and is still going strong, even though he is only two months away from his 36th birthday.

ST. THOMAS CAGERS PLAN EARLY START

City, Church and Industrial Loops Begin Before Christmas.

Special To The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, Oct. 16.—The basketball season in St. Thomas will get off to a big start much sooner than was expected by the local fans. Plans are now under way for the formation of a city league, a church league and probably an industrial league, all to be operated at the same time, and the games to be run off before Christmas.

The proposition is being fostered by H. A. McKerracher, physical director of the local "Y," and he has called a big public meeting to be held in the Y. M. C. A. Thursday night. Aylmer has sent word that they desire to enter a team in any league that is formed in St. Thomas, regardless of the rules that are embodied. Aylmer is a strong basketball center and some fine intercity games should be witnessed this winter.

There are a number of fine teams in St. Thomas, and the meeting Thursday night promises to be a large one. Representatives are expected from industrial concerns, churches, clubs and places of business. Three to five games can be staged at the Y. M. C. A. every week, if necessary.

BURNS TO MANAGE BOSTON BRAVES.

It was reported last night that George Burns, former star Giant outfielder, last season with the Cincinnati Reds, would succeed Fred Mitchell as manager-player of the Boston Braves. The Reds are getting Southworth in exchange.

DIDN'T WALK ME INTENTIONALLY

Ruth Says Hurlers Pitched To Him, and Quotes History To Prove It.

By BABE RUTH.

You know, in the heat of a scrap that means so much as a world's series a fellow often forgets himself. It's easy to say and do things on the field that you are sorry for later. It's just as easy to put things in writing that you'd like to erase after you get back to your normal way of thinking. For the most part, I feel that I stuck pretty close to two important promises—no predictions, no alibis.

I predicted no victories, and yet today we are champions of the world. I predicted no home runs, but I managed to get three, and I think my record is just as clean on the question of alibis.

So let me clear up one point anyway, so far as I am concerned, and that is the question of base running. Before the series the sport writers used up a lot of space discussing whether McGraw would have his pitchers walk me or pitch to me. McGraw, in advance, said they would not walk me, except in great emergency.

What happened? I received eight base on balls in six games. That's a lot, the fans will say. Yes, almost as many per game as I received in the American League race, which broke all previous walking records. But John McGraw claims his pitchers never once walked me intentionally, and, if I know anything about pitching or batting—having had a few years at both—I'm here to say that McGraw is absolutely right.

They didn't roll 'em down the old alley—of course not! Why shouldn't they work on the corners? They made them as nasty as possible. They put them where I wouldn't like them, and when the great test came, that "extraordinary emergency" McGraw said might happen, in the eighth inning of Monday's game, did they get cold feet? Did the catcher stand halfway to the water bucket, like some catchers I know of? Not on your life! They walked Hoffman, Bush and Dugan before me on twelve pitched balls. Then, with three on bases and the world's series slipping, the Giants had every legitimate reason in the world to pass me too. But what happened? While I was still batting, out comes Hank Gowdy with a message to Ryan, the pitcher, and on the next ball I struck out. A perfect strike-out. I couldn't hear what McGraw told Gowdy, or what Gowdy told Ryan, but does anybody think that McGraw said, "Walk him?"

With a batting average of .358, including three home runs, I have no regrets about this world's series. But I like to be fair about it. McGraw started with the weakest pitching staff that ever went into the big series. He lookeyed and schemed for every advantage, but neither McGraw nor any Giant pitcher back-watered once in the six games. It's funny, but if you'll look back, world's series time is always an open season for alibis. I've never been able to figure it out why the same situations in July or August never get a tumble. The worst pitcher in any league is liable to strike out the best batter when you least expect it. Rosy Ryan happens to be one of the best in the National League, and he simply crossed me in the big inning, when, according to all the dope, I was due to bust one. So, as McGraw and I both agree, it doesn't seem there's much argument left on the subject of base on balls.

The Giants gave us a run for our money all the way through. Nehf was a living puzzle in his first game, and tied us up in knots again Monday, until he collapsed. Nehf has beat us in past years, and has the respect of every Yankee player. The series was full of plays that were too great for description. When ball players start raving about each other, you know real class is on exhibition. That boy Frisch is the greatest I have seen. Joe Dugan at third slammed the door in the face of all others after third base honors. The Yankee pitchers worked unselfishly. Our batters didn't know when to stop, Wardie carrying off first prize and Scotty, ordinarily a light hitter, socked 'em hard and timely. Miller Huggins is ten years younger today. Just as he said after the last game, the three-year road to this championship had a lot of tough turns. It didn't do his health any good, but today he is the strategy, the boss, the driving power behind one of the strongest clubs that ever captured a world's series.

I had a pretty good year, and I had a pretty good series. My friends seem pleased, and certainly I am too. What about next year? Well, no predictions. I've tried baseball on two distinct plans, and I know which brought the best results. Last fall I promised the fans and the kids that until this world's series was over I'd go the straight and narrow path. Does anyone think I'd be foolish enough to change now?

PAPYRUS SHOWS BURST OF SPEED

Great English Runner Will Get Final Tests On Saturday.

DONOGHUE COMING

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, Oct. 16. — With Jockey Steve Donoghue arriving on the Olympic today to give Papyrus his final speed trials for the international match with Zev next Saturday, Trainer Basil Jarvis did not set his charge down for his best effort in his announced trial at Belmont Park this morning. But he gave the colt a solid workout that impressed horsemen almost as much as high speed would have done.

The invader worked a mile and three furlongs, only a furlong shorter than the distance of the match race, and his last furlong was his fastest. From a very slow six furlongs in 1:18 3-5, and a mile in 1:44, he stepped a mile and a quarter in 2:10 3-5, and the eleven furlongs in 2:24 flat.

Papyrus' last quarter in .26 2-5, running very strongly, was in marked contrast with the last quarter of Zev's recent work, which he finished dog-tired in .29 3-5.

Zev, however, was called upon for rather high speed in the early part of his work, while Papyrus was carefully conserved.

Zev will have another long workout tomorrow. He was sent for a half mile "pipe opener" in .48 3-5 this morning.

SARNIA'S STAR SNAP MAY BE OUT OF SATURDAY GAME

Sarnia, Oct. 16.—Jack Richardson, star snapback of the Sarnia intermediates, may not be able to play next Saturday against the London intermediates in the Forest City. The husky collegiate graduate injured his shoulder in a tackle early in the game last Saturday in Petrolia, but refused to quit, although he was laid out several times with the injury. He was replaced by Bentley at the last, but his arm is in a bad way and it is thought that he may have to take a rest.

Name Officials Saturday Game

Official for the Sarnia-London game here Saturday were named by the rugby committee last night as follows:

Umpire—A. T. Taylor.
Head Linesman—Beech Nelles.
Timekeepers—Stan. Reid and A. Ball.
Yardsticks—Geo. Grange and H. Leckie.

As it is impossible to stage a double header, and there are no other grounds available, Convener Hale of the junior group is being notified to that effect, and Thanksgiving Day being an open date here, it is suggested as a possible switch for the Elks-St. Thomas game.

FALL HANDICAP DRAWS BIG ENTRY

Light Dragoon, Last Year's Cesarwich Stakes Winner, Will Not Start.

SEVERAL ADDITIONS

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Oct. 16. — Capt. Forester's colt, Light Dragoon, winner of the Cesarwich stakes last year, will not be a starter tomorrow afternoon in the principal Newmarket autumn handicap, his entry being scratched this afternoon. Other scratches today are: Sancroft, Tanglewood, Plus Fours and Mizzen Mast.

Numerous alterations were made today to the list of probable starters issued yesterday. Jas. White's Norseman, looked upon yesterday as a probable starter, is omitted from today's list, while several additions have been made.

MARKET STAYS FIRM AFTER EARLY DRIVE

Rails, Automotives and Some Industrials Survive the Opening Attack.

By STUART P. WEST.

New York, Oct. 17.—The stock market demonstrated today, after a further drive in the early trading, that the leading industrials were encountering the same support that had appeared when they were around the same low levels, first in July, second in August, and then again in September. During the first hour selling occurred in some of the rails, and a sharp attack was made upon the motor and tire stocks. It soon became apparent that if it was the purpose of this selling movement to induce liquidation in the rest of the list, it was meeting with no success. Perceiving this, traders stood in to cover and there was a swift rebound.

Stocks, like Baldwin Locomotive, American Can, American Woolen, and Studebaker, rallied a point to a point and a half in less than half an hour. The run-up in Willys-Overland, preferred, showed that the stock is still so closely held that very little buying can cause a substantial advance. The big holders of this stock continue to figure upon some distribution before long on back dividend account. Industrial Alcohol was weak at the start, but later recovered. Here is a case where the recent decline can certainly not be set down to an unfavorable trade position. On the contrary, alcohol prices are the highest in three years, and the profit margin of the producers is the best it has been in all this period.

Oil stocks stood up well in face of the renewal of the price-cutting war.

Producers and Refiners was an exception, succumbing to another wave of selling which brought out again the twin rumors of new financing and passing of dividends. The shorts in the steels were sufficiently impressed with the weekly trade summaries to do considerable covering. The statement by the Cleveland Iron Trade Review that new bookings so far in Oitober had run ahead of the September average did not fit in with the preconceived notion of professional Wall street that the steel industry was going to the bad. Moreover, there was a reluctance to be short of the steels with the Republic Iron and Steel statement for the quarter due after the close of business.

The informal report was that this would make a favorable showing. Steel, common, had been driven down below 86 in the early trading, but joined in readily when the market turned.

WILL FLOAT HUGE LOAN TO STABILIZE HUNGARY

Associated Press Despatch.

Paris, Oct. 17.—Reorganization of the Hungarian finances by the League of Nations upon the same general plan as applied to Austria, was advanced another step today when the inter-allied reparations commission unanimously adopted a resolution requesting the league to draw up such a plan.

The tentative plan is to issue a loan of £24,000,000 on the international markets.

TORONTO MINING EXCHANGE.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Oct. 17.—The market on the Standard mining exchange continued unsettled this morning, and although there were some fractional losses, several gold advances were made. Goldale continued strong and gained ½ at 58. Lake Shore made the biggest advance, being eight higher at 345. Vipond was half higher at 90; Hattie a quarter at 12¾; McKinley-Darragh half at 12½, and Castle Trethewey advanced a point to 34½ on heavy trading. New Ray and Clifton each lost half, and Nipissing ten at 550.

WALL STREET GOSSIP.

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, Oct. 17.—Wall Street, noon.—Speculators for the decline encountered stubborn resistance before the end of the first hour upon the apparent completion of the liquidation of weakened marginal accounts, which had carried a score of issues to low levels for the year. The market then turned abruptly upward in response to rather heavy buying by speculative interests, on the theory that the technical condition of the market warranted at least a temporary rally. This manoeuvre resulted in rather extensive short covering, so that before noon such leaders as United States Steel, Baldwin, Studebaker, American Woolen and American Can were selling 1 to 2 points above yesterday's final figures. Woolworth jumped 6½ points to 260½, a new top, on reports of record-breaking sales, and Philip Morris re-established a new 1923 at 23⅝, in anticipation of a merger of that and other tobacco companies. Call money opened at 4% per cent.

CANADA WILL CONTRIBUTE $30,000 TO CABLE SERVICE

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Oct. 17.—Under the proposed new arrangement for the West India cable service, Canada's contribution will be about £6,000 annually, in comparison with the present subsidy of £8,000. The basis of the agreement is that Canada will contribute in the proportion in which she now subsidizes a private company. That is the general principle of the agreement, but it is dependent on the costs being kept within the estimates.

CONFERENCE CONSIDERS USING TWELVE-MILE LIMIT

London, Oct. 17.—A special committee of the imperial conference has given preliminary consideration of the question of the three-mile limit in territorial waters. The twelve-mile limit proposal, it is understood, arises not merely on the request of the United States to prevent rum-running, but also on the request of Russia, who wants it for her fisheries.

Memoranda on the legal aspects of the question have been submitted by Canada, but so far the committee has not discussed the main principle involved.

Brussels, Oct. 17.—The general council of the Socialist party has barred all communists from the party's unionist, co-operative or mutual, organizations in order to eliminate the communist influence in these bodies.

Representatives of the commission, who interviewed officials of the railway at Toronto on Monday, were told the property could not be used by the commission because of plans to build additional tracks. Officials of the commission said today, plans for bringing the main water supply must be changed as a result.

EGG MARKET REVIEW

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—Some country shippers report difficulty in making sales of fresh eggs at cost. This situation resulted from owners of storage stocks pushing the sale of their storage eggs, which, they claim, consumers prefer to the ordinary run of fresh eggs now arriving, as fresh specials and extras are not so plentiful as they were, and are becoming more scarce daily. For these grades there is always a good sale. The movement of Canadian storage eggs is reported satisfactory, and what weakness there is is in the United States, where stocks are heavy and demand none too good, considering the heavy holdings.

Toronto—Unchanged. A sale of a car of storage firsts reported at 33c, f.o.b., Western Ontario, cases returned.

Montreal—Specials 48c, extras 42c, storage extras 40c, firsts 36c to 37c, seconds 31c.

Local Market

With the produce section closed, the local market was a quiet one this morning. In the hay and grain sections also business was dull, only two loads of hay and four of oats reaching the city for disposal.

The two loads of hay sold for $14.00 and $14.50, respectively.

Oats went up 2c per bushel for top grade; today's loads ranging from 48½c to 49c per bushel. Buckwheat is being quoted locally at $1.60 per cwt., and barley at $1.54.

No wheat was offered on the market this morning. Those following the local grain prices say that once the silo filling is completed and the plowing well under way, grain will reach London in larger quantities. The fact of a large harvest in both Canada and the United States is expected to have a depressing effect on Ontario wheat, but when this will be first felt is not hinted at on the local grain market.

GULF GALE LOSES INTENSITY AND DAMAGE DONE IS SMALL

Associated Press Despatch.

New Orleans, La., Oct. 16.—The Gulf storm, first heralded yesterday by the weather bureau as of hurricane proportions, was spending itself somewhere north of here tonight, pouring rain over a wide area and leaving in its trail on the Louisiana and Mississippi coasts, damage trivial in comparison with that wrought by previous blasts from the tropics.

The gale apparently lost some of its intensity as it reached the land, for the highest wind velocity reported by a land station was sixty miles an hour.

Vancouver, Oct. 16.—The present assizes of the British Columbia supreme court will make the first experience of the province with women on the jury.

Addressing the grand jury today Mr. Justice Gregory said:

"I shall not pretend that I favor having women on juries. I have always looked on women as being on a pinnacle. But it seems they want to pull themselves down to men's level. At any rate, the Legislature has seen fit to put you there."

Grain Markets

CHICAGO.

Associated Press Despatch.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Fresh strength in the corn market brought about a rally in wheat prices today soon after the opening. Initial declines in wheat were associated with the talk current that an advance in vessel rates on the Great Lakes might soon divert larger shipments of wheat into the United States, and that any reductio nin rail rates would be insufficient to put domestic wheat on an export basis. Unfavorable weather, however, and Nebraska reports of corn rotting in the fields, tended to lift corn and indirectly had a bullish effect on wheat. After opening at ¼c o ffto ½c up, wheat underwent a slight general sag, and then recovered to above yesterday's finish.

Corn opened ¼c to ⅜c higher, and then declined a trifle before beginning to ascend.

Oats started unchanged to ⅛c lower, and later held near to the opening range.

Associated Press Despatch.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Announcement that President Coolidge had suggested a reduction in railroad rates in wheat for export led to a late upturn in wheat values yesterday, but the gains were for the most part transient. The market closed unsettled, at a shade to ⅜c advance.

Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.11 to $1.16; No. 2 red, $1.11.

Corn—No. 2 mixed, $1.08½ to $1.09½; No. 2 yellow, $1.11 to $1.12.

Oats—No. 2 white, 43½c; No. 3 white, 42½c to 44c.

Rye—No. 1, 73c.

Barley—60c to 78c.

Futures opened:

Wheat—Dec., $1.08; May, $1.12⅝.

Corn—Dec., 77⅞c; May, 76c.

Oats—Dec., 42⅞c; May, 45¼c.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, Oct. 17.—In spite of bearish world statistics and heavy receipts, the wheat market maintained a firm tone yesterday and prices closed unchanged to ⅝c higher. The trend of the market is somewhat a mystery to local traders, and transactions today were very small. There appears to be an undercurrent of strength to the market which cannot be explained. There was no pressure from any source during the session, offerings were light, and speculative interest limited. Any demand that exists is from shippers who have tonnage to fill.

The coarse grain markets continued quiet, with no particular feature. Prices were comparatively steady, and buyers appear able to secure their requirements without disturbing values. Crushers were taking the light offerings of flax.

Cash wheat was very heavy, with No. 1 northern down to ½c of the deliverable prices, and No. 2 and No. 3 northern within ½c, spreads being 2½c and 7½c under the October price. The demand was only fair, and lack of tonnage is said to be hampering trade. Oats and barley trade was active, rye featureless and flax in good demand.

Cash prices:

Wheat—No. 1 northern, 97⅝c; No. 2 nornern, 95c; No. 3 northern, 90c; No. 4, 84½c; No. 5, 79½c; No. 6, 71½c; feed, 66½c; track, 97⅝c; No. 4 rusted, 84½c; No. 5 rusted, 82½c; No. 6 rusted, 76½c.

Oats—No. 2 C. W., 42¾c; No. 3 C. W. and extra No. 1 feed, 39½c; No. 1 feed, 37¼c; No. 2 feed, 34¾c; rejected, 33¾c; track, 41¾c.

Barley—No. 3 C. W., 51⅜c; No. 4 C. W., 48⅝c; rejected, 45⅝c; feed, 44⅞c; track, 51½c.

Flax—No. 1 N. W. C., $2.17; No. 2 C. W., $2.12¾; No. 3 C. W. and rejected, $1.83¾; track, $2.15⅞.

Rye—No. 2 C. W., 63½c.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, Oct. 17.—Futures opened as follows:

Wheat—Oct. unchanged to ¼c lower at 97½c to 97¼c; Nov. unchanged to ¼c lower at 97½c to 97¼c; Dec. unchanged to ¼c lower at 95c to 94¾c; May, ⅛c higher to ⅛c lower at $1.00⅝ to $1.00⅝.

Oats—Oct. unchanged at 41¾c; Nov. unchanged at 40⅜c; Dec., ¼c lower at 39¾c; May unchanged at 42⅜c.

Barley—Oct. unchanged at 51½c; Dec. unchanged at 51¼c.

Flax—Oct. 1¾c lower at $2.15; Nov., ⅞c lower at $2.15; Dec. 1½c lower at $2.08; May, ⅝c to 1⅝c lower at $2.10 to $2.09.

Owing to the large amount of business the appointment is being pressed for and the position is expected to be filled immediately.

"TECH" ADDITION TO BE COMPLETED BY THE NEW YEAR

Construction Work Has Been in Progress For Some Months.

ROOM IS NEEDED

The six-room addition now in course of construction at the Technical School will be completed by Jan. 1, according to information received this morning.

This addition, which was rendered necessary by the large increase in students taking a vocational secondary school education, has been under way for some time now, the work having reached to the third floor. Concrete has been poured successfully during the fine weather of the past few weeks, and practically all the exterior work that remains to be done is the roof. This will be finished before long, and then the work of interior finishing will be undertaken.

Six new classrooms are in the new structure, which adjoins the present building at the southwest corner, running back towards King street. The rooms will all be of the latest type for school work, in one case two of them being so built that they may be thrown into one for auditorium purposes.

In future years, a similar addition may be built on the corresponding side of the building to the east, leaving a large space between the two wings for the construction of a gymnasium and auditorium, for which a great need exists at this school.

Principal H. B. Beal is most emphatic in his statements that such an addition, where recreation may be indulged in, is necessary to the well being of the students, and the fostering of a school spirit and pride. He hopes that some steps will be taken next year to construct the gymnasium.

DISTRICT RAILROADS REPORT NO CONGESTION

Local Divisions Unaffected by Heavy Grain Shipments From West.

There is no congestion of traffic on the local railway divisions, owing to the fact that the grain shipments from the west have reached Ontario and are being transshipped from lake ports to inland centers, according to information received this morning.

The amount of grain which passes through London is very small, few large shipments making their way over the lines from the ports to this city, but those that have passed through have been cleared with promptness, causing no delay on the lines.

There are no elevators for storage purposes near London, these being at Goderich, Sarnia, Port Huron and other lake ports, and the clearing of grain from these points is being handled in first-class manner, no serious congestion in the movement of cars having been reported to local offices.

CITY TREASURER SAYS OVERDRAFT IS $17,500

James Bell Submits List of Expenditures Considered Uavoidable.

City Treasurer James Bell today estimated that the city council's expected overdraft stands at roughly $17,500. Mr. Bell is at a complete loss to understand just how this can be avoided, as there is absolutely no money in sight that would be available, he states.

The following items are cited as unavoidable expenditures, not provided for when the 1923 estimates were finally slashed and the 34.7 mill rate struck.

MISTAKE IN MACHINES CAUSES DISMISSAL

Police Court Frees a Well-Known Citizen on Parking Charge.

A case of mistaken identity occupied the time of the police court this morning when a well known Londoner was charged with parking his car next to a hydrant outside the Salvation Army citadel.

The officers who laid the charge said the car was a Ford sedan, but the plaintiff swore he was out of town on the night of October 12 when the machine was discovered.

"My car is a Dodge, anyway," he said. "It wasn't out of the garage from 8 o'clock that evening until noon the next day."

"I don't understand how the officers could have made such a mistake. Perhaps your number was stolen," the court suggested.

"I don't think so."

"Case dismissed," said the magistrate.

C. N. R. EMPLOYEE FALLS TO GROUND SENSELESS

Employees of the bridge and building department of the C. N. R. were startled this morning to see a fellow employee, H. Wood, fall from a plank on which he was working and lie, apparently dead, upon the ground. Upon examination it was discovered he was senseless.

Dr. Mel Platt, who was called, said the man had probably fainted from an attack of indigestion. The patient stated he felt an acute pain in the abdomen and knew nothing more until taken to the hospital.

Wood only recently came to London.

Will 'Clean Up' Address Tonight

Mayor Wenige expects tonight to "clean up" the remaining clauses in his famous inaugural address.

A special session of the finance committee has been called, and it is promised also that the members will be asked to consider the proposed salary readjustment as it affects those departments at the city hall under their direct supervision.

The commission form of government and the proposed appointment of a city purchasing agent are also slated for final consideration at tonight's gathering.

CHICAGO TO HEAR WAR PREMIER'S SPEECH TONIGHT

Lloyd George Alters Program To Recover From Fatigue.

VISIT LINCOLN TOMB

Associated Press Despatch.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Fatigued by the strenuous program he has followed since his arrival in America, Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, Great Britain's war premier, spent this morning resting at his hotel. His schedule for last night and today was cut to permit him to recover from a slight indisposition felt late yesterday after he had gone through with most of his first day's program, but this afternoon, after a trip around the city incognito, he expects to resume the arranged schedule. It was not regarded as necessary to call in a doctor for the vigorous little Welshman.

His chief message to the United States will be delivered tonight at a public meeting in the international amphitheatre at the Chicago Stock yards. It will follow a dinner given in his honor by the Audit Bureau of Circulation. The two meetings make up today's entire program for the former premier. He will leave for Springfield tomorrow to visit the tomb of Abraham Lincoln and deliver an address.

Owing to her husband's indisposition, Dame Margaret Lloyd George took his place as speaker at a meeting of the Welsh-American societies of Chicago last night. She urged the women to ally themselves with a movement recently begun to unite all English-speaking women to work for international peace. Dame Margaret and her daughter, Miss Megan, spent today in shopping and sightseeing, and this evening will be guests at a dinner given by Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, who returned from Europe on the same ship with them.

CITY COUNCIL EXPECTS BECK REPORT SHORTLY

Mayor Wenige Thinks Street Railway Will Ask $1,750,000 For Holdings.

With Sir Adam Beck again out of the city, no developments are reported in connection with the local street railway situation. Returning to the city today, R. G. Ivey, vice-president of the company, stated that nothing further had transpired since his recent meeting over the week-end with the member for London.

It was stated today upon good authority, however, that Sir Adam would soon have a report ready for the city council. The understanding is today that while the company may be ready to submit a price, he will make an offer. That his offer will be in the neighborhood of $1,000,000 is still considered probable.

Mayor Wenige expects, however, that the company will ask about $1,750,000 for its holdings, valuating its recent improvements and additional rolling stock at about $300,000.

INFANT IS RECOVERING AFTER BLOOD TRANSFUSION

Physicians who performed a transfusion of blood from a London man, C. F. Stevens, to his 3-weeks-old baby last Saturday morning reported today that the child was doing nicely and its recovery is looked for. The readiness of the father to give his blood undoubtedly saved the life of the child.

Early Saturday morning a practical nurse working with the Stevens family discovered that the 3-weeks-old infant of Mr. and Mrs. Stevens was unconscious. His skin had turned blue and the nurse, becoming alarmed notified the parents. They immediately secured medical assistance.

Following a consultation of several medical men, the belief was expressed that the baby was suffering from a cerebral hemorrhage, and only a transfusion of blood would save the infant's life. The father immediately offered as much of his own as was necessary. Ten c.c's were transfused from father to child at Victoria Hospital Saturday afternoon. This morning, four days after the transfusion, the child was reported to be in good health.

PLAY FOR CHAMPIONSHIP OF CLUB ON SATURDAY

A tournament for the members of the London Tennis Club will be played off this Saturday on the courts of the club. The two cinder courts of Ed. Reid also will be brought into use for the one-day tourney. Miss Ethel Spence is arranging that the competition be staged under the American plan of tournament play. The player winning the most games will win the championship. This is done so the tourney can be run off in less time than an elimination series. There will be events for both senior and junior players.

MANY IMMIGRANTS FORCED TO RETURN FROM U. S. SHORES

Pathetic Scenes Witnessed at Ellis Island When Admission Refused.

QUOTA EXHAUSTED

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, Oct. 17.—Pathetic scenes were witnessed at the Cunard Line piers yesterday when 566 immigrants in excess of the October quota were denied admission to the United States and were returned overseas on the Berengaria, which sailed yesterday. Most of those deported were British. Those returned had arrived on the Caronia, which docked Friday, and the Berengaria, which docked Sunday. Most of them had failed to reach the United States in time for admission under the quota because of a collision at sea on Sept. 30, in which the Cunard liner Scythia was damaged. The Scythia's passengers were returned to port and transferred to the liners which reached port after the quota had been exhausted.

The piers were filled yesterday with the belongings of the immigrants. Families had become separated, and many were grief-stricken at the prospects of returning.

Among the mothers on the pier was Mrs. Margaret Bisset of Aberdeen, Scotland. She arrived Sunday, bringing her two sick children, Violet, aged 5, and Kathleen, aged 7. She had to leave yesterday on the Berengaria, afraid that their health will not let them survive the trip. Mrs. Bisset's husband is in Boston, having arrived six weeks ago to make a home for his family.

Immigration officials told those deported that if they hurry back they may be in time to be included in the November quota. Immigration Commissioner Curran announced yesterday that despite the return of the immigrants on the Berengaria, every bed at Ellis Island was occupied, and that 150 Italians bound for Canada are distributed in quarters on ships in the harbor pending a ruling by the Canadian Government.

TRACTORS COMPETE IN BIG COMPETITION

Annual Plowing Match Opens Near Sarnia Under Ideal Conditions.

Special to The Advertiser.

Sarnia, Oct. 17.—The annual plowing match of the Ontario Plowmen Association, known this year as the "International match," opened here at 9 o'clock this morning in fine weather, but with an easterly wind prevailing, which gave possibilities of rain.

This is the preliminary day of the match, but one championship, that for the best plowed land in sod done by a tractor, was included in the events, the balance of the program being taken by Lambton County township competitions, for which entries are not so large as expected. Dawn township heads the list with seven entries, and Sarnia Township has four. Other townships have one or so entries.

There is keen competition, however, for the tractor plowing trophy valued at $150, the competitors being Perry Ward, Richmond, Mich.; R. J. Spence, Rodney, Ont.; Clarke Young, Milliken, Ont.; Stewart Kewley, Mandaumin, Ont.; A. Hillier, Camlachie; A. Bowling, Alvinston; M. Barnes, Croton, Ont.

The indications are for a large attendance by afternoon, and a record gathering for Thursday, when Lieut.-Governor Cockshutt will officiate at a formal opening at 2 o'clock.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Woodstock, Oct. 17.—A small wreck occurred in the local yards of the C. P. Three cars and the engine were somewhat damaged, and the track torn up for some distance. A number of the hogs, sheep and calves in the damaged cars were killed. The London auxiliary had the line cleared by 6 o'clock. None of the trainmen was injured.

CHILDREN DENY SELVES TO ASSIST SUFFERERS

London Pupils Voluntarily Collect $333 To Send To Japan.

Children in the public schools of London voluntarily collected $333.03 for the relief of Japanese children who suffered in the recent earthquake tragedy in that country, when thousands of lives were lost by earthquake and fire.

The money collected will be forwarded by Chief Inspector V. K. Greer to the Junior Red Cross Society headquarters at Toronto, and will be turned over by that organization for relief purposes.

"This amount," said Mr. Greer, "donated quite voluntarily by the children, is a very real evidence of the sympathy of London children and their parents for the distressed people of Japan, and the school officials are highly pleased. The children have denied themselves many little things in order to contribute their mite, and as such the contribution is all the more praiseworthy."

NO ACTION TAKEN YET TO NAME NEW MANAGER

The Northern Life Assurance Company is still without a general manager, according to Alexander Purdom, one of the directors of the company, who this morning stated that no steps had yet been taken to name a successor to R. C. MacKnight, who severed his connection with the firm some time ago.

Mr. Purdom and Mr. Calvert are still in charge of the head office and, although many applications for the managership have been received, nothing definite has been decided on.

MEETS PAINFUL ACCIDENT.

Florence, Oct. 16.—A painful accident happened to Mrs. Mac McCollman one day recently. While breaking sunflower stalks, a piece flew and struck Mrs. McCollman in the eye. She was immediately taken to a doctor, and afterward to an eye specialist and grave fears are entertained for the sight of the eye.

PRINCIPAL M'KONE WILL GO TO NORMAL

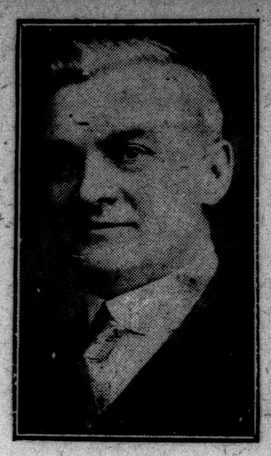

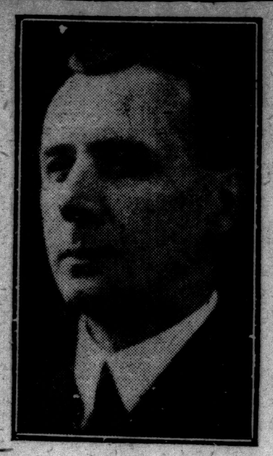

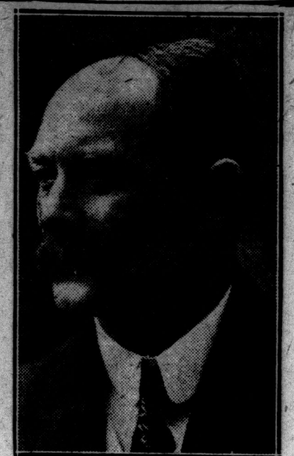

Head of Victoria School Is Offered Position by Ontario Department of Education.

E. H. McKone, principal of the Victoria School, has been offered a position on the staff of the Normal School by the Department of Education, and will immediately ask the board of education for leave of absence until the end of the year in order to accept the position.

Mr. McKone, who has been teaching in local schools for the past fifteen years, has been principal of the Victoria institution for the last seven seasons. He is a B. A. of the University of Western Ontario. As a specialist in English and history, Mr. McKone has made a name for himself among local educationalists, and in addition to his duties as principal has been for the past three years conducting continuation classes. For a total of seven years he has been model school critic teacher at the Normal School.

V. K. Greer, inspector of public schools, expressed regret with losing Mr. McKone, but stated that his academic standing and experience eminently fitted him for his new position. He stated also that he had not yet undertaken the matter of appointing a successor to Mr. McKone.

The matter of the request for leave of absence will be taken up by the board immediately, on the recommendation of Mr. Greer.

HAVE NEVER ALTERED THEIR DECISION.

These are the three members of the city council who have stayed with the mayor "through thick and thin" on his proposal to build a new city hall on the McCormick site, commencing as soon as possible. On the left is Ald. John Colbert, and in the center is Ald. Frank McKay. Both are Labor representatives from Ward Three. On the right is Ald. George Burdick, Ward Four, who has also refused to change his mind at the last minute.

Detroit Millionaires Will Break Milk Trust

Special to The Advertiser.

Detroit, Oct. 17.—Determined to break the power of the "milk trust" in Detroit, two local millionaires, Arthur Stott and J. P. Orr, have announced their intention of selling milk to the public for 10 cents a quart. They assert, after careful study of costs, that the lacteal fluid can be sold at this price and still show a profit. The present price of milk here is 15 cents.

Plans for a steam sterilizing plant have been in the hands of the builders for some time, and it is announced today that within ten days it will be possible to purchase milk at the reduced price.

At the outset the plant will be equipped to handle 200,000 pounds of milk a day. According to information obtained by agents, the milk combine, while holding out for 15 cents, has already indicated its readiness to listen to reason when customers complain too bitterly at the excessive prices they are being forced to pay. Drivers of the "combine" can be induced to sell milk "on the quiet" for 12 cents, it is said.

HIRAM M'GLONE WILL LEAVE HOSPITAL SOON

Victim of Shooting Affair Progresses Favorably at Victoria.

Hiram McGlone, 314 Thames street, who has been in Victoria Hospital for several weeks suffering from gunshot wounds which, it is alleged, he received when shot by Alfred Morden, when supposedly trespassing on the Morden farm, Wellington road, Westminster Township, was reported by hospital authorities this morning to be greatly improved.

Although one bullet was taken from McGlone's leg when he first arrived at the hospital, another is still lodged in him. Hospital physicians report they will be unable to remove the bullet, but that he will be able to leave the hospital in good condition in another week.

SCHOOL LEGISLATURE REPLACING SOCIETY

All Activities in Connection With Students To Go Through New Body.

East London Collegiate will have a school legislature instead of the customary literary society, this being decided at a meeting of teachers and students yesterday.

Everything in connection with the activities of the student body will be handled by this legislature, except the athletic associations which will carry out their own programs. The preliminary work of electing officers and representatives will be carried out along parliamentary lines, and the balloting will take place towards the end of next week.

On Tuesday next the candidates will address the student body and canvass for votes. The addresses will in all probability be delivered in the auditorium of the Central Collegiate.

While the meeting yesterday was in progress, Miss Watson and Miss Taylor, members of the staff, presented Jessie Walker and Sadie Hill with prizes in recognition of their efforts at the secondary schools athletic meet last Friday.

A short address by Principal O'Neill was heard, in which he congratulated the school on the showing made in its first appearance and competition.

WILL SEEK ELECTION WITHOUT TORY HELP

Edwin Smith Will Leave Party Politics Out of the Campaign.

There will be absolutely no party politics for Edwin Smith, member of the board of education, who has definitely decided to seek a seat in the city council from Ward Four.

Several days ago The Advertiser was assured that Trustee Smith could have the unofficial indorsation of the Tory party, if he entered the Ward Four race, and was willing to allow his name to be placed on the slate.

But from Mr. Smith's remarks today it is clear that he does not view the situation as enthusiastically as some of his supporters at the Conservative headquarters.

WILL NOT RENEW LEASE ON CARLING STREET ROOMS

For the last eleven months the city has been paying $35 per month for rooms upstairs and next to the police station, primarily intended for a juvenile court.

City Treasurer Bell reported today that next month will witness the expiration of the year's lease. The rooms were never occupied by the city, as a more attractive courtroom and offices were established in the city hall.

DECLARE CONCORD AMONG STUDENTS BROUGHT SUCCESS

Speakers at South Collegiate Literary Meeting Laud Athletics.

WON THREE SHIELDS

The co-operation of the student body at London South Collegiate was given as the reason for the phenomenal success of its athletes at the recent secondary meet, when athletes from this school broke 22 records and won the senior, intermediate and junior championship shields.

This factor in the ultimate attainments of the school was stressed by several speakers at a meeting of the literary society of the institution, held yesterday afternoon.

With Miss Donna Gracey, president, in the chair, the meeting opened with "O Canada," and the singing of the school song, after which Miss Gracey mentioned a membership campaign about to be started. She then stated that the society, in view of the services of Mr. Baker, janitor, who has been transferred to the Central Collegiate, intended presenting him with a cane.

Referring to the athletic meet, Miss Ruth Lawton, president of the Girls' Athletic Association, made a brief address, in which she thanked the student body for the support given. Will Hayson, secretary of the boys' organization, spoke in a similar manner. Giving point to their remarks were the three shields won by London South athletes, hung against a background of maple leaves at the front of the platform.

Miss M. Macpherson, Miss Oaks, Mr. Roberts and Mr. Dinsmore, also spoke briefly, asking that the same co-operation obtain all through the school year.

Several ribbons were presented to the winners by Mrs. J. I. A. Hunt, school trustee and honorary president of the girls' association. This was followed by a piano solo by Lincoln Orchard.

T. S. H. Graham, principal, then addressed the students, complimenting them on their performances and conveying congratulations from the board and Principal Miller, A. E. Silverwood and W. Casselman. He then read out the list of records broken or established, the mention of each winner being greeted with loud applause. On the platform with Mr. Graham were all those who had created new marks.

PERMITS FOR BUILDING HEAVY DURING MONTH

Total Has Almost Reached $233,530 Mark of Last October.

With nearly two weeks yet to go, the October rceord of building and alteration permits has almost reached the 1922 total, for the same period.

At noon today, no less than 120 permits had been issued by Building Inspector A. M. Piper, for work estimated at $229,130. This compares quite favorably with permits issued during October, 1922 for $233,530.

And with weather conditions still favorable the city authorities anticipate no halt in building activity.

SAYS WENIGE TO HAVE ELECTION OPPONENT

Ald. William A. Wilson Thinks Mayor Due For Defeat.

Mayor Wenige is a "light-weight," according to an announcement today from Ald. William A. Wilson.

"The mayor is going to take a month's holidays, I understand, in order that he can devote more time in his campaign to pass the city hall bylaw and defeat the aldermen who opposed him," Ald. Wilson stated. "Well, that won't do him much good He will need all the time he can spare to save his own head, if he can do it at all. And I don't think he can."

Ald. Wilson assures that there will be a candidate to oppose the mayor, but he is not prepared to state just who it will be.

FIRE CHIEF COMMENDS COURT HOUSE CONDITION

Praises Effort Made To Keep Corridors Clear During Trial.

Fire Chief John Aitken today commended Sheriff Donald Graham and others responsible for the condition of the court house during the present trials.

"I had to speak to the authorities at the jail last year," the chief explained, "in connection with the crowding of the corridors. I find, however, that there is a great improvement this year, and a person is able to get about the court whenever business demands."

The chief is opposed to the crowding of the halls and aisles, for obvious reasons, and points out what the result would be in case of fire or riot.

DUNDEE MATCHED TO BOX BR. LIGHTWEIGHT CHAMP.

New York, Oct. 16.—Jonnny Dundee, featherweight champion of the world, has been matched to fight Harry Mason, British lightweight champion, in London next January, it was announced tonight by Jimmy Johnston, Dundee's manager.

Johnston declared that there was also a possibility of arranging in France a return match between Dundee and Eugene Criqui, French boxer, who won the featherweight crown here this season from Johnny Kilbane, only to lose it two months later to the New York Italian.

Made in Canada by THE WAHL CO., LTD., Toronto

EVERSHARP is matched by WAHL PEN and nothing else!

Eversharp is a basically correct mechanical pencil. Its construction is simple. There is no complex mechanism to get out of order. Therefore, it works perfectly. Carry two—one filled with the new colored lead.

No other pencil can give you Eversharp service—for Eversharp features can't be copied. The exclusive rifled tip prevents the lead from wobbling. The automatic index tells the length of lead in the barrel. Pull off the cap, and you find an eraser; unscrew the cap, and there is a magazine well filled with leads—an ingenious arrangement.

The worthy companion of Eversharp is the all-metal Wahl Pen. It is a great fountain pen improvement. It can neither crack nor break. It will not wear out in a lifetime. And it holds considerably more ink.

Eversharp and Wahl Pen are matched in exquisite designs, and are made in gold and silver. Wahl Pen, $4 to $10; Eversharp, $1 to $10—higher, of course, for solid gold. Buy both, and look for the name on each. See also the Wahl rubber pens—$2.75 up.

EVERSHARP matched by WAHL PEN

IMPORTANT. A pencil is no better than its lead. Don't use poor lead in your Eversharp. Use Eversharp leads, which are recognized as the finest made. Over 200,000,000 sold every year. They fit the pencil. Get them. Seven grades, very soft to very hard. Ask for the new small-diameter colored leads, too! In the red top box. A complete refill, eraser and 12 leads.

In school and College you need them both!

Betty Arranges the Stage For a Meeting With Salvano

ON THE TERRACE.

"As madame desires," Estelle, the maid, meekly agreed, delighted with the fit of temper into which she had thrown her mistress. "I merely wished to show madame that so much trouble was not needed for my sake."

It was noon when Betty, her maid and her luggage arrived on board "Silverwood." She was not consciously hungry, but she had a throbbing headache, and felt rather inclined to faint; therefore luncheon was hastily ordered. She ate little when it was served, crumbling a roll, tasting some delicately-flavored riz de veau, and drinking three glasses of champagne. The cold, sparkling wine soothed her nerves, as she had hoped (there was only one thing better, but she'd had none of that—or almost none—for months) and, sleepy after a restless night, she wrote a short note before going to lie down for an hour.

Estelle had been told to call her mistress at 3, and was prompt.

"Madame looks much better!" the Frenchwoman remarked, when she had drawn back the curtains.

"Did I look badly before?" The question had a note of sharpness, for Betty wished to be her best today.

"But, no, madame; only a little pale and tired. The rest has done madame good."

At 4 o'clock Betty was dressed in a bewitching frock of knitted silk of the same pale, primrose yellow as the tint at which she had kept her hair. She wore a Parisian evolution of a toque that matched in color, with a deft touch of turquoise, like her eyes. Suede shoes and filmy silk stockings were primrose tinted, too; and when half an hour later a taxi deposited her at the door of the St. George, the dainty figure in yellow seemed to be illumined by the afternoon sun.

There had been no open scandal about Betty Sheridan's flirtation with Paul di Salvano or any of the men she had favored, and she was sure that Miles' conduct must have made of her a sympathetic figure. She was horribly unhappy about Paolo, yet she had a thrill of something like pleasure as she sauntered out upon the terrace. She thought of herself as very beautiful, more beautiful than any of the women who sat at little tables looking up at her as she slowly passed. If Rose Callahan were there with Paolo, he could not help being struck by the contrast between them; the exquisite, perfectly-dressed woman he had loved, and the common creature he sought for money.

Betty shrank not at all from the eyes that stared. There was no reason why she should object to being seen! She bowed to four or five people from New York whom she knew, smiling a sad, sweet smile, and hoping half-consciously that her blue eyes looked tragic. Her friends pushed their chairs back and got up to greet her. Several pressed her to join them for tea, but Betty gently refused. She was rather hoping that her husband might come, she said. She'd arrived only that morning to surprise him, but he was away for part of the day, not having expected her so soon. He might return at any moment and come to meet her, as she'd left word on the yacht where she meant to spend the afternoon.

"Poor girl, can it be she really doesn't know?" the women whispered to each other. "How awful for her when she finds out!"

And one or two murmured what an odd coincidence it was, Prince Paul di Salvano being in Algiers at such a time, because he'd been talked about a good deal with poor little Betty before the Callahan affair developed. Everyone felt faintly excited, wondering what would happen. They thought that they hoped nothing would happen; but in their secret hearts they yearned for a thrill, as if they waited for the curtain to rise at the Grand Guignol.

Betty indicated to an admiring waiter a small table laid for two, and sat down to gaze sorrowfully, with raised eyebrows, out over the violet expanse of bay. She looked as if she were thinking, "Why is the world so fair and happy, when I am so sad?" But under that attractive expression she was wondering whether Salvano and the Callahans—or Paul and Rose alone—would presently appear.

On entering the hotel she had stopped for an instant to question the concierge. She had written a note which she wished to leave for Prince Paul di Salvano. Was he still stopping at the St. George? Yes? And Monsieur Callahan and mademoiselle, his daughter? Ah, that was good! She would give the letter to the concierge, but, perhaps, the prince and his frends might be having tea on the terrace? In that case she would meet them.

Betty knew that if she did, there would a little, if any, chance for a private word with Paolo. Still she was nervously keen to see him. Her letter left with the hall-porter had been a threatening one. Salvano could sue her for blackmail on the strength of it if he cared to do so. But that would be the last course of action he would take. Even if he was married to Rose, she could ruin him with old Callaghan, she thought. And if he were not yet married, he would have to come back to her. If he looked agitated at sight of her, all the better! The Callahans would notice, and she wanted them to notice.

She wondered if Paolo would take the letter from the concierge and glance it over before coming out on the terrace—if he dared to come out after that! He'd recognize the writing on the envelope, and hearing from the porter that it had been left by a lady, he would be frightened—traitor that he was! Betty imagined that, in self-defence, he would open it at once. Then, he would want to turn back, and avoid seeing the woman whose love he had betrayed—or tried to betray — even if he loved her still in his heart.

He wouldn't, however, dare take the risk of letting her meet Rose Callahan and the girl's father with him away. Altogether, Betty convinced herself that fate would soon deliver Poalo into her hands. And she hoped that Eustace Nazlo would keep out of the way till the meeting was over, for good or ill. After that, the Shoe King might join her, and welcome!

"China tea, please, with orange flower-water instead of milk; and nothing to eat," she instructed the hovering waiter.

He hurried conscientiously away, and as her eyes idly followed the short black figure, she saw Rose Callahan come out on the terrace. Behind her strolled the old man; and behind him was Paul di Salvano.

In tomorrow's installment Betty and Paolo meet.

Little Bob White Hides in a Hollow Log for the Night

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

As the afternoon grew later and later Mrs. Bob White worried more and more. By this time she knew that the wounded young Bob White hidden in a clump of weeds on the Green Meadows would not be able to get to the dear Old Briar-patch, which was the safest place she could think of. If he remained where he was through the night he might not be found. On the other hand, he might be found. His mother had a feeling that he would be found. Keen noses would be almost certain to come searching over that part of the Green Meadows. She didn't doubt in the least that Reddy Fox had heard the bang, bang of the terrible gun, which had wounded that young Bob White. She knew that Reddy knew that often little wounded folk were to be found after the passing of a hunter.

The young Bob White was feeling better and was able to move about a little, but he wasn't able to fly, nor was he able to run far. He was still a little wabbly on his feet and still felt very, very miserable. It could hardly have been otherwise.

"Do you think you can travel a little," she asked anxiously.

So Mrs. Bob White more and more anxious. She left him to look around for a better hiding place. "I must find one," she kept saying over and over to herself. "I must find one." So she looked this way, she looked that way, and she looked every way. Twice she passed an old fence post which lay half-hidden in the grass. It was one which had fallen and been replaced by a new one. Neither time did she give it particular attention. But the third time she came along that way she noticed that it was open at one end.

Mrs. Bob White's eyes brightened and she hurried over to that end. When she reached it her eyes brightened still more. That old fence post was hollow. Yes, sir, it was hollow for more than half its length. It wasn't a very big hollow, but it was big enough for her to get into, and that meant that, of course, it was big enough for that young Bob White to get into. It would be just the place for him to spend the night. Yes, sir, it would be just the place for him to spend the night. Reddy Fox couldn't possibly get into it. It was too small for even Jimmy Skunk to get into.

Mrs. Bob hurried back to the wounded Bob White. "Do you think you can travel a little?" she asked anxiously.

"I don't know, but I can try," replied the young Bob White. "But what's the use? I can't possibly get to the dear Old Briar-patch."

"I've found another hiding place, which for tonight will be just as good as the dear Old Briar-patch," said his mother. "We'll go very slowly."

So together they started out. It wasn't very far to that old fence post, but to that wounded young Bob White it seemed like a terrible distance. He would go a few steps and then he would have to rest. All the time his mother kept the sharpest watch for dangers. But no danger appeared, and so just as the Black Shadows came creeping out from the Purple Hills across the Green Meadows they reached the hollow old fence post.

"1915"—TOLD BY WINSTON CHURCHILL

BIRD'S-EYE VIEW OF THE DARDANELLES.

REACH TURNING POINT IN DARDANELLES PLAN

New Resolve Made To Risk Attack Rather Than Withdraw—Fisher Offers To Lead Fleet in Critical Action—Vision of Victory Sweeps Away Early Misgivings.

ALL PARTIES SEEM AGREED STEP IS BEST

By RIGHT HON. WINSTON S. CHURCHILL, C.H., FIRST LORD OF ADMIRALTY, 1911-1915.

While the attention of so many states, great and small, was riveted upon the Dardanelles, and while so many profound and far-reaching reactions were occurring over the whole field of war, the naval operations which had produced these great effects began to falter and to flag. From March 3 onwards the progress of Admiral Carden's attack became continually slower. The weather was frequently unsuitable to long-range firing, our seaplanes in those early days were neither numerous nor very efficient, the co-ordination of the gunnery and the observation, though based on sound principles, was in practice primitive, through lack of experience. The mobile howitzers which began to fire in larger numbers each day from both sides of the straits harassed the bombarding ships, and forced them to keep on the move. Landing parties sent ashore on March 4 met with much stiffer resistance, and failed to reach the forts. The attempts to sweep up the mine-fields encountered considerable and increasing Turkish fire from field guns well directed by searchlights. The mine-sweeping trawlers which had been provided for this service proved inadequate for so severe a task. The ordeal was very trying to their erstwhile civilian personnel who, though familiar with mines, had never previously encountered artillery fire.

The forts were apparently silenced, but the Turks claim that they were reserving their ammunition for shorter ranges, and that they ceased firing to clear the guns of grit and debris thrown up by the exploded shells in their vicinity. The operations continued till the 12th with fitful bombardments and tentative attempts to sweep the mine-fields. During these days I began to doubt whether there was sufficient determination behind the attack.

By the middle of March we had therefore reached a turning point not only in the naval operations but in the whole enterprise. Hitherto no serious risks have been run, no losses have been sustained, and no important forces deeply engaged. The original Carden plan of gradual piecemeal reduction has been pursued. It has not failed, but it has lagged, and it is now so feebly pressed as almost to be at a standstill. Meanwhile, time is passing. Nearly a month has gone since we opened fire. What are the Turks doing? Clearly they must be reinforcing, fortifying, laying new mines, erecting new torpedo tubes, mounting new guns under the organizing energy of their German instructors. What have the Germans themselves been doing? It would probably take about a month to send submarines from the Elbe to the Egean. Have they been sent? Are they on their way? How far off are they? They may be very near. This was a rapidly growing anxiety. It was also a spur. Surely now the moment has been reached to review the whole position and policy. Surely this is the very moment foreseen from the beginning when, "as matters did not go as we hoped, if the resistance of the forts proved too strong," we could, if we chose break off the operation. Observe we could, in fact, do it in a moment. One gesture with the wand, and the whole armada assembled at the Dardanelles, or moving thither—battleships, cruisers, destroyers, trawlers, supply ships, transports—would melt and vanish away. Evening would close on a mighty navy engaged at a world-arresting attack; and the sun might rise on empty seas and silent shores.

Reviews Situation.

Further, was not this the moment to consider alternatives? The prolonged bombardment of the Dardanelles had assuredly drawn continually increasing Turkish forces to the Gallipoli peninsula and the Asiatic shore. Guns, ammunition, supplies of every kind, with which the Turks were so ill-provided, had been scraped and dragged from every other point, or were on the move. Moreover, the Russians had, by a brilliant effort, largely restored the situation in the Caucasus. The British and French troops now on the sea might not be strong enough to land and storm the plateaus and ridges of Gallipoli. But no one could doubt their ability to take and hold Alexandretta—thus cutting from the Turkish empire one vast portion, severing the communications of their army threatening Egypt, and intercepting the stream of sorely-needed supplies and foodstuffs from the east. For such a descent, the Dardanelles operations were the best of all preliminaries—a sincere feint.

All For Resolute Action.

On me these considerations made no impression. I knew them all, and I rejected them all. I was unswervingly set upon the main enterprise. I believed that if we tried hard enough we could force the Dardanelles, and that if we succeeded in this, a truly decisive victory would have been gained. But where were the admirals, generals and statesmen, who did not share these clear-cut conclusions, who had doubts—had always had doubts—about the feasibility of the operation, about the margin of the grand fleet, about the utility of operations in the eastern theatre! Here surely was the time for them. Here surely was the time for Lord Fisher. He could say with perfect propriety and consistency: "We have given the Carden plan a good trial. I never liked it much. It has not come off; but it has been a very good demonstration; it has fooled the Turks; it has helped the Russians; it has cost us practically nothing—now let us break off altogether or turn to something else." Later on in April, when we were far more deeply committed, had suffered palpable loss and rebuff, and could not withdraw without great injury to our war prestige, suggestions of this kind were indeed made. But now it was certainly an arguable policy to close the account, and in a naval sense it was the easiest thing in the world to do.

But what happened? So far from wishing to break off the operation, the first sea lord was never at any time so resolute in its support. He assented willingly and cordially to the new decision which was now taken to change the gradual tentative limited-liability advance into a hard, determined and necessarily hazardous attack. He approved the momentous admiralty telegrams, which I now drafted after full discussions in our war group, and, of course, with continuous reference to the prime minister. He even offered to go and hoist his flag and take command at the Dardanelles himself, saying that the responsibility was so great that it could only be borne by the highest authority. Subsequently, although it greatly complicated his position, Lord Fisher himself informed the Dardanelles commissioners of this fact in a very frank and chivalrous manner.

Wires Vice-Admiral Carden.

So far as the other responsible authorities cited in these pages were concerned, no sign of disagreement was manifested. Sir Arthur Wilson, Sir Henry Jackson, Admiral Oliver, Commodore de Bartolome, all were united and agreed to press on and to press hard. The ministers seemed equally decided. War office and foreign office were eager and hopeful. The prime minister did not even think it necessary to summon a council and put the point to them. I have never concealed my opinion. I rejoiced to find so much agreement and force gathering behind the enterprise. My only complaint has been that this high resolve was not carried through by all parties to a definite conclusion.

What was the explanation of this unity and resolution? The vision of victory had lighted the mental scene. The immense significance of the Dardanelles and of the city which lay beyond had possessed all minds. The whole combination which had been dispersed by Russia on March 6 was still latent. The attitude of Italy, of Bulgaria, of Rumania, of Greece, absorbed attention. Every one's blood was up. There was a virile readiness to do and dare. All the will-power and cohesion necessary to mount and launch a great operation by sea and land were now forthcoming. But, alas, a month too late!

On the admiralty war group all were agreed upon the following telegram to Admiral Carden.

Admiralty to Vice-Admiral Carden

"March 11, 1915. 1:35 p.m.

"101. Your 194. Your original instructions laid stress on caution and deliberate methods, and we approve highly the skill and patience with which you have advanced hitherto without loss.

"The result to be gained are, however, great enough to justify loss of ships and men if success cannot be obtained without. The turning of the corner at Chanak may decide the whole operation and produce consequences of a decisive character upon the war, and we suggest for your consideration that a point has now been reached when it is necessary, choosing favorable weather conditions, to overwhelm the forts at the narrows at decisive range by the fire of the largest number of guns, great and small, that can be brought to bear upon them. Under cover of this fire the guns at the forts might be destroyed by landing parties, and as much as possible of the minefield swept up. This operation might have to be repeated until all the forts at the narrows have been destroyed and the approaches cleared of mines.

"We do not wish to hurry you or urge you beyond your judgment, but we recognize clearly that at a certain period in your operations you will have to press hard for a decision, and we desire to know whether you consider that point has now been reached. We shall support you in well-conceived action for forcing a decision, even if regrettable losses are entailed.

"We wish to hear your views before you take any decisive departure from the present policy."

St. Thomas, Oct. 16.—A meeting was held in the mayor's office attended by representatives of the Regimental Chapter, Municipal Chapter, the three chapters of the Daughters of the Empire, the G. W. V. A., and the G. A. U. V. Auxiliary, the Ministerial Association, to make provision for the holding of a memorial service on Armistice Day.

It was finally decided to conduct a service at 4 o'clock in one of the theatres, at which all the Sunday schools will be asked to participate. The final arrangements have been left in the hands of Mrs. Dunsmore, convener of the program committee, M. Whitworth, convener of the theatre committee, and Colonel Gerrard, convener of the publicity committee. Meetings are to be held next week to complete arrangements.

It is quite possible that George Brooks, the 12-year-old St. Thomas boy who risked his life in an effort to save his comrade, Gordon De Hart, during the summer, will be rewarded on this occasion. OWEN SOUND CLUBMEN PAY KITCHENER VISIT Rotarians Go by Special Car—Entertained At Waterloo Also.

Special to The Advertiser.

Owen Sound, Oct. 16.—Fourteen members of Owen Sound Rotary Club paid an official visit to the Kitchener and Waterloo Rotary Club on Monday. The party left by the morning Canadian National train and returned in the evening, following a thoroughly enjoyable day at Kitchener.

For the convenience of the Owen Sound Rotarians, a parlor buffet car was sent up from Toronto with a crew on Saturday evening, and this was used for the trip to and from Kitchener.

The Owen Sound men were driven by motor to the Kitchener and Waterloo Country Club, where they were entertained at luncheon by the Kitchener Rotarians. During the afternoon examined a number of witnesses in camera.

While no announcement was made it is understood that the fire started in the garage of Ralph Curliss, south of the Gardiner Sash and Door factory. After being on the job continuously for 37 hours, the firemen finished their work of extinguishing the fire in the large lumber piles.

Despite the magnitude of the blaze the sash and door factory was operating today with all hands on the job, busy filling orders.

Presented Vice-President M. D. Lemon with a gold key symbolic of the freedom of the city of Kitchener.

The Owen Sound Rotarians who were present, included M. D. Lemon, John Simpson, D. E. Macintyre, J. C. Keenan, A. F. Armstrong, T. J. Harkness, W. Bishop, E. J. Creeper, R. G. McLay, John Parker, W. G. McLauchlan, Jos. McLinden, E. C. Speerman, W. M. Telford. The party was in charge of Vice-President M. D. Lemon.
