FRIDAY, JULY 23RD, 1886.

GODERICH, as a summer resort, seems to have knocked London silly.—[Hamilton Spectator.]

HON. O. MOWAT, premier of Ontario, is rapidly recovering from his recent severe indisposition. Long may this Canadian patriot be spared to his country.

Rev. Mr. McDONAGH, at the recent Orange pow-wow at Exeter, said "He was an Orangeman before he was born." It is unnecessary to say that McDONAGH is a devoted Tory.

We are pleased to record that Goderich Model School has shown up rather creditably in the recent entrance examination, compared with outside schools.
The number of pupils who have written for the first time and passed shows that excellent work must have been done in Miss Blair's class to fit them for so rapid a transit through the principal's room. We are glad to see these marks of improvement in the central school.

CLERGYMEN, if they wish to study human nature, and would see the peculiar influence of the liquor traffic upon court testimony, should go to Scott Act trials, and take notes. There is a subtlety, a mesmerism, about this illicit drinking that is very interesting to the student of theology or psychology. It almost seems as if with some of the weaker natures the baleful influence emanating from the liquor traffic acts as a solvent of truth and honor. And yet we firmly believe that a man who would not tell the truth in a liquor case would lie in any other emergency. The fault is with the man, not with the law.

The cowardice of the Macdonald Government has been exemplified in the case of the Chambly election. Early this year D. Thompson, Reform representative of Haldimand, died, and in reply as to when the election to supply his place would be held, Sir John A. Macdonald declared in the House that no election would be held until the new voters' lists were prepared, etc. Mr. Benoit, Conservative member for Chambly, a Tory stronghold, has just been appointed to a lucrative Government office, and an election is to come off immediately on the old electoral list, as the Government fears the newly enfranchised voters of Quebec. Haldimand has been vacant several months longer than has Chambly, and yet no election will be held. The moral is obvious. Guilt has made a corral of the boodie administration.
Although Chambly has been Tory three to one, the Liberals are pluckily fighting for the seat.

Rev. Mr. WEBSTER is an excellent preacher, and on the whole has given such satisfaction during his two months sojourn in Goderich; but the information he received as to the attitude of the Scott Act party after the recent election misted him into making a rather unfair reflection upon the temperance people of this place. Mr. Webster deserves credit for his candor, but he is none the less mistaken in his premises. The greatest objection the anti-Scott people had against the temperance meetings was that they were made too religious. The temperance men and women met for prayer before, and for thanksgiving after the conflict. True, things might have been said that were disturbing to the tender feelings of the liquor men and their supporters; but the charge that the temperance people taunted and jeered the liquor dealers into breaking the law is not correct. Considering the feeling that prevailed before the election, the advocates of the Scott Act comforted themselves with very good taste and temper after the fight was over. Mr.
Webster was misinformed, and we understand that today none regrets more than he that the temperance people should have been described as they were on Sunday evening.

BLAKE ON MANHOOD SUFFRAGE

It must be remembered that though the Liberal party are committed to the repeal of the Dominion franchise act, yet it is committed to manhood suffrage if there must be a Dominion franchise.
Mr. Blake, speaking at Beaverton, made this clear when he said:—

"But I have declared in the House and I repeat here, that if there is to be a Dominion franchise, inasmuch as the Dominion does not touch questions relating to property, and having regard to our system of taxation, under which every man who is not a pauper must pay a share toward the customs; and having regard also to our system of defence, I should favor as the only sensible Dominion franchise, residential registered manhood suffrage. It would be the simplest and plainest. It would make no very serious difference with reference to the character of the franchise, it would avoid the complication, doubts, uncertainty, and in a large measure the expense, of the present system."

The above expression by the Liberal leader represents the prevailing Liberal sentiment.

CONDEMNING THE PAPERS

There are wise on the green in educational quarters. Some of the papers submitted to candidates for entrance to high school examinations have been such as to call forth protests from the local boards of examiners. The following resolution passed by the local board for this district is in the line of popular opinion on the subject:—

This board is of opinion:

1. That the papers in orthography, orthography, grammar, and history were unfair and objectionable, not only on account of their difficulty, but also because in some cases the questions are put in such a way that the candidates failed to comprehend them.
2. That the effect of giving such papers is to discourage teachers and pupils, and to exclude from the high schools many candidates who are anxious to attend them, and who, from their age, attainments, and other circumstances, would be likely to profit by the training which they afford.
3. That the result will be to injure the high schools by unduly limiting the number of pupils attending them, and by making them unpopular with the community at large.

NOBLE WORDS

Hon. Mr. Mercier is being received with enthusiasm in his native province as he makes his tour among the constituencies. His utterances are statesmanlike, and former Conservatives are flocking to his standard by the thousands. He is a lover of peace and good will, and the following temperate and liberal words, delivered on July 14th in Pontiac county, are in marked contrast to the rant and bombast indulged in by the Orangemen at Exeter two days earlier. Of course the Mail found no place for these patriotic words:—
"It was the custom of his opponents to represent him in English counties as a terrible bigot. He was a French Canadian and a Catholic, and was proud of it; but had been from early life taught that every honest man was entitled to be respected, no matter what was his race or his religion. (Applause.) If there was a man in the province disposed to respect or protect the rights of minorities, he was that man. When the little Protestant church in St. Hyacinthe was destroyed by fire, he had gone among his Catholic friends soliciting subscriptions towards rebuilding it, (cheers), and today he enjoyed the respect and support of the Protestants of that city who knew him best. (Applause.) All should remember that they were Christians and Canadians engaged in the great work of promoting the common good. (Great cheering.)"

We present this week a letter from our New York correspondent, giving a series of pen pictures of scenes on "Sailing Day" at a New York port. The writer is a gentleman of varied accomplishments, who visited Goderich on the 1st of July, and expects to be an annual visitor. His letters will be welcome, as he writes in a charming style.

The London Advertiser shows up Sir John Macdonald's cowardice on the Riel question when the matter was before the House of Commons in 1878:—"When the commutation of Riel's outlawry was before Parliament Sir John Macdonald himself withdrew from the House. When the question was put he escaped with a haste that could scarcely have been surpassed had the building been on fire. Sir John Macdonald subsequently boasted to a friend that the world would never know how he would have voted had he remained."

LORD HARTINGTON and Mr. Chamberlain have refused to become parties to a coalition government, and the Tories are not so sanguine of success in cabinet making.

WHAT'S UP?

Things That Are Happening Around Us.

Something About the Big Boom—Wizard Oil Philosophy—A Dominion General Election Imminent.

—It is now some eight or ten months since the Big Boom agitation was started in Goderich, and nothing has been done save a useless expenditure of public money in a Will-o'-the-wisp pursuit. I merely draw attention to this fact, to show that when, some eight months ago, I made certain pertinent remarks on the question, and pointed out the absurdity of the alleged scheme contemplated, I wasn't far from the truth. I said then that the agitation was a municipal election dodge; that there was no scheme before the people; that the fathers of the agitation had no conception of the subject in hand; that the idea was an absurdity so far as Goderich at present was concerned; and that as soon as it had served its purpose, it would be allowed to go to the shade until a future municipal election required the "stalking-horse" to be trotted out again. Of course I got a heap of abuse for my temerity in thus exposing the Boom absurdity—and my lamentable ignorance was severely commented upon. It was, to use the language of the Boomists,
"conclusively shown that a well matured scheme was before the people," and after the poll at New Years it was claimed by the promoters of the agitation that the overwhelming voice of the ratepayers showed that I was little short of demented. But I knew better. I knew that ninety-nine out of every hundred of the men who voted for the Boom didn't know what they were voting for, and the hundredth man had only a vague conception of the contemplated project; and I knew that a few brief moments would set me and my opinions right-end up with the ratepayers of the town. Today I feel assured that my course last December and January was the correct one, and I have the satisfaction of knowing that pretty nearly every ratepayer in town has by this time become convinced that the Big Boom of 1885 was, after all, only a municipal election dodge. I expect to see an attempt made shortly to galvanize it into life for a similar object for the elections next January, but I have more faith in the gumption of the majority of the ratepayers than to believe that they will be caught twice in succession with the same kind of chaff.
If the question comes up again I would advise the neighbors before voting to hunt up the local papers containing the report of the "Big Boom Mass Meeting" last year, and read what was said then, and contrast it with what has been done since. Then if they take any stock in the scheme, it ought to be easy for them to qualify for permanent residence in a lunatic asylum. Nevertheless, look out for the second coming of the Big Boom, for the larger part of the year is already passed, and the municipal election again draweth nigh.

—Have you been up to attend the Wizard Oil concert? You haven't.
Well, if you haven't, you're the only one in town that's missed the show. Nightly during the stay of the troupe, there has been a large turnout, and I don't wonder at it. The musical part of the program was good, and as it was an open air celebration, and no charge made for admission ticket, and no silver collection was taken up during the song service, pretty nearly all the pious neighbors took in the whole program. And while I'm on this point, did it ever strike you, gentle reader, that charging at the door often strengthens the conscientious scruples of pious people, and just as soon as the admission to an entertainment is free, they do not see anything objectionable in the performance. I've known cases where the pious neighbors thought I was "falling away" because I went to see Van Amburgh's managerie or Barnum's circus, and such like, and when I came out when the clown was getting of his venerable "chestnuts," I've found the breath-ers on the outside straining their ears to catch the "gags," or standing with open mouth before the picture of the fat woman, the living skeleton, the Circassian lady, the sword swallower, the tatooed Greek, or some such monstrosity.
Of course, the deacons had conscientious scruples against going inside the canvas, and the more especially as the tickets cost 50c or 35c a piece; but I could never help thinking that if it was a sin to go under the canvas, the man who went on the common to look at the pictures on the outside, and who left his business to gaze on the procession, or who followed the brass band and the lion's cage about a dozen blocks or so, was stepping on forbidden ground. I thought so then, and I think so still.

—Whenever I see a man make a great ado about going to a concert, or a menagerie, or any such innocent amusement, where an admission is charged, and afterwards meet him at the free show, I am reminded of the horse that used to wear a "poke" down in the pasture field, and was thereby distinguished from the others. Naturally he was as much as or more buoyant than his fellows that didn't wear pokes, but the wearing of his poke kept him from sporting himself as he would have wished. However, if a section of the fence between the pasture and the cultivated field was by any means displaced, I noticed that the horse with the poke always got into the grain field with the other critters, and took as much fun out of the picnic as any of them. When you take down the fence, by giving a free show, the man with the over-cupulous "poke" only too often acts in the same way. It isn't his "poke" that keeps him from frequenting every show that comes along—it's the price of admission that fences him out.

—It wouldn't surprise me to learn that a Dominion election would shortly be sprung upon us, although the general opinion now is that such a thing is improbable. I am not in close communication with any of the authorities at Ottawa, but I have been putting two and two together, and I've come to the conclusion that four is the result. You see, last session of Parliament was a bad deal on the Government party, in a number of ways, and the amount of corruption and jobbery unearthed and exposed was unprecedented. It shocked even some of the hide-bound supporters of the Government, and wholesale desertion from the ranks was only hindered by the fear that a dissolution of the House would be asked for by Sir John, and many of the present Tory members would be buried politically forever and forever. The Tory organs held this menace over the kicking members like a whiplash, and thereby kept them steady in the traces, although many of them couldn't with a good grace stomach the doings of the "Boy" Beatty, John White, Mackenzie Bowell, Woodworth, and others of the same brood. The manner in which the Tory press squinted towards an early dissolution finally excited the Grits, and meetings were held from one end of Ontario and Quebec to the other, for the nominating of candidates and dissemination of useful knowledge concerning Tory corruption in high places. Then came on the Provincial elections in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, when it was seen that the sun was not shining brightly upon Torydom, to any great extent.
The upshot was that the word was passed that no general election would be held in 1886, and there the matter rest.
But, notwithstanding this latest statement, I have an unflinching belief that an early dissolution of the Dominion House is on the tap, and we'll likely stumble upon it pretty soon. There's trouble in Manitoba which Sir John's presence will not cause to abate; Quebec will shortly hold a Provincial election, and under existing circumstances it looks as if Mounseer Mercier is likely to carry the Province, in which event the Dominion Government would be handicapped if they awaited a regular dissolution until an adverse Legislature held possession of that Province; Ontario's legislative election will come off next year, and Mowat's prestige as a constitutional lawyer and a first-class local Premier would help the Dominion Grits if the elections were held simultaneously, and Sir John doesn't want that to occur. But the principal reason why another session of the Dominion House is not likely to be held before another election is because Sir John is afraid that some exposures of a damaging nature might be ferreted out if another Dominion session were held, in which case he has everything to lose and nothing to gain by delay. Take my word for it, we'll have an early dissolution of the present Parliament, and Sir John will endeavor to cover over his sins of omission and commission by claiming all the credit possible for having built the C. P. R. five years ahead of the time specified. If this prediction doesn't come true I'll retire from the prophecy business, and content myself with chronicling contemporary events and past incidents. AJAX.

NEW YORK LETTER.

Steamer Day in the American Metropolis.

Nights and Scenes on a New York Dock—A Glimpse of the Passengers—Compliments Passing Freely.

From Our Own Correspondent.
The general postmaster of Goderich, who is at present taking a well-earned vacation in the land of his sires, had informed me that the Circassia, of the Anchor Line, was to carry him over to "Fair Scotland." With a well defined feeling of regret that I was not the postmaster, I at all events decided to go as far as the dock with him, and in so doing the scenes and incidents peculiar to steamer day were impressed upon me, as a phase of human nature likely to interest the people of the interior. The roar of escaping steam betokened

THE HOPE OF SAILING

to be near, and one had to shout their good-byes at a pitch scarcely consistent with the subdued feeling to which the occasion gave rise in the hearts of many.
Going from the fore-part of the great ship where tearful women stood on the deck gazing up the narrow gangway at some loved face that perchance was never to be seen again, one could observe that the cabin narrow lines of the vessel were contained all the elements that go to make a community. The opulent merchant, the sober old minister of the gospel, the dandy with a loud pigtail suit and the inevitable cane and cigarette, twelve hours later I should like to have seen him; ladies in neat travelling attire blissfully unconscious of the impending miseries that are peculiarly their lot at sea;—all crowded on the main deck aft.
One could observe but few tears at this end of the ship. Once, indeed, as the clanging bell rang all visitors ashore, did I observe a young creature whom "Sairy Gamp" would certainly have called a sweet "ayrup," bury her streaming face in the bushy gray whiskers of her grandfather as he heavily walks up the more ample gang path provided for saloon passengers. But one could see that well-bred people do not want to give way to natural feelings at such times. At least, if they do they don't. Possibly it is the style just now. Propriety itself was present, and the advent of the

LATE AND ALMOST LATE PASSENGER

scarcely provoked a smile, albeit we stay-at-homes laughed, vindictively I might almost say, before he got on board.
In his efforts to settle with the wayman and cab driver on an equitable basis, he lost his temper. They both knew they had him, and judging from the silver that changed hands they certainly made him "feel pale" although his countenance, "like a lobster hue," was beyond changing color. As he mopped his streaming face and subsequently applied the light-end of his cigar to his lips, he turned and glared around with a look which the "Dugal Creator" in "Rob Roy" assumes when he puts the blood-curdling query, "as to whether or not there are 'any more to slew.'" Then in three bounding strides he places himself among the

CALM, COOL AND COLLECTED

cabin passengers like a hot coal in a plate of ice cream. For, as I wandered back in that direction, I could hear "Glasco" very plain, such familiar words as "Saut market," "tripe supper" etc. gave me to understand that some of the stay-at-homes were recalling "Auld Lang Syne." As I came to a stand-still near the place where the gangway had been, but which was now drawn up on deck, I rubbed elbows with what proved to be a Scot of aldermanic proportions, thirty-five years in this country as he there and then announced. He was evidently primed with several dox-on dorris, or parting cups, which at irregular intervals were developing hic-cups. Up on the deck, leaning over the side, stood a powerful but grimy looking son of the heather, who hantingly inquired of the stay-at-home if he had forgotten the days when he was reduced to the extremity of

WORKING HIS PASSAGE

across the Clyde. This rally caused the tear-stained features of the other sex to broaden with smiles, while not a few laughed outright, a trifle hysterically to be sure, but it was a relief from the frigid id zone aft, to hear it all. My friend of the parting cup aptly enough remarked that his countryman on deck did not seem to have washed his face since those days, and when the roof that succeeded this retort the vessel began to back out with a prolonged "bo-o-o" from

THE FOG WHISTLE

that awakened in the minds of those who have travelled the Atlantic the tortures of sound that night and day while a fog lasts seems to penetrate the very rug with which you try to stifle the ears in your efforts to get sleep. Out we rush pell mell to the end of the dock. There they are, a National liner for Liverpool, a Red Star liner for Antwerp, a White Star liner also for Liverpool, a fine new French steamer for Cherbourg, and a Monarch line ship for London. There must be somebody of note on that National line, for she is not quite headed down stream when

OUT DARTS A SIDE WHEELER

and the strains of music float over to us, as running close alongside the great steamer she keeps up by vigorous paddles to the speed now beginning to tell.
Now far in rear the Circassia dips her ejors in graceful compliment to the country she is leaving, and 'mid much waving of handkerchiefs, hats and canes glides out towards her destined track of three thousand miles a little 'writhe within herself. R. I.

ENTRANCE EXAM.

A List of Successful Candidates, with Their Schools and Teachers.

The following are the names of the candidates passed or recommended by the local examiners. Required to pass one-third on each subject, and one-half, or 377 marks on the total, 750. The names are given in order of merit:

GODERICH.

- Beatrice Finlay, 398, Ashfield, Mr. Johnston.
- James Mitchell, 489, Goderich M. S., Mr. Embury.
- Celia Connor, 475, 2 Ashfield,
Mr. Nevin.
- Beatrice Stonehouse, 468, Bayfield, Mr. McCosh.
- Sara Heddie, 447, 2 Colborne, Mr. Morrish.
- Rose Strang, 441, Goderich M. S., Mr. Embury.
- Lizzie O'Keefe, 438, 2 Ashfield,
Mr. Nevin.
- Minnie Campbell, 428, Goderich M. S., Mr. Embury.
- Naomi Swaffield, 419, 6 Goderich, Mr. Rogan.
- Maud Ratoon, 414, Goderich M. S., Mr. Embury.
- John Hogan, 412, 7 Ashfield, Mr. Matheson.
- Christina Howkins, 409, Port Albert, Miss McGee.
- Charles Garver, 404, Goderich M. S., Mr. Embury.
- Agnes O'Donohoe, 404, 2 E Wawanosh, Miss Jones.
- Edward Garrow, 400, Goderich M. S., Mr. Embury.
- Rosalie O'Reilly, 399, 2 Ashfield,
Mr. Nevin.
- Florence Bell, 396, Goderich M. S., Mr. Embury.
- Maud Waters, 395, Convent S., Sister Gertrude.
- Minnie Asheson, 388, Goderich M. S., Mr. Embury.
- Carrie Smith, 387, Goderich M. S., Mr. Embury.
- Alice Reid, 384, Goderich M. S., Mr. Embury.

COUNTY NOTES.

Local News From Many Sources.

John Barron, of Birch, broke three of his ribs today by falling from the Nile while working for J. McVittie.

At the regular meeting of Huron Lodge, No. 22, I. O. O. F., held Thursday evening, Bro. L. F. Tomp, P. G., installed the following officers for the current term: Bro. F. F. Lawrence, N. G.; G. Green, V. G.; John Strickland, R. S.; Geo. Silvers, F. S.; Will Campbell, W. G.; S. Malcomson, A. G.; C. W. Andrews, conductor; Wm. Elliott, I. G.; John Nairn, O. G.; A. Saunders, R. S. V. G.; M. J. Proudfoot, L. S. V. G.

The addition of Paris green to the list of farming implements has given a new danger to life. Paris green is one of the most dangerous of poisons, inasmuch as it is cumulative in its effect. A man may take a little into his system today and a little tomorrow and by and by the fatal poison will have its effect. Many fatal accidents occur by the use of Paris green used by unskillful or negligent persons, and many more through its being used in malice. The laws relating to the sale of Paris green ought to be rigorously enforced throughout the Province as we observe they are being in some sections.

THE HONEST, THE THOUGHTFUL, AND THE ROUGH.

A number of our more honest, or rather more thoughtful subscribers, who happened to be in arrears, paid up their little scores during the week. Other honest folk, not so thoughtful or prompt, failed to do so. There are others still, who are as honest as the north star, but who are as thoughtless as a hare, who are trying our patience and credit, and tempting the diabolical crew. These persons must oblige us very soon by paying up; if they don't, we will oblige them. We expect to hear next week from the honest subscriber who has from inattention to small matters fallen in arrears with us.

SIR RICHARD CARTWRIGHT.—Sir Richard Cartwright has given a farewell address to his constituents. Mr. McMillan, president of the Reform association, who represented the constituency, South Huron, heretofore in parliament, and who resigned the seat to make way for Sir Richard Cartwright, will be the candidate at the next election. In delivering his farewell speech at the Bruceville convention Sir Richard gave a review of the work of last session, and pointed out in a telling manner the corruption and misgovernment now going on at Ottawa. He exposed the testimonial dodge, and showed how the taxes were being raised, and the Dominion deposed, and the country generally suffering from the maladministration of the Tories. He had written on the wall was debt, deficit, rebellion and secession. If the people choose wisely to remain blind they must take the consequences.

Capt. S. A. Murphy, of the Detroit wrecked, was in Buffalo recently getting estimates from the Union & Mills shipyard of the cost of repairing the propeller Quebec, now at Collingwood, which was turned over to him by the underwriters recently. Murphy says that her hull is not in such bad shape after all. He thinks that an expenditure of about $5,000 will make a good freight carrier for her as she is—of $15,000. L. Dimick offered him $10,000 in cash, which he will not sell her. It is his intention to cut her down into a freight propeller, replacing her wooden crown arches with steel ones. Most of her damage is on her upper deck works, her bottom being comparatively little injured. Her machinery is reported in good condition. Murphy's preference is to bring her here for repairs and alteration, but this point will not be decided till he has received all the estimates for the work. He thinks she would be a profitable boat for the Chicago and Duluth and Kingston trade. Murphy says he has realized nearly $6,000 out of her cargo. According to these accounts he got a pretty good bargain, after all, from the underwriters, in place of the $17,500 he was to get for delivering her at Collingwood.

A Literary Coup D'Etat.

Of all the surprises which the reading public has been treated by Mr. Alden's surprising Literary Revolution, perhaps the most remarkable is the fact that two of the choicest and most famous books in modern literature, Washington Irving's "The Sketch Book" and "Knickerbocker's History of New York," are just published in style worthy of this most widely celebrated and universally honored of American authors. The two books together form one of the nine volumes of his works also just published. The type is large, leaded, beautiful; the two volumes bound in one comprise 609 pages; the binding is half Morocco, marbled edges. The only other edition in the market that at all compares with this or rivals it, is advertised by the publisher at $3.00 per volume. Mr. Alden's price when sold in sets of nine volumes, is a little less than $1.00 per volume. He now offers this single specimen volume until September 1, 1886, for the price (if it can be called a price) of 50 cents, by mail, postage paid. This offer is without restriction or condition; if there are a hundred thousand, or half a million of those who share pleasure in the works of Washington Irving, who want the volume, he says he will fill their orders as fast as his printers and binders can turn them out. If you want to complete your set after you have received this volume, you can of course do so by paying the additional price for the applicant, or the Illustrated Catalogue, $22 pages, for four cents. Address, John B. Alden, Publisher, 393 Pearl Street, New York.

Expect to Win.

There is a great and growing feeling among friends and foes that we shall win at the next election (cheers), and this faith in the improving fortunes of the Liberal party should animate our friends; depress our opponents, influence the neutral, and largely weaken some of the influences which have kept us heretofore in a minority in the East.—[Huron, Edward Blake at Simcoe.]

An Inevitable Fog.

The poisonous germs of disease are lurking in the air we breathe and in the water we drink. The system should be kept carefully purified and all the organs toned to proper action. This can best be done by the regulating, purifying and tonic powers of Burdock Blood Bitters.

Merchants can get their Bill Heads, Letter Heads, Etc., at the office for very little more than they generally pay for the paper, and it helps to advertise their business. Call and see samples and get prices.

Unknown.

There is no remedy known to medical science that can exceed Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry as a cure for Cholera Morbus, Diarrhoea, or any form of Summer Complaint afflicting children or adults.

LABOURS.

Mr. and Mrs. G. of Goderich, who have been married for some time, are in no danger of being back-washed. It is reported that the wife is a very good housekeeper, and the husband is a very good provider.

Dames.

Miss Janet Nicholson, of Goderich, visited here last week. She is a very pleasant and agreeable visitor, and her stay was very enjoyable.

OUR THANKS.

To the fair maidens of Goderich, who were so kind as to send us a beautiful and useful gift, we tender our sincere thanks.

Much sympathy is expressed here for the former townsman, R. Jewell, which was duly delivered to us by the faithful messenger.

The new mammoth barn of the Laird of Lansdowne Farm is being erected by our architect, and a staff of workmen, with his eye foremost, Mr. Birnie, of Goderich, who seems a very capable and able contractor. Dunlop welcomes him.

RATHER CROSS.

A few days ago two little girls, aged six and three, and their mother, were passing through an orchard to a farm house, their admiration of a fine brood of turkeys did not suit the turkey hen. With a motherly opinion rather too strong, she made a serious attack on the youngest child, kneeling her down, and pecking her, but the elder's cries brought aid, and the little one was rescued without being badly hurt.

Fort Albert.

The schooner Enterprise has returned from a trip to Port Austin. She is in good order, and her cargo is well preserved.

Dr. Roeve, Jr., of Clinton, is about to locate here. The doctor is at present the guest of Jas. Mahaffy.

The Tories are disgusted with the result of the recent court of revision at Duncannon. They hoped for better things.

Teamsters are hauling stone from Ball's bridge for the erection of the new bridge here. By the way, wasn't this contract, that is, the building of the bridge, completed by the 15th of the present month? It is now the 14th, and there are but a few loads of stone drawn yet. We think that in justice to the other parties who tendered for the contract, the contractor should be awakened.

OUR HARBOR.

The township council, acting upon the desire of a large number of petitioners, about the opening of the last session sent Reeve Griffin to Ottawa for the purpose of securing a grant for the harbor. The reeve, who was accompanied by Geo. Hawkins, of this village, received the promise of the Minister of Public Works that the dredge would be sent to Port Albert early in the spring, and also that a sum of money would be placed in the estimates for pile driving, and some other repairs in connection with the harbor. We were delighted with the result of our reeve's mission, but our delight has been changed to disgust. There wasn't a dollar placed in the estimates for P. A. No, not one solitary dollar. Sir Hector Langens's faithful promise that Port Albert harbor should receive due recognition in his estimates was entirely disregarded. And that is the best of the fun in it, that if there is any fun in it, is that the Tories are trying to make some political capital out of it. And what do you think they say? Why, that M. C. C. Q. C. M. P., has been to him and he has replied, "Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cleansed my blood, and when that was done, my skin, which was worse than yours, began to look smooth and healthy, as you see it now."

As to what becomes of the soul between death and resurrection, Mahomet is silent. Says Professor Palmer: "The general opinion is that there is a limbo somewhere or other for the souls of the wicked, who are imprisoned in some foul dungeon to await their doom." The duties required by the Keran are profession of faith in one God, and the mission of Mahomet, prayer, fasting, almsgiving, pilgrimage. Prayers must be made five times daily, and the time is called from the minarets of the mosques by criers. Fasting is exacted between dawn and sunset all through Ramadhan, the ninth month of the Moslem year, and only the sick and infirm are allowed to even drink water at this time. Almsgiving, or "poor salt," is the gift of one-fourth of all property that shall have been in the owner's possession for a year, to charity. The pilgrimages existed long before Mahomet's time, and it would have been impossible for even him, great as was his influence, to have abolished them.—[L. F. L. in Cleveland Leader.]

A Red Breakdown.

It is a common thing now-a-days to hear one complain of feeling all broken down with a faint, weary, restless languor, with strength and appetite nearly gone, and no well defined cause. This is general debility, which Burdock Blood Bitters promptly relieves, and most invariably cures.

In the history of medicines no preparation has received such universal commendation, for the alleviation it affords and the permanent cure it effects in kidney diseases as Dr. Van Buren's Kidney Cure. Its action in these distressing complaints is simply wonderful. Sold by J. Wilson.

TABLE OF MAHOMET.

No editorial or other utterance on Mahomet's defeat has quite the same effect as the clear putting of the case of Gerald Mahomet's poem in the London Daily Telegraph. The Grand Duke's name is mentioned in only two places, but they tell the whole story, and tell it well.

Unpleasantly surprised, we were, by the news that the Grand Duke had been defeated. We had heard that he was victorious, and we were glad to hear that he was not.

So far ahead our English leads the laurels tell us he is not. Our victory lies the onward way! Bring back the colors to the rear! For those who fight the battle there! No! no! far forward he stands fast, first with the colors to the rear. No cry of lagards will be heard; Xena's they shall lead.

The men still lag, but the colors are planted, and the legends must march to them or be replaced.—[Detroit Free Press.]

Not a particle of calomel or any other deleterious substance enters into the composition of Ayer's Cathartic Pills.

On the contrary, those who have used calomel and other mineral poisons, as medicine, find Ayer's Pills invaluable.

A Plain Speaking Priest.

OTTAWA, July 5.—On Sunday last N. McCaul, one of the collectors for the Irish Parliamentary Fund, drove out to River parish, in the township of Deception, a short distance above Manotick. Before mass he requested Rev. Father McGloey, parish priest, to announce the reading of a list of names of persons who had subscribed to the Irish famine fund two weeks ago, to the amount of eighty-six dollars. His reverence then said, you are called upon today to subscribe for another fund, which I know is a great strain on your financial resources so soon, but it is for a very noble and undertaking. The Rev. Father, Mr. Gladstone, after being defeated on the second reading of the Irish Home Rule bill, has decided to appeal to the British people to see if they will decide in favor of peace, property and contentment for the nation, or for a government of the Tories and a buckshot, as this was all the Tories intended to give the people of Ireland. This is the reason you are called upon to subscribe on the occasion to avert that dreadful calamity. The reverend gentleman said we have a government at Ottawa, the most corrupt in the world; they were elected to make just laws for the people and for the welfare of the whole people. But in his opinion they were only making laws to fill their own pockets. Curran, Costigan & Co., he said, to use vulgar phrase, were a raiding crew. He hoped when the general elections came around they would vote for Tom Hanabury, for Hanabury could do no injury, and he had no sons to vote timber limits to. In conclusion he said his congregation to be liberal in their subscriptions on this occasion, and that Mr. McCaul, from Ottawa, would receive their subscriptions outside the church.

Unanswered Questions.

Professor Bailey, of the Michigan Agricultural College, demonstrated to the agriculturists a science not to be despised, and propounds a few interrogatories for those who think otherwise to answer: Why are the trees smaller and rounder, fruits better and colors intenser as we go northward? Why do plants become variegated and why variegation contagious? Why do plants germinate quicker and at lower temperatures in countries? Why is the apple hardy and the fig tender? Why do latent characters sometimes appear in offspring? Why are small plants most fertile? Why does the Kittatiny blackberry rust when many others do not? Why does the apple succeed as a root-graft when the pear does not? Why are some flowers white and others yellow on the same plant? Why do potatoes run out? Why do American strawberries vary, while European ones do not? Why do cuttings taken in the fall become calloused on the wound? Why do plants like the poisonous propogator when taken northward? Why do cuttings of the yew require two years in which to root? Why does the sassafras lose much of its characteristic aroma when grown in England? Why do some plants take from hardwood cuttings and others only from soft-wood cuttings? Why do some seeds require two years in which to germinate? Why does not the hore-radish produce seeds? Why do peach trees sometimes produce neektines? Why does the Canada Egg plant fail to grow on the peach while most other varieties succeed on it? In short, why do plants grow?

Dangerous Fits are often caused by worms. Freeman's Worm Powders destroy worms.

Be on Your Guard.

Don't allow a cold in the head to slowly and surely develop into Catarrh when you are cured for 25 cents. A few applications will cure incipient Catarrh. One or two boxes will cure ordinary Catarrh. One to five boxes will cure chronic Catarrh. Sold by James Wilson at 25c per box. Try it—take no other—it will cure you.

A Midnight Alarm.

There is scarcely any fright more alarming to a mother than the ominous sound of cough—so liable at the hour of night. When Hagar's Pectoral Balm (for the throat and lungs) is at hand, cough and distressing coughs lose half their terrors. It cures coughs, asthma and bronchitis.

A Well-Told Tale.

1. An intoxicating drink, or an artificial drink which will increase the force of the system, will do more harm than good. It will increase the force of the system, but it will also increase the force of the passions, and it will do more harm than good.

2. A man who is very anxious to meditate the use of a cold room, a medicine who cannot be induced to take a bath—as a dream.

3. A woman, kind and obliging to her neighbors, with smiles, comforting words, for the unfortunate, her heart overflowing with sympathy, who will not eventually find herself surrounded with "good neighbors."

4. A man who prefers hunting and fishing—while the others are doing their "spring work"—who attends horse-races, political meetings, and the like, who is blest with good crops.

5. A boy who lounges about stables, slaughter-houses, billiard-rooms, liquor saloons, etc., when sent to school, who is more "wild oats" than wheat, who will succeed in after life, amounting to any more than a "common loser," or a third rate citizen.

6. A man who thinks it necessary to resort to profanity to confirm any statement made by him, who will prove himself worthy of credence in an emergency.

7. A man who generally fails to do as he agrees, under any ordinary circumstances, who resorts to tricks, "sharp practices," when only his word has been given, whose note or his bond will be at par in any place where he is well known.

8. A girl of seventeen, intelligent, honest and capable, who honors and respects her mother, introducing her to her "city cousins," though the mother is attired in her kitchen dress, favoring such a mother on all occasions, willing to do the hardest work, who will not make a good wife.

9. Honest highway robbers and politicians, who are as anxious to prompt the welfare of the public, as their private ends.

10. A duck that detests water, or a boy who seeks the companionship of smokers, who will not easily learn to smoke, or a regular use of the lighter drinks, who will not turn a taste for whiskey, in after life.

11. A man who has no honest neighbors, who does not know anyone whom he can trust, who is ever fearing that he is cheated, who will not defraud when it is possible to do so and avoid detection.

12. One who is proud of his abilities, who boasts of his attainments, who will not be generally arrogant and overbearing, with less than the usual of reliability.

How a Dude Caught Cold.

A slim young man in the height of fashion was violently sneezing in a street car, when a companion remarked, "Aw, Charles, dear boy, how d'y e catch that dreadful cold." "Aw, dear fellow, left my case in the lower hall to-day, and in sucking the ivory handle, so dreadful cold, it chilled me almost to death." If Charles had used Dr. Harvey's Red Pine Gum his cold would not trouble him very much. For sale at J. Wilson's prescription drug store.

Sore Eyes.

The eyes are always very sensitive, and the body is very liable to be affected by the condition. When the eyes become sore, and the lids become swollen, it is an evidence that the system has become disordered by some of the causes mentioned by Dr. J. C. Ayer's Sarsaparilla in the best known remedy.

Sore eyes, which produce a painful inflammation in the eye, are cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine is a purifier of the blood, and it is the best of blood purifiers.

My eyes are now in a splendid condition, and I am as well as ever. I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and it has cured me of my sore eyes. I have used it for several years, and it has cured me of my sore eyes. I have used it for several years, and it has cured me of my sore eyes.

For a number of years I was troubled with a humor in my eyes, and was unable to obtain any relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine has effected a complete cure, and I believe it to be the best of blood purifiers.

From childhood, and until within a few months, I have been afflicted with weak eyes. I have used many different remedies, but with little success. I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and it has cured me of my weak eyes. I have used it for several years, and it has cured me of my weak eyes.

I suffered for a year with inflammation in my left eye. Three surgeons formed on the ball, depriving me of sight, and causing great pain. After trying many other remedies, to no purpose, I was finally induced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and

By Taking three bottles of this medicine, have been entirely cured. My sight has been restored, and there is no cloud of inflammation, nor sore, or ulcer in my eye.—Kendall T. Bowen, Sugar Tree Ridge, Ohio.

My daughter, ten years old, was afflicted with Scrofulous Sore Eyes. During the last two years she never saw light of any kind. Physicians of the highest standing exerted their skill, but with no permanent success. On the recommendation of a friend I purchased a bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which my daughter commenced taking. Before she had used the third bottle her sight was restored, and she now looks steadily at a brilliant light without pain. Her cure is complete.—W. E. Sutherland, Evangelist, Shelby City, Ky.

time there was a shade of annoyance in Bertie's tone.

"I certainly don't want to interfere with your arrangements," said his cousin.

"I have nothing to say except that in all your arrangements you should be careful how you manage in this part of the world. Airie is in the ruins, and directed my attention to you."

"The deuce he was!" exclaimed Bertie. "That's unfortunate."

"A fine story he will carry to Morven's ears," Bertie continued. "Now I wonder how I can circumvent that old shaver most effectively."

"The best plan would be not to have to circumvent him, I should think," said Anthony, getting up and almost knocking his chair down in the process.

"Eh! Why of course it would; but there's no alternative. What on earth are you looking so black about, old fellow?"

"You're going to see that Lillias Rutherford would wish you to act?" said Anthony, sharply.

"Lillias will be a very different girl from what I think her to be if she's not Bertie's girl when she knows what I'm doing," returned Bertie.

Anthony paused for a moment. "It may be that I have been utterly mistaken," he said at last, in a constrained tone; "but I'll tell you this much, Bertie, I was not alone in my march. Airie is evidently convinced that we're making a mistake in the girl—flirting with her, or something despicable of that sort—and he, as well as I, thought the position a desperately unflattering one for you to be found in at this time."

The room had grown so dark that he could not see his cousin's face, but he noticed that Bertie took the cigar from his lips and held it in one hand until it went out, as if he were deep in thought. Then he spoke.

"And you thought that too, did you?"

"Tell me it wasn't so and I shall believe you."

"No, indeed," Bertie answered, rising from his chair and throwing the half smoked cigar into the fire. "Not I. It did not occur to me that you would want telling."

He walked out of the room, leaving Anthony to ponder over this response at his leisure. It was the first time that the two men had been perfectly in accord; and there was a tone in Bertie's voice which Anthony had never heard before.

CHAPTER XXIII. TRUE OR FALSE.

Lady Lillias's recovery did not make the progress which was expected from her sojourn in the Swiss pension. When the end of September came she was still white and languid. Beatrice was sorry to see the girl's face sometimes when she thought that nobody was looking; it had grown much thinner, and its expression was touchingly sad. The separation from Bertie, especially while he was ill, told upon her spirits. Beatrice tried to cheer her by hopes of the future, but it was only too evident that very little could be expected in the way of concession from Lord Morven, whose opposition to the marriage was steady and unyielding. He wrote to them from some place in the Tyrol, whither he had finally directed his steps, and concluded one of his letters with a request—virtually a command—that he should hear no more about Bertie Douglas from either Beatrice or Lillias in future. His wish was that all communication between his family and that misguided young man should be entirely broken off.

"Misguided young man! What has poor Bertie been doing?" said Lillias, opening wide her lovely eyes.

Beatrice shook her head. "Renewing his application for you," she said, with the intention of making Lillias smile. But Lillias had no smiles left.

"Morven is not kind, as he used to be," she said slowly. "There was once a time when he would give me anything I asked for."

"Ay," said Beatrice with an involuntary sigh, "and there was once a time—when Lillias, we do no good to anybody by these melancholy reminiscences—least of all to ourselves. Look, there is our friend, Mr. Wiggins; he will amuse us."

"He does not amuse me," remarked Lillias, daintily. She drew her little feet under her gown, and made herself as straight and small as possible on the sofa of the boarding-house drawing-room where she and Beatrice had been sitting. It was just possible that Mr. Wiggins would not see her and would pass on. But there was no chance of that. Beatrice's graceful figure was rather prominent; and Mr. Wiggins knew where to look for it for the slightest and more delicate form which always Miss Esquilmont's sheltering itself beneath Miss Esquilmont's protecting wing. He came forward, hat in hand, blushing very much at his own boldness, but fortified by a consciousness of encouraging letters from Dr. Airie, and Lord Morven's consent to his proposal in his pocket. He was a tall, fair, awkward-looking youth, with a retreating forehead and chin, a large mouth and small nose, pale blue eyes and a shock of chestnut hair. It could hardly have been imagined by Stephen Airie that a young man of this this exterior was likely to win Lady Lillias's heart away from Bertie Douglas; but Mr. Wiggins was very rich that the doctor thought it possible for her to prefer him to wealth and worldly position. Indeed he quite expected her to accept Mr. Wiggins before her return to Scotland.

At present, however, things did not look very promising. Lady Lillias had consented—a great dislike for the young manufacturer's impudent attentions; and Beatrice, who knew better than she did what was coming, while secretly indignantly, was also secretly amused by the way in which she made Mr. Wiggins feel himself, as the Americans say, "of no account."

She smiled a little as she saw Wiggins approach, and the young man, fawningly took her smile as a tribute to his distinguished appearance. He was dressed with great correctness, on the whole; but he had not avoided the temptation which besets all men and women of uneducated tastes—that is to say, he was loaded with jewellery. His rings were beyond price, and his valignary was quite beyond measure. He had a bouquet in his hand, and Beatrice felt certain that he meant to offer it—and, perhaps, himself with it—to Lillias if he had the chance.

Beatrice had been requested in a letter marked "private," written to her by Lord Morven, not to stand in the way of Mr. Wiggins and his suit. Therefore, as soon as that gentleman had uttered a few sentences of commonplace about the weather, the scenery, and the guests, she made an excuse for leaving the drawing-room for a few minutes. "Let him get it over if he wants to speak," she said to herself impatiently, as she recalled the glance of dismay which Lillias had darted after her retreating figure. "Then she can send him away and there will be an end of it."

She went into her room and waited expecting Lillias to come very speedily. But the interview was a long one. Could it be possible that the poor young man was too shy to come to the point at all? Beatrice smiled as she asked herself the question. "At last, however, she resolved to go back. She had given Mr. Wiggins opportunity enough. She had done what Morven had told her to do, and now she would help Lillias.

As soon as she entered the little sitting-room she knew what had happened. Lillias was standing erect, with an unwonted color in her face, a haughty light in her eyes. Mr. Wiggins, scarlet, congested indignantly, presented a very complete picture of angry mortification.

At Beatrice's entrance, Lillias flew to her side with an appealing gesture. "Tell him to go, Beatrice," she said rapidly. "Tell him he is mistaken. I will never, never believe that my brother allowed him to come to ask—"

Her agitation was so great that Beatrice thought it well to interrupt her. "You hear what Lady Lillias says, Mr. Wiggins," she observed quietly. "She has given you your answer. I think we had better wish you good morning. Come Lillias."

"I won't be trifled with like this," said Mr. Wiggins thickly. "I'm haughty, or come to me I am; I've got Lord Morven's letter in my pocket."

"I know that you have been authorized to make your proposal," said Beatrice, "and that it is surely all you can expect. It was left for Lady Lillias to answer."

"I've been tricked," said the young man, whose face was purple with rage. "I've been lied to and cheated; that's all. I was told that it was a settled thing—she would have taken the trouble to come to ask—" knows all the same. "I have no wish to see Mr. Wiggins's letter. He would not let me see it."

"But it's all in the letter," repeated the other manufacturer. "It shows—"

"You may leave it with me, if you like. I presume that you have no further use for it."

"Not a bit. If I was like some men, Miss Esquilmont," said Mr. Wiggins, as he laid a folded paper on the table. "I might just send that letter to the newspaper. It would show what sort of a man Lord Morven was. People wouldn't speak so high of him as they do now. But I'm not that sort of a man. I'll say nothing about it for Lady Lillias's sake and for yours, because you have spoken so free and friendly, not been stuck-up and haughty-like as I'll be bold to confess. I always thought, yes. And now I'll say good bye, for I see you're looking tired. My respects to Lady Lillias, and I'm sorry it was a bit rough the first moment or two."

"Good bye, Mr. Wiggins," said Beatrice, forcing herself to smile. "I trust that you may soon meet with somebody who will make you happier than I think Lady Lillias would have done."

"Thank you, miss," said Mr. Wiggins. "I hope I may, but I don't think it. There can't be nobody like Lady Lillias in the world." And Mr. Wiggins took his leave in a very dejected state of mind.

He looked wisely. "I am so weak I can hardly move, all run down with a Chronic Summer Complaint," said one gentleman to another on our street the other day. Now, take my advice, replied his friend, "go to your Druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I have never known it to fail in curing any kind of Summer Complaints."

Organic to Take the Place of Organs. A Woodstock correspondent writes: "The largest hotel in this town has closed forever as an hotel, and is now being fitted up by Mr. Kerr as an organ and piano factory. This is how the South Act falls in Woodstock. We are looking for a number more such failures."

A Special Change. The best medication of foul humors of the Blood is Burdock Blood Bitters. A few bottles produce a radical change for the better in health and beauty. It removes the blood taint of Scrofula, that terrible disease so common in this country.

A teacher took an apple from one of his boys during school hours. After a while the teacher ate the apple while the pupils were busy with their sums. The lad noticing this, began to cough. "What is the matter with you?" inquired the teacher. "Oh, please, sir," answered the little boy, "the apple has gone down the wrong way."

Don't do it. Do not wait. If suffering from pain, do not wait for the nearest drug store and buy a sample bottle of Polson's Nervine, the great pain cure. Never fails to give immediate relief. Jordan's Block, Goderich, 23rd July, 1886.

DECORATION DAY.

The Oddfellows indulge in a Little Sentiment and Parade.

The Oddfellows of Goderich, to the number of about 40, headed by the band, marched in procession to the cemetery on Tuesday afternoon.

Arriving at the cemetery, the members circled around the grave of the late Major Cooke, who had been commandant of the escampment, when Rev. G. F. Salmon, an Oddfellow, delivered an oration.

The following graves were then decorated by the brethren named below:-

MEMBERS OF GODERICH LODGE.

W. T. Hayes (a former Mayor) by Judge Toms.

Major Henry Cooke, by H. W. Ball.

Capt. McLeod, by H. A. Nairn.

W. J. Somerville, by James Robinson.

A. C. Simmons, (late editor of the Star) by C. W. Andrews.

M. McPail, by James Yates.

W. Churchill, by Joseph Beck.

Robt. McKay, by G. A. Nairn.

Thomas Johnston, by J. W. Smith.

A. Knoehaw, by F. W. Johnston.

B. Neibergall, by Wm. Acheson.

STRANGERS, BY BROTHERS.

Wm. Rutherford, of Gore Lodge, 34 Brantford, buried here, grave decorated by W. Mitchell.

Wm. Smith, of Bertie Lodge, Ridgeway, grave decorated by W. B. Matthews.

NAMES MENTIONED.

The names of the following four members of Huron Lodge who were buried elsewhere, were "mentioned" by the Lodge.

Past Grand Andrew Kirkby, buried at Orlinton.

Paul Campbell, buried in Brantford.

James Sanderson, buried in Wawanosh.

C. E. Sleight, P.V.G., buried in Winnipeg.

The intention is to make this grave decoration annually a pleasant one, and the members returned at an early hour, seeming but little fatigued by the exercises.

Scott Act Case.

John McBride, of the Albion hotel, Goderich, was brought before Mayor Horton, on complaint of Licenses Inspector Yates, charged with having on or about the 6th, and between the 6th and 6th days of July, disposed of intoxicating liquor, contrary to the provisions of the Canada Temperance Act.

Mr. H. Campbell pleaded "Not Guilty."

The Inspector asked for an adjournment, the witnesses not having turned up. He desired time to get the witnesses on hand.

The Presbytery met in Knox church, Goderich, on Tuesday last. Dr. Ure was appointed moderator for the ensuing six months. Elder's commissions were renewed and the roll for the year made up. Commissioners to the Assembly save a report of their attendance at the Suprema Court of the Church. The Commissioners of Finance and the Superintendents of Students gave reports respectively. The Presbytery took up the subject of Arrears of Stipends within the Bounds, with a view of having all such arrearages removed. The Assembly injunction as to the celebration and calendar year, was dealt with, and steps taken to secure the object aimed at.
Mr. John Young, M. A., was invited to preach the Gospel in the usual way.
Mr. Dauby resigned his pastoral charge of the congregation of Bayfield Road and Barnes. The session was then disposed of at a special meeting of the Presbytery, to be held in Union church, Brookfield, on the 27th inst., at 11 a. m.

On behalf of the committee appointed to draft a deliverance on Sabbath Observance, Mr. McCoy submitted the following: "Whereas, a strong tendency is manifested in certain quarters to hold funerals and other processions for display on the Lord's Day; and, whereas, many are interrupted in their public and private devotions by such processions; and the quietness of the Sacred Day is thus broken up and an element sadly out of harmony with the discipline of Christian training introduced into the experience of the Day wherein these processions are held, he is Resolved that this Presbytery take this opportunity of expressing its disapproval of the practice of holding funerals on the Sabbath except in cases of necessity; moreover, that ministers within the bounds be recommended to discontinue by all due means such processions and gatherings as are fitted to break down the reverence for the sacred day which is claimed for it by the Holy Scripture." The foregoing was unanimously adopted.

Mr. McLean reported that in accordance with the request of the convenor of the Assembly's Home Mission Committee, he forwarded to Rev. Mr.
Thompson, of Vancouver, British Columbia, his disjunction from this Presbytery that he might be prepared to unite with the new Presbytery to be formed on the Pacific coast. Mr. McLean's conduct was approved of. Mr. McDonald stated that he had a letter from Mr. Thomson, and that he desired that the brethren in this Presbytery should remember him and his congregation at Vancouver in the loss which they sustained by the recent fire there.

The following are the standing committees for the year:—Home Mission—Mr. Macgregor, (Convener.) Messrs. Mc-Donald, Simpson, M. Y. McLean, Habkirk, D. Bell. State of Religion—Messrs. Acheson, (Convener.) Barr, Danby, Carnie, McEwan. Finance—Messrs.

Pitchard, McCoy, Dobie, Mitchell.
Temperance—Messrs. Martin, (Convener.) Fletcher, Carriere, Whitford, D.
D. Wilson, McCurdy.—Sabbath Observance—Messrs. Ramsay, (Convener.) A.
McLean, McDonald, Riddle, McCoy.
Superintendence of Students—Messrs.
R. Y. Thompson, (Convener.) Dr. Ure, A. McLean, Barr, Riddle, Broadfoot.

The next regular meeting of the presbytery is to be held in Exeter on the 2nd Tuesday of September.

Deaths.

PERSONAL.—Mr. Webster, student of Knox College, who has filled the place of J. A. McGillivray B. A., during his absence, will preach his last sermon on Sunday. His sermons have always won his hearers' attention.

News.
Geo. Pontland has returned from his trip up the lake.

Miss Bates, of Goderich, is spending a few days at the residence of R. Ryan.

Mrs. H. Cook, of Plum Creek, Man., is at present visiting her daughter, Mrs.
R. McIlwain, of this place.

Fall wheat promises to be largely over an average yield this year. We think there are some fields of fall wheat in this region that will beat any in the county.
If any person doubts this, come up and see one on Hugh Girvin's farm, and there are lots more we could mention.

A SUCCESS.—The union teaming held in W. L. Clark's grove by Nile Sabbath School and the Nile Orange Temperance True Brides, No. 1062, was in every respect a grand success. The day being one of the finest that could be desired and the committee of management being found at their post in every case, helped to make the day pass off pleasant and agreeable to all, and every person seemed to have come to enjoy themselves. The game of foot ball between the Dauntless and the Juniors created quite an excitement, the Dauntless winning the game after a long and hard contest.
The platform meeting was well carried off. The choir was occupied by the superintendent of the Sabbath school.
The following clergymen were present: Revs. J. Turner, of Auburn; W. F.
Campbell, our own pastor, and F. Nugent, of Lucknow. Mr. Nugent's address on Sabbath school work in general was the ablest we have ever heard here. We should say the speaker has a living experience of his own in this line, and he is willing to give it to others if they will take his advice. His remarks to the Orange brethren was well put, and only requires application on their part to enable them to be seen and admired by others.
The foot ball match was conducted by George McPhoe, and he gave entire satisfaction. The Nile choir furnished the music for the day, and we would say it did better than ever it did before.
After the usual votes of thanks the company dispersed to their respective homes, feeling satisfied with the proceedings of the day. About four hundred people visited the grounds. We wish many returns of those social gatherings.

Things a Housekeeper Should Know.

- That salt should be eaten with nuts to aid digestion. That milk which stands too long makes bitter butter. That rusty flat irons should be rubbed over with beeswax and lard.

Home Hints.

- In Great Britain the question of Home Rule is commanding attention. To the man with a cold in the head or chest the safest way to ensure Home Rule over a cold is to have on hand a bottle of Dr. Harvey's Red Pine Gum.

The Best Yet. There is no preparation before the people today that commands their confidence more than the Pills of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

The Gallipoli, Ohio, Journal, has been gathering the opinions of its readers on the tobacco question, and the following is what an honest plowman has to say about it:

I should like for it to contain the name of the man who can stand up and truthfully say that the first tobacco that he placed between his molars tasted good.

Also, the name of the young man that would prefer a bride with a pipe in her mouth.

Also, the name of the man that has good, sound sense, and has used tobacco ten years, that has not wished himself clear of the habit scores of times.

I should like to have the address of the man who can live on tobacco alone and nothing else.

Please have the name of the man inserted whose breath is improved by the use of tobacco.

I should like to have the name of the young man that offers his best girl his plug of natural leaf and a stoga.

Young man, she has just as good a right to use it as you have.

I want it to inform me where I can procure a suit of clothes that could be improved by blotches of filth from a tobacco-chewer's mouth.

Also have it contain, (in large type) the advantages the tobacco-consumer has over one who does not indulge.

If tobacco is good to chew, why is it not good to swallow? Please publish the reason.

It is my opinion, Mr. Editor, that tobacco is a curse to the American people, socially, physically, and financially; and that the raising, manufacturing, selling and consuming should be outlawed.

SMITH'S FALLS, July 13.—The stable and outbuildings belonging to Wm. Graham, license commissioner, were burnt this morning.

SMITH'S FALLS, July 13.—The village has become most notorious since the passage of the Soot Act. On Saturday night the glass was broken in the store window of the Rev. Duncan Campbell.

Have you ever tried McGregor & Parke's Carbolic Ointment for sores of any kind? It is beyond doubt the very best preparation in the market for healing and curing Sores, Ulcers, Burns, Cuts, Pimples, Blisters, and is the only proper method of applying Carbolic Acid.

London, Ont., July 14.—A man named Sydney Burden, who was recently sent from here to serve six months in the Central Prison for larceny, came back a few weeks ago as the "Rev. Duncan Campbell."

London, July 13.—At the regular fortnightly meeting of the National League today the treasurer announced that the donations received from the United States for the Parliamentary Fund within the past two weeks amounted to $80,000. T. M. Healy in an address, said although Irishmen were disappointed at the result of the elections, they should not be dependent.

A young midshipman lately went out to join his ship. He was met on deck by the captain, who said, "Well, young fellow, so you come to join us. I suppose it's the old story—the fool of the family—eh? Haw, haw!" To which the midshipman replied, "Oh, no, sir, it's like everything else—all changed since your day!" The captain decided not to pursue the question.

Sincerity is an openness of heart; 'tis found in a very few people, and that which we see commonly is not it, but a subtle dissimulation to gain the confidence of others.

Our work is not to train a soul by itself alone, nor a body by itself alone but to train a man; and, in man, soul and body can never be divided.

"Why, Franky," exclaimed a mother at the summer boarding house, "I never knew you to ask for a second piece of pie at home." "I knew 'twas no use," said Franky, as he proceeded with his pie-eating.

A little fellow, living in town, between 3 and 4 years of age, was asked what his kitty did in a fight between her and a dog. "Well," said he, "she lunched up her back as high as she could; she made her tail as big as she could; and then blew her nose in his face."
