CHAPTER XXIII.

"I declare solemnly," poor old Miss Dornier says, with feverish earnestness, thrusting her gray hands of hair off her temples and pushing her cap away, one would actually think that the floors of this house were washed with milk and the walls painted with eggs and butter, to see the weekly bills that come in! Here is a bill of one pound eight and sevenpence-three-farthings from the dairyman for one week, and no company or anything extra—only dear Lolie at home. The expenses of this house are something really awful! the poor old lady declares, with tragic emphasis. "I can't enjoy the blessed Sabbath services nor sleep in my bed on Sunday nights, thinking of that tyrannical-looking cook marching up to me at eleven o'clock with her pile of little red books."

"Let me settle with the cook, aunt," Yolande says, quietly, "and look after the housekeeping for you. It is wanting you out."

"You may well say that," Miss Dornier responds, irritably, "but there's he use in your offering to do it, child. I must get some one as a housekeeper, I suppose, and increase the immense expenses still more!"

"Why, aunt?" Yolande inquires, with a faint smile. "I am not going to ask any salary from you. And it is absurd," she adds, "to have another servant in the house when there are seven already, including Pitts. I'll be housekeeper, aunt. It will be nice employment for me."

"My dear, there is no use in talking in that way," Miss Dornier says, looking scandalized. "You know your husband would not like it or allow it; just fancy," the innocent old lady goes on, with a futile attempt at a woman-of-the-world voice, "if your mother-in-law, Countess de Pentreath, were to call you and find you downstairs worrying with the cook!"

This grand speech is all uttered for

DOCTORS WANTED TO OPERATE

Mrs. Quillon Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her from an Operation

Muskegon, Michigan.—"After doctoring for eight or nine years with different physicians, without any relief at all, they said at last that medicine would not reach my case and I should have an operation. I had heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and often saw it advertised in different papers where some women had suffered just as I did and got well and strong again by taking the Vegetable Compound. I decided to see what it would do for me, and before I had finished the fourth bottle I was much better, the weakness stopped and the severe pains in my sides left me. I am now much stronger and do my own work and work in the factory besides. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and give it all the praise."—Mrs. R. M. QUILLON, 11 Morris St., Muskegon, Mich.

Women should heed such warning symptoms as bearing-down pains and weakness, for they indicate some female trouble, and a persistent and faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will seldom fail to help.

the benefit of Mrs. Sarjent, who has come in to pay a somewhat early visit at the primitive hour of eleven o'clock; and Mrs. Sarjent resents the speech accordingly.

"No, that would never do, Yolande," she says. "Since you're married among such grand people, you'll have to live according. 'Cut your coat according to your cloth,' as the sayin' is! Well, when did you see your mother-in-law—Lady Flora, or Dora, or whatever her name is?"

"Not since my wedding, Aunt Sarjent," Yolande answers, composedly; but Mrs. Sarjent sees the color rising in her face, and seizes some secret which Yolande is endeavoring to conceal, and which therefore it behoves her to ferret out immediately.

"Never been to see you since the earl's death!" she exclaims.

"Lady Nora is not in England, Aunt Sarjent," Yolande replies, the color deepening a little. "Besides," she adds, smiling carelessly, "I didn't marry Lady Nora when I married Captain Glyme. She isn't bound to love, honor, and obey me!"

Aunt Keren laughs at the mild little joke; but Mrs. Sarjent, who fancies that Yolande is trying to avoid giving her any information, throws herself back in her chair, crosses her arms, puts one knee over the other, and turns her eyes on young Mrs. Glyme.

"She seemed a very stiff, cold-mannered, affected woman that morning at your wedding breakfast," she observes decisively; "and what a present she gave you—a bit of a silver egg-basket! It never cost a penny more than five pounds!"

"But I think five pounds was quite enough for Lady Nora to give for a present, Aunt Sarjent," Yolande says, coldly. "She is not at all well off, you know, though she is an earl's daughter and the widow of an earl's son."

"Goodness me!" Mrs. Sarjent exclaims, her face getting redder than usual in an outbreak of radical emotion. "I hope you haven't many more of these grand beggarly aristocrats without a penny in their pockets in the family you've got into, Yolande, child! They'll all hang on to you and sponge on you frightfully, if you don't take care!"

She laughs and nods as she utters this pleasant prophecy; and Yolande looks at her in grave displeasure, the color rising from chin to brow.

"I should never dream of considering that my husband's mother was asking too much from me if she came and lived with me whenever she liked," Yolande says, with a subdued passionateness of manner; "she should have the best welcome I could give her, for his sake."

"Oh, my!" Mrs. Sarjent exclaims, resentfully, with a sarcastic laugh. "You'd better tell Lady Nora that—she'll take you at your word, never fear! You're just the daughter-in-law that will suit her, I should think!"

"I hope so," Yolande rejoins bravely; and Mrs. Sarjent abandons the topic in despair of rousing Yolande to a "proper spirit" toward her aristocratic connections, she turns to Miss Dornier, however, and harasses the poor old lady into an actual fit of temper by her assertions and declarations and her ridicule of poor Aunt Keren's nervous dread of her servants.

"You pay 'em high wages, and you feed 'em on the fat of the land, and then you say you're afraid to make 'em do their business!" she says, scorchingly. "You should take a leaf out o' my book, Aunt Keren. My servants are as meek as lambs, and my cook knows that her bills are to be so much and so more; and, if there's a shilling one week more than another in my dairyman's bill, I know the reason why!"

"Well, I can't do that with mine, Aunt Keren says, crossly. "My cook game me notice because I spoke of the immense quantity of parsley she had from the green-grocer's, and asked her what on earth she used it for, as I never saw a bit on the table!"

"And you didn't take her notice, of course?" Mrs. Sarjent questions, with a smile of superiority.

"No—oh, no!" poor Aunt Keren replies, red and trembling at the bare remembrance. "She is a very bad-tempered woman, and I only said, 'I don't want to displeas' you, cook; I only asked a question; and so she said she'd stay.'"

"And what you should have done, and what I'd have done, Aunt Keren," Mrs. Sarjent says, in the tone of an amiable instructress of the ignorant, "was to pay her a month's wages and turn her out of the house there and then! Your other servants would have seen you weren't afraid of them, and they'd have been tame enough for a while, I'll engage! Let your servants see you're not afraid of them, and they'll soon learn to be afraid of you. And do you mind what I'm saying, Yolande," she adds, sharply, "it a point to be very undermimous with Mrs. Dallas Glyme, lest she should get 'stuck up' on account of her aristocratic marriage. 'You'll find the wisdom of my words, no matter how grand an establishment you're got to keep up!'"

THEY CALLED HIM AN "OLD PILL"

THAT was years ago when he packed a terrible groach, a mighty irritable stomach and a liver that refused to do the things that all good livers should. No wonder his friends called him an "old pill" and stayed away.

But that was years ago—long before he discovered Beecham's Pills and learned that two at bedtime can bring sunshine into a man's life. Today, he's an optimist, a hero to his wife, and a staunch believer in Beecham's Pills.

The cheer that Beecham's Pills bring into a man's disposition, is the incomparable cheer of sound digestion, active liver, and the regular habits that make good health.

At All Druggists—

Better Headlighting for Automobiles.

(Literary Digest.)

How to get better road-illumination, and at the same time eliminate glare, is told by R. M. Palmer, automobile lighting specialist, in an article printed in Light (Cleveland). Marked improvement in the situation, he says, would result at once if motorists in general would realize that it is possible to get better road illumination, and at the same time to eliminate objectionable glare by proper adjustment of the majority of headlights now in service, and that the driver who makes the adjustment now, without waiting for others, not only removes the annoyance he is causing every one else, but also provides for himself a better, safer driving light.

The sooner the idea that headlamp adjustments are made for the benefit of the other fellow can be dispelled, the sooner will the problem receive the attention it demands. He goes on:

"Good headlighting without objectionable glare is obtained by concentrating the rays emitted in all directions from the filament of an automobile headlight lamp into a shallow band of light having a candlepower hundreds of times greater than that of the lamp, directing it straight ahead of the car, and tilting it so that the top edge or cut-off of the beam is at the level of the headlamp. The beam should spread far enough to the sides to illuminate the ditches and turns. A low-intensity, diffused light, sufficient to reveal pedestrians, overhanging obstructions, etc., but not enough to blind approaching drivers, is desirable above the cut-off.

"Many motorists have attempted to follow the brief instructions accompanying their headlights, but only to find, after several hours, effort, that their headlighting was no better than before. A knowledge of the fundamental principles governing the operation of headlights will materially assist the motorist in carrying out the real intent of these instructions.

"The most common type of headlighting equipment consists of a highly polished parabolic reflector using a 21-candlepower lamp, gas filled, in a socket which may be moved forward or backward along the reflector axis to compensate for variations in the positioning of the filament in commercial lamps; a cover glass is provided which spreads the beam to either side, and may or may not bend it downward.

"The filament of an automobile lamp must have some size, and it can not, therefore, all be exactly at the focal point. Rays which come from points not reflected exactly parallel to the reflector axis. The farther from the point they happen to be, the more they diverge. Actually, an image of the filament is reflected from every point on the reflector. These filament images increase in size with distance, and at twenty or thirty feet ahead of the car, when the filament is properly placed about the focal point, they overlap and intermingle in such a manner as to produce a fairly uniform intensity over the cross-section of the beam.

"Some means is provided in every headlamp for moving the lamp along the axis of the reflector to compensate for variations in the distance from the filament to the looking glass on the base of the lamp. Provision is rarely made for correcting axial variations, although frequently serious beam distortion may be traced to the fact that the error in placing the socket in the reflector is added to the variation in the positioning of the filament in the lamp. In such cases the lighting may be improved materially by removing the lamp and re-aligning it, or 180°

7 1/2 teaspoons of butter fat in every can

No wonder it gives greater richness to cooking

When you want to make foods especially rich and fine-flavored you put in plenty of cream or butter, don't you?

They're expensive you know; but they're great enrichers because they contain lots of butter fat.

Now you can get milk that is rich in butter fat, milk that must give finer results in your cooking but which is inexpensive to use.

The grocers are featuring it—Libby's Milk. Every 16-oz. can of it contains 7 1/2 teaspoons of pure butter fat!

"The milk that good cooks use"

Good cooks everywhere are using this milk. So many of them, in fact, that in certain localities nearly everyone calls it "the milk that good cooks use".

It isn't ordinary canned milk, of course, nor is it milk from ordinary cows.

There are, as you know, certain sections of this country which are famous for their dairy products, pasture lands where grass grows thick and green in watered valleys and wooded hills give grateful shade.

Cows naturally produce their richest milk where nature and man combine to help them, as in these favored sections.

And you know, too, that certain kinds of cows give richer milk than others.

Will Death be Abolished?

The race has grown up through ages of experience with the inbred racial expectation of death. The law of the subconscious mind is suggestion. It is the body building power, the superintendant which accepts without question the orders or impressions handed down by the conscious mind and puts them into execution.

We have been handing down the suggestion "You are getting old now, the years have passed and the heart is still alive and beating. The cells are all healthy, show no signs of disease, decay, death. They seem to contain the potency of immortality.

If the heart of a living organism can live indefinitely isolated from the body, under proper protective conditions, it seems to indicate that the principles of old age and death are not inherent to the cell life, but these conditions are introduced without. No tree has ever been so infertile, but because some death force outside of itself. The human apparently true of the human when we become wiser that we are and learn how to protect ourselves from all ravages from within and to obey the laws of life, calm, mental and spiritual, we will be infinitely more effective lives shall be extended into the centuries—Henry Knight Miller, in July number of Psychology.

The Importance of Being Pretty

Many a girl's fortune is determined by her face. A skin which is fresh, smooth and alluring with the radiance of health, predicts a happy future, because this is the greatest of all womanly charms.

Every girl can have a beautiful, attractive skin if she will only learn to give it proper care.

The constant application of cold creams, lotions, powder, and rouge tend to make the skin sluggish and insensitive. Dirt accumulates and blackheads and other blemishes appear.

Thorough cleansing once a day prevents such a condition and keeps the complexion fresh and smooth. Cold Cream is beneficial when applied to a clean skin and rouge and powder are harmless beautifiers—but start fresh every day on a clean foundation. Keep your skin active and it will be clear, fresh, youthful and attractive.

Soap to be thorough, need not be harsh. The mildest toilet soap made is the most thorough of all cleansers, as you will know after you have once tried Palmolive.

Margaret Freer Delights Huge Audience.

LAST NIGHT'S NUMBERS SCORE HIT WITH PATRONS.

The Nickel Theatre was again crowded last night by enthusiasts of the vocal art, who were loud in their praise of the excellent renditions of Miss Margaret Freer, the popular American mezzo-soprano. Miss Freer's magnificent voice was heard to good advantage. This singer possesses a delightfully clear mezzo-soprano of unusual charm and her diction in her selections was indeed remarkable. There is a grace and ease about her singing which shows the long careful instruction she has received. It does not seem to matter whether she is singing a love ballad or an operatic aria, always that same ease and assurance is present. "The Song of the Lark," the feature picture on the programme is well up to the high standard for which the star, Pauline Frederick, is noted. Miss Frederick has a role that gives full scope to her remarkable versatility and dramatic talent. She is the wife of a man who neglects her, but she fights valiantly and wins in the end, reclaiming the erring husband. A fine cast including Edwin Stevens, Lawson Butt, Lionel Belmont and others support Miss Frederick.

World's Greatest Cable.

The American end of the world's greatest cable was landed at the Commercial Cable Postal Telegraph Company's station at Far Rockaway, Long Island, Saturday, and is expected to be in actual operation by September 15th, establishing the sixth complete cable circuit between the United States and Europe for the Commercial Cable Postal Telegraph Company. It gives this system a greater cable mileage between North America and Europe than that of any other company. In the construction of this new cable, which is the largest ever manufactured for deep-sea operation, more than 40,000,000 pounds of copper, 13,000,000 miles of iron and steel wires of various sizes were used. The cable will be capable of transmitting 1,200 letters per minute, 600 in each direction simultaneously, a capacity nearly twice that of any other long cable now in operation anywhere. This is the first cable to be laid between the United States and Europe since 1920.

The Ruhr Situation.

AS VIEWED BY A CANADIAN.

British business in general seems to look on the Ruhr occupation as a disaster for British industry (which must react severely on Canada and all other countries which find in Britain a good consumer). That feeling is forcibly voiced by Sir Eric Geddes, who having said in 1918 "that he wanted to squeeze Germany till we can hear the pipes squeak," now finds that the squeezing process is very bad for the big north of England interests with which he is identified. The Rothermere Press (Daily Mail, Daily Mirror, etc.) still pooh-poohs this view, and can find experts ready to rush into print to controvert Sir Eric Geddes. In particular, Harold Cox, the ex-Liberal M.P., and secretary to the Cobden Club, who now edits the Edinburgh Review, stoutly maintains (and quotes from the trade returns at great length to prove) that the Ruhr occupation has not, on balance, harmed British trade, but if anything has slightly helped it.

Reading between the lines, I fancy the truth is something like this: The paralysis in the Ruhr has led unoccupied Germany to get some things, particularly coal, from England, which she could otherwise have secured in the Ruhr itself. So far as it goes, this has directly stimulated British exports. On the other hand, Belgium, Sweden, Switzerland, Italy are all of them hit with increasing force by the occupation, to which Belgium may now feel that she committed herself rather prematurely. That means that the countries surrounding Germany can only purchase British and overseas goods in diminishing quantities as time passes, and is a big influence probably more than offsetting the direct gain already mentioned, quite apart from the less direct reactions of the German debacle on the big eastern markets.

Moreover, every time France confiscates a few billion marks in some German bank and throws them onto the demoralized foreign exchanges, Germany's power of buying from England, and the power of the surrounding countries also, must be contracted by the further fall in the mark.

The whole situation is exceedingly puzzling, and in the House of Commons the other day, Sir Alfred Mond, who speaks with authority, said that he could not finally make up his mind how far the Ruhr occupation was directly contributing to the trade depression, whose coming he was inclined to expect.

Political Divisions. All of this produces some interesting political reactions in England. To judge by the Press, the country is still divided pretty badly in its attitude to the controversy with France, though the chief friends of France are all of them, of almost all, to be found on Lord Rothermere's payroll. Moreover, it is quite clear that Mr. Baldwin's attitude, while generally welcomed by the various oppositions in the House of Commons, was endorsed by not nearly the whole of his own party. The back-bench Conservatives still retain a good deal of the war mind, and only restrain their enthusiasm for France with a great deal of difficulty.

However, the Conservative Party is no longer predominantly an Agrarian party. It depends more, and more, now that Labour is the official opposition, on the big industrial interests, and as those industrial interests—vide Sir Eric Geddes and others—are growing more and more convinced that the Ruhr spells disaster for them, I fancy the back-bench Conservative will find himself under fire now that Parliament is adjourning, and he is off to face his constituents in the recess.

I write a few hours before the Parliamentary debate on the French note, which may reveal much that is now speculation. But this is how I see things. If the discussion with France is to be brought into the open I fancy England will rally pretty solidly against the French belief in blood and iron. The ordinary Englishman has no more use for militarism west of the Rhine than east of it.—Gilbert E. Jackson in Financial Post.

The Humber and Promises of Employment.

We are glad to know that the undertaking on the Humber is developing by rapid stages under systematic management, and that in due course an industry will be established on the West Coast that will provide a permanent source of employment for a considerable number of our people.

Our representative went to view the project, not in the guise of a doubting Thomas, but with a full confidence of its future, and with the desire to glean information that could be passed on to the public at first hand, and from personal knowledge. That he learnt much his story indicates, and he has related it frankly, without prejudice, and in language that can be understood by all.

His account reproduces our view of the undertaking exactly. We have refused to consider or allow to weigh in our judgement any political associations that were, or for that matter may now be connected with it. One thing we know for a certainty is that so far as the Sir W. G. Armstrong Whitworth Co. is concerned and so far as the British Treasury is concerned, politics have no part and are not considered. Further when we stated that we believed in the Humber operations, and intended to do all we could to broadcast this new industry that was developing in Newfoundland, and to advertise her resources as fully as possible, we said it fully convinced that the public would support our attitude, and that conviction has been fully confirmed.

There is, however, a tendency that cannot be mistaken to make political capital out of it still. The Advocate states that twenty-three hundred men are employed on the Humber, but that it is felt in view of the need for further employment later on that they will do all they can to increase the number engaged, and that the project should be sufficiently advanced within a month or so to take on many more men.

The Advocate knows well that an undertaking of this nature, which is purely a business one, is not likely to engage one man more than the work calls for, and that not even the Government can compel them to do so, however much they may desire to fulfil empty promises made during the election campaign.

To ask such a favour would be equivalent to requesting the owners of the Kriton to ship coal from Sydney to Argentina for the use of the Government railway at a reduced rate on account of the straitened financial conditions of the country. Already the fishery has been too seriously dislocated by such promises of employment. Work has to be found without doubt, but bolstering up false hopes is a poor solution of the difficulty, and is simply a case of giving a stone in response to the cry for bread.

We are determined that the people shall know the truth.

without equivocation. There is no purpose served in creating a wrong impression even though there is no intention to deceive. The facts are clear. The work on the Humber is construction work. It is being pressed forward as quickly as possible towards completion and to win the race with the elements. An excessive number of men would be an impediment to progress. Men employed at the request of a Government simply in order to provide them with relief work have not in the past given the most satisfactory service. When the project was first started, the experiment was tried, but the Company wasted no time in relieving themselves of those who showed that they were not earning their pay. And it must abide by such a policy if it is to carry out its obligations.

This method of regaining the confidence of the fishermen will not work. Many of them have discovered that their faith was misplaced, and the Advocate in discussing the Railway yesterday, unconsciously perhaps, admitted that it considered it necessary to try to show the people wherein their leaders had proved their ability. They chose an unfortunate illustration. Everyone is aware what the management of the Railway by the Commission during 1920-21 cost the country. As soon as these extensive repairs of which they boast were made to the railway, owned by a corporation, they turn round and purchase that railway from the corporation for $2,000,000. Such a transaction does not inspire confidence, nor does it impress anyone with the financial acumen of the negotiations. Qui s'excuse s'accuse.

Nfld. Motor Association.

MEETING CALLED TO DISCUSS DRIVING REGULATIONS. A general meeting of the Newfoundland Motor Association will be held at the West End Restaurant at 1:15 p.m. on Thursday next. A large attendance of all members is particularly requested as two very important questions are on the order sheet to come up for discussion. The first matter to be dealt with will be whether motor cars returning to the city after dark shall have the right of way over cars proceeding from the city. They will also discuss a suggested recommendation from the Association to the Government that tourists cars brought into the colony and remaining only a short period shall be given a rebate in license fees. The question of holding the annual dinner will also be decided.

I.O.O.F. Outing To-Morrow.

The members of the I.O.O.F. are holding their annual outing at Smithville to-morrow afternoon. The committee in charge of the arrangements have prepared a sports programme which takes place at the grounds commencing at 11:45. The programme will include racing, football, tug-of-war, etc., and a pleasant day's sport is assured all who attend. Supper will be served at 6 p.m., and at night a dance will be held to wind up the day's proceedings.

Tendered Farewell Luncheon.

A farewell luncheon was tendered Captain J. H. Snow at the West End Restaurant yesterday on the eve of his departure for Boston, Mass. Capt. A. B. Baird, President of the G.W.V. A. who presided over the luncheon paid a tribute to the work of their departing comrade, who was at all times ready to help along the good work of the Association. Capt. Baird on behalf of the Executive who were in attendance wished Capt. Snow every success for the future. Capt. Snow made a very fitting reply, and assured all Old Comrades that he would always take an interest in the doings of the Association no matter how far apart.

A Reminder to Car Owners.

To-morrow afternoon the Boy Scouts Sports will be held on St. George's Field and the music will be furnished by St. Catharine Band. It is hoped that the request for cars to convey the Band to and from the field will not be forgotten. Mr. H. A. LeMessurier will be glad to hear from the kindly disposed owners.

When interviewed, he did not state his present destination, nor the object of his journey. "There have been many rumors regarding my present business," stated Sir Richard. "Some have me travelling on professional business, others state that I am on political business. I am just 'on business.'" And he smiled. Sir Richard was equally reticent in dealing with those "rumors" concerning the recent resignation of his Government.

"We are looking forward to an era of prosperity and of great development in the island," he declared, then briefly sketched the growth of Newfoundland from a little fishing colony to its present state. In particular he dealt with the mineral, forest and water power wealth.—Toronto Mail, Aug. 22.

Yesterday morning, at 8:30 o'clock Requiem Mass and office for the repose of the soul of the late Rev. Dr. S. J. Whelan, was celebrated at the R. C. Church, North River, by his Lordship Bishop March, assisted by Rev. Dr. F. W. Browne, Washington, D.C., an Deacon, and Rev. Dr. Murphy, Brigus, Sub-Deacon. Rev. Fr. O'Neil was Master of Ceremonies. Also in the sanctuary were Rev. Rev. Mr. McCarthy, V.G., Rev. M. F. Din, Rev. E. O'Brien and Rev. W. J. Murphy, Conception Harbor. Present at the solemn ceremony was a large congregation, including Lady Cahin, W. J. Higgins, K.C., R. J. Murphy and others who went out from the city for the occasion. A circumstantious incident to the ceremony was that, both Dr. Browne and Rev. Dr. Murphy, both natives of Carbonear, are at present the Rev. Dr. Whelan, Alumni of Loyal and both had assisted by Dr. Whelan's ordination at Carbonear some 23 years ago. It was an associate of Dr. Browne that the late Dr. Whelan began his ecclesiastical career at Whitehouse.

Magistrate's Court.

Two seamen named Jensen and Hansen belonging to Norway appeared before court for anti-leaguering. The men it appears deserted their vessel at St. George's and received instructions by the Magistrate to come to the city, which would be the only possible means of returning to their homes by a foreign going ship. The foreigners stated in court that they had no boarding house to go to. The court decided to get in touch with the Norwegian Consul Hon. Tasker Cook for instructions. Two ordinary drunks were allowed to go. A city cabman was up for being drunk while in charge of a horse. He was liberated upon paying costs. A 50 year old laborer of Brigus without a home was arrested at the instance of a resident of Waterford Bridge Road, for loitering and sleeping on the premises during the past three weeks. He was sent down for 30 days.

Roman Altar Found in England.

LONDON—Used for years as a jumping block in children's games, a large white square stone three feet high, near Kingston Road, has been identified as a Roman altar, 2,000 years old. The antiquarian, Doctor W. H. Kenyon, who made the discovery, says it is like all early Roman altars, and the depression on top shows where the offerings for the gods were placed. Carved figures, supposed to represent priests, can still be seen on one side.

THE TRAINS.—Sunday's west-bound express arrived at Port aux Basques 3 p.m. yesterday. The local Carbonear and Crossway trains arrived on time. The cross-country express went out at 1 p.m.

Information Regarding the Salmon. Ottawa, Aug. 24.—(By Canadian Press)—Records of the life history of fish by their scales kept in the Fisheries branch of the Department of Marine and Fisheries have now been supplemented by records secured through the aid of silver tags attached to certain number of the fish upon their release after their eggs have been taken at the hatcheries. The experiment can not only tell the age of a salmon by its scales, but the marks reveal the number of times it has been spawned and at what period; how long it remained in fresh water before first going to sea, and the length of the subsequent period spent in salt and in fresh water. After the salmon have been taken and had their scales extracted the Department, inquisitive as to their further journey, attach a silver tag to the dorsal fin of a certain proportion, before releasing them. Another scheme is to remove the adipose fin. This is apparently of little value to the fish, and its removal causes it very little discomfort. Whenever such a fish is caught the Department rewards the fisherman by the payment of $1 for the return of the tag or of the ear and some of the fish's scales with information as to where caught, its weight and condition. The object is to obtain definite information as to frequency in spawning, and also, of course, to find out the salmon's favored haunts. A marked salmon released in the Restigouche river in May, 1921, weighed 14 lbs; caught re-ascending the river in June of the next year, it weighed 22 lbs. Another increased from 14 lbs. to 20 lbs. between the time of its release in October, in the Kedonk river, New Brunswick; and its being caught at Bessie on the Restigouche, the following June. Between September and October of the following year a salmon increased its weight from 8 to 14 lbs. in wanderings between its release in the York river, Gaspé, and its recapture in the harbor the following July. One tagged at Tadoussac in November, weighing 11 lbs, turned up at Grand Anse the following June having increased to 23 lbs. A marked salmon in the Kedonk river has been taken in Placatin Bay, Newfoundland, and one released at South Bay in the Miramichi river was captured at Beauséjour, New Brunswick. Gamekeepers have also been made of marked salmon in Stephen Bay, Newfoundland, which had been released in the Margaree river.

Drive Slowly, Manslaughter. In our conversation with the Star Movie people on yesterday morning, one thing we the advertising on manslaughter which is coming to their theatre next week, was a fact which we commended to the authorities and which at this time is opportune. The Inspector General has wisely published a code of signals for the guidance of car owners and by which the police now regulate the traffic at the different centres. The first signal shows how a car is stopped from in front, then one stopping from behind, then one from north to south, or both ways at the one time, but the Management of the Star asked us where is the sign to prevent cars at the one time coming from North to South and East to West. As an illustration they said to us "Take for instance cars coming up Military Road going west, and another coming down Military Road going east, we have the signals to stop both, but suppose there are cars going to Hamilton's Mill Road, and the traffic cop remains in cars, stopped to permit pedestrians to cross, then there is no sign, and when we asked them what they would suggest, they offered us a suggestion that both hands of the policeman be raised. This we think a decidedly good idea, and we throw it out for the consideration of the Inspector General and then they say if you want others you must see DRIVE SLOWLY, MANSLAUGHTER ON MONDAY NEXT.

Gardener to Film Star. As recently as 1915, Randolph Valentino, now said to receive $2,000 a week as a film actor and exhibition stage dancer, was unsuccessfully attempting to obtain a music-hall engagement in England! He had danced with Gaby Deslys in Sir James Barrie's Revue, "Rough Riders," but as he could not speak English he visits to theatrical agents were unproductive. He called for America, and quickly gained popularity as a film actor. At one period in his youth, Valentino, who with his wife recently arrived in England on a visit, was employed by a New York millionaire in laying out a garden.

"How many times a day?" pursued the dentist. "Twice," was the answer. "Have you had any advice before you cleaned your teeth?" "Yes, I called on a dentist last night." "And what foolish advice did he give you?" "The patient was fed up as he claimed desperately—"He told me to come to you!"

The city team which made its debut in Grand Falls will play a game with the team from St. George's on Saturday at 7 o'clock. The best of the Senior League is expected to be in line-up. The following will be the line-up:—

Grand Falls Team—R. Walsh, goal; G. DeLahanty, back; Duggan, Vavour, halves; Flynn, Ewing, Meany, Coultas, forwards.

SCOUTS SPORTS TO-MORROW

Interested in athletics, and in the Scout movement in particular, will make every effort to be present at the sports to-morrow to witness the very elaborate programme which has been arranged. The Sports under the distinguished presence of the Excellence of the Governor, who will be the guest of honor, and will receive prizes that have been donated will be presented by the Scoutmaster, the organizer of the sports. The relay race for the sports given by His Worshiping Mayor should be most interesting. The events will be handicapped and are being arranged by Messrs. G. Cullen and Bobby Burns who have been appointed specially by the Mayor to conduct them. Refreshments will be served by the Girl Guides at a table.

NOTICE TO COMPETITORS IN SCOUTS SPORTS.

The Committee of the Boy Scouts met last night to finalize arrangements for to-morrow. Quite a number of entries have been received for the various events, and we are pleased to ask those who have not yet entered to do so. It is intended to compete in the sports to have their entries judged by the Secretary, care P.O. No. 114, by first delivery to-morrow morning. In order to have them in time for the handicapping officials in good time.

OLYMPIC ATHLETES WILL BE SELECTED.

It is indeed fortunate to have been awarded the thirty-fifty annual Canadian Open Track and Field Championships, which take place under the auspices of the Wanderers' Amateur Athletic Club on Saturday, Sept. 15th, when probably the greatest galaxy of star track and field performers from all parts of the Dominion will show their wares. Another interesting feature in connection with this event is the fact that it will constitute the final trial for the whole Dominion in the selection of the track and field team to represent Canada at the 1924 Olympic Games in Paris.

SERIOUS PRO. BASEBALL.

NEW YORK—Charges that two Cincinnati players were approached by gamblers recently on the eve of a crucial series with the New York Giants will be lifted to the bottom. J. A. Hayler, President of the National League, announced to-night after a hearing before him earlier in the day at which the players, second baseman Sammy Bohne and left fielder Pat Duncan flatly denied the accusations. The charges were published last Saturday by "Collier's Eye," a Chicago weekly sports paper. The publication alleged that Bohne and Duncan, in addition to a third player whose identity was not revealed, had been approached by gamblers with an offer of $15,000 each to influence their play in the series with the Giants at Cincinnati, the first week of August. Color to the gambling charges. It was declared, was added by the fact that the Reds lost five games in succession to the Giants in that series.

TO-DAY, HOWEVER, BOTH PLAYERS DENIED UNDER BATH THAT THEY HAD BEEN APPROACHED EITHER DIRECTLY OR INDIRECTLY BY GAMBLERS.

It was hoped to play the latter game this evening, but this could not be arranged as the charges against Bohne and Duncan were still unfounded.

SAINTS AND C.E.L. PRODUCE A SCORELESS DRAW AFTER A LIFELESS GAME.

We did not have the doubtful pleasure of witnessing last night's league game, but it was quite apparent that the strictures in the local press of late are having no effect on either the players themselves or the management of the various clubs. Receipts this year are very disappointing; the games, we understand having gross paid admissions of less than ten dollars each—this unheard of amount for football was introduced here. If the players are not serious about the game then they cannot expect the public to be. It costs money for the operators to follow up the schedule and it's up to the League to discipline the defaulter if they hope to have the combined and sympathetic interest of the great general public.

JACK KAVANAGH ENTERING LISTS.

Jack Kavanagh has signified his intention of entering the 10 mile "Telegraph" Road Race on September 23rd. He was one of the stars of by-gone years, and is the only local man to have beaten John Bell, the local champion, which he did some years on the St. Bon's Campus. A severe attack of pleuro-pneumonia made him retire but he feels as fit as ever now, he states, and will undoubtedly make a big bid for championship honours. The first eight men to finish inside of 65 minutes will be awarded gold and silver medals, while the winner's score on the "Telegraph" trophy and a special "A.A.A." medal.

POLE VAULTING.

News from the other side of the ocean tells about a wonderful pole vaulter clearing nineteen feet, nine and three-quarter inches. This is a world's record. Charles Hoff has been credited with this performance which was made at an athletic meeting in Christians on July 28th. News from London also tells us of a French athlete named London clearing 6 feet 4 inches in a running high jump, and although this is not a record, it is a splendid performance.

IN THE SECOND PERIOD ADAMS (SALTS) AND FEVOR (C.E.L.) GOT INTO A MIX UP, WHICH RESULTED IN BLOWS BEING EXCHANGED AND FEVOR QUICKLY WAS OBLIGED TO PUT BOTH PLAYERS OFF FOR THE REMAINDER OF THE GAME.

There are still three games to be played to complete the League series. C.E.L. vs. Fullbacks; Salts vs. Fullbacks; Cade vs. Fullbacks.

Tunnels a Menace to Crews of Trains.

Washington, Aug. 25. (A.P.)—If you chafe and choke over the heat fumes entering your railway car the next time you go through a tunnel, think of the man in the engine cab and be happy. For, says the Bureau of Mines, the heat to which trainmen are subjected not only ranges as high as 135 degrees, but the smoke and moisture-laden atmosphere is often filled with deadly carbon monoxide gas.

THE WAR ON FILM.

The bureau recently conducted a series of tests in railroad tunnels in connection with investigation into accident causes. Out of 40 tunnel trips whose duration ranged from 4 1/2 to 15 minutes, it was found that carbon monoxide was present in the air in 34 cases. Hot exhaust gases from the engines were another source of danger.

VERY FEW ESCAPED.

Very few people, young or old, escaped those film-caused troubles. Beautiful teeth were seen less often than now. All because old methods left much film intact. So dental science sought for film combatants, and two were found. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

WHY FARMERS LIKE LIME.

Lime is literally the life of the land, and an absolutely necessary constituent of all fertile soils. Without it agriculture would be impossible. And now large tracts of country are in need of it. Lime keeps clay soil in open workable condition, but on the other hand, is useful in binding together very light sandy soils; and it enables other fertilizers to do their work.

FOR CERTAIN DISEASES OF VEGETABLES LIME IS A SPECIFIC.

Some years ago I made a garden on light peaty moorland soil, but although I could grow good peas, lettuce and celery, round that turns always failed. They became afflicted with that detestable and highly infectious disease known as "finger and toe." Cabbages, too, were a very difficult crop.

BY ADVICE OF THE BOARD OF AGRICULTURE I DRESSED WITH LIME AT THE RATE OF TWO TONS TO THE ACRE, AND SINCE THEN HAVE HAD NO TROUBLE WHATSOEVER IN GROWING EITHER TURNIPS OR ANY KIND OF GREEN STUFF.

The action of lime on poor pasture is amazing. Weeds disappear, clovers take their place, and the sward becomes thick and firm. An interesting experiment was made some few years ago on pasture land infested by that abominable weed, sheep's sorrel. Part was well dressed with lime; part left undressed. From a square yard of the undressed land underground shoots of sheep's sorrel measuring in all 180 inches were forced out, but in a similar space of well limed land only 51 inches could be found.

LIME, WHICH ONCE WAS A COMMON PRACTICE ALL OVER ENGLAND AND SCOTLAND, WENT OUT OF FASHION ABOUT FIFTY YEARS AGO, AND ALL OVER THE COUNTRY YOU WILL FIND ONCE BUSY LIME KILNS NOW FALLING TO RUIN.

Many of these could quite easily be repaired and brought into use again, and a cheap local supply of this essential product thus secured.

TODAY MANY FARMERS ARE AGAIN BEGINNING TO USE LIME FOR THEIR TURF CROPS, BUT AS A RULE THEY PUT ON ONLY A FEW HUNDREDWEIGHTS PER ACRE, WHICH IS NOT ENOUGH.

For land where the lime supply has become depleted two or even three tons per acre are necessary to restore the health of the soil. And this dressing must be repeated at least once in five years.

This is part of a world-wide crusade for whiter teeth. Dentists of some 50 nations aid it. It has brought its benefits to millions. It is something you and yours should know. We urge again this ten-day test to show you what it means.

Able authorities prove these methods effective. Then a new type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. These two film combatants were embodied in it for daily application.

That tooth paste is called Pepsodent. It is bringing the world over, a new era in tooth cleaning.

New effects Pepsodent also fights acids. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva to neutralize mouth acids as they form. It multiplies the starch-digestant in the saliva, to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Thus it gives manifold power to these ever-growing tooth-protecting agents in the mouth. Old ways decreased their power.

Many Precautions Adopted TO RENDER NIGHT FLYING SAFE.

Chicago, Aug. 25. (A.P.)—The meteorological conditions of the country at night and the elaborate precautions taken by the government to guard against the hazards of night airplane flying will favor the success of night air mail service when the government inaugurates this service between Chicago and Omaha next Monday night, according to government air service officials in statements to The Associated Press. The distance is 540 miles.

Air conditions at night, it is pointed out, are more favorable to flying than during the day. The night atmosphere does away with the "bumps" in the air which are the cause of lamentations of day aviators. These "bumps" result from the sun's rays coming in contact with the moistened atmosphere rising from wooded lands, lakes, rivers, and green vegetation, which forces upward a strong air current. As these currents meet the airplane, the plane has a tendency to rise and when the aviator flies out of the current the machine immediately drops.

Airplane motors, as a rule, run better at night than by day because of the increase of oxygen and moisture in the air, according to aviation officials. They expressed the belief that this would add to the success and efficiency of the government's night mail service.

Furthermore, large beacon lights have been installed every 12 1/2 miles between Chicago and Omaha. These will be kept going continuously throughout the night and will throw a swirling flood of light into the air to guide the aviator over his route. In addition, lights will flood the landing fields and indicate to the aviator the direction the wind is blowing.

To guard against the hazards of forced landings, the airplanes in night service will be equipped with wing tip lights controlled from the pilot's seat. Parachute landing gear, also controlled automatically, will be carried by the aviator. As he slides his plane in a circle in landing, the field, wherever the forced landing may happen to be, will be flooded with light. The wing tip lights will not blind the aviator's view, but clearly indicate any obstructions underneath him.

Although difficulty was anticipated in getting aviators to fly the night shift, approximately 75 per cent of them have expressed a desire for this service. This is thought to be due to the government's elaborate plan of precaution in preparing the night flying program. The government investigation of night flying had extended over a year and a half, and if the present plans prove practical the route may be extended further west.

Clothes That Poison. GARMENTS THAT BROUGHT DEATH TO THEIR WEARERS.

To be poisoned by the clothes you wear sounds impossible—but isn't. Some time back a laundress used orpiment, a beautiful yellow poison, to colour some silk underwear, not realising in the least the danger of what she was doing. Some thirty women who wore the poisoned articles were taken suddenly and seriously ill, and nine of them died.

A poisoned paper collar killed a young Liverpool merchant. The poison that did the damage was corrosive sublimate, which had in some mysterious way got mixed with the size used for glazing the collar.

In another case cyanide of potassium found its way into the dye used to colour some pairs of stockings. These were worn by a young lady, who died from the effects of the poison, which is one of the deadliest known.

In yet another case two young girls went to a ball wearing green tulle dresses. They danced themselves into a perspiration, returned home, and expired in agony a few hours later.

Suspicion fell on the green ball-dresses, which were taken away for analysis. It was found that the material of which they were composed contained thirium per cent. of its weight in arsenic.

The dresses were literally dressed of death. Even the shop assistant who sold the poisoned garments in the first instance suffered severely through merely handling them.

Accidental poisoning from arsenic, not necessarily fatal, is unfortunately, far too common; the reason being that this particular poison is frequently used in the textile and allied trades.

It is found in quantities dangerous to health, if not to life, in many dress fabrics dyed with aniline dyes, sometimes in black stockings, in carpets, and in some kinds of artificial flowers.

SUPREME LODGE CONVENES.

A Crowded Week of Business and Social Events Faces the 36th Session of the Benefit Society.

First business session of the 36th meeting of the Sons of England Supreme Lodge commenced here this afternoon and was featured by the presentation of reports by the officers and the official welcome of the City of Toronto and sister lodges. Delegates are arriving in large numbers from all parts of the Dominion and the sessions bid fair to be one of the most important ever held. Reports of officers portray a very satisfactory condition in all departments of the order.

Mayor C. A. Maguire in welcoming the delegates said in part:

"I assure you that on assembling in Toronto for your biennial meeting you are heartily welcome. Coming from all parts of Canada you will be glad to know, as Englishmen, that there is no city in the Dominion whose people are so strongly attached to the Imperial connections as are those of Toronto.

England's Worthy Record.

"As natives of England or descendants of Englishmen you entertain warm feelings of affection for England, and I think you do well to love the Old Land. Whether we have regard to England's historic past or her part in the Great War, or the part she is playing in the post war controversies and negotiations, we may well entertain a feeling of pride that we belong to the British Empire. Throughout this, the most trying period in human history, the course pursued by the Commonwealth of British nations has been characterized by scrupulous honor, courage, fortitude, self-sacrifice and unselfishness. It is our sincere hope that these great qualities may ever be displayed by the people of the British Empire.

A Loyal City.

"A large proportion of the citizens of Toronto are of English birth or extraction and it is needless to say that they, together with the people from Scotland and Ireland, constitute perhaps the most solid portion of Toronto's citizenship. Their characteristics are obedience to law, industry, enterprise and thrift. It is not too much to say that if the people of Toronto who have come from the British Isles were to be lifted out of Toronto there would be a complete transformation and perhaps deterioration in the character of this city.

Need of Thrift.

"Beneficial societies, such as the Sons of England, promote thrift and discourage extravagance. In this way they benefit not only the individual families, but they also contribute to the well-being of the community. Thrift should be encouraged at all times, but more particularly at the present time, when we have the duty of extinguishing the great financial obligations we assumed in the war. Extremes of condition do not present themselves here as they do in the older parts of the world. Although we have rich and poor in Canada, we do not see the spectacle of great wealth flaunting itself alongside extreme poverty, yet it is highly desirable that among the great body of the people, to which section I take it, your society belongs, there should be a settled habit of saving and a prudent expenditure of the income derived from toil.

"I hope your stay among us will be an enjoyable one to all your members, and that the outcome of your deliberations may be a greater measure of prosperity for your society than it has enjoyed in the past.

"I am sure the civic welcome it is my privilege to extend you will be supplemented by kindness and courtesies of the citizens of Toronto."

Week's Programme.

To-night delegates and their wives will be entertained at supper at the headquarters, to be followed by a concert and to-morrow afternoon, following the general business session of the morning, a tour of the city and environs will be made, terminating in the evening with a moonlight excursion on the lake in the evening. Friday will be devoted entirely to business, included in the agenda being the election of new officers, and Saturday will terminate the session, the feature of the day to be the unveiling of Toronto District's War Memorial.—Toronto Evening Telegram, Aug. 15.

Mounted Policeman Brings Crazy Woman 2,000 Miles

Regina, Sask.—At this season of the year holiday seekers grow restless and "thrillers" to tell of lake and beach flirtations, of moonlight and lonely trails, but none is so strange as that of Constable D. I. Griswold, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, a Regina hero who arrived home recently for a month's vacation after two years a lonely police station in the north.

Who would care to start a vacation trip by taking charge of a sane Eskimo woman, on a journey of 2,000 miles occupying several months? Very few would, but that is what Constable Griswold had to do. Perhaps, however, two years in the north would engender a longing for comparative enjoyment of one's city. So on July 9 Griswold set out on his long journey, bringing the Eskimo woman, from the Ocean to her destined lodging at the Ponoka, Alberta, mental hospital.

Griswold has been stationed at Aklavik, on the delta of the Mackenzie River. It is a recently established post further north than Fort Resolution, but not quite as far as the M.P. Travelling first to Hopedale, he got the woman, he in company with Col. E. J. Baker, left Aklavik on a Northern Trading Company vessel. At the end of the river journey at Waterways the charge was taken to hospital. The woman was extremely violent times. For the first two days she had to be kept in close confinement. Afterwards she became accustomed to the boat and, quieted down, the train, however, she had to be kept under constant guard.

Griswold says that life in the north is not without its compensations. Winter work is largely out of the question. The same laws and Eskimo are the main charge of the police.

Embargo Would Bring Plants to British Columbia

American Manufacturers Kept Touch With Situation.

VICTORIA—If the Canadian government brings into effect an embargo on the export of pulpwood, one of the first consequences will be the establishment of pulp and paper mills in British Columbia by various American capitalist groups which in part have been negotiating with view to establishing in this province but has hesitated to order construction for one reason or another.

That is the belief of a good many business men, government experts and others who have given the subject close study in this part of Canada. American capital is heavily interested in British Columbia pulp and paper enterprises and within the last few months there has been talk of American money establishing several other mills. It is held that an embargo on pulpwood exports would be the decisive factor in bringing matters to a head.

Is Your Wife Your Partner?

DON'T LOSE TOUCH WITH HER.

By PHYLLIS R. DENHAM.
Every man wants success, but how many of you realize that your wives can help you to it?

The great thing for hunters after success to remember is—never lose touch with your wife. Unfortunately, it is just as easy to lose touch with the person who sits opposite you at the breakfast table every morning of your life as it is with a friend who lives miles away.

The man who is intent upon achieving success often leaves his wife out of the scheme of things—for the time being, at any rate.

There is a fallacy that a woman must not be bothered with business and that a man is not interested in the house. So between these two people the conversation that should be so precious, so intimate and so helpful, degenerates into nothing—but an exchange of commonplaces.

Women Do Understand Business. And if the husband does notice that they are drifting apart, he says comfortingly to himself: "Never mind, when I've made my pile we'll begin to enjoy life together again," and he turns once more to work, while his wife, at the other side of the room, is wondering how it is that nowadays she and her husband have so little to say to each other.

It is a great mistake to think that women do not understand business. So many girls have been in business offices before marriage that they know quite enough to understand their husbands' work.

Besides, the young wife hates to think that her husband has a life into which she cannot enter, and even if she knows nothing about his work before marriage he will find her eager to learn its most intricate details.

Your husbands will often find that a talk with your wife on business matters will repay you in the end.

Tell Her of Your Trials. A difficulty may arise in business, out of which you can find no way, for you can't see the wood for the trees. Put the case before your wife and she will give you the opinion of an unprejudiced outsider. Even though you don't take her advice, the very stating of the case will at any rate help to clear your mind.

Perhaps you think it is not fair to worry your wife with troubles which she cannot help. A rise in salary, a word of praise from the boss, is quickly passed on; but you keep the reverses and trials of business carefully from her.

No wife will thank you for being thus sheltered. Every woman is a mother at heart and adores the role of comforter. In the successful days to come she will look back with the tenderest, sweetest feelings to the time when all seemed black and you, with your head against hers, confessed that things had gone wrong.

ROBIN HOOD at the Majestic on Monday next. "A marvellous entertainment for grown-ups. Aside from this however Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood" has the educational qualifications that make it a truly great picture. I strongly recommend high school boys and girls to see Mr. Fairbanks' portrayal of Robin Hood for it visualises the days of old far better than any text book." Peter J. German Telegraphs Paralyzed.

Berlin.—Telegraphic communications in Germany have been swamped ever since the mark began its downward swoop. Since January of this year the amount of business handled by the German telegraph lines has been double that of the corresponding period for last year.

Telegrams now travel more slowly in Germany than letters, and the telegraph administration has appealed to the public to equalize its business and use the wires as sparingly as possible.

Cotton Mills Face Hard Times.

Oldham, Lancashire.—The British cotton trade is dull, and shareholders in Lancashire spinning mills are having hard days.

Time was when these fortunate holders received dividends of from 20 to 50 per cent. with reasonable regularity, but to-day a list of 74 mills shows these concerns facing losses, on capital and profit and loss accounts, of $60,000,000.

To meet this situation an effort is being made to develop cotton growing within the empire.

Mind Your Accumulator

When and Where to Get It Charged—And Other Good Hints.

If you have a wireless set with tubes, or use an accumulator for any other purpose, you must treat it very carefully. These tips will help you:

The local electric power station is undoubtedly the best place at which to charge your batteries, providing that you are certain of careful handling, as many of the casualties in batteries are caused through careless treatment.

Never let the voltage of a cell drop too low. If you have a voltmeter, use it on the accumulator now and again, and don't let the voltage fall below 1.8 per cell. If you have no voltmeter, take the accumulator to be recharged as soon as the lamp which it lights begins to lose its brilliancy.

If the voltage drops too low, what is known as "sulphating" will set in. Sulphating is the forming of a hard white crust of lead sulphate upon the plates, and is disastrous to the health of the cell. If you suspect your battery of sulphating, take it to your charging man at once.

The plates of a cell rest on bars, which keep them high enough to allow sufficient space for the sediment which drops from the plates during usage. Cells must be examined periodically and this sediment removed, otherwise it will, in time, become high enough to short-circuit the plates, with obvious results.

Never let an accumulator stand idle for any length of time. When a battery is not in use, it should have a short charge twice a month to keep it in good condition and to counteract sulphating; the golden rule is, "The more charging the better."

Something on Account.

Two Yankees were in Cooke's office at Cannes the other day for the purpose of turning some dollar checks into francs.

"Well, gentlemen," said the clerk, "if you wish me to do this for you, I can cash your checks in full without any small change being necessary."

"A Scotchman who overheard the conversation and saw that the tourists were somewhat perplexed, neither of them having 50 centimes at the moment, stepped forward and produced the coin, saying politely:

"Great Britain owes America $900,000,000 and here I find two Americans in want of a little money. Please allow a Scotsman to make a contribution toward the liquidation of our debt."—Paris Daily Mail.

One Way to Do It.

A schoolboy at lunch time entered a grocery store and said to the clerk: "Take this order: Ten pounds sugar at 8 cents; 11 pounds coffee at 25 cents; 8 pounds tea at 30 cents. Add that up. How much is it?"

The clerk replied, "$5.75."
"Are you sure?" asked the boy.
"Of course I am sure."
"The boy thanked him and said: "That's my arithmetic lesson for to-morrow."

Bishop at Thirty-Five.

One of the youngest bishops in the world is the Most Rev. Dr. McNeely, who at thirty-five has been consecrated Roman Catholic Bishop of Letterkenry for the diocese of Raphoe, Co. Donegal.

It is unusual for such exalted rank in the Church to be attained so early in life. Even such a Church of England "prodigy" as Dr. Temple did not become Bishop of Manchester until he was thirty-nine. The Lord Bishop of London was forty-three when he reached his present high clerical dignity.

Tired of Society.

An expedition consisting of two white women and four men, with 300 native porters, will shortly set out on foot from Boma, on the West-Congo of Africa, to travel on foot through the unexplored Rahmt country to the North-East Congo.

The leader of the party is Mrs. Diana Strickland, who told me she expected to be away for a year.

"I hate society life," she said, "and the constant striving to wear a prettier dress than the other woman. Some people like it, but I prefer the forest and the camp-fire."

"We shall travel 3,000 miles on foot and I hope to do some prospecting. We are also making a collection for the New York Zoological Park."

"We shall be well armed and are taking a machine-gun in case of serious attack."

SIDE TALK.

By Ruth Cameron.

A NICHE AWAITING.

Speaking of flivvers—surely someone of the nine million or so owners did— I have an answer to an oft asked question. The question is this: Why is it that when a car whizzes past you on the road, instead of being one of the big powerful cars that you naturally expect to have pass you, it's generally a flivver?

The answer is this: There are two reasons. No, three. First because there are so many flivvers on the road that there is that much more chance of a flivver passing you.

The second is that it always exasperates the owner of a larger car to have a flivver pass him and therefore he pays more attention to the passing of a flivver, and thinks it happens oftener than it does.

The Inferiority Complex.

And the third is that flivver drivers drive fast because they have an inferiority complex.

I claim that last idea is purely my own discovery. I reckon the thing out this way. The man who has a big car that shows its power in every line can afford to go slow. Everyone

Produce and Provisions.

(From Trade Review).

Codfish—No news worth while has been received during the week as to the foreign codfish market and as far as most exporters know the position is unchanged. Unfortunately there is yet a large stock of old fish in the Oporto market where this week the stocks held were reported at 84,957 quintals and consumption at 6,172 quintals. It is evident that the importations of Norwegian new fish is affecting this market causing but very slow movement of the supplies of our last year's fish. Local fishermen report cod very plentiful on the grounds and hook and liners all round look to do well in September and October, while on the French Shore and to the South and Westward fish are reported pretty plentiful in most places. In the early summer it was hoped that before the first new fish reached the other side of the water that all of the old stocks would have been disposed of, but it looks now as if this will not be so and that considerable of this fish will remain with the consignees when the first of our new goods are marketed, for it seems that there will be no abatement in the race for first place in getting fish to Europe and no effort made to regulate sales so that the market may not be overstocked with new fish as it has been with old. If some moderation were to be observed in shipping and if the cure of the fish is up to the standard it is the belief of some observers that at the outset at least, prices will be realized. All observers are unanimous as to what is principally required for the successful marketing of both the Shore and Labrador voyagers. Cure the fish properly is the slogan if the country is to come out on the right side in the sale of its catch. The new Iceland fish which most nearly approaches our Labrador in quality is a dangerous competitor in both Spain and Italy, but if we put superior Labrador goods on the market we should get the best of the trade and make prompt and remunerative sales. Each fine day during the week carts laden with fish came to the City from Torbay, Outer Cove, Flat Rock, Pouch Cove and other nearby places, and considerable employment was given at the different wharves by reason of the handling and storing of this, so that the activity in evidence reminded one of what might occur as regards labor should conditions approximate to anything like the normal. The new fish brought in here during the week sold at from $6.00 to $6.50 per quintal according to quality. It is not unlikely that next week will witness the advance guard of the schooners with their fish cargoes from the Northward and Westward.

We understand that shortly the first large shipment of new fish will be made when a steamer will be loaded by Crosbie & Co. and F. Templeman, and the ship will take part cargo in the north and the balance here in St. John's. The ship of course will not sail for at least two weeks to come. The schooner N.C. Smith has entered to load at Bonne Bay for Lisbon and the schr. Sif at Bianco Sablon for Job Bros. The following cargoes were despatched this week to Oporto: per schr. A.H. Whitman from Burin, 2,080 qts, shipped by W. & T. Hollett; Ronald M. Douglas, Gaultis; 4,240 quintals shipped by T. Garland; Mollie Fearn, Burin, 4,385 shipped by C. T. Bishop and Co., and Bowring Bros.; schr. Nord Trafik 2,456 quintals, from Burgeo, shipped by La Polle Export Company; Edith Cavell 4,100 quintals, Rames, shipped by John Penney & Son; James and Stanley 3,320 quintals, Grand Bank, shipped by S. Hartzke, Ltd.; Orla Eir, Buffett, 2,319 quintals, shipped by C. Wareham; and the Uranus, St. John's for Lisbon, 2,934 quintals, shipped by A. E. Hickman & Co. There was also shipped by the S.S. Rosalind 4,456 quintals to the West Indies via New York.

Cod Liver Oil—For some season or no reason at all the Government are continuing the export tax of $5.00 per ton on common cod oil. We hear that the Minister of Marine & Fisheries has considered this in the strongest language and hopes to get the Government to rescind this tax now as they decided to remove this tax off everything and he believes that it was wholly a mistake and an oversight that common oil and refined oil was not mentioned when this tax was rescinded on everything else. The Trade Review has boosted cod liver oil in every way and we firmly believe that eventually we will convince everyone that our Newfoundland oil is the very finest to be had in the world, but when our refiners are taxed to death in such an absurd way as to prevent them from shipping the oil out of the country we must admit that it is a very poor proposition to do anything. From what we can hear the refiners have done little or nothing this year. It was a penny wise and a pound foolish policy when such taxes were originated not to mention the foolishness of continuing them.

Common Cod Oil—It is reported that the fishermen are all holding back what oil they have as they are not satisfied to sell at the price offered. It is a great pity when such a state of affairs occurs and we would strongly recommend buyers to try and toe the mark a little better. The exporters say they could pay an extra $5.00 per ton if the Government would remove the outrageous tax of making them pay before giving them a clearance for their shipment at the Oporto market. It was reported last week that all the merchants intended to deduct $5.00 per ton on every receipt of oil given, the fishermen so that they would know who really has to pay the tax. Unless the fishermen bring their influence on their members to get this tax taken off they will have to continue paying it.

Flour—During the week the wheat market was steady and the advanced price which we recorded last week for Europe. The ship will take part cargo in the north and the balance here in St. John's. The ship of course will not sail for at least two weeks in both Canada and the United States has been considerable as a result of bad weather and the attacks of insects and "rust," so that the yield of wheat will not be as large by some millions of bushels as was anticipated about mid-summer. We understand that there is no great demand for wheat coming from Europe owing to generally unsettled conditions, which affect the economic situation and no great marketing is looked for for some time yet. According to large importers of flour here, serious loss has been experienced in the Canadian mill business for some time past owing to acute competition, and a movement is now shaping itself to lessen this commercial straits so that the prices might be placed on a footing that will insure better remuneration for those interested in the wheat market, all of which seems to point to the fact that prices in the local market for flour will not be much lower than those at present quoted. The estimates for the United States wheat crop just published are as follows: Winter wheat 568,000,000 bushels, spring wheat 225,000,000; a total of 793,000,000 bushels as against last season's crop when the returns were winter wheat 648,000,000 bushels, spring wheat 275,000,000 bushels; a total of 923,000,000 bushels showing a shortage of 130,000,000 in the comparison. The importations during the week were by the Canadian Sapper 248 barrels, Stella Maris 500 barrels and Manos from Montreal 3,970 barrels a total of 4,718 barrels. The prices wholesale vary from $7.90 to $8.40 according to grade.

Lobsters—Some shipments of lobsters were received in the city during the week from different places west, but no sales occurred and they were stored here, their owners being unwilling to sell until higher prices are offered. The demand in the foreign market is slow and there is no great incentive to ship at the price offering. The price here remains the same: $25.00 per case with no sign of any appreciable advance in the near future. The same conditions apply to the canned salmon market which is also stagnant with no change in the prices offered, viz: $7.50 to $8.50 per case.

Pork—There has been a noticeable increase during the week in activity in this market which for months past has been slow. A good demand has been a feature, which would seem to portend better business all round during the coming months. Prices have been somewhat firmer and stocks held are being steadily augmented by Canadian and American carriers. The importations this week were 200 barrels by the Canadian Sapper, 200 by the Silvia and 250 by the Manos, an aggregate of 650 barrels. The wholesale prices ruling are: Fat Back $27.00, S. C. Clear $27.00, Ham Butt, Choice $27.50, and Spare Ribs $22.50 per barrel.

Beef—There is not much change to be recorded in pickled beef during the week, though there is an improvement in the demand and the prospects are for an advance in the price soon. During the week the shipments received here were 110 barrels by the Stella Maris and 377 by the Silvia a total of 487 barrels. The prices now prevailing here are: Bos Flank (medium) $24.50 per barrel, Bos Packet $20.50, Family Special, $19.50, Boneless, New York $19.00, Boneless, Light, $18.25 per barrel wholesale.

Sugar—There is no change to be recorded in the sugar market this week and the prices prevailing are unchanged. The demand is steady and some 750 cwts. were landed by the Silvia from New York during the week. The price still quoted in the local market for the best granulated in barrels wholesale is $9.25 per barrel.

Hardware—Our remarks of last week as regards hardware, tinware and solder, etc., apply to this week. The market in such is slow and the prices we quoted last week still prevail. More or less heavy shipments of these goods will soon be due to arrive and the prices will be given in the columns of the Trade Review each week.

Tea—Heavy shipments of tea are still being received notwithstanding which fact dealers look for higher prices in the near future as the tea crops in several of the tea-producing countries have been short this year. The prices vary according to quality from 35 to 80 cents per lb. The imports were this week 14,755 lbs. by the Canadian Sapper and 4,050 lbs. by the Silvia, an aggregate of 18,805 lbs.

Hay—The local crop of hay is good and necessarily none of this stock is required at this season of the year for the local market, where the small parcels of old hay (Canadian) selling fetch about $5.00 the long ton. Some large imports of new Canadian hay have been received recently and is being forwarded to Grand Falls and other places for the use of the Anglo Nfld. Development Company. There came by the Canadian Sapper from Montreal 4,375 tons and by the Manos from the same port 2,359 tons a total of 6,734 tons.

Oats—Like hay, at this season there is no demand worth while for oats which are quoted at $5.80, $5.90 and $5.75 per sack of 4 bushels according to quality. Some large importations of these have been made of late also and this week there were manufactured by the Canadian Sapper 2,100 bushels and by the Manos 12,740 a total of 14,840 bushels.

Miscellaneous—By various arrivals this week there were 111 cwt. cheese, 198 cwt. butter, 158 head cattle, 391 barrels of potatoes, 180 tons salt, 356 tons kerosene oil, and 2,100 tons coal, while amongst the exports were five and a half tons seal oil, 2 tons whale oil and by the Alambic to New York 394 tons seal oil shipped by Job Bros. & Co.

Coal—Each week witnesses the arrival of goodly cargoes of coal by steam and rail, as importers of this indispensable article intend to live up to their promise of keeping the market well stocked to guard against any winter shortage. The local price for North Sydney is $15.00 per ton and there was landed here during the week 2,180 tons from the S. S. Blairford and 275 by the schooner Ida M. Zinck. Dealers say if they could get the slack coal taken off their hands they could afford to supply cheaper coal. Heretofore the old Electric Light Company, as well as the Reid Newfoundland Company and various foreign companies consumed large quantities of slack coal but it is not so to-day and this is mixed with round and thus disposed of. Owing to strikes and labour troubles generally no hard coal can be purchased in the United States and this fuel is now brought here from Wales and at figures as cheap, if not cheaper, than the American. The Welsh coal is equally as good and Welsh suppliers are likely to capture this market.

A merchant, unable to sleep, tossed fitfully on his couch and muttered unintelligible words. "The wife of his bosom sought the cause of his restlessness. In answer to her inquiries he said: "You should expect me to sleep when my note to Cohan in the bank comes due to-morrow for $5,000 and there's only $2,000 in the bank to

The Awakening of the West.

The Humber Development—Some Details of the Project.

It has been calculated by the Armstrong, Whitworth Company's engineers that everything will be in readiness for operating the Humber Paper Mills in the spring of 1925. Those conversant with the progress of the work during the past ten weeks, believe that the feat will be accomplished. Yet no matter how carefully calculations may have been made, there is always present the element of chance, and in this particular, the waters of Grand Lake play an important part. In order to make this clear, it is necessary to state that Junction Brook, which flows from Grand Lake into the Humber River, was closed off close to the lake last fall by the erection of a crib dam (820 feet long) so that the permanent dam, one mile and a half below, could be erected. Measurements made by the engineers show that Grand Lake is rising at the rate of one inch per day. Should it happen that the abutments of the permanent dam are not placed before the fall freshets come on, and the crib dam overflows, all the preparatory work may possibly be washed away, causing a delay of a whole year.

Grand Lake is now over seventy miles long and covers an area of 180 square miles. It is not to be wondered at then, that Mr. W. T. Bishop, the Constructing Engineer, is supervising the erection of the dam in person. When the Assembly men were shown over the ground on Tuesday last they were quickly made conscious of the fact that much greater activity prevailed there than at any other part of the undertaking. About 500 men, with Major McEwan in charge, are at work. Operations did not start until June 28th. Since that time a great mixing plant, capable of delivering 7 cubic yards every three minutes, storage houses for cement and equipment, complete carpenter's shop, machine shed, and electric light plant, have been erected. In addition to this two cable ways 950 feet long have been thrown across Junction Brook. The cable ways operate from the west end of the river. There is a travelling pulley on each cable with snatch blocks on the eastern side for bringing back the carriage. Haulage is done by a cable drawn under, operated by steam. The operator sits in a room at the back of one of the two 75ft. towers, which surmounts the building in which the machinery is housed. He does not see the bucket or carriage containing its load, and is guided solely by a bell sounded by a man seated in the tower. The operator therefore has to be extremely careful not to mistake his signals. It is pleasing to state that two local men hold this important job and so far there has not been the slightest mishap.

The immense size of the dam may be used in its construction. It will be 1,100 feet long, 120 feet wide at the base and 77 feet high, or nearly as high as the towers of the R. C. Cathedral. Great progress has been made in clearing out the bed of the river as it is not necessary to go deeper than five feet to get a solid foundation for the abutments. Forty-ones of these will be placed this fall. It will, however, take two seasons to complete the dam. Should all go well the stoplogs in the temporary dam will be taken out when the fall freshets come, and work for the winter will have to cease. When the spring freshets are over the stop logs will be replaced, and Junction Brook being again dried up, the work will proceed. It will take four months for Grand Lake to fill up after the stop logs are replaced and it will take eight months for it to fill to the level of the permanent dam. Should the dam not be finished by the fall of 1924, it will mean that Grand Lake will have to be opened in 1925 to allow for its completion and therefore paper making would not be possible before 1926. It can therefore be imagined with what anxiety the engineers are watching Grand Lake rise. Inch by inch it is rising, yet the men in charge feel that they must win the day, for down in the ravine toll one hundred of our sturdy workmen, while high over their heads, nailed to a mast which surmounts one of the towers, fitters in the breeze the flag of Empire Builders.

Post Office Has New Source of Revenue.

PHILATELISTS STAMP AGENCY ESTABLISHED.

In an endeavor to see that nothing goes to waste in the Post Office Department, as well as in response to requests from Philatelists in different parts of Canada there has been established in the Department an agency for the sale of all stamps not now in current use, as well as for the sale of current issues of all Canadian postage stamps.

It was found that there was in the Department an accumulation of stamps that are now obsolete but have value in the eyes of stamp collectors, and it was decided to convert what has hitherto been considered as dead stock of no value into a source of revenue.

There has also arisen a demand from Philatelists all over for selected sets of stamps of current issues that are perfect in design and printing and such stamps are supplied by the Department after careful selection by employees familiar with every detail in the preparation for postage stamps. Accordingly a stamp agency has been established and through this agency there has been sold up to date a considerable amount of stamps of both old and new issues. It is reported that there are sixty Journals published in the interest of stamp collecting and that there are, in the different countries of the world, at least six million stamp collectors.

It is in this market that the Post Office Department will find a sale for its old and current issues of stamps. From such sales it is expected that a very substantial revenue will be derived as orders have already begun to come in from foreign countries as well as from Canadian Philatelists.

INEQUALITIES.

It is sad that Pug, the fighter, draws a fortune for a scrap, while the learned and gifted writer finds it hard to feed his map. It is strange that fake promoters ride in costly limousines, while more worthy, honest voters skiff in a round for pork and beans. Everywhere we turn our glances we behold such things as these; Dives in his pomp advances, Lazarus is swatting fleas. And we cry, "Oh, dinner-wetter! Justice dodges human throngs; government, if managed better, ought to fight such brutal wrongs." If the government could do it, equalizing things to-day, by to-morrow noon, business is, they would go the same old way. And the scholar would be jawing since his stipend is so trail, and the trustee would be drawing from the chump's abundant kale. And the fakery would be faring in their glided, rich sedans, and the tollers would be swearing at the lot of also rans. I am grieved in contemplation of our ruinous estate, but no human legislation ever changed the rules of fate.

Famed Doctor Promises Everlasting Girlhood.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—The rejuvenation of women as well as men, and without the aid of the beauty doctor and the dressmaker, has been promised by Dr. Voronoff, the famous monkey gland expert. Dr. Voronoff explained during the recent International Surgical Congress that he was making experiments at the present time, and expected to be able to announce the secret of everlasting girlhood about November.

The announcement that he expected to make grandmotherly into debutantes caused a sensation among the delegates, and many of them were frankly saying that they believed it utterly impossible. In fact some of them said he ought not to do it, one prominent social worker of London declaring: "What the doctors should do is to find some means of preserving the strength of women of seventy, so that they could give the benefit of their ripe experiences to those in need of it."

"Women who have grown old naturally prefer nature to take its own course. There are women who would give anything to have their lost beauty and youth restored, but they are of the selfish type."

Dr. Voronoff refused to discuss the subject further other than to say he has progressed to the extent that he is certain of success.

Whale Rams Whaler.

VICTORIA, B.C.—A monster sperm whale, after being harpooned, charged the whaling vessel Brown, of the Pacific Consolidated Whaling Company, and damaged both propeller and shaft forty miles out from Kyquod whaling station, on the west coast of Vancouver Island, recently. The Brown, commanded by Captain Martinson, had been cruising all day and had taken two whales. Another whale was sighted and a hide and seek game between the vessel and its quarry developed. After some manoeuvring the harpoon was launched and found its target. The whale dove, came to the surface suddenly, and charged on the vessel. The boat was badly shaken by the impact. The propeller blades were snapped and the huge shaft bent nearly double. Despite the bad ramming, the whale was captured. The Brown is now in dry dock undergoing repairs.

WHAT'S IN A NAME.

A National City man went to see a doctor. "Doc," said he, "if there is anything the matter with me, don't frighten me half to death by giving it a scientific name. Just tell me what it is in plain English."

"Well," said the doctor, "to be frank with you, you are just plain lassy."

"Thank you, doctor," sighed the patient, with relief. "Now give me a scientific name for it, so I can go home and tell the missus."—San Diego Union.

WHY, INDEED! "Just look at this 9," he roared. "It's the head of the office was in a exactly like a 7."
 "The figure is a 7, sir," said the clerk, thoroughly bad temper, and, moreover, he had just broken his glasses clean.
 "Then," roared the old man, "why the figure's the clerk set before him, does it look like a 9?"
