Value of Springer Estate Increased by Millions Again.

Newburyport, Mass., March 6.-There will soon be formed an association of members of the Springer family who are claimants to $80,000,000 worth of pro perty now held by the city of Wilming-ton, Del., and to estates and cash in Sweden to the value of $40,000,000. These are ninetyfive claimants, many of them New England people.

Among the Springer claimants, a score like this alleged one have talked of for the past forty years. Every time the subject is mentioned a few miltime the subject is mentioned a few million dollars are tacked on to the value of the estate. One of the Hamilton claimants, a lawyer, who investigated the claim long ago, offered to sell out his interest for five dollars.

IRISH NIGHT.

Victoria Avenue Baptists Had a Good One.

The regular meeting of Victoria Ave nue Literary Society was held night in the school room, Mr. J. Peebles presiding. A very enjoyable Irish programme was contributed by several of the members which consisted of the following numbers: Comic Irish recitation, L. Hartley; selections by the orchestra; solo, "Dear Little Shamrock chestra; solo, "Dear Little Shamrock of Ireland," A. S. Newlands; solo, Mr. Ayliffe. Rev. S. B. Russell, Erskine Church, gave a very interesting talk on Ireland, which was appreciated very on Ireland, which was appreciated very much by the society, and a vote of thanks was tendered him. The business of the evening consisted of accepting a challenge of the Young Men's Club of Wentworth Baptist Church to debate on the question of "Municipal vs. Private Ownership." It was also de-cided to hold an oratorical contest on cided to hold an oratorical contest on April 1st. Mr. Peebles called the attention of the members to the fact that they were to remember that they had a representative on the list of speakers at the Canadian Club oratorical contest, which will be held in Association Hall in a few weeks, and that he desired them to turn out in a crowd.

Young Woman, Partly Dressed in Man's Attire, Deliberately Committed Suicide at Early Hour This Morning.

Plunging two a hundred feet; dropping from the High Level bridge to a thin sheet of ice on the Desjardins cland, an unknown young foreign woman came to her death this morning a few minutes after 8 o'clock. She was seen to take her last plunge by two poople, both of whom were compelled to watch, but were too far away to do anything to stop her. The woman swooped down from the dizzy height with such force that the ice was smashed and water was splattered for yards around where the body fell. Getting her out alive three men, who were nearby, worked hard to save her life but she died before the arrival of the police who were hurriedly summoned.

SMITH'S CONDITION QUITE FAVORABLE

Hopes Are Now Entertained That Thursday Night's Shooting Will Not be a Murder.

Thursday night at E. W. Kappele's ome, Ray street, has a fair chance for recovery. At 12.30 this afternoon the City Hospital authorities declared his condition to be quite favorable.

CAUSED CONSTERNATION THERE.

There was considerable excitement among the Sisters and scholars at the Loretto Convent yesterday, due largely to the fact that Constable Smith and a citizen had been shot near the grounds of the institute the previous night. There was really no cause for the commotion, however, which came about in this way: Some days ago the young lady students held a masquerade party, and reuted costumes from a down-town dealer. When the costumes were returned a soilsary because of the deplorable fact that there are no X-ray appliances at the City Hospital. Dr. Cummings is radiographer of the hospital. The X-ray disclosed very clearly the bullet, split in two, one piece lodged under the skin just near the right ear, and the other, and smaller piece in the brain at the back of the head.

Smith was then returned to the hospital and the operation was performed by Dr. Cummings, assisted by Dr. Bingham, the family physician, and other city doctors and members of the hospital house staff. The removal of the larger piece from beneath the scalp was an easy matter. The bullet had struck the bone, near the temple in a glancing position, and had been divided on the bone. The smaller piece penetrated the skull and followed the inside of the skull around to the back of the head. It had not entered the brain deeply at any point. The piece was successfully removed, and what seemed to be perfect drainage of the would was established.

The change of sur-roundings, as was expected, has bene-fitted the members of the Kinrade faming country, is if anything, more tense now than the afternoon the details of the shocking tragedy were first given to the public.

The presence in the city yesterday afternoon of Provincial Detective William Greer and another stranger, said to be a Pinkerton detective, gave rise to a report that the police were about to take some action and that developments would begin to-day. As matter of Detectives Taking Photos To-day.

The Kinrade murder mystery, which has captured public interest as no other crime has dene since the celebrated Birchall-Benwell case, near Woodstock, twenty years ago, will be more than a nine days wonder. It is just nine days ago since Ethel Kinrade, the daughter of a wealthy and prominent citizen, because the composure by the case declare that little or no progress has been made. They are still busy threshing out clues, but have as yet discovered nothing that justifies a statement that there will be any developments before the inquest. The police are hopeful that some light may be thrown on the mystery then. There Miss Kinrade was present when Mr. Wright made this statement to a To-Wright made router route reporter:

Westmount survey on the market, this combined with his Beulah survey, give a range of prices of $5 to $20 per foot. The Beulah survey has already stamped itself as a desirable residential district, from the fact of the class and number of homes built upon it. Considering that all city improvements have been placed upon Beulah survey and paid for by Mr. Flatt, that survey should appeal to any one intending to build in the immediate future. Westmount survey is most attractive as an investment at present. In order that one may fully understand and appreciate the location of these surveys, call at Mr. Flatt's office, Room 15, Federal Life building, and get plans of a range of prices of $5 to $20 per foot Federal Life building, and get plans of them, and take a stroll at leisure and them, and take a stroll at leasure and one will observe that building lots on these surveys are destined to bring a high price. The district is most popular for good residences, because of the restrictions on the class of homes to be constructed. These will keep it for all time to come as such. Its natural beauty cannot be excelled. The further fact that it will be many, many years before desirable dwellings will be built west of Westmount survey will also be noted, as there is not a large amount of land available for building purposes in this favored district. Within a few years frontage from Bay street to Garth street and Aberdeen avenue, south to the mountain, have increased $5 to $20 per foot. With the average growth there should be very few lots left vacant in five years' time in the district mentioned. one will observe that building lots on

"Yes, to-night. I should have done so before, but did not think of it. I have thought of nothing but Zenobia since the night I saw her, Forsyth."

"I am aware of that," dryly, "and of course you will give your father every particular. By the way, pardon me if I seem inquisitive, but you must remember that I am, so to speak, a sort of bear-leader to your honorable self:

"That she has a mother, I know, because I have seen her. Has she a father alive? Where did they come from? What is their family? Who are they, in short?"

"I do not know," said Lord Neville: "do not care. It is enough for me that love her, and that she deigns to love me."

"Just so; but will that be enough for Lord Fiaz-Harwood?" said Mr. Forsyth, dryly—"for the countess, your mother? They will, I think you will admit not unreasonably, demand to know something of the antecedents of the young lady whom you intend to make their daughter-in-haw. For instance, what nationable does she belong to?"

"I den't know," said Lord Neville. "To me, she is an angel!"

"Ah," breathed Mr. Forsyth, lighting list cigar and smiling ironically. "Don't be offended, Neville—or, rather, fly into a passion if you like: I don't care. Lord Neville smiled calmly. 4 "You are judging Zenobia by the nar-row standard which rules the life of English girle," he said. "She is not Eng-

Mr. Borsyth sarkled grimly.

No, she certainly is not inconveniently trammeled by rules of propriety."

Lord Neville sprung to his feet, his eyes allame: but Mr. Forsyth looked at him calmly, and laid a hand on his shoulder.

"Neville," he said, and there was an accent of pain in his voice, "at present, you are not in a fit state to argue, or to apprehend an argument. You are, you are not in a fit state to argue, or to apprehend an argument. You are, my dear boy, as mad as a March hare. But—but!—but!—bo is in love with Zenobia, as you call her, and to make her Viscountess Zenobia are two different things."

"They are one and the same to me!" said Lord Neville, steadily. "That she has promised to be my wife I count the happiest circumstance of my life."

"Have no fear, Forsyth; I would not do anything that I should be ashamed to deceive my people. I will write to-night."

He wrote; a will drapsody. He spoke of her beauty, of her sweetness, of her intellect; he said that she was an angel and a goddess; but he didn't tell them who her father was, or where she came from, because he didn't know himself.

The letter went on its way, and while to the property of the father way and while to the property of the father way and while to the property of the father way.

She came and stood beside bim, so mear that the sleeves of her dress touched his hand.

"Are you not going also?" she asked, her eyes not looking down into his ling eringly.

He paused a moment, then he beid out his hands toward her, pleadingly, prayerfully.

"Zenobia!" he said, with a long breath. "Do not send me away untill have told you what my heart cannot keep bidden any longer. Zenobia! I love you!"

She looked at him, and her lips parted with a soft breath.

"You love me?" she murmured.

"Yes, yes, yes," he said. "I love you!"

She hooked at him, and her lips parted with a soft breath.

"You love me?" she murmured.

"Yes, yes, yes," he said. "I love you!"

She hesitated, and he saw her turn pale, then she held out her hands to him with a yielding gesture.

"Yes, I love you," she murmured.

"And I will be your wife."

Like a man indeed intoxicated Lord Neville reached the hotel. Her kissess were burning on his lips; her hands still seemed to touch caressingly his rippling hair. Before him the vision of he beauty floated in place of the bright lake and dusty quay. With a sigh of extatic joy he sunk onto the couch, and in answer to Mr. Forsyth, "Well, Neville," he just managed to falter out "Neville," he just managed to falter out "Yes, said Lord Neville, sitting now pale and rapt in a kind of dream, and looked at him with a troubled stare. Not a word passed Lord Neville's lips until they reached the hotel and Mr. Forsyth had locked the door upon them, then, raising his handsome face, all livid and drawn just as a face becomes when the Roman fever seizes him, he looked at Forsyth with piercing eyes, and muttered with a parched tongue that clove to the roof of his mouth.

DAY TO KILL RATS.

Bill Before Indiana Legislature Provides For an Annual Slaughter.

New York, March 5 .- A despatch to The Times from Indianapolis tells that a bill has been brought before the State Legislature setting aside one day each year for the wholesale slaughter of rats. By careful mathematical calcula-tion the State authorities have figured that it costs 50 cents a year to board and feed a rat, so the father of the bill to pay a bounty for each rat killed, and that in addition the farmers, by preventing future destruction of corn and other grain, will save more than year's taxes by killing the rats.

CANADA'S INDIANS.

To Canada's credit it can fairly be said that her treatment of her Indian population has, generally speaking, been ch as to compare favorably with that of her neighbors to the south. The In dian Department of the Government costs a great deal of money, but most of it is spent in taking care of, feeding and educating the aborigines. . It is in teresting to note that Ontario and British Columbia report many more Indians under the care of the Government than there are in the prairie country. According to the Government report, the on March 31 of this year were:

Ontario	23.518
Quebec	11,469
Nova Scotia	2,129
New Brunswick	1.861
P. E. Island	276
British Columbia	24,964
Manitoba	8,595
Saskatchewan	7.490
Alberta	5,529
Territories, in treaty limits	4,212
Territories, outside treaty limits	16,845
Yukon

In the last year there has been a decrease of 140, caused by the migration of 100 to the United States, and a loss of 40 by excess of deaths over births, the most of the latter loss being sustain ed in Artario and British Columbia. Tuberculosis continues to prove very fatal to the aborigines, about 40 per cent, of the deaths being attributed to it. Their mode of life makes them pecu liarly susceptible to smallpox, scarlet fever, diphtheria, grip, etc.

feeding and clothing the Indians, $1. 277,000. Efforts are being made to improve their capacity for self-support, and 85,000 have been placed where they can engage in agriculture. These produced last year 1,335,000 bushels of grain and roots, and 118,000 tons of hay, about $15 a head. This average is small. They own, in addition, an ever increas number of cattle, and they are cred ited with earning as hire $1,660,211, besides the avails of fishing and hunting.

The Indian problem of the future is w to induce the aborigines to adapt themselves to the conditions brought about by the more general setil-ment of the country. The old manner changeth. Can they be fitted into the te conditions? In what branch of industry can they engage which will afford them suitable means of earning a livelihood! And what will be the effect upon them as a people of giving up the wild life of forest and plains?

"DEGRADING" WIFE BEATERS.

It is interesting to note the views expressed in 1856 on the subject of flogging as the punishment for wife-beating and brutal assaults on women and children. The bill introduced then in the British Commons, by Mr. Dillwyn, was the subject of much discussion, and perhaps one of the best contributions to the symposium was the article in the North British Review (Vol. 49, p. 124 et seq.), in which the entire subject was ably discussed from every point of view. Hon. Mr. Aylesworth's objection to the application of the lash, and the attacks, somewhat tinctured by partizanship, upon him for his stand, make the points of the Review article very timely. We quote:

mely. We quote:

Even a "nagging" woman is not to be knocked down and trampled upon, or thrown out of the window upon the cruel pavement. There is a limit to the efficacy of the plea of provosation. But we doubt whether there there are to the day! ought to be any limit to our compassion.

* * It is always difficult to so regulate the punishment that the suffering shall descend only on the criminal. In the greater number of outpages on women it is almost impossible * * If a man, with a wife and several young children relying on his carnings, bad as he is, for their support, is sent to prison for six months, what is to become of his family during that interval of time? * * There related to the source of the same that the whole-souled Socialist wants.

Of course people will not be severe on the officer who "wings" an armed burder. The danger is, however, that an ring that interval of time? * * * There can be nothing for these helpless one but the workhouse. And in what state of mind, is a man, after months of imprisonment and hard lawhich he has been sentenced strength of his wife's evidence against him, likely to return to his family? The same old scenes of by this type has learnt that she had better suffer, meckly and uncomplain-ingly, resisting every temptation to betake herself and her wrongs to the police office. The last state of that wo-man, therefore, is worse than, the police office. The last state than the farst, and punishment only begets impunity in wrong-doing.

physical punishment would prove a de- power, he can afford to use the whip to terrent to the drink-sodden and brutal- make the former straighten the whiffle ized, or whether they would not abuse tree now, trusting to their docility by the punitive lash fell on them; and questioning if the wives would be likely to bring charges and incur the od- Laurier's policy of regulation and conhusbands lashed, the writer concludes that there is a pro as well as a con to the case, and that "the whole question of the punishment of crimes is. perhaps, the most difficult in the world." But on a few points he is clear:

Punishment for crime there must be, whether it deters or not from the commission of it. The more nearly the treflects the crime the better. Now, this offence being of a violent, sanguinary and disgraceful character, it seems meet and right that the punishment should be violent, sanguinary and disgraceful too. We confess that we have not the lively horror of corporal punishment, in any shape. poral punishment, in any shape, which agitates the breasts of many very excellent people. * * We are not much concerned at the thought key votes as good as three temperance people that they only "pretend" to be dissatisfied because that such punishments are "degrading." Degrading! Was ever punishment invented yet that was not, and was not intended to be degrading? Surely it is not the object of punishment to elevate men either in their own opinion or the opinion of their fellows. All crime is degrading, and all punishment is degrading. The crime of woman-beating is especially degrading: and the punishment of woman-beating ought to be especially degrading. Some may say that it is impossible to degrade the ruffian who turns the brute strength which God has given him to the vilest uses — who maims and mutilates his wretched helpmate before his children's eyes, and leaves her a sense less heap on the floor of his room while he goes forth to spend his earnings on drink. But admitting that even in the lowest depths of such ruffianism there is a lower deep what then? Does he think worse of him? If beating he retained his self-respect is a castigated hound he should lose it.—if, as a vile bully, he was respected by his fellows, it is well that as a catigated hound he should lose it.—if, as a vile bully, he was respected by his fellows, it is well that as a catigated hound he should lose it.—if, as a vile bully, he was respected by his fellows, it is well that as a catigated hound he should lose it.—if, as a vile bully, he was respected by his fellows, it is well that as a catigated hound he should lose it.—if, as a vile bully, he was respected by his fellows, it is well that as a catigated hound he should lose it.—if, as a vile bully, he was respected by his fellows, it is well that as a catigated hound he should lose it. Self-respect is not a luxury to be enjoyed by men of that stamp. When Self-respect is not a luxury to be enjoyed by men of that stamp. When joyed by men of that stamp. When we speak of our unwillingness to "degrade" such people, we can mean nothing but own unwillingness to disturb their delusion, that it is not crime, but its punishment, that degrades them. Is it so very desirable that these ruffians should continue to consider themselves exceedingly fine and heroic characters? Or might it and heroic characters? Or might it not be desirable, on the other hand, that they should open their eyes some day to the uncomfortable fact that the darkened mind and hardened con-science of the wife-beater, it will ren-der an immense service, both to him and to the world. If a man is a brute, the next best thing to making him cease to be one, is to teach him what he really.

cease to be he really is. The one doubt in the mind of the Reviewer was of the efficacy of the cure, and whether it would not operate to deter wives from complaining, and subjecting the brutal husbands to the lash He had none of the mushy, sickening sentimental objections to making the brutes who beat women feel pain. Why should be have had? Why should any one have to-day? We have not the least doubt that were brutal assaults on women punished by a severe flogging-

A woman can't help being a woman, no more than a man can help being a fool. If the suffrage women win the day it won't make much difference, politically. The housewives will vote as their husbands tell them to, most likely; although I feel certain the women's presence in the political arena would purity politics greatly, there would be less red tape, bribery and grafting. That is worth a consideration. Take for example the late Queen Victoria, under whose sway the greatest empire came to do homage and serve. Tuesday afternoon mention was made of a resolution that might be introduced at some future time, asking for incorporation as a municipality. In this case, the amount of taxes now paid by the company to the township would be used in improving the park's highways and grounds. The company have a fair waterworks system and several years ago had an electric lighting system. During the past couple of years this has been done away with, and the Cataract Power Co. have had the contract for lighting the grounds and a number of the cottages. There is good reason to believe that the scheme would work out well, as the majority of the cottages are owned by private individuals, who remain at the park from May to September.

POORHOUSE.

Warden Gage Makes Vigorous Defence of the County.

Sir,-With your permission I would like to say a few words on the above question. It is an understood fact that all are innocent until proven guilty, and it is a very strange and uncommon of currence for a judge and jury to pass sentence until both sides have been given a hearing.

In an article appearing in our city journals, disgrace and ridicule are heaped on the County of Wentworth for not looking after and caring for their poor and unfortunate. If the county were not taking care of their poor, and the unfortunates in the jail belonged to the county, it would be altogether a different thing, but it is a question whether any of them do, In December of 1908, when this question had given the Grand Jurors so much anxiety, Sheriff Middleton was asked for the names of the unfortunates in the city jail, with proof that they belonged to the county, and in answer to this question said he was not prepared or could not say definitely whether one or any of these confined in the jail belonged to the county. He was told by several of the reeves of the different townships that if any of the unfectunates in the jail belonged to their municipality to send them word, and they would see they were cared for. The writer also told him if he would bring proof that these people referred to belong to the county they would be properly cared for, but up to the present time the goods have not been delivered, which is conclusive evidence, in my mind, that these unfortunates de not belong to the county. I have letters in my possession and am prepared to prove that the greater part of unfortunate people placed in the city jail to-day are not from the County of Wentworth.

As to caring for the county poor, I can prove that the poor of the County of Wentworth. en a hearing.

In an article appearing in our city

As to earing for the county poor, I can prove that the poor of the County of Wentworth are well cared for in institutions in our county, and for whom

The insinuations cast upon the County Councillors as to the reason a House of Refuge is not built is absolutely untrue. There is not a County Councillor or an elector in the County of Wentworth who would shirk his duty and responsibility in carring for the unfortunates for the sake of the paltry increase in the county rate. It is not the building of the county poor house the councillors object to, but it is the principle that this is brought about, under the cloak of assisting the poor, instead of for other purposes. You would think the doctor, in diagnosing the case, would be in favor of removing the cause and remedying the evil, which could be done by furnishing employment to the unemployed, and ing employment to the unemployed, and the opportunities for doing this are nu-nerous; the lack of employment being the principal cause of filling the jails the principal cause of filling the jails and causing pauperism. In my experience I find very few people object to maintaining their aged and infirm, if they have the means to do so, which they have not when there is no market in which to dispose of their labor. In place of creeting expensive and elaborate buildings in which to maintain the poor, we were to spend the money in the development of our national resources thereby furnishing employment, we would, to a great extent, remove the question of caring or providing for unfortunates in such institutions as these spoken of.

Novel Watch for Blind.

Novel Watch for Blind.

To enable the blind to tell the time by a specially constructed watch various devices have been invented. The latest, of German origin, is a watch which instead of the twelve figures on its face has twelve knobs. By an ingenious mechanism each knob in succession sinks for an hour into the dial. The usual watch ring being at the XII., the blind person feels along the face of the watch until he comes to the space where the knob has disappeared. This indicates the hour. The ordinary minute hand is represented by a shorter and stronger indicator which is raised so as to clear the hour knobs, and by which the minutes can be told, or rather felt, with surprising exactitude.

SUGAR TRUST'S SCALES Arranged to Defraud the United States Government. Birthday Party.

New York, March 5.— A verdict awarding the United States Government $134,116 damages in unpaid customs duties from the American Sugar Refining Company was rendered to-day by a jury which heard charges of mis-weighing sugar imports.

The verdict rendered was for the full amount sued for by the Government, on the contention that this sum was due through underweighing by the Scentre Council, No. 187, R. T. of T. ield an open meeting in the shape of a birthday party, on Thursday evening. There was a good attendance and the following programme was much enjoywas due through underweighing by the company's employees of sugar imports on the company's Brooklyn docks. LAMP FLASH KILLS 1.000 Whole Fleet of Flower Boats Burned at Hong Kong Harbor.

Victoria, B. C. March 5 - A disaste on the Canton River, costing the loss of more than 1,000 lives, followed the over-turning of a kerosene lamp on a flower toat while the steamer Akima, which reached port last night, was at Hong Kong.

The boat burned to the water's edge, the flames reaching the other boats and permitting no one to escape, owing to flower boats lying along in an unbroken line, made fast by iron chains.

TARREST STREET, STREET 0000 ***************** To Expand the Chest. To Appear Young A charming lady once said, "To remain always young one must be always amiable."

A melancholy face, a sullen, an evil look, is like coming in contact with winter; whereas a serene face, a gradous air, a kind and good expression, is like a spring day, and a smile on the lips like its sunshine.

Sulky people, you may have remarked, always appear to be ten years older lian they really are. The face grows wrinkled from contracting the brows; the mouth projects disagreeably when sulking. Backward Movement to Straighten Shoulders. To Strengthen the Back.

good figure any more than Alexander was able to find a royal road to learning. To exercise must the woman turn, and while she may drug herself as she sees fit, in the end it is exercise that will help her to attain her heart's desire. Many women have great difficulty in realizing this. I have heard them say: "Of course, I do not walk at all, but then I do not eat many sweets, yet you see how fat I am." Poor women! They find it hard to believe that they cannot be sylphs unless they take the trouble to be; that if they are unwilling to spend a little time exercising they cannot attempt to hope for the slim figure required by the present mode.

Today I ewant to show you a few exercises that you may take with great benefit and the and the and the present may a the poly annihim the great benefit and the call and the say the annihimes the your may take with great benefit and the call and the say the annihimes the your may take with great benefit and the call and the call

Today I awant to show you a few exercises that you may take with great benefit, and the only appliance that you need will be a piece of elastic about an inch in width, fastened at either end into loops large enough for your hands.
Of course, if you are wise you will wear your gymnasium sult or some unconfined gown that will allow each muscle in such expensive apparatus. It is said that disease cannot attack the man who breathes deeply, whose en-tire lungs are in use. Did you know that the average person uses on ordi-nary occasions but half the depth of his lungs? Of course, if a sudden strain comes, when he requires all his breath, he realizes how very unaccustomed the necessary organs are to being called

The first exercise, then, with the elastic Is to teach the lungs to breathe deeply. Hold the elastic over the head with arms stretched up, then stretch them outward as far as the elastic will reach, deep breath. Do not perform the motions hurriedly. Get the full good of each. This not only develops the lung capacity, but it does much toward lengthening the walst.

The next exercise develops the chest and the lungs too. Stretch the elastic across the chest with arms extended outward. Take a long breath and bend the arms slowly backward while you inhale, then bring the arms back to the first position and take a new breath. This will expand the chest and teach you the blessings of free breathing.

To strengthen the back, let the elastic extend across the shoulders at the back and shoulders are tired.

Then, holding one end of the elastic at the left side, let it cross the back diagonally to the right hand, extended upward. The exercise consists in bringing this right hand back to the shoulder

As a last exercise, hold one end of the elastic firmly at the right shoulder in front and, with the other end held in the left hand, throw the right hand outward and bring it slowly back into place on the shoulder. Repeat this five times, and then reverse the position of the hands. This exercise develops arms and heat.

GOOD BREEDING-WHAT IS IT?

HAT is good breeding? This seems to be the all-important question to the socially mibitious, the problem over which they struggle when they do not receive an invitation that they desire and find themselves slighted by some new-found acquaintance. What is good breeding? Can it be a some new-found acquaintance. What is good breeding? Can it be acquired? Is it really important? How does one recognize it?

Is that not a number of questions about something that is so fanciful it cannot be drawn by the artist and cannot be even accurately described by the most facile writer?

Good breeding may be acquired. I think, although many people say that it cannot. It is true that if one starts to learn all the intricacles of this indefinable essential, there may be occasions when there will be some doubt about the hest course to pursue. But on all ordinary coasions a complete understanding of the meaning of the term will be sufficient to carry you through. I will try to tell you of a few incidents that will give you some definite idea of what breeding really means. Let me say first that it is composed of many virtues, and that no one or two will answer for the whole. Almost every one possesses two or even three of the essential qualities, but all are necessary to make up "breeding."

In the first place there is "considerabut all are necessary.

"breeding."

In the first place there is "consideration." This is, perhaps, the most important, for it is the ingredient of which all the rest are mere accessories. Then there is generosity, hospitality, self-control and gentieness. These are the abstract virtues, but besides one needs a sect connected or doing, saying and being the right time, no matter how or when.

One time I visited a certain family where none of the essentials of comfort were provided. No one mentioned them. By comforts I mean the usual ordinary necessities: towels, soap and such intimate details. If I asked for anything an abject applogy was made and the article was ungrudgingly produced; yet all the time I reit as though I had been forgotten, that my hostess had no feelforgotten, that my hostess had no feelforgotten, that my hostess had no feeling of either consideration or hospitality. That was a question of breeding on the part of the hostess, and yet it was so small a thing that even though I have told you the details I am not at all convinced that you understand exactly wherein she fell short. It was not so much lack of consideration, it was not in her, apology, but somehow I was made to feel she had not considered me of sufficient account to trouble over. Yet had she met me at the open door with open arms and protested too earn-with open arms and protested too earn-with open arms and protested too earn-Yet had she met me at the open door with open arms and protested too earnestly about the accommodations she would have been liable to just the same criticism, although this time it would have been laid at the door of inexperience and lack of self-control.

TWO ILLUSTRATIONS

Another instance. A young girl-we shall call her Mary-went to the house shall call her Mary-went to the house of a friend of hers (Nellie), that they both might go to an afternoon tea together. Mary wore a street gown, although of rather dressy style, while Nelle was going to receive at the entertainment, and was, therefore, gowned in some light frock. When the time approached for the girls to go to the house where the entertainment was to be held a rainstorm came up, and Nellie's mother telephoned for a carriage. When it artelephoned for a carriage. When it arrived she said to Mary: "I am very rived she said to Mary: "I am very sorry, but I cannot ask you to drive to the tea with Nellie. Her frock might be poor breeding that needs a little explanation. Mary was in Neille's house at the moment, and, therefore, her mother violated all laws of hospitality. She did not offer to allow Mary to use the carriage, and she not only behaved in so rude a way to a guest in her house, but she gave a very foolish excuse for her girls. If her natural thought was so ungenerous as to wish her daughter to drive in solitary state to her destination, she should have done her best to hide it from the guest. As you may see, in so little a thing she broke every law of good breeding.

One more instance. A Quakeress was entertaining a few friends one evening at her house at dinner, when one of the guests accidentally overturned one of the small lamps such as lighted the dinner table a good many years ago.
What did the Quakeress do? Here, indeed, was an opportunity which would test the inherent breeding of almost any one. Did she jump from the table and rush to the damaged lamp lamenting its fate in loud tones? Or perhaps in a half-hearted sort of way she assured her guest that it made no difference, ed her guest that it made no difference, all the time trying to see what harm had been done? Either of these would have been excusable, but not the essence of breeding. But she did neither of these; she merely looked to see that the guest was not put to any inconvenience by the accident, and then she said, laughing quietly: "Why, that is nothing: that happens almost every night." Of course, every one laughed, and by the time the debris had been cleared away the incident was forgotten by every one. Was there any virtue that goes to make up "breeding" that the Quakeress did not exercise on this trying occasion? It was an accident which found her entirely unprepared, yet I think you will agree with me that she rose to the occasion in just the right way. have been excusable, but not the essence casion in just the right way.

S. D. and A. D. The best way to become acquainted is to take letters of introduction with you. To have one or two introductions is generally quite sufficient, for these persons will introduce you to others. A letter of introduction to a clergyman will always bring many friends for you.

My Dear Mrs. Adams:

BRIDE-TO-BE. Wedding invitations are sent out in the names of the father and mother of the bride, from a fortnight to a month before the date of the ceremony.

To RETAIN your graceful form, learn how to carry yourself. If women would be more careful about this while young they would have finer figures and more slender hips when older. The woman who holds herself, straight, who does not draw her chin to the collar of her garment, who keeps back her shoulder bindes, and thus rounds out her breast, without an apparent effort keeps her muscles firm and fextible. Thus the heaviness which is flexible. Thus the heaviness which is so much dreaded, and which destroys all youthfulness and grace, may be avoided.

YEAR'S WORK

occupied the chair and Mr. Peter Bertram read his annual report, which was as follows:

Gentlemen,-At this, the third annual meeting your executive beg to report that they have continued their efforts to promote the moral welfare Resolutions in favor of the Juvenile Delinquents Act-were passed and sent to our representative passed and sent to our representative at Ottawa. A committee was appointed to join with others to interview the township council of Barton asking them not to license places of amusement near hotels. A committee was also appointed to join a deputation going before the License Commissioners to make representations regarding the number of licensed hotels in the city and the enforcement of the Liquor License Act. A special committee was formed outside the executive, comprised of doctors, teachers and laymen to consider the question of social purity, the redemption of the fallen woman, and the selection of literature suitable for popular use dealing with this subject. The assistant secretary was made secretary of this committee and has collected a good deal of literature from Britain, the United States and also from The Canadian Purity Educational Association of Toronto. The State Board of Health, of Indianna, have thought this subject of sufficient importance to issue a special pamphlet showing the great injury to the public health caused by the social evil. Your executive waited on the Ministerial Association and were pleased to have their assistance, and also that of the English and Roman Catholic clergy in a deputation that waited on the Police Commissioners, not having kept this appointment of a morality officer and better enforcement of Iaw. The Police Commissioners, not having kept this appointment, a smaller deputation waited on them later and placed the matter before them. On Nov. 19th a public meeting was held in the Board of Trade rooms and resolutions passed in favor of better enforcement of the Liquor License Act, and the act against gambling, and asking at the time for an amendment to the act against gambling, and asking at the Liquor License Act, and the act against gambling, and asking at the police magistrate in so far as he favored toleration of houses of ill-fame. A morality officer has no yet been appointed, and as the Attorney-General has called the attention of police magistrates, to the fact t

Evidence has come before your executive from time to time that convinces them that much requires to be done before our city is what we would wish it to be. We are, however, pleased to notice the greater interest that is being taken by all the churches, by the press and by the citizens generally in a better enforcement of laws and a reduction in the number of bar rooms, and trust that this interest will be kept up until the end sought is attained. Gambling is still very prevalent in the city and efforts must be continued, not only to enforce the law as it is, but to obtain an amendment of the law to make it more in accordance with the most advanced laws elsewhere in force. During the year Messrs, Yeates, Stewart and Rev. D. R. Drummond have been added to the executive. But your executive sustained a great loss through the secretary, Rev. Mr. Unsworth's removal from the city. Mr. Powis also found it necessary to resign from the executive owing to the pressure of other duties. essure of other duties. Your executive would comm on duty, and trust that his doing so will put a stop to such practice.

There is yet much to be done to educate the people to a higher standard, and we would like to be able to do more along educational lines, but are hampered in our wish for the want of means. We want a larger membership. The future of our country is assured The future of our country is assured rom a material standpoint and calls for high type of manhood and woman-tood to administer these resources. Let us then continue our efforts to make our city morally clean and healthy, thereby providing the right kind of environment for the rising generation. Your executive have held fourteen meetings during the year. These have been well attended.

Strong Plea For Moral City and Clean Environments.

W. L. Clark, of Leamington, was introduced to the meeting. He is a speaker of repute, who has studied the social problem as it relates to the youth of Canada. This address dwell targely with some facts and figures concerning the consumption of liquor and tobacco. He held that out of every thousand boys born into this world, nine hundred and ninety-nine would be perfect young men, if they were given a fair chance in their younger years. If the harder problems of life were explained to them by their fathers, they would make better and nobler men, than under the present condition of affairs, where the young boy or man has to learn by bitter experience in later years. There is no reason, outside of sin, why a man should fail in making life a success. It should be the business of every man to take some boy by the hand and lead him over the rough spots in life.

In the United States there are thir-spots in life

In the United States there are thir-In the United States there are thirteen million boys between the ages of 14 and 28 years. In Canada there are about one million of that age. In the States there are 200,000 women supporting drunken men. Should this condition exist? Decidedly not. There are 250,000 saloons in that country contributing to the ruin of the young man. It is to Canada's advantage to see that the rising generation is not inflicted with the disadvantages that exist in other countries.

Mr. Clark said there was no such word as "don't" in his vocabulary. This applied itself to any man talking to one young than himself, in regards to questions of a moral nature. It is the wrong system to use with the boy, as he will invariably want to do the very thing that one would say "don't" to. He referred to the fact that seven States of the country to the south of the border prohibit the use of cigarettes. tries.

ettes.

In speaking of the question of moral purity, the speaker said every boy should know himself thoroughly, that he might not hold mistaken ideas when he became older. The midnight of the past is over, and the speaker saw the dawn of a new morning, in which the young man will become a more responsible body in the nation.

Mr. Clark was accorded a hearty vote of thanks at the conclusion of the address.

NEW ACT INVOKED BY THE MEMBER FOR CORK.

Bravos Paid Ten Shillings to Whack Cork Men-Charge Made That United League Has Revived Molly Maguire Methods.

London, March 5 .- The first case under the new Public Meetings Act opened at Dublin to-day. It will be recalled that the act, the object of which is to protect meetings from being broken up or unreasonably interfered with by opponents, was the outcome of suffragettism. It was to-day invoked by Eugene Crean, M. P. for the southeast division of Cork, against Joseph Devlin, M. P. for West Belfast, and Mr. Johnston, secretary of the United Irish League, the complainant alleging that they were responsible for an assault he suffered in the recent Nationalist convention, when Mr. O'Brien and others were refused a hearing and an attempt was made to wreck the meeting.

Mr. Timothy Healy, M. P., counsel for Mr. Crean, said that Mr. Devlin had galvanized into life the ancient faction of under the new Public Meetings Act vanized into life the ancient faction of Molly Maguires under the title of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, and uployed that infamous organization to control the doings of public men. He quoted Cardinal Logue's recent pastoral condemning the Ancient Order of Hiber-nians. He asserted that Devlin and condemning the Ancient Order of Hibernians. He asserted that Devlin and Johnston imported bludgeon men from Belfast and instructed them not to allow any man with a Cork accent to approach the platform. Johnston had sacks containing bludgeons, one of which Healy produced in court. These bludgeons, he said, were served out to the aforesaid hirelings, cach of whom was paid ten shillings after the meeting.

Only one bludgeon man testified in support of Healy's statement. The hearing was adjourned.

Protection Battle Cry Failed to Rally Border Voters.

London, March 5. — The Border Burghs, the riding which rejected Sir Conan Doyle at the general election of 1906, to-day returned Sir John Bar-ron, Liberal, with a majority of 520. Sir John received 3,028 votes and his opponent, Mr. Halford J. Mackinder, 2,508. The Liberal majority is somewhat below that given in the general election, 681, but the loss is not great when it is remembered that the majority in 1906 was above normal, and that the Liberal candidate in to-day's content to the second of the test was an outsider, an Englishman with large mercantile interests at Leeds.

The Unionist candidate, Air. Mackinder, a well-known writer on economic and geographical subjects, was formerly a Liberal and contested Warwick as a Liberal in 1900. He has since then become converted to protection, and made that the chief issue in the campaign. on foodstuffs.

The by-election was due to the appointment as a Lord of Appeal of Sir Thomas Shaw, who had represented the riding since 1892. The net result of Scotland's little general election this week and last has been three Liberal victories—Forfarshire, West Edinburgh and Hawiek, and one Unionist victory in Central Glasgow. All these seats were carried by Liberals in 1906.

THE TRUTH VICTORIOUS.

Last of Mr. Mauro's Fine Series of Addresses.

Modernism in the Church of Rome Dealt With.

A Straight Gospel Sermon Preached Last Night.

Gospel Tabernacle was taxed to capa city yesterday afternoon when Philip Mauro, of New York, gave the fifth of his addresses on "The Truth, Living and Victorious." The attendance has grown with every meeting, and every seat was occupied yesterday. The subject for the afternoon address was "Modernism in the Church of Rome." This is a new movement Rome." This is a new movement amongst the followers of the Catholic faith that has met with great success, he said. In fact, it met with such success that Pope Pius became alarmed, and had a letter universally circulated condemning and exposing this modern religion. This religion has gained such a hold, however, that its ministers did not hesitate to circulate a pamphlet with the teachings of the religion in it, and the letter of the Pope as an appendix.

that ideals which govern the activities of the world to-day are Christian in substance. The pretended bases of faith have proved themselves rotten beyond cure. The modernists describe their movement as an attempt to transfer the rational defence of faith from the "tottering basis" on which it has heretofore rested to a more secure foundation. Dr. Charles Briggs, the illustrious critic, well known for his Catholic tendencies, says: "We modernists cannot in conscience withdraw ourselves from the light of truth and put ourselves in harsh opposition to science and its leaders."

Speaking of the Bible, the modernists say: "As the words are not directly from God, so neither are the ideas, since they often clash one with another. The whole book, words and ideas alike, is the work of man without thereby ceasing to be wholly, as to both words and ideas, a distinction which we can set aside as unknown to antiquity, the work of God."

set aside as unknown to antiquity, the vork of God. The modernists speak of the words work of God."

The modernists speak of the words which the evangelist John put into the mouth of John the Baptist. "Paul had a very complicated and artificial theology of his own." Consequently when he said he received his doctrine directly from the risen Lord he lied.

Speaking of the aspirations, ideals and language of the modern world, they say that they have set to work to master that language, to grasp those ideals to complete the reconciliation of the old Catholic tradition with the new thought and the new social aspirations. Through living and net merely local contact with the world in which we dwell we have come to dream of a great unification. We have girt ourselves for the task of bringing the religious experience of Christianity into line with the data of contemporary science and philosophy, and of emphasizing the religious and Christian elements that go to the constitution of the democratic movement.

They speak of contemporary civilization, saturated with the scientific spirit and eager with democratic aspirations, and of the inevitable ascendancy of the democracy.

This is where it is all to end. Which.

and of the inevitable ascendancy of the democracy.

This is where it is all to end. Whichever of the movements of the day we may follow it brings us at the end to the exaltation of a consolidated humanity to the supreme place. Humanism or democracy has nothing to offer to the individual. It is a unification, a consolidation. God is the God of the individual, the God of the follows:

St. Petersburg, March 5. — Probably the oldest soldier in the world, andrei Nikolaievitch Schmidt, who is aged 120 and fought in the Rusch of the purpose of this movement and its formidable character can best blearned by reference to the universal letter which the present occupant of the Papal chair has written against. His remarkable document occupies over one hundred closely printed pages. A few of the best arguments follow:

Though the newspapers here have heard nothing of it, Schmidt was granted a private audience of the Car. Schmidt was extremely proud, and despite his immense age he binself with martial air.

in the number of the enemies of the cross of Christ, who, by acts entirely new and full of deecit, are striving to destroy the vital energy of the church. He speaks of those who assail all that is most sacred in the work of Christ, not sparing even the person of the Divine Redeemer, who, with sacrilegious audactive, they degrade to the condition of a simple and ordinary man. Their method is to put themselves into the position and person of Christ, and then to attribute to Him what they would have done in like circumstances. They proclaim that Christ was not God and never did anything divine, and that, as man, He did and said only what they, judging from the time in which He lived, consider that He ought to have said and done.

Orillia, Ont., March 5.—John Butthat He ought to have said and done are ready to admit, even to pro that Christ Himself manifestly claim, that Christ Himself manifestly erred in determining the time when the kingdom of God was to take place. And new with our eyes fixed on the whole system, no one will be surprised that we should define is as the synthesis of all heresies. Their system means the destruction not of the Catholic religion alone, but of all religion.

This, as will readily be seen, is the fundamental principle of New Theology, and is also claimed to be the essence of atheistic socialism. We have then a platform upon which new theology and

When the Pope of Rome takes such a drastic action as the writing of such a letter, it is evident that the Modern Catholicism has gained a great hold and that he is somewhat alarmed.

In the evening Mr. Mauro gave the last address of the series before an audience that literally packed the church. Mr. Mauro has met with great success during his stay here, and his addresses have provided subjects for thought by every Christian man and woman. He departed from his previous course of pointing out the evils and untruths of some of the modern religions and preached a straight gospel sermon last night. "I have found," he said, "that there are many remarkable things in the Bible. It loses nothing by repetition. It appeals to different men in different ways. It appeals to many for its tremendous facts of divine wisdom. So one can read the to different men in different ways. It appeals to many for its tremendous facts of divine wisdom. So one can read the great facts of scripture again and again and always find something new and interesting. Look at some of these facts. What do they tell us? God's word was given to every one: 'Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned.' Sin has gotten into humanity, how? The only explanation is in the scripture quoted alone. Sin entered by one man,

ETECTIVE STORIE

N Christmas Day, 1899, I was sent by my newspaper with a corps of assistants to inestigate the strange disappearance of George Eyre, of Chester, Pa., and the course of a few days' zealous search made it more and ertain that if the light of inquiry were ever to roborate the old folks' story of a companion.

In organizing the searching parties next day I offered Pierce a job on my boat. He hung back. But I offered $3 for his day's work, and, nothing other river men casting curious glances at him, for the wage was big for men of their class, he accepted. On the way across the river I flatly asked Pierce if he had been with George Eyre on the morning of his disappearance. He flew into a rage in denying it. But when we arrived at the island and paired off to beat particular sections of the shore Pierce accepted with a show of good humor my invitation that he should stick by me. On the trip my suspicious had received unexpected support. Pete Sheets, one of the river men came to me and declared that he was willing to make affidavit that he had seen Pierce looking for George Eyre on the morning of the latter's disappearance.

"He said he expected to go hunting with him," said Pete.

Pete.
"Did anybody eise see Pierce then and hear him

"Did anybody else see Pierce then and near him inquire for Eyre?"
"Yee," replied Pete, and gave the name of a reputable grain merchant of Chester.
So when Pierce and I were alone I told him of these things and he again became more enraged.
"But, Pierce," I said, "you've no right to go off the handle. In a case like this every man should be willing to stand for having his movements looked into.
If you'll listen to me you'll make up your mind right

Sunday."

No sooner did our boat touch shore than instructed reporters were sent in four directions. Particularly were they sent in haste to the homes of Pierce's father and his sister. They came back with reports that his father said, "Sure, Jim was to see me that day," but had given us the time of the visit, the hour when Pierce had said he was visiting his sister—and his sister did not recall a visit from him at all! The other two reporters brought back from the commission merchant a corroboration of Pete Sheets' statement, and from the foreman of the Consumers' lee Company's wharf gang a queer announcement. It was that Fierce spoke the truth when he said he worked from one to four loading lee, but that he had appeared and, without asking for the work, took up one of the prongs, labored diligently, spoke to many of the other men and had gone away at four o'clock without stepping up to be paid. When the rivermen did work on the gangs they were paid by the hour and collected the money always before leaving. Pierce had never come around since for the money. If Pierce is regarded as trying to establish an alibit the significance of this fact becomes apparent.

Stranger news than that reached us that night. A riverman brought to police headquarters an old negro who lived in a hut by the shore and who said be had seen Jim Pierce and his brother. Pinney Pierce, on the night of the day of Eyre's disappearance leave in a skiff and go off in the direction of Raccoon Island. He had heard them beaching their boat at the landing by Pierce's father's cottage and seen them come ashore at dawn, which meant that they had been away more than six hours. Now, professional duck hunters often go out at night, in the hope of potting roosting ducks in the marshes, and usually succeed. The old negro said the light was sufficiently clear for him to see that neither of the men carried any ducks off the boat.

We found Pinney Pierce and asked him about that curious night trip. He denied that he and his brother had gone in the direction

"What for?" I asked.

"Ducks," he said. laconicenty.

"Get any?"

A uar. that's ait.

"What, in six hours of nunting.

"Yes, that's all, a pair," he said, looking sheepish a spite of himself.

The Clew of the Hat.

The Clew of the Hat.

One of my fellow reporters went to Philadelphia the next morning with the hat to consult the makers as to what retail shops they had sold headgear to of that class and pattern, the while I took a scarching party along the route that Pierce and his brother said they had taken on their hunting trip on the night of Eyre's disappearance. On a deserted strip of New Jere's shore, ten miles below Chester, we found a mound where a fire had been. Its embers were so entirely reduced to ash that we could not determine what the character of the fuel for this fire had been, but the suspicion rose strongly that here was all that remained of George Eyre's boat and paddles and oars. It was strengthened by inquiries made on the opposite shore, where two men reported having seen the fire alight on the spot on Monday night very late. Of course we reasoned at first that the Pierces might have simply lighted a fire to warm themselves, but this fire, the men said, had burned high and very brightly, while the bramble branches and drift wood of the marshes could only be with difficulty ignited into smouldering fires. Jim Pierce and his brother Pinney were not with us. They

"Oh, those; that's different. They will not be hard to trace. We just put out a few as samples—East, West, North and South. Just wait a minute."

There were no sales at Chester, but there was at Wilmington, Del., only a few miles away. And to the address of the hat store in Wilmington I went the last mention.

next morning.

"Yes," said the proprietor, "I sold that hat about three weeks ago."

"Can you describe the man you sold it to?"

"Certainly." he said; "I know him. It was Jim Pierce, of Chester." He grinned. "He's down this way often," he said. "He's got a girl down here: lives just up the street. But I guess Jim wouldn't like it known—bout the girl. Jim's married."

The next minute I was possessed of the name and address of this girl. There was no trouble in the matter of an introduction. She was just a little unfortunate creature, habitué of waterfront resorts.

The instant I made mention of the name of Jim Pierce the girl's fright was palpable. At first she denied that she knew him at all. But a companion sneered at her openly.

"What are you lyin' for?" she demanded. "'Fraid of bein' hauled up in a divorce suit?" And as the girl I had sought frowned at her the other continued.—"You know mightly well Jim was here to see you Christimas night."

The girl rocked apprehensively in her chair.

"What if he was?" she asked.

"Nothin', ceptin' you needn't lie about it."

I asked the other girl to leave us. Then I said:—

"What did Jim Pierce come to see you about?"

"Nothin', "she answered.

"You'd better tell me." I said. "It's always the best way. It will save you alou from going to prison."

"I couldn't.—I couldn't," she said, trembling.

"Oh, God!" sobbed he girl, and she flung up her

"Oh. God!" sobbed he girl, and she flung up her hands to her eyes.

I told her that she must no, try to leave my company, and the frightened little thing obeyed. She heard me telephone to the District Attorney at Chester to come down on the next train. He did, and when he came picked up the Chief of Police of Wilmington. We all went finally to the girl's rooms. We talked kindly to her, and, perceiving from certain pletures on the wall that she was religious, made our demands for a full, frank statement on impressive grounds.

shaking his skinny fist at her and swearing that also lied.

The authorities had a puzzle still, however, for the law declares that before a charge of surder can be sustained the body of the dead must be produced to prove that a crime has been committed upon it.

Nature came swiftly to rescue the authorities out of their puzzle and fully corroborate the girl, for two days after she made her confession a thaw set in along the river and the tide flowing strongly supped the rope off the rock that held Eyre's body at the bottom, and exactly where the girl had said Pierce told her he had flung it George Eyre's body arose to the surface of the Delaware.

Pierce never confessed. He remained in the county jail from January until June. His trial was set for the first Monday of the month. That Sunday he asked permission to be allowed t. work at weaving a fishnet, and the twine was given him. Instead he wove a noose for his neck and when the Sheriff came to bring him into court to stand his trial that official found.

Pinney Pierce, who had been indicted as an accomplice, was, however, never put to trial, for physicians declared him dying of consumption, with only a few months left to live.

London Free Press: An all-Canadian baseball league of no mean proportions has just been formed in the west with every prospect of success both from a financial and sporting point of view. It sounds good, this "all-Canadian" phrase, and it is at present the only professional baseball league of any importance with its circuit not overlapping American soil.

Woodstock, Ont., March 6.—(Special.)—Four years ago Woodstock had a professional team in the Western Ontario League that won the district championship. The game was fairly well patronized, and with the assistance of pubic subscriptions paid expenses. Other tomas, however, did not do so well. Two years ago another league, including Woodstock, Guelph, Galt and London was started, but did not finish the season out, dying by inches. The principal objection to professional ball here, in the opinion of fans, is that the town is too small, and it is pointed out that there has always been trouble in making the professional games in far larger places pay. However, there might be something doing if an aggressive management got behind the organization.

FOR THE KING'S PLATE.

Toronto, March 6.—The entries for the King's Plate, to be run on Saturday, May 22, the opening day of the spring meeting of the Ontario Jockey Club, show about the same Canadian owners striving once more for the guineas given an-nually by His Majesty the King. Mr. Seagram tops them all in numbers, with seven, while John Dyment and the Valley Farm Stable have only two each. The Waterloo turfman thus has a long lead right off the reel and unless something phenomenal turns up among the smaller stables 1909 looks like a repeat year There are three less altogether than last season-34. "Yankee" Pinned the Italian Twice.

Toronto, March 6 .- Yankee Rogers won a decisive victory over the Italian champion, Emile Silvia, in a best-twoin-the-three-falls wrestling bout at Riverday Rink last night. Rogers was the favorite with the crowd, and got a great deal of encouragement, while the Italian was treated to a lot of joshing, but he was there with the goods as far as strength was concerned. Yankee knew too much about the catch-as-catchcan game, and had the advantage of Silvia all the way. In the first he took the fall in 35 3-4 minutes with a double Nelson with the legs.

A word about the mountain to-day as a residential part of the city of Hamilton and the future. It is still in its golden, plastic youth.

When an individual reaches maturity there can be no growth or expansion—only a ripening, at the best. Unless, indeed, as is sometimes the case, there is an upheaval within, and the structure is shaken loose and leveled, to be formed by the dynamic thought which caused the explosion.

And thus, with the long-established residence community. The lines are herd and fast; the "improvements" have become fossilized, and it is impossible to carry out any advanced scheme of sanitation or landscape engineering, or whatever else might bring the place abreast of the times, unless tearing out, the old work—an undertaking prohibited by the enormous expense, if not a physical impossibility.

Mount Hamilton, however, is still in its golden, plastic youth. The deadening seal of finality is, nowhere upon it. These are no idle words. I have been looking into Mount Hamilton searchingly of late to see whether its physical conformation or its development so far would continued to the place of the plant of the plant

On October 13th, 1890, the congregation passed from the status of a mission to an organized congregation. The organizing of the congregation entrusted to the Rev. Dr. Fletcher was entrusted to the Rev. Dr. Fletcher, then minister of MacNab Street Church. On November 18, in the same year, the following interim session was appointed: Messrs. In conclusion, I would say we do not want this exhibition to interfere in any way with the small fairs around the country, as I am looking myself to the great Rockton exhibition, a fair that could gather in 8,000 people in one day, and everyone had to walk or drive, a fair that could produce five men who had never missed it in 52 years and then say that people will not go to a fair. In defining the ob-ject and scope of the new scheme the Imperial Army Council submitted to the Canadian Government a memorandum setting forth that "the Army Council are well aware that the self-governing dominions can give no guarantee that contingents of any given strength or composition will be forthcoming for service in any part of the empire in the event of a great war. Nothing is too expensive or too hard to secure if David Belasco thinks it is needed to give naturalness to his productions. He is known from one end of the country to the other for his detail. In "The Easiest Way" he bought the furnishings of a poor girl's room and moved them to the Stuyvesant Theatre, and many other instances of his toilscene effort to please theatregoers are a matter of stage history. In "The Warrens of Virginia" he has gone further. He has not only provided a fine company, an elaborate production, but has arranged for applause, showing that nothing escapes his eagle eye. Seated in the back row of the balcony Wednesday afternoon was a young man who took his seat without being escorted and who had no seat check. He was evidently attached to house or company. He had a book, which he read when the lights were on and when the third act curtain only took one hand he worked so industriously with those parts of the forelimb below the forearm or wrist that he succeeded in interesting others in the audience, and three more curtains were the result.

It takes time and plenty of it to blend individuals into subordinate parts of an ideal unit, and at present there are too many egos in the choric cosmis. But he has enthusias am and purpose, and eventually he will evolve a more artistic unanimity. Some of the things were very well done, particularly the excerpts from Verd's "Manzoni Requiem." He has a tendency to make effects for their own sake which is dangerous unless held in check. This has ben the undoing of many choral conductors, because those who praise it at first soon tire and then they are as unreasonable in their condemnation as they were in their praise. ## Confession of a Noted Playwright.

Apropos of the revival of "The Dancing Girl" at His Majesty's Theatre in London, Henry Arthur Jones, its author, has been indulging in some interesting confessions. He is now on his way to Egypt, on the advice of his medical man, to shake off an attack of catarrh which has been troubling him for the last twelve months. Before going there he consented to be interviewed, "Play writing is my sole hobby," said Jones. "Shut me up in a room with a packet of foolscap, a pen and a bottle of ink, and I am supremely happy."

When he was reminded that he had not included brains in his list of tools, the playwright admitted that he thought a fair share of that commodity was necessary to the dramatist, "Strange as it may seem," he continued, "I have never had the least desire to be present at a rehearsal. The work of production is terribly tiring to me, and, to tell the truth, a really special gift is required.

man, to shake off an attack of catarrh which has been troubling him for the last twelve months. Before going there he consented to be interviewed.

"Play writing is my sole hobby," said Jones. "Shut me up in a room with a packet of foolscap, a pen and a bottle of ink, and I am supremely happy."

When he was reminded that he had not included brains in his list of tools, the playwright admitted that he thought a fair share of that commodity was necessary to the dramatist, "Strange as it may seem," he continued. "I have never had the least desire to be present at a rehearsal. The work of production is terribly tiring to me, and, to tell the truth, a really special gift is required."

conditions of the dramatic critic's calling that he should have written, personally rehearsed, and produced a play of his own, thus enabling him to judge by experience of the perils that environ the dramatist's career. On the other hand I, for one, confess that it is just those perils, those difficulties, those severe conditions that make the game worth playing. It possesses a fascination only equalled, I am given to understand, by mountain climbing.

"Is it not a pity that under existing conditions a play which does not hit the public taste at once—I mean on its first representation—is practically doomed to complete oblivion? George M. Cohan's musical play, Forty-five Minutes From Broadw is the attraction at the Grand this afternoon and evening. The company is the same as was seen here last season, Scott Welsh appearing as Kid Burns, the exprize fighter, and Frances Gordon as Mary, the housemaid. "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway" is one of the most successful pieces Mr. Cohan has written, its songs being particularly catchy. The most popular are "So Long, Marz," Mary is a Grand Old Name," and "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway," all of which are as pleasing as ever, and alell staged, and should attract tw

Irene Jermon is one of the sprightliest little comediennes booked by the united offices, and is sure to please. The moving pictures will be exceptionally interesting.

"A Texas Wooing," one of the best comedy sketches ever staged for vaudes ville, will be seen the week after next.

Larry Crane and company, who made a big bit this season in their new offersing, are also billed for that week.

The Laughing Horse, a novelty that created a big stir at Ottawa this week, will be seen shortly.

Hoey and Lee, the well-known Hebrew comedians, will be here the week after next.

Another feature booked for that week is Patsy Doyle, the somewhat different comedian, who is a warm favorite in Hamilton.

THE QUIET HOUR

FOR THOUGHTFUL PEOPLE

Prayer.

Eternal and ever blessed God, we beseech Thee to show us Thy glory. Give us grace to seek Thee with humble and earnest hearts, and may it please Thee to reveal Thyself to smoore and more. Graciously hear us in our prayer for those who seek Thee in the darkness. Have mercy upon those who have not been blessed with the revelation of Jesus Christ, but who yet endeavor to follow such twilight gleams as they possess. Send forth Thy light and Thy truth to guide them, and bring them to the knowledge of Thyself and of Thy Christ, who died for men and rose again, and lives for evermore. To Him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.

The Preserve.

Christ, who died for men and rose again, and lives for evermore. To Him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.

The Presence of God.

"The practice of the presence of God the best rule of a holy life" is all but an ancient saying. A less antiquated author has said: "There is not in the world a kind of life more sweet and delightful that that of a continual conversation with God. Those only can comprehend it who practice and experience." "How can I do this great wickedness and sin against God," the exclamation of Joseph in a great temptation to great sin, involved no doubt, the idea that if he yielded then he must sin in the presence of God. Every place is made a holy place as God's presence makes places holy. The unwavering consciousness that life is apent hour by hour in the presence of God. Every place is purifying and brightening and a source of exquisite joy in the heart. It is for the saint an inspiration to courageous struggle, unfaltering loyalty in witness bearing, and at last glorious victory. Let it be tried.—Presbyterian Standard.

The Joy of Travel.

(By a Banker.)

Under ordinary conditions, to the average individual there is a pleasure and a glad fascination in travelling, whether it be by sea or by land. Of course, however, in the former case it must be assumed that the inconstant deep is not in too angry a mood, in which case, whether the traveller experience physical discomfort from the rolling of the billows, or otherwise, no amount of sophistry could convince that the violent plunging, and the spasmodic lurching and reeling of the good ship, add to the pleasure of the voyage.

And, too, it occasionaly happens

And, too, it occasionaly happens that travelling on land is the reverse of pleasurable. For instance, when, after a sudden thaw, the cosmopolitan after a sudden thaw, the cosmopolitan crowds, who, from almost every country in Europe, from America, and even from Australasia, flock to the numerous hotels perched high on the Swiss mountains for the enjoyment of lugeing, bob-sleighing, skating, skijoring, curling and other amusements upon the ice or snow, hurry away from sludge and deep slush of the melting snow. At such times the through night trains are besieged by a surging mob, all struggling to secure a seat; some, especially the foreigners, in order to save the charge of luggage, bringing into the carriage numerous melting snow. At such times the through night trains are besieged by a surging mob, all struggling to secure a seat; some, especially the foreigners, in order to save the charge of luggage, bringing into the carriage numerous portmanteaux and enormous rolls of rugs, with which they encumber and block up the gangway, and, until dispossessed by the guard, fill up the seats. At length every seat is occupied, and still they come, the latest arrivals having to content themselves with a seat on the floor of the corridor, many, as the night advances, rolling themselves in their rugs and lying at full length in the vain hope of forgetting, in the oblivion of sleep, the discomforts of the journey. But these unhappy ones soon realize that their resting place is not exactly the lap of luxury, and, if they are wise, alight at the first opportunity and stay the remainder of the night at an hotel. At length the train arrives at Boulike a battlefield; for the floor of the saloons, and even of the corridors, is strewn with men and women lying prone at full length in all directions, many groaning as if a bullet had passed through them, and many—but a weil must preferce he drawn and a veril must preferce be drawn and a veril must preferce he drawn and well must preferce he drawn and a veril must preferce he drawn and a veril must preferce he drawn and a veril must preferce he prone at full length in all directions, many groaning as if a bullet had passed through them, and many—but a veil must, perforce, be drawn over the melancholy spectacle of the piteous woes of poor suffering humanity. But at last they are moored in the still waters of harbor, and with pale faces and limp gait those stricken victims of the rolling deep once more step upon terra firma.

And, although we read that man is

And, although we read that man is born to trouble as the sparks fly unwards, and although some have a heavier share of adversity than others, yet, surely, those of whom the Great Hereafter has no terrors, and who, having accepted the Saviour of the world who by dying on the cross atoned for their sins, as their Redeemer, must have the happier existence here below. For for them a glorious future is assured with absoistence here below. For for them a lute certainty.

The Eloquence of Blood.

The Eloquence of Blood.

"The voice of thy brother's blood cries unto me from the ground." A living voice, eloquent and far-reaching. The blood of the body is red and opaque, the blood of the soul is white and transparent. You see it in tears, tears are agony in solution. Do tears evaporate? No. Millions of angels are water carriers, their work constitutes one of the largest industries of heaven. They pour the water into the great sea before the throne which reflect the glory of the face of God, like molten gold, like living fire.

Triumph travels over this sea, makgold, like living fire.

Triumph travels over this sea, making the shores to tremble with the praise. The voice of this blood crieth in loud hosannahs; angels take part in the chorus only. There are many voices of birds, waves, and waterfalls. Songs of the night. Songs of the morning; inof birds, waves, and waterfalls. Songs of the night. Songs of the morning; infant songs from the purest lips; music of the spheres, each tear a sphere; transparent, eloquent, revealing the very essence of life. Oh, that my eyes were tears and my head a fountain of waters that I might add to the mighty volume of praise. Each tear has volume of praise. Each tear has a tongue; comes from God; belongs to God; gathered in His bottles; record-ed in His book; goes back to gladden

The Sabbath school largely fails of its own mission because scripture is not committed to memory as it should be. Even the pulpit sometimes fails of the abundant scriptural lessons, the text in some cases being the only crumb that falls from the rich granary of God's Word.—Lutheran Evangelist.

OUR FORESTS.

Their Importance is Now Becoming Keenly Appreciated.

The effects of the Iorest upon its surroundings, writes A. H. D. Ross, M. F., in the March Canadian Magazine, are so important and far reaching that it may well be likened to "Nature's Balance Wheel." Its importance does not consist merely in the immediate output of lumber, ties, timber, fuel, pulpwood and other forest products; but also in its regulation of soil erosion, the formation of a good game cover and its ameliorating influences upon climate. By retarding evaporation, checking the drying effects of winds rendering the drying effects of winds rendering the sail more. "It is, of course, impossible for me and to prepare the earth for the habitation of man. Wherever man has disturbed the nice balance that exists between the forested and non-forested areas he has restored the proper balance his efforts have been generously rewarded by better climatic conditions, increased fertility of soil, and a more equable stream flow.

Once the blood is vitalized, its tonic influence is circulated to every nook and corner of the body, carrying new life with it.

Cases on record prove that Ferrozone builds up when all else fails. Mr. alonzo W. Douglas, of Woodbridge, Ont., says "I desire to state the results I derived from the use of Ferrozone. Two years ago I was stricken with Pneumonia. So kevere was the attack and so reduced was my strength that my life was despaired of. I had the very best medica attention, but made no progress toward recovery. When reduced to practically a skeleton, a kind friend told me of the remarkable powers of Ferrozone. An improvement began almost at one, gained steadily in weight and strength until Ferrozone made me a new man. I will gladly affisher inquiries from other sufferers if they care to have further particulars about my recovery. Ferrozone deserves its great measure of success."

HAS HEALING POWER.

The peculiar healing power which the pines possess over affections of the throat, lungs and bronchial tubes is proverbial. For coughs and colds there is nothing so effective as the mixture of a half-ounce Virgin Oil of Pine with two ounces of Glycerine and half a pint of good Whiskey. Shake well and take a teaspoonful every four hours. It is claimed this formula will break up a cold in twenty-four hours, and cure any cough that is curable. If good Whiskey is not conveniently at hand, five ounces of tincture of Cinchona compound can be used in its place with equal effect.

The ingredients for this cough mixture can be purchased at any good drug store and provide a quantity sufficient to supply the average family for an entire year, which makes it the least expensive as well as the most effective remedy for coughs and colds. It is better to purchase the ingredients separately and prepare the mixture at home. Virgin Oil of Pine is a combination of the active principles of forest trees, the result of more than twenty years' study and experiment. To insure its freshness and purity it is put up only in half-ounce vials, each vial securely sealed in a round wooden case with an engraved wrapper, showing plainly the name of the manufacturer, as follows: Virgin Oil of Pine. Prepared only by Leach Chemical, Co., Windsor, Ont. nothing so effective as the mixture of a specially built motor car, while man voyages in the clouds? This interesting point in the case of crinoline vs. directoire has been suggested by Mme. Lucile, one of the cleverest exponents of artistic dress.

Mme. Lucile, who is known in private life as Lady Duff Gordon, has long been teaching women how to dress. She has emphasized the importance of line and the necessity of the correct blending of color. She has studied the fashions of all periods, picked out the best designs of each era and made the wonderful picture gowns for which she is noted, and now the most exquisite style ever designed is perhaps to be banished.

"I want to ask what is going to happen to the aeroplane?" Mme. Luche said yesterday. "Women will want to fly, but there will be no aerial navigation for them if they choose to wear crinolines. It has always seemed to me that the tight dresses were specially arranged for the aeroplane—they were forerunners of what is to be.

MANY ADVANTAGES.

"Demonstry" I have always felt it

"Personally, I have always felt it my aim in life to make women look as young and as pretty as possible. We have now attained a fashion which is absolutely comfortable, hygienic, absolutely comfortable, hygienic, graceful and takes at least ten years

"It is, of course, impossible for me to predict anything. It is out of the question to know what the trend may be. These fashions are decided by some unknown influence—by something in the air. I can only hope. The great mistake has been to call these gowns directoire. Directoire dresses were skin tight and opened up one side.

"Why should not these lovely gowns be called the Edward VII. period? They closely resemble the short-waisted for the closely resemble the short-waisted for the course of the called the Edward VII.

Thad Stevens was trying a case before a certain court in the wilds of Pennsylvania. The Court had been unfair with his client, and he didn't like the rulings of the presiding Judge. Another time the Judge ruled against him; it was the last straw. He got up and began tying his papers into a neat bundle as though about to quit the court room.

"Do I understand, Mr. Stevens," thundered the Judge, "that you wish to show your contempt for this court:"

"On the other hand," replied Stevens, "I am trying to conceal it."

Rev. Elmore Harris Interested on the Subject.

Toronto, March 6.-Rev. Elmore Har ris and Hon. S. H. Blake have issued a pamphlet entitled, 'The Teaching of Reliious Knowledge in University College Ultra Vires." It consists of a foreword by Rev. Elmore Harris, who is head of the Bible Training School, and an open letter to Rey, Nathaniel Burwash, Chancellor of Victoria College, from the pen of Mr. Blake. It will be borne in mind that Toronto University is a federated institution embracing colleges of all deominations. The main points of Mr. Blake's attack are directed against the department of Oriental literature, or ganized by Prof. McCurdy, who, in religamzed by Prof. Mcturdy, who, in ren-gion, is a Friend, or "Quaker." In this department the Bible is the greatest achievement that ever came out of Asia; is studied as a literary work in conjunc-tion with the great Oriental books of the Hindoo sages and the Persians.

BANEFUL HIGHER CRITICISM.

BANEFUL HIGHER CRITICISM.

Rev. Elmore Harris declares that the students of the university are becoming indoctrinated by the "Higher Criticism" through this department, and says that three months ago he, in company with Dr. N. W. Hoyles, K. C., of Wyeliffe College, Principal Maclaren, of Knox College, and Rev. Dr. Carman, waited on President Falconer with a protest. They were courteously received, but obtained no satisfaction.

Hon. Mr. Blake's letter is largely an argument on legal grounds, that under the Act incorporating the university the department of Oriental languages is "ultra vires," or illegal.

THE CASE AS STATED.

THE CASE AS STATED.

Mr. Blake sums up his case as follows:

(a) There is no provision in the statutes governing the university or University College for instruction in or giving certificates in theological subjects or religious knowledge by either of these

(b) Instruction in both of these subjects is being given.

(c) This work was allotted to the fed-rated universities and colleges.

(d) These latter bodies have there round for complaint and the right nand that this illegal interference fore ground for complaint and the right to demand that this illegal interference with their rights shall cease.

Having challenged the legality of the teaching, Mr. Blake next deals with the matter taught. He says desire of becoming missionaries is leading so many young men and women to take up Bible study, which he hopes may continue, "notwithstanding persistent efforts of theological and other institutions to frustrate such study by seeking to make the Word of God of non-effect by the exerchanging notions of a noisy class of men, who take for their motto, Quantum est quod seimus (How great is our knowledge), instead of the more lowly one—the mark of the truly learned, as he picks up a pebble in the vast occan of learning—Quantum est quod neseimus (how great is our ignorance). It will be an evil day for our ministers, missionaries and teachers should God permit that what appears to be about the only sure standing ground left us in the world to be shaken to the centre: that the statement. The Word of God which lively had been a sure of the control of the shaken to the centre: that the statement. The Word of God which lively had a sure that the statement. The Word of God which lively had been sufficient on the world of the shaken to the centre: that the statement. The Word of God which lively had been supported by the Word of God is an old-feshioned delusion, to be rejected with as little compunction as if it were a heathen fable. If we pursue this process of disintegration so that the wonderful cohesive power of this book shall cease, the author may well write over this wreek. They have sown the winds.

"I thankfully acknowledge the im ense debt I am under to this sim-e presentation concerning our Bible, ple presentation concerning our Bible, from which standpoint I have never been in the slightest degree moved by the ever-changing and never-to-be-relied-upon attacks of those who, not looking or asking for spiritual discernment, merely kies the Book that they may endeavor to persuade people that their hostile attacks are made in a reverent spirit of investigation.

He reviews the contradictions and inconsistencies of the scientists and says:

onto University should aid in the work of shaking men's confidence in the Bible. Will you use your best endeavors. as Chancellor of Victoria college, to place Toronto University and University College in their meorpor-ating acts, by preventing in either of them, through a 'back door' or by any other mode of entrance, teaching and ex-amination in 'Religious Knowledge' or 'Theological Subjects:'

A FEW POSERS.

"If the theological institutions in affiliation with the university insist on instruction in these subjects and on the lines above referred to, then in common fairness let the laymen, whose money is demanded to support such instruction, know exactly what is the teaching that is insisted upon. Let there be a meeting of these new lights, and insist upon a positive statement showing clearly:

"(a) What books of the Bible, in addition to Jonah, do they think should be eliminated as not being the inspired Word of God, to be accepted as such by their students.

"(b) What chapters in the other

"(1) Was there any promise of a Saviour?
"(m) Was there any deluge?
"(n) Was there any Abraham?
"(o) By what means is the ordinary reader to know what portions (if any) of this Book are to be taken as the absolute Word of God, to be accepted and acted upon at the peril of the reader, and when does the apparent Word of God pass into scientific subjects, unreliable history, poetical effusions, myths, allegories, parables, etc., which are withdrawn from the region of inspiration and are merely human utterances, to be dealt with as the reader pleases?
UNFAIR TO THOSE WHO PAY,
"Do you not think, my dear Chancellor, that it is but fair to those who are asked to pay for this teaching, that they should be presented with the emasculated and mutilated Book which proceeds on the consensus of thought of the representatives of the higher critics?
"It would be a matter of very great relief to a large number of Christian men if the result of these investigations to which you refer were put into the converte shaue of a real

Cured Through the Timely Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

There is no medicine can equal Dr Williams' Pink Pills for stomach troubles. These Pills are not an artifacial appetizer nor a stimulant. They aci in nature's own way by making rich appetizer nor a stimulant. They act in nature's own way by making rich, ned blood. This new blood gives vigor to all the organs. When it flows through the tiny veins in the stomach it stimulates them and creates that craving which people call "appetite." Then when the appetite is satisfied with food the blood gives the stomach strength to digest it. The nourishment is absorbed by the blood, and carried to every organ in the body. That is how Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure stomach troubles and all blood diseases. That is how they give health and strength to weak, worm-out people.

STANDS BY HOLY WRIT.

"I have never been in the least shaken in the simple creed as to the Bible given to me as a child over sixty five years ago."

Mr. Blake states his creed as a belief that it is a divine revelation, that the Bible is this revelation, that Bible is the more power of the purposes intended without error—no other book has ever been found which could answer its purposes. That Christ continually referred to the Book then existing and endorsed it.

DEEPENING THE WELLAND.

Hon. G. P. Graham Announces That as One of First Projects.

Minister of Railways Also Supports Georgian Bay Canal.

Sunday Closing of Canals -The Building of Quebec Bridge.

Ottawa, March 5.-The House spent the greater part of to-day's sess Committee of Supply on the railway and canal estimates, and the efficiency of the department so ably administered by Hon. Mr. Graham was reflected in the absence of serious criticism on the part of the Opposition. Several phases of the transportation problem were touched upon, however, in the course of the discussion. Once more the Minister of Railways made it plain that though renchment has been rendered desirable at present by the prevailing conditions the Government's policy with respect to canals will as soon as circumstances permit assume a more aggressive char

Replying to Hon. Mr. Haggart, who Replying to Hon. Mr. Haggart, who sought to make it appear that the Minister of railways had not expressed himself so favorably towards the Georgian Bay Canal project as the Prime Minister, Mr. Graham reiterated his belief that by the deepening of the Welland Canal to 22 or 25 feet Canada could provide ample transportation facilities, not only for her own trade, but for a considerable portion of the trade of the United States. He had never expressed any opinion adverse to the Georgian Bay Canal scheme. On the contrary, he believed that the geographical conditions were such that in time to come the convicted of the murder of Edward Green, a Montreal peddler, by a jury to-night. They will be sentenced to-morrow. The murder for which they were convicted took place on December 20, at Beaver Brook, on the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Green and another peddler were walking from one camp to another in pursuit of their trade, when they were fired on from behind a pile of logs, Green being instantly killed. Panarsky escaped, although the bullet pierced his clothing across the breast. The murderers were tracked through the light snow all day Sunday, and on Monday were found in a shack badly frozen.

The contents of Green's valise, consisting of many watches and other jewelry, were found along the trail at different hiding places, but $3.000 in cash he was known to have had has not yet been recovered. Panarsky identified Seppepil in court as the man who aimed at him.

The prisoners took the stand in their own defence, but their stories were very contradictory. Judge Landry Biver Could be made navigable. both the Welland Canal and the Georgian Bay Canal busy. For the present, owing to the pressiling conditions, the policy of the Government was not to undertake any work involving large expenditures, but as soon as conditions changed he would be prepared to take a more Agressive stand with respect to the water routes of Canada.

THE RAILWAY COMMISSION.

"What about the report that Nelson River could be made navigable?" interpolated Dr. Chisholm.

Mr. Graham admitted that the suggestions made in the report of the engineers sent to survey the Hudson's Bay route were somewhat staggering. One of these was that large ocean yessels of these was that large ocean vessels could be brought from Hudson's Bay right through to Winnipeg. That, however, was a question for future consideration, and the House was content to pass on to the next item. This had reference to the maintenance of the Board of Railway Commissioners, for which an appropriation of $107,000 was asked, an appropriation of $107,000 was asked, and it gave Mr. Graham an opportunity to voice the general sentiment as to the excellent work being performed by the board, and to pay a warm tribute to Mr. Mabee, the chairman. Questioned as to the delay in filling the vacancy on the board created by the death of Mr. Greenway, the Minister stated that it was the intention of the Government to appoint a western man with a knowledge of western transportation. Mr. Mabee was at present in the west, and on his return he would be consulted as to the choice of a new commissioner.

THE QUEREC BRIDGE.

THE QUEBEC BRIDGE.

The Government's plans with respect to the rebuilding of the Quebec bridge were outlined in the discussion of an item of $150,000 in conection with that structure. Mr. Graham emphasized the high qualifications of the eminent engineers, Messrs. Vantelet. When the plans were completed, which, it was hoped, would be in the autumn, the engineers named would be responsible for the construction of the bridge. Toronto, March 6 .- One of the anomalies of the municipal act was pointed out by the leader of the Opposition yesterday afternoon in the Legislature yesterday afternoon in the Legislature in moving the second reading of his bill to amend that measure. As the law stands at present there is no restriction as to the number of representatives that a municipality may send to the County Council. Hon. A. G. much for the legislators of Ontario to do, for, as the Premier said, they had caught up with the printer, and the sitting came to an end because no more of the embryo legislation was ready to be proceeded with.

The bill introduced by Mr. W. S. Brewster (South Brant) making insurance companies liable for damage done by explosions of natural gas was given its second reading, and referred to the Legal Committee in order that the companies affected may be heard in regard to the matter.

The Premier characterized Mr. Pearce's bill to amend the assessment act, reducing the assessment on mills to thirty-five per cent, as a magnificent example of an attempt at irregular legislation. It would, he said, interfere with the whole operation of the bill, but nevertheless it was given a second reading, and then relegated to the limbo of the special committee that will sit between sessions to consider all the amendments of the act that have been proposed. NOTES.

NOTES,

The Toronto mining issues were dull yesterday, the market continuing sluggish in sympathy with New York trading. Nearly all the Cobalts showed slight signs of improvement. Temiskaming, however, brightened up somewhat on rumors that dividends would be announced soon. During the day it sold from 141-2 up to 148. A block of stock thrown upon the market brought Nova Scotia from its low figure of 461-4 to 48. After the closing of the boards 47 was bid for 5,000 shares. Thethiewey has been holding its own at 1531-2 and 154. Very little is being offered. La Rose and Nipissing remain strong.

In the case of Nova Scotia, it is said In the case of Nova Scotia, it is said that a recent report that the mine was to be closed down, and which has been since officially denied, was responsible for the low selling of the stock. In February it opened at 63, falling to 48 1-2 on the 27th of the same month. The market closed yesterday with a stronger tendency than had been shown during the earlier part of the day.

—Rev. M. J. Bieber will pread the second in the Lenten series in the English Lutheran Church to-morrow evening.

Pastor Philpott will begin a series of the large money markets across the border, and but a limited amount of their resources are idle. Even those banks that do not lend out any or but a limited amount of their surpluses in the shape of "calk" loans, manage to the shape of "calk" loans, and the shape of the shap allowed on time deposits being only 3 per cert., while discount rates range from 5 1-2 to 7 per cert, the profits must necessarily be large. Of the table amount of money on deposit in Canadian banks, which is unusually large, from 25 to 30 per cent, of it does not bear any interest whatever. The profits on such deposits are therefore 3 per cent, in excess of the profits on time or savings account deposits. The large bank reserves must also be reckoned with. Many of the old banks have 'rest' funds eugal to the amount of paid-up capital; and a profit of, say, 10 per cent, on this combined amount is equivalent to a equal to the amount of paid-up capital; in some cases the "rest" is even more than 100 per cent, of paid-up capital, in which case a profit of 10 per cent, on the capital resources of such a bank means much more than 20 per cent, on the capital resources of such a bank means much more than 20 per cent, on the capital resources of such a bank means much more than 20 per cent, on the practically costs the bank nothing, not to say anything of the collections, exchange, etc. It is no wonder that bank charters are so valuable.

AUSTRALIA.

Interesting Address by Lyman Lee at Hamilton Association.

The attendance at the general meeting of the Hamilton Scientific Association was fair last night. Mr. H. B. Witton, Miller, of Jordan, was received as a mem-

The feature of the evening was a lecture about Australia. After outlining the geographical position, Air. Lee told of the dimensions, physical leatures, etc. One disadvantage is the lack of linets, which he characterized as arteries of communication. The population, together with that of Tasmana, exclusive of the aborigines, is 3,712,000. The country is a large pinteau, the east coact being rocky and the interior largely composed of arid land. He outlined the various positions of the rivers and said they were subject to great irregularities of volume, many of chem disappearing in the sandy wastes. The climate is hot and dry, out is healthy, while the interior is subject to drought, but snow storms in June, July and August are frequent. In dealing with the product Mr. Lee said Australia had produced $1,350,000,000 of gold, and, although the quantity of this product is decreasing. The trees and bushes have but scanty foliage, and famous among them is the eucalyptus. All of the twenty-four species of palm, with the exception of the ecocanut palm, are peculiar to Australia.

In dealing with the animal life, he said horses, cattle and sheep had been introduced from Great Britain. There are many reptiles, the largest being the alligator. Of the sixty varieties of snakes many are venomous.

The natives are of the Australian many are venomous.

The natives are of the Australian negro stock, and are conceded to be about the lowest grade of people in the world, and number about 31,000, exclusive of those in the unexplored regions but are rapidly dying out. are regarded as slaves and are fright-fully treated. Mr. Lee then gave a de-scriptive outline of Australia from the scripter outline of Australia From the time of its discovery to the present day, England gaining possession in 1600, when Cook took charge. Australia is thriving, as there are at present 35,000 miles of railway and 35,000 miles of telegraph. Large quantities of wool are shipped to Great Britain every year. Australia was for a time considered good for nothing except as a convict colony, about 70,000 having been shipped there and about the same number to the adjacent island of Tasmania. The debt of the country is large, being $500,000,000. This he contrasted with Canada's debt of $200,000,000. Mr. Lee also said the conditions were very favorable to the workingman, as everything, with the exceptime of its discovery to the pre

SOCIAL HOUR

Held by the Reorganized Wesley Church Choir.

The re-organized choir of Wesley Methodist Church, under the direction of Mr. J. H. Summers, held a most satis factory practice last evening, and every thing points to a successful future thing points to a successful future. With the accession of two young soprano singers, Miss Ethel Lawrey and Miss Ethel Jerome, who will alternate in the solo work, together with Miss Bertha Carey, of whose excellent work there needs be little said, and Mr. Charles Williams, occupying the baritone position, some commendable singing may be expected.

Mr. Summers, who is the tenor soloist and choirmaster, is enthusiastic. Pictures of the quintette appear elsewhere in this issue. A. C. McMillan, the organist, contributes in no small measure, to the brightness of the musical services.

After the practice last evening a After the practice last evening a so-cial hour was spent, during which light refreshments were served. Mr. Ernest Kent is the able and efficient secretary. Miss Lawry and Miss Jerome will be the soloists at the Sunday services.

Missouri Language.

We are rural folk out in Missouri. Of

We are rural folk out in Missouri. Of the State's population—outside the three great cities pushed to the State's very boundary lines—less than 8 per cent. are dwellers in towns of 4,000 inhabitants. We are inclined to speak an archaic language.

Missourians say school "takes up" — some once said school "takes in." "I couldn't get to go" and "that's all the far the lesson goes" I have heard in Missouri. The good Missouri housewife whose hot biscuits—hot biscuits are delightfully Missourian—were praised rewhose not bleedies—not bleedies are de-lightfully Missourian—were praised re-plied: "They are not as nice as com-mon." "I wouldn't choose any" is to be price. They are not as nice as common." "I wouldn't choose any" is to be heard in Missouri, though this expression, as others that I quote, is not altogether confined here.

"Pack" is yet used by some Missourians in the sense of "carry," as "let me pack that for you." "Carry" is used in Tennessee for "escort" or "conduct," while "tote" is wholly Virginian. But even "pack" and "carry" are of classic parentage.

I have heard in Missouri and in other States an expression that may be dialect or slang, but which to me at least always suggests a smile. Speaking of visiting delegates, a good woman said. "I can eat 'em but I can't sleep 'em."

Missourians worthy of the name pronounce the name of their State without the hissing sound of the "S." They remember that the name Missouri comes by way of the Latins from the language of the Indians and not by way of the dictionary from the language of the snake. It is Mizzoury, not Missouri, the school teacher's dictionary notwithstanding. And the English language is nowhere spoken with more purity than in this good State of Missouri. As or the Missouri dialect—there is none.

But, you say, there is one expression that is peculiarly Missourian, colloquial, provincial, of you please. You Missourians say "you all." Yes, true. All we Missourians say "you all." Yes, true. All we Missourians say "you all." But so do all who get their English from the seventeenth century direct and uncorrupted—not Missourians alone. In an apostlie benediction which you may hear each Sabbath, if you will, or read in the King James version of the English Bible, it is said: "The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all."

THE ENGINEER GOES TO JAIL.

Kennedy Gets Eight Months For Causing Wreck.

Conductor and Fireman Get Off After Severe Lecture.

Forgetting No Excuse-Public Must be Protected.

(Special Despatch to the Times.) Guelph, Ont., March 6 .- The last act might be set to trainmen in the santence of Kennedy. Kennedy was held directly responsible for the accident. He was the man to give the signal for the switch and had not done so. Lane and Fleming were also guilty and guilty even of manslaughter had the charge been made such, but he would not sentence them. They would go through life knowing they had been responsible for two human lives and that they would be held acountable when they met on that farther shore.

His Lordship spoke at great length upon the responsibilities of trainmen in their duties and in following up the rules. In this case all the crew had errors. rules. In this case all the crew had crred in the same particular chain of events causing the wreck. They had depended one on the other and this the rules of the road and the law of the country did nto permit. Accidents were not bad luck or misfortunes in the eyes of the law. They were crimes chargeable to the men in charge of the train. "Engineer Kennedy," His Lordship said, "the law cannot accept the excuse that you forgot when you were bound to remember. Lives of men are not to be endangered by permitting one in charge of a dangerous article, be it fiery horse, automobile or railroad engine, to act upon a wrong impression, if the means for removing such wrong impression are at band."

A constant and rather strict surveil is being maintained on the Ar lington premises, according to the To-ronto News.

Provincial Detective Greer told the reporters yesterday that he was not up here in connection with the Kinrade case. He visited the offices of the solicitors of Mr. T. L. Kinrade with Provincial Detective Miller, and later went to the Court House and conferred with Crown Attorney Washington.

The two Provincial was a conferred with Crown Attorney Washington.

The two Provincial men and two local sleuths, Coulter and Bleakley, left police headquarters in a body shortly after 2 o'clock. They were rather mysterious about their movements, and tried to shake the reporters. They appeared rather annoyed when followed, and separated, going in different directions, meeting at the Kinrade house later. Ernest Kinrade, the eldest son, accompanied them. He was in police headquarters with the officers for some time before they left for the Kinrade home. At the house the officers remained for some time, but they declared to-day they had nothing for publication as a result of their visit.

Provincial Detective Miller appears to be confining his attention to Hamilton. He is back here again to-day, but hurried past the newspaper men, and declared that he had nothing new for publication. The papers throughout the country are taking a great interest in the case. A force of staff correspondents from Toronto has been augmented by reporters from Montreal and Detroit.

The theory that an inmate from the Asylum, suggested early in the case, but never seriously considered by the police, might have been the murderer, is refuted by an investigation at that institution. The first point on which assurance was made sure was that all the patients were accounted for on the fateful day, and that no signs of undue excitement or mental disturbance, such as would follow such a deed, had been noticed. The regulations are so stringent and enforced with such discipline that any breach would quickly be brought to the attention of the medical superintendent. The only source from which the officials would anticipate trouble is the department for criminally and dangerously insane inmates, the Hamilton institution having been made the asylum for patients of that class. Here are confined nineteen unfortunate of homicidal tendencies, who are not usually demonstrated the decidency.

The Scason's Delicacies. asylum for patients of that class. Here are confined nineteen unfortunate of homicidal tendencies, who are not usually dangerous, but still not fit to be allowed their liberty at any time, while in another ward are eleven others whose mania is so pronounced that they are always kept within the walls. These patients are guarded by, on an average one man to every four, and are subjected to as close and rigorous a discipline as is meted out to "lifers" in a penitentiary.

outside of these is a privileged class of impates that has never displayed any dangerous tendency and is treated rather as if in a convalescent ward in a hospital. They are free to come and go, practically at will, when their actions will not conflict with their duties or the regulations of the institution. But their movements are sarefully watched, and all must report for meals But their movements are sarefully watched, and all must report for meals and be inside when the doors close at 8 o'clock at might. They are under strict discipline, and the employees of strict discipline, and the employees of the institution are subject to a system of penalties that ensures a faithful per-formance of their duties. The clothing of all inmates is searched every night, and any sign of undue mental excite-ment is carefully noted, and special attention paid the subject. With all the supposed danger from a manaca outbreak, the officials and guards are not permitted to carry firearms or weapons of defence in any shape or form. This fact would almost in itself dispose of the theory that the Kinrade murder was the deed of one of the immates, as it would be practically impossible for an insane man to secure a revolver, commit the deed and return to the asylum without displaying some evidence of the unusual experience through which he had passed.

Among medical men there exists a theory that the person who killed Ethel Kinrade may have been temporarily insane, but the mania was directed towards the victim and was the result of a jealous rage or a murderous hatred. But the absence of motive handicaps this theory as it does all others, and, outside of the detectives, no one has much of go on.

Guelph, Ont., March 6.—The last act in the trial of the Stratford trainmen, Conductor Fleming. Fireman Frank Lane and Engineer Cornelius Kennedy who were members of the crew of the ill-fated train which, on January 27th, took the wrong track at Harriston and caused a fatal collision, was played this morning at the County Court House, when Justice Riddell passed judgment on these men, found guilty of criminal negligence. Engineer Kennedy was sentenced to serve eight months in the county jail, while Lane and Fleming were allowed their freedom on heavy szeurities. His Lordship, in delivering his judgment on the men, referred to the ever increasing toll of blood that is being exacted from the public by the railroads in the country, and hoped that while the other men charged might not be deserving of sentence. that an example might be set to trainmen in the sentence of Kennedy. Kennedy was held directly responsible for the accident. He was the man to give the signal for the WAS THIS THE FENWICK MAN? would indicate that he is a fair marks-man. Whether this is the man who shot at Smith in the yard the other night is purely a matter of conjecture, but the descriptions furnished by coun-ty officers and by the neighbors near the Kappelle house, though both very meagre, are not unlike. The two patched together make a fair description, and the police are following that idea.

TOOK PHOTOS TO-DAY. The detectives were at the Kinrade house again this morning, and were accompanied by a photographer. The pictures will be used at the inquest on Wednesday night.

HEAR, HEAR.

(Brockville Times.)

Mr. Kinrade, of Hamilton, the father of the young girl who was so mysteriously and tragically murdered the other day, expresses himself as highly indignant at the stories circulated about the affair and threatens to sue some papers for slander. We are not surprised and do not blame him. The most cruel and unwarranted stories have been put into circulation in connection with the case with a savage and cold-blooded disregard of the feelings and the good name of the Kinrade family. The tragedy itself was surely lamentable enough without adding to it slanderous suggestions and suspicions which are wholly unjustified.
