NEW HOME RULE BILL GIVES IRELAND TWO PARLIAMENTS

Measure Likely to be Presented to Commons in Two Weeks—Carson Quiescent and Ulster Not Raising Any Row—Several Knotty Problems to be Dealt With.

(Special 4 p.m. Despatch from Canadian Press Ltd.)

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The new Home Rule Bill, setting up two parliaments in Ireland, with a council of state of forty, to be chosen by the two, will probably be introduced in parliament within the next two weeks. Daily sessions are being held by the cabinet committee in charge of the measure, the subject under discussion at present being finance which is in charge of a sub-committee under the chairmanship of J. Austen Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer. The control of customs has always been a point of sharp difference, when other Home Rule Schemes have been debated and was one of the rocks upon which the rich convention was wrecked. Control of police is another knotty point. The most hopeful sign of an agreement is the silence which Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster leader, has preserved since the latest Irish kite was flown. Sir Edward has not issued any mandates to the Ulster Volunteers to keep their powder dry, while the presence of two Unionist leaders, Walter Hume Long and Baron Birkhead, on the committee shows that Ulster is tending towards conciliation. Another alternative remains that the Sinn Fein may capture the new southern parliament and promptly declare Ireland an independent republic. It would be possible in such a case to carry on the work of parliament without recognizing any imperial overlordship.

Grand Trunk Railway Trackmen's Social

On Monday evening the Locomotive Engineer's Hall, Pine St., was the scene of an animated gathering of trackmen. About 40 G.T.R. section foremen and trackmen, stationed between York and Belleville, attended the social given by the trackmen of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees.

During the early part of the evening card games were indulged in and enjoyed by those present. The big event however, was the presentation of an easy chair, smoking set and electric lamp to Mr. Thomas Clare who, after 12 years as supervisor of track on the 7th district, has retired from this position. Mr. H. W. Lindstrom, president of Maintenance of Way Employees' Organization, made the presentation on behalf of the foremen and trackmen, and in an eloquent address referred to Mr. Clare's long and loyal service to the Grand Trunk Railway Co., to the cordial relations which always had existed between the supervisor and his foremen, and to the respect and esteem in which Mr. Clare was held by all who knew him.

Mr. Clare, although completely taken by surprise, in a few well chosen words, thanked the men for the beautiful and useful presents and for the co-operation and good will he had always had from his men. The twelve years he had put in as supervisor, he said, he counted as the happiest years of his life, because he had found the trackmen on the 7th district devoted to their duties, faithful and loyal, and he counted himself happy to have won such men's esteem, respect and good will.

A splendid supper was served. Several toasts were given and responded to. Speeches, songs and Round Table Discussion at City Hall Last Evening—Welfare and Future of Belleville Considered.

The Retail Merchants' Association meeting last night took the form of a round table discussion. Honored the Chief Justice

Sir Glenholme Falconbridge the Guest of the Hastings Bar

The County of Hastings Law Association last evening had the privilege of honoring Sir Glenholme Falconbridge, Chief Justice of the King's Bench of the Supreme Court of Ontario. It was one of the happiest evenings that the Bench and the Bar have had for many years, and it was an occasion for the members of the legal profession in this city and county to pay tribute to the Chief Justice of the King's Bench, who throughout his long service on the Bench (32 years) has upheld the traditions of His Majesty's courts, and who is beloved by the members of the profession everywhere, not only in his judicial capacity but also as a public spirited citizen and for his acts of philanthropy. After an excellent dinner at the Quinze the gathering went to the Belleville Club, and for three hours enjoyed stories and reminiscences in which all took part, and in which Sir Glenholme proved himself a raconteur par excellence and one of the boys. Colonel Ponton proposed the toast of His Lordship and expressed the feelings of the members of the profession towards him in fitting terms. The Chief Justice in his reply referred to the happy associations he had always had with the Belleville Bar and recalled the names of those practising here when he was first called to the Bench, most of whom have passed away. He also gave good and inspiring advice to the junior members of the Bar in upholding the high traditions of the profession.

Among the visitors were W. E. Herrington, K.C., Napanea; R. J. McLaughlin, Toronto, G. A. Payne, Campbellford and E. Nield, Toronto. Letters regretting their inability to attend were received from Judge Droche, Col. S. S. Lester, E. B. Fraeck and Herbert L. Smith. Four sons of older barristers were present all of whom had been overseas—a unique feature.

The Great Inheritance

A Recent Sermon Delivered by Rev. W. Harris Wallace, Pastor Victoria Avenue Baptist Church

How easily to break unto a docology at the thought of God's abundant mercy and abounding grace in Jesus. But here the apostle Peter gives us Te Deum as he recalls the inheritance of Saints. Look at some of the inspiring lines of their grand docology.

Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ to which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a living hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. To an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you, who are kept by the powers of God through faith unto the salvation to be revealed in the last time. Peter 1:3-5.

Then are these great facts in our text upon which the soul can rest its faith. First, the great mercy of God revealed in Jesus Christ, mercy means God's compassion and sympathy, and also implies His presence. It is called here, "His abundant mercy" we often sing of God's great mercies.

Not only according to the great mercy of God, but the second fact upon which faith rests is "By the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead." This is the chief dynamic of faith. The story is told of a highlander who planted a tree beside a little brook where there was no kindly soil. For a time it wilted and drooped. But suddenly, to the surprise of everyone, and bore rich fruit what was the source of its new life? That was the query put by all who knew it. An examination revealed the secret. With a marvelous vegetable instinct it sent out a shoot which ran along and over a narrow sheep bridge and rooted itself in the rich loam on the other side of the brook. From this rich loam it drew its new life. We draw our life from the resurrection of Christ. The third fact, we are "kept by the power of God." In life or death we are safe in God's keeping. Peter and Paul agree here—"I know to whom I have believed and am persuaded he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day." God Himself is the garrison of His people. For as the mountains are round about Jerusalem, so the Lord is round about His people. In the meantime, the end of all things is at hand, be therefore ready for what is "ready to be revealed in the last time."

Then are these great facts in our text upon which the soul can rest its faith. First, the great mercy of God revealed in Jesus Christ, mercy means God's compassion and sympathy, and also implies His presence. It is called here, "His abundant mercy" we often sing of God's great mercies.

The diamonds glared under the electric light just like the real ones would, but it turned out that they had been purchased in a ten cent store; the next morning they were all thrown into the river and the money which would have bought real diamonds was divided among the players.

Wire Fence Caught Deer. Wire fences as deer catchers are the latest. A man up at Copper Cliff caught a deer the other day which had become entangled in a wire fence. And the fact seemed somewhat strange when the same hunter has dropped several bruises in his hunting life.

He was first sentenced to three years for forgery and while there he killed a guard and hence received his present life sentence.

About a year and one-half ago the population of Portsmouth penitentiary was but 413 while Friday it was 608 and inasmuch as several more prisoners were expected late today the figure is probably now over 610. In view of the fact that quite a number of conscientious objectors have been released the continued growth in the population of the penitentiary is somewhat surprising and by no means re-assuring.

The basement is equipped with a hot air furnace and a cistern. There is a fresh air duct from the outside and a ventilating flue in the chimney. The registers are in the walls and not in the floors. There is a seating capacity for forty pupils in the school, the building of which was in charge of Norton Olds. The trustees are Fred Olds, Fred Kerr and W. White.

RHEUMATISM FOR OVER 16 YEARS

No Return Of The Trouble Since Taking "Fruit-a-lives"

108 Church St., Montreal. "I was a great sufferer from Rheumatism for over 16 years. I consulted specialists, used medicines, used lotions, but nothing did me good. Then I began to take 'Fruit-a-lives' and in 15 days the pain was easier and the Rheumatism much better. Gradually, 'Fruit-a-lives' overcame my Rheumatism; and now, for five years, I have had no return of the trouble. I cordially recommend this fruit medicine to all sufferers."

MONASTERIES ON PRECIPICE

Few religious movements of recent times have aroused such world-wide discussion as the proposal to form a league of churches along lines parallel to the political league of the Nations.

This proposal came from the most unexpected source, from the Patriarch of the Greek church, who left the Ecumenical throne violating a precedent of four hundred years, to present his plans at Paris. Unexpectedly, it explains, because the Greek church not only is remote from the western world's affairs, but many of its own strongholds are isolated and breathe the spirit of past ages.

u in the Moose

I have seen and hunted moose under many circumstances and conditions; often have I watched them when they felt the presence or fear of neither man nor beast; I have followed and observed them in the summer's lakes and muskegs and in the winter's snows; I have seen the bull with the hairy stubs of string and the gaudy antlers of fall, and I have seen the ungainly mother and her funny calf, writes William Rindfors in Hunters-Travellers-Trappers.

hook, a shout was given, and the net soared upward, while its occupant felt something like an orange at the bottom of a market woman's market bag.

"The ascent takes just three minutes. Occasionally the open-work elevator swings into the rock with a slight bump, but the monks at the top wind the winches slowly, and the bumping does not hurt, but as a compensation the view grows more beautiful every second. At the last the top was reached. There was a final swing outward, to get a rebound inward, several pairs of hands were outstretched to pull the net over to the platform, and then came a drop on to the stone floor. The hook was detached, the meshes opened, and the passenger helped to her feet by the black-robed brothers. They all gather around with words of welcome and hands ready to be shaken in greeting.

"All we had to offer in return for their hospitality were some American postcards. The Flatiron building caused much intelligible comment but also the perfectly understandable remark that this must be the Meteor of America. Our red-haired friend also made us understand the superiority of the original Meteor in having a net bag to facilitate the mounting. Alas! We could not make him understand the greater superiority of an electric lift."

a springless wagon many miles above the St. John river, over "stump lanes", but mostly on creek-beds we drove, until, after several days, we came to the "Portage" and sent our driver back, while we pitched our tent and ate our potatoes and butter in great content.

Day after day we waded down stream, never lifting our feet above the water, to avoid the splash of a "break water" step. At last "the" morning came. How fast my heart beat as we cautiously waded around each river bend and peered down the next stretch. How fervently I prayed the good God to bless us. We are rounding the bend. How the primal instinct came back. There on a low, gravelly-bare island, unconscious of us, stood the largest animal to me in the whole world—a veritable mammoth. The Lord was with me and I feared not. I could feel Hubald tremble. The shots rang out on the frosty air. He turned; few faltering steps; a dead moose; crimson waters; I, the happiest hunter of hunters.

With true Latin emotions Hubald grasped my hand, threw up his hat and shouted: "Ain't you glad! Ain't you glad!" He could not understand my apparent indifference. True, I felt proud and happy. A dream had come true. But when I look even now on that noble head, I feel that same sad desire to put him back in his "hogen."

The days passed. I had killed "my moose", but I could not leave that heavenly country of fish and game. With back packs we went to a long abandoned camp to stay two days. There were many ponds and much "sign." Slowly we walked up an old toad road. Down we crouched as two moose came round a bend, cow and calf. The wind in our faces, we held our breath behind a screen of moose weeds. Slowly the two moose came down the road nibbling; unafraid. The calf wandered off the road, the mother, with proper solicitude, now and then calling it back. But all is not well. Fall well that cow knows it. Instinctively she feels something is ahead. She stops and silently looks around. Perhaps she hears beat, or smells my dead pipe. A warning, authoritative snort; the calf comes back at once, while the cow drives it ahead as they slowly but surely leave that country.

Another fall has come, and again I am back in the New Brunswick woods; this time by canoe to a chain of lakes that head the Green river and Rimouski. We cross the little divide with back packs. Many moose are seen, but not the big bull. He must be near, there are so many cows and calves. Pierre knows it. "We go ride; bull tea; maybe dusk; bull come to cow. We stop for tea; no smoke must be there; we break fresh, dry twigs."

Pierre lays over the faggot pile to start the little smokeless fire. Is he crazy? Just as the fire catches he falls on it, puts it out, grabs his gun and jumps behind a big tree. I do likewise. A "wuff, wuff" very close, as with flashing eyes looms large the big bull, that misunderstood our cracking of dry limbs for that tea kettle fire. No other bull could sneak through the thicket for his haem. "Wuff, wuff" again. Two shots. A bull staggered against a little tree and fell, and again an excited "Latin" voiced his joy. And so, next day, after a night under the trees, two happy men staggered campward. One with huge horns; the other with green scalp.

Wedding Bells

PATRICK — SINE

The marriage took place at the Rawdon Methodist Parsonage by Rev. Jas. Batstone, on Wednesday, Nov. 19th of Lottie Naomi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard Sine, of Rawdon, to Mr. Edward Patrick of Frankford. The bride wore a very becoming navy blue travelling dress with hat to match. The young couple were unattended. After the ceremony they motored to Trenton en route for Toronto and other western points. On Monday evening Miss Sine was given a miscellaneous shower and received a number of handsome gifts.—Strirling Leader.

HIGHT — KERBY

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. James Church at nine o'clock on Wednesday morning, Nov. 19th. The Nuptial Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father O'Reilly, uniting in marriage Miss Helen Kerby, to Mr. John Hight of Toronto. The bride wore a very becoming suit of navy blue serge, with hat to match and sable furs, and was attended by her sister, Miss Tilly Kerby, who wore a suit of navy blue serge and fur stole. The groom was assisted by Mr. Michael Fitzgerald of Thurlow. During the service Miss Clara Martin presided at the organ. After a dainty wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's mother, the happy young couple, midst showers of confetti and best wishes, motored to Belleville, leaving by the afternoon express for Detroit and other American cities to spend their honeymoon. The groom's gift to the bride was a fur coat, to the bridesmaid an agate ring, and to the groomsmen a set of gold initialed cuff links.—Strirling Leader.

HUFFMAN — PATTERSON

A pretty home wedding was solemnized at Maple Nook, Moscow, on Nov. 12th, at 11.30 a.m., when Jessie Alexandra, fifth daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Patterson, was united in marriage to Mr. La Verne Cecil Huffman second son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Huffman, Moscow, who enlisted in the 146th Battalion in 1916 and served with the 4th C.M.R.'s in France. Floral decorations of white chrysanthemums and carnations banked with evergreens, decorated the living room where the ceremony was performed by Rev. J. F. Everson. The bride was given away by her father, and wore a simple gown of white georgette and silk. Her Tulle veil was held in place by pearls and bridal roses, and she carried a sheaf of beautiful white roses. Miss Joy Patterson was her sister's bridesmaid, and wore white embroidered net with bands of blue satin, and carried an armful of pink poppies. Mr. Kenneth Huffman attended his brother, while little Jean Warman, niece of the bride, wearing a cute frock of French embroidery and pink sash, was flower girl. Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Miss Mariel Wilson. After the ceremony Miss Joy Patterson sang "Because." Luncheon was served in the dining room, the tables being prettily decorated with yellow chrysanthemums and smilax. Later in the afternoon the bridal couple left for Toronto, en route for Chicago, the bride wearing a nigger brown velour suit with beaver hat to match, and black wolf furs, the gift of the groom. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a brooch set with pearls, to Miss Wilson a silk parasol, and to the best man a gold chain. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Huffman will reside in Moscow, and will be at home to their friends after the New Year.—Napanee Beaver.

Death of W. T. Gorman

On Sunday, Nov. 16, Will T. Gorman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gorman, King street, Picton, passed away in St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto. The deceased had been failing in health for some time. For a time he was at the Muskoka Sanitarium. He came home last summer to visit his parents. On the return journey he was obliged to go to a hospital in Toronto, where he remained until called by death. A week ago his trouble was further aggravated by an attack of appendicitis for which an operation was performed. His sister, Miss Mary Gorman, of Rochester, was with him during the final stages of his illness, and his mother was with him at the hospital for a time. The remains were brought to his home and the funeral took place Tuesday morning to St. Gregory's Church, thence to Mount Olive cemetery. For several years prior to leaving Picton the deceased was employed in the Farrington store. He afterwards held responsible positions with mercantile concerns in Hamilton and Toronto.—Picton Times.

THE BREWERY

Even Life, the New York magazine, appears to have taken it for granted that the liquor traffic is permanently prohibited in the United States. The following pathetic paragraphs are from Life:

Of all the gems of purest ray serene waiting their sweetness on deserted air, the brewery is the most conspicuous. No lapidary can bring to mind a precious stone building that is more lack-lustre. Once upon a time the brewery was an international institution cluttered up with devices for hurrying the vintaging juices from the hop. It added "pungency" to category of harmonious sounds it could be hunted in all seasons on the great eminences overlooking the abodes of pumpernickel and katter aufschnitt. It yielded readily to the entreaties of a brass slug inserted by an employee familiar with the combination. But today it is different. The time-honored wagon entrance is closed. The proud horses with their polished brass trappings are breaking ground for the semi-annual planting of the alfalfa crop. The huge vats are warped and empty, echoing the hollow mockery. The brewery is deceased. It is "gas de tout."

Singly and in the aggregate breweries were unfavorable to the movements which eventually increased the total desiccated acreage. The champions of the arid oesophagus plan seldom found hearty welcome within their walls. A brewer had about as much use for a prohibitionist as a pirate has for a decent burial. But they all fell before the withering barrage. Like chaff before the sickle they were swept into the yawning maw of the abyss of oblivion. A few raised up wealthy and grasped for a 2 1/2 per cent. solution of water but were heartlessly thrust back to the parched globe to rattle out of the cheery dominions of the worth-while.

The brewery had a vivid career while it lasted. Its rise was phenomenal. The first one was located on Mt. Olympus in ancient Greece, about three minutes' walk from the Athens and Thebes car line. Hebe had charge of the circulation department. From this parent strain others grew. It was the most prolific of any form of plant life. The influence was so far reaching that it was difficult, until a few weeks ago, to fix a time-space of twelve minutes in more than 8,000 years when the girl at the main facet was not taking an order for a quarter, an eighth or a dozen, chilly.

Any community that didn't have a brewery to draw from was shunned by everyone but book agents, while those that did were the centres of social life and small, handy dishes of cloves and stick cinnamon.

The breweries of this land of the free and the home of the neck-shave expired, as breweries, on that memorable first of July. On that day they were de-hopped, de-essenced and outdistanced. Their original intentions went aft agley with the harsh and unsympathetic actions of those who were against the tap and guzzle functions of the nation. Some are now being used as soap factories or shelters for odious tan-bark. Others are struggling along, exuding a thin, impotent liquid that causes less remorse than ice-cream soda water, coffee flavor. The touda nature of this product involves only geographical proximity. Many of these institutions will ultimately come under the hammers of unfeeling auctioneers and will be knocked down, to the highest bidder, for something like $3.84 in cash and the balance of $23.98 in eggs and cordwood. And the one-time high-salaried wearers of the wide paunch will go forth into the copse and issue sage advice to the hop-shorn in the matter of home endeavor.

POOR THIN BLOOD BRINGS INDIGESTION

Make the Blood Rich and Red by Using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Thin-blooded people generally have stomach trouble. They seldom recognize the fact that thin blood is the cause of indigestion, but it is. Thin blood, weak, watery blood, is one of the most common causes of stomach trouble. The glands that furnish the digestive fluids are diminished in their activity, the stomach muscles are weakened and there is a loss of nerve force. In this state nothing will more quickly restore appetite, digestion and a normal nutrition than good rich, red blood.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act directly on the blood, making it rich and red, and this enriched blood strengthens weak nerves, stimulates tired muscles, and awakens to normal activity the glands that supply digestive fluids. The first sign of returning health is an improved appetite, and soon the effect of these blood improving pills is felt throughout the whole system. You find that what you eat does not distress you and that you are daily growing stronger and more vigorous. Mr. J. J. Murray, Regent street, Toronto, bears testimony to the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind. He says:—"During the latter part of 1918 I was a sick man. My stomach seemed simply down and out. I had no desire for food, and when I ate it distressed me. I was pale, did not sleep well, naturally got up in the morning feeling grouchy. My wife was worried over my condition and urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont."

Harry Cully Lost His Life in Heavy Seas

Brief reference was made in last week's Times to the drowning of Harry Cully which sad event occurred in the afternoon of Wednesday, November 12th, at Point Traverse. Mr. Cully and his brother-in-law, Mr. Herbert Bongard, were taking up their fish nets. The weather had been very stormy but an adventure was made as the storm had somewhat abated. They had lifted part of their nets and were returning with their load when their boat was caught by the wind and seas, and turned over twice. They succeeded in clinging to the upturned boat till pretty close to the shore when Mr. Cully, numbed by exposure, lost his hold and disappeared. It was impossible for Mr. Bongard to render assistance. It was with considerable difficulty and in an exhausted condition that he reached the shore. Mr. Cully's body was recovered in about seven feet of water. The deceased was thirty-six years of age, and leaves his wife formerly Miss Bongard. His father, Mr. Oliver Cully lives at Oshawa. The remains were interred at Cherry Valley.—Picton Times.

AN ADDRESS OF WELCOME AT ZION

The W.M.S. held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. M. Hawley on Wednesday last. It was a meeting of special interest as Mrs. Wm. Thompson made herself a life member of Zion Auxiliary. An address of welcome was read as follows, by Miss Minnie Ketcheson: Dear Mrs. Thompson,

We, the members of the Zion W.M.S., take great pleasure in welcoming you, as a life member, to our society. We feel honored and it is with feelings of appreciation we take this opportunity to thank you. Early in life you got the vision of the possibilities for service to Jesus Christ. You heard and responded to the call of God, also of the church, to heroic service, and you have always maintained the ideals of Jesus Christ. Your kindly disposition and congenial manner under all circumstances, leads us to believe you have reached the point where you can be thankful for and welcome everything as it may come.

We attribute these few qualities to a pure heart and a right spirit with God. The heart of a woman is the richest treasure on earth if it be of God. True Christianity has been a labor that enriched and inspired your life, and we know your life will prove a powerful influence for good in our society.

We are glad to welcome you not only in our society but also in this great national campaign. We must prepare ourselves for this work at the foot of the cross. We have no objective now; we must have the prayerful life, see our task and respond, then we will realize our objective.

Jesus is with us in this great campaign. May we take our place, become active, give our life, time, talent and possessions and join with Jesus Christ in defeating Satan, winning souls and saving the world. One again we welcome you in our midst and in our Christian work. Please accept our hearty greetings, wishes true and may God's richest blessings rest on you.

Signed on behalf of the members of the Zion W.M.S. Mrs. W. C. Ketcheson, Pres. Mrs. Percy Cawley, Vice P. Mrs. Thompson made a suitable reply, thanking the members for accepting her and their kindness shown towards her. Re-Establishment of Returned Soldiers

Editor Ontario,—I noticed that the Government have voted $40,000,000 for the re-establishment of returned men. I wonder in what way it will be used. Up to the present, no matter what length of service a returned man saw at the front, also going with the Army of Occupation, so long as he came back above category C 3, and received his six months' gratuity, the authorities seem to be through with him. If by chance, the returned man has not a trade, the only thing left for him to do is to work for a miserly $12 a week, which practically means less than $3 a week in the pre-war days, or take a pick-and-shovel job which a lot of us cannot do, with the best of willingness.

One thing which seems to have been overlooked by a great many is this: quite a percentage of men who by some way or another managed to join up about the 1916 and 1917 period, (at the time when they would take nearly any one) who were in the C 3 class, some managed to get to England and others got to France. In soldier's language, they were called "Misfits." They were usually found at the base or having couched jobs behind the lines when not in hospital, whereas the A 1 man always had to be ready to take what was coming to him. When these men came back some of them had further hospital treatment, got their gratuities, received vocational training and in the process of a pension.

Now, Mr. Editor, I am not writing this in a begrudging spirit. I say, good luck to them, but I cannot see why in the world a fellow who is willing to learn a trade, and make good, so as not to be of the unskilled and unemployed class, after giving his all, and going through all that he went through, should not be given a helping hand by the Government, which today would not exist had it not been for the A 1 men.

At present it seems that only two classes of returned men are eligible for help—the unfit and those who were brought up on farms. Those who became unfit through real active service, naturally ought to have the greatest preference and consideration.

I think a great deal more could be done for the returned man, if instead of talking about bonuses, etc., they would help him to gain a livelihood whereby once he is qualified, it is his own fault if he does not take advantage of it.

It is to be found in every drug store in Canada from coast to coast and all country merchants keep it for sale. So being easily procurable and extremely moderate in price, no one should be without a bottle of it.

Disabled Ex-Service Men

Feb. 1st, 1920 Last Date For Application for Retraining

Conferring with Board of Trade.

Roy McEachren, Detroit, Mich., was in town for a few hours today conferring with several members of the Board of Trade regarding the location of the K01-Ben Wire Wheel Co. of Detroit in Brockville. Mr. McEachren recently organized the Manufacturers' Industrial Bureau with headquarters in Detroit for the purpose of assisting American manufacturers to locate branches in Canada. The K01-Ben Wire Wheel Co. is one of the most successful wheel manufacturers in the United States and recently arranged for the location of a branch at Cadillac, Mich., where business men of that place subscribed $225,000 of the capital stock. Mr. McEachren, who recently secured a contract to build 400 houses in Lansing, Mich., and 100 at Kitchener, Ont., reports that the towns and cities in Western Ontario are booming, due to the influx of American manufacturers. The W. N. McEachren Co., Toronto, which firm he represents, recently completed the erection of 11 houses on Pearl street west for the Brockville Homes Building Co.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

Alleged Bootlegger Fined

At police court this morning a fine of $298 was levied against S. A. Doyle, Toronto, by Magistrate Page. The fine was paid. Doyle was corralled in a Pullman car attached to G.T.R. express No. 13 reaching here at two o'clock yesterday morning from Montreal. In his possession were ten gallons of high wines, which were seized by Inspectors Sykes and Taber. Doyle was arrested by County Constable Stick. It was stated this morning by Inspector Sykes that Doyle is a bootlegger who has been under surveillance for the past two months.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

McFarlane, and family. Cartal Passenger Service.

Local railway officials were advised today that the Railway War Board will on Thursday next issue an order curtailing passenger train traffic on different Canadian roads to go into effect on Sunday next. No order providing for the removal of specific trains has as yet been made, but this will be announced on Thursday. The shortage of soft coal is responsible for this drastic action on the part of the Railway War Board. It is not as yet known how local trains will be affected by the ruling.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

To Command 15th Regiment

Lt.-Col. Vanderwater of Belleville, who went overseas with the 39th Battalion and was later transferred to the 2nd Battalion, has been given command of the 15th Regiment with headquarters at Belleville. Col. Vanderwater is well known in Kingston and his many friends will no doubt be pleased to hear that he has been given command of a regiment which for many years was trained in the militia camp at Barrfield. The new commanding officer succeeds Lt.-Col. Barragar, who during 1915-16-17 was Commandant of the Provisional School of Infantry in camp and Kingston. It is intention of the military authorities that all militia units shall be commanded by returned men who previous to the war were members of these units.

Two Drunks Fined

A citizen appeared before the magistrate in Kingston on the charge of being intoxicated in a public place. He said that he got drunk on Prince street. He got an order for liquor about two weeks ago on account of having a weak heart, but contrary to the doctor's orders he took too much and was captured by the police. He was fined $10 and costs. Robert Newell appeared on the same charge and said he took some extract of lemon that was in his cupboard at home and went up street and took a few glasses of two per cent. He was also fined $10 and costs.

General Williams Back

Major-General Williams and Major McManus are back in Kingston after visiting Belleville and Trenton. General Williams met the officers of the 15th in Belleville, on Saturday evening and later visited the quarters of the G.W.V.A. In both places the G.O.C. was given a most hearty and enthusiastic reception. At Trenton General Williams unveiled a memorial tablet to fourteen victims of the war at the Wesley Methodist Church. The service was a very impressive one, General Williams speaking from the pulpit. He paid an eloquent tribute to the men who had fallen for flag and country.

Marie, Ont., has forwarded to Chief Burke the description of Arthur Levisne, who is wanted on a charge of burglarizing a store and stealing a quantity of watches and jewelry. A companion named Lesour is also wanted on the same charge, but a description was not supplied.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

Four Charges of Stealing a Total of Over $2,700 Made Monday Morning

Peterboro, Nov. 26.—The number of charges already laid against J. G. Guise-Bagley was doubled Monday morning by Mr. G. N. Gordon who, on behalf of his clients, laid four charges of theft against the prisoner amounting to over $2,700. This case was not heard but left over until Thursday, when the accused will face the most serious of his former charges. In the meantime a settlement will be attempted to avoid further criminal action.

Pastor Stricken With Smallpox

Lindsay, Nov. 26.—After administering the sacrament at the morning service at Cambridge street Church, Lindsay, on Sunday, the pastor, Rev. Mr. Tilton, was found to be suffering from smallpox. Since Sunday three cases have developed among members of the congregation, in spite of the vaccination of every one who attended the sacramental service.

Services in the church will likely be suspended for some time.

Two weeks ago Mr. Tilton was taken ill, and the doctors pronounced it as being diphtheria poisoning. He continued to look after his pastoral duties, but on Sunday he broke out with sores, and after the service it was discovered that he had the smallpox.

Prohibition a Mockery to Abstemious Citizens of Haliburton County

Port Hope, Nov. 26.—Mr. William Buller returned to Peterboro Friday night from Haliburton county, where as Inspector of Inland Revenue he seized three illicit stills, fined two of the owners and fixed the trial of the third man for a later date, and altogether visited eight places that had been under suspicion.

Law-abiding and sober citizens of the north country had complained that in remote localities "stills" were being operated flagrantly and apparently with impunity, and that as a result there was a wave of drunkenness instead of that bone dryness promised of prohibition.

Mr. Buller travelled by train to Kinmount, and drove by automobile to Gooderham, where the bad roads necessitated the use of horses. But even the team that had been engaged became fagged and the last three miles had to be made on foot.

Between Tory Hill and Wilberforce Mr. Buller discovered "mash" after wading up to his knees through a swamp. A search of the barn on this property revealed a bottle of homemade liquor.

At another place a churn, mash and still was discovered in the garret of the house. These two men, whose names Mr. Buller declined to disclose, were fined by him on the procedure of voluntary admission which the department provides. They were both poor settlers. All the justices of the peace, except one in this district were away deer hunting. At another place a barrel of mash was found fermenting behind the kitchen stove. This man has not yet been tried.

Mr. Buller frequently heard shots fired as he travelled the rough roads through the deer country. Signs of former distilling were uncovered in some of the others of the eight houses visited, but the evidence was not conclusive enough to warrant an attempt at prosecution.

The trip was a racking one, over impossible roads and in weather that was bitterly cold at times. He spent four days on this expedition.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT, AMERICA'S GREAT HEART

Fine Study of Life and Work of Great American—Roosevelt's Home Life—World Threatened Today by Aristocracy of Labor—Religious Temper of the Man.

"Theodore Roosevelt, America's Great Heart," was the subject of a masterly address last evening in St. Andrew's Church, by the Rev. Dr. Hugh Kerr, of Pittsburgh. His study of the life of the great president was a fine character analysis. Lt. Col. S. S. Lazier occupied the chair and Miss L. Lobb sang an excellent solo.

"That great British statesman, John Morley, on his return from America, said he had seen two extraordinary things—Niagara Falls and Theodore Roosevelt," declared Dr. Kerr. "We like to think of three great characters of American history, George Washington, Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt—Washington, a blue blood of British race, an aristocrat fighting for those principles of liberty for which England had been fighting for two centuries; Lincoln, a pure democrat, bringing a true conscience, a great man and leader, a man of action, unifying a divided nation and freeing the black man forever; Roosevelt, aristocrat and democrat, a man of the people, a statesman and a scholar—who did more than any other to bring about a coalition of English speaking people and making victory possible. It was not Roosevelt who spoke of neutrality, who spoke of a nation being too proud to fight. Theodore Roosevelt was the most versatile American that ever lived.

"He began with a handicap, a weakness of body and asthmatic cough. He grew up into manhood as an exemplar of robust virility. It seems almost impossible that he lived all his life in 61 years. He began his public career in riding the New York police force from graft. Then he entered the navy, becoming secretary and in a large measure the father of the navy. He became Governor of New York. He could not be bought or sold, and a man who would always do what was right, regardless of consequences. He was made vice-president of the States to be achieved. By the death of McKinley, he was called to the presidency and then elected by an overwhelming approval.

"He was a traveller. He travelled over unknown west, over the jungles of Africa and South America. He was a soldier from the first, answering every call. He was a historian, a man of letters and literature. He was a prophet, a statesman, a patriot to the core, who gave the last measure of devotion in the persons of his four boys.

"The American navy was his creation. He carried through the Panama Canal without a scandal. He created in the United States a social consciousness and gave to it its great heart. The greatest assets of a nation are its men and its women. The greatest assets of the United States with all its wealth, its industry, its skyscrapers, are its men and women, like Theodore Roosevelt.

"Roosevelt's struggle with his health, led him to believe in a hard life, that young men were called upon to work hard to be master of body and brain. All great men have the saving grace of humor. Wherever you miss humor, you miss the secret of existence. The sense of humor ran down deep into the life of Roosevelt. One would think that Christ himself was a humorist.

"Theodore Roosevelt was carried through by his sense of humor. The best thing at the circus is the clown. The best thing in church is not always the sermon. Most of the people remember the music. Roosevelt laughed heartily. His wonderful love of his home is revealed in his letters to his children. They were written from the quiet obscurity of Oyster Bay, from White House, from Africa and Brazil. How abiding was his love for his wife! He had a beautiful way with his children. While he is president of the States he reads the children about Joseph and Coppers tales, he hears their prayers and tucks them into bed. If there is anything the American people need today it is given in these letters—how to get pleasure from the home in the midst of his active career.

"You can organize all the boys' clubs you like, but unless you pay the price for your homelife that

Mo. svelt paid, you will fail. His religious temperament was the background of his life. There was no cant nor hypocrisy about him, which is so easy for a public man to assume. He never apologizes for his religious convictions. He went to church unassumingly. He gives his reasons for going to church. He answers at times the character of a leader. He carried the stern Calvinistic faith of his Huguenot ancestry to the United States. He never wrote down any dogmatic creeds. He said that religion must after all be interpreted by the sacrifice and service in action. His policy is known as the policy of the square deal. He said: "Speak softly but carry a big stick." He brought the big stick down on the Kaiser's head in the Venezuelan controversy. That was why he built the navy, that was why he pushed forward breathlessly naval construction, he knew the coming war with the Kaiser. He carried his religious convictions into politics.

During his period he fought a bloodless revolution, bringing under the control of state, the great wasted interests and making great lawless wealth obedient to the law. Before those days Wall Street was lawless, but gradually through his boundless energy Roosevelt made great wealth obedient to the law. That is why the millionaires during the war were so loyal. Those who earned $170,000,000 income gave $100,000,000 to the war cost. Would he were alive today! We are facing the arrogance of labor. Wealth has learned its lesson, its responsibilities. The great body of the people toil. But the song of the shirt is being heard for the last time, and we are facing today the aristocracy of labor. Last week 250,000 able bodied men walked the streets of New York on strike. We need the message of Roosevelt, the message of square deal to the employer and the employee. He wanted everybody up and nobody down. But today we have the unchristian agitation of class antagonism, somebody down, somebody up. There needs to be preached to the man who works that there is an ethics regarding labor and industry, and that the great thing of the world needs is dedicated work. All Germany is at work. How can we compete with Germany if we only work five or six hours per day? If these men across the line, who have not learned Anglo-Saxon ways, these men from Austria, Russia and Poland, want to set up a new Government in the United States, let them go back from whence they came. They need to be taught that equal privileges bring equal responsibilities.

"It is not the American workman who is causing trouble in the coal mines or steel plants, but the un-Americanized foreigner, who has a strange message, thinking they are living under a condition similar to that from which they came. Roosevelt would today say a square deal for all.

"When Roosevelt's youngest son joined the air force, his heart almost failed him. His wife said: "You cannot expect anything else. You cannot train your sons to fly as eagles and then find them to fly as sparrows." The death of Quentin was his death blow. Roosevelt's health was falling. He went back home and after a long visit with his family he retired, saying to his servant: "Put out the light, please, leave me alone." A true Christian American need not be afraid to be alive in the darkness. Character is what a man is in the dark. To be in the light, He being dead, yet speaketh. He speaks to Canada as a true brother of the Anglo-Saxon race, loyal to our best traditions. Would God that he were alive today!

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speaker on motion of Col. W. N. Ponton, seconded by Mr. W. J. Campbell.

Lieut.-Col. Hercules Barre has been appointed Canadian Trade Commissioner at Paris.

Joseph Fortin, of Quebec, a trapper, is believed to have lost his life in the woods near Lake Frontiere, Bellechasse county.

Five Per Cent Premium

On Canadian Money in the U. S.—Will Help Canada. Canadian money is quoted at a five per cent. premium in New York. This means that the Canadian dollar is worth 95 cents in purchasing goods in the U. S.

Five per cent. is a low level for the purchasing power of the Canadian dollar although it has been gradually decreasing in value in the United States for some time. Wednesday the premium stood at four and a quarter per cent., and it has gradually worked down from a dollar to the present rate.

The indications are, that the premium on Canadian money in the United States will go as high as seven per cent. causing the dollar to reach the extreme low level of 93 cents.

It is the opinion among stock brokers that the premium on Canadian money will tend to increase the trading by Canadians with Canada. The premium is caused by the fact that Canada's imports from the United States greatly exceeds the exports to that country. In fact Canada is buying so much from the republic that the United States money markets has said in effect: "If you want our goods Miss Canada you will pay so much for them." This premium will therefore continue while Canada's purchase in the United States heavily exceeds her sales.

The same condition is also true of Great Britain, the pound sterling being now worth about $4.03 in New York instead of $4.83 2-23.

The fact that this condition does exist will eventually lead to the Canadian people purchasing Canadian-made goods in larger quantities. There was a period after the American civil war when the exchange rate with Canada was heavily against the United States.

J. E. Walmsley Co. vs. J. Ed. Shorey

At the opening of the non-jury sittings yesterday afternoon before the Honourable Chief Justice Sir Glenholme Falconbridge, Chief Justice of the King's Bench, this case was by consent referred to the Local Master, Col. S. S. Lazier for adjudication and final judgment. The plaintiffs claim the sum of $3,695, and interest for goods sold to the defendant and balance of a promissory note made by the defendant. The defendant states that while he may be indebted to the plaintiffs the sum claimed by them is not the exact amount owing and also claims that included in the amount claimed by the plaintiff is a liability of a third party. The Local Master will now take accounts and ascertain the amount owing to the plaintiffs, W. N. Ponton, K.C. for plaintiffs; E. J. Butler, for defendant.

The Real Liver Pill—A torpid liver means a disordered system, mental depression, lassitude and in the end, if care be not taken, a chronic state of debility. The very best medicine to arouse the liver to healthy action is Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. They are compounded of purely vegetable substances of careful selection and no other pills have their fine qualities. They do not gripe or pain and they are agreeable to the most sensitive stomach.

Wedding Bells

WEDDING—BELLS.

On Nov. 19th, 1919, a very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. Peter H. Sweet, Catharine St., Trenton, when his eldest daughter, Nellow May and Clifford Wilson Dafoe were quietly joined in Holy wedlock, the Rev. L. M. Sharpe of Red-nerville officiating.

The home was tastefully decorated with various house flowers and chrysanthemums. At 7.30 the happy couple and their waiters took their place in the drawing room under an arch which deserved special mention having been artistically formed by dark green tapestries over-hung with floral and tinsel decorations, with a large white bell suspended overhead.

The bride was tastefully dressed in silver grey silk trimmed with buttons to match and frilling of cream georgette while the bridesmaid looked charming in a slate colored silk poplin.

After the ceremony and the congratulations were over all repaired to the diningroom where a sumptuous dinner was served to about thirty guests.

Fire Destroys Lakelield Mill

The Plant Was Owned By Mr. John Charlton, of Peterboro—Insured For $1,000.

At 11 o'clock Friday night fire, caused presumably by spontaneous combustion, destroyed the sawmill on Hague's Point, Lakelield, owned and operated by Mr. John Charlton. The first intimation the villagers received of the fire was when residents along the opposite shore were awakened by the glow caused by the flames which burst through a side wall.

Before help could arrive on the scene the entire building which was of thin wooden construction had gone beyond hope of saving. Mr. Charlton the owner of the saw mill, has been in Bridgenorth cutting lumber from his timber lot since June last.

The mill was insured for $1,000. Mills on the same site have been previously destroyed by fire four times the last about seven years ago, when Mr. John McGrath owned the plant. The building burned last evening was built four years ago.

Mystery in Girl's Death

INQUEST MAY BE NECESSARY IN DEATH OF TORONTO GIRL.

Was in Hospital One Hour When Death Took Place.

Toronto, November, 22.—In an unconscious condition, Miss Millicent Collier, aged 19, of 210 Vaughan road, was brought to the Toronto General Hospital shortly before midnight last night and died within an hour.

The cause of her death is not known, it was stated this morning, but it was apparently not due to an accident. Earlier it had been stated that the cause was thought to have been a hemorrhage.

"An autopsy alone will show the exact cause of death," stated a doctor of the hospital. An inquest is likely to be held.

THE VAGS

Now the times are bleak and chilly for the homeless. Weary Willie, there's no light in any window for the boy; all the Rum Holes are abolished and no barkeep, bland and polite, sets the tall and foaming schnners in a row. There's no welcome for the vagrant when he comes, all soiled and fragrant, and requests a little handout at the door; we have cut out careless giving chastened by the cost of living, and we don't distribute winties any more. So the Weary Willie's journeys from the homes of rich attorneys to the squalid huts of poets, all in vain; no one hands him pies or muffins, or the other standard stuffin', and he's standing pale and empty in the rain. Even at the village prison, where a welcome once was his'n, he is held to be a nuisance and a frost; for he adds to our expenses, and the situation tense is, when we strive to make reductions in the cost. There's no welcome for the Willie, and a superstition stilly seems to gain a fresh momentum every day; people say he ought to labor, like his honest, plodding neighbor, ought to earn his rights to victuals and the hay!

Miller's Worm Powders, being in demand everywhere, can be got at any chemist's or drug shop, at very small cost. They are a standard remedy for worm troubles and can be fully relied upon to expel worms from the system and abate the sufferings that worms cause. There are many mothers that rejoice that they find available so effective a remedy for the relief of their children.

Memorial Tablet Unveiled at Trenton

Interesting Ceremony at King Street Church on Sunday Morning—Also Double Monument Unveiled on Saturday.

(From the Ontario's Special Correspondent.)

On Sunday morning King Street Methodist Church was packed to its seating capacity and over one hundred extra chairs were placed in the aisles and outside the main doors. The occasion was the unveiling of the bronze tablet, on which is inscribed the names of our fallen heroes. The Sunday school scholars marched up and took their places on the sides reserved for them. Seats were reserved for friends of our fallen heroes, Trenton branch G. W. V. A., mayor, council and High School cadets. The tablet was unveiled by Brig-Gen. V. A. S. Williams, G.O.C., Military District No. 3. The names disclosed are: Harry Barnum, George Billings, John Blakely, Arnold Collins, Dean Collins, Bruce Cronck, John Fernia, George Friend, Orville Fultford, Herbert Golden, Alfred Ireland, Neville Little, Ralph Phillips, Herbert Redick, William Smith, Harold Statia, Kenneth Turney, Manson Waanmaker, Joseph Woodacre.

A similar service took place on Saturday afternoon, when the two splendid monuments given by the I.O.D.E. were unveiled in the Daughters of the Empire park. These pillars and arch will be a lasting tribute to the dead heroes of our town. Mrs. Geo. White, regent, has been untiring in her efforts.

The following is the programme: Hymn, "O God Our Help in Ages Past"; unveiling by W. H. Ireland, M.P.P.; a letter read from Prince of Wales; God Save the King; prayer, Canon Armstrong; scripture reading, Rev. R. A. Crandon; hymn, "Abide With Me"; address, Mrs. G. A. White, Regent; the Mayor's reply; address, Rev. Capt. Clarke; address, Rev. Major Frost; address, Lt.-Col. Dr. Kidd; address, Lt.-Col. Bywater; national anthem, "God Save the King."

Do It Now.—Disorders of the digestive apparatus should be dealt with at once before complications arise that may be difficult to cope with. The safest remedy to this end and one that is within reach of all, is Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, the best laxative and sedative on the market. Do not delay, but try them now. One trial will convince anyone that they are the best stomach regulator that can be got.

London I.O.D.E. are starting a campaign to raise funds to build and equip a hospital for little sick children.

Navigation Co. Merger in Court

When the non-jury sittings opened Monday before Chief Justice Sir Glenholme Falconbridge the first case called was the Ontario & Quebec Navigation Co. against Chapman and other defendants who were shareholders of the Quinte Navigation Co. The plaintiff claimed $65,000 under an agreement. The original agreement was not produced but the plaintiff sought to prove a copy of it. Mr. Mikel acting for the defendants took objection that the proper foundation had not been laid for the reception of secondary evidence of the agreement. Jas. D. C. Hepburn, Keith Hepburn and Nelson Ostrander of the Ontario and Quebec Navigation Co. were examined but the trial judge held the evidence not sufficient and postponed the case till Thursday to give the plaintiff an opportunity of endeavoring to produce further evidence of the agreement. E. Guss Porter, K.C. and E. J. Butler for plaintiff; W. C. Mikel, K.C. and J. A. Jackson for defendants.

Peculiar Escape of "Moonshiner"

Story as Told by Himself Reveals a Very Astonishing Incident.

Peterboro, Nov. 25.—A very peculiar statement was made by one of the chief alleged moonshiners previous to the trial of J. Guise-Badgley at police court Saturday morning. It is a story of one of the narrow escapes that any law-breaker has had from falling into the clutches of the law heard of here for a considerable time.

This is the story as told by the person connected with the affair. It was while the alleged still was operating on the candy store on Charlotte street. One of the company was busily engaged making whiskey in the kitchen while the other man was waiting on the counter. Mr. Joseph Stewart, License Inspector, drove up with his automobile and entered the shop. A strenuous endeavor was made to stop the process of manufacture and keep all odors out of the shop, but the man belonging to the business thought it was in vain and was almost prepared to throw up the sponge, when the license inspector shook hands and, after sniffing the air a couple of times departed.

It was the closest shave a man could have without getting caught declared the teller of this story.

Think it Cheaper to Shoot Horses

The Hides Valuable But Hay High; Buy New Nags in the Spring.

Renfrew, Nov. 22.—Hay being scarce and high-priced, and an unusually large amount of fall plowing having been done there are farmers of Renfrew county convinced that it would pay them now to shoot some of their horses, sell the hides, and buy new horses in the spring. From Alice township comes word that two or three farmers finding no sale for surplus horses shot them and sold the hides. Hay was a good crop in Renfrew county this year, but a failure of the grain crop has sent the price of hay soaring.

Who Began the War?

Editor Ontario:

The vexed question as to the origin of the late war has at last been settled by the admission of the great German Ambassador to Turkey, Wagenehm, who told the American Ambassador that the Kaiser summoned him to Berlin on July 5th. The heads of the general staff, the navy, the bankers were present. The Kaiser solemnly put the question to each in turn: "Are you ready for war?" Each man replied yes, but the bankers asked two weeks time to sell their foreign securities and to make loans. This was granted.

The American Ambassador says: "I do not have to reason about the matter—I know. This conspiracy was hatched July 5th, 1914. One of the chief participants told me the details with his own mouth."

The operations of the bankers during these two weeks prove the statement which was also made to the Italian Ambassador. Thus we discover proof absolute of the enormity of the crime of the Kaiser and the falsehoods contained in their books published by the German Government.

From some strange peculiarity in the human mind, differences in creeds have all through the centuries resulted in crimes. Why a believer in one creed should feel hatred towards a believer in another creed is one of the strange anomalies of the human mind. This earth has been drenched with the blood of untold millions because of this hatred. Therefore any nation which would deliberately and intentionally stir up religious strife commits the most terrible crime which could be imagined. This crime Germany committed. Germany actually took possession of Turkey, and ruled the Sultan and his court.

Turkey was nominally at peace with the Entente. The Sultan is the head of the Mohammedan world. Germany deliberately planned a holy war by the Mohammedans against the Christian world. The Turkish newspaper published that the deeds of our enemies have brought down the wrath of God. All Mohammedans young and old, men, women and children, must fight with all their strength, with all their soul, with teeth and nails, with all the sinews of our bodies and of our spirits. Some extracts of the Sultan's message I will insert.

O people of the faith, beloved Moslems, consider the condition of the Islamic world. You see India, which contains hundreds of millions of Moslems, fallen into the grasp of the infidel English. Forty millions of Moslems in Java in chains under the Dutch. Egypt, Morocco, Tunis, Algeria, the Sudan, groaning in the grasp of the enemies of God. Liberia, Turkestan, Khina, the Crimea, ground under the feet of the enemies of our religion. England, France, Russia hate Mohammedanism, and invade all of our rights. They desire to drive us from the earth. The Moslems work, infidels eat, Moslems suffer; infidels gorge themselves. But the time has come for a holy war, which shall free all lands from our oppressors. This holy war is a sacred duty. Know ye that the blood of infidels may be shed with impunity. The killing of infidels has become a sacred duty, whether you do it openly or secretly. Take them and kill them wherever you find them. Behold we deliver them into your hands. He who kills even one unbeliever, secretly or openly, shall be rewarded by God. Let every Moslem, wherever he may be, swear a solemn oath to kill at least three or four of the infidels, who rule over them, for they are enemies of God and of the faith. Let every Moslem know that his reward for doing so shall be doubled by God. The time has come. Rise, in one hand a sword, in the other a gun, in the pocket balls of fire and bombs. Kill the infidel wherever he shows his head.

This was Germany's attempt to arm three hundred millions of Moslems. The Armenian atrocities followed when millions were tortured to death, robbed and murdered; young girls and children taken into harems and debauched and murdered. When you think of these things, place the blame where it belongs, namely, upon Germany, the cold-blooded instigator of these crimes.

The Turks ransacked churches, pointed altars, held mock sacramental services; armed the priests, bishops and people with arms, then arrested them, court-martialed and shot them, and beat them to death; violated girls wherever found, beat the soles of the feet until they would swell and burst; pull out eye-brows, finger and toe-nails; apply red-hot irons to the breast, pour melted lead into the wounds; crucify them and say: Now let your Christ help you. They drove immense numbers into the deserts to perish from hunger. Robbed them of everything. Their determination was to destroy the entire Armenian nation.

These things happened through the order of the Germans, who were in authority and commanded the Turks to obey them. Knowing then these iniquities, we must hate the accursed nation at whose doors these crimes must be laid.

I am yours,
 J. J. B. Flint.

Farmers Plowing in South Alberta

A Chinoock Wind Drives Away The Snow and Cattle are Grazing.

Calgary, Alta., Nov. 22.—That the chinook of the last week has driven the frost from the ground in southern Alberta to such an extent that the farmers had resumed plowing was the news brought back from that section last night by George Lane, of Brockville, who visited High River, Cayley, Stavely and MacLeod this week.

"The snow is all gone, the ice is going out of Old Man river, and the cattle are grazing, at least, they are doing their best to graze, considering the grass situation," said Mr. Lane.

"The cattle men are shipping cattle as fast as they can, and the mild weather is helping this movement, and probably will permit the getting out of a lot of stuff that otherwise might be held up for a considerable period," he concluded.

INTERNATIONAL CONVENTION OF THE Y. M. C. A.

Detroit Gathering Largest in History of Association—"Y" to Lead in Community Athletics—Replacing Bar is "Y" Problem—Note of Advance Sounded in All Reports.

Messrs. F. S. Deacon, E. P. Frederick and P. F. Brockel returned from Detroit on Monday where they had been attending the International Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association. They report the largest convention that has ever been held in the history of the Association. The final returns showed that there were present 2,146 regular delegates, 71 fraternal and guests, which was by far the largest gathering that had ever come together in the history of North American Association. The largest previous convention attendance had been 2,208. The report of the International Committee as given in the early sessions of the convention showed an advance in all lines of activities on the continent and also in the Foreign work. The various committees reporting on the different phases of the work all sounded a note of advance.

Some of the important reports were as follows: The Commission on Occupation of the Field; The Commission on the Practice of Prayer; Commission on Vocational Training; The Retirement Plan for Employed Officers; the relations of the Y.M.C.A. to the Churches. The latter report was of special significance in view of the great Forward Movement planned by the evangelical churches of North America. This report should be read by everyone interested in such relationships.

In addition to the very large delegation from Canada and the United States, the British National Council was represented by Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Harry Holmes, Secretary for Australia and New Zealand, and representatives from the following countries: Brazil, 1; China, 7; Cuba, 2; Denmark, 1; Greece, 1; India, 4; Japan, 6; Korea, 1; Mexico, 6; Peru, 1; Philippines, 1; Portugal, 1; Russia, 2; Switzerland, 1; Syria, 2; Egypt, 1.

Many phases of the work were emphasized in the presentation of the different speakers—industrial, railroad, physical, boys and general work. All were carefully considered and the results of the recent great efforts made on behalf of the soldiers and sailors were thoroughly discussed with a view to discovering the lessons from, and points in this work that might be adapted to a regular program.

Distinguished speakers that were heard were: Alford E. Marling, Rev. J. Timothy Stone, Chicago; Ven. A. W. Rowell, Ottawa; H. Churchill, Ohio; Bishop F. MacConnell, Dr. R. E. Speer, New York; Dr. Tice, Detroit; Col. E. Birks, Montreal; Hon. Josephus Daniels, American Navy; Maj.-Gen. C. P. Dummer, U.S.A.; John R. Mott and Sherwood Eddy and a number of others who took part in the discussions and debates.

One of the outstanding addresses of the convention was made by Mr. Eddy at the close of the Sunday afternoon meeting. Mr. Eddy has been around the world in the interests of the Foreign work since the armistice was signed, and brought a stirring message regarding the work of the Far East.

Boxing Is Approved

"Boxing," the commission on the conservation of the values of war work reported, "as a general exercise proved beneficial in the army, but when professional boxing was introduced it was harmful." The convention endorsed the commission's recommendation that "boxing bouts of short duration between men evenly matched, and if controlled and properly conducted, have an appropriate place in the association's physical program."

In view of the "startling facts revealed by examinations for admission to the army," the convention adopted recommendations that the "Y" co-operate with other community agencies in giving physical examinations to the young men of the communities, promote mass athletics, emphasize recreative work more than gymnastics, add outdoor activities at industrial works during noon hours and in neighborhoods in evenings, and that a physical director be placed on the staff of each metropolitan association to give leadership to an adequate community-wide program of recreation.

Expert Urges Sex Education

Not a single sex problem will be solved by the elimination of white slavery or sex diseases, or both, according to views advanced by Dr. T. W. Galloway, associate director of the sex hygiene department of the Young Men's Christian Association. Industrial injustice and perversion of sex impulses are the two biggest elements, he continued, which the world today must combat.

Will Lead to Struggle

The first, he said, if not corrected, will lead to "a materialistic struggle similar to the jungle struggle of biology."

Neglect in meeting the second, he asserted, means "the destruction of our homes and all ideals based on the home."

Dr. Galloway said he believed the Y.M.C.A. was in a peculiarly happy position to assist in sex education. It must make the facts and the science of the physician, he said, and the spirit of religion, and combine the two into "one great appeal to humanity to control itself in respect to sex impulses and then to use them for the upbuilding of society."

F. P. Claxton, United States commissioner of education, emphasized to the city section that there was ample room in the educational field for all the agencies, public and private, that have entered it and for all that may plan to enter it.

F. P. Spears, of Boston, announced that there were at present more than 100,000 persons enrolled in vocational courses in the Y.M.C.A.'s throughout the country, more than all the young men in all the colleges of the Protestant and Catholic churches in the United States combined.

U.S. Officials Heard

The army and navy section heard Commander Claude B. Mayo, bureau of navigation, navy department, and Lieut.-Col. Jason C. Joy, U.S.A. officer in charge of the camp activities section of the educational and recreation branch of the war plans division, war department.

"A great many people may think the navy has now made a great mistake in establishing an organization within itself to take over the work which your organization did so well during the war," said Commander Mayo. "But it was felt that the permanence and development of welfare work within the navy could only be guaranteed by the conversion of the navy itself to this necessity."

The navy's plans, he said, call for the following: To request the various organizations to turn over to the navy department for its use in welfare work the buildings and equipment now on naval reservations and adequate funds to guarantee the continuity of the work until congress makes proper provision.

To Use Same Corps
It will ask organizations, according to Commander Mayo, to employ the same secretaries and workers as have been employed by them and to transfer their services to the navy under the same conditions as they serve at present in their respective organizations.

The Y.M.C.A., with other organizations, he announced, will be asked to continue its full force of welfare workers at all stations, very gradually reducing the forces in order to avoid any abrupt change which might make confusion.

Replacing Bar is "Y" Problem

That "Americans must replace the punch of the highball with the punch of something far more worthy, and that it must hurry to find a substitute for the cafe, formed the basis of an address before the industrial section of the International Y.M.C.A. convention at the Woodward Avenue Baptist Church, Detroit, by Homer L. Ferguson, president of the New-Port News Shipbuilding Company.

Mr. Ferguson and J. E. Mott, vice-president of General Motors Corporation, characterized the filling of the vacancy left by the cessation of the saloon as the great problem of the hour.

Place of Cheerfulness

"No matter what they say about the baleful influence of the saloon, it was a place where there was cheerfulness and where men were warmly received," said Mr. Ferguson.

"Of course it was a good thing to get rid of it, but it imposes on us the obligation to furnish the men with something far more worthy in its stead so they may keep their feet on the ground and their eyes clear and bright. There is a far greater work to do in this sweet dry and dry than there ever was before."

"The saloon is gone, but equally iniquitous places remain," Mr. Mott said. "It is for us to provide competition that will win over such joints."

Dr. Kenyon L. Butterfield, president of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, told the country section at the First Presbyterian Church that "increased satisfaction for the farmer in his way of living must be guaranteed if the world is going to be fed."

Must Democratize Farmers

To democratize the world, he said, it is necessary to democratize the farmers by earnest, helpful teaching.

Dr. Frank Mason North, chairman of the executive committee of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ, spoke on "The City and the Kingdom."

No Knowledge of God

He deplored the fact that "thousands of children in our cities are growing up without a knowledge of God and with an atrophied moral sense."

"The city," he declared, "will test the church and decide its competence."

"Y" Men Occupy 50 Palnits

One of the greatest concerted efforts of the evangelical preaching in the history of the "Y" was made Sunday evening in fifty of the pulpits of the churches of Detroit. Arranged as a grand climax to the five-day international convention of the Y.M.C.A., the services of these churches were turned over to trained speakers of the organization and an attempt made to reap some tactual rewards for the periods of prayer and singing that have marked the daily sessions of the delegates in Arena Gardens.

In every part of the city, in Highland park and Hamtramck and in outlying suburbs of Detroit famous evangelists connected with the Y.M.C.A. made efforts to present the message of that organization to the men of Detroit. In the morning and the afternoon there had been mixed meetings for boys, but the evening sessions were restricted to the older boys and the men for the purpose of proving to them that the "Y" was a strong, manly, virile, commonsense organization that should have its place in the life of every man of red blood.

Of late years, realizing the necessity of such a message, the "Y" has made special efforts to attract to its fold ex-college athletes and several men famous in past years on track or field are now actively engaged in furthering the work of the "Y" through evangelical preaching.

The more famous of the speakers included David R. Porter, former Rhodes scholar and Olympic games athlete, at First Baptist Church; Sherwood Eddy, missionary, who has just made a trip around the world, who spoke at St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church; Harry Holmes, leader in the West Grand Boulevard M.E. Church; and C. R. Towson who spoke in the First Congregational church.

Places the Newspaper First

When the Canadian Government requires money the people do not respond with a stone. In this year's Victory Loan Campaign the Finance Minister, asked for $300,000,000, and the public has subscribed $673,000,000. When the returns are complete the total will probably exceed $700,000,000. Of this sum Toronto has raised $146,000,000, and Ontario $354,000,000, or more than one dollar for every dollar subscribed by all the rest of Canada. Every one of the units, into which the province was divided, has exceeded the objective assigned to it. Some of them have subscribed their objective many times over.

The character of this achievement is best realized when it is compared with what has been accomplished in other countries. The last Liberty Loan in the United States was a comparative failure. The last British Loan was far from successful. The last two loans issued in Australia were forced floatations. That is to say, the people were compelled to purchase according to their ability.

In more than doubly subscribing the Victory Loan 1919 our people have demonstrated the economic soundness and potential wealth of the nation. They have advertised the Dominion throughout the world as a country which readily raises great sums of money even under difficult post-war conditions.

The press has had a great part in this year's overwhelming success. Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, places it first among the factors which made the campaign such a complete triumph. Without the cordial co-operation of newspapers throughout the length and breadth of the land the public could not have been aroused to the need and virtues of the loan.

The editors of Ontario have done particularly well. The sales organization is of the opinion that the service rendered by the press this year has been more generous and more effective than that given in connection with any previous loan. For this we have to thank the newspaper proprietors and editors all over the province. Not once during the campaign have they fallen short of the demands made upon them. They have responded to every fresh call from Headquarters.

Our belief is that the work done by the press in supporting this and previous war loans will prove to be broad cast upon the waters. It will return to them in the shape of new advertising. The financial world has at last learned the value of newspaper publicity. In the future, as never before, brokers will resort to press publicity in the sale of Government, municipal and company securities.

W. J. Taylor, President of the Canadian Press Association, and Chairman of the Dominion Press News and Feature Committee, joins me in thanking the newspapers of Ontario most heartily for the splendid manner in which they have supported this year's campaign.

Yours sincerely,
F. D. L. Smith,
Chairman, Ontario Press News & Feature Committee.

Peterboro Mother Receives a Medal

The D.C.M. Was Won By Her Son, Who Died in the Military Hospital.

Peterboro, Nov. 26.—Among the medals which the Prince of Wales was to present recently was one to a proud mother and bereaved, Mrs. E. Hargrove, of McGill Street, the Prince was to have presented them at Kingston.

However the notice did not reach Mrs. Hargrove in time to attend the presentation, so the medal was forwarded to Mrs. Hargrove, with a letter from the Prince of Wales, which Mrs. Hargrove received from the Prince himself, and which she prizes very highly.

The medal was won by her son the late Pte. Michael Edward Hargrove "for conspicuous bravery" in the field. Pte. Hargrove was a stretcher-bearer with the 5th. C. M. R.'s when he won the medal, and was wounded so severely he died in a London military hospital on the 12th December 1918. He had seen nearly four years' service, and had previously been wounded three times.

The Letter,
Kingston, Nov. 12, 1919,
To Mrs. E. Hargrove,
31 McGill street.
In forwarding this decoration the General Officer commanding desires me to express the greatest apprecition for the services of this gallant soldier and I am also directed by the Honourable the Minister to express his most sincere personal appreciation for the services of so brave a man.

On my behalf please accept my sincerest compliments that you are a relative of so brave a man.
C. T. Peterson,
Military District Captain for District Record Office No. 3.

Picked Up Around Town

Belleville has only one case of smallpox and that is traceable to a Toronto visit. A house on Reid street was placarded yesterday. Belleville had a small outbreak last summer but it was kept well under control and was finally stamped out by the health officer and the Board of Health.

An action for a declaration that the defendant is entitled to maintain a bar on a right of way to keep cattle from straying was the case of Perry vs Perry in the Supreme Court here today. The litigants who are consins have land which was once that of their grandfather Caleb Perry who by will in 1871 disposed of it, giving the front half to his son, W. H. Perry and the north west part of lot 18 in the third of Sidney to his other son, L. H. Perry, the latter to have a right of way. Bars were to be maintained. This has been carried out until recently by the grandsons of Caleb Perry, but lately difficulties arose over the bars and the action is the result. The judge said it was a pity for such a simple case to be in the court as it would cost one or the other a great deal of money. Porter, Butler and Payne for plaintiff and Wm. Carnew for defendant.

The annual Christmas bazaar under the auspices of the Women's Guild of St. Thomas' Church opened yesterday in the parish house. The hall was beautifully decorated and at ten different booths in all manner of fine articles and sweetmeats were offered for sale. Tea was served in the dining room in the basement. Yesterday some three hundred dollars was taken in.

Mr. W. J. Johnson, Earl St., has shown the Ontario two very attractive plans of moderate-cost houses that he is intending to erect under the Ontario Government's Housing scheme. The one is being built on Chatham St. for Mr. A. Skinner, the other on Lingham St. for Mr. Armitage. Mr. Skinner's home will have a basement, a first floor with dining-room, kitchen, parlor and hall and second storey with three bedrooms, den and bath. The plan of Mr. Armitage's house is similar except it will be of frame construction, while the other will be brick veneer. The plans shown by Mr. Johnson are highly creditable to him, showing as they do, a full knowledge of architectural drawing and designing. He has taken a four-years' course in architecture with the Scranton Correspondence School and the work he has submitted shows that he has profited well by his instruction. Mr. Johnson believes that Belleville will have, next year, the most active building season in her history. He will proceed at once with the two houses under contract as soon as the government forwards approval of plans.

SAYS TIME NOT RIFE FOR WOMEN IN HOUSE.

Mrs. W. E. Raney Favors Votes But Not Seats for the Fair Sex.

Kingston, Nov. 26.—Mrs. W. E. Raney wife of the new Attorney-General, and formerly of Kingston, does not believe in party politics for women. She also thinks that the time is not yet ripe for women to run for seats in the House. "Parliamentary procedure is entirely new to women," she said "and they need a great deal of education along these lines before they will be ready to assume the responsibilities connected."

"I am a firm believer in votes for women, but don't think they should try to gain their ends through partyism. To get the new improvements they are seeking they should run independently. If they did this I am sure they would receive more support from women voters, for it is the idea, not the party presenting that gets the women. There are many things which women have been advocating for a long time that I am keenly interested in," she concluded.

Miller's Worm Powders, being in demand everywhere, can be got at any chemist's or drug shop, at very small cost. They are a standard remedy for worm troubles and can be fully relied upon to expel worms from the system and abate the sufferings that worms cause. There are many mothers that rejoice that they found available so effective a remedy for the relief of their children.

CAPTAIN HUG O'HAGAN COMMANDER OF THE WRECKED STEAMER.

Pictou, Nov. 26.—Captain Hugh O'Hagan, formerly of Pictou, now of Tonawanda, N. Y. was commander of the steamer H. E. Rennells which was pounded to pieces on the shores of Lake Superior. The crew narrowly escaped with their lives.

The following dispatch from the Soo gives a graphic description of what will probably go down in history as one of the greatest feats in lifesaving ever performed on the Great Lakes:

Keeper John Anderson, of the Chicago life saving station, is the hero of marine men on the Great Lakes. The story of his heroism in taking charge of the rescue work of the wrecked steamer H. E. Rennells, which was pounded to pieces on the shores of Lake Superior near Grand Marais is, when the steamer was dashed ashore in a mountainous sea, with snow blowing impetuously, it found the Grand Marais life saving crew without a leader due to the illness of Keeper Benjamin Truesdale. The Chicago life saving station keeper, John Anderson, was in Grand Marais aboard the United States sub-chaser 438, which is on its way to Grand Marais, Minn., to lay up for the winter. Immediately he took charge of the rescue work.

The Rennell's crew of seventeen men were helpless with the sea rolling over the vessel and everything coated with great layers of ice. The ship struck the reefs at about 7 o'clock and began to break up almost immediately. Anderson put the crew of the 438 on duty with the coast guard men, rigged up the beach apparatus and with one shot sent a line over the wrecked vessel. A breeches buoy was sent to the ship but it froze solid to the cable and could not be used. The giant sea smashed over the pier. The workmen were freezing and their clothing was stiff, but a thirty-foot surf boat was rigged out, and, with Anderson in charge, and handling the steering gear made four trips and returned, taking off every man of the brave crew.

Anderson was the only man who was not lashed to the surf boat, and was swept overboard three times, but each time managed to crawl back into the tiny craft and continue his work of rescue. Many of the members of the crew of the Rennells were near death with exposure and exhaustion when the last man was rescued. The ship had practically gone to pieces. Their hands were badly frozen and cut on the ice.

The Rennells had been carrying coal from Lake Erie ports to Montreal all season, and her recent trip to Lake Superior was her first to that end of the lake this year.

Captain Hugh O'Hagan of Tonawanda, called the Rennells.—Pictou Gazette.

Relief from Asthma. Who can describe the complete relief from suffering which follows the use of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy? Who can express the feeling of joy that comes when its soft and gentle influence relieves the tightened, choking air tubes? It has made asthmatic affliction a thing of the past for thousands. It never fails. Good druggists everywhere have sold it for years.

TAXES RAISED BY HARD TIMES
Burden is Lightest in Communities Boasting Live and Thriving Towns
FARMER FEELS THE EFFECT
Is Inclined to Forget at Times, That He is Most Vitally Interested in Prosperity of Near-by Cities
(Copyright 1917, Western Newspaper Union)
Taxes are always heavy—to the man who has to pay them—but taxes in some communities are much higher than in others. If you have ever stopped to investigate the matter, you have discovered that the lowest taxes are found in the most prosperous communities. And there's a reason.
The prosperous community has the lowest taxes because there is a large amount of wealth in the community against which the taxes may be assessed. There are prosperous merchants with large stocks of goods upon which taxes are levied. Property values are high and there are thriving industries which pay a large proportion of the taxes.
The higher the property values and the greater the wealth of the community the lower are the tax levies; for a lower tax on each hundred dollars of valuation is required to produce the necessary revenue for the administration of the city and county governments.
Other Taxes are Raised
On the other hand, take a dead town. Property values are low. Merchants' stocks are small and they have little money in the bank. Industries which ordinarily pay a large part of the taxes of a community have closed down. There are vacant stores.

Discovered by Accident

Many wonderful discoveries have been made by accident, and one of two cases are very interesting.

In 1766 a ticket-stamper, employed at a Munich theatre, became the world's first lithographer. His name was Aloys Senefelder, and his work was to stamp the theatre tickets, the apparatus consisting of a polished whetstone (originally intended for sharpening razors), a stamper, and colored ink.

One October evening he had drawn his cheque for salary, and had carelessly left it on a table in the room where he worked. A gust of wind suddenly blew the cheque off the table into a basin of water on the floor. Senefelder dried the cheque as best he could, and to straighten the paper out he placed it underneath the whetstone, which had been resting on the printing stamp, and left it lying there throughout the night.

The following morning, on taking the stone off the cheque, he was surprised to see that the imprint from the stone was transferred to the cheque, and the thought struck him that by means of a larger stone he could "print" programmes and songs. He made experiments, and finally discovered—through this accident—the art of printing from stone.

buildings which were formerly filled with stocks of merchandise upon which the owners paid heavy taxes. Who pays the taxes that were once paid by the merchants, the manufacturers, the bankers and the men who had large holdings of high-priced property? The taxes to conduct the city and county governments, to maintain the schools, to build and repair the roads must be collected from someone. Who pays them? The man who owns his little home or the vacant lot or two upon which he has been planning to build his home must pay double or triple the amount which he paid in times when the town was prosperous to make up for the taxes which are not paid now by the merchants, the bankers, the manufacturers and the big property owners who bore the heaviest burdens of taxation when times were good.

The farmers in the county surrounding the town are also among the heaviest sufferers from the ebbing of the town's prosperity. A certain amount of money must be raised by taxation to provide for the expenses of the county. Roads must be built and kept in repair. Bridges of county officers must be paid. County institutions for the care of the sick and the poor must be maintained. In counties which contain one or more thriving towns, a large proportion of the taxes for the county are paid by the towns. The greater the wealth of the towns and the higher the property valuations, the lower the tax levy for the entire county. When the tax levy is low the burden placed upon the farmer is light.

Burden Falls on Farmer

When the county contains no prosperous and wealthy towns, the greater part of the burden of taxation for the county falls upon the farmer. The value of the farmer's property does not fall in proportion to the value of the property in the town and the higher tax levy that results from the lower property values in the towns makes his taxes higher.

The farmer forgets at times that he is vitally interested in the prosperity of "his town." He thinks that it is up to the town to take care of itself and that it is up to him to take care of himself and he overlooks that fact that the prosperity of the town means as much to him as it does to those who live in it. The farmer who is inclined to overlook this fact has only to think of the matter of taxes and he is likely to change his point of view for taxes are one thing that neither he nor anyone else can escape, and they are one thing in which the farmer ordinarily takes a very lively interest.

How Farmer Can Help

There is just one way in which the farmer can best promote prosperity in the town near which he lives and that is by spending his money in that town instead of sending his money to the far-distant city. Every time the farmer sends an order to a mail order house he helps to destroy the prosperity of his own community and to boost his own taxes. When he sends a dollar away from his home he gets none of it back. When he spends a dollar at home, a part of that dollar comes back to him in some way. It helps the town where it is spent to provide a profitable market for his products and it helps the town pay a large part of his taxes.

The farmer is the one man in the community above all others, who should have no love for the mail order houses for they are doing more to add to his troubles than any other, one agency.

TEACHER'S TRAINING COSTS $17,000

Walter Clarke, B.A., Urges Better Treatment for Teachers—Interesting Paper on Rational Basis of the Teachers' Salaries

The following paper on "A Rational Basis of Teachers' Salaries" was read recently before the Hamilton High School Teachers' association by Walter Clarke, B.A. Much has been written and spoken about the social and financial status of teachers in our state institutions. The discussions, however, as carried on through the press and on convention platforms have been far from exhaustive. We have heard discussions of only phases of the whole problem. No one has yet given us a complete analysis of the teachers' discontent. Nor have many writers, outside of a general cry for a union, given us suggestions for a constructive policy. We hope that the following facts will reveal to the public in general, and to the school boards in particular, the justice of any claims that teachers have made up to the present time. These facts ought also to convince some, who think that "one increase of salary ought to keep them quiet for all time," that teachers have an investment far beyond that which is generally supposed. The public, local school boards and the government may well expect to hear more from teachers until a fair return is given for so great an investment.

Parting of the Ways

The year of entrance to high school is the parting of the ways for the sum total of human intelligence in Canada. During this current year, only a small percentage of entrance pupils are applying their intelligence to the further pursuit of scholastic knowledge. A far greater percentage are applying their intelligence to some form of manual or mechanical work. The smaller percentage receive no income; but on the contrary feed, clothe and equip themselves at their own, or their parents' expense. They are at work that daily demands more intense and concentrated mental effort. The larger percentage receive apprentice wages and are at work where actions become mechanical by repetition. The day should, come in the student's life when he is rewarded for the energy expended in mental effort and particularly for the financial loss consequent upon his withdrawing from the economic world for a long period of study. By "economic" is meant the world of "wages-for-production." The student is a producer. He is producing ideals. He is producing a highly balanced, highly trained intellect for his own and his country's good. When he has completed the product, through 11 years of concentrated effort, he looks for a job.

Teachers' Financial Standing

In our papers we find columns where school boards auction off their jobs to the lowest bidder. The financial condition of the teacher, at the end of his long course, places him peculiarly in the hands of school boards. No elaboration of this phase is needed to show its evil effects on the profession.

Teachers should at once take steps to see that all qualified teachers bid high enough to insure a living wage. Only by a union of all qualified teachers can this be done. Boards ask teachers to set the price upon their jobs. The teachers themselves could soon end this auction sale method by letting all boards know the minimum wage to teachers of various qualifications.

Cost of Training

If the following table is studied, the reader will soon appreciate the cost of training that necessitates secondary, or both secondary and higher education. The term of training is reckoned on the present qualifications demanded by the department of education in Ontario. It matters not whether the cost is met by the student's own money or that of his parents. The point is that a great investment has been made in his intelligence. Any educational vocation which does not repay the initial cost with interest can be placed only in the parasite class.

The following table represents two brothers who apply their intelligence in two different lines, one to become a printer, the other to become a high school teacher. The figures, except those of the first two years, are taken from the monthly record and annual circular of the Toronto Typographical Union:

Year	Printer's Wages	Teacher's Loss in Earning Power	Cost to Teacher by Years	Compounded at 8% till End of Training
1	300	300	350	570.11
2	350	350	400	620.53
3	400	400	450	671.95
4	450	450	500	723.37
5	500	500	550	774.79
6	550	550	600	826.21
7	600	600	650	877.63
8	650	650	700	929.05
9	700	700	750	980.47
10	750	750	800	1031.89

Teacher's additional outlay, books, etc.: First year, $50; second, $50; third, $50; fourth, $75; fifth, $75; sixth, $75; seventh, $200; eighth, $200; ninth, $200; tenth, $200; eleventh, $200. Total, $1375.

The earning powers of the student during the last four summers would be, at a very liberal estimate, $200 each summer. This amount compounded annually at 5 per cent. for four years is $862.02. If this is deducted from the total cost, we have left $16,371.69, which represents the teacher's investment in his intelligence.

Counting the Cost

From the above figures the reader can see that it costs every graduate nearly $17,000 to qualify for a high school teacher. During this same period the printer brother has received in wages over $18,000.

In January, 1919, the highest initial salary paid to any graduate was $1400. This is just $264 less than his printer brother receives on union scale. This means that boards of education pay teachers less than the mechanic receives, who draws wages throughout his apprenticeship. The printer works five years for wages and then draws $1664. The teacher works 11 years for nothing, even pays for the privilege of working, then draws at the most $1400. Boards do not pay teachers even the cost of production, not to mention interest on the investment.

Not of Brick or Mortar

What is it that constitutes a collegiate institute? Is it the fine building? The answer is obvious. Schools do not consist of brick and mortar. They are the living, highly trained intelligence of human beings, dedicated to the directing and moulding of the plastic minds of Canada's rising generation.

Death of a Former Resident

Charles A. Merriam died in Toronto on Wednesday morning where he had been living for some time. He was born in Belleville eighty years ago and had lived here the greater part of his life. He was an engineer by trade and had been on the ferry boat crossing the bay, also in the Eagle Mill at Rossmore. He was the first engineer at the Belleville pump house when the waterworks was first installed here. He leaves four daughters and one sister, Mrs. B. R. Quincey, Murray St. Mrs. Quincey is the last of the original Merriam family.

Adenoids and Tonsils Removed

Marmora, Nov. 20.—At the clinic held in the town hall here for the benefit of school children of Marmora and the surrounding district, 27 operations were performed for the removal of tonsils and adenoids. The day before the clinic the auditorium was filled with coats and presented quite a creditable hospital. The stage was converted into an operating room. Dr. W. G. Mackenzie was the operating surgeon, assisted by Dr. Thomson and Dr. Crawford. Miss Campbell, graduate nurse, was head nurse, and was assisted by Miss Watt, of Delora, and an efficient staff of practical nurses from Marmora. The Women's Institute served lunch in a room down stairs for all connected with the clinic and the parents of the children who were being operated upon.

Late Thomas Dracup

The funeral of the late Thomas Dracup was held on Tuesday from Messrs. Tickell & Sons Company's funeral parlors to Sidney Town Hall Methodist Church, where the Rev. Mr. Wallace officiated assisted by Mr. Scott and Mr. McClatchie of Belleville. Interment was made in the Frankford cemetery, the bearers being John Sharpe, S. Reddick, T. Rowan, G. Barton, H. Bowers, and H. Spencer.

Printer and Teacher

The printer, for running a machine which his employer provides, receives more wages than a teacher for directing a mind that he himself provides at a cost of $17,000. It is high time that boards of education, composed of reasoning men and women, became leaders in a forward movement of teachers' salaries. If such boards are afraid of local conditions and feel that people will not submit to a school tax that will give a teacher adequate remuneration for his services, then somehow let them seek provincial or federal aid to education. This must eventually be the means of retaining men of ambition and initiative in the profession.

The rapid exodus of men from the teaching profession has not yet aroused our government. Men must be forced by financial stringency to leave a profession for which they have trained and qualified at a cost of $17,000? Should they not rather unite their efforts and make it what it ought to be?

The minister's report of January, 1919, gives the following percentages: Jan. '19—Men, 48.71; Women, 51.28. Jan. '18—Men, 50.89; Women, 49.19. Jan. '17—Men, 53.37; Women, 46.62. Jan. '16—Men, 59.27; Women, 40.72. Jan. '09—Men, 67.55; Women, 32.45. Jan. '04—Men, 78.80; Women, 21.20.

This means that 15 years ago there were practically four male teachers to every female in our colleges and high schools. Today there are more women teachers than men in our secondary schools. The cause of this exodus is no subject of debate. It is self-evident. In spite of all the lauding of the profession by those who think they know, the fact is that the value placed on education is so low that the price paid for it will not allow even a comfortable living to a man who has to support a wife and family.

WHEN LEVI WHITEMAN SMITH JOINED THE MASONS

Written for the Ontario by Arthur L. Burke.

When I was younger than I am now, (although I don't happen to be fifty yet) I used to squander a good deal of valuable time, trying to imagine what they did to a fellow when he joined the Masons, that is, if he ever joined. Well, I thought so much about it that at last one night I had a very unusual dream. I dreamed that I was one of a large gathering of men. Some were lawyers, some doctors, some farmers, in fact some from every walk in life. Except myself, each seemed to wear a cloak of mystery, an unfathomable something was written on their every movement. They seemed to be the sole possessors of all knowledge in the sky above and in the earth beneath. As I sat there in my isolated position I was made to feel that of all creatures under the canopy of heaven I was the most miserable, and the only poor stimp in all the universe that didn't know the first thing. While I was nursing my injured feelings a couple of strangers emerged from a carefully concealed opening in the wall, and walking directly to where I was sitting, they asked in stern voices: "Are you Mr. Levi Smith?" I was so frightened I think I died. I'm not sure. I didn't answer right away anyhow. When I reached a normal state, I saw they had a cow-chain around my neck and an ugly looking thing on my head that I decided was a bomb. They told me I was to join the Masons that night and that if I didn't want to die, I was to remove my clothes at once. I took them off, but it nearly killed me. There were two monstrous holes in my socks, my feet hadn't been washed since Hector was a pup, there were some very prominent openings in my underwear and the kids had played horse with my shirt for nearly a week. I had heard before, that people in some parts of the world didn't wear any clothes and when this happy thought occurred to me, I didn't feel so bad with mine off. I was then taken through another secret opening into a room where everything was as silent as death. It was terribly dark and as I was wearing the garb I had on when I came into this world I was mighty thankful.

I AM NOT DEAD

Written for the Ontario by Hazel Alvea Asselstine, City.

Dear heart, I come to you to-night Across the mystic shore, Oh, know I do not love you less, I only love you more! The happy years we two have spent In childhood's happy day, Will never vanish from my heart For I am yours for aye. The hand of death is not unkind, I only go before, A little way, to light our path To the Celestial door. Be patient dear, and give the Truth To every thirsting soul, You have your mission still on earth, So work toward it's goal. I AM NOT DEAD, I AM NOT DEAD! Believe I am with you, Open wide the windows of your mind And let Truth's light come through Upon your earth you loved me well, Then do not fear to hear My voice again, to see my face When I am hovering near. That I am near you, no not doubt, I live, aspire, achieve, If you could see me as I am You soon would cease to grieve! So, sweetheart, let my little verse Rest on your grief to-night, I am beside you all the way, My love burns warm and bright, Your soul and mine walk side by side, Naught our course can sever, I love you as in long ago, We are one for ever.

Rednersville Womens Institute

Our October meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Cole Rose with a good attendance. Our president, Mrs. Alex. Anderson, presided and several business items were discussed. Mrs. W. C. Dempsey was elected our delegate for the Toronto convention, and some of the collectors handed in their collections for the Picket Hospital. The balance of the Red Cross money was voted over to these funds.

A paper, "The Advantages and Possibilities of Rural Life" was read by Mrs. M. B. Weese, followed by an excellent and helpful paper entitled, "Living a Life is More Than Making a Living" by Mrs. W. C. Dempsey, and a short paper, "The Time We All Waste in Hurrying" by Mrs. Burton Redner. A short discussion on "Inexpensive Christmas Gifts" and "The Use of Eggs" followed by "God Save the King" brought the meeting to a close.

Mrs. Rose then treated her guests to fresh cider and cake, and a vote of thanks was tendered her for her hospitality. Our guests were Mrs. Woodrow who came with Mrs. Dempsey, and Miss Grey of Ottawa, who for two years has been nursing sister overseas and who came with her aunt, Mrs. Geo. Grey.

Our next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Stanton Fox on Nov. 27, when we hope to have with us Mrs. W. R. Brown, our district president, and Mrs. Munro, our district secretary, if the weather is favorable. A good attendance is desirable.

ordered to do so by the proper authorities, and not even then except Finnacle street be paved and the railway placed in the centre of the street. That I will attend all regular and irregular meetings of my lodge, whether at night, in the night or all night, especially if there should be something to eat.

I further solemnly promise that I will know no politics save those of Ireland and West. Hastings except where a U.F.O. man is in the field, when I reserve the right to vote for whoever I please.

And lastly, that this is the first and only time I have ever joined the Masons. That should I divulge any of the signs, secrets or anything in connection with this great craft that I will suffer no less a death than that of having my head burst open, my windpipe disconnected and fastened to the dummy policeman on Bridge street corner, where the traffic ebbs and flows twenty-four hours in the day.

I was just in the act of swearing that I would patiently observe the foregoing obligation when that bomb exploded and I heard some one say it was time to get up. After such a nasty dream I naturally began to wonder where my clothes were.

Costly Bottle of Liquor

N. Easton Pays Fine of Three Hundred and Fifty Dollars

Nathaniel Easton was this morning in Belleville police court—fined three hundred and fifty dollars and costs or three months in jail in default for selling liquor in contradiction of the O.T.A. on Nov. 19. Easton had pleaded guilty. The fine was paid. The sale was one bottle. Inspector Arnott seized six bottles at Easton's premises.

Crown Attorney Carnew said that Inspector Arnott had secured information which led to Easton's capture. Six sealed bottles of liquor were found in his premises in a vault. No effort was made on the part of the accused to resist proceedings but acted a little self-assertive as to his rights to have liquor in his premises. The sale did not appear to be a solitary case. There was other information but no other charges have been laid.

Magistrate Mason "Is this a simple isolated case or was there a business carried on for profit?" Inspector Arnott said he had gone to Easton some time ago and asked him to desist. He had promised the inspector at that time that he would quit. However Mr. Arnott had come to the conclusion that Easton had not stopped it and the inspector went on until he got the evidence.

Stanford Girl Athletes Must Cut Out Candy

It is a trying life at Stanford University, California, for the unlucky fair one who is going in for athletics this year. A training table was established for the co-eds, and henceforth the members of the various athletic squads must retire at 10.30 p.m., refrain from eating, all kinds of candies and sweets and attend no dances. The girl athletes are preparing to put female athletics on the same plane that is now held by the men and by enforcing these rules they are certain to do so.

A rich New York man has a plan for organizing a company with capital stock of $10,000,000 to distribute milk through stores at a reduction of three cents a quart from present prices.

Following the congratulations, a wedding breakfast was served in the dining room. The tables were nicely decorated with amaranth, pink and white carnations and white satin streamers, while the pink and white bouquets placed throughout the rooms completed a very effective color scheme.

SHILLINGLAW — NOLAN

A quiet wedding was solemnized in Christ Church on the evening of November 14th, when Lieut. Linton G. Shillinglaw, M.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Shillinglaw of Seymour, and Miss Aletha Nolan were united in marriage by the Rev. Charles E. Clarke. After the ceremony the happy couple motored to Trenton, where they took the midnight train for Toronto, where they will reside. Mr. Shillinglaw has a position in the office of the Massey-Harris Co. Many friends of the bride and groom join us in wishing them a happy and prosperous journey over life's matrimonial sea.—Campbellford Herald.

PALMER — TAYLOR

On Wednesday, November 16th, at St. Thomas Church, Belleville, a pretty wedding was solemnized, when Miss Mary Irene Taylor, daughter of Mrs. S. Taylor, became the bride of Lieut. James Palmer, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. James Palmer, third concession of Hillier, Prince Edward County. Rev. Canon Beamish officiated in the presence of immediate relatives and friends.

After the interesting ceremony the bride and groom, accompanied by the wedding guests, repaired to the home of the bride's mother, where a tempting luncheon was enjoyed, after which Lieutenant and Mrs. Palmer returned for London, Detroit and other western cities. On their return from their honeymoon they will reside at the groom's beautiful home in Hillier.

The presents to the bride were beautiful and costly and evidenced the esteem in which she is held.

Lieut. Palmer is one of the many young men to whom Canada owes a deep debt of gratitude, having served overseas during the entire period of the Great War. His many friends in Hillier unite in wishing the young soldier and his bride a pleasant voyage over the ocean of life.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 27,

PEACE WITH THE BOLSHEVİK

Of late in British political circles there has been a move made towards negotiating a peace with the Russian Bolshevists. One of the leaders in the agitation, who says he represents the Red Chiefs, declares that Lenin and Trotsky are prepared to stop fighting if reasonable terms can be arranged. Does he mean by this that Lenin and Trotsky are prepared to repudiate their policy of destruction, that they are willing to drop their bloody war against civilization? This infamous pair have loudly and frequently stated that they are out to pull down organized society the world over. Unless they abandon this madness how can any sane government discuss the making of peace with them? "Reasonable terms" from the point of view of the rest of the world must in the first instance call for a complete repudiation of what the Russian Red Government stands for, and it is not conceivable that Lenin and Trotsky will do this. That is, they may for the time being, in order to secure a respite, agree to pull down the flags of anarchy, but from their record it is not to be supposed that this pair of scoundrels would live up to a peace pact that barred them from their present detestable methods. Once the Allies had withdrawn all assistance and influence from Russia they would be back at the old game. That would be a foolish government that would enter into any agreement with this pair of rascals who handed their own nation over to the mercies of the Prussian and who have since held power by wholesale massacre and plunder. No real peace can be arranged between Russia and the outside world until Russia has men at her head who represent all factions and classes and who have a proper respect for the opinions and views of mankind everywhere.

AWAKENED CHINA

China has experienced a revolution, long continued and of a confused nature. The Boxer rebellion of 1901 was the last outbreak of the old exclusive spirit. Since that day there has been a complete change in the outlook of the people. In 1911, the Manchu dynasty was overthrown and a republic established. Its course has been difficult, but in the main, progressive, though some armed conflict between the North and South could not be avoided. Bandits have taken advantage of the unrest and of the lack of a strong central government. Yet, despite all the fighting and disorder, foreign mission stations have not been injured, and frequently the wounded of the two bands in conflict have been treated side by side in a Christian Hospital. China declared war against Germany, and Chinese labor battalions were of the utmost service in Flanders. In the meantime, with the rise of the Republic has come a new national spirit, a realization of the inferior place that China formerly occupied in the eyes of the world. It used to be said that there was no patriotism in China. That will never be true again. There is a flaming desire for a strong nation, for the development of native industries and for universal modern education. Consider the position of 400,000,000 people, the most industrious and thrifty in the world, set in a fertile and wealthy land. China has great areas of coal and iron ore excellent possibilities of river transportation and of electrical development. It needs railways, machinery, capital, but above all, confidence and instruction.

The old system of literary education has failed. Long rows of examination booths, through which for centuries passed to honor and position, all the official personages of China are mouldering to decay. Western education, as provided in the Christian schools and colleges, established by the missionary enterprise, has justified itself in the eyes of the people. The Government has realized that 1,000,000 primary schools are necessary. That means the education and training of as many teachers, and the development of a public national spirit in every village. No such task was ever before attempted. Only two per cent. of the children are getting any education today. Will China be materialistic or spiritually mind? If the people should rise into energetic production on modern plans, if the pursuit of wealth should grow to a passion as it did in Germany, the seeds of a new conflict, infinitely more terrible than the Great War would be sown. At present, the literati are in a receptive state of mind. Students have been encouraged to examine the foundations of the Christian faith, and many of the national leaders are the product of the mission schools. At Chengtu is a Union University, established by seven Christian denominations in co-operation. Thirty buildings are already erected. Thirty-nine are needed. Every educational institution established must be expanded. New schools are imperatively demanded. In like manner, the opportunities for all forms of evangelistic and social service work are endless.

The medical task is stupendous. The present death rate of China is at least fifty per thousand, as against seventeen in most regions of Canada. All plagues rage unchecked. Cholera, bubonic, pneumonia and the contagious diseases now reasonably well controlled in Canada, have free course to decimate the population. All hospitals in China are understaffed, and many of them require additional equipment. For a population of 2,500,000 in one Chinese city only one doctor is available. In Canada, there is one doctor to every 625 people. Through medical missions, the way of approach to any population is made easy. Business houses expend large sums to create an "atmosphere" favorable to their enterprises. The Christian churches have not realized the greatness of their opportunity in China and in other foreign lands. Canada has a national interest and a commercial interest in the spreading of the Gospel message. It helps to make the world a desirable neighborhood.

General Ludendorff's memoirs might have been entitled the power of advertising. Allied advertising was, he thinks, of vast importance in breaking the power of Germany.

Fuller Bunk says: Airplane travel promises to become most popular with women. When they look down on crowds, just think of all the hats, they can see.

Justice Law, of the Fifth District Municipal Court in Brooklyn, has decided that a girl who receives an engagement ring from a young man must give it back to the young man if she breaks the engagement. This seems only common sense as well as justice. Girls will please govern themselves accordingly.

Canopus, the giant of the solar system, is, according to a recent calculation, 49,000 times as bright as the sun. Its diameter is 134 times that of the sun; it is 18,000 times larger in surface, and 2,420,000 times larger in volume. The distance of it from the earth, according to this calculation, is 489 light years.

"Suppose," says another authority, "that instead of being at this enormous distance it were placed in the centre of the solar system, in lieu of the sun. It would then occupy .85 of the space lying within the orbit of Venus, and as seen from the earth would subtend an angle of about 70 degrees of arc. Thus, when its lower limb was on our horizon, its upper would be within 20 degrees of the zenith. Needless to say, no life could exist on earth with such a neighbor."

The law-abiding public will heartily welcome the decision of Police Magistrate Masson no longer to accept the nonsensical tales of those who profess to find bottles of booze behind telegraph poles or even less probable places of concealment. It is fairly certain that in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the men who make such statements in court are adding the more serious crime of perjury to that of illicit dealing in liquor. The same may be said of the bad memories that are so often in evidence when men assert that they do not remember where they obtained the supplies of liquor that made them drunk. Defective memories and imaginations too romantically inclined are very effectively treated at Castle Ketcheson.

We have received from the International Press Limited of Toronto a work of interest to Canadians that deserves a place in every private or public library. It is the 1919-1920 edition of "Who's Who and Why" which gives in tabloid form the biography of several thousand of Canadians eminent in every walk of life, whether commercial, political or professional. The book consists of 1524 pages, is printed on fine paper and, in addition to the biographies, contains hundreds of portraits of those whose careers have been sketched. Copies of the work may be secured by writing to International Press Limited, C.P.R. Building, Toronto.

The Ontario is in receipt of a very elaborate and attractive anniversary number issued by The Evening Review of Niagara Falls, Ontario. The Review is published under the management of Mr. F. H. Leslie, one of the live wires of journalism in Ontario. The Review was founded forty years ago and from a modest beginning has grown to become one of the most popular and influential papers in Western Ontario. It is now the only paper published in Niagara Falls, having in February, 1918, absorbed its local rival The Daily Record. The special number consists of 44 pages and gives most interesting historical sketches of journalism in Niagara Falls, the school system of the city, the Y.M.C.A., the Lundy's Lane Historical Society, Freemasonry at Niagara Falls and accounts of many other local institutions or features that make the number one of unique and permanent value.

The Christian Guardian, the official organ of the Methodist Church in Canada, has issued an excellent anniversary number in commemoration of its ninetieth birthday. The Guardian is one of the oldest denominational weeklies on the continent of America and, we may add one of the most sane and vigorous. The anniversary number contains many special articles of literary and historical merit including a history of The Guardian by W. H. Hincks, "The Canadian Women of 90 Years Ago," by Emily P. Weaver, "What the Press has done for the Church" by J. Lewis Milligan, "Pioneer Women of the Pen" by Jean Blewett, etc. etc. Among the Canadian pioneer women who are prominent in Jean Blewett's article are Mrs. Catharine Parr Traill and Mrs. Susannah Moodie, the famous Strickland sisters, who made Belleville their home for many years prior to their death.

Despite differences and disputes, the fact that there is a close, unbreakable bond between the British and American people, is being vividly demonstrated by the fine welcome given the Prince of Wales at the American capital. There has always been, and probably will be for some generations an element in the republic which will endeavor to foster bad feeling between the two nations, but there isn't a doubt but that the people of the United States are heartily one with the sister race. It is natural that this should be so. The same laws and language, the same ideals in religion and politics keep them side by side, moving in unison towards better things. Blood and the common interest are ties that cannot be severed by any of the mischievous agencies that would, if they could, have the two leading nations of the world at one another's throats. The warmth of the Prince's reception is something much more than a display of hospitality towards a distinguished guest, and it would be well for British haters on this continent and elsewhere to realize that fact.

Throughout the war it was one of the principles of the British government and one that was rigidly adhered to that the people, wherever possible, should be assured cheap food. It is a well-known and to many an amazing fact that during the war years food prices in the British Isles were much lower than in Canada and the United States. This was managed by the Government purchasing all essential foods, such as meat and flour, selling them to dealers and bakers and seeing to it that there was no profiteering. The scheme worked out so well that the British government announces that it will be continued for at least another year or until next year's world crops are gathered.

One of the methods to supply the people of England with cheap food will be the importation from Australia of vast quantities of canned rabbits. Each can will contain two and a half pounds of meat and will be distributed through hundreds of retailers all over the United Kingdom and Ireland at forty-five cents a tin. From Denmark the Government is purchasing butter at a cost of seventy-five cents which the consumer can have for fifty cents. The view of the British Government, and under the present food production and transportation conditions it is a logical and just one, is that the millions of the poorer classes should be properly fed at the expense of the general taxpayer. For a government to supply cheap food to all the people may seem radical in times of peace but it will prevent a dangerous discontent and widespread physical deterioration.

Examining the results of Bolshevik Government in Russia, Mr. Herbert Hoover, in a recent address before the American Institute of Mining Engineers said: "Today two-thirds of the railways and three-fourths of the rolling stock that they control are out of operation. The whole population is without any normal comforts of life and plunged into the most grievous famine of centuries. Its people are dying at the rate of hundreds of thousands monthly from starvation and disease. Its capital city has diminished in population from nearly two million to less than 600,000. Prices have risen to fantastic levels. The streets of every city and village have run with blood of executions; nor have these executions been confined to the so-called middle and upper classes, for, latterly, the opposition of the workmen and farmers to this regime has brought them also to the firing squad in appalling numbers.

"If we examine the recent proclamations of this group of mixed idealists and murderers, we find a radical change in their economic and social ideas. They have abandoned the socialization of the land, for they find the farmer will not produce for payment in highfown and altruistic phrases. They have re-established a differential wage in an attempt to stimulate exertion and ambition of skilled labor.

"They have established a State Savings Bank, in order to stimulate production through making provision for family and old age. They are offering fabulous salaries for men capable of directing the large agencies of production. In fact, while in the midst of flowery verbal endeavor to maintain that they are still Socialists, they are endeavoring to restore individual ownership of property and of the results of labor. The very High Priest of Socialism is today vainly endeavoring to save his people from their total destruction by summoning back the forces of production. The apologists of this debacle are telling us that it is due to the Allied blockade, and to various other oppositions, but any one with a rudimentary knowledge of Russia knows that they did have within their borders ample supplies of food, coal, oil, wool, flax, cotton and metals, and the factories with which to work them in abundance, and that their sole deficiency is human effort."

WASHDAY

I'm glad when washday's gone and ended, for then the rules are all suspended, the house is upside down; I breathe a lot of hectic curses, as I sit round composing verses, in my pink dressing gown. I see the womenfolk, embattled, all tired, distraught and badly rattled; my aunt comes pawing round; "What luck! What luck! We're out of bluing! Go, hump yourself, be up and doing, and bring us half a pound!" I hear the loud domestic shrieking, "Oh, Caesar's ghost! The boiler's leaking, the water's all run out!" And I must do some punk repairing, and while I do it I am swearing, for I'm bunged up with gout. At noon I have to eat cold pottage, for no one round the steamers cottage has time to cook a meal; there's no hot coffee in the shanty—and it would take the pen of Dante to tell how tough I feel. All day I see the women sloshing around the sully weekly washing, up to their ears in suds; all day they toil around like dingies, and feed into the jaws of ringers the aromatic duds. And then at night they're all so weary, I look in vain for glances cheery, I see no cheerful grin; they're taking headache pills and potions, and I remark, with wild emotions, "Oh, washday is a sin!"—Walt Mason.

FORGET IT.

Forget the grief of yesterday; he is the greatest bore I know who buttonholes us on his way, to talk about some bygone woe. Forget the grudge you've held so long against the gent who lives next door; it's doubtless true you're in the wrong—his head's entitled to be sore. Forget the chances you have missed, forget the hopes that proved a frost; there always is a chance, I wist, as good as any you have lost. Forget your princely pedigree, forget the blue blood in your veins; get out where common mortals be, and match with theirs your stately brains. Forget the grandeur of the past if you're reduced to low estate; get down to tacks and hustle fast, and keep your winning smile on straight. Forget the dark, unpleasant things; we all have troubles of our own; we love the lad who smiles and sings—detest the one who sheds a groan. Forget the ailments you have had, the numps, the glanders and the gout; forget the truss and liver pad, and talk of tractors, tripe and trout. Forget all weary things that bore, that keep men yawning as you spiel; spring gladness when you have the floor, and tell how dabbled good you feel!—Walt Mason.

Official—"So it is. You can keep it. We only want the produce from it!"

OTHER EDITORS' OPINIONS

A CONTRAST

It is educative to contrast the speed with which Ottawa railroads through the G.T.R. bill and the majestic tentaments of Prohibition's Progress through the chambers of Parliament. As a glacier rolls slowly down the rocky ages of the mountain side, as an hour-hand crawls unseen onward, as a snail moves up a stem, so marcheth prohibition to its own. But someone is interested to put the railroad legislation full steam ahead. The order for haste has gone forth, and it is the members' part to shove the business through without much reasoning why.

But poor prohibition gets through one hoop only to find another beyond. It seems that even the latest proposed legislation does not contemplate stopping the manufacture of liquor anywhere.—London Advertiser.

SPOOKS

We are disposed to think the spiritualistic theory logically inferior to that of inspiration by the devil, especially in the matter of telling fortunes or predicting the future. If evidence be ever available that a medium can, with fair regularity, beat a good racing tipster or advise us beforehand of one or two important and apparently improbable events, we shall be ready to consider a grave metaphysical opinion on the probable source of the information. In the meantime, on the matter of evidence as to alleged phenomena, we should have little confidence in the judgment of bishops, and should prefer that of conjurers with regard to the "sub-conscious self," and that of average men with regard to telepathy.—London Times.

PROFESSIONAL PROTESTANTISM

The last chapter on the subject of the raid at the Jesuit Novitiate at Guelph in June, 1918, has, it is hoped, been written. Hon. S. C. Mewburn, and Hon. Charles Doherty have been exonerated of the charge that in behaving like gentlemen they were guilty of impropriety; the "discrimination" charged in connection with the Novitiate, is shown to have consisted in the fact that this was the only theological institution subjected to the indignity of a raid; the action of the chief censor in endeavoring to so far as possible put the lid on the bad feeling that the publication of such an incident would certainly cause, is rightly commended. In short, those who forced the appointment of a Government commission to ventilate this unfortunate affair are hoist with their own petard.

And now let us for a moment reckon on what the desire of two or three professional Protestants to advertise themselves has cost the country. It has wasted a good many thousand dollars at a time when the need of economy is imperative; but this is a small consideration in comparison with the ill-feeling that has been generated by the whole affair. The ordinary religionist who is always looking for a place in the limelight through agitation, is at all times a menace to public order and neighborhood feeling; but the professional Protestant is probably the worst enemy of our civilization. He has been properly put where he belongs by Mr. Justice Middleton, and it is to be hoped that he and others like him will profit by the lesson.—Toronto Saturday Night.

OUR REAL BASIS

Language is no safe basis to rest upon in determining the origin of a people. Sometimes a conquering people conquered, and sometimes the language of the aboriginal people becomes that of their conquerors. So far as modern English is concerned, if it be granted that its base is Saxon, it must also be allowed that it has been molded into its present beautiful form by all those influences which have also changed the crude Saxon stock into the existing English type. Be that as it may, the fact remains that in physical, in moral and in intellectual characteristics we are entirely a non-Teutonic people, approximately more nearly, as anyone who has an intimate knowledge of continental people can attest, to French and even Italian types than to the Germanic.—London Daily News.

OUR PUBLIC MEN FAVOR COMMUNITY ORGANIZATION

Mr. R. Crosby Outlines Work of Canadian City Bureau at Conference Last Night— City's Future What Citizens Make It—Lack of Growth in Past Due to Absence of Co-operation.

The aims and objects of the drive for an extended Board of Trade or Chamber of Commerce were explained to a representative gathering last evening at the city hall by Mr. Robert Crosby, Ald. Jamieson Bone, chairman of the executive campaign committee occupied the chair.

"We have a beautiful and well situated city with every natural advantage," said Mr. Bone, "yet in the past factories have closed. Now we are trying to build up the city. We are surrounded by a fine agricultural country. We urge the citizens to support the campaign for a new community spirit."

Letters of regret from Col. Marsh, Col. Ponton, Ald. Riggs and Mr. Jno. Elliott, regretting inability to attend were read.

Mr. Crosby declared that Bellevillians must feel "We are citizens of no mean city; What does the future hold for us? The past is gone. The next five years are alive with opportunity. Belleville will be what the citizens make it." The city bureau works to inactivate the spirit of competition. It will inaugurate the spirit of cooperation. A remarkable change has come over the people in the last few years. Why? A warm feeling has been growing about public life when you have given money and cause when you have real business. Men are because you have given up something. When a man gets old, the greatest satisfaction is not what he has accumulated but what he has begun, which will live when he has gone.

It will also cultivate a spirit of leadership. Continuity of leadership is what is needed in our community. The spirit of appreciation will be cultivated.

The organization must be democratic. It must be the community working for the community. A ballot will be sent out containing the name of every member to every member. In this way directors are appointed. Every member will be an elector. Every member will be a voter in favor of five. This will mean united backing of the directors.

What will the organization accomplish? Ballots will be sent out with two questions to each member. What will help you in your own business and what will help you as a citizen?

No doubt more industries will come to Belleville. What proposition has the city for housing, schooling, sanitation and so forth.

After the members record their answers, a program of work based upon answers received will be drawn up—to be carried out within the next few years. A program of work must be drawn up if we think of the Belleville of 1925 or 1930. There must be continuity of effort. Committee work will be dwelt upon. Every man must be ready to give himself to work. There is no task greater than that of making a city. There is one step beyond intellectual acceptance, that is action. The men of Belleville have first to believe the gospel we are preaching then you have got to live that belief. The two prime essentials of an organization is a working membership and an adequate income.

Beginning the week of Dec. 1st will be the intensive drive for membership. There will be three majors of teams. Each major will have five captains under him and each captain will have four workers.

There are 1500 or 1800 people in Belleville who should be members of a community organization. The value of team work and its accomplishment will be emphasized. The workers will be asked to give two hours per day for the week.

Ald. Bone said: "We are going to have a bigger Board of Trade with a paid secretary and an officer. The Belleville council has done a few good things this year, but more needs to be done in the line of housing. What we want is a desirable city to live in. There is a crying need for a farmers' recreation room.

Mr. H. F. Ketcheson was called upon for a few words.

He said "Belleville has good citizens but we have lacked cohesion or community spirit. With all our resources, rail and water advantages, Belleville will likely be the nucleus of a big city. We are on the eve of a great advance. We have got to move as one. I believe we are starting

MRS. JOHN McDONALD

The death occurred on Nov. 11th of Mary Elizabeth Clark, beloved wife of John McDonald, Percy. Deceased was born in Hastings on Aug. 19, 1861, being the oldest daughter of the late Peter Clark. In 1879 she was united in marriage to Mr. McDonald, who, with two sons, William and Allen, of Percy, and three sisters, Mrs. Chas. Hill, Howard City, Mich.; Mrs. Ezra Cornelius, Warkworth, and Miss Vera at home, survive. Two sisters, Mrs. William Brittain and Mrs. John Adamson, of Waverley, survive. The remains were interred in Mount Pleasant cemetery—Campbellford Herald.

MRS. THOMAS DUNK

The death occurred at her beautiful residence, Seymour East, on Wednesday, November 12th, of Marjorie Thomson, beloved wife of Thomas Dunk, sr. The late Mrs. Dunk was born in Linnebow, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, April 23, 1846, being the younger daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Thomson, who came to Canada when the deceased was a girl of ten years of age. Fifty-two years ago she married Mr. Thomas Dunk, oldest son of the late Aloanz Dunk, and spent her entire married life in the community, where she was held in the highest esteem, beloved by all who knew her for her kindness of heart and cheerful disposition. For many years she was a devout member of the Zion Methodist Church and was a faithful attendant of the house of God until affliction made it impossible for her to attend. The funeral service was conducted by her pastor, Rev. M. L. Hinton, at the family residence, on Saturday afternoon. Mrs. C. W. Turner of Campbellford sang very sweetly that beautiful hymn, "Crossing the Bar." Among the beautiful floral expressions of sympathy was a wreath from the Zion Ladies' Aid, of which the deceased was a beloved member. Also a beautiful spray from the Ladies' Aid of Trinity Methodist Church of Peterboro, of which Mrs. Lyle was president for three years. The flowers were beautiful and so appropriate as they departed was one of the greatest lovers of flowers it was the privilege of the writer to know. She leaves to mourn her loss, her sorrowing husband, three sons and three daughters—Mr. F. Dunk, of Chicago, Ill.; Mr. F. J. Dunk, of Wawanassa, Man.; and Thomas G. Dunk at home. The daughters are Mrs. W. B. Fogg, Harrisburg, Ill.; Mrs. M. W. Lyle, Peterboro, and Mrs. V. B. Chaplain, Trent River. She is also survived by one brother, Mr. James Thomson of Campbellford. Interment took place at Zion cemetery. The deceased will be missed by the church, the Ladies' Aid, the community and so much by her home and loved ones. The bereaved family have the sympathy of their host of friends.—Campbellford Herald.

individuals whom they suspected of carrying wet goods left the train, evidently having noticed that the inspectors were on board. Figuring that the alleged bootleggers would wait for a later train, Messrs. Taber and Sykes met the International Limited on its arrival and succeeded in recovering the consignment. The seizures comprised nine gallons of high wines and 12 bottles of whiskey, it being in four large club bags. No arrests were made. The liquors seized by the inspectors would retail in Ontario for a sum in the neighborhood of $1,500.

Contends Boy Was Influenced

Into 'Criminal Course'—Tanner Remanded

Cecil Tanner, of Toronto, appeared before Judge Deroche this morning and pleaded guilty on charges of robbing Tom Deep at the Royal Cafe, Belleville, and another Chinaman at his laundry in Campbellford. He was remanded for sentence until Dec. 5th at 11 a.m. His alleged pal, Joseph Thomas Brown comes up before the judge tomorrow.

Mr. Butler, on behalf of Tanner said he was born on Nov. 13, 1903 in Nova Scotia. His father was drowned at sea. The mother married again and her second husband was killed in the explosion at Halifax two years ago. Cecil was hurt in the head in the disaster. The family moved to Toronto last May. There was no record in Halifax courts of the boy. The probation officer in Toronto reported no records against Tanner. It was alleged he was under the influence of "Shorty," his pal.

Tanner's mother, Mrs. Simpson, testified that Cecil had been very contented at home until he began to chum around with "Shorty." Then she found marks in the house and one day discovered "Shorty" dressing Cecil up as a burglar. She communicated directly with the "Neighborhood Workers," who notified the police of the youth's alleged influence over the boy.

Crown Attorney Carney prosecuted.

Death of Mrs. E. T. Williams

A son predeceased her a few years before. Mrs. Williams, whose maiden name was Fannie Currie, was a former teacher. She was held in high esteem for her many fine qualities of heart and mind.

Passed Away in Winnipeg

Mrs. J. E. Thompson, Nee May Price, Died of Pneumonia.

Mrs. John E. Thompson, nee May Price, passed away this morning in Winnipeg after a very short illness. Such was the sudden telegram which reached Mr. David Price today, announcing the death of his daughter. Not until this morning did he know that she was ill, as a letter announced that she was suffering from a slight attack of pneumonia. The telegram arrived later. The funeral takes place tomorrow.

The deepest sympathy is offered to Mr. Price and family in their great sorrow. Not long ago Mrs. Price passed away after a long illness.

Your Body Its Own Doctor

HOW GOOD MOBILIZES ITS OWN DEFENCE.

When Attacked By Disease The Body Begins To Manufacture a Cure.

Every soldier, sailor, and ex-service man is familiar with the operation of inoculation. But what really is this process of inoculation which is attended by such magical results?

The dictionary tells us that inoculation is "the communication of a disease by the insertion of infectious matter into the system." To a certain extent this is true, the newest method of preventive medicine being founded on the sound principle of setting a thief to catch a thief. But the essential principle of inoculation as understood today is the raising of the resisting powers of the blood against disease germs.

It must be borne in mind that the healthy blood of a perfectly fit human nature is of the nature of an all powerful and living germicide, competent to deal with and finally destroy the germs of any disease that may have invaded it. Microbes, that are invisible to naked eyes, are constantly about us. We can no more escape their pressing attentions than we can dodge the pressure of the atmosphere.

Our blood, then, while healthy, maintains a constant vigil on the ever-threatening microscopic army awaiting a chance to invade our bodies. The moment a few disease germs manage to effect an entry, be it through the lungs or swallowed with food or drink, or implanted by a sting, a pin-prick, a rusty nail, a bite or any other wound, the wonderful intelligence department of the body signals the news through the nervous system to headquarters.

Mobilization of all the complex defensive forces of the blood takes place at once. The white cells of the blood mass in their millions at the point of danger, giving the invaders an exceedingly warm reception. These white cells are the effective fighting units of the defensive force, the better known red force cells forming the transport and commissariat service. Their particular job is to fall upon, gobble up, and gently digest and annihilate the enemy individually and collectively; and this they do effectively so long as their number is equal to the task.

Why You Should Take Exercise. The white cells are, however, enormously helped in their fight by the use of a special kind of "munition" analogous to poison gas, used in a liquid form as a spray, to which the most malignant of the enemy germs must finally succumb. This anti-toxin (or counter-poison) is always produced automatically by healthy blood immediately it is attacked by disease germs.

When attacked by disease, the body at once begins to manufacture, and cure itself by its own medicine. That is why every infectious disease, if it does not kill the patient, automatically comes to an end. Were it not a fact that every infective disease stimulates the production in the body of its own antidote, which finally kills the original disease, there is no particular reason why measles or mumps or influenza, or any other catching "complaint," should not continue for years.

The modern treatment of tubercle by the injection or inoculation of tuberculin is founded on this principle of arousing the blood to the formation of the necessary antidote, which in course of time, provided the conditions are favorable, puts an end to the original disease—tubercular consumption.

Auto-inoculation or self-inoculation may also be produced in consumptives by a system of graduated exercises, which arouse the resisting powers of the body by raising what is called by scientists the "opposite index" of the blood. This opposite index is a measure of the rapidity with which the white cells eat any given germs in the blood. The name is formed from the Greek word 'opson' which means a sauce, or seasoning, or anything that makes the morsel more tempting. These sauces are manufactured and used by the blood to make the disease germs so tempting to the white blood cells that the former devour them with a relish that makes the cells greedy for more!

Exercises graduated according to the condition of the tubercular patient also act curatively by greatly improving the appetite, with resulting stimulation of digestion, absorption and distribution throughout the system of food elements.

It's easier to begin at the top and slide down than it is to begin at the bottom and crawl up.
