NFCUS DISCUSSES POLITICS

The Twenty-Third Annual Congress of the National Federation of Canadian University Students got under way in Saskatoon on Tuesday, as over 100 delegates, observers, and guests of 32 Canadian Universities and several foreign countries gathered at the University of Saskatchewan.

At the morning session, the University of Alberta, the Ontario Agricultural-Veterinary College and MacDonald College were formally admitted as NFCUS members.

"The Role of a National Union of Students in International Affairs" was discussed by a panel during the afternoon session. Panelist Professor T. H. Qualter of the University of Saskatchewan expressed the hope that all national unions of students were not as "pussy-footed" as NFCUS when it came to dabbling in international student politics. Pointing out that often very active student participation in other countries, he told the students they should be "radical", or reactionary, but never neutral".

In reply, panelist Dennis Grennam, president of the National Student Union of England, Wales and Northern Ireland, stressed that "We are not non-political as such, but rather represent our country in a capacity as a student, and not citizens, rather than conservatives, liberals or such". "But" he warned, "if we sit back and do not take a part we are giving the same away".

Roy Heenan, McGill's NFCUS chairman, said, "We must define the word "political" where students are concerned, and where there are international political difficulties".

The five day congress will wind-up tomorrow.

BLIMEY! They're Here!!

The UNB campus will play host tonight to an outstanding pair of witty and talented debaters, James S. Gordon and Roger W. Tilbury. This team is representing Britain in a tour of Canadian universities. They made their debut earlier this week at McGill. Their appearance at the Student Centre at 8 p.m. will mark their second Canadian encounter. After a short tour of Maritime universities, they plan to move westward.

The two make an impressive team. Mr. Gordon is an honors graduate in Classics from Glasgow. He also has majored in education and psychology and for a short time was a teacher. At Glasgow he was president and secretary of the Student's Union, and in addition has the distinction of winning the individual speakers prize of the National Debating Tournament in the U.K. His partner Mr. Tilbury possesses an honors degree in French from Exeter University where he was also active in music and drama. A flair for travel has led him to France, Germany, Holland, Belgium and Austria.

Tonight at UNB the duo will be pitted against Mac Harris, a second year law student, and Ken Reshaur, a post graduate in political science.

The verbal issue, based on the question "Resolved that Britain is Pushing Her Colonies to Independence and Commonwealth Status too Fast" is to take place at 8 p.m. in the Student Centre. UNB will support the negative.

According to Dave Case, president of the UNB Debating Society "This is an excellent opportunity to see high calibre debating". Everybody from the classics intellectuals to the suppressed book worms are urged to attend. Come on out and support a worthwhile function. A full house is anticipated.

ART CLASSES

The fall season of weekly art classes in drawing and painting at UNB began Wednesday evening in the Art Centre. The sessions, under the direction of Miss Lucy Jarvis, are open to the public. A small fee will be charged for the classes.

During the year the Centre features music concerts, reading periods and art exhibitions. This weekend, the Maritime Art Show will open at the centre.

SENIOR STUDENTS

All write-ups and photos for the 1960 edition of the Yearbook must be in the hands of the yearbook staff no later than Oct. 31. Any write-ups or photos received after this date will not be featured in the yearbook due to the tight deadline which must be met early in November. For additional information concerning:— Photo appointments, write-ups, etc., please consult notices on Bulletin Boards or contact Dave Dubrue at GR 5-8424.

And What Happened?

Exactly what goes on when the beat generation congregates for an evening of festivity? Friday night last this imminent question was answered. At the gymnasium of the Agricultural School building at the Experimental Farm, sometime, no one knows precisely when, after 8:30, the cars began drawing up before the stone brick structure. They discharged all sorts of weird looking individuals to orbit their hesitant way up the dimly lit stairway and into the "pad".

When one first entered, he first bedecked himself with one or more supercilious tags to be found by the door, and then expressed himself as having been chastened by a sign reading "Blessed be the Depressed". The scene of flickering candles and vibrant beats emerging from the high fidelity machine was then ready to welcome him, as if the horn-rimmed, bearded, and beret-sporting figures weren't enough. And leotards—nothing but leotards.

It was a different sensation to say the least, to wander into one of the corners and find a chap sitting cross-legged upon a table, before a candle yet, and gazing quite intently at a piece of paper in his hand—poetry obviously. Or perhaps it was just the flame that was so intriguing. Another corner found someone else plunking away on a ukelele. Of course there was a table with two candles—chaperones. But they were good souls and joined in with everyone else.

Knicknacks, from aspirin bottles to an unexpurgated edition of Lady Chatterly's Lover, fell into the hands of the Artsmen and their guests. And not too much later, a voice over the mike asked the dancers and watchers and readers to sit around in the middle of the floor. Flanked by a candle on chairs to either side, Gary Mulherin stilled his listeners with vocal and guitar renditions of "Scarlet Ribbons", "Shenandoah", and "High Noon".

Food and drink was served in a more or less continuous flow—with a temporary shortage—until the voracious appetites of seventy odd people were more or less satisfied. In toto: successful; in toto: beat; in toto: when's the next one?

SRC REFUSES GRANT

The Student's Representative Council held a short lively session last Wednesday night with President Ted Boswell absent. Mr. Boswell was attending the annual NFCUS Conference in Saskatoon as one of the UNB representatives.

With vice-president Doug Caldwell in the chair, the SRC listened to a request by Pete Jolly for a grant of $200 to aid the Red 'n' Black. Council turned thumbs down on the proposal presented by the representative from the Senior Class.

Dates Set for Red 'n' Black

Once again the Red 'N' Black Revue is upon us! This will be the thirteenth annual production, and, as in previous years, will be held in Teacher's College Auditorium. The dates have been set at November 26th, 27th, and 28th.

For the benefit of those of you who are on the campus for the first time, the Red 'N' Black is a variety show put on annually by the senior class and is comprised solely of student talent. Paul Rennick, who is president of the Senior Class and director of the Revue is calling the first rehearsal for Thursday, October 15th, at Memorial Hall. Rehearsal time is 7 p.m. Students who are interested in participating in this year's production in any capacity, whether on stage or behind the scenes are urgently requested to attend this rehearsal.

The position of assistant director has not yet been filled, so would any student in the class of '61 interested in filling this position please contact Paul Rennick at GR 5-7487 or come to the rehearsal next Thursday night.

However, council passed a motion to table Mr. Jolly's request until such time as figures are presented and the Senior Class constitution is revised and approved by the appropriate committee.

It was announced by Mr. Caldwell that the Canterbury Club had decided to withdraw its request for a five cent increase in the price of the Student Directories this year. The club had requested at last week's meeting that they be granted permission to raise the price of the Directories. This request had been shelved for a week to permit the Canterbury Club time to present a financial statement justifying the price hike.

An announcement was made at the meeting that Dr. McKay will address all upper classmen in the Lady Beaverbrook Gymnasium next week.

The final item of business discussed by the council was the traffic situation in front of the Lady Beaverbrook Residence. A motion was passed to bring to the administrations attention that the intersection is dangerous for pedestrians attempting to cross and that many cars are not observing the speed limit.

S—S—STEAM HEAT

There will be steam heat in Memorial Hall this winter as evidenced above. This is a sample of the construction that is currently in full swing on the UNB campus. It's resulting in muddy shoes, and difficulty in going from building to building, but it's a sign of progress!

Have Broom; Will Travel . . .

Someday soon the SRC is going to do its autumn house-cleaning. And one of the first shelves they will shake the dust from will be that almost forgotten file on which have collected items which were "tabled" last semester.

If the venting of this musty closet is undertaken soon enough, quite possibly one or two of last year's shelved items may yet be rescued before they completely succumb to the deadly mold of dormancy. Projects such as last year's proposed Dartmouth-UNB exchange lie on that shelf reeking with the pungent odor of fast-advancing decay.

It's time somebody cleaned that closet.

The idea for the exchange between UNB and the ultra-ivy-league college was an outgrowth of last spring's McGill Conferences on World Affairs. At this gathering, UNB delegates Tim Arnold, Dick Steeves and Steve Fay met representatives of the New Hampshire college and during an informal talk, the question of how the "gauze curtain" which seems to separate Canadian and American universities was raised. The result of this discussion and the apparent opportunity to open that curtain was an exchange of students between the two universities. So, the UNB group returned home from the conference and proceeded to approach the SRC for the monies to carry out the plan which would involve sending a delegation of UNB students to Dartmouth for three or four days. During this time they would take part in panel discussions, attend lectures, and generally get the "feel" of the American way of collegiate life. At another date UNB would host a number of Dartmouth students for the same purpose.

However, after much hot and furious debate, the SRC could still not see its way to vote on the project and it was "shelved".

And so, it lies there yet waiting for someone to administer the airwick and take up the initiative. The only apparent requisites are: Have broom; will travel.

Any house-cleaners present?

Co-Eds Elect; Projects Planned

Last Wednesday the first meeting of the Ladies' Society was held at the Maggie Jean. Zora Oldham, the president, introduced the executive to the new students. Two representatives from each class were elected to a council which will plan the major projects with the executive.

Bound together by feline design on the opposite sex, the Ladies' Society was formed on the UNB campus to enable the co-eds to get to know one another. In fact, every co-ed at UNB is automatically a member, and there are no fees.

The Ladies' Society sponsors the Sadie Hawkin's Dance, for many years a happy escort-trap for the Fall Formal. Later in the term the co-eds take over campus activity, publishing a Brunswickanne, holding an Apache dance and an annual co-ed auction sale.

The Ladies' Society does not pretend to be benevolent on a large scale. It is a ladies organization, does work in a limited lady-like manner, and is meant for the exclusive good of co-eds.

Letters to the Editor

Sir: The members of the NFCUS committee wish to convey their appreciation to Mr. Fairbairn for his most kind comments regarding our organization in the recent article Hotbed.

We too feel that complete co-operation is indeed necessary if our discount plan is to work to perfection.

I would, however, wish to correct Mr. Fairbairn on one erroneous comment that he made. It is untrue that we are a sister organization of WUSC. It is true that our basic policy concerns aid to needy students, but our local organization feels that the UNB student body should be given some benefits to at least partially repay them for their support. We have tried to inaugurate discount and summer employment plans for this purpose.

I hope that Mr. Fairbairn's mistake can be corrected via your media. We feel that it is important that NFCUS be regarded as an organization independent from any other, and one that attempts to work for the advantage of our own students.

Sincerely,
 Jim Ross, Chairman
 NFCUS

The Jones Boys
 Went away to UNQ
 And reading the college paper there
 Decided that cricket would soon be here.

Still locked out of their clock-tower, the Jones Boys travelled to the University of New Québec the other day. The college paper there, The Québécois, published an outrageous article called The Coldbed. We reprint it (without permission):

"Why does a useless organization as the football team exist on the campus at UNQ? It is ridiculous that the student body should be FORCED to pay $15,000 PLUS to allow their questionable organization to remain. This mandatory $10 (taken out of the "Représentation Conseil des Students" fee of $16) enables this group to travel to the exotic paradise of Nova Scotia and be higher than kites for several weeks.

Cowfeathers aside, will these trips broaden their "outlooks"? Look out, broads. You're damn right they will.

But seriously, who is interested in the doubtful privilege of being part sponsor of the demolition program carried on by the UNQ gridders when they become Real Canada Intercollegiate Football Champs? Who chooses the "winners" of the annual holiday beano or, as they call it, "training camp"?

I challenge the UNQ Football team to agree to a campus plebiscite. But, of course, they will not agree to such a vote. Deep down, they too know, that their pitiful ineffectual organization deserves no place on campus. They will continue to swagger smugly around and grab a Moosehead with their right hand as they reach greedily with their left to collect our dollars."

If you happen to be a jazz fan, I have bad news for you. The sad truth that there is no real jazz played in this area.

Norm Butler, who seems to be UNB's best friend at CFNB, says that although the station has a library of jazz records, the programming department decided that they would not play them. It seems that these records should go unplayed, especially since CFNB wastes so much time on soap operas and western music.

For those of you who own your own record players, there is some hope. Herby's Music Store. Herby assures me that he will order any jazz records that you want to buy. Herby's own selection would no doubt give an all round picture of jazz to someone who knew nothing about the subject but was interested in starting a library.

If you're a Dixieland fan you probably have all the Dukes of Dixieland records. So does Herby. He also has Lionel Hampton, Louis Armstrong, Dizzy Gillespie, Ted Heath, Coleman Hawkins, Moe Koffman and other jazz notables.

If you haven't already seen the October issue of Playboy and you're a jazz fan, better pick up an issue right away. The jazz poll is there. As an added incentive to vote, Playboy will pick one hundred ballots at random and send each winner a free record.

You may not have liked the plot of the World Series but you'll have to admit the coverage by NBC was terrific.

World Series ad lib: A technical engineer on a mid-west TV station was fired and to get even with his bosses, he ruined an entire broadcast for the area. We guess he won't get a job in that town again.

The Gaiety will show the third comedy in a row this weekend. "Count Your Blessings" with Deborah Kerr and Maurice Chevalier is a good comedy but surely the Gaiety could have mixed their features a bit. There must be one interesting mystery or drama they could have slipped in between those comedies.

With the return of students up the hill comes that season of the year called fall. It is a time of bright days and starlit nights. It is a time of change in nature. Those of a romantic turn of mind write poems about its beauty, while the sports-minded hunter sallies forth into the brilliant forest after the elusive deer, enjoying perhaps as much the splendour and fragrance about him, as he does the satisfaction of the kill.

But what of these changes? Why does the maple leaf turn red, the beech leaf gold and the elm leaf yellow?

The green stuff they put in toothpaste—chlorophyll; that's what does it! During the summer chlorophyll gives leaves their normal colour but when the leaves die in the fall the chlorophyll breaks down into colourless substances thus unmasking other pigments such as xanthophyll, carotin and the flavones. Xanthophyll and carotin give the leaves a gold or yellow colour while the flavones turn them red, purple and blue. Simple, isn't it!

Incidentally, don't worry about those long words. The leaves will still turn even if you can't remember them.

Oh, and another thing! If someone tells you that it takes a good sharp frost to bring out the foliage "right lovely", don't believe him. It isn't necessary.

Accommodations Problem Pressing

by CAROL MacPHERSON

The Accommodations situation confronting the students of UNB is a many-sided one. It is on a parallel with few universities, since the traditions of an old college and bustling new life combine to form their growing institution.

"I don't think anybody really knows what the situation is," pointed out Mrs. Mona MacMillan, Director of Accommodations. "The students are best qualified to state their opinions from their own experiences."

Mrs. MacMillan had one assistant this year during the 'rush'. As in past years, however, she had the voluntary aid of the Faculty Wives.

"Without their help I could not have done it," she declared. "They always offer to help."

Then she went on to explain how some help in the office; one drives the students around to the various homes, while others have arranged an efficient system to absorb the strain.

With regard to the price of accommodations, Mrs. MacMillan thought the average price was reasonable, although she found that in many cases prices this year have been raised by one dollar per week.

She explained that the majority of people take students to supplement their incomes, but she also pointed out the fact that there are many elderly couples whose children have grown up and who like to have young people around their homes.

"Let's not forget the people who answer the president's appeal year after year to open their homes to students," she reminded.

Student opinions were not consistent. We asked several what they thought about the system in general.

One declared, "I think it's ghastly everywhere around here. And it's getting worse. I could live more cheaply in Montreal than I could here."

He went on to cite his own experience in obtaining a good apartment for $75.00 a month in that city.

"I'll admit it was an exceptional case, and it wasn't quite luxurious. But then, it was in Montreal."

As far as food is concerned, one student living in residence complained, "Well, for one thing, the meat is definitely inferior quality. It's the same everywhere, though. Here it's better than in some places."

Another student eating in the centre was non-committal: "As far as institutional food is concerned, it's good food; as far as 'food' is concerned, it's not."

Someone else was vociferous on the matter: "Why spend 75 cents for nothing? The food is no good and you don't get enough."

Still another maintained: "It

THE HOTBED

So what if the football team has won a couple of ball games? Does this make them tin gods or something? Why must the Brunswickian blow up a win over the Mt. Allison Mounties into the proportions of a victory of man over space or some such thing? Football is only one of many extra-curricular activities on campus. We at UNB are fortunate in having many other pastimes like the debating club, camera club, and chess club, to name a few. To the people participating, these activities are just as important as football and as a result they should be kept in the news. But the Brunswickian still continues to inflate the football team to epic proportions.

And how do the football players react? First of all they stick their noses high in the air. Because the Brunswickian has said they were terrific, they KNOW that this must be so. We, the cream of the crop, they say. We, the mighty, they say. We, the campus hotshot. And their noses are still so high in the air that they will never even notice when the huge balloon is about to burst. They will never even notice when the props are about to be knocked out from under them. Football players will grasp on to the limb of conceit, arrogance, and snobbishness until the limb breaks and they lie choking in their own dust. And the Brunswickian is helping to make them this way.

And our beautiful cheerleaders. Do they appear at games to help the crowd yell for a team or do they go because cheerleaders are always out in front of the crowd. Are UNB cheerleaders good because they are precise and accurate in all their movements? Or are the Mt. A. cheerleaders better because at least they can make their fans yell? Is it because they try so much harder that the Mt. A. crowd becomes enthused to a high-pitched frenzy or is it because the UNB cheerleaders are putting on an act in modeling and have no interest in prodding the fans to support their team.

Students at UNB have always been known as apathetic, lethargic and/or lazy. The crowds at any sporting event here are no exception. Two years ago at a championship hockey game against St FX why did 40 St FX fans grind the UNB fans into the ice with their cheers? And last Saturday why was it reported that a handful of Mt. A. fans made the UNB section look almost quiet by comparison?

Perhaps they have made things too easy for us at UNB. The administration has given us every facility and every interest that a student could possibly ask for. And in return the student body has been most generous. Their gift is almost too much. They have given UNB a football team with a swelled head, unenthusiastic cheerleaders, a newspaper that feels that lavish praise is the only criterion for good reporting, and fans who have lost their tongues to the cat.

The day of reckoning will come. The day will come when UNB students can no longer rest on their laurels. When they can no longer use the old phrase: "I'll let Joe do the yelling". When they can no longer take from the university without giving something in exchange.

The day will come when they will have to face the real world. This will be the day when they will have to do something for themselves.

isn't the best food I've had . . . but it isn't the worst."

The Accommodations Office is equipped with a fat "Do Not Recommend" file. There is no rent control.

The only way the Accommodations Office can judge a room is by reports from students. There is no room inspection.

Mrs. MacMillan requests every student to report back to her. A great many do not.

The situation boils down to the fact that $18.00 a week will not suffice the accommodations need of the average student at UNB, and $18.00 a week should.

It is the student's predicament. It is his special problem. And if anything is done about it, he must be prepared to give active support toward a controlled arrangement for all.

I know some co-eds who are so ugly that if they played Lady Godiva at the Red and Black the horse would steal the show.

No Holiday Weekend for Red Bombers

By JOHN REYNOLDS

With the Thanksgiving weekend here, most of the students are making plans for the three days in one way or another. Such is not the case for the Red Bombers who have two rugged games scheduled over the holiday weekend. All week the boys have been getting ready for Saturday's game in Saint John against the Wanderers and Monday's all important tussle here with St. Mary's.

The Saint John game could be a repeat performance of two weeks ago with 'Pistol' Pete Rylander putting on another excellent aerial display. But who knows? After last week's game with Mount A. Mounties, it could just as easily be a hard-running ground attack. One thing is definite, Rylander is sure to have the Wanderers weary trying to figure out his offensive strategy whether it be on the ground or in the air.

Norm Bolitho and Ed McLellan will again flank Rylander at the halfback slot with hard-running Doug Cottrell and Sterl Gorham at fullback. Bolitho, who leads both the NBIFU and the NBFU in scoring after piling up three touchdowns against Mount A. will be out to increase his lead in both weekend tilts.

The defensive team will be strengthened by Sonny Clark who returns after an injury knocked him out of competition in pre-season training. With Tim Doyle back in harness for last week's game, the Bombers are beginning to look like last year's championship team once again.

Coach Don Nelson feels both games will be of importance but the stress is definitely concentrated on the game Monday against St. Mary's. He states, "This is the most important weekend of our football schedule. It means winning or possibly losing the Intercollegiate Championship. We expect the Wanderers to be an improved club over our last meeting and with the game in Saint John previous records don't mean a thing. We'll forget the score of two weeks ago even though we won easily, and play them from the viewpoint that anything could happen.

They've taught us this from past experience. We'll be starting the same fellows as usual and expecting more from them at the same time. Pre-season jitters are over".

REDSHIRTS LOSE

Only a few spectators turned out to see the UNB Redshirts soccer squad defeated 7-3 by the Fredericton Willscotts on Tuesday evening. The Willscotts played cleverer ball than the Redshirts and their defence marked closely and kicked hard. UNB goals were scored by Schatz and Haines. The third goal credited to the Redshirts was sunk by an obliging Willscott defender. The UNB squad worked hard but were out of condition and out of touch with each other as a team.

Last year the Redshirts profited from a drubbing at the hands of the Willscotts at the beginning of the season to go on to their most successful season in years. The Redshirts all-important intercollegiate game will be played at Mount Allison on October 17.

INTRAMURAL SOCCER NOTICE

Intramural soccer games which were to be played Wednesday October 7 have been rescheduled for Wednesday, October 14. Players are advised to check the bulletin board in the gym for starting times.

"We're in a tough spot with two games on the same weekend. St. Mary's hasn't played since Sept. 26 when they beat Mt. A. This may be to our advantage or disadvantage. We don't know and therefore can't afford to take any chances so we're going all out this week in practice to be ready for anything. They have a double quarterback system that we've never seen. That was what beat Mount A. From all reports they are a small, fast and well conditioned ground team. We won't have Ted Boswell or Jim Ross Saturday since they're at a conference in Saskatchewan but they'll be back Sunday in time for Monday's game. This is the game we have to win."

The Bombers realize what they have to do this weekend and that's knock-off two completely opposite types of football clubs. Saint John will be rough and rugged and St. Mary's fast and tricky.

To sum up the situation in one player's words, "We have the guys for either type of play and we're anxious to give both teams the worst licking of their lives.

See you Monday at two o'clock.

Golf Team To Acadia

Coach Kelly announced Wednesday the members of the varsity golf team who will participate in the M.I.A.U. Golf Tournament on Thanksgiving Day at the Kenwo Golf Club near Acadia University. Upholding the red and black in hope of returning the title to UNB will be Tom Calkin, Dave Petrie, Ted Pond and Gordie Tripp. Both Calkin and Petrie are holdovers from last year's runner-up team. Pond was runner-up in the Fredericton Club Championship this year while Tripp led St. Francis Xavier University to the Maritime title last year with a three point margin over UNB. Manager John Sears is confident that a fine showing will be made by the UNB team.

CROSS COUNTRY

The varsity cross country Harriers were defeated by the Minto Track and Field Club Wednesday afternoon at UNB by a score of 25-30. Walter Williams of Minto won his second meet within a week over UNB with a time of 13.50 minutes, a record over the course. Keith Kerr and Bill MacDonald of UNB placed second and third respectively.
