CHAPTER VIII. A Solitary Life.

Maurice Durant looked around, as Chudleigh, touching him on the arm, said:

"Will you call your dog? He seems to have taken a fancy to my sister, and does not look inclined to follow you."

"Your pardon?" he said, raising his eyebrows. "I had forgotten the dog."

"I told Tigris to stay by you, and he would do so, unless I recalled him, until the day of his death."

Maud looked up with surprise. "And leave you?" she said, with an innocent airlessness that was charming.

"Ay," replied Maurice. "Tigris knows that the best part of affection is obedience."

"And he would have followed me home," said Maud, looking wistfully at the dog, who was stretched at her feet.

"Yes, and shall do, if you wish it," said its owner, reading the wistful look with a calm smile. "He is yours."

"No, no," said Maud, eagerly, even pushing the dog's head away with her tiny hand. "I would not deprive you of him. He is the only—" "being you have to love," she was going to say, ingenuously, but stopped, and flushed painfully.

"The only thing I have to amuse me!" he said, intentionally misunderstanding her sudden silence, and adding, with a smile: "Not so; there are still the trees, the rocks and my gun. Tigris shall go with you, and if you tire of him, why, he can join his master's broken fortunes again, and lifting his cap from his head, he left them once more, this time unfollowed."

Maud stood looking after him, with a pale face and wonder-filled eyes. Chudleigh regarded her for a moment in silence; then, with a laugh, said:

"Come, Maud, and bring your prize with you. By Jove! never was anything presented with a more royal air. He is like a prince in an old-fashioned romance, and the dog is as noble."

Chudleigh regarded her for a moment in silence; then, with a laugh, said: "Come, Maud, and bring your prize with you. By Jove! never was anything presented with a more royal air. He is like a prince in an old-fashioned romance, and the dog is as noble."

"Not so noble as its master," said Maud, in a low voice. And Chudleigh, looking down at her lowered face, saw, with some surprise, that her eyes were filled with tears. However, he merely whistled, and they walked on, the dog trotting calmly by Maud's side, as if it had never owned another master.

CHAPTER IX.

The Soul of the Organ.

Nor may we e'er forget, The follies we commit; Fate reaps in other years, Full harvest of our tears.

DINNER was over, and the drawing-room at the hall was shining softly in the light of the tall wax candles, which burned with a delicious softness that our modern aching eyes, accustomed to the garish glare of hideous gas chandeliers, knew nothing of.

Sitting in a velvet chair, the dark blue of which made her fair skin look whiter and purer than ever, Maud, gazing at the fire with dreamy eyes, was thinking of the scene that had occurred in the morning, and, with Tigris' head resting on her tiny foot, was weaving an imaginary history of the man who was sitting beside her father and brother in the dining-room; for Maurice Durant had kept his promise, and arrived at the hall at half-past six.

When Maud entered the drawing-room, before dinner, she started. The tall form, attired in an evening suit, with its grand face, from which the long, thick hair was brushed back in a mass of ragged curls, leaving the forehead bare and white, looking strangely handsome, was so great a contrast to its wild, almost savage, appearance of the morning.

Still, though in the uniform which so seldom becomes an English gentleman, Maud felt a strange pleasure in the consciousness that Maurice Durant looked not a whit less noble in the black coat of fashion than in his tunic of goatskin.

One thing that struck her at once was that, whereas her father and Chudleigh both wore a few articles of jewelry, Maurice Durant's only trinket was an antique ring, with a dull leaden-looking stone in it. Maurice Durant wore neither watch-chain nor ornamented studs, his shirt, down the front of which ran an edging of foreign work, being fastened with black stones, which were certainly not ornamental, whatever their intrinsic worth.

At dinner he had eaten little, and drank scarcely more than a glass of claret, and, save for a few remarks addressed to Sir Fielding, had maintained a thoughtful, somewhat abstracted, silence. Still, his manner, and, more than all, the grand cast of his face, kept his taciturnity from offering the ordinary run of men; and, indeed, Sir Fielding was too pleased with the success of his attempt to coax his strange neighbor to the hall to risk losing him forever by forcing him into unwilling conversation, trusting that in time the strange reserve would melt beneath the constant warmth of unobtrusive friendship.

Besides which, Sir Fielding had not forgotten among his books sufficient of his knowledge of the world to be long in surmising that his guest had undergone sorrow and trial enough to warrant the strangeness of his manner and speech, so that the dinner was a success.

"Come, Maud, and bring your prize with you. By Jove! never was anything presented with a more royal air. He is like a prince in an old-fashioned romance, and the dog is as noble."

Good Old Home-Made Family Cough Remedy. Much Better than the Ready-Made Kind—Easily and Cheaply Prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known 'ready-made' cough remedy, you would hardly have in them all the curative power that lies in this simple 'home-made' cough syrup which takes only a few minutes to prepare. Get from any druggist 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-oz bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. The total cost is about 64 cents and gives you 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Tastes pleasant and never spoils. This Pinex and sugar syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and leads the sore, irritated membranes that line the throat, chest and bronchial tubes, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough, and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with gaulthol and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs. To avoid disappointment, be sure to ask your druggist for '2 1/2 ounces of Pinex' with full directions, and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

ner had gone off very quietly, Chudleigh and Sir Fielding carrying on a rambling conversation, Maurice Durant breaking in suddenly with a question or remark, always to the purpose, and Maud speaking seldom and listening when Maurice spoke with rapt attention.

After she had withdrawn to the drawing-room, Sir Fielding rang the bell for a particular old port, but Maurice Durant declined any more wine.

"If you will not taste my old port," said Sir Fielding, smiling, "you will have some more claret and a cigar?" But these also were declined, and, after a glass with Chudleigh, Sir Fielding led the way into the drawing-room.

Tigris arose as his master entered and sprang toward him; but, holding up his hand, Maurice Durant spoke two words, in the same language in which he had bidden him follow Maud, and the dog returned instantly to its place.

"That's Corsican, is it not?" said Sir Fielding, who had caught the words. "Yes," said Maurice Durant. "Do you speak it?" Sir Fielding shook his head. "No, unfortunately," he said; "but I chanced to know the two words you spoke. Is the dog Corsican?"

"Yes," said Maurice, almost curtly, and, turning to a picture, changed the subject by saying, after a few minutes' examination: "A Carlo Dolce?"

"Yes," said Sir Fielding. "It is good, is it not?" "Very," was the reply. "It is the finest head I have seen of his, save one that hung above an altar in a small Florentine chapel."

"There are several good pictures in the gallery," said Chudleigh. "Would you like to see them?" "Much," said Maurice Durant, "if it would not be giving you trouble. I am fond of pictures."

"And music?" added Sir Fielding, interrogatively. "And music," assented Maurice Durant, his face lighting up suddenly. "Had we more music, the world would be a brighter one."

"And a better," said Chudleigh, ringing the bell as he spoke. "Is there a fire in the gallery?" Sir Fielding of the footman who appeared.

"Yes, sir," said the man. "Mr. Chichester's instructions were that it should be lit during the frost."

"Ah, yes; I had forgotten," said Chudleigh. "Shall we go there? Come, Maud."

The three made their way through the hall and up the spacious oaken staircase to the long gallery lined with various pictures and the family portraits.

Maurice uttered a low exclamation of pleasure, and commenced examining them. Sir Fielding, pleased at his evident appreciation of the really beautiful collection, standing at his elbow.

"Ah!" said Maurice, suddenly pausing before a small picture representing Death as a skeleton stooping to take a child from its cradle. "I saw that picture painted."

"Indeed!" said Sir Fielding, his face kindling eagerly. It is one of Frudliano's—at least, I bought it for one of his. "It is his. Poor fellow!" replied Maurice Durant. "His best and his last. Do you notice that left-hand corner, where the shadow of the skeleton falls? That is not quite finished. The light wants toning down, and the drawing is somewhat imperfect. Poor Frudliano! The day set apart for the finishing of that corner he was lying in his lifeblood in the garret to which the woman he loved had brought him by her peridy!"

As he spoke, Maurice Durant's face became sadder even than its wont, and the rugged forehead grew more marked.

"I was with him," he continued, his voice growing dreamy and soft, and speaking as if he were communing with himself. "I was with him when the picture was commenced. He would have dashed it aside ere the first lines were filled in, but I stayed his hands, for work with him went by fits and starts, and—ay, ah!—it was from one fit into another. Impulse, impulse—nothing but impulse! Before the skull was finished, just as the picture grew dear to him, he met Mabelle Regarde. You have heard of—ah, well, what matters it? Frudliano fell, like all the world, at her feet; but he, being a painter, loved in earnest, and— The corner is unfinished yet, and if I remember rightly, there should be some spots of blood at the back of the canvas," and in his strange, abrupt way, he seized the picture and turned it; there, pointing one finger at five red stains on the back, let it swing around again in silence.

Sir Fielding and Chudleigh said nothing. Maud sighed, and, hearing her, Maurice Durant turned sharply, as if he had been unaware of her presence.

The girl read the look rightly, and growing pale, shrank closer to her father, with an air of singular humility.

For some few minutes Maurice Durant examined the pictures in silence, moving slowly on. But coming upon the grand organ, which stood in a recess built in the middle of the gallery, he exclaimed, with an unmistakable air of pleasure:

"An organ!" "Yes," said Chudleigh. "I must crave your forgiveness for not mentioning it before. I ought to have known you would like to see it." Maurice bowed slightly. "It is a grand one. I know the maker."

"Will you try it?" said Sir Fielding. "I fear it has lost some tone, for Maud seldom touches it, and I never—" "Do you not like the organ?" asked Maurice, turning suddenly to Maud.

She started at the abruptness of the question, and hesitated as she replied, faintly:

"Yes, but I cannot play it well enough, and it—it seems almost wrong to trifle with its grand music." (To be Continued.)

Our Disabled Fighters.

General satisfaction is apparent over the adoption at long last of a definite pension scheme, and the report of the Pensions Committee has evoked some of the interest and attention to which its importance entitles it. Under one division of the subject the Committee were unable to do more than make a general recommendation that practical steps be taken as soon as possible. This was the very necessary task of fitting returned soldiers for employment, of which again the most important and difficult branch promises to concern those who have been disabled, but not seriously enough entirely to unfit them for any remunerative labour. We note that this matter will probably receive the attention of a special committee, but the suggestion has been well made meanwhile that we should endeavour in some way to get in touch with Canada, so as to share in the benefit of that country's splendid organization for this purpose. Considering how satisfactory that organization and its work have already been, and that we have taken a precedent from Canada for our whole scale and treatment of pensions, the idea seems a logical and valuable one.

Very thoroughly indeed the Canadian Government and civil authorities are tackling the problem of the returned soldier, and no part of it more thoroughly than the treatment and training of those disabled. A Military Hospitals Commission has been formed, with branches in every section of the Dominion, of which the object is thus suggested in its latest Bulletin. "The Commission will not rest content, nor should Canada be satisfied, until every soldier disabled in his country's service has recovered the utmost possible degree of power and energy for success in civilian life." A glance at the Bulletin discloses the value of the work of these Military Hospitals and their associated technical and vocational training establishments. Among other good results, it has made strikingly clear the truth that the great majority of crippled soldiers are not disabled but merely handicapped, and that their particular handicaps do not unfit them for any but a few vocations. On the contrary, it has already been found that the specialized and thorough training it has been possible to give them has in very many cases resulted in a greatly improved efficiency, enabling them to command wider opportunities and higher salaries than before.

We think an effort should be made not only to study fully the work of this Commission, but, if possible, to extend its scope to Newfoundland. We do not think political considerations should or need stand in the way, and if the thing could be done, its benefits to what may prove to be many Newfoundlanders will be obvious and invaluable. Failing this, it has been suggested that such of our men as would be helped by it might obtain this sort of training in Halifax, by agreement with the proper authorities. While this may be a good plan, it is open to the objection that most of them would almost invariably be encouraged to seek employment in Canada, and thus be lost to Newfoundland. The last thing we want to do is lose such men.

We trust the question will receive from the authorities the proper attention. It is a question, however, which affects everyone and in particular every employer. We cannot do better than quote the words of Sir Edmund Walker, President of the Canadian Bank of Commerce: "Today, every employer of labor, manufacturer, merchant, banker, or whatever his calling, should be considering how he can employ a few partly disabled men, and thus do something more in carrying the burdens of the war. Many a machine-shop can use a certain number of one-armed and one-legged men with hardly any loss of efficiency. . . . What the peaceful communities at home must bear in mind is that these men are not rendered unfit for useful work, but that they are handicapped or forced by the loss of one limb or sense to put more energy into their remaining abilities. All the ingenuity of this ingenious age should be employed, no matter at what cost, to enable the wounded soldier to earn his own living—which will not affect any pension he may receive."

The Annual (and final) Meeting of St. Bon's L. A. will be held in the Aula Maxima on Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 31st at 4 o'clock. By order, FLORENCE O'DRISCOLL, Hon. Sec.—1

INTENSE COLD ON FRENCH FRONT

British Headquarters in France
VIA LONDON, To-day.
Bitter cold continues along the entire front, the ground now being frozen to a depth of several inches. Nine degrees above zero was registered by some of the army thermometers on Sunday night, the coldest weather this section of France has known in several years. The cold is accompanied by clear days and starlight nights and the booming of the heavy guns is heard on nearly every sector of the British lines. Despite the low temperature, especially in the upper air, airplanes are exceedingly active in co-operation with the artillery. This activity entails much fighting at altitudes where the mercury registers far below zero. One British aviator descended after a victorious duel in the air with the instruments of his airplane frozen and he so numbed that he had to be helped from his machine. Nevertheless he was supremely happy. The men in the trenches are resisting the cold wonderfully well. Many of them frankly say that they much prefer the ice and frost to the water and mud of milder weather. Everything possible is being done for the comfort of the men and warm food and warm drinks are served to them every few hours. A diverting incident of the recent operations of the Somme in which more than 350 men were made prisoners was the fact that the British troops, in their anticipation of their complete success, had brought up a large number of old London motor buses in which they gave the Germans a free ride back to the prison camp.

TWO NORWEGIANS GONE.

LONDON, To-day.
The Norwegian steamer Arge, 1261 tons, was blown up and nine of the crew are reported lost. The Norwegian steamer Fulion, 1040 tons also has been sunk.

AUSTRIAN DESTROYER SUNK.

ROME, To-day.
The Austrian destroyer Huzar was put out of action in a naval engagement in the Adriatic a few days ago. Two Italian destroyers engaged an Austrian flotilla and the Huzar was hit several times and set on fire. The Italians suffered no loss.

SWINDLER ARRESTED.

CHICAGO, To-day.
A man believed to be L. Henri Charlebois, formerly Secretary of the Government's Rivers Commission in Montreal, Canada, is under arrest here. The police said he is wanted in Montreal on a charge of passing $20,000 on the Bank of Montreal.

ONLY FOR DEFENCE.

LONDON, To-day.
The Times says that it is authorized to state that the allegation that Great Britain is preparing to arm merchantmen with guns fore as well as aft, is untrue.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, To-day.
According to Berlin, the President of the Food Regulation Board clearly indicated in a recent speech that the German food supply for the spring was very scanty and would require the most careful distribution and economical use.

SEVERE EARTHQUAKE IN AMERICA.

WASHINGTON, To-day.
A very severe earthquake, the tremors of which continued more than three hours, occurred during last night, centered about 5,000 miles from Washington. So severe were the shocks when they reached their maximum intensity that the recording needles of two of the four seismographs at Georgetown University Observatory were thrown off the scales.

GERMAN ATTACK REPULSED.

PARIS, To-day.
The Germans last night made another offensive movement in the region of HHI 304, northwest of Verdun, attacking the French trenches. The attack, says to-day's War Office announcement, was stopped by gun fire.

PRISONERS IN GERMANY FROM SHIPS SUNK.

COPENHAGEN, To-day.
The Ekstrabladet quotes a Swedish seaman as saying that the crews from armed ships sunk by the German raider in the South Atlantic held as war prisoners in Germany, include between 200 and 300 Americans, four Swedes, three Dutchmen and one Dane.

MEANS NEW COMPLICATION.

LONDON, To-day.
An extension of sea warfare with Germany because of her threat to sink on sight all British ships armed with three guns promises to bring new difficulties between belligerents and neutrals, including the United States. It is learned from a high diplomatic authority that changes in the neutral attitude toward protective armament for merchantmen will be announced in the near future.

GERMANY WITHDRAWING TROOPS FROM ROUMANIA.

LONDON, To-day.
The Times' correspondent with the Roumanian army telegraphing on January 24, says: "The general situation on this front is a stalemate for the present. All the enemy efforts during the last two weeks have been checked with great losses by the Russo-Roumanian armies, which are holding a fixed front on the line of the Trotus and Sereth. The line is at present so strong that the enemy seems unable to strike another blow. The enemy realizes that this is the case and appears to have decided to withdraw part of his forces from this front, where only four or five German divisions remain. The rest of the German forces have been relieved by Turkish and Austrian troops. On the front south of Galatz in the Trotus Valley, no Bulgarian unit is left except some artillery. The Roumanian soldiers who escorted them often lend them their own coats."

Hun Machine Guns Here

WAR SOUVENIRS.

The most important and striking war trophies to reach the city are the machine guns, which were taken from the Germans by the Newfoundland Regiment in the triumphant charge at Guendecourt on October 12th and 13th last. These souvenirs were forwarded to St. John's, by order of the British Government and at the request of His Excellency the Governor, Hon. Lieut.-Col. of "Our's." It is hardly necessary to retail what our gallant soldiers achieved on that memorable occasion; suffice it to say that they won the highest praise possible from the Commander of the British Forces, Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig. After the battle there was not a Newfoundlanders' bayonet but was red with blood, an indication of how obstinately they fought. Many of "Our's" were seen decorated for their heroism and some others—the bravest of the brave—paid the Supreme penalty, but their memories will live in imperishable fame as long as Newfoundland is Newfoundland.

If crackers are stale crisp them in the oven. A kitchen stool, which can be taken apart when not in use, is an excellent investment.

Christmas at the Foot!

Extract from letter from "One of Ours," dated "Somewhere in France," Dec. 20th, 1916:

"Well, on Christmas Day we had for dinner, roast turkey, vegetables, and pudding. We made a fine meal of it. At tea hour had our own spread, composed of chicken, lots of vegetables, pudding, fruit, raisins and nuts, coffee, and had a beautiful meal, after which we invited in our French folk and spent a social evening, singing songs, etc. in French and English. New Year's Day we are having a repetition of this, and to-morrow I shall be quite busy preparing for it. I had plenty of money, as there was very little here to spend it on. I suppose you were thinking of me on Xmas Day, and thought I had nothing. You will know now that I had plenty. Last year I spent a much worse time on the boat, and next Xmas I hope to be home."

MORE PENSIONS IN SIGHT!—It is reported in Government circles that a few long service officials in the Post Office, Custom House and other branches of the public service are shortly to be placed on the retirement list. We suppose it is only following out the custom that usually prevails on the eve of a general election. It will be interesting to know whether the vacant offices will be filled by promotion or by outsiders.

NEW THEATRICALS MAKE BIG HIT.

Last night there was a good crowd at Rossley's British Theatre to witness the farce comedy presented by Mr. Edmund Fox and Miss Carolyn Carr. "The Lunatics" is only intended for laughing purposes. The two visitors to the Lunatic Asylum each mistake the other for a patient and of course try to humor the other. It is a capable little farce comedy. The clever work of Fox and Carr show them to be artists of great dramatic ability. On Thursday their next change will be "The Habitant," a great French-Canadian act and a positive novelty. The three reel feature "The Expulsion" is one of the best pictures seen in a long while. The comedy picture "A Fatal Bean" had the audience in roars of laughter. A splendid show.

Portia's Stormy Trip.

The S. S. Portia, Capt. J. Kean, arrived back from Channel and intermediate ports this morning, after one of the stormiest trips on record. Strong winds, heavy seas and intense frost is a summary of the experiences of the voyage, which occupied 15 days. The ship brought a full freight and as passengers in saloon—Capt. J. Gilliam, P. Jensen, J. Jensen, Wm. Garland, H. P. Power, Corporal Reid, J. C. Cashin and 10 in steerage.

CULTURED LIGHT FINGERING.

A couple of weeks ago a suburban resident missed a fine prize bird from his hennery and looked far and near for it, but could discover no trace of it. On Saturday afternoon one of his family noticed the missing Richard in a neighboring yard and after the necessary explanation took the stray away back. The prize ring which is always attached to this kind of poultry was, however, missing. The party in whose possession the missing bird was discovered declared themselves "above that kind of thing."

Volunteers Inspected

By His Excellency the Governor. Yesterday afternoon His Excellency the Governor, accompanied by Captain Riley, M.C. and the Premier, visited the Headquarters of the Nfld. Regiment and inspected the troops. A large gathering of citizens and relatives of the soldiers were present including the following: Dr. W. F. Lloyd, M.H.A., Mr. J. A. Cunt, K.C., M.H.A., Mr. F. J. Morris, K.C., M.H.A., Revs. Canon Bolt, Dr. Curtis, T. B. Darby and other clergymen; Drs. Paterson and Burden, Mr. T. J. Duley, T. McNeil. On entering the Armoury His Excellency was greeted with the customary salute and inspected the parade. In his address he complimented the men on their splendid appearance and the patriotic spirit displayed by them in joining the colors. "Ours" had won perhaps a greater number of honors proportionately than any other regiment and he hoped that many of these men present would win distinction in the field. On the other side they would be taught trench work and other advanced fighting ideas. He hoped that they would prove a credit to themselves as soldiers and sons of Britain's Oldest Colony, thus continuing the good work already commenced by those who had gone before. The Premier then gave a brief address congratulating the men on their appearance and stated that one volunteer was worth three conscripts. Those present were greatly impressed by the appearance of the soldiers. At the close of the inspection Capt. O'Grady called for three cheers for His Excellency which were heartily given.

Reids' Boats.

The Argyle is leaving Placentia today on the western route. The Glencoe left Rose Blanche at 6.50 p.m. yesterday coming east. The Kyle left Port aux Basques at 11.25 p.m. yesterday. The Meigle which was to sail last evening has been detained. The Sagana reached Port aux Basques at noon to-day.

Sir. R. Borden's Tribute to Nfld.

In the House of Commons on Jan. 22nd, Sir Robert Borden in his reply to Sir Wilfred Laurier on the part the Dominion were playing in the Great War, said: "Canada would hold always in memory the brave service of the sons who had gone out in response to the call of the great cause." The part which the sister colony of Newfoundland had played would never be forgotten. No braver men than Newfoundlanders had gone forth to battle. "The question of the Confederation of Newfoundland had been referred to by a previous speaker. On this matter it would be inappropriate for him to say more than that the initiative of any such proposal properly lay with Newfoundland; but he could say for Canada that if such proposals were ever made, Canada would cordially welcome the approach and would give careful consideration to any proposal."

TORPEDOED AND SUNK.

As mentioned in a despatch yesterday from London, the s.s. Tabasco, which was torpedoed and sunk by an enemy submarine, was the familiar Furness Liner which ran the Liverpool-Halifax-Nfld. route for many years. The Tabasco left Halifax for Liverpool a fortnight ago, but when she met her fate had no Nfld. mail on board, we are informed. The Tabasco was 22 years old and 1,913 tons net.

25 cents Destroys Your Dandruff and Stops Falling Hair

Save your hair! Make it thick, wavy and beautiful—try this!

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scrub that robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Dandergin to-night—now—any time—will surely save your hair. Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Dandergin from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance, an incomparable gloss and softness; but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hairs—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

THE COLD BED ROOM.

The cold bed room is a place where people retire to rest, taking with them a pair of ice-bound feet which cause extreme annoyance to any other member of the family who happens to be in the same vicinity.

The practice of sleeping in a cold bed room is a direct outgrowth of the fresh-air fad which sends thousands of our best citizens down to breakfast every morning wearing a nose like the comb of a Brahmin rooster. A few years ago an influenza specialist discovered that by sleeping in a bed room which would sprout ice on a thermos bottle people could get rid of the clinging grip microbes and the tri-weekly throat spray. This was a new idea, and it has resulted in introducing into many a home the most industrious and untried form of double-wrapped chiblain known to medical science.

The most interesting part of the cold bed room is the bed, which is always located between two windows, where the cooling night air can play gently over the prostrate form of the sleeper and allow him to become thoroughly congested. There is nothing more exhilarating to a man who favors the short, cambric nightgown than to insert himself into an air-cooled bed which has had time to collect a thick layer of hoar frost, and then hunt around nervously for a place to lay his feet. The man who can do this and then stretch out at full length without uttering a word which would offend a pious wife need never fear about his chances of gaining heaven.

Another fascinating experience is to crawl gingerly out of a frost-bitten bed and put on some clothes which have been thrown over a chair, dight in the path of an arctic wave. Yet this is being done daily by untold thousands of spindle-legged husbands who are encouraged in the practice by unscrupulous family physicians. This teaches us that the man who places too much confidence in doctors is liable to freeze to the counterpane while doing so.

Eat Auntie.

(From the Montreal Mail.) As a reward for good conduct Johnny's mother had taken him to the Zoological Gardens. Also just before starting Johnny and his Aunt Mary had a decided difference of opinion as to what did and what did not constitute a clean neck. The walk around the menagerie was a journey of sheer delight to the young gentleman until he came to a strange animal with a long, lithe body. "What's that, mummy?" he asked. "That's an ant-eater, dear," said his mother. Johnny stood contemplating the creature for some minutes in silence. Then he said quietly: "Can't we bring Aunt Mary here some day, mummy?"

The Man Who Puts The "Deal" Through

must be ready physically and mentally.

This readiness depends to a great degree on sound nourishment—food that includes those "vital phosphates" so essential to sturdy energy, but which are often lacking in the usual dietary.

The famous food—

made of wheat and malted barley, retains and supplies, as does no other food in such splendid proportions, all the nourishment of the grains. It includes potash for brain and nerves, iron for the blood, lime for the bones, and other most necessary mineral elements.

Grape-Nuts has a wonderfully delicious flavor, is easily digested, and comes ready for the table. With cream or milk it makes a splendidly balanced ration.

Every Table should have its daily ration of Grape-Nuts—

What She'd Do If . . .

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

A neighbour of mine started, as the other evening by saying in her husband's presence "I was planning to do it all out last night what I should do if Philip should die. I'd take the children out in the country to my mother's. You know, she has quite a large place, and I'd take her life insurance and fix the place up and make a little Inn out of it. I'd have Junior (her oldest boy) have charge of the garden. I suppose I'd have to have a man to help him, he's only fifteen."

He Didn't Like Being Disposed Of That Way.

"Well, I don't like that," broke in her husband. "So you're going to dispose of me right off. It didn't sound attractive to me at all but I did think it was in the future, not right now."

"In the future?" she picked him up. "I hope it isn't at all. But I was just planning what I would do if—"

"And you like to think of things like that," he broke in again, beginning to feel ruffled in earnest. "Of course I don't. I can't bear to think of them, but I was just planning if—"

"Why think of it at all? Wouldn't you have time enough to plan if it did happen?"

Trying To Make A Man Understand. "I suppose so," she conceded "but," with the futile perseverance of a woman trying to make clear the psychology of an essentially feminine act to a very masculine man, "I'd just like to have an idea of what I could do."

At which he looked as baffled as he probably felt. I called her plans for a future without her husband essentially feminine.

I wonder if I was right. It may be an isolated case, but somehow I don't think it is.

I have a notion that it is a trick women the world over have,—of planning what they would do without their husbands.

Only The Protective Mother Instinct. The husband in this case really felt a little hurt, though it showed some lack of heart on his wife's part, but I think it is just the stirring of some strange protective instinct, the same that teaches the mother bird to be both mother and father when the father is killed.

As for hard heartedness,—there wasn't a smitchel of that because when she talks about her husband's death she doesn't any more take in the thought of it, sense it, than if such a thing were impossible.

We none of us do when we speak of such things. Which is a blessed dispensation of Providence. For how else could we live on the edge of the precipice and be happy?

Your Boys and Girls.

When baby's second teeth begin to appear they should be watched closely. If they grow evenly, do not disturb them, but if they are irregular, put them straight every day by gentle pressure. The child should be taken to a dentist who will adjust a band so that the teeth will grow straight.

In early childhood, very frequently, much mischief is done to the teeth by overfeeding, by the immoderate consumption of sweets, improper food, and overdoes of medicine. So never fail to consult a dentist immediately a spot or decay appears on any tooth. A bad tooth will soon destroy its neighbours on either side, and if the trouble is taken in-time the loss may easily be prevented.

For Luncheon or the Evening Meal

there is nothing so appetizing, so restful, so altogether satisfying, as a cup of pure palatable tea.

Then, too, a cup at night induces sweet sleep and promise of a clear head in the morning.

HOMESTEAD TEA is a reliable purity drink for the whole family.

"DON'T WORRY."

Hundreds of people are suffering from Coughs and Colds at the present time. You may be as careful as you like in trying to avoid catching this miserable Cough and Cold but you'll get it. Don't matter what you do—so "Don't Worry" while Stafford's Phosphate Cough and Cold Cure is obtainable.

"Whooping Cough" is also very prevalent amongst children, you can use nothing better than "Stafford's Phosphate."

country squire, with plenty of leisure to spend in his library; for he is an enthusiastic lover of books.

The Real John Redmond

But much as he loves his library, he is first and foremost an out-of-doors man. In his younger days he was one of the finest riders to hounds in Wexford, he was one of the best batsmen and bowlers at Trinity, Dublin; and had few rivals as a fencer in Ireland. Even to-day he is a formidable opponent on the tennis court, and he can dance as lightly and cleverly as most men of half his years.

But his chief sport is grouse-shooting. Among the mountains of Wicklow, in Parnell's old shooting lodge at Aghavannagh, he loves to spend his summers and autumns with his family, recruiting for the political fray.

Every morning he starts with a dip in the river. During the day, with his gamekeeper and a select party of friends, he roams over the heather, meeting generally at some appointed place with the ladies of the party who have come up to prepare lunch.

Nowhere is Mr. Redmond seen to such advantage as in the home circle. He is devoted to his only son, now, like himself, a barrister and Member of Parliament, and he has two daughters, one of whom married a New York doctor a few years ago. And they are equally devoted to their father. And those who have been privileged to join this small circle declare that they have never known a more happy and untroubled family or a more charming host.

Praises Sir Robert Bond

The Only Man to Lead the Country. Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Mr. Editor,—Allow me space in your valuable paper to express the sentiments of quite a number of our northern people. To-day all of us realise the serious situation we are up against and all of us know that we need some person to lead this Colony politically. Not one who has proved a failure, not one who is an adventurer, and who is trying to attain to a political position by working on feelings of people. No, no. We see farther now than some of the politicians give us credit for. The present day political leaders who are in sight are men who should not be given a serious thought. We need a man of good sound judgment and high ideals, such a man as Sir Robert Bond, who all admit is the only man available that can be classed as a politician and who is fit and capable to be at the head of affairs in such times as these. We shall surely need such a level-headed man to take hold of things at conclusion of peace when there must certainly be such an air of uncertainty about everything. Sir Robert Bond proved his worth before in time of difficulties. Sad is it for Newfoundland that we have not more men like Sir Robert. In ordinary times we were willing to risk giving a few fortunes seekers a chance but in the times that are before us we need a man. Being one of the lower ones, and it is us that rule, I ask you to consider what is likely to face us in the future and ask you square, are the men who are supposed to lead different parties equal to it? What surprises me is the gall of them to attempt to do it. If they surely saw themselves as others see them, they would certainly hide themselves. Let us all who would wish to see Sir Robert Bond take a hand, ask him to come forward. I am sure if we asked him, he would come for the sake of Newfoundland.

What a Gas Range Means for You, Mrs. Housekeeper.

The gas range is a muscle saver and a step saver. Think of the many tons of coal you used in that coal range, and how you have had to handle it all twice; first, carrying it up out of the cellar; then, from the kitchen to the ash barrel.

No more soot to wipe away; no more ashes to cart away; no more wood to fetch; no more coal dust; no more smoke and no more reason why the kitchen cannot be kept as clean and as orderly as the parlor. The gas range means just this:

Saves 50 Per Cent. of Kitchen Cares. Half of the labor in the house is caused by dust from the coal range. Every time it smokes, no matter how good the draught may be, clouds of ashes rise and settle on the furniture.

It Eliminates Hard Work. Use a gas range and you will live better, you will play better, and you will work better because the use of the gas range eliminates the drudgery of carrying coal, ashes and the clumping of kindling, as well as the drudgery of cleaning up a lot of dirt and, best of all, for the cook it makes it unnecessary for her to stand over a hot stove from two to three hours a day.

ALL CARS GOOD. The modern motor car is fine. In working out its smooth design, the best inventors in the land have nearly spavined brain and hand. Pale science sat up day and night, to make your motor a delight. The choo-choo wagon of this time is out of sight, superb, sublime, and it will stand for any test; All cars are good—but mine's the best. All cars are good; the poorest, best, that tries to get its owner's goat, is better far than anything we knew ten years ago by ling. The monarch of the last decade, when he went forth, on dress parade, could not command a rig as great as your old "four" or "six" or "eight." Invention rose, at man's behest and made great cars—and mine's the best. No more we wait for side-tracked trains, but scoot at will across the plains. All roads are ours, all pleasant views, the prairies wet with morning dew, the hillside and the woodland green, while we can pay for gasoline. We travel when we wish to go, and travel fast or travel slow, and when we're tired we stop to rest. All cars are good, but mine's the best.

AT THE POPULAR CRESCENT. "Sons of the Sea," a great Lubin production in three reels is the feature at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day. This is one of Lubin's best sea stories. Raymond McKee features in a fine Edison comedy drama: "Clothes Make the Man," Billie Reeves in "Billie's Debut," a roaring comedy. Professor McCarthy has arranged a splendid program of new music for this big show, don't miss seeing it.

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.
Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weakness? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man writes after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Go to the prescription. Go to any drug store, and get a bottle of Dr. Lewis' Eye Drops. One bottle will last a month. With this liquid in the eyes two to four times daily, you should see your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take them. Many, supposedly blind, might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Notes: Another precaution is to avoid the use of any eye medicine which is not recommended by the doctor. The number of drops should be strictly controlled. The number of times a day should be strictly controlled. It is best to use the drops in the morning and at night. It is best to use the drops in the morning and at night. It is best to use the drops in the morning and at night.

A Fast and Closely Fought Exhibition—Big Attendance, Unbounded Enthusiasm and Excitement at Fever Heat—City Victorious by 5 Goals to 3—Clean Play a Special Feature.

Upwards of two thousand people witnessed at the Prince's Rink last night a first-rate game which marked the opening of the hockey season for 1917. The competitors were a picked team from the City and seven players selected from the Regiment, the former winning by five goals to three. What accounted for the large attendance was the fact that the entire proceeds were to be devoted to the W. P. A. Fund.

Amongst those present were His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson accompanied by Capt. Riley, M.C., A.D.C., and Capt. Abraham. Notwithstanding the depletion of our hockey athletes; owing to enlistments it was generally conceded to be one of the fastest and unquestionably the cleanest exhibition ever pulled off here. FIRST PERIOD.
When the puck was put in motion the City made a vigorous rush. Herder picked up a pretty pass from Trappell, but was ruled off-side. On resuming the soldiers started a "big offensive." The City remained on the defensive and played their opponents down hard, but could not withstand the attack of the opposing forces for long. Sinnott and Winter controlled the puck, displaying neat combination work. The latter shot and made a "bullseye," giving first honours to the Regiment as well as scoring the first goal for the season. Spectators cheered vociferously for the lads in Khaki and excitement ran high.
Play was resumed at a fast pace with the soldiers again the aggressors. Winter made a brilliant dash and passed to White, who missed a splendid opportunity. At this juncture the City put more energy and vim into their work. They broke through the enemy's lines repeatedly and bombarded the danger zone, of which the custodian, Duley, proved himself invulnerable. Indeed he gave a marvelous exhibition of goal tending that won for him the admiration of the on-lookers. For the balance of the first

Presentation and Address

TO L-CORP. KENDALL.
At the close of the service in Gower St. Church on Sunday night the members of the choir presented their Organist and Choirmaster, Lance Corporal A. The recipient, who was taken by surprise, thanked the donors for their kind words and the most useful gift and referred to the many pleasant relations that had existed between them.

Thanksgiving Offering

Frees Gower Street Church of Debt.
On Sunday the Thanksgiving Offering at Gower Street Church amounted to $5,800. This, with other amounts to come in, realized the expectations of the church officers, as the debt on the building and all outstanding obligations, amounted to about $6,000.
At 4 p.m. yesterday the committee of management met and were highly pleased with the splendid response the congregation had given to their request.

"Cascarets" Best If Headachy, Bilious Sick, Constipated

Best for liver and bowels, bad breath, bad colds, sour stomach.
Get a 10-cent box. Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach. Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache. Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels. A Cascaret at night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet, breath right, complexion rosy and your liver and bowels regular for months.

Sealing Captains.

Among the changes of Captains of sealings steamers, we learn, are Captain Sam Bob Winsor, who last year met with such remarkable success in the Terra Nova, goes in the Ranger, being replaced in the former by Capt. A. Keen, who last year was in the Florizel. Capt. George Barbour goes in the Thetis, being succeeded in the good ship Neptune by Capt. "Billy" Winsor. Capt. Clarke, of Brigus, it is said, goes in the Njord and Capt. G. Whiteley again in the Bloodhound. We hear that Capt. Joe Keen is going to command the Halifax steamer Seal.
