CHAPTER IX. A DUEL OF WITS.

"No," replied the exquisite, without a smile. "I have never seen one."
"Never—seen—a battle, and you're a captain? What's the good of being a captain if you don't fight battles?" asked Grace, staring at him.
"I don't know," retorted Reginald, beginning to enjoy the originality of the young savage. "I assure you, Miss Darrell, I have often asked myself the same question."
Grace stared for a minute and then returned to the road, as though Captain Dartmouth had no further interest for her.

He waited for another question, but finding that it did not come, said, quietly:

"I have not been all around the world, as I admit I ought to have been, Miss Darrell; but I have travelled over a great part of it."

She looked round at him with renewed interest.

"Have you?" she said. "Where?"

"Oh, ever so many places—England, Ireland, Wales—"

"Oh, not them!" she interrupted, scornfully. "They're not places—I don't mean them. What I mean is foreign places—Africa, America, Italy, France, Desert Island, and among the Indians and savages. Have you been there?"

"Not among the savages—until this afternoon," he added, to himself—"but I've been to France and Italy and Switzerland. I'll tell you about them if you like."

"No, thanks," she said, indifferently. "I don't care to hear anything about 'em if there ain't any savages."

Captain Dartmouth stroked his mustache, not a bit offended or embarrassed.

"Then I won't tell you," he said. "Perhaps you'd like to hear something about the savages and the rest of it that other people have seen; if so, come and sit down—it's rather draughty, don't you think, just here at the window?—and I'll tell you."

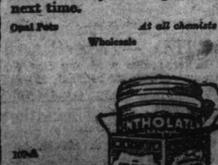

Grace took no notice for a minute.

and he crossed over and wheeled the chair up for her, arranging the cushions in a comfortable position.

"Now the chair's ready, and so am I," he said, dropping into his own chair and crossing his legs.

Grace came and sat down without a word, and the captain began an old African hunting story, relating it truthfully as far as he remembered it, and supplying any details he might have forgotten.

His voice was pleasing and he had it under thorough control.

Now, as he sat opposite the dark, bowed, attentive face of the strange girl, he dropped a great deal of his languor, and, quickening and raising it as the scenes he was describing required, held her attention fast and charmed her out of herself.

Her face lighted up with the most absorbed attention, her head was bent forward, her eyes fixed upon him, her lips, from which the breath came sweetly and quickly, apart and tremulous with excitement.

"Hello! You two've been making friends, eh?"

CHAPTER X. THE Taming Process.

"Here is a beast to be bent or broken; bent by the stronger will of man, and broken by his subtlety."

Grace was strongly built for a girl and had a strong constitution.

Unlike most girls who are fortunate in the possession of muscle and sinew, she did not waste her strength; nay, more, she was positively proud of it.

To be able to hold the dead Hugh's horse, or walk round the estate—a matter of sixteen miles altogether—and to plunge into a cold bath when the late autumn frost was silencing the window panes, were feats much more to be commended in a young lady than playing the piano or miming French, as she called it.

Every morning as the clock struck six she rose and, wrapping herself in her dressing-robe, made her way to the bath-room. Then, all in a glow with cold, crisp water, she made a hasty toilet and donned a little gray riding-habit.

Treading softly down the stairs so as not to wake the squire, who never rose till seven, she ran into the yard, where one of the men had orders to have her horse saddled for her. She was but a girl, but woe to the man if her horse was a minute behind time. The Darrell impatience and temper displayed themselves very quickly.

Once mounted she was off; away over the hedges and across the country, her half-dried hair flying in the wind, her cheeks all aflame with health and excitement, her eyes as flashing as those of the horse, who enjoyed the mad morning gallop as much as his very rider.

The squire had attempted to put a stop to her "treak," as he called it, but of course in vain, and had given in, stipulating that a groom should follow her.

This Grace agreed to, and kept her word.

The groom was allowed to start with her, and then followed—followed half a mile away—Grace having got clear of him in a quarter of an hour.

She had kept her word, but the squire owned himself beaten, as usual, and for the future his lady took her morning gallop alone.

The morning after Reginald Dartmouth's arrival, Grace returned and entered the hall as he sauntered down the terrace for a lounge round the garden.

He glanced at the habit and held out his hand.

"Are you going out?"
"I've been," said Grace, giving him the tips of her fingers and snatching them away again before he had time to close on them. "Been and come back," and she pushed the dark food of hair from her flushed face.

"You are an early riser, Miss Darrell," he said, with a smile. "I have only just come down."

Grace threw up her head contemptuously.

"You're lazy," she said.
"Very," he assented, quietly. "I always was."

Grace looked at him, rather nonplused by his impassive face and immovable way of taking things, and moved on.

"Is that your horse?" asked Captain Reginald, nodding languidly after the animal as it was being led away.

"Yes," said Grace. "Isn't he a beauty?" and she ran down two steps to look after him.

"Yes," said the captain, raising his eyebrows; "very fair."

"Very fair! What do you mean—that he ain't a good one?" she asked, indignantly.

"Nothing half so rude," he retorted, as quietly as before. "Very fair means passable, tolerably good. You said beautiful."

"And I meant beautiful, too," she said, shortly. "Come, have you seen a better one?"

"Plenty," he said.
"I don't believe it," she answered, coolly.

He lifted his hat.

"That's very rude, but it's original. Do you know, Miss Darrell, that you are the only living being who ever told me I fibbed?"

"No, I didn't," said Grace, plucking off her hat and wiping her forehead with her gauntlet. "At least, I didn't mean it if I did. What I meant was—"

Oh, you're not listening," she broke off, turning her back to him as he played with his eyeglasses listlessly and yawned behind his hand.

"I beg your pardon," he said. "I am afraid I am scarcely awake."

"Why didn't you stop in bed then," said Grace, "if you're so uncommon tired?"

"Why not, indeed?" he said, gravely, and the girl, half annoyed, half puzzled at his evident determination not to be offended or made angry by her, ran past him into the house.

Reginald Dartmouth looked after her with a strange smile, and muttering "My savage cos should live in a habit—it becomes her," lounged into the stables.

"Are these all the cattle?" he asked one of the men, glancing at the stalls.

"These be all, 'cep'n' Miss Grace's, sir, and the pony," replied the man.

The captain stepped up to one or two and had their rugs taken off.

"Where's the old hunter that used to be in this stall?" he asked.

"Dead, sir," said the man. "Master H—" he stopped short, and said, instead, "He was put 't' the wall at 't' back of the Warren, and missed un."

"Ha!" said the captain. "Mr. Hugh, I suppose?"

The man shook his head.

"Saddle this gentleman for me after breakfast," he said, laying his hand on a powerful cob. "He's as fast as any here, I suppose?"

The man shook his head.

"No," he said, "Miss Grace's be the head of 'em all. There beart' one as can touch him."

The captain nodded, languidly and went in to breakfast.

"Good-morning, sir," he said, shaking hands with the squire.

"Ah, good-morning, Reginald," was the response. "Been strolling round, eh?"

"Yes," said the captain. "I have been as far as the stables."

"See anything you like there?" said the squire, sitting down and blowing his nose with great gusto.

"Yes," said the captain. "I have asked one of the men to bring me round a bright bay cob."

"Ah, good horse, and quite up to your weight," said the squire.

"Where's Grace, I wonder? Here's the coffee and all the rest of it. Hi, Mrs. Lucas!" he shouted; but before that lady could appear Grace entered and, kissing her uncle, sat down to the inn.

"Well, haven't you got a word for your cousin, madam?" said the squire.

"Seen him before," said Grace.

"Yes, we have already given each other the weather-orders," said the captain, peeling his egg. "I was fortunate enough to catch Miss Darrell returning from her morning ride."

"Ah," said the squire, "she's an early bird! Don't know where she gets the notion from. Most of the young women are lie-a-beds nowadays."

"And most of the young men, too," said Grace, looking over at Reginald without any attempt at disguise.

"That's meant for me, sir," said Reginald.

"Ha, ha!" said the squire. "Grace says what she means pretty plain—a great deal too plain sometimes," he added, nodding at her; but she went on with her breakfast without retort.

"What are you going to do—ride, didn't you say?" said the squire.

"I thought of going for a gallop," said Captain Reginald. "Perhaps I can persuade you to accompany me, sir."

"No, I can't," said the squire. "Confounded gout! Grace will, though."

The captain looked over at her interrogatively.

"Can I count on so much honor?" retorted Grace. "I don't know—perhaps."

The captain bowed.

"You shall tell me after breakfast," he said; then, turning to the squire, added: "I have one or two letters. Can your man take them for me, sir?"

"Oh, yes!" said the squire; "put 'em in the bag there and they'll go all right."

"I'll add a line or two to this one," Captain Dartmouth said, holding one of the letters up; and taking a pen wrote inside the envelope: "Send me, with the gun, the three large volumes of novels, and start the Sybil down as soon as possible."

Then directing the envelope to his valet, he dropped it with the others.

After breakfast he lounged upstairs and exchanged his coat for a tight riding one and put on his spurs.

Grace was standing by the window.

"Have you made up your mind, Miss Darrell?" he asked, stroking his mustache and looking perfectly careless and indifferent as to her decision.

"No, I haven't," she said.

He dropped into a chair and beat his legs with his whip.

"Well, aren't you going?" she said. "You're keeping the horse waiting." (To be continued.)

LONDON, May 10. An important debate on the government's Irish Home Rule bill in committee stage began this afternoon when Mr. Asquith moved an amendment altering the bill so that Ireland would have one parliament instead of separate parliaments for the north and south as provided in the government measure.

I. R. AMENDMENT VOTED DOWN.

LONDON, May 10. An amendment to the government's Irish Home Rule bill offered by Asquith providing one parliament instead of two for Ireland was defeated in the House of Commons this evening after a short debate by a vote of two fifty nine to fifty five. Asquith's amendment would provide one parliament with the county option for Ulster for a period limited to six years as proposed in 1914.

CARRANZA'S TROOPS SUFFER.

ELPASO, Tex., May 10. MEXICAN EXECUTIONS.

ELPASO, Tex., May 10. General Candido Aguilar, son-in-law of President Carranza, and Francisco Murguia have been executed, according to an unofficial report received here to-day by Robert Pesqueira, revolutionary official agent in the United States. Aguilar, according to the report received by Pesqueira, was executed by his own troops. There were no other details. Murguia was fleeing from Mexico City where he had been commander of the federal troops. Before he left Murguia was reported by General Alvaro Obregon to have carried out wholesale executions of political prisoners, including fifteen generals. Pesqueira said Obregon has issued orders to all revolutionary commanders that Carranza if captured should be treated with all consideration and taken to Mexico City.

OFFICIALLY CONFIRMED.

WASHINGTON, May 10. Mexico City, Vera Cruz and Tampico are in the hands of revolutionists. American destroyers were enroute to-day to Mexican waters to await eventualities and to afford protection to American lives in Mexico Gulf ports. Official confirmation of the fall of Mexico, the capital city, was received yesterday by the State Department from the American Embassy, which reported there was no disorder in the capital incident to the transfer of authority. Tampico and Vera Cruz also were reported quiet.

CARRANZA WILL BE TRIED.

AGUAPRITT, Sonora, May 10. Should President Carranza be captured by revolutionary troops he must stand trial in the civil courts for any misdeeds of which he may have been guilty while chief executive. General Calles, Commander of the revolutionary troops in the northwest, announced last night just before he left for Juarez. If Carranza succeeds in getting out of Mexico the revolutionists will be pleased, however, General Salles said. General Calles declared that as Mexico City is in the hands of revolutionists, troops marching from Sonora to Juarez probably would be sent direct to Mexico City for garrison duty. A provisional president will be named to serve until the elections, he said.

DANIELS' REPLY TO SIMS.

WASHINGTON, May 10. Secretary Daniels, before the senate investigating committee, to-day, made his long awaited reply to the criticisms of Rear Admiral Sims on the United States navy's part in the war. The American naval secretary charges that Sims lacked vision and belittled the work of the American navy in contrast to the British. He coveted British decorations and aspired to become an honorary member of the British admiralty. Daniels declared that officers supporting Sims' charges were largely "people with a grievance." The testimony of other officers in possession of first hand knowledge, Secretary Daniels testified, should be accepted by all openminded men as an absolute refutation of practically all of Admiral Sims' charges.

THIEVES ENTERED DYE WORKS.

The dye-works of Mr. N. J. Murphy, Springdale St., were broken into Sunday night and the place ransacked. Nothing of value was taken by the marauders. The police have the matter in hand.

The King of Denmark.

The Government of Denmark has been passing through a crisis which for a short time put the Crown in a somewhat trying position, but serious difficulty was averted by adhering to the principle of responsible government, first worked out in England more than two centuries ago, and given by England to the world. The man whom the people demanded should be Prime Minister, was restored to office, and certain electoral reforms were promised. Against the institution of the Crown and against the man wearing the Crown, King Christian X., there was no real hostility.

King Christian X. was born on September 26, 1870, being the eldest son of the late King Frederick VIII. On April 26th, 1898, he married Princess Alexandrine of Mecklenburg; and he succeeded to the throne on the death of his father on May 14, 1912.

His brother Karl was elected King of Norway in 1905, and in 1896 he married Princess Maud Alexandra, sister of King George V, of Great Britain.

King Christian rules through ministers responsible to the Rigsdag, or Parliament which consists of two houses, one corresponding to our House of Commons, and the other to our Senate. Political power, therefore, is in the hands of the Danish people themselves, and their King reigns but does not rule.

Skirts being especially designed for them, overblouses decide to stay.

The Most Beautiful Car in America

A New Development in Light Sixes

Before we began experimental work on our new six-cylinder motor three years ago, we made a very thorough investigation of the light six field.

We found out just what qualities car owners desired in the power plants of their motor cars and then we designed an engine to meet these requirements.

The wisdom of our method is attested by the unanimous approval given our five-passenger "Glenbrook" model. With its first appearance, it immediately won the enthusiastic support of motorists.

And, by its dependable and economical performance, it has so clearly demonstrated its high character as an investment value that our production schedule is already proving unequal to the demand.

The "Glenbrook" is a truly remarkable development in five-passenger cars. Won't you arrange for a demonstration while our dealer is in position to meet your requirements as to delivery?

"It Has Done Me a World of Good," She Now Declares.

Says She is Enjoying Better Health Than in Years Since Taking Tanlac.

"I owe a debt to Tanlac that I can never repay, for I don't believe anyone ever suffered with rheumatism as I have, but Tanlac has brought me wonderful relief," said Mrs. Margaret Gummells, who for some years lived in St. John's, Newfoundland, but is now residing at 118 Agricola Street, Halifax, N.S.

"For fourteen years I suffered all the torture of rheumatism, which seemed to be right through my system. My feet and legs, from the knees down, were the worst. My knees used to swell until they were actually three times the size, and were so sore I couldn't bend them to save my life. The sinews and tendons of my legs just seemed as though they were tied into knots and the muscles were very sore. My feet were so swollen I couldn't get my shoes on, and it was only with difficulty that I could creep around the house by the aid of a crutch and a stick, while sometimes for a week at a time I couldn't even put my feet to the floor. My arms and shoulders also would often be so stiff that I couldn't hold a broom, much less do any work. The pain that I suffered was something terrible. It was just a steady, throbbing pain that seemed to go clean to the bone, and many a time I have just screamed with the agony. When I had these severe attacks of rheumatism, I would be laid up for five and even nine weeks at a time, and was so bad that I couldn't even turn over in bed, nor get any sort of sleep or rest. Hardly would I get over one attack before I would be down with another, and for the last few years I have been practically unable to do anything. This continual rheumatism seemed to take all the life and energy out of me, and I got so thin that my clothes used to nearly drop off me.

"It was through Mr. William Westerton, who lives in the upper flat of this house, and also comes from Newfoundland, that I came to try Tanlac. He had been in quite as bad a state with rheumatism as I was, and had been completely relieved by Tanlac, and so I decided to try it too. I have only taken three bottles but already it has done me a world of good. It seems to be clearing the rheumatism out of my whole system, and the way I have improved is remarkable. I no longer have those pains in my bones like I did, the swelling in my knees, ankles and feet is all leaving me and I can now get my shoes on. I am so much better that I can get around the house and do all my work, and, in fact, last week did quite a big wash. Tanlac has not only helped my rheumatism, but my general health is better than it has been in years. There is no doubt but what it is a wonderful medicine, and I have every confidence in recommending it.

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors; by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale.—adv.

Dandelion Valuable.

A property owner on Allandale Road complains that dandelion pickers are operating on his premises. Dandelions are valuable, the roots for medicine, the leaves for culinary purposes, and the posies for making a beverage with a good kick in it, the latter property under present conditions enhancing their work. Lucky owners of a patch of the herbs could not be expected to stand by and let them be taken away without a protest.

Legislative Council.

Monday, May 10.

The House met at 4.30. The second reading of Bill entitled "An Act Respecting the Department of Public Works," was deferred.

A message from the Assembly intimated that the following Bills had been passed by that body and asking the sanction of the Council:

A Bill entitled "An Act to Provide for the Better Standardization of Codfish"; a Bill entitled "An Act to provide for the better obtaining of information respecting the Codfishery"; a Bill entitled "An Act to Incorporate the Women's Patriotic Association"; a Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter II of the Consolidated Statutes, 3rd Series, entitled 'Of the Department of Marine and Fisheries.'"

These were read a first time to be read a second time to-morrow. Copies of Report of the Minister of Agriculture for 1919 were laid on the table by the leader of the Government Hon. Geo. Shea.

Hon. Mr. Grieve read some correspondence between Mr. R. B. Job and himself re his speech on the Fisheries Regulations.

The House then adjourned till 4.30 p.m. to-day.

As the North Sees It.

ST. JOHN'S CONDITION. — It isn't altogether a "cinch" living in our one and only little city these days.

St. John's folks seem to have no coal; there is little or no hay for the horses; potatoes are scarce and prices are going skyward as fast as they can. Outports have their disadvantages, but just now it is better to live in an outport than in St. John's. Some of our business men who are at present in the city, report that prices are so high they have not yet begun buying.

There is a fairly good remedy for the disease of high prices, and our American cousins are adopting a plan that is likely to prove more effective at reducing prices than all the Royal Commissions, Control Boards and all the rest. The overall movement is attaining very large proportions, and parades of men and women in overalls and gingham dresses, escorted by bands with the bandsmen in overalls and marshalled by policemen in overalls have taken place in American cities. As a result a tepping in dry goods prices is reported.

We may use a similar method, and though there is no need for anything so drastic as the overall movement, careful buying of only real necessities will have more effect on prices than anything.

Most people need no warning, their straightened purses being warning enough.

THE WOODFORD AFFIDAVIT. — The more one reads of the Woodford affidavit the more one is puzzled as to who is the liar.

The facts are now fairly plain, but instead of simplifying matters they only confuse. A brief history of matters stands as follows:

The Woodford affidavit presented to the court, in which Woodford swore that he had been promised a Government job in return for resigning his seat and the case against him would be withdrawn.

Three weeks elapse, and on the night on which a public meeting was to be held in the Star Hall to discuss the matter, an announcement was made that the Governor, advised by his ministers, was appointing a Royal Commission to enquire into the case.

On the opening of the "House" Premier Squires denies that he offered Woodford any job or made any arrangement.

The Minister of Justice announces that he had cabled legal authorities in London, and that "even if the charges against Mr. Squires were true," it was not criminal under Newfoundland law.

Premier Squires may be perfectly innocent—we sincerely hope, for the sake of the morality of our Legislature, which has reached a low ebb, that he is successfully white washed by the Royal Commission; but the ambiguity of the whole affair, when the Minister of Justice takes the trouble to cable London, regarding a matter which the Premier declares is absolutely untrue, must make people wonder.

The whole affair needs clearing up, and clearing up quickly.

MERCHANTS TO DECIDE BY NOON TO-MORROW.

A largely attended meeting of the L.S.P.U. was held in their hall last night. After some discussion it was decided to give the merchants till noon to-morrow, to decide as to granting the wages increase as asked for some weeks ago. The new rate for steamboat men is 70 cents per hour up 6 p.m., $1.00 up to midnight and $1.50 after that. If a favorable reply is not forthcoming it is likely that a strike will be called.

FOR SOMEBODY'S MOTHER.

"God could not be everywhere and therefore he made mothers."
—Old Jewish saying.

Day after tomorrow is Mother's Day. If you are among the blessed who still have a dear mother on earth instead of only a mother in Heaven, of course you have already to those who knew and loved her. It brought her back to me.

Just a few flowers or a few lines. Just a few flowers with a card saying that you know he or she would be sending them if alive to-day.

Just a few lines, greeting somebody's mother for somebody's sake, and perhaps recalling some tender memory.

I do not believe you will often have a chance to give so much happiness in so simple a way.

Mainly About People.

Mrs. F. J. E. Harding, who has been a resident of St. Albans, Vt., since 1872, is the daughter of a veteran of Waterloo, who was one of the guard at St. Helena. She remembers the coronation of Queen Victoria, and recalls the former Emperor Wilhelm when he came as a prince to visit his aunt at Buckingham Palace. He was a fine-looking fellow, and everybody was sorry for him because of his withered arm. Mrs. Harding is now 92.

United States Senator Thomas, of Colorado, spends many leisure hours hunting down unusual statistics. He astonishes his fellow senators by his ability to produce statistical data of importance at a minute's notice. His latest has started other statisticians. It is to the effect "that the number of men who struck during the war exceeded the total number who defended the country by several hundred thousand."

Lady Patricia Ramsay, formerly known as Princess Patricia, is to become the patroness of the Provincial Arts and Industrial Institute of B.C. Lady Ramsay has written to Mr. John Forsythe, provincial librarian, who discussed the art situation with her when she was in Canada. The princess was in Victoria in 1913 with her father, the Duke of Cornwall, and laid the corner stone of the provincial library. At that time she told Mr. Forsythe and others that she hoped that an art society would be established in Victoria. Now that this has been established, she has consented to the request of Mr. Forsythe and become patron. Besides holding the office of patroness, it is likely that Lady Patricia Ramsay will send out some of her paintings.

This is incorrect. Carpentier invested his savings in the mines of Lens before the war, but he began life as an office boy. His first organized matches were fought in the skating rink at Lens when he was twelve, he and a friend about the same age organizing amateur matches. They charged spectators one franc admission in order to cover the rent of the hall, and were also able to set aside ten francs for the winner of each bout, and five francs for the loser. Even at this early stage Descamps, also a native of Lens, superintended Carpentier's training, and was justly proud of the success of his pupil.

Sir Robert M. Kindersley, K. B. E., Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, who recently arrived in New York, has reached Winnipeg. He is visiting Canada in connection with the 250th anniversary of the company's foundation, and will attend a number of functions in his honor during his visit in Montreal. Sir Robert, who was a director of the Bank of England, and a member of the Court of Fishmongers Company, was director of the War Savings Committee during the war. It was for his services in that capacity that he received the knighthood of the Order of the British Empire. He was invested by the King just before sailing.

The Queen of Spain delights to go shopping in Paris. She visits shops and dress making and millinery establishments personally. Her visits are so eagerly looked for that the announcement that she is in Paris puts them all on the alert. She is a great spender and doesn't haggle over prices.

Mlle. Martha Gauthier, a French girl, now visiting New York, is regarded by some as the great war's greatest heroine. Her present husband, Lord Curzon, resents criticism and he has never been a conspicuous success in any office.

ANOTHER STRIKE.

This year I will not sweat the flies, as I have soaked them in the past; I'll not as an avenger rise, and slay a million, first and last. 'Tis true I may resort to blows, and kill a few in self defence, when they alight upon my nose, and cause me agony intense. But I won't drop all other chores to chase the cheap, besotted flies, although the Health Board rips and roars, and says I'm foolish and unwise. For years I've plied my swatting stick, a million billion flies I've slain; results? their absence makes me sick—my weary toll was all in vain. There'll be more flies this year, I wist, than ever flopped around before; the ones I slew will not be missed; for each one killed there'll be a score. You've heard about the ancient gent who pushed a boulder up a hill; a few feet up the slope it went, and then slipped back, already still. No modern man would stand for that; results must come, or people quit; and so no more the flies I'll bat, since batting doesn't make a hit.

Nation Deteriorating.
"Distinctly unflattering to our national pride," says a London paper, "is the report on the physical health of the nation based on the Army medical examination during the war of men under the age of 40. Nearly 2½ million men were examined, with the result to state it in its simplest form—that only one man in three was found to be normally healthy, and that one of every ten men proved to be a physical wreck."

Will It Pay?

The members of the Importers' Association assign commercial reasons for their decision to abandon "Empire Day" May 24th, from the general holiday list, claiming that the proximity of that day and the King's Birthday, June 3rd, will interfere with and embarrass trade. But as both Empire Day and the King's Birthday are Government and Bank holidays, it cannot be assumed with any degree of consistency that business will suffer, even though both days (as we trust they will be) are observed. Commerce and sentiment do not mix very well together. The old saying that "there is no friendship in trade" is evidence of this, but sentiment, popular sentiment when aroused is all powerful and can do a great deal more to retard profitable business, than any other expression of public disfavor. And popular sentiment is aroused just now over the recently promulgated decision of the Importers' Association.

Go where you will, on the streets, in the clubs, at the stores, on the wharves, amongst the employees there is not one word to be heard in favor of the elimination of Empire Day from the holiday schedule. On the contrary every one regards the action with disfavor and is not slow in expressing an opinion to this effect, condemnatory of the lack of wisdom exhibited by those who determine the days to be set apart as free from the demands of work. There is no general holiday in May, apart from the 24th, and no half holiday, and it is regarded as exceedingly unwise and short-sighted on the part of the Importers' Association to annul the day that marks an epoch in our Imperial History. It was not lack of patriotism, we are told, that brought about such a decision. The real reason is the inconvenience to trade caused by two whole holidays coming so near to each other. As has already been pointed out, such inconvenience cannot be fraught with any grave results, and as popular sentiment is strongly and unanimously antagonistic to performing general work on a day which has for years been held in reverence and affection, the correct thing to do will be to yield gracefully to that sentiment and issue proclamation to all concerned that the ban on Empire Day is lifted and that all and sundry may, as in former years, celebrate, whether the weather is fair or foul, the day, which has been set apart by Imperial Statute in commemoration, not only of the life and long reign of a great Queen but because it is the birthday of the unification of the greatest Empire the world has ever seen.

We can assure the trade generally that the observance of Empire Day will not cause any radical upset to their arrangements. Rather will it give an impetus, a stimulus to the work in hand, the employees returning to work on Tuesday, 25th, putting more vim into their individual efforts, in order to make up, if necessary, any arrears that may have occurred in consequence of the holiday. Outport men who are in the city will as well appreciate the secular holiday, and will neither cavil nor complain over any loss of time, which may or may not be a sequence to the celebration. They possess exactly identical sentiments with regard to the importance of the day as do city folk and their patriotism is none the less warm. The voluntary enlistments during the war proved that fact. Unanimous sentiment therefore demands that there shall be no departure from honoring Empire Day as has been customary, and sentiment being omnipotent, quick to punish as to reward, will be the influence in causing the restoration of the "Queen's Birthday" to the general holiday schedule. To eliminate it entirely will be a policy of the penny wise, pound foolish order.

"Clintonia" in Danger.

Last evening, Messrs. Campbell and McKay received word that their schooner Clintonia was in a dangerous position near Ferryland. The schooner left Oporto on March 31st with a cargo of salt, arriving at Aquaforte on the 7th May, and from there was ordered on to Ferryland, leaving for that port on Sunday last. Meeting the storm of yesterday the vessel mis-stayed and had to anchor in a very dangerous position, her mainmast being carried away. The crew landed but are standing by the vessel to-day. At 11.30 this morning, a tug left here to tow the vessel into Trepassey.

Sir Patrick McGrath Back to Town.

Was Out of the Country Since Last November—Health Much Improved. Will attend Imperial Press Conference This Year.

Sir Patrick T. McGrath, M.L.C., Editor of the Evening Herald, who has been absent from Newfoundland since November of last year, arrived in the city by train at two o'clock this morning.
Seen by a Telegram reporter this forenoon, he expressed himself as much improved in general health and ready to perform his journalistic duties than for some time previous to his departure.
In Montreal, Canada, he was under the care of specialists, and from there he went to the States. He was on his way back to the country some months ago—at the end of January—but, getting as far as Sydney, learned that the railway line was closed by snow-storms. He consequently went South, arriving at Florida, where he has been most of the time since.
He left the Kyle at Port aux Basques, and thence went to Grand Falls, where his nephew, Mr. Evan Fraser, was very ill.

While away from Newfoundland Sir Patrick received an invitation to attend the Imperial Press Conference of 1920. It is likely that he will attend this. The Conference will be composed of 100 journalists of the Empire—60 of England and 40 of the colonies. Lord Burnham, owner of the Daily Telegraph, is the chairman and will attend, while others who will be there are Lords Northcliffe and Lord Riddell, the latter owner of the London Illustrated News. The Conference proper will be held at Ottawa, Ont., but a tour of 47 days' duration will begin from Halifax, N.S., on July 25th and cross the Dominion to Victoria, B.C. Return will be made through the Cobalt District and the Highlands of Ontario, ending at Quebec on Sept. 10. Two special C.P.R. trains of 10 cars each will be placed at the disposal of the Conference and every accommodation granted.

This is the time when foot troubles begin. It is wise therefore to consider some means of preventing these troubles. The occasional use of the bath in which a little Scholl's Pedico Granulated Foot Soap has been dissolved, especially if a little of Scholl's Pedico Foot Balm be rubbed in with gentle massage after drying the feet, will greatly avail to prevent foot troubles, or to relieve and cure them if the irritation has already begun. It is really wonderful how tender, sore, perspiring or smelly feet become soothed and deodorized by means of these simple remedies, and those who suffer in their "understanding" may well welcome such a boon as Scholl's specialties confer. NOTES OF TRAVEL:

And Reminiscences of a Pleasant Tour.

(I. C. MORRIS.)

WE BEGIN OUR TOUR.

With ideal weather, and as a passenger on the staunch ship Rosalind, we began this tour; and for the benefit of any who may read these notes, we have jotted down such points of interest as appealed to us. Perhaps there may not be much in what we have to say; but whatever the record may contain, or whatever the tone of this record may be, it is intended to help someone, and in the end do a little good.

We extend therefore, to the reader our warmest greetings, and at once begin our tale—The Tale of a Holiday Tour.

The crowd of passengers which stood upon the decks of the S.S. Rosalind were mostly bent on a holiday, and for a while they had cast aside the cares of business, and the burdens of toil. Some were beginning at St. John's, but the majority of the passengers were from abroad, and came under the list of "round trippers." Starting thus, our interests in the good ship were identical, and a common feeling of friendship seemed to permeate each breast. It was holiday time, and the sun was brightly shining. The prospects were favorable, and when the familiar signals of "stand by, and 'let go' and 'go ahead'" were given from the bridge, the good ship began to move, and we were off. With widening space the speed of the ship was increased, and soon the faces on the pier faded from our view, and like a living creature the S.S. Rosalind passed through the narrows, and out into the bay, and ploughed the waters of Old Neptune, as if in defiance and triumph. On every hand were points of interest; and here and there we saw some which strongly appealed to our finer feelings.

The first of these was the derelict ship "Appenine," which lay fast aground near Witless Bay. What a lesson this ship taught us. To look at her from the distance was to see a seemingly perfect ship. Her outline looked as if she were in dock, and we almost asked ourselves why she did not move, and why she was in such close proximity to the land.

This query solved the problem. The ship had safely crossed the ocean, and in good time had made the land; but opposing elements conspired against her, and the treacherous ice-foe encircled her. Little by little it gripped the mighty ship, and held her in its tenacious hold, until the inevitable took place, and the "Appenine" was in the class of ships which "come not back." In marine architecture, the Appenine was perfect, and she had all the equipment of a first class ocean boat, but those were in vain; a greater power had overcome her, and her great strength was futile. Thus she became stranded, and thus she was lost, and thus she lies at our doors. The people who travel up and down the coast by land see her, and the boats and ships which plough over waters pass her by, but she lies beyond the power of human skill. She has made her last voyage, and her log is for ever closed. And yet it was a mere incident which placed her in this position. A little too near the land did it, a little more sea-way would have saved her. Her position seems pitiful for the looks so perfect—that is, from the distance. We have seen men like this ship. In many ways they were perfect, but some eddy caught them, and some hidden power overcame them; and in spite of almost superhuman efforts they were wrecked. Like the good ship they were meant to sail on, and to fill out a useful career. Why did they not do it? Whose fault was it, some will say "their own" but, judge not. We may not know what upset them; we may not know what came into their lives to turn them aside from their ideals, and to press them upon the rocks of disaster. We may not know. Let us not judge. Such were some of the thoughts which crowded in upon us as we beheld the wreck of the S.S. "Appenine" from the deck of the "Rosalind" when commencing our tour of which we now begin to write.

To-Day's Messages.

PIRATES DESPOIL PASSENGERS.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 11. Pirates held up the French packet, Soutra, which left Batum on May 6 for Marseilles, and after robbing the passengers went ashore in boats, which they compelled members of the crew to man. Among those robbed were several women, whose husbands are connected with relief work in Armenia. They were fleeing before the Bolshevik advance, and were compelled to give up their money and jewellery at muzzle of revolvers.

BRITISH WILL CONTINUE BOMBARDMENT.

LONDON, May 11. Walter Hume Long, First Lord of the Admiralty, replying to a question in the Commons to-day, said that British warships in the Black Sea would continue to bombard the Russian coast until the Bolsheviks ceased hostilities with General Wrangel's Crimean Army, with a view to a discussion of terms for an armistice. He admitted the bombardment was preventing the export of Russian raw materials, but declared this was due to the Soviet Government persisting in hostilities.

NOT BLOODLESS AFTER ALL.

WASHINGTON, May 11. Mexico's latest revolution, after getting underway with a remarkable absence of fighting, apparently has not been without the usual tropical season of blood-letting. From behind the veil, which obscures events of the last few days, are beginning to trickle stories of wholesale political executions and counter attacks.

BECKETT WINS CHAMPIONSHIP.

LONDON, May 11. Joe Beckett, English heavyweight boxer, knocked out Bombardier Wells, another British pugilist, in the third round of a match for the heavyweight championship of England.

STATE CAPITAL EVACUATED.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, May 11. The evacuation of Monterey, capital of the state of Nuevo Leon, by Carranza forces was reported in unofficial despatches here to-day. Governor De la Santos, was reported to be enroute to Matamoros, opposite Brownsville, where the state government will be established, the report declares.

SHOULD HAVE BEEN LYNCHED.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 11. James Watson, who has confessed to the murder of seven women, was to-day sentenced to life imprisonment at San Quentin Prison by Judge Frank Willis of the Los Angeles County Superior Court. The sentence followed Watson's plea of guilty to the murder of Nina Lee Deloney, entered last week.

HANGED SON, THEN HANGED HIMSELF.

LETHBRIDGE, Alberta, May 11. Murder and suicide in the most shocking double tragedy in the history of Cardston, were committed on Saturday, as a result of the deranged mental condition of George Leavett of that town. Leavett after first hanging his son, aged nine, then hanged himself.

HIGH COST OF COAL.

LONDON, May 11. It was announced in the House of Commons that the price of coal was increased fourteen shillings and two pence per ton, this being the maximum price.

REMAINING NEUTRAL.

PEKING, May 11. Dr. Philip Yuan, Councillor of the Foreign Office, asked yesterday regarding reports from Moscow alleging that China had recognized the rights of the Russian Soviet Government in Eastern Manchuria, and had given a guarantee that Chinese troops along the railway line would be withdrawn, said "No formal negotiations have been opened with the Soviet Government. China's attitude at present is neutral, and as long as our frontiers are not violated we will remain spectators."

NEGOTIATIONS OPENED.

KOVNO, May 11. The Lithuanian Telegraph Agency says that peace negotiations between Lithuania and Soviet Russia began last Friday. At that time a sub-committee was appointed to submit peace proposals.

DID HE GET AWAY WITH THEM?

NEW YORK, May 11. The disappearance of a former Cleveland city official, who is believed to have gone to Europe, was investigated here to-day in connection with New York's bond thefts, aggregating several million dollars.

Editor Evening Telegram

Dear Sir,—I beg to suggest to the Reid Newfoundland Co., the Municipal Council, and the Inspector General, that the sooner they make better arrangements for running the Street Car System, the safer it will be for the public.

I would suggest: Marked stopping places for Street Cars, and no where else, for letting off and taking on passengers.

Unless some regulations are adopted for running Street Cars, and Motor Cars, within the city, we are soon going to have a serious accident.

Yours truly,

JOHN ANDERSON

Overland

As Water Cushions a Boat, Overland 4 is Cushioned From the Rough Road by Three-Point Cantilever Springs

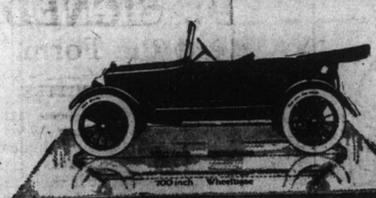

THE exclusive new Three-Point Cantilever Springs give the Overland 4 Motor Car a degree of riding comfort formerly thought impossible in a light car. They make all roads seem smoother. They free passengers from fatigue and discomfort. They preserve the car from strain and wear.

These Springs, diagonally attached at the ends of a 130-inch (3.3m) Springbase, give Overland 4 the riding ease and road steadiness of large, heavy cars of low wheelbase. Yet Overland 4 has all the driving ease of 100-inch (2.54m) actual wheelbase.

The thorough quality and endurance of this unusual car have been proved in 250,000 miles (400,000 km.) of test under every possible condition.

Equipment is complete from Auto-Lite Starting and Lighting System to USL Battery.

You should see Overland 4. The longer you ride in it the more you will praise it.

The Fisheries of Newfoundland:

Their Value and Conservation a National Issue.

(By M. E. CONDON.)

Mr. Pearce also agreed that it would be a great idea to cut the throats of headline fish when taken alive out of the water, but that they could not tell me what price they would give for some. That fall I had three samples put up under my instructions by the fishermen at Cape Broyle, and sent in the early part of January of 1912, to Mr. George Perkins, of Boston, to show him the possibilities of what could be done, and he wired me immediately to quote him a price for three hundred to three hundred and fifty thousand pounds as per sample, and A. T. Ritchie, now of Thos. Boyd & Co., Rumford Street, Liverpool, G. B. can vouch for same; so let us be modern and get ahead of the other fellow. We have the goods in our fish, but it must be handled the right way and then we need not worry. Newfoundland methods of handling of fish for the consumer are antiquated. Yet Norwegians and French bleed their fish, when possible. The Government should get competent men and pay them well, and then send them all over the Island to educate the fishermen to handle and put up fish as an article of food, not in slimy, slubby puncheons. Lack of cleanliness in the way I have seen puncheons containing fish, is a great drawback to turning out a No. 1 article.

CALLING A SPADE A SPADE.
My townsmen of my native city, St. John's never get fish of any kind, codfish, herring, salmon as it ought to be as an article of food, bleed and cleaned properly; salmon and herring are sent into the market here with the entrails in for cold storage, and any common-sense man or woman must know that the entrails injure the meat of the fish for food, and make the fish decompose quickly, but apparently it's the old saying in this Newfoundland of ours, that our fishermen in many cases have been neglected, and all outside enterprisers and investors that came into Newfoundland to improve its fisheries generally get a black eye, and the reason why is that they did not get the best experienced and practical fishermen to superintend and manage their enterprise and add his ideas. It was usually the other way, viz., a farmer, blacksmith, or any artisan without practical experience, was considered good enough in the estimation of some, but not in my estimation, as experience counts in all walks of life and why not in the fisheries of Newfoundland.

Will Schwab, the great Steel magnate takes an experienced fisherman from Newfoundland and places him in charge of the Bethlehem Steel Works. Oh, no. Take the Reid Cold Storage Plant here at St. John's. When I told the manager and constructor of that plant, Robert Cowan, not to be washing the fish before freezing, with fresh water, which would open the meat of the fish and make it lose its flavor, but to wash the fish with brine water, which would make the fish retain its flavor, and bind the meat of the fish, he thought that he knew it all. And what could be expected? To-day we see the Newfoundland and American Packing Co. plant at Bay Bulls up for sale and what is the cause. It's not scarcity of fish at Bay Bulls, but the principal cause is lack of experienced management, as that should practically be its own producing plant to a great extent. I am about tired speaking of Standardizing all our fish, codfish, herring, salmon, etc., as we have not got Flour, Beef, Pork, Molasses, Teas, Sugar and all standardized, and in many cases under registered brands to the consumer; and when we standardize all our fish of various kinds, Newfoundland need not worry. We have one of the four common necessities of life for the working and upper classes for the Continent of Europe and the Continent of America, namely fish, and the other three are flour (sugar, molasses) and (tea and coffee) as fish of different kinds have taken the place of meats, owing to high prices for meats and good fish is a better article of food being more brain establishing for the human being. One could use fish twenty-one times a week, and it will not be injurious. I know of a gentleman on New Gower Street, who purchased a case of tinned salmon (supposed to be) from a wholesale commission merchant, and several tins of the salmon when opened turned out to be tinned caplin. That's not good enough.

HERRING.
As to herring, a fish that we should be exporting annually millions of dollars worth, and holding first place on the markets in the United States, Canada, the West Indies, but the United States market we have lost, as to Scotch cure or nearly so, on account of same not being standardized by the curer with his own brand, to stand or fall by the same. So far as hotted herring is concerned, my idea is that the herring so caught should be purchased from the fishermen by planters or business men in various localities where the herring is caught, and each planter or merchant should know their men, and if possible let the planter or merchant supervise the packing and curing of same, and place his own registered brands on every package, guaranteed as to grade, quality, etc., and have same in a number one container. Government so-called crown brand, and inspection, I cannot agree with. Look at the hundreds, I may say thousands, of barrels of herring that had to be dumped over the wharf or used as fertilizer at New York, Montreal and other places. Well packed and graded herring should be placed in a cool place or cold storage after being packed, until ready for exporting, and a number one package should be the first consideration. As to the packing of herring in the spring of the year, April and May for export, I would not allow same to be packed as the fish are nearing the spawning season, and Nature makes them a poor food fish then. From experience I consider the netted herring only a second grade or No. 2. Why? Because herring so caught have gone through a process of strangulation, and therefore are not equal to the herring caught in a seine or trap, as bank and shore fishermen will verify that herring caught by seine or trap are the best bait, and codfish will take herring so caught and reject the netted. I intend to catch herring with traps which will be better for bait and also for food purposes, and bleed or cut the throats of them when taken alive out of the trap, as I am after quality, and then standardize same under my own registered brands, guaranteed to the consumer, and the number of fish in each package, graded with rumber one package. Can I supply the demand? No. Windsor Patent, and Five Roses brands of flour are holding their own to-day, because they are standardized and guaranteed to the consumer. Why not our fish?

Lord Morris, who is doing all in his power to demonstrate the qualities of those palatable little fish, is justified in saying that he has never eaten a fish to equal our little caplin, that we have annually in June and July, our waters teeming with them in millions, and only used for bait fish, and as a fertilizer. My purpose is to freeze millions of pounds of caplin and export them to the United States and other countries, as there should be a ready market in the United States for one hundred million pounds or more of those delicious little caplin, and the time is not far distant when I expect to see hundreds of millions of pounds of those cheap-to-the-consumer—little fish exported. I have been identified with caplin for over thirty years, and also with the utilizing of the by-products of the different kinds of fish for food, and as a fertilizer; also other kinds of fish in our waters, Turbot, White Fish, etc., for food purposes. The skins of the various kinds of fish can be used for book-binding, purses, gloves, etc., so there is no occasion for us Newfoundlanders to worry about the future of our native land.

DREAMERS.
Oh, man must dream of gladness wherever his pathways lead. And a hint of something better is writ in every creed; And nobody wakes at morning but hopes ere the day is o'er To have come to a richer pleasure than ever he's known before.
For man is a dreamer ever. He glimpses the hills afar And plans for the joys of yonder when all his to-morrow's are; When trials and cares beset him, in the distance he still can see A hint of a future splendid and the glory that is to be.
There's never a man among us but cherishes dreams of rest. We toil for that something better than that which is now our best; Oh, what if the cup be bitter and what if we're racked with pain? There are wonderful days to follow when never we'll grieve again.
Back of the sound of the hammer, and back of the hissing steam. And back of the hand at the throttle, is ever a lofty dream; All of us, great or humble, look over the present need To the dawn of the glad to-morrow which is promised in every creed.

Grand Celebration of Hudson's Bay Company Anniversary.

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 29, 1920. Nineteen thousand Americans from Oregon and Washington, according to report, will cross the international border to witness the street pageant symbolizing "The Romance of Progress," which will commemorate the 250th anniversary of the Hudson's Bay Company in Vancouver, May 19.

The interest of the people of Oregon and Washington in the Hudson's Bay Company is a logical historical sequence. Those states were once part of the vast territory ruled by the company. Fort Vancouver, at the junction of the Columbia and Willamette rivers, was for years the company's capital west of the Rocky Mountains, and Chief Factor John McLoughlin in charge of that port, was known as the "king of Oregon."

Sir Robert Kimberley, governor of the company, will lead the parade, which will be three miles long and contain eighty floats, picturing Hudson's Bay Company history and pioneer achievements of British Columbia.

Following Governor Kindersley will be six mounted heralds carrying early flags of the company and Canada, and bandmen in the costume of 1670. Prince Rupert, the company's first governor, will appear escorted by a troop of cavaliers, such as rode with that redoubtable champion of the House of Stuart in battles against Oliver Cromwell.

Then will come a replica of the Nohsuck ketch, which sailed into Hudson Bay in 1658, followed by traders of 1674 with packs and flintlock muskets. Indians on trail and portage will be pictured. A float will set forth all the fur-bearing animals of Canada and the fur-trappers of 1855. Another will support a globe showing the territory over which the Hudson's Bay Company once held sovereign sway.

Red river carts and prairie schooners will carry pioneer adventurers, and a float will typify life in the Red river settlements of Lord Selkirk. Then will follow in order a float showing Fort Charles, first of the company's posts on James Bay; another emphasizing figuratively that the Hudson's Bay company was the first exploiter of Canada's natural resources; emigrants of the company, winners of the company, winners of the company's school children contest; a company of soldiers in the uniform of 1753; and floats typifying Britannia and "Father Time 1670-1920."

Of the many organizations that will take part, the following will have floats in the parade: Kiwanis, Daughters of Scotia, Victoria Order of Nurses, the cities of Vancouver, New Westminster, and North Vancouver; Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, Vancouver Park Board, Sea Scouts, Army and Navy Veterans, Native Daughters of British Columbia, and the Y.M.C.A.

Three hundred Boy Scouts will be in line, one hundred Girl Guides, a company of naval cadets and hundreds of soldiers who fought for Canada in France. Unique among the marchers will be veterans of twenty-seven wars of the British Empire and survivors of the Fenian raids. The United Commercial Travellers' Association will turn out in force, and some of its members in costume, will represent types of the ancient and honorable orders of drummers in successive periods from 1670 until to-day.

The parade will end in Stanley Park, where the Mayor of Vancouver and Sir Robert Kimberley will deliver addresses.

The Future Will Tell.

The Toronto Boot and Shoe Bulletin says that there are so many factors entering into and affecting business conditions to-day that he would be a brave man, indeed, who would venture to predict what the next six months may have in store for those engaged in the shoe business or any other. The great uncertainty lies in the purchasing public, and the question is whether the point has not been reached where consumers will manifest a spirit of economy that will balk at the continued high prices of footwear. This depends a good deal upon whether those who have had the money to spend, and who have been inclined to spend it freely, will continue to enjoy the comparative affluence they have possessed for the past year or so. Some think that the limit has been reached and that high rentals, costly food and costly clothing will bring a strong reaction.

Bolshevism.

"Bolshevism, whatever it may really have to offer, is now the accepted last refuge of any population by which life under other forms of government is clearly felt to have become not worth living. It took the abominations of the Tsardom, in peace and war, to push Russians into Bolshevism, and now the question is whether most Germans will think it can be worse, at the worst, than what they are endorsing now," says the Manchester Guardian.

The Commercial's Prosperity.

Great prosperity has descended on the British commercial traveller. Never has he made so much money as he is earning to-day. Men who were receiving only 2 pound to 4 pound a week before the war are now reveling in the joys of a four-figure income. One of the secrets of the "commercial's" prosperity is that to-day he has the field practically to himself. Before the war the country was overrun by foreign travellers, the German the most conspicuous among them. To-day the German has little to sell, and in most markets the only serious competitor the Englishman has to meet is the American.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR DIPHTHERIA.

A Journalistic Apology.

"Life is full of embarrassments, and we advance upon the field of honour to perform abasement and homage," says a writer in the New York Evening Post.

"The other day we imagined that the American Railway Express was concealing a packing case of ours somewhere under its plumage; that it had taken this packing case five weeks to come from Philadelphia; and that we were wondering what had happened to it."

"After putting our light-hearted inquiring into the paper we went away into the country. Officials of the Express Company, aroused by our essay, began coming in squadrons to this office looking for us. They did not find us—we were far out on Long Island, trudging sadly through the slush in search of a house to live in—but they did something better. They found the box itself, something no one in this office had been able to do in spite of long and zealous inquiry on our part.

"Those of our readers who are men of delicate conscience may conceive our feelings when we learned that this packing case had been delivered in this office the day after it was shipped from Philadelphia; and that it had lain here in a secluded corner of the newsroom, veiled by drifting clouds of tobacco smoke, for a space of five weeks.

"Now, therefore, it being part of our duty to diffuse among the people correct information on all interesting subjects, we wish to state that the American Railway Express was guilty in this matter. Further than that, we pay honest tribute to the good humour, efficiency and kindly heart of the Express Company, particularly the Traffic Manager, the Accountant, the General Agent, and the Loss and Damage Department, all of whom immediately got in touch with us and rescued our beloved case from the dark corner where someone had hidden it.

"We can only say that if we approached our tasks with the same zeal that they do theirs we would get home a lot earlier every evening. We would like to turn over the conduct of all our affairs to them. We wish they'd send out a tracer for a house in the country!"

Why Teeth Glisten

Millions of them—a new method

All statements approved by high dental authorities

You see glistening teeth now wherever you look, for millions clean teeth in a new way. We offer you here a ten-day test, to show the results on your own teeth.

The fight on film

Dental science has found a way to combat film on teeth—the film that dims teeth and destroys them.

Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. The ordinary tooth paste does not dissolve it, so brushing has left much of it intact. And very few people have escaped its damage.

It is the film-coat that discolors, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea, which attacks 95 in 100.

Now, after years of research, a way has been found to combat it. Able authorities have amply proved its efficiency. Leading dentists everywhere now urge its daily use.

And millions of people now employ it, largely by dental advice. The method is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. Two other new factors are combined with it. And this tooth paste is inaugurating a new dental era.

Free to all who ask

A ten-day test of Pepsodent is sent to all who ask. Also a book to explain the results. The method quickly proves itself.

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to day by day combat it.

Pepsin long seemed impossible. It must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid harmful to the teeth. But science has found a harmless activating method, so pepsin can be every day applied.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coat disappears.

Do this for your own sake and your family's sake. Nearly everybody suffers from this film. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.

Method in His Madness.

The extraordinary sight of a man throwing bank notes at a large crowd following him was presented on the streets of Berlin. While the people were fighting with each other for the 25 and 50 mark notes, this rare philanthropist would continue running, followed by a few men, who never heeded his bounty thrown at their heads in large bundles. Finally they seemed to corner the philanthropist, but the latter now fired his revolver, hitting one pursuer in the chest. He was then overpowered, handcuffed and taken to the police station, for he had robbed an old lady of a satchel containing 30,000 marks, of which he had thrown 20,000 to the mob chasing him.

The Curse of Coal Smokes.

Dr. C. W. Saleeby, speaking in London of "The Coal Smoke Curse," said: "The abolition of civic smoke is a necessary step towards the prevention of tuberculosis. We have long known the stimulating action of light upon ourselves; we have long known that it is directly fatal to the tubercle bacillus; we have long known that the disease flourishes where daylight does not enter, we have long known that consumptives do best in daylight and clean air, as in the mountains or at sea. But we do not act.

In answer to Mr. Vinnicombe's question on Order Paper, dated May 10th, the Minister begs to say:
 That Mr. Holwell, Fish Warden, has not been dismissed. The Fishery Wardens are appointed each year for the season and given a commission for that season only.
 This Commission is returned with their report to the Department of Marine and Fisheries at the end of the season.
 The Department, the next season, if necessary, appoints new Fishery Wardens. It may happen, however, that the same man is appointed for the same place another year, but if another man is appointed it does not mean that the man that held the position the previous year is dismissed, as he only held an appointment for one season, did the work and was paid for it.
 Sir Michael Cashin drew attention to an answer tabled by the Finance Minister relating to commissions and discounts on Bonds in connection with the 1918 Loan. It was a very singular thing, he said, for the Prime Minister in his Majesty's Theatre speech, to single out his daughter among sixty-five others who received discounts and commissions for taking or disposing of bonds. It was done of course for political purposes. His daughter had taken a certain amount of bonds and she was given the regular discount allowed by the Government of that day of which Messrs. Coker and Halfyard were members. To have attacked her as he did was a thing beneath contempt. Why were not the names of others given the same publicity as his daughter's? He now proposed to give to the country the names of all those suppressed at the time so that people may know others received discounts and commissions beside his daughter. Sir Michael then read the following list:
Commission on Sale of Bonds, 1918 Loan.

The Prime Minister replied that the statement he had singled out Sir Michael's daughter's name was incorrect.
 Sir Michael Cashin—I am informed otherwise, but this much is certain, in the Star newspaper which reported your speech my daughter's name appears as being singled out by you in a most brutal manner. If you did not do this why did the Star believe you?
 Sir John Crosbie thought it was altogether uncalled for the way the name of Miss Mary Cashin was given publicity throughout the country, for doing what everybody in the country ought to thank her for. It was unfair tactics, and deserved the strongest censure. This act which allowed commissions and discounts was passed by the House, and he could not see what there was to be pilloried about.
 The following Bills were read a third time:
 A Bill entitled "An Act to provide for the standardization of codfish."
 A Bill entitled "An Act to provide for the better obtaining of information respecting the Codsbery."
 A Bill entitled "An Act to Incorporate the Women's Patriotic Association of Newfoundland."

Gun Accident.
 A young married man of the Arm, Mr. Martin Vineham, had a sad mishap owing to a gun bursting on Thursday, April 29, which injured his face quite a little.
 According to information so far received, he was in on the South Island with his gun, and on firing at something the gun exploded and blew in pieces, injuring his face very severely.
 Further information regarding the young man Vineham says that his nose and forehead were badly cut, but not seriously, the his hands escaped untouched.—Twillingate Sun.

No Blame to S. P. A.
 In relation to the article in yesterday's Telegram referring to the dog injured on Duckworth Street, we are asked to state that this matter was reported to the Secretary of the S.P.A. by Mr. Jonas Barter, about 11 o'clock. Mr. Curtis immediately phoned Dr. McNairn and instructed him to attend immediately to the case. The Doctor promised to do so. The Secretary then hurried to the scene to see what was being done. Arriving there he found the S.P.A. agent, Mr. Bastow had just left to locate Dr. Furneaux, and he returning with Mr. Bastow at about noon gave it an injection which ended the beast's sufferings.
 While the Society regrets the delay in connection with this matter, when one considers how difficult it is sometimes to secure the attendance of a vet, it is not unreasonable that an hour should be taken securing such service.
 Had Dr. McNairn been able to respond more promptly, the dog's sufferings might have been much more quickly alleviated. As it was the animal was put out of agony by Dr. Furneaux, who was called by the S.P.A. agent. The Society, however, tender great thanks to Mr. Johnston, who humanely endeavoured though without success to relieve with chloroform the dog's suffering.
 We recommend that in future the S.P.A. agent be equipped with drugs or something whereby animals might be destroyed without the necessity or delay of calling a vet.

Poultry Association Meeting.

The Newfoundland Poultry Association held its regular meeting in the Board of Trade Rooms last night, President H. W. Lemessurier, C.M.G., in the chair with J. F. Calver as secretary. The secretary reported that up to date this year the Association had sold for distribution over one thousand eggs for hatching and that the demand had only commenced. Secretary Calver states he expects the sales of eggs will be greater this year than ever. The Association is glad to know that Bell Island Poultry Club are busy hatching and promising to have some fine specimens sent in for the 1920 show. Bell Islanders are great sports. They have shown in baseball and are now out to give the celebrated poultry breeders of Grand Falls a push in order to win the silver cup put up for the exhibition winning the largest number of prizes from the outports. Geese eggs are very scarce this year and turkey eggs also. We hear that Westerland has just imported a fine pair of Emden geese. One breeder has sold his goose eggs at two dollars and fifty cents an egg. Some price for an egg! Geese are the easiest fowl to rear as they need practically no feed and graze on the grass. It was decided that the Association will now adjourn for the summer months and will meet again in September. A few new members are joining up and the enthusiastic members are carrying on their work slowly and surely distributing the thoroughbred, high-class birds which are the admiration of the visitors at their annual fall shows.

Obituary.

MR. JOHN PHIPPARD.
 By the demise of Mr. John Phippard, Postmaster of Placentia, the ancient capital has lost one of its most popular and respected citizens, and the colony one of its most competent and faithful public officials. Mr. Phippard received a stroke of paralysis last June, and during his illness, which was borne with exemplary patience and submission to the will of God, he was a constant example of faith to those around him, and displayed a cheerful compliance with the trials so inevitably characteristic of a prolonged illness. In the early seventies of the past century Mr. Phippard joined the New York, Newfoundland and London Telegraph Company, and was one of those pioneers who was employed on the old West Line to Cape Ray, connected by cable with Aspey Bay in Cape Breton. Mr. Phippard was stationed at Bay-du-Nord for some years, and had as his associates of those days on the old line, such expert operators as James G. Scanlan, G. M. Gaden, W. R. Rogers, Mike Kavanagh, Mort Erien, Leslie, of Bay D'Espoir, R. H. Parsons, and many others. Of all that large staff of those early days, we can call to mind only two now remaining, viz: the repairers William Tobin of Harbor Grace, and Gosney of Black River—those men of iron constitution and indomitable courage who kept the line in working order, often having to swim the rivers in mid-winter to get over their sections.
 After some years Mr. Phippard was transferred to Heart's Content, where he worked for about a quarter of a century. About ten years ago he retired from the telegraph service, and removed to Placentia, his native town, where he resided until the time of his demise on the 6th inst., aged 69 years. Besides being an expert operator, he was gifted with a kind disposition and took an active interest in all charitable and patriotic movements, and always contributed to the full extent of his ability. He was a ready speaker, and a man of fine sympathy and high purpose. He was a man who was universally esteemed for his many fine traits of character, which he exhibited not only to those who knew him best, but to those having merely a casual acquaintance. His death is regretted by all classes of the community. He leaves a widow (nee Miss Fitzgerald) daughter of Capt. Michael Fitzgerald of Harbor Grace, one of the most famous seal-killers, planters and master mariners, whose great medical skill in administering to our fisher-folk on Labrador is remembered ever to this day—three sons and two daughters. One son, Cyril, is connected with the Pacific Cable Board, Bamfield Creek, British Columbia; Lance, an electrical contractor at New York, and Roy, Ticket Agent with the Reid Nfd. St. John's. His daughter, Kathleen, is at home in Placentia and Vera, in the office of the Anglo American Tel. Co., Heart's Content.
 The funeral took place on Saturday last, 8th inst., and was very largely attended. To the family and friends of the deceased the Telegram extends its sincere sympathy. Requiescat in pace.

House of Assembly.

May 8th, 10.45 p.m.
 MR. WALSH—Mr. Speaker, in moving the adjournment of the House, I wish to avail of this opportunity to call your attention and the attention of the honourable members to what I consider to be the most brutal, cowardly and absolutely uncalled for attack which has ever been made against any public man in my memory. I had listened with a great deal of attention and pleasure a few nights ago when Sir John Crosbie made an earnest and gentlemanly appeal for a better public Press, and I had hoped that the Honourable the Prime Minister, who is the controlling factor in the management of one of our daily papers, "The Star," would try and bring sufficient Reform to bear on his personal organ so that decent citizens might be able to permit its entry into their homes without risking the future purity of their innocent little children. But, Sir, I am sorry to say that the whole stock-in-trade of the "Star's" "Daily Star" appears to me to be gutter snipe journalism, and "Daily Star" seems to have a goodly stock of gutter snipes amongst its scribblers. The misleading, contemptible references to me, which appear in to-day's issue of the "Star," have only one object, and that object to do me a personal injury, not political injury either, and Sir, if we were now engaged in a political contest I may be able to forgive the writer on the grounds that his political enthusiasm was allowed for the moment to stultify his manhood, but Sir, I am convinced that manhood is a characteristic part of the writer, and I am glad that his real identity is unknown to me, for if I knew him the result would be painful if not distressing, for him. Not only is insult offered to me, but the contemptible, the disreputable, the vulgar, the infamous filthy sheet, in the faces of the thousands of honest, respectable, independent electors of the historic district of Placentia and St. Mary's, who sent me to this Assembly as one of their representatives, and sent me here with no crawling vote, either, but as an appreciation of my six years' services, gave me over five hundred increased majority over my 1913 vote, a district which has sent its sons to fill honored positions both in Church and State.
 Mr. Speaker, I have no newspaper to defend me, but I have my seat in this chamber, and I am going to defend myself from this scandalous, vulgar, and yellow journalistic attack. Only a foul, base and diseased mind could deliberately put in this type such a mendacious utterance. I repeat, Sir, that this literary assassin is a cold-blooded reptile, a pest to human society, and his proper place is slouching aimlessly in the polluted waters of a dead sea, with serpents of his class and breeding for company.

Fashions and Fads.

The sports coat vies in popularity with the capelike wrap. Straw and cretonne combine to make chic Summer hats. Little overblouses of lace are worn with the satin skirt. Huge collars of glistening satin or taffeta are seen on wraps. Jabots, pleats and turn-down collars are featured on blouses. Wool French knots are used on Dolly Varden prints in volles. A new jersey called rainbow tweed is used for sports suits. Wool street frocks are embroidered in glossy straw and raffia. Of organdies and voiles are attractive new embroidered founcings.

RE-BUILT Piano Case Organs.

(Six Octaves.)
 BY FAMOUS MAKERS.

We have in stock a number of Rebuilt Organs, piano case, six octave, by Bell, Doherty, Thomas, etc., which we are offering at the same price practically as five octave parlour organs. Every instrument guaranteed.

Owing to its limited scale the five octave organ is only suitable for sacred music. The advantage of the six octave instrument is apparent since its larger scale will accommodate any piano selection, while the finish, style and tone of these instruments should appeal to everyone.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica on Prohibition.

The following is an extract from the Encyclopaedia Britannica (Last Edition, Vol. 28, P. 590.—Article Temperance.

The absolute condemnation of alcoholic drinks has never been endorsed by public opinion or by the medical profession, because it is contradicted by their general experience. That many persons are better without any alcohol, and that many more would be better if they took less than they do, is undeniable; but it is equally undeniable that many derive benefit from a moderate amount of it.

Sir James Paget, than whom no man was more completely master of his appetite or better qualified to judge, drank port wine himself because he found it did him good. He represents the attitude of the medical profession as a whole and of temperate men in general. Attempts to support the case for abolishing the use of alcoholic liquors, by attributing to them effects which spring from other causes, do not carry conviction or advance the cause of temperance. A much stronger argument lies in the difficulty of temperance, a definite line between the use and abuse; they tend to merge into one another, and it may be urged that the evils of the latter are sufficiently great to justify the abandonment of the former. But the use of most things is open to the same objection, and mankind at large has never consented to forego the gratification of a natural appetite because it is liable to abuse. Nor is there any sign of an intention to make any exception in favor of alcohol. On the other hand, moderation is attainable by every sane individual.

It is in fact, observed by the great majority to an increasing extent. There is a line between use and abuse and every one knows, where it is in his own case. If he cannot draw it let him abstain, as Dr. Johnson did for that reason.

But society can do much to assist the individual by inculcating moderation, setting a standard, promoting its maintenance by helpful environment, discouraging excess and diminishing temptation. All the evidence points to these means as effective agents in securing the improvement which has taken place in Great Britain.

Obituary.

R. C. RUSSELL.

Robert Carrington Russell, of H. M. Customs, died at his home, 34 Bannerman St., last evening, after two months' illness. Mr. Russell, who for nearly 35 years was Examining Officer, most of which was spent at the Railway Station, was born at Bonavista, B.B., 78 years ago. He was in his early life employed by Ayre and Marshall, later being stationed at Twillingate. Mr. Russell was known among his friends as a God fearing, straight-living man of unimpeachable honor. His passing will be learned by his numerous acquaintances about the country with sincere regret. A widow, two daughters, Mrs. Birch, Monroe St., and Miss Lilian, at New Rochelle, N.Y., and a son, Harold, at North Sydney, are left to mourn him. To them the Telegram extends sympathy.

MRS. W. H. DAVIDSON.

There passed peacefully away on Sunday evening, Margaret Scrymgeour, widow of W. H. Davidson who predeceased her only a few months ago. The deceased lady, who was a native of Greenock, Scotland, came to St. John's when a young girl and has lived here since then. In her day she was an active worker in every good cause, and her kindness and hospitality is still remembered by many of the older generation of this city. During the past decade she was almost entirely confined to her home, being a martyr to rheumatism, which she bore with great patience. She was devotedly attached to her family and home. She is survived by one son, Malcolm, and two daughters, Mrs. P. K. McLeod and Mrs. John Gunn. The funeral took place this afternoon at 3 o'clock from her late residence "Bon Accord," Topsail Rd.

MISS WINNIE WINSOR.

It can truly be said that "in the midst of life we are in death." But a few weeks ago Miss Winnie Winsor was the picture of health and happiness, and her jovial and loving disposition was an inspiration to all who knew her; but, by the inscrutable workings of a wonderful providence, her bright, young life on this earth was destined to be a short one, and she has now passed beyond the shadow of the veil to live the eternal life with Him who "Doeth all things well."

A little over a fortnight ago the late Miss Winsor had been stricken with meningitis, but it was then thought that her strong constitution would enable her to successfully combat the disease. On Saturday last, however, it had gained such headway as to reach beyond all mortal control, and death resulted.

Miss Winsor was the youngest daughter of Mrs. E. A. Winsor, of Macklin Place, and up to the time of her illness, was on the staff of the Springdale Street Commercial School. There, by her pleasing manner, and ready sympathy, she had endeared herself to all with whom she came in contact, and, by her death, a void has been created which, indeed, it will be hard to fill.

The name of Winnie Winsor will long be enshrined in the memory of all who knew her. Time, the great healer, may assuage the grief occasioned by her death, but the memory of the life she led, and the example she set for others, will ever lastingly remain as a precept for one's guidance through life's journey.

"We will be patient, and assuage the feeling.

We may not wholly stay;

By silence, sanctifying, not concealing.

The grief that must have away."

I want another bottle of "Bick's Tasteless", it is the best preparation I have ever taken to give me an appetite.—apr28,11

"I'll Do What No Other Hatter Will Dare Do!"
 "I'll Guarantee These Hats"—Says "Kearney First."

Daring evidence of the city's foremost Hatter's confidence in the standfast qualities of the world's most famous Hats.

"I'll guarantee them to keep their colours, to retain their shapes, to wear as truly as any other article of Kearney First Quality can be expected to wear, to give you greater value than you have ever received from any other make at any price.

"I guarantee them because they are guaranteed to me; because I buy direct from manufacturers who refuse to endanger their reputation by the production of any but Superior Hats.

"I guarantee them because I have my customers' words for it that they are "the finest hats they have ever worn"—and in the end it is the customer who knows.
