Florence Turner in
The Shadow of the Guillotine.

A thrilling melo-drama of the French Revolution. That stirring period when the French Nation was on the verge of Republicanism is taken as the setting for this most impelling Vitagraph production. Every vital incident of its absorbing story is brought out with marked fidelity in costumes and historical data, and the film is unquestionably a masterpiece of its kind. The finale—when the Conquerer demands the execution of the Rebel and his fiancée—stands out most prominently, and will create an impression with the audience. All admirers of high-class acting, perfection of photography, and carefully handled pictures should witness the photo-play now featured at the Nickel during the mid-week show.

A MYSTERIOUS QUEST.

CHAPTER X.

MISS ROGERS OF DETROIT.

"What do you mean?" sprang from the lips of the startled girl he was addressing. He had frightened her and he had aroused her interest. That was what he sought, and he secretly smiled over his success. "I do not understand you. Police courts? Oh, who are you? Not a police officer, I hope."

"You might make a worse guess, Miss Rogers. I am a detective grown old in the service. But that need not alarm you, for my experiences have not made me either hard or pitiless. The gentleman you refer to is a rogue. That is why I am here and why I beg you to listen while I make clear to you the narrowness of your escape from a man without honor or respectability."

"Oh! Oh!" came in hurried pants from her white lips. Her face had lost its disdain, and the eyes she fixed upon his were wide open and pleading. There was no evil in them only the shame of a proud nature caught in an act of folly. "What are you telling me," she cried. "A rogue? I think you must be mistaken. I know a gentleman when I see him, and though I am only seventeen, I am not so childish as to be entirely deceived in those I meet. We are talking about different men or you are the victim of some mistake."

"We can easily determine that," said he. "What is the name of the gentleman of whom you are speaking?"

"I would rather not mention names."

"He was not looking at her; he never looked at any one; but for all that, his eyes had a peculiar expression, for which the pen wiper he was honoring with his gaze may have been responsible. But I doubt it."

"No names?" he replied. "Very well, we will try to get at the truth in some other way, then."

And taking a paper from his pocket, he opened it deliberately, then, laying it on his knee, put on a pair of glasses and observed:

"I am going to read to you a description, not of the gentleman in whom you have such confidence, but of another, equally nameless, who has been seen fitting around a young lady of the same name as yourself, living, but a short time ago, in Fifty-sixth street."

And lifting the paper, he read aloud these words:

"According to the description given by such persons as have observed this gentleman, he is tall, well-formed, affable in manner and pleasing in address. His complexion is medium, his hair and mustache dark, and his eyes gray. He is what would be called by all persons a gentleman, and by most a handsome man. He is above all a strong character, bearing evidence in look and carriage of great force of disposition and a determined will."

The detective paused, folded the paper and laid it on a table near by. Miss Rogers was blushing.

"That as I have informed you," continued the other, "is what persons say of the man who paid court to, or at least, showed his interest in, the young lady I have mentioned, by hovering about her steps and following her to church and other public places. She has since died, so I cannot get her description of him but must rely upon that of her friends. Did you ever see anyone like him?"

The abashed girl bowed her head. She was trembling in every limb but she did not choose to speak, and he did not urge her to do so.

"You will pardon me," he now pursued, "if I trouble you with a second description. This is of a gentleman who lately began the persecution of a young girl also bearing your name, but without the worldly advantages belonging to yourself or to the last-mentioned lady. She was a working-girl, but pretty, good, and, to all appearances, happy, till she came across this gentleman. He is said by those who have seen him, to be tall, handsome, prepossessing-looking, of age about thirty, complexion medium, hair dark, a large mustache and gray eyes. Did you ever see such a man as he?"

"Don't ask me. You startle and surprise me beyond all endurance. What does it all mean, and what is there in the name of Rogers that only persons of that name should receive this man's attention?"

"It is not only the name of Rogers," remarked the detective, kindly. "Each one of these girls was a Jenny also."

"A Jenny? You frighten me, sir; or rather you awaken my suspicions as to your veracity. Is it true you have been telling me? Have you not been amusing me with fairy-tales. I cannot believe—"

"Miss Rogers, you were sent into my presence by Miss Hadden. Had she possessed any doubt of my integrity, she would never have risked the displeasure of your guardian by encouraging this interview. You may trust me; all that I have told you is true."

"Then I have indeed been inveigled into a doubtful proceeding by a most despicable rogue. The description you have given of the man who followed the young lady who has since died, and who had begun to follow another—"

"Who has since died?"

"Sir?"

"The poor working-girl has suffered the same fate as that of the young lady of Thirty-sixth street," declared Mr. Gryce. "Neither was killed, yet both have perished; one from malignant fever, the other from over-excitement preying on an overheated form."

"Oh, where is my guardian? I wish to go home. I am afraid of this horrible New York. It is full of deceit and shame and misery."

The detective saw she was on the verge of hysterics, and waited respectfully for her self-possession to return.

"I am sure," he observed at last, "that your guardian will be one of the first to urge your return, if he can be convinced that you are in any danger. If you will tell me just what has passed between you and this man—"

"Oh, very little; so very little that I am overwhelmed at the indiscretion which led me to leave the school just to see a person whose personal appearance had attracted me. I do not understand now how I could have allowed myself to listen to him. I am horrified at myself, and I hate him so that—"

"That you are only anxious to see him punished. Is not that so, Miss Rogers?"

"Anxious? I would give hundreds of dollars—"

"Give me something less; give me your confidence. I will respect it, and only use such facts as will lead to his detection."

"Ah, that is what you want from me. Well, I am only too happy, only—"

She paused, clasping her hands in sudden confusion and dismay.

"What a scandal!" she exclaimed. "How can I bear the shame of it and all the talk? And the police courts—you spoke of them—Oh, do not tell me I shall have to go there. I should die of confusion and horror. My guardian—"

"Do not think of that. If you can be saved from publicity, you shall. At present, we want nothing more than a short account of what has occurred between you and this mysterious person in the short interval of time during which you were absent from the school. Did you succeed in meeting him? Was he at the place appointed? For I take it for granted he had entreated the honor of an interview."

"Yes, yes; but I am glad he failed to come. I went to Jersey City; I, who had never been in the streets before without a companion. He had written me a note—but you shall see it. I cannot keep this matter any longer to myself and you look so good, if you are a detective, that I cannot help but trust you. Besides, perhaps, when you see what tempted me, you will not think so harshly of my folly. I did not mean any great wrong; but was carried away by what seemed so like the romantic adventures of some of my favorite heroines. But then, in books, the lovers are always gentlemen, while mine—but here is the letter. Look for yourself, sir. It came by mail, the day before yesterday. Ah, how long ago it seems now."

She fumbled in her pocket and brought out a note. The detective's eyes glowed; he was attaining the object of his wishes with less difficulty than he had anticipated.

"All that had passed between this person and me, before I received this letter, was an interchanged glance or so. I had passed him in the street several times, and each time he had looked at me in what I thought was an unmistakable way; so I was not surprised at these words, monstrous as they seem to me now."

The detective, meanwhile, had read the effusion which had occasioned so much mischief. It ran thus:

"Dear and Beautiful Miss Rogers:—May an unfortunate, who is not permitted to enter within the charmed walls which at present hold you, pray, utter one word against the tyranny of the fate which restricts him?"

"I have seen you and I cannot be still. I have learned your name and it has become the lodestar of my life. Will you accept an homage that must be secret, and believe in the devotion of one who, if he may not approach you, here swears that he will approach no other woman while you remain unmarried."

"But I must live in darkness and never break the silence which has hitherto been maintained between us? Is there no hope for me, whose only thought is to make you the protecting angel of my life? May I not hope for one word, one look unflinching by the presence of others? If fate can be so kind and your heart so responsive to a noble passion, then remember that for three days I shall spend the hour between twelve and one in the depot at Jersey City. If you choose to pass through the place, you may be certain that one pair of eyes will follow you with a devotion little short of that which a saint casts upon his guardian angel."

"I have no fear that you will hesitate as to who has penned these lines. Have not our eyes told the mutual tale of love?"

"Isn't it dreadful?" cried the now thoroughly disillusioned heiress. "But when I received it, it seemed to me so beautiful and romantic that I was an ecstatic. I never for a minute doubted the writer, and as he had always looked so gentlemanly, I had not one fear of his proving himself other than the hero I had worshipped in my dreams. I decided to make the journey he suggested—it seemed a journey to me—and though to do it I should have to risk Miss Hadden's displeasure, I thought the satisfaction I should receive would make me amply amends for any unpleasantness which might follow. How I managed to obtain permission to go out, and how I contrived to elude the companion given me, will not interest you. I did go, and alone, but I did not find the satisfaction I was in search of. I got lost, went over the wrong ferry, had to inquire my way of policemen, and when, worn out and beragled with dust and stifled with heat, I finally walked into the depot at Jersey City, it was to find by my dreadful staring clock, that I was a whole half hour later than the time he had set for leaving. Oh, it was a dreadful experience! and at first I was so discouraged that I sat down and cried; but afterward, I plucked up heart and began to think it was all my own fault, and that if I had not made so many foolish mistakes, I should have been in time to see him, and save him, perhaps, from a disappointment as cruel as my own. But I was late, and undoubtedly would be late if I tried the experiment again. The distance was great, besides, I did not believe I could get another opportunity of slipping away, or if I did, that I should succeed in eluding my companion. If I wanted to keep my appointment I must stay in the vicinity, and to stay in the vicinity meant a whole night spent in a strange hotel. For a young girl who had never slept alone in her whole life, you will think it took courage to decide on such a step. But I was crazy, carried away by an idea. I did not give the man my right name—the hotelman, I mean—and I did not go down to the table. I stayed in my room all the time, and had my meals brought to me, and was dreadfully nervous and afraid; but all that was nothing after it was over. I did not care for that; all that I did care for was the fact that, though I sat in the depot punctually from twelve to one, no one approached me, nor did I see anyone that could in any way suggest the person who had haunted my steps and written me this note."

"Humph! And that was yesterday?"

"Yes, sir."

"I see, you suffered a cruel mortification, for which you can now congratulate yourself?"

"Oh, yes, sir."

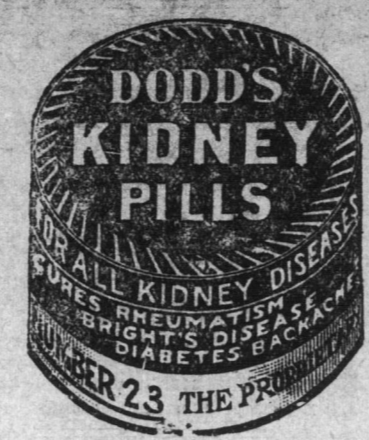

"I am glad you had the courage to return."

"Where else could I go?"

"And there is the whole story? You had no other experience, and have not heard from the man again."

"No, no. How should I, if he is the wooer of a dozen other girls? He has amused himself, and it is over; but if ever I have the opportunity to face him, I will lead him with such reproaches as will make even his wicked heart tremble."

"I am glad you had the courage to return."

"Where else could I go?"

"And there is the whole story? You had no other experience, and have not heard from the man again."

"No, no. How should I, if he is the wooer of a dozen other girls? He has amused himself, and it is over; but if ever I have the opportunity to face him, I will lead him with such reproaches as will make even his wicked heart tremble."

The Evening Chit-Chat

By NUTE CARRISON

The other day I heard a great scholar say that he did not think he should have been half the student a n d scholar he is, if it had not been for a dictionary, which a dear old friend gave him, when he was a little boy, and which he had kept by him and consulted all his childhood.

The words of this scholar started a train of thought in regard to the innumerable little influences like this one which shape our lives. We talk a great deal about "self-made men," but who is self-made, or anywhere near self-made in this world of myriad influences—influences as complex and intertwined as the wires and bars of some great mechanism, and as inevitable as the workings of that machine.

It seems to me that it would be interesting for all of us to pause occasionally and review some of these influences.

The man I spoke of, gave emphatic credit to the gift of the dictionary, but there were doubtless innumerable other influences as important that helped make him what he is. There was some great book which he read at just the right moment, some fine personality that touched him with its fire, some one gripping sermon, some opportunity to do just the right sort of work which a watchful friend pointed out—all these influences and countless others, multiplied by his own inherent force of brain and character, made the product of his present greatness.

Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early age through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glyceric compound, extracted from native medicinal roots—sold for over forty years with great satisfaction to all users. For Weak Stomach, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Pain in the Stomach after eating, Heartburn, Bad Breath, Belching of food, Chronic Diarrhea and other Intestinal Derangements, the "Discovery" is a time-proven and most efficient remedy.

The genuine has on its outside wrapper the Signature

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine of known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

THE ALARM CLOCK.

The alarm clock is a fiendish piece of mechanism which is calculated to uphold the sanctity of the eight-hour day. It was invented by a man with a deep grudge against the human race and a snore which banished sleep from every pillow in the block. This device is one of the most malignant weapons which capital uses in its efforts to overawe union labor. It has gotten so that the alarm clock except for tardiness has become a joke in capitalistic circles and is greeted with derision and a gaping wound in the pay check.

The Kidneys Wear Out

But in advanced years you can keep these organs healthy by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

As old age comes on most people suffer more or less from derangements of the kidneys. With some there are years of pains and aches, with others Bright's disease sets in and the end comes quickly.

Fortunately many have learned about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and are enabled by their use to keep the kidneys healthy and active.

Mr. Richard Preston, Osborne, Eamilton County, Ont., says: "Seventeen years ago I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills when my back was so bad that to stoop or rise was torture to me. The kidneys were in bad condition, but these pills entirely freed me of back pains. I have used them ever since, whenever the kidneys would get out of order, and now, at eighty years, am well and hearty, thanks to this grand medicine."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Fads and Fashions.

This is a season of elaborate and costly materials. We have gone quite mad about brocaded satin, velvet and chiffon metal effects and the rich and luxurious effects for which the coronation was responsible.

A great favorite is the new material called velour de laine—a mixed suiting, almost like camel's hair. It is particularly effective in a white diagonal stripe and there are variations in tan, light blue and gray.

A noticeable feature at some of the recent fashionable events, including the New York Horse Show, was the very decorative cut of the evening gowns, particularly in the back.

Folks Past Fifty Must Use Cascarets.

What glasses are to weak eyes, Cascarets are to weak bowels—a 10-cent box will truly amaze you.

Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.

So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Are is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.

where the point ended well toward the waist.

Lace is often mounted or yelved over a contrasting color in the evening gowns of the moment. White, cream, yellow and black are more favored than the colored ones, but the latter are, none the less, very striking.

Jeweled and beaded caps, such as the immortal Juliet wore, are ultra-modern in the new small coiffure of true classic style. Sometimes tasse's are added at the side; again an ornament in flower or a cabochon.

At the New York Horse Show the black velvet hat was supreme, with black and white as the most prominent color combinations. White ostrich, marabou, gaura and ermine were among the favored trimmings on black hats.

Fur handings and fringe serve as the most approved finish for all sorts of material, and nowhere are these garments more strikingly modeled on simple lines, but of elegant fabric, with little else in the way of contrast.

For evening wear velvet in light colorings is much in evidence, the chiffon variety or that having embossed patterns being combined with chiffon, lace or rich satins. The waist and tunic are usually made of velvet, with chiffon in the underskirt and sleeves.

Lace is used more freely than last winter and it is not uncommon to see several styles in the same gown. There is a strong demand for both the filmy laces, such as Chantilly and "shadow" and the heavier ones such as Renaissance, filet, Venise and various crochets.

The novelty of novelties at present is the long redinsote. The graceful, floating ends, reaching nearly to the hem, are trimmed with fur or galloon. This garment is so elegant and requires such costly material to make it effective that it will be difficult for it to become common.

Ermine sets are more in demand this season than ever. Coats of this elaborate fur appear in greater number. Collarettes, toques or the handsome scarf and muff are exceedingly popular. Designers have combined ermine with black velvet, making lovely fur-sets which harmonize with any color.

Prescription "A"

Cures Indigestion and Dyspepsia in all its Forms.

It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say: "Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache, I feel too tired to do anything. I have no heart to exert myself, and at times I care 'for nothing. I often have a pain in the pit of the stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed, and I often awake with a sense of suffocation and a difficulty of again going to sleep. I have to be careful of what I eat, and my life seems a veritable burden."

Now, it seems a shame and a pity for persons to be suffering like that when it is in their power to get cured by taking a bottle of Dr. Stafford's Prescription A. A sure cure for persons afflicted with stomach troubles. It can be obtained at Review of Football in Scotland.

The team of the year in the first division of the Scottish League is undoubtedly the Glasgow Rangers. The light blue has undoubtedly taken the place held for the past few years by the Celtic, and with the young team at their command they would seem reasonably certain of occupying an important position in Scottish football for several years to come.

The Rangers were defeated to-day for the first time this season in the league, and that by the team which has caused a bigger sensation than any other in football circles in Scotland this year, that is Greenock Morton. It is like old days to Scotsmen to see a "provincial" team occupy the position now held by the Morton and brings up recollections of Renton and other country teams of long ago when the amateur had the field almost to himself and the larger cities with their greater crowd of supporters and consequently larger bank accounts had not captured the cream of the football talent.

So far both Celtic and Dundee have proved big disappointments this season, although the latter are essentially a cup tie team and ever since their organization have been unable to take a truly leading position in the league, race and hold it for any length of time. Both Celtic and Dundee had good wins to-day, the former over St. Mirren and the latter over the always dangerous Clyde. Both of these victories were registered at home, to be sure, but show that these famous teams are rounding into shape and will again be a factor—when the cup tie season rolls around.

It looks as if St. Mirren, Raith Rovers and the amateurs, Queen's Park, will again fight it out for the cellar positions in the league. The decline of the Paisley team this past two or three seasons has been remarkable and is to be regretted exceedingly by all lovers of Scottish football.

To-day's victory of Morton vs. Rangers will do much to brighten up the league table, and the other teams will now go up against the famous light blues with more confidence, now that they have once been beaten.

Minnesota Man Appeals to Taft for Redemption of Life Savings.
Washington, D.C., Dec. 5.—The life savings of Jack Simpson, of Aitken, Minn., amounting to $2,565, securely hidden from burglars, were reduced to pulp by hungry rats and mice, and in a letter received by President Taft he appeals for the redemption of the pulverized fragments by the Federal treasury.

Man Was Buried Twice

Hopkins, Mo., Dec. 2.—For the second time in a quarter of a century, James H. Magee, a recluse, has been lowered into a grave in a coffin. He died this week.

A quarter of a century ago in Burlington, Ia., he was stricken with cholera. He was thought dead, was placed in an old board coffin and was being lowered in a grave when a friend stopped the proceedings.

The coffin was raised, a doctor sent for and Magee was revived. He was nursed back to health. For more than a year, however, he had been in poor health, and there was no doubt of his death when he passed away this week.

Received a Huge Sum.

Indianapolis, Dec. 8.—Hoping to curb criticism of the methods used in obtaining and distributing the McNamara defence fund, a report of all money collected and disbursed up to October 25 was made public here tonight with the consent of Frank A. Morrison, Secretary of the American Federation of Labor, who is the custodian of the fund.

The total amount received up to that date was $194,612.58, and the total expenditures were $184,850.93. No accounting is made of the sums received and spent since that time.

Clarence S. Darrow, chief of counsel for the defence of the McNamaras, had been paid the sum of $170,000. It is stated that Darrow was to pay his assistants from this amount.

Local attorneys who have been looking after the Indianapolis end of the case have been paid $11,000. Frank L. Mullholland, an attorney of Toledo, O., was paid $259.10 for legal services given in that city.

Other items of expense are McNamara buttons which were sold in all parts of the country; $1,120 McNamara stamps; $106.90; representatives expenses for addressing meetings; $291; printing and mailing American Federation of Labor weekly news letter, $1,133.15; postage, $380, and incidentals in connection with the McNamara moving picture films, $250.

Hundred Hunters Lose Their Lives.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—Hunting has cost 100 lives in America this year and has brought serious injury to 37, according to records kept by Chicago Newspapers. The deaths number the same as last year, but the injured totalled less than half of last year's. Thirty persons killed themselves while hunting, and most of them did it while dragging a gun after them, the hammer catching on twigs, boat gun-wheels or wire fencing.

Outside of the deer season, rabbit hunting was the next most dangerous sport. So intent on bringing down the quarry was one hunter that he shot at a rabbit in front of a farmhouse, and the small shot struck six young women who were sitting on a porch, but missed the rabbit.

Canada showed only one death in the list. Michigan had the most, 16; Wisconsin, 13; Maine, 11; Illinois, 14; New York, 9; Minnesota, 7; Pennsylvania, 5; Ohio, 4; Kansas and New Jersey, 3 each; and Massachusetts, Missouri, New Hampshire, North Dakota, North Carolina, Vermont and Washington, one each. Ohio reported the most injuries and Wisconsin next most.

O. T. Wilson, of Gold Hill, Ore., who shot a man several years ago by mistake, this year killed his brother, mistaking him for a deer. One hunter near Phillips, Wis., hunting at night, blazed away at two indistinct objects in the dark and killed his team of horses.

Sold the Model.

Mr. J. Burke, father of Mr. V. P. Burke, is a man well skilled in the art of building fishing schooners, and he sent away for exhibition at the Festival of Empire the model of a new type of "knockabout" after original designs of his own. Seafaring men and men interested in the deep sea fisheries of England admired the model very much, and Mr. Burke sold it to a gentleman and received a good figure for it. Mr. Burke has learned that snacks will be built after his model and those projecting them think they will make good weather no matter how rough it is. The models he is now making will be sent to Gloucester and Boston.

 We thank Mr. John K. Evans for a copy of the Christmas number of the Newfoundland Quarterly. In it there is a racy story entitled "The Ghost of the Old Garrison," by the Rev. Edward F. Curran. Reddin, P. T. McGrath, J. Sinclair Tait, Judge Prowse, F. B. Wood, H. F. Shortis and Arthur E. English.

Steamer Ashore. An Imposing Funeral.

Special Evening Telegram. GIBRALTAR, Dec. 13. The steamer Delhi, from London to Bombay, is ashore on the Moroccan Coast. The Princess Royal, Louise Victoria, eldest sister of King George, and her husband, the Duke of Fife, with many passengers, were aboard. Its position is perilous. Several warships and tugs have reached the scene. A storm is raging, but with the assistance of the French cruiser Friant, the women and children have been landed. The Princess Royal and her daughters are among the rescued. The Duke remained aboard. It is believed there is no immediate danger of the vessel from foundering, but the weather is becoming worse.

LATER.—A wireless received at the Admiralty reports that the Princess Royal and family have been landed at Tangier, and are now on their way to Gibraltar on board a warship.

LATER.—The P. & O. Navigation Co. have received a telegram from their agents at Gibraltar saying that all the passengers of the Delhi have been brought safely ashore and that the salvage work is proceeding. A lifeboat from the British cruiser Duke of Edinburgh received the Duke of Fife and family. The Delhi is lying broadside on the beach.

W.C.T.U. Meeting.

In the Congregational Church Parlor yesterday afternoon the ladies of the W. C. T. U. met and the attendance was large. Mrs. J. E. P. Peters presided, and after the usual devotions, which were conducted by Mrs. Joseph Pippy, the business to be dealt with was taken up. The annual treat will be given the inmates of the Penitentiary Christmas Eve. Every third Sunday services are being held at the institution. Lady members have been selected to bring Christmas good cheer to the inmates of the Poor Asylum Christmas and New Year's Day. The ladies are busy now making aprons, stockings and other goods for charitable purposes. The subject of favoring a Juvenile Branch of the W. C. T. U. was discussed and will be finalized, it is hoped, soon. Mr. Karnoff has agreed to it, a room will be taken in the new Seamen's Home, and the W. C. T. U. will aid young women arriving here from the outports. Some special work to be decided on later, and which take the shape of a domestic science class, night school or sewing circle, will be conducted there, and no doubt the organization will do much good in working thus for the benefit of girls coming to the city.

No Indigestion or Sick Stomach

Gas, Heartburn, Dyspepsia and all misery in Stomach vanishes. Take your sour, out-of-order stomach—perhaps you call it Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis, Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diaprepin and let you eat one 22-grain Triangles and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your former misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the Digestive organs become weak; there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness or many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas, or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diaprepin.

IMPOSED A FINE.—Tuesday night a meeting of the Tailors' Union was held, when it was decided that certain former members who had engaged to work in non-Union shops would be fined $25 each. This fine will be collected from these men if ever they seek for re-admission into the Union.

MINARD'S UNIMENT CURES DISTEMPER.

At 2.30 p.m. to-day the funeral of the late Hon. D. J. Greene took place and was attended by a concourse of citizens of all denominations. The obsequies were of a public character and the order of the procession was as follows:—

Consul-General, Reserve Firemen, Detachment from H. M. S. Calypso, Catholic Cadet Corps, Members of the family of Deceased, His Excellency the Governor, Private Secretary and A. D. C., Privy Councillors, Chief Justice and Judges of the Supreme Court, Members of the Executive Council, Members of the Legislative Council, Members of the House of Assembly, Naval Officers and Brigade Officers, Heads of Government Departments, The Sheriff and Acting Judge, Central District Court, Benchers and Law Society, Deputy Heads of Government Departments, Members of Civil Service, Mayor and Municipal Councillors.

In the funeral procession were clergymen of different denominations, the Christian Brothers and people prominent in social, civic and commercial circles. The route of the procession was from the late residence of the deceased, on Queen's Road, west to Cathedral Hill, along Duckworth Street to Prescott Street; thence to Military Road and the R. C. Cathedral. Interment was in the family vault at Belvedere Cemetery.

Allan Liner Disabled.

At 4.30 p.m. yesterday the Allan Liner Hungarian, Capt. Hamilton, crippled into port with her main steam pipe out of order, and anchored in the stream. The ship was bound from Havre, France, to St. John, N.B., with 1,000 tons of general cargo and was on the voyage 17 days, during which she experienced terrific weather. For the first couple of days out after she encountered a succession of gales, mostly from the westward, and time and again these reached the velocity of hurricanes and created a very high sea, which often swept on board and made the work of navigating the ship a dangerous task indeed. A few days ago, when the storm was at its zenith, the racing of the engines put the main steam pipe out of order, and after the engineers had made temporary repairs, it was decided to bear up for St. John's so that the damage could be repaired permanently. On arrival the employees of the Reid Nid. Co. set to work on the ship, and Mr. Geo. Shea said last evening that they hoped to finish this afternoon and that the ship will resume her voyage this evening.

Though this is the first visit of the Hungarian to this port, her commander is well known here; having been in this service in the Carthaginian four or five years ago. A few years ago, while commanded by Capt. Wallace, the Hungarian went ashore in the neighbourhood of Codroy and was towed off by the Merritt Wrecking Co.'s tug and brought to Halifax. The ship is a fine one, built in 1902, is 4,508 tons gross, 2,873 net, 385 feet long, 50 feet beam and 25.7 feet deep.

St. Andrew's Church.

ANNUAL SALE OF WORK.

Rev. J. S. Sutherland, Pastor of St. Andrew's, opened the Annual Sale of Work last evening at 3 o'clock in the presence of a large attendance. The Hall was nicely decorated and the different stalls made very busy time in disposing of the fancy work, cakes and candy, puddings, etc. Those in charge of the tables were:—

Fancy Work.—Mrs. W. A. Mum, Mrs. W. F. Butler.

Cake Table.—Mrs. R. Anderson, Mrs. J. Syme, Mrs. E. McLean, Mrs. J. Grant.

Pudding Table.—Mrs. T. Curran, Mrs. J. Mitchell.

Candy Table.—Miss G. Jardine.

Partridge Supper.—Mrs. D. Baird.

At night a concert was given in which Miss Butler, Miss Curtis and the Misses Strang took part. Miss Ross played the accompaniments. A partridge supper looked after by Mrs. D. Baird was an enjoyable feature of the programme. The receipts were well up to expectations.

Declared a Substantial Dividend.

The steamers of the Venture Line, the Bonaventure and Bellaventure, yesterday paid to the shareholders a dividend of 6 per cent. on the sum of their earnings in the fruit trade. These ships after the sealing voyage of last spring paid a dividend of 9 per cent., so that the total declared for the year is 15 per cent., a fact which reflects great credit on the management.

In the Grip of the Storm

FOR 15 DAYS.

S.S. "Eidsfos" Enters Port With Her Decks Swept.

Yesterday at 4.30 p.m. the overdue coal steamer Eidsfos arrived in port in a battered condition. Capt. Grung, who left Cardiff on November 23rd with a load of coal for Crosbie & Co., says that it was the hardest experience of his life on the ocean, and several times the foundering of the vessel seemed to be a matter of course. The first storm was met on the 27th ult., after being three days out. The wind blew a gale from the N. W., and no headway could be made. All the following night seas swept the decks and everything movable had to be lashed down. The wind moderated at daylight and by noon of the 28th the ship could make half speed against the wind. At night there came a choppy sea which increased with the wind and the Capt. was obliged to lay to again till morning. The wind veered around to the N. W. and seemed as if nothing above decks would be able to resist its force. The vessel with her heavy coal cargo began to make bad weather, and as sea after sea swept her decks the crew did not hope to be afloat till morning. A heavy sea came over the bow which created terrible havoc and injured the mate badly; he was knocked down on the deck and received a bad bruise on the side. The boats were swept out of the cradles on the deck, smashed up and swept away, the stam bridge and the lower bridge were swept down before a big comb, the companions were smashed off the hatch-covers. One of the crew went and found three feet of water in the hold. First it was feared that the ship had sprung a leak, but Capt. Grung assured the crew that it was only the water that had come in through the hatches and seams caused by the straining of the deck. Even this was bad enough and it seemed to be gaining. The great work to do now was to cover the hatches so that no more water would get down. At the risk of their lives and in danger every minute of being washed overboard, the Captain and first mate succeeded in doing the work. The steam pumps were then set going and next day the ship was free of water. Next day, the 2nd of December, the storm abated and the crew were enabled to repair damages somewhat, especially the steering gear. Capt. Grung made a workable compass by utilizing the parts of the two broken ones. The nights were clear enough on a few occasions to get the guidance of the stars so that they made Cape Spear O.K. yesterday. The crew were completely worn out by salt water. Only ten tons of coal were left in the bunkers; the oil supply was nearly gone and the side lights had to be kept going by oil from the cabin lamps. The crew were greatly relieved when they saw the land yesterday as they were completely worn out and had implored the Captain last week to get in the track of the New York shipping with the hope of being taken off. The Captain's wife who accompanied him on this voyage behaved very bravely, makes quite light of the voyage and her sufferings. It is her first trip over the Atlantic and she will no doubt remember it.

Newspaper Boys.

A newspaper boy was assaulted by two young men yesterday and three cents—all he had—were taken from his pocket. Yesterday a newsboy named Garland, who was out selling the Telegram, was followed by two chaps. He got clear by running into a shop. A policeman who came along was told of the affair by the proprietor of the store. The officer stepped out in pursuit of the young fags but they got away.

The Choir of St. Patrick's will sing the following numbers at the Sacred Concert to be given Sunday afternoon, Dec. 17, in aid of the Church: "From His Love as a Father," from Gounod's "Redemption"; "Praise the Lord," by Weber; "Gloria," by P. An Act of Heroism Carried Out in Simple Obedience—An Instinct of Duty.

If ever the Royal Humane Society medal was fairly won for risking one's own life in saving the life of another it ought to be awarded to Doris Lewis, the thirteen-year-old daughter of a clergyman in the Diocese of Montreal. The incident occurred fortnight ago. It was the first skating of the season on the village pond. The children were out in force trying their skates and chasing one another about in nimble evolutions and graceful circles. When the fun became a little too fast and furious, the younger members of the party withdrew to a point further up the stream, and there in the course of time a little chap of eight years strayed on to thin ice and down went into the water. Doris was the first to see him, and as she said later in her simple, direct way, "You know daddy, I couldn't stand there and see Benny drown." She used her best however, in attempting the rescue. She stretched herself on her face, the ice and wriggled over to the edge of the hole where the little fellow was vainly trying to hold on to the ice which broke at every effort to help himself out. In a very short time he sank and Doris pushed herself in the water and caught him as he rose. She started to swim with him and succeeded in getting into shallow water where she "found bottom" and handed him over to rescuers who had by this time assembled. Having accomplished her task she fainted away and was dragged out of the water in an unconscious condition and did not revive for several hours. Her lives were saved. Doris is a child of thirteen and no one of thirty could have acted more bravely or wisely. It was an act of heroism carried out in simple obedience to an instinct of duty. It had all the elements which have stimulated poets to sing of fidelity and valor in their heroes. The medal must be hers, for no country can have too many such children, and such a deed belongs not to a warlike village but to all the world.—Canadian Churchman, Dec. 7.

From Junior to Manager.

New General Manager of the Bank of Montreal Has Had Steady Rise in Fame—Chief Justice's Brother.

A striking example of the rewards which lie within the reach of every young bank clerk is told in the telegraphic announcement of the promotion of Mr. H. V. Meredith to the general management of the Bank of Montreal. Attention to duty and industry have marked every step in the gentleman's rise to fame and started him as a junior in one of the smaller branches. Mr. Meredith has been appointed to the highest office in the Bank of Montreal.

The new general manager entered the Bank of Montreal at the age of sixteen, getting his chance as a junior in the London, Ont. branch. He had received his education in the public schools of that city, and became the very bottom of the banking ladder.

His appointment as inspector some years later gave him an opportunity to show his real commercial value and from that stage his upward progress has been rapid. He was promoted to Montreal as manager of the branch office, being given the office of assistant to the general manager after ten years' service in the metropolis. His appointment now to the general management, succeeding Sir Edward Clouston, who continues as president of the bank, fittingly caps his financial career. While the new general manager has shown himself to be conservative in his methods, he has never failed to help and encourage legitimate commercial enterprise.

Born at London, Ont., in 1850, Mr. Meredith will be 62 years of age on the 22nd of next February. He is a son of John C. Meredith, and a brother of Sir William Meredith, the chief justice. He was married in 1888 to Brenda, a daughter of the late Andrew Allan, and resides in Montreal. He is connected with the Masonic order, and has served a number of years in the volunteer militia.

A Decalogue For Girls.

CHICAGO PASTOR'S IDEA.

He Condemns "Gushy" Women—Says Society Wastes Time on Cards and Dancing—Could Master Many Arts.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—The "gushy" girl, the lazy one, the gossip, the girl who values silk petticoats above the comfort of her parents, all fall under the ban of the Rev. Wm. B. Millard's latest "Ten Commandments," issued in a sermon at the Morgan Park Congregational Church. They are called the "Ten Commandments for Daughters" and are as follows:

The Decalogue.

1. Thou shalt not deceive thy mother.
2. Thou shalt not exchange the bloom of innocence for the favor and contempt of any man.
3. Thou shalt not esteem silk petticoats and diamond rings as of greater value than the family's general welfare.
4. Thou shalt not regard flattery and false pretence as the highway to popularity.
5. Thou shalt not gossip.
6. Thou shalt not use loud speech nor bold manner to attract attention.
7. Thou shalt not think more of the culture of thy heels than thy head.
8. Thou shalt not hold the cup to thy brother's lips; much less to the lips of somebody else's brother.
9. Thou shalt not imitate the fine lady's languor while thy mother washes dishes and sweeps the house.
10. Thou shalt find joy in the service of God who created thee.

Don't Gush.

Dr. Millard supplemented each "commandment" with an epigrammatic explanation.

"Few things," he said, "are more repellant than a gusher. Compliments, like kisses, lose their value as soon as they become promiscuous.

Mother Best Confidant.

"The daughter who impairs the sweet intimacy between herself and her mother by placing her confidence elsewhere sacrifices one of life's rarest treasures.

"The man who coaxes a girl to step across the line of modesty is the first to despise her for doing so.

Don't Be vain.

"Eagerness to keep up appearances in a fast set leads many a girl to turn the family bread and butter into expensive clothes and jewellery.

"The gossip is disliked as thoroughly as she is distrusted. The principle is that a girl who will gossip about one person will gossip about all others.

Man Rough Enough for Two.

"Man has a feeling that he can be loud enough and rough enough for two. Tomboyishness attracts attention—but the wrong kind.

"The average society girl wastes enough time on dancing and cards to perfect herself in a half dozen arts.

"Do not preside at punch bowls. Enough drinking is done in the name of courtesy.

"Don't let your mother's kindness make you selfish.

"If God deserves anything He deserves all. Don't offer him the ragged remnants of your time and strength."

Taft Sounds Warning Note

ABOUT NIAGARA FALLS.

Washington, Dec. 7.—"Vandalism will continue unchecked" unless a national reservation is established at Niagara Falls, declares a report which President Taft to-day sent to Congress from the committee for regulation and control of the waters of the Niagara River and the preservation of Niagara Falls. The report tells of many improvements accomplished, but declares that the committee has been powerless to cope with the conditions on the American side, north of the falls.

"Apparently," it is asserted, "the situation is beyond control except through the creating of the national reservation recommended in the sixty-first Congress."

The Old Capital of India.

The importance of the change of capital from Calcutta to Delhi is that it is a restoration of the older order of things among an ancient and proud people. Calcutta has no such ancient association with the pomp and power and other historic circumstances. The neighbourhood of Delhi has been the site of a capital since the dawn of Indian history. Many of these capitals have passed away but their sites and debris remain. Indrapastha is believed to have been the first of these capitals and to have been established some 1,500 years before the beginning of the Christian era. This in itself shows some 3,400 historic association; and the making of Delhi the British Capital is a linking up of the outward shows of British rule with the ancient pageants of Indian rule. The name Delhi is said to have been first met with in the first century before the birth of Christ. Twelve centuries later Delhi became the capital of the Moguls. In 1857 it came into the possession of the British and the capture of the ancient capital by the rebels was the signal for a wide extension of the mutiny. The rebels made it their headquarters and its subsequent siege and capture by the British was the decisive blow administered to the mutineers. Although Calcutta has been the capital of British India, steps have been taken to associate the sovereignty of the occupant of the British Throne with Delhi, the ancient capital. In 1876 Queen Victoria assumed the title of Empress of India, and the proclamation announcing the new title to the people of India was made from Delhi. In Jan. 1st, 1903, a great Coronation Durbar was held in India, and it was held at Delhi. King Edward being represented by deputy.

This week the Emperor and Empress have graced the Durbar with their presence at Delhi, and have marked the occasion with an announcement that Delhi will assume its ancient glory as the capital of India.

Suggests Special Train

Several young men and women working in the city stores make the suggestion that a special train be run over to Carboneau on the morning of Sunday, Christmas Eve. They say there are fully 300 persons, if not more, employed in stores here who are residents of Conception Bay, and the despatching of this train would enable them to spend the Christmas at their homes, and they could return by Tuesday's regular.

Excellent Amateur Photographs.

Mr. Eric Bowring recently executed some splendid work in the photographing line. He took a snap shot of Mr. J. S. Munn as he wrote at his desk, and the enlargement subsequently done is very life-like. The picture was presented to Mr. F. W. Hayward and is hung in his department. Mr. Bowring also enlarged a pretty picture of the Prospero and craft at the docks of the firm.

Supreme Court.

(Full Bench Present.)

The Grand Jury made their presentation and were addressed by the Chief Justice. The presentation was as follows:—

To the Judges of the Supreme Court. My Lords.—We, the Grand Jury for the Fall term, beg to make our presentation.

We visited the Lunatic Asylum and found things generally in good condition, but a bit crowded. There are at present 260 inmates, and should the increase be many an extension will need to be made to the present building to accommodate them.

The number of keepers is hardly sufficient to properly look after such a large number, and we think two additional men to the present staff is necessary.

We also visited the Penitentiary, where everything appeared in good order. We would, however, recommend more employment for the inmates of that institution. With the exception of the Broom-making department, which employs about 22 persons, and the Hospital and the Government House grounds, which take a few more, it is difficult at all times to find sufficient work for such a large number.

There are at present 62 prisoners, and oftentimes that number is increased. The remedy for this has been suggested time and again by other Grand Jurors and is to the minds of the present jurors the proper solution of the difficulty, that is, the building of the driveway round Quill Vie Lake. This has been objected to by some people on the ground that it would interfere with the labour of St. John's. But when you take into consideration the fact that the Council has not the money to pay for making the road, and the land belongs to the city, we do not think the city labourers would lose anything to complain of and the city would be greatly benefited. Work would then be found for the inmates, and it would also help more than anything else to keep the city tramp from being anxious to get into the institution.

And for the winter months the making of paper bats could be made a source of profit to the institution and give employment to the men. The expense necessary to start the industry would be small as the material could be supplied in the country.

Respectfully submitted for self and fellow jurors.

A. E. HICKMAN, Foreman.
J. J. MELCAHY, Secretary.

Two Men Drowned.

The Minister of Justice, Hon. D. Morrison, received the following message from Mr. Elisha Button, J. P., of Melbourne, dated the 13th inst.:—

"A sad accident occurred at Brownsdale to-day when two young men Joseph Thorn, aged 19, and Nicholas Head, aged 23, while shooting birds from a boat were drowned by a sea breaking on them only a few yards from the shore off Whalebrook. The drowning happened about 10 a.m. and was first seen by a young woman who made the outcry. The bodies were recovered at 3 p.m. The accident has cast a gloom on all the neighboring places. Rev. Mr. Joyce and S. Eddy, R.O., and I just returned from viewing the bodies. ELISHA BUTTON, J. P."

A Sight to See.

Never since the Prospero crossed the Herring Pond to come to this port did she take such a large cargo of goods North as she did on leaving here this morning. She was filled to the hatches with Christmas supplies while her decks were also filled with cargo. She took over 200 passengers and the luggage of these disembarking at Bay de Verde and Old Perlican was piled up fully two thirds of the height of the funnel. The ship as she steamed down the harbor was an object of curiosity to those along the water front.

Coastal Boats.

BOWRING'S BOATS.
The Portia left Burgo at 3 a.m. to-day.

The Prospero sailed North at 10 a.m. to-day with a full freight and these passengers:— Messrs. Thistle, Pardy (2), Batstone, Earle, Anstey (2), Elliot, Young (2), Alcock, Young, Sheatling, Wells, Campbell, Noel, Torrville, Hudson (2), Locke, Vivian, Const. Dawe, Duggan, Rev. Thibault, T. Dower, Toms, Rev. Ward, Lockyer, O'Neill, Adams, Budge, Moores, Walsh, Rev. Brodie, Const. White, Osmond, Morris, Rev. Chancy, Roberts, Elliott, Mesdames—Noel, Winsor, Locke, Misses—Martin, Elliott, Williams, Gardiner, Rowe, and 135 in steerage.

Hand Crushed.

One of Mr. Ellis' workmen engaged at the stone quarry, on the South Side, this morning, had his right hand crushed when coupling the cars. He went to O'Mara's drug store and had the wound dressed. He may lose three of his fingers.

MARINE NOTES.

The Jean sailed to-day for Pernambuco with 4,900 packages of fish for Monroe & Co.

The Rosina left Pernambuco yesterday for St. John's.

The Minnie is loading here for Brazil.

CHRISTMAS BELLS.

This handy annual maintains its standard of excellence as a Christmas publication.

Doctor Operated Upon

For Appendicitis Without Taking an Anesthetic.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 4.—Dr. Louis Booth, 26 years old, an attending physician at a local hospital, was operated upon yesterday for appendicitis without taking an anesthetic. He was so placed upon the operating table as that he was able to watch the operation from beginning to end, making suggestions as to how it should be done. A rapid recovery is expected.

PERSONAL NOTES.

Samuel Hibbs of Portugal Cove was married at Kelligrews to Miss Elfreda Anthony by Rev. Wm. Caldwell.

ANOTHER ICEBERG.—Another iceberg of fairly large size is now just inside the North Head of Petty Harbor and is aground. The berg is breaking up. It is very unusual to have these about at this season of the year.

Gifts for the Orphans.

This forenoon fifteen orphan boys from Mount Cashel visited the White Shoe Store, S. B. Keener, proprietor, where Mr. Keener made each lad a present of a fine strong pair of winter boots. They were delighted with the gift. To-morrow the generous donor will give fifteen boys from the C. of E. Orphanage a like present, and on Friday next fifteen girls from St. Michael's Orphanage, Belvidere, and fifteen girls from the Methodist Orphanage will receive a similar gift. Mr. Keener has shown a kindness at this season which will no doubt be emulated by others of our generous business men.

LIFE IN THE WOODS.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—To-day we will take up those pages of Mr. McGrath's book that have to do with hunting, fishing, etc., and see what entertaining and instructive matter they contain. On pages 191, 192 the author very generously offers his invaluable advice to intending visiting sportsmen free of cost. This is very kind of Mr. McGrath, but it may be asked, how is Mr. McGrath qualified to give advice to sportsmen as to camping outfits, etc., seeing that he has never had any experience as a camper-out? Of course the advice he gives is more or less of an indefinite or non-committal order and leaves room for excuse in the event of the party finding fault. For instance, we will select advice regarding boots, and note how very accommodating and elastic it is. Here is what Mr. McGrath has to say about boots: "some hunters use the rubber boots common among the Grand Bank fishermen, others prefer the seal skin boots which the local sealers use at the icefields, others pin their faith to high goshoses, because of their warmth." I do not know what kind of things those goshoses are, but evidently they are some sort of pin cushion, they are warm. I suppose the amount of warmth is dependent on the ardour of the faith pinned to them.

Mr. McGrath says, "sleeping bags are convenient, as they can be utilized for packing the impedimenta." Can the writer really be in earnest, does he really offer this as some advice that one's bed may be used as a receptacle for pots, pans, etc., which are, of course, camp impediments.

He also says that "rubber mattresses are desirable." Now, every camper-out who has ever tried rubber mattresses knows that they are anything but desirable, for the reason that they make damp and unwholesome beds. So much for Mr. McGrath's knowledge of camp requirements.

Now, let us see what he has to say of the game, fish, etc. Mr. McGrath mentions brown bears and mink among the wild animals found on the island. I do not know of the existence of brown bears in this country, certainly there are no mink. He also says, "the fauna of the island is similar to that of the neighboring portions of Canada." Mr. McGrath is not quite correct. In Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick they have red deer, moose (indigenous) wolverine, squirrel, mink, etc., animals that are not to be found in this country. When naming the principal kinds of birds that are to be found here, the author left out the osprey. A good compliment to our coat of arms. Two kinds of geese are mentioned that are in reality but one. The author says "Canada goose, Brant goose, many varieties of duck, snipe, woodcock and plover" are found on the island. Mr. McGrath evidently does not know that the Canada goose is also the Brant. There are no woodcock in the country. The same authority says that the geese and ducks arrive in this country about the middle of May. This is not correct either, for they begin to arrive about the first of March. Ducks are often on the coast all winter, in fact, it is no way certain that they migrate at all; certain it is that a great many of them do not.

On page 194, Mr. McGrath tells us that ptarmigan, locally called partridge, are really willow grouse.

On page 195 he says that "the partridge and willow grouse may be shot, etc." So it would appear that, although Mr. McGrath says that the locally called partridge is really grouse, we have both partridge of ptarmigan and grouse. Which page 194 or 195 does Mr. McGrath wish to be taken as authentic, for there is a great discrepancy between them?

There is also a great discrepancy between the statements with regard to reptiles. On page 21 we are informed "there are no reptiles found in the island."

On page 195 we are told that frogs exist in the country, having been brought in from Nova Scotia. Any person not knowing Mr. McGrath might think that he meant in a waggish way to set a snare for the unwary by substituting the words "in the island" for on the island. He certainly leaves some room for debate. It might be asked of Mr. McGrath whether he is certain that the frogs were brought in from Nova Scotia. If he knows that they were brought in from Nova Scotia, he might tell us at what time and by whom they were brought in. I have a strong suspicion that Mr. McGrath is only guessing. I also think that his guess is very wide of the mark.

Let us now turn to those pages of the reliable book, "the last word on Newfoundland," that speak of fish and fishing, and see what we may discover. We will leave out of account the mention of lobsters and clams as being among our sea fishes, to the exclusion of the whale. Now, the whale is as much a fish as is the clam or lobster. Why is it not mentioned. Trout are not mentioned among our sea fishes either, neither is the dog fish, although cat fish are spoken of. There is another fish, very abundant in certain of our waters, especially along the southern coast, that Mr. McGrath has overlooked. I refer to the bream, a very fine table fish of good flavor.

On page 195 Mr. McGrath tells us "the salmon and sea-trout are to be found in all the large rivers, though the streams on the West Coast are considered the best, because they have not been so much fished, being less accessible." What astounding ignorance is this on the part of one who poses as a writer on our country's sporting facilities. Can anything be further from the truth than this, it is the very antipode of fact. Rivers on the West Coast being less accessible than say rivers on the South or North East Coast. The railway passes for miles along the banks of Harry's Brook, the Codroy's and the Humber; whilst it crosses over such streams as "rabbe's, Robinson's Fishels, etc. The rivers named are among the best in the country and are usually crowded by fishers in the summer time. On the same page we are told that "in the spring and early summer fishing is at its best," and on page 196, the same book informs us that "the best salmon fishing is to be had directly the salmon start going up the rivers, generally about the second week in July." What is to be inferred from this; are we to assume that Mr. McGrath is ignorant of the advance of the seasons in this country, or that he got himself hopelessly befogged in trying to handle a subject of which he is entirely ignorant. He says in one breath that the best fishing is to be had in spring and early summer, and that the best salmon fishing is to be had when the salmon begin to go up, he rivers in the middle of July. By the middle of July the salmon are well up towards the head waters of most of our streams, much depending on the rain falls. From the first of June, or even earlier some years, good fishing is to be had in the lower reaches. Such a sentence as the following I must leave to the reader himself to glean what meaning he can from. Referring to trout (page 196) the author says: "Like the salmon, you must follow them up stream where the pools are filled with them, while they are very good fighters." I dare not tackle such a sentence, it's as chaotic as a nightmare.

In my next letter I intend to follow Mr. McGrath into the hunting grounds where caribou are stalked. I expect to find some delectable bits of natural history served up on those pages.

Dear Sir,—Kindly allow me space to draw the attention of the "Powers that be" to a daily occurrence in this city. Since every saloon keeper is now constantly provided with a guard of honour and more carefully watched than the Czars of Russia or other despots, a few mornings ago I witnessed a most brutal scene when three truckmen laboring a half-starved horse who was unable to haul a load of coal over an incline, instead of assisting the poor beast by pushing behind.
Remonstrating with these men would have been futile. A glance around but not a policeman could be seen.
If the members of the S. P. C. A. were given a certain amount of authority this evil would be greatly diminished to the comfort of our noble friend, "the horse."

Sanford Indicted for Death of His Followers

Portland, Me., Dec. 8.—An indictment containing six counts for the death of six of his followers on the cruise of the yacht Coronet was reported to-day by the Grand Jury of the United States District Court against Rev. Frank W. Sanford, leader of the Holy Ghost and Us Society. The trial was begun immediately.
The indictment, which covered six typewritten pages, charged Sanford with having caused the death of Geo. Hughes, Chas. Hughes, Ralph Merrill, Stuart Wolf, John Bolster and John Adamson.
That Sanford "did unlawfully, knowingly and willingly cause to allow the Coronet to proceed and continue upon a voyage without suitable and sufficient food to supply the necessities and sustain the life of Geo. Hughes and the officers, crew and passengers."
It was further presented that Sanford kept the yacht at sea from July 27th to October 16th. Sanford was arraigned in the United States District Court and after listening to the reading of the indictment pleaded not guilty. The empanelling of a jury was then begun.
Sanford appeared calm and manifested no emotion during the formal proceedings. He dismissed his attorneys early in the week, explaining that he could defend himself.

Labor Scores McNamara.

Organized Labor Washes Its Hands of Dynamiters Case—Statement Issued From Washington.
Washington, D.C., Dec. 8.—Organized labor in America has no desire to condone the crimes of the McNamaras, according to a statement authorized last night by the American Federation of Labor.
The statement, which was issued at the close of a three hour meeting behind closed doors, denounced the McNamaras and continues:
"We here and now, individually and collectively, declare that the first knowledge or intimation of their guilt was conveyed by the press in their confessions of guilt."
"From the outset we assured all contributors and the public generally that we would publish an account of the money received—from whom received and to whom paid. A report in full will be made first to the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor at its meeting to be held at Washington, January 8th, 1912."
"It is cruelly unjust to hold the men of the labor movement either legally or morally responsible for the crimes of an individual member. In so far as we have the right to speak, we welcome any investigation which either Federal or State courts may undertake. The American Labor movement and its friends are loyal citizens and seek to obtain the abolition of wrongs and the attainment of their rights within the law."

Complains of Messages

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Please allow me a space in your valuable paper for a few remarks, how we are treated here, on Postal Services and Telegraph messages. When we get a message we do not know whether it is the right one or not. Several people have had to go and get them rectified after receiving; isn't that the state of affairs, since the last Government came into power. How long is this thing going to last?
No wonder I hear so many people singing out for a change. If I am a Union man myself I cannot help saying I do not believe there was ever a Government so good as the Liberal Government. Coaker is talking a lot about 1913. My thinking about him. He might be a little worse. An old saying is give me the "D."—I know, not the one I don't know.
Yours sincerely,

Heavy punishment has been awarded to the English spies, arrested at Hamburg, after trial. Shultz, the English shipbroker, is sentenced to seven years penal servitude; Hipsch to twelve years in jail; Engineer Wolff to two years in jail; Von Maak, a merchant, and Shultz's housekeeper, to three years. The judge sentencing the accused said that their arrest had broken up a group of spies whose activities were dangerous to the safety of the Empire. Hipsch, particularly, had been employed for twelve years as engineer in one of the principal naval sheds, and was able to collect designs and information from all German yards. These had been delivered in January last to agents of the English information bureau, thus exposing Germans' important military secrets. Shultz, whose sweeping admission established the guilt of himself and others, had organized, according to the judge, a network of spies throughout Germany, who reported direct to England.

Special Evening Telegram:
LONDON, Dec. 13.
Lord Lansdowne spoke gravely in the House of Lords concerning the changes in India. Some of the Conservative morning papers follow suit. Dissatisfaction is due to the fact that the new policy involves a reversal of Lord Curzon's policy bringing about a partition of Bengal, and the fear that the new departure may be construed in India as yielding to political agitation. The change of the capital to Delhi is applauded generally. Almost all moderate opinion approves of the change. Official papers issued on the subject show that the new policy proposed by the Indian Government was thoroughly weighed and considered before its being adopted, as essential to the growth of self-government in India on safe and sound lines. Although the changes will be much criticized in Parliament, all party leaders recognize that, as they were announced by the King himself, they are irrevocable. The Liberal press and some of the Unionist papers applauded the changes as showing boldness of imagination on the part of the Government.

Anniversary of Storm.

Yesterday, 17 years ago, a terrific snow storm was experienced in St. John's, and people who were going countrywards had to return to the city or run the risk of being smothered. At 8 p.m., during the worst period of the weather, Mr. Fogwill's house, near Bennett's Grove caught fire and was destroyed. The firemen with their hose reels and engines responded but could not get through the drifts further than the C. E. Cemetery and were eventually compelled to return to their quarters in the city.

The Delhi Durbar

Special to Evening Telegram. DELHI, To-day. A Royal Garden Party was held in the fort. The Emperor and Empress were given an ovation by the 7,000 guests as they walked through the grounds. Later in the afternoon, Their Majesties, wearing their crowns and their coronation robes, appeared on the screened balcony on the wall of the fort, formerly used by the Mogul. The Emperor and Empress remained seated on golden thrones, while for an hour and a half a train of religious and other native processions passed in review.

Welcome to the Brigadier

Yesterday the city forces of the Salvation Army united and extended to Brigadier and Mrs. Morehen and family a welcome to the city. At 7 p.m. a banquet was prepared in the old school room on Springdale Street, and more than three hundred of the officers and soldiers of the City Corps enjoyed a social hour with their leaders. At 8 p.m., a Soldier's Welcome Meeting was arranged in the Citadel and short addresses were made by representatives of the different Corps, assuring the Brigadier of their cooperation with him and their love and devotion for the cause which they represented. The Brigadier's son, who is an accomplished bandsman, was then called upon, and as he arose to speak, received a rousing welcome, especially from the members of the bands who were present. Staff Capt. Carve, who was chairman of the meeting, in a few well-chosen words then introduced the Brigadier, who was received with great enthusiasm. The Brigadier, after paying grand tribute to the character and worth of his predecessor and the great work accomplished by him in this Province, then gave a most eloquent and touching address, basing his remarks on Joshua, chap. 1, 2nd verse. Mrs. Morehen, who is an eloquent and pleasing speaker, also addressed the meeting and by her touching words and pleasing manner, won her way into the hearts of all present. The meeting was brought to a close by signing the Doxology.

First Receipts
Small Beginnings and Great Endings of Celebrated Writers.

There are some curious and romantic stories connected with the first literary efforts and earnings of famous authors. Mr. Cutcliffe Hyde, for instance, recently confessed that "The first real literature I was ever paid for was written to decorate the wrapping paper of a tradesman who mended anything from a kettle to a diamond necklace. A brilliant idea had struck him that if his usefulness was displayed in type and color on the paper in which he wrapped his handling trade would subsequently increase. He felt he could not put sufficient literary finish on this personally, so I supplied designs for mottoes and for the wrapper to his esteemed order—price, one guinea."

Starts Riot as He Leaps From Hearse
Stableman Picked a Queer Place to Sleep off Celebration.

New York, Dec. 11.—When James Riley, a stableman employed by Hirsch and Schwartz, undertakers, had finished his Thanksgiving celebration, he was tired and sleepy. Returning to the stable, he sought out a quiet place where he wouldn't be disturbed and crawled into a hearse, without leaving a call. He drew the black curtains and soon was snoring loudly.

At nine o'clock a customer telephoned that a hearse and four coaches had been sent immediately to Sixth and Lewis streets to bury Abraham Goldfogel. So Mr. Hirsch told "Sam" Kerstein, his best hearse driver, "to hook the blacks out to the rig." The hearse and the four coaches left the barn.

At Sixth street and avenue C the hearse hit a stretch of cobble stone, and Riley awoke. He rubbed his eyes and recognized the interior decoration of a hearse and kicked out the rear pane of glass.

"They're not going to bury me alive," he shouted as he leaped into the street.

Persons attracted by the crash of glass saw what they thought was a corpse leaping out of a hearse. They ran to look. One woman faints, and the ambulance from Bellevue Hospital was summoned. Push cart vendors abandoned their wares, scattered by the frightened throng, and joined in this flight from the awakened corpse. Some one sent in a riot call. When the police arrived Riley was gone. Mr. Hirsch took the price of the glass out of his wages, remarking that he was running an undertaking establishment and not a furnished room house.

In Memoriam.

Hon. D. J. Greene, late Lieut.-Col. of the Catholic Cadet Corps.

It's a long march that has no ending, A long "call" that does not cease, And the only restful bivouac Is an Everlasting Peace.

For the road may be rough and narrow, Gloomy, with many a turn, But the tents loom in distant meadows Where the "guard" lamps flicker and burn.

The days that are past, are now present, And through the dim vista of years In lonely and silent procession Are passing, "the pioneers" They leave us, yet no "leave" is granted, Not even a shake of the hand Has softened the shock of the parting, Still we know and understand.

He's gone—but a sure promotion Awaits him, and may we all When we stand at the final muster And answer the last roll call Hold such a sure position, While volleys resound o'er thee, As he who has lately left us To join the battalions of God. F. E. R. D.

Uncle Walt
THE POET PHILOSOPHER.

I stood before the county jail, and said that suffrage ought to win. "The woman's better than the male," I cried; "to flout her is a sin. She has more virtue and more sense than any man who walks the WOMAN'S earth; and all the world, a few years hence, will have to own WISDOM her sterling worth. A woman always loves the good, and hates the false, the bad, the vile; for innocence she's always stood, and looked on merit with a smile." Then came a long parade of names, who halted at the prison door; they bore upon their graceful frames a ton of lovely flowers or more. I asked the jester why they brought these floral tributes to his den. He answered: "Well, you know we've caught that fined who slew a dozen men. We have him fettered safe, by jing, to hold him till the hangman comes, and every day the women bring him orchids and chrysanthemums."

Arthur Conan Doyle failed to reach this amount in his first year; yet for his novel, "Rodney Stone," he received $35,000 before it was written. Here are a few other big prices paid for books to authors after they had made their name. Daudet received $200,000 for a single novel. Lew Wallace got, in royalties on "Beh Hur" and "Prince of India," almost $400,000. "Les Miserables" brought Victor Hugo close on $80,000, while Kipling is reputed to charge 50 cents a word.

An amusing confession is made by Mr. Morley Roberts, the popular writer of sea-stories. "I got my first guinea and six other besides by stealing a Texas newspaper article about a horse and adding a head and a tail to it." Mr. Edgar Jepson received only $10 for his first two books, while Mr. Silas Hocking's first story brought him in $75, and I was thankful to get that," added the popular novelist. Neither did Mr. John Oxenham make a very encouraging start, for his first year's efforts at writing brought him about $125. The second year he earned about $500.

As a matter of fact there are many writers whose earnings to-day run well over four figures who could today tell when their yearly income from writing did not rise above $100. Sir

STRONG AS STEEL
The Kind of Nerves That Can Do Things

A young athlete writes concerning the method by which he acquired steady nerves and also of some good missionary work he has done:
"About a year ago," he says, "my nerves began to grow unsteady and I found myself troubled with sleeplessness. I set a inquiry on foot, and became convinced that the coffee I drank was the cause of the trouble" (tea contains caffeine, the same as found in coffee, and is just as injurious) and determined to quit right there. "So I got a package of Postum and M and I prepared it. We did not both enough the first time and were much impressed by it. The second time however, we followed the directions on the package carefully and were more than pleased with the result.
"I can sleep like a log now, since I am using Postum, my nerves are as strong as steel, and my muscles, which used to give easily, are hard and enduring as iron. Heavy athletics no longer give me pain in the side and chest as formerly."
"I have brought out whole family to Postum, and it has done every one of them good. My Father has found his asthma almost entirely relieved since he gave up coffee and began to drink Postum."

German Navy to be Made Stronger.

Special to Evening Telegram.
BERLIN, To-day.
The possibility of measures for strengthening the navy or the army or both being submitted to the next Reichstag, as a result of the international crisis of last summer is arousing most intense interest in the press and among the public. The election for the Reichstag takes place in January. Until now not the slightest indication of the intention of the Government in the matter has been evoked. According to an apparently authoritative statement in the Boersen Zeitung yesterday, however, the navy and not the army is to be the chief beneficiary of the new programme. The army at the same time will also figure, although to a smaller extent in the appropriations asked for.

Canadian Coasting Privileges.

Special Evening Telegram.
SYDNEY, To-day.
It is learned that Canadian coasting privileges for foreigners, which were to have been cancelled at the end of December, have been extended for a further period of two years. Nothing official in regard to the matter has been announced, but it is understood that an extension of coasting privileges in Canadian waters has been granted, and that this would include Norwegian steamers and others in the Sydney and St. Lawrence coasting trade.

Poker Game Lasted 4 Days.

New York, Dec. 2.—The passengers on the White Star liner Cedric, which arrived to-day, were full of gossip of a poker game which started in the smoke-room on Tuesday night and lasted until the ship was off the Ambrose lightship last night. It was altogether a friendly game and nobody who even looked like a third cousin of a professional gambler was allowed to break into it. There was never a moment of the four days and four nights when seven men were not in the game.

The winners were Paul Wilkes, a California oil millionaire, and A. L. Dunham, a mining magnate. The rest lost. Mr. Wilkes won about $1,500, and Mr. Dunham about $100.

The joke of the game was that the big hands were held by the two winners. On Thursday morning, early, the limit was raised from $10 to $25; the ante had been $10 all along. Mr. Dunham found four queens smiling at him from his hand and promptly boosted the pot. Mr. Wilkes, who had counted out four aces among his five cards, was not a bit bashful about going right back at him. Others stayed in until there was $700 in the pot. After that the oil and the gold man had it all to themselves.

Wedding Bells.

NOEL-ASH.
A very pretty wedding was solemnized last evening at 'Bemister Place,' the residence of the Hon. H. J. B. Woods, when Mr. Robert Noel, of St. Anthony, was united in the bonds of holy matrimony to Miss Lizzie Ash, who was for many years a domestic in the family and much esteemed. The bride, who looked charming, wore a costume of old rose, and carried a bouquet of flowers. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. Webber, after which refreshments were partaken of when the newly married couple received the congratulations of all present and good wishes for their future happiness. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and useful presents. The happy couple left by the S. S. Prospero this morning for their future home. The Telegram wishes them a pleasant voyage over the sea of life.

A Fireman Disappears

Mr. C. H. Hutchings, K.C., Deputy Minister of Justice, had a telegram this forenoon from the Customs officer at Humbermouth in which he says that he (the officer) had received word from the captain of the s.s. Beatrice just before the ship sailed at 4 a.m., saying that one of the firemen of the ship was missing. A search was made around the pier but there was no trace of the man. It is not thought that he deserted the ship but it is feared that he might have gone overboard. The officer promised in his message to make all necessary enquiries.
