The Countess of Landon.

CHAPTER XV.

"What a lovely creature!" murmured the young officer to the baronet, who sat next him.

"Miss Trevelyan? Yes, indeed. She was always pretty as a child, but she has grown into—"

"An angel!" filled in the officer, devoutly. "You know her, Sir William? Who is she?"

"The countess's ward. She lives with her."

"The poor young man crimsoned. "And I've been talking to her of the private affairs of the family!" he groaned. "Oh, I wonder if anybody would be kind enough to shoot me if I asked him politely? This is the last time I talk about anything but the weather to my partner at dinner. What an ass I have made of myself!"

He went into the drawing-room after dinner in fear and trembling, but Irene smiled upon him and made room for him, and with the art which women learn in their cradles, drew him on to talking of Royce again.

But he did not have her to himself for long, for presently most of the other men drew round her and vied with one another for a share in her attention.

"Irene will be the belle of next season, my dear Lady Landon," said Lady Balfarras. "I never saw a girl improve so much in a few months. Why, it seems only the other day that she was a child in short frocks."

"She is a child still," said the countess in her measured tones.

look confused him and brought a touch of color to his face.

"They say," he went on, but not quite so smoothly, "that a woman knows at once when she is beloved; that a—er—certain electric sympathy exists between her and the man who adores her; and I trust that you have seen—are conscious that I have given my heart to you—that I love you, Irene."

She did not move, did not take her eyes from his face, but there came into them an expression of surprise and fear—actual fear—which was not pleasant for the Right Honorable the Earl of Landon.

"Ah! I see you did not know," he went on, softly. "In the innocence—the sweet innocence of your heart, you deemed the love I bear you but the affection of a brother."

"What—what are you saying?" came from her lips at last.

He looked at her with a sudden gleam in his eyes, then dropped them as he went on meekly:

"I was trying to tell you in my poor way that I love you, Irene, dear; that the happiness of my life is at stake; that you have the power to make me the happiest or the 'most miserable man in the world. Do you not understand, Irene? I love you with all my heart and soul. Will you be my wife, dear, dear Irene?"

She opened her lips, but no sound came, and the look of fear was intensified in her expanded eyes.

"I have startled you, dearest," he murmured, "and yet I thought I had shown something of the love with which my heart is o'erbrimming. But you know now, Irene, and I await your answer. Well?" and he smiled upon her with an affection of meekness and humility. "I will not say a word in my own behalf," he purred, as she still remained silent, regarding him almost breathlessly. "We have known each other for years, and I trust you have not formed too had an opinion of me, or have any doubt that I shall make you happy. Yes, dear Irene, as my wife you will occupy a station which your beauty and rank will adorn. We shall live the happiest and most useful of lives, each in our sphere doing something to promote the welfare of those around us."

As he threw up his eyes devoutly and stilled, he drew a little nearer and took the hand that hung beside her.

His touch seemed to recall her to life and the realization of what his words meant. With a shudder which she could not repress, she tore her hand from his and shrunk back.

"No, no!" she breathed.

His face grew paler, and an ugly gleam shone for a moment in his light eyes.

"No?" he murmured. "Surely, surely, dear Irene, you can not mean that—that you will not be my wife?"

"Yes, yes," she replied, quickly with intense earnestness, as if to imply that her answer was final and complete. "That is what I mean. Oh, I could not—I could not. Do not ask me—do not say any more. Let us forget that you have spoken at all. Yes," and she held out her hand timidly, imploringly, "let us forget it. I will try not to remember it, and—and—Let me go, Seymour. I could not."

Lady Balfarras laughed.

"It is evident that the men do not think so," she said. "My husband is as infatuated as the rest."

Presently Irene went to the piano, her little court followed her, each eager to find her music and arrange it for her, and when the fresh, clear voice rang low, yet clear, through the room, Irene's victory was complete.

Seymour looked on with the set, benevolent smile, but it was the smile of the fowler who watches the innocent bird unconsciously fluttering inside the circle of the net which he has only to draw tight to imprison her for life.

It was the most delightful evening, everybody declared. The carriages were kept waiting for some half hour for the guests were loath to go; but they went at last, and Seymour, standing on the hall step, looked after them with a sinister smile.

"No more dinner-parties, or parties of any sort, until I have got her safe!" he muttered. "I suppose her head will be completely turned by the flattery of these fools."

But when, after taking a nip of brandy, he returned to the drawing-room, he found Irene standing by the fire-place, her head resting on her hand, and a sad and thoughtful expression on her face, instead of an elated and triumphant one.

She looked up, starting slightly.

"I thought you had gone to the smoking-room," she said. "Madame is tired, and has gone to her room."

"Quite right," he said. "No; I came back, hoping to find you here. I trust you are not sorry to see me, Irene?" and he smiled tenderly.

She looked up at him absently. She was trying to decide whether or not she should tell him of what she had heard of Royce, and ask him to take up his case.

"Sorry?" she said. "No; why should I be? Are you not going to have a cigar?"

"Not yet," he said. "I have something to say to you, Irene, dear; and he came a little closer and stood beside her, leaning against the mantelpiece.

Irene flushed, and her heart beat. Was he going to speak of Royce of his own accord?

"I don't know whether you can guess what it is," he said, feeling under the gaze of her pure, soulful eyes, that, after all, the words before him was not so easy as he had imagined it.

"No," she replied in a low voice. "But—yes, perhaps I can!" and her eyes fell.

"Yes, dear Irene," he said, bending forward slightly, and taking in with calculating admiration the contour of the lovely face and the grace of the girlish figure—very much, again, as the fowler glazes over the delicate plumage of the bird he has snared—"yes, dear, I can not but think that you must be aware of the thoughts which have dwelt in my mind, the feelings which have stirred my heart for so long—so long, but never so warmly and passionately as since I have come home this time."

Irene raised her eyes to his face with a blank expression of bewilderment and disappointment, and the

PUTS HEALTH AND VIM INTO WOMEN

So Says Mrs. M. C. Pherson of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Brantford, Ontario.—"I was always tired and the least exertion would put me out for a day or two. I had a pressing pain of the top of my head, pain in the nape of my neck, and when I stooped over I could not get up without help, because of pain in my back. I did not sleep well and was nervous at the least. I keep house, but I was such a wreck that I could not sweep the floor nor wash the dishes without lying down afterwards. A friend living near me told me what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for her so I began to take it. With the first bottle I felt brighter and got so I could wash dishes and sweep without having to lie down. Later I became regular again in my monthly terms. I have taken ten bottles all told and am now all better. I can truly say that your wonderful medicine cannot be beaten for putting health and vim into a woman."

25,000 Pounds Award

DAMAGES TO KENT FARMER DIVIDED BETWEEN TWO DOCTORS.

Judgment for £25,000—the full damages awarded by the jury—was given by Mr. Justice Lush in the case in which Mr. W. S. Harnett, a fruit grower of Newington, near Sittingbourne (Kent), sued two doctors for wrongful detention in mental homes.

Dr. C. H. Bond, a Commissioner in Lunacy, of Victoria-street, S.W., and Dr. G. H. Adam, of West Malling (Kent), was ordered to pay £20,000 jointly with costs, and Dr. Bond a further £5,000 with costs.

In their original finding the jury divided the damages into £17,500 against Dr. Bond and £7,500 against Dr. Adam.

The Judge granted a stay of execution pending consideration of an appeal to Dr. Bond on condition that he paid £5,000 down to Mr. Harnett within a week, paid the balance of £20,000 in court, or gave security in three weeks, paid the costs on the usual undertaking, and entered an appeal within a month.

Mr. A. Neilson's application for a stay of execution for Dr. Adam was adjourned for a week in order that the Judge might have an assurance regarding the fulfilment of the conditions imposed upon Dr. Bond. In the meantime, Dr. Adam was granted a stay of execution.

Mr. Harnett was originally sent to Dr. Adam's home on November 10, 1912, after being duly certified, and was allowed out on "twenty-eight days" probation on December 12, 1912.

On December 14, 1912, when he visited the offices of the Commissioners in Lunacy, he was detained by Dr. Bond, afterwards being taken back to Dr. Adam's home.

There he was detained until February 22, 1913. He was afterwards transferred to various homes, and spent over eight years under control, until in October, 1921, he escaped.

A King's Bench Division jury found that Mr. Harnett was sane on December 14, 1912.

GRAVE WANT OF CARE.

Mr. Justice Lush, in giving judgment, said the true view to take of the question of "reasonableness of damages" was that the detention during the whole period was the direct consequence, following in an unbroken chain, of the wrongful sending of Mr. Harnett back by Dr. Bond and the wrongful assistance given by Dr. Adam in accomplishing that purpose.

"Dr. Adam," said the Judge, "was guilty of a grave want of care in at once agreeing that Dr. Bond should imprison Mr. Harnett and to assist him in making that imprisonment complete. Dr. Adam did nothing to assist Mr. Harnett.

"He did nothing to ascertain that he was really insane which we know in truth he was not."

"Of all persons the unfortunate and helpless persons who have been certificated as insane require every care from those in charge. They are powerless to resist the acts of officials who administer the lunacy laws."

STAFFORD'S Sarsaparilla Blood Purifier

Skin Diseases, Anemia, Lack of Blood, Paleness, Impure Blood, Lack of Ambition and Vigor, Debility, Weakness, Tired Feeling, Boils, Pimples, etc.

There is no Remedy of more universal application than a genuine true-and-tried Blood Purifier and Blood Builder. A medicinal preparation that will truly purify, revitalize and renew the blood, restores hope and pleasure, ambition and happiness, vigor and vitality. It is of inestimable value not only as a strengthener of the system, fortifying it against invasion of disease, but also as a cure for Chronic Diseases which depend upon an impoverished condition of the blood. Diseases of this nature are usually caused by impurities in the blood deposited through the inactivity of the Liver and Kidneys.

These secretions if not removed from the circulation, gradually form poisons which deteriorate the condition of the blood and allow other diseases to obtain a more ready entrance to the system. In the effort of nature to throw off these impurities, frequently pimples, boils, carbuncles, etc., appear, and it is wise to resort promptly to the Warning of Nature.

THIS SARSAPARILLA is a genuine preparation scientifically prepared from the best and purest remedies for the purifying and rebuilding of the blood. It should be taken every spring, as at this season the blood is more apt to become impure and impoverished. Keep your blood in perfect condition and you will be prepared to fight life's battles with greater success.

One Bottle of this Blood Purifier is all that you will need to take to produce results.

London Bus and Tram Strike Called off-- Wireless and Cable Communications to Link up West India Islands and Guiana --Disorder Shows its Head in Ireland.

THE BRITISH SURPLUS.
LONDON, Mar. 31. John Bull continues the excellent practice of living well within his means. A pre-war virtue not yet renounced by all his European neighbors, the fiscal year ended to-night his expenditures in running the Government of the United Kingdom were only £50,000,000 less than his total income. The official figures as announced by the Exchequer were, revenue, £837,169,284; expenditure, £787,169,284. In the previous fiscal year John Bull's books showed a surplus more than twice as large as that revealed with no little pride to-day. The surplus was £101,500,000. The slump in this year's surplus is almost entirely attributable to reduction of the incomes of the British people, a tax which is still very high, about 20 per cent. upwards.

IMPERIAL CABLES.
LONDON, Mar. 31. The House of Commons to-day announced expenditure of £400,000 for establishment of a system of cable and wireless communication in the British West Indies and British Guiana. The proposed expenditure to link together British possessions in the Mother Country and prevent commercial communications from falling into the hands of foreigners. J. H. Thomas, Minister for the Colonies, said that the money was not a grant but a loan, which would run for forty years. Some of the proposed lines, the Minister added, would be working by the autumn and the entire system by next June.

Let this test reveal them

Here is a way which has brought millions prettier teeth and safer, you will never go without its benefits when once you find them out. Accept the test we offer. Watch the results for a few days. They will be a revelation.

By fighting film
The results come by fighting film on teeth—that vicious film you feel. Under old methods, much of that film remains the tooth brush, clings and stays. Soon the film discolors, then forms dingy coats, so white teeth lose their beauty. Most tooth troubles are also due to film. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. And they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Few people in old-day brushing, escape the film-caused troubles.

Sir,—Will you allow me to offer you my congratulations on the editorial published in your issue of the 22nd inst. As a native of this district we are proud of you, not so much on account of the ability you have displayed since taking charge of the editorial department of this paper as for the independence and fearlessness you have shown in denouncing the wrongs and injustices that have been perpetrated upon the people of this country the last four or five years and which have mainly been responsible for the exodus that has drained it of such a large portion of its best bone and sinew in 1922-23.

LINER IN COLLISION.
BOSTON, March 31. The Savannah Line steamer, City of Savannah, from Savannah to Boston, with ninety-one passengers, was in collision in Nantucket Sound late yesterday, with the steamer Walter D. Noyes, of Boston, according to wireless messages received here to-day from Captain Garfield of the former vessel. He reported both boats slightly damaged and putting into Boston.

CASTLEIAN IN PORT.
NEW YORK, March 31. Fire Island lightship, which was rammed in a fog yesterday, by the British freighter Castleian, to-day remained torn to the water's edge by the force of the collision. Officers of the Castleian refused to estimate the extent of the damage to their vessel, when the freighter limped into port early to-day.

ULSTER HAS SURPLUS.
BELFAST, March 31. The North Ireland Government realized a surplus of revenue over expenditure, aggregating £46,778, for the year ending to-day. The Ulster Government has been able to pay an Imperial contribution for 1922-23 and 1924, £4,770,000 or £300,000 over the budget estimate.

This veteran minister has drawn an average annual salary of only about $300.

Green's Harbor Notes

On Wednesday night, March 19th, we were very glad to renew acquaintance with a former clergyman of this parish, in the person of Rev. E. M. Bishop, present Rector of Bay Roberts' Parish. A very instructive and interesting Lantern Lecture was held in the C. E. Schoolroom that night and was largely attended. Rev. L. A. Dawson, priest in charge, who accompanied Mr. Bishop, acted as Chairman. The collection taken up was devoted to the Home and Foreign Mission Fund.

We are glad to hear that Mrs. (Rev.) I. French, who has been ill since the New Year, is improving. We trust that ere long she may regain her former health.

The Primary Department of the Methodist School experienced a change of teachers at the beginning of the New Year. Miss Lillian Taylor, who had charge during the Fall term, resigned at Christmas, and her sister, Miss M. Taylor, has very ably succeeded her. Miss Mildred Cramm still continues the good work in the Superior Department.

Several men of this place have sought employment at Humbermouth and more are leaving shortly. The fishery outlook is not very encouraging just now and many of our men are awaiting further developments. The greater number of the working men here have been employed by the firm of Drover Bros. during the past winter, and as a result more mill logs have been placed on their premises than for the past ten years.

Mr. Roland Ploughman, employee of the above firm, is leaving during the coming week, and after spending a short holiday with friends at St. John's and Bay Roberts will proceed to his home at Port Rexton. Several of the young folk gave him a surprise party at his boarding house on Wednesday night and presented him with an address and gift. A very enjoyable evening was spent. Mr. Ploughman has been connected with Greens Harbour since 1917, having first been a teacher in the C. E. School. He has also acted in the capacity of Sunday School Teacher and Organist, and will be greatly missed by the community. He leaves for Cambridge immediately after Easter.

Shopping for Pleasure

When you buy a new dress, or a pair of shoes, or a hat you generally shop for it. That is, you do if you are a woman. You go to several shops and compare values. You like to get a bargain if you can. If you can't get an out-and-out bargain, you do at least want to get the best possible value for the money. Of course most women do not shop for every individual purchase. But they use their accumulated store of previous knowledge as to where they can get the best value. They have the smartest hats at A's, the best values in blankets at B's.

Even Men Want the Best Value.

If you are a man, you probably do little of this shopping for individual purchases (though I have known some inveterate men shoppers) but you do make an effort to buy where you will get the best values.

Now why, since most of us buy so carefully when we are buying things, do so few of us use the same kind of intelligence when we are buying pleasures?

Why are we so careless as to whether we are going to get full value for our money? For I think many of us are. "The G's are going to drive over to H. and have dinner Saturday night and dance at that new hall," says the Wife, "and they want us to go, too. They are trying to get up a party."

"But I thought," says Himself, "that we were going to that little dance the dancing teacher is getting up Saturday night."

"Something New." "But this would be so much more fun," says the Wife, "we can go to those things any time. This would be something new. And I want to see that new dance hall."

"I've heard it isn't very much," says Himself, "but if you are terribly keen about it . . ."

Our hero trained with idle skates along the Great White Way; his father's coat, by hundreds, he wildly threw away. He was a byword in the town for painting all things red, so that the damsel turned him down, whom he had planned to wed. And then his angry sire he faced; the parent cried, "By James, our princely name you have disgraced by your unholy games. No further kopecks will you get, no hint of cot or pelf, until in honest toil and sweat you have redeemed yourself. I have a stretch of timberlands on far Spitzbergen's hills, and you may join the hardy bands who hew out joists and sills. The mercury is always down to 64 below; go forth and bleach your punk renown amid the northern snow." We next behold him in a camp where dwell fierce lumber-jacks, arriving there much like a tramp, and reeling in his tracks. At first the woodsmen pull his hair and fill his shoes with spit, and quietly remove the chair on which he plans to sit. But there is something in the cold that spurs Red Blooded Men; and so our hero, soon grows bold. A He Man once again. He whips the bully of the woods who lately wrought him harm, he shows the world he is the goods, and not a false alarm. And now he weds the damsel fair who turned him from her door; his eyes are clear, his jaw is square, his chest is forty-four.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

Was It Worth the Extra $1? Was the pleasure they bought worth $7 more than they could have had at home? (Plus the cost of going 20 miles in their car which, leaving out fixed charges such as insurance, garage, and depreciation, would probably assess at about four cents a mile.)

No, it wasn't. But how could they tell? I'll admit it is hard to tell about new pleasures. But one has had previous experience with similar ones. If one will use one's brain one can generally get some idea of what they are likely to assay in the way of enjoyment. And if one really tried to estimate this and then to consider if it was worth it in terms of money, and of time expended to earn that money, one might select one's pleasures a little more intelligently.

Rev. J. B. Elliott Appointed Rector

At a full meeting of St. Thomas's Congregation last night, in the Canon Wood Hall, to consider the nomination of a successor to the Rev. Canon Earp, the unanimous selection was Rev. J. B. Elliott, who was recently appointed Curate. Notification of the choice of the congregation will be conveyed to His Lordship the Bishop to-day, and it is hoped that the induction of the new Rector may be arranged by the Bishop for next Sunday. The object of the meeting having been concluded, Hon. R. Watson, the People's Warden, presented the retiring Rector with a purse of gold on behalf of St. Thomas's Parish. In acknowledging the gift and the spirit which prompted it, Rev. Canon Earp referred to the pleasant memories which would always be his of his stay in St. John's and expressed the deepest regret that his health had made it necessary for him to seek a more suitable climate. He considered that in selecting Rev. J. B. Elliott for their Rector, the congregation had made a wise choice, as his work since his arrival had shown that he possessed excellent qualifications for the position. Canon Earp and his family are leaving St. John's by the next Sackem and they take with them the very best wishes for their future prosperity.

Unemployment in U.S.A.

Capt. S. R. Winsor, who has been since December last on a trip to the United States, visiting New York, Boston, Philadelphia and other centres, reports that quite a number of Newfoundlanders are out of work in Boston and New York. Conditions, he says, will improve during the next month when a boom in the building trade begins. Whilst in Boston he met Wm. Sexton, brother of our well-known boat builder, "Bob." Mr. Sexton has a contract to erect a large department store on Hollis Street. He has about 300 men on the job, which it is estimated will take two years to complete. Captain Winsor returned home yesterday by S. S. Digby.

May Uproot Leprosy Within 30 Years

Now that an effective cure has been found for leprosy, the British Government is considering the possibility of stamping out the disease, which is at present affecting some 300,000 subjects of the Empire. The government has been asked to expend about $5,000,000, to which various societies will add further amounts to carry on the work which, it is estimated, will take about thirty years. The cure of leprosy has been declared practical. Several apparently hopeless cases have been cured by the new treatment, which consists of the hypodermic injection of chaulmoogra oil, extracted from the kernel of a nut found on trees in Burma, Assam and parts of India. Since the disease is not hereditary, those responsible for this ambitious plan hope to make leprosy unknown to the next generation. About 200,000 cases of leprosy are known to exist in India.

SEALING NEWS

EAGLE AND NEPTUNE STRIKE THE SEALS.

According to messages received from the ships on the northern front last night the prospects are that all seven steamers will secure saving trips if not profitable voyages. The steamers Neptune and Eagle have managed to force their way through the floes to the scene of patch located by the aeroplane, and although the hour was late when they arrived, the various crews killed and banded 7,500 before darkness set in. The Ranger, which has been jammed for over two weeks, got clear at 1 p.m. yesterday, and is now making slow progress towards the whitecoats. The Terra Nova's crew are handicapped in hauling their seals on board owing to bad ice conditions. The ship has been jammed since Friday last. The Sagona has nothing new to report, while the Thetis' crew were engaged blasting all day. The Thetis had 100 yards extra blasting to do to get into the open water, and it is hoped that this has been successfully accomplished and that the ship is into the seals today. On the whole the news is of an encouraging nature and gives a brighter outlook to the fishery. Last night's messages are as follows:—

BOWING BROS.

Terra Nova—Jammed, cannot reach dead seals owing to rent. On seal down 2,500, 14,500 still on pans. Cannot do anything without swell. Sagona—Thetis and Terra Nova in sight. Nothing new to report. Ranger—Freed ship 1 p.m. in heavy sheet ice, making slow progress. Bearing northward. Eagle—Wind southeast, too thick to see far, strong breeze started 11 p.m. Got to aeroplane patch 3 p.m. Killed 4,000 prospects good. Viking—In heavy sheet ice, making slow progress, steering north west, 30 miles W.S.W. Deadman's Island, snowing hard, no sign; hope better news later.

JOB BROS. & CO.

Neptune—Reached seals this afternoon, killed and banded to-day 3,500. Eagle in company. Seal 5 miles west by south. Thetis—Blasted a channel a quarter of a mile to-day. Got 100 yards more to blast to-morrow, Sagona in sight.

POSTAL TELEGRAPHS.

Eagle, Terra Nova, Neptune, Thetis, Ranger, Sagona, Sable I., Stella Maris, Viking report all crews aboard and well.

Schooner Humorist Reaches West India Port

VESSEL ENCOUNTERED STORM AND WAS BADLY DAMAGED. The schooner Humorist, Monroe Export Company owners, arrived at Bermuda on Saturday last, in a damaged condition and short of provisions and water. The Humorist has had a very unfortunate voyage since leaving Seville early in January bound to this port. Meeting a series of heavy storms on the Atlantic she sustained damage to her rudder but made Barbados safely, where she was docked for repairs. The vessel was then ordered to Turk's Island, where she loaded sail for this port leaving there on February 26th. At Bermuda the vessel will be refitted for the final stage of her lengthy journey.

Fined $10.00

The man Shaw who was arrested Sunday night for sounding a false alarm appeared before court yesterday afternoon. The evidence showed that there had been a disturbance in a house on George Street and in the melee the defendants overturned a table on which there were two lamps, and fearing that a fire would result, he promptly rang in the alarm. His Honor took into consideration the seriousness of the offence and in view of the man being under a state of intoxication at the time a fine of $10.00 or 10 days was imposed.

Austrian Archduke Dies in Bronx Hospital

NEW YORK, April 1. A man who said he was the Archduke Johann Salvador who disappeared from the Austrian Court in 1859 and was supposed to have died in a steamship wreck a year later, died in a Bronx Hospital yesterday. Official records prove that the dead man was the former Archduke in spite of the fact that he had been reported to have died on many occasions, and each time in a different part of the world during the past thirty-four years. The real reason he left Vienna, he told friends before dying, was that he had blackened the eyes of Emperor Franz Josef for applying a vile name to his mother, and that he broke his sword at the feet of the monarch and stalked from the Palace, refusing the offer of his soldiers to place him on the Austrian Throne. He never returned.

Ludendorff Acquitted

MUNICH, April 1. General Erich Ludendorff, former German field marshal, was acquitted to-day of the charge of treason for his part in the unsuccessful revolt here last November. Adolph Hitler and former chief of police Hofer were convicted and each sentenced to five years confinement in a fortress. Many others were given minor sentences.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES

POINCARÉ'S DECLARATION OPENLY RECEIVED.

PARIS, Mar. 31. In his ministerial declaration to Parliament to-day in presenting his reconstructed Cabinet, Premier Poincaré insisted upon the payment of reparations by Germany with France to hold the Ruhr until an equitable settlement was made and upon guarantees of security from unprovoked attack. As for the internal affairs of the country, he spoke from safe and sane financial measures, the application of fiscal reforms by Parliament, and stringent economies. The declaration was received with almost open hostility by the chamber and with respectful indifference by the senate. In the chamber he was interrupted repeatedly, while after he had concluded his statement in the senate, Senator Duplantier showed his hospitality by introducing a resolution inviting the government to begin the policy of economy by saving the cost of printing the declaration. In the course of the debate Socialist Deputy Inghels resurrected the question of the devastated regions scandal, saying that powerful prosperous firms were being overpaid while peasants and individuals who were ruined were still waiting payment for damage suffered.

IRISH DISTURBANCES ARE DUE TO LABOR TROUBLES.

DUBLIN, April 1. The blowing up of bridges and destruction of roads in the counties of Longford and West Meath, news of which was confirmed here to-day, is due to labor troubles and not to the action of a political nature, according to responsible opinion. Road workers are on strike in two counties in consequence of proposals by the county councils for the reduction in wages, and the destruction described in dispatches are alleged to be the outgrowth of the strike. Republicans strongly deny responsibility for damage done, declaring Eamonn de Valera's order against violent action is still operative and is being maintained.

RUMANIA TAKES A FIRM STAND.

VIENNA, April 1. At to-day's session of the Russo-Rumanian conference M. Rascans, the Rumanian delegate, read a reply to Russia's demands for a plebiscite in Bessarabia on the question of annexation of the province by Rumania. The reply of M. Rascans asserted that Rumania was not prepared to negotiate further with Russia, if Russia did not recognize the Bessarabian question as having been settled, or if Russia persisted in her demands for plebiscites. The Russian delegation requested permission to defer their answer to Rumania until Wednesday. The conference therefore adjourned to that date.

Carpenters' Strike at Wembley.

LONDON, April 1. No sooner had Londoners felt that the tramway and bus strike had been settled than they were given news that the thousands of carpenters at work on the construction of the British Empire Exhibition buildings at Wembley had gone on strike for two pence per hour increase. It was said that the walkout would not postpone the opening on April 23, but that the Exhibition would not be the finished product it was planned to be on that date.

A Word or Two from Gay Paree on Romero-Rojas. Ever since the day that one Luis Angel Firpo turned up his nose at a mere $200,000 offered by Mr. Tex Rickard for 45 minutes or less of fistie embroglio with Mr. Harry Wills, upright and famous citizen of Harlem, the strange name Quintin Romero-Rojas has been appearing in the composing rooms of most of the great dailies of this country.

Man He Is. What manner of man is Senor Rojas? From Paris comes a bit of elucidation which we gladly pass along. He is a 200 pound specimen who fights in the old Jeffries crouch.

How He Fights. The following excerpt was spoken of Rojas by Paul Casquet, veteran French trainer:

"When he knocked out Binere, the French veteran, in two rounds in his second fight in Paris Romero missed a right to the point of the jaw and a right to the solar plexus. The first blow missed the point and cracked Binere's jawbone, paralyzing one side of his face and head, and the other broke a couple of ribs. When Marcel Nilles woke up on the night of Dec. 1 he couldn't tell where he had been hit. He remembered suddenly getting numb all over and floating into darkness. Romero had hit him in the stomach with a right and a left."

S. CLEGHORN RELIEVED FOR FIRST TIME IN 76 GAMES SATURDAY.

MONTREAL, March 24.—When Sprague Cleghorn, captain of the Canadian hockey team, was relieved in the last period of the Calgary-Canadian game on Saturday night, it was the first time in the seventy-six games he has played with the locals that he has been given a rest.

In 1922, he played 24 games, in 1923 he played the same number, and this year he participated in 23 fixtures and five play-off battles. He has missed one or two games but has never been relieved in all the time he has been with Dunderdun's tri-colored band.

Mantha was sent on to replace the "big train" Saturday night after all danger in the contest had passed.

"The Eternal Light" an Impressive Production

BEAUTIFULLY INTERPRETED BY SACRED MUSICAL ACCOMPANIMENT.

"The Eternal Light" had its premier performance in Newfoundland last night at the Nickel Theatre before a large and demonstrative audience which audibly showed its enthusiasm. The production opens with the Birth of Christ and the scenes are all marvelously laid on the original locations of that Sacred event, and the happenings that follow are told in a realistic manner of artists of ability. The scene. It has been said that this picture has broken all box office records for picture presentations, and judging from its reception last night we can easily believe that statement. All classes, races, sects and creeds have voted "The Eternal Light," one of the most wonderful screen entertainments ever conceived in the history of motion picture. Its premier in this city has established it as the outstanding production of the present year.

While commenting on the magnificence of the film, we feel certain that we voice the opinion of last night's audience in stating that the singing of Prof. P. J. McCarthy and Miss Ida Howlett was indeed an inspiration, which added much to the theme of the picture. To-night, however, the public will have another opportunity to take in this splendid show, which will also be the attraction to-morrow.

A Peppy Musical Show at the Crescent

"THE DUNCAN SISTERS" SCORE INITIAL SUCCESS.

Last night's musical bill at the Crescent Theatre was brimful of pep from start to finish, and everybody got their money's worth in fun and entertainment. Dan Delmar and Paddy Smith provided laughs in galore by their comedy sketch "Are You Mr. Wishtidd?" Dainty Dolly Delmar can always be depended to give value, and her numbers last night were considered her best yet. An entirely new team appeared in the persons of "The Duncan Sisters," who refined singing and dancing together with pretty costumes immediately won the plaudits of the audience. This team is a clever combination and we hope we will again see them before the footlights.

The film version of the popular story "A Child For Sale," was shown for the first time at this theatre last night.

Crichton Hale has never done better work on the screen than in the role of Stoddard. His is the performance of the piece, and he handles several emotional bits surprisingly well. William Davidson is pleasing as Dr. Fardner and Gladys Leslie is satisfactory as his wife. Bobby Connelley and Ruth Sullivan do well as the two children, and Julia Swayne Gordon, William Tooker and Anna Lehr all contribute a goodly share toward the attractiveness of the film.

The tale has many touches of familiar everyday life, and Mr. Abramson has presented these in a fashion that makes them most appealing.

"I Had Terrible Backache From Kidney Disease"

Mrs. M. A. McNeill, Casanau Sta., N.B., writes: "I was troubled for years with terrible backache, resulting from kidney disease. At times in each month I remained in bed, the pain was more than I could stand, and to walk was almost impossible. I used about $50.00 worth of other medicines, but with little result. Now I am completely better, after using only five boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

They come with the aim i.e. to get all the good ideas about the feeding and general care of their babies that it is possible to get from the Clinic, and judging from the improvement in the babies, as we see them in the home, or when they earnestly visit the Clinic, it shows how earnest is their desire to do their utmost for the children.

One hundred and nineteen (119) babies have attended the Clinic this month—it does not sound a large number but the work is solid, and we have unlimited expectations for the attendance during the coming summer.

"I Am A Roamer Bold"

WINS POPULAR APPROVAL—MAJESTIC PATRONS DELIGHTED WITH LAST NIGHT'S PROGRAM.

A large and appreciative audience is to-day speaking very highly of the Majestic Theatre programme last night which will be repeated again to-night and at the matinee to-morrow afternoon. Mr. Cameron Geddes reached a new pinnacle of fame in the minds of the patrons last night by his rendition "I Am a Roamer Bold," which song truly illustrates the great wealth of volume and tone the singer possesses. "Cockoo Clock," his second number was also encored, whilst Victor Hubert's success "I want what I want when I want it," called for repeated requests and continuous applause. "Bucking the Barrier" is a feature that will appeal because of its intense complications and action which demands the interest of all from start to finish.

The comedy "Dance or Die" is very laughable and was enjoyed by all. The News Reel was likewise well up to the mark, the many illustrated world-wide events evoked considerable interest.

Something About

"AN OLD SWEETHEART OF MINE" STAR MOVIE TO-MORROW.

James Whitcomb Riley's poem, "An Old Sweetheart of Mine" is probably the best loved story in verse this famous American ever wrote. In it, the wistful pathos, the delightful, homely charm that has characterized all the best known works of the Hoosier poet, find their most complete expression. It is—as all of Riley's poems are—about real people, the kind which he himself loved and immortalized in his simple verses. His human story of a love that began in romance and remained constant throughout life is refreshing in a day when inconstancy rather than old-fashioned sincerity receive most public attention. The theme of "An Old Sweetheart of Mine" is love—happy, genuine and enduring. As a Metro feature with Elliott Dexter and Helen Jerome Eddy in the cast, it is one of the really notable photoplays of the year.

Press Views From Outside

A NEWFOUNDLAND EXPOSURE. (Montreal Gazette.)

A tale of mismanagement, and worse, such as has rarely been equalled in connection with the affairs of a government of a British country that is told in the report of Mr. T. H. Walker, K.C., a London barrister, who engaged into certain transactions during the premiership of Sir Richard Squires. There were two of the commissioner, Dr. Campbell, the head of the Department of Agriculture and Mines, and the Premier. Dr. Campbell was found responsible for permitting wanton waste in connection with timber cutting operations undertaken by his department, and of paying public election expenses out of public funds under his control. The heaviest blame was placed on Sir Richard Squires, the head of the government. He seems to have had no regard for his public trust. Either for personal or political use he took money from companies operating the iron deposits of the island, and paying taxes to and having close business relations with the government. Some $42,000 was paid to him by Dominion Iron & Steel Company officials, some of the amount having in effect been asked for. Newfoundland has a system of public liquor control, which was made a means of securing what the Commissioner calls "tainted money" for the use of the Premier. At least $20,000 from the Controller was accepted and used for his advantage, apparently to the loss of the colonial treasury. The facts are damning in their directness. In the rather long list of scandals that Canada can present in the story of its politics there has been nothing worse. The same mentioned as having been misused are considerable in themselves, and gravely large when it is considered that Newfoundland has a population only slightly in excess of a quarter of a million people. Sir Richard Squires is dead politically. Only last year, after prematurely dissolving the Legislature, he carried a majority of the constituencies and seemed entering on a long lease of power. The public became acquainted with the fact that serious accusations were current about his conduct, and in July he resigned, being succeeded by Mr. W. R. Warren. Then came the appointment of Mr. Walker as a commissioner to enquire into the ground for the reports of mismanagement, and the disclosures of conditions noted. The condemnation pronounced is deserved. The party of the government will be fortunate if it does not suffer from the wrongdoing of a man it followed as leader.

THE NEWFOUNDLAND SCANDALS. (Sydney Post.)

Commissioner T. H. Walker, who investigated the corruption charges against certain members of the late Squires Government of Newfoundland, has made a report which finds Sir Richard Squires guilty of accepting bribes amounting to $43,000 from the British Empire Steel Corporation, and with converting to his own use, $20,000 of liquor revenue funds belonging to the Government. The Commissioner also finds that Hon. Dr. Alexander Campbell, who was Minister of Agriculture and Mines in the Squires ministry, wrongfully paid his electioneering expenses out of the public funds, as well as certain bonuses and gratuities to officials of his department, without the Government's sanction.

The report is definite and sweeping in its condemnation of these two public men, as well as of Besco's high officials who, in their corporate capacity, took $43,000 out of the coffers of the Dominion Company and placed it in the coffers of Sir Richard Squires, while negotiations were in progress between the Company and the Government concerning the obligations to be placed upon the Company as from January 1st, 1920, in a proposed new contract.

Doubtless proceedings will now be taken by the Newfoundland Government against Sir Richard Squires and Dr. Campbell for the recovery of the public funds they have misappropriated. The political careers of both these men have come to an ignominious end. Besco may pay the price of the indiscretion of those of its officials who sought, by corrupt means, to make an easy royalty bargain with the Government, by being obliged to meet heavier export levies on iron ore in future. The moral is that decent politics and clean business pay better in the long run than the other kind of thing. The straight way is always the best way.

A FEAST OF SCANDAL. (Toronto Globe.)

As he picks up his morning paper, the reader turns instinctively to the headlines to see what new story of graft or faithlessness to public trust has "broken" overnight. Now it is another phase of the "oil" scandal at Washington, varied by whisky and beer. Again it is a new revelation of the peculiar methods of the Home Bank at some stage of its career. The scene shifts to Newfoundland, where

"Can We Afford Not to Have Forestry?"

"We have," said Dr. H. M. Steven in a lecture on "Forestry in the Highlands," "the smallest percentage area of forest in Europe—namely, 4.3 per cent, against the average for all Europe of 23.4 per cent. We are the greatest timber importing country in the world, hence the continuous depletion of the world's forests is more serious for us than any other nation. It is the duty of every British citizen to see that the timber-growing potentialities of this country are fully utilized.

"It was sometimes asked, 'Can we afford forestry?' But in view of the depletion of the world's forests and the great need of securing fresh sources of employment, especially in rural districts, the question was—'Can we afford not to have forestry and on an adequate scale?' The nation, he concluded, must recapture the post-war spirit of reconstruction and develop the natural resources of the country."

Plain Words to France

By JOHN BULL in Glasgow Herald.
It is anticipated that during the course of a few days these plain, blunt, but not unfriendly words to La Belle France will be read by millions of readers through the mediumship of the French Press. They express the sentiments which must necessarily be those of millions of Britons who, in their present struggle for existence, cannot forget that our Ally has failed to exhibit any practical feelings of gratitude for the aid she received from us during her war-time travail.

La Belle France? Bon Jour, Mademoiselle! You note I speak a little—a very little—of your tongue whilst raising my hat to you. But, pray, do not misinterpret the latter; 'tis but an act of courtesy. In truth, Mademoiselle, I have a few plain words to say; I intend to put them bluntly, for, being no diplomat, I perceive no use for sugared phrases. Mademoiselle, I have a bone to pick with you!

You may remember—verily, sometimes I have thought you must have forgotten!—the month of August, 1914. What a month it was to be sure, when, to put the matter mildly, it looked as though your country would be wiped right out. You were afeared, Mademoiselle, a little frightened; nor without a cause.

Only gallant little Belgium stood between you and a vast horde of ruthless soldiers. That country's brave defence lasted but for a short time; the best that could be done was done. Then came your travail. Do you remember now?

Do you remember how our "Old Contemptibles" threw off their red coats and glittering g-g-gaws, rushed across the Channel, and challenged the enemy; how half of those who thus went to your assistance and answered your cry for help fell in the fight and still remain, Mademoiselle, in your keeping?

You did not see, but you heard tell of the hundreds and thousands of bright and bonny young Britons who tossed away their tools, their pens, their pastimes, and their pleasures when they knew that La Belle France was in dire trouble. They might have scorned your distress, but, instead, these boys of ours went a-soldiering—for you.

And then for years the flower of British manhood—and British womanhood too—stood by your side, and fought your fight, endured your agony, suffered your perils. Those who were left at home toiled and milled, stunted and sacrificed, that victory might come—as come it did.

Yet not before hundreds of our women and children at home were killed by an enemy in the air, not before your fair lands had been honeycombed with graves in which were dropped the bodies of brave men who were left at home toiled and ladies who, for their service to you, had to pay the price.

You remember the great day of victory, when the guns ceased their rumbling, and when sweet and gentle peace followed the bitter days and nights of battle. You remember how you said your gratitude would never die—how you promised that Britain should never have cause to regret the part she had played.

Since that time the anguish of my kith and kin has been great indeed. Intolerable suffering—almost unendurable distress—has been their lot. Your folk have forgotten their troubles; mine cannot. Yet, Mademoiselle, because in fighting for you and with you, we incurred colossal debt, we have set ourselves the task of paying it. More than that, we are paying yours—yes, yours—as well!

My country is not mercenary. It lent you £650,000,000 when France was well-nigh bankrupt, thinking, as she had a right to think, that this was just a loan. You have not thought it expedient, Mademoiselle, to pay it back, or even try. Those who helped you in war-time are now groaning under a burden you might help to relieve. There is the travail now; theirs the agony. They have to bear the heat and burden of the day—still for your sake. As I say, my country is not mercenary, you have not been reminded too frequently of your obligations, perhaps because we hoped such might not be necessary.

La Belle France, what shall I think of you? Your senators in full knowledge of your position now seek to prohibit my traders from doing business with yours. They disregard your debt of honour; they refuse even to pay an interest. Is this I ask you, Mademoiselle, your way of speaking gratitude—or only theft?

You cannot have forgotten. Thousands of tiny graves, in scores of cemeteries, remain to remind you of what was. In your rounds of merry-making, in the laughter of your cafes, in your feasting and your dancing, there must at times intrude itself a memory.

I know that, in saving you, I and mine did the same for Britain. But I fail to see, Mademoiselle, why Britain, in paying her debt incurred on your behalf, should pay yours as well. I must confess to being shocked at the sight of your country flippantly disregarding her obligations and repudiating her responsibilities. I am also grieved, for it would be more pleasurable to treasure a memory of common suffering and common sacrifice, sweetened by an everlasting, unselfish friendship.

La Belle France, how can I?

"Mr. Bayley"
DISAPPOINTMENT FOR THE GERMAN POLICE.

Ever the German police arrested another "Major Bayley" was explained to a Daily Mail reporter by Mr. F. P. Bayley, of the firm of P. S. Bayley, Clapham & Co., chemical merchants, of 19, Mesley-street, Manchester, who has just returned from Germany.

Mr. Bayley, who agrees that he bears a strong resemblance to Major Bayley, said that he was arrested in Magedeburg.

This is Mr. Bayley's story: One morning I was told at my hotel that the police wanted to see me. I saw them in a private room, and as soon as I had answered the question "Are you Mr. Bayley?" I was told that I must see the Chief of Police.

I was taken along the street by a group of detectives, which grew larger as we went, into the office of the Chief of Police, where, when I was safely surrounded by a dozen men, he asked to see my teeth. I took them out (mine are false teeth) and then I saw that he was examining a large handbill which bore two photographs of Major Bayley.

I was so relieved that I roared with laughter. The mistake was explained, and the Chief of Police was very apologetic.—Daily Mail.

The search for Major Bayley was supposed to have been successful when a man was found in Luxembourg answering to the description. It was a case of mistaken identity, however,

Who's Who Aboard Ship
(By An Old Sailor.)
Doctors who have never walked a ward, farmers who spend nine-tenths of their lives afloat, idlers who work hard for twelve hours a day. Paradoxical!

Yet they exist—aboard ship. They owe their being to the language that is spoken by the men of the deep-sea sailing craft and tramp steamers of the Mercantile Marine—the craft that are known across the seven seas as "hookers."

In boats such as those the master is "The Old Man," the first mate is invariably addressed as "Mister"—without the addition of his name—and the second mate, for some reason by no means clear, is as often as not referred to as "The Second Greaser."

When a hooker is in her home port and attends to her business in dock carries no such high-flutin' title as marine superintendent. That title belongs to the big steamship lippers. He is known by that grand, old-fashioned, romance-breathing term "Ship's Husband."

Easily the most important man aboard the hooker is the cook, but he is never so called save in the ship's articles. To everyone aboard he is "The Doctor."

He has nothing to do with the healing, but is a handy fellow to know as the proprietor of the only fire at which clothes may be dried on occasionally if he be diplomatically approached.

The sailmaker is "Sails" and the carpenter "Chips." The bos'n is always called plain "Boss."

It so happens sometimes, by reason of the way the reliefs fall, that a man has neither a trick at the wheel nor a turn on look-out during the night watches, so that when there is no essential ship work to do he can sleep during his watch on deck. He is termed a "Farmer."

The men who invariably work all day and sleep all night—cook, carpenter, sailmaker, steward—are "idlers."

The men take it in turn to clean up the fo'c's'le, and the one who has that duty is called "Peggy."—Daily Mail.

FEDERAL AUTHORITIES LIKELY TO DEMAND EXPLANATION FROM COMPANY.

Breaking clear of the ice field which for over two days held her imprisoned seven miles off Low Point, the Red-Newsfoundland steamer Kyle succeeded in reaching clear water shortly after nine o'clock yesterday morning and headed for Louisburg where she arrived at twelve noon.

Contrary to previous reports the Kyle carried 50 passengers, and the balance of these, eighteen in number, were regularly inspected and passed for entry into Canada, by the medical and immigration officers who met the ship on her arrival. Most of the passengers, including T. Hollis Walker, K. C., left for Sydney immediately in order to connect with last night's express.

No advice has yet been received by the local immigration officials with regard to the action the federal department will take in connection with the irregular landing of the 42 passengers who crossed the ice floes to the shore, Saturday and Sunday. The manifest of the ship's passenger list was handed over to the immigration officers when the ship landed yesterday, but according to Mr. J. G. Young, local agent of the department, this does not correct the irregularity and the Red-Newsfoundland Company will very likely have to make a satisfactory report to the Federal authorities. Several of the passengers landing yesterday were in a very critical mood with respect to the action of Captain Stevenson in attempting to force a passage through the ice to North Sydney, when he could, they said, have made Louisburg Friday night with ease. They hold that due regard for the safety and comfort of the ship's passengers should have deterred Captain Stevenson from taking the risk of having the steamer held up in the ice field for an indefinite period. There is a strong possibility that this phase of the matter will be taken up with the Federal authorities with a view of having a ruling passed to the effect that in future cases of this nature, passenger carrying ships shall not attempt to force a passage through ice, while a neighbouring port is available.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Hollis Walker were the guests of Dr. and Mrs. F. O'Neill, Whitney Ave., for dinner last evening, and left on last night's express for Halifax to await the sailing of the first liner for England. On leaving Newfoundland they expected to arrive in time to connect with the Cunarder Regina, which cleared for Southampton Sunday, but their plans were upset by the delay occasioned by the ice. Mr. Walker, who was investigating the charges made in the case of ex-Premier Squires and other members of the former Newfoundland Government, had very little to say with regard to the probable results of the investigation. He remarked that the probe was now completed, and his duty in that connection was ended when he placed his report in the hands of Governor Allarday-Sydney Post.

International Broadcasting

ACHIEVED BY RADIO ENGINEERS. WESTINGHOUSE AND METROPOLITAN-VICKERS ENGINEERS IN GREATEST ACHIEVEMENT OF MODERN TIME.

Marking an epoch in the history of radio engineering, world wide radio broadcasting was achieved on the night of December 31, 1923, when H. P. Davis, Vice-President of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, transmitted New Year's greetings that were heard in many lands from KDKA, the pioneer broadcast station of the Westinghouse Company at East Pittsburgh, Pa., U.S.A.

For the first time in history it was possible by means of the spoken word that such a message be sent to the peoples of so many nations. This marvelous achievement was made possible through radio broadcasting repeating. The message from KDKA, besides being transmitted on a wavelength of 325 meters for local reception, was sent on a wavelength of 160 meters and was picked up, amplified, and repeated by the Metropolitan-Vickers Electrical Company's radio station at Manchester, England, and by the Westinghouse repeating station at Hastings, Nebraska, U.S.A.

Mr. Davis in his message said:—"That the means of communication have been greatly advanced during the past year is fitly shown by the fact that I am able to speak directly to you, the great masses of population of other nations across an intervening ocean. This achievement will ultimately result in making America's daily events known to you and your every day happenings known to us."

"A year ago such an achievement seemed beyond belief. With such advancement in the radio art an established fact, no man dare predict what developments we'll take place before another New Year.

"It is a wonderful thing for the world,—this achievement which enables the peoples of one continent to 'listen in' on the activities of the peoples of another continent,—for the friendship of nations is founded on closer understanding among the various peoples and in no way can different nations understand each other and become more closely in touch with each other than by the improved means of rapid and accurate communication.

"It is also fitting that Westinghouse station KDKA, the pioneer broadcast station of the world, should be the first station to develop a means for the repeating of its programmes to you, the peoples of other continents, for it was here, and by this station, from which I am now sending this message, that radio broadcasting was first undertaken. This feat is only another progressive step in the development of this great utility."

The Tragedy of Squires

THE WALKER INQUIRY AND REPORT.

(Halifax Herald, March 24, 1924.)

This much is certain: T. Hollis Walker, K.C., has no respect for the "efficacious qualities of whitewash." After some ten weeks of inquiry into the Newfoundland scandals, he has handed in a report that is breathing-taking in its direct fearlessness.

We in this country are not used to such reports. We do not get them so blunt and forceful. Where "whitewash" is not applied in liberal quantities, the sordid and unlovely facts are usually conveyed in a bouquet of verbiage. That, obviously, is not the way they do things in the Old Country. Mr. Walker was named by the Colonial Office, as the result of a request from the present Premier of Newfoundland. He came; he listened; and he did not seek to disguise his opinions of the whole noisome affair. What he had to say about it, he said in language that could not be misunderstood by a school-boy. He has formulated an indictment against a Knight and a former Prime Minister that stands naked and without precedent in the history of this generation.

Sir Richard Squires was the First Minister of Newfoundland; to-day he is confronted with the report of a Royal Commissioner that declares he is guilty of every allegation preferred against him in the terms of reference. The Commissioner accepts it as proven that Squires received and converted to his own private use some $20,000 of public moneys that should have gone into the public treasury of the Colony. He accepts it as proven, and reports accordingly, that Squires received over $40,000 from the Dominion Iron and Steel Company, Ltd., of this province, "while negotiations were in progress between the company and the government concerning the obligations to be imposed upon the company as from January 1, 1920, in a proposed new contract." The Commissioner uses this language:

"I am driven to the conclusion that responsible officials of the company were willing to give, and did give, timely financial assistance to Sir Richard Squires, Prime Minister of the Colony, out of the funds of the company. That there were high and responsible officials who became aware of it, and were in sympathy with it, who adopted it, and made themselves parties to it, I am firmly convinced. To my mind, financial assistance from the company at such a time and under such circumstances would be equally objectionable, whether it took the form of accommodation only, or of cash lent or given. Sir Richard accepted that help, regarding it as a gift. The money was paid to him."

That, we say, can be described as nothing short of tragic. Has the public life of one of Britain's overseas dominions reached a condition where a Prime Minister can be directly corrupted for corporation advantage? It seems impossible; but T. Hollis Walker declares it to be true. We care not what corporation is involved; we care not what individuals are involved; the state of affairs uncovered in Newfoundland is one that will shock the consciousness of every man and woman who believes in the sanctity of public vows and pledges. We believe a careful search of the records of years would fail to disclose a parallel report, a report that says this:

"In my view, the handing over of the company's money to the Prime Minister of Newfoundland at any time material to this issue could only have been with the hope and object of furthering the prospects of the company by securing his favor, and that the recipient could not fail to realize it."

Sir Richard Squires is a politically dead man. The report of T. Hollis Walker has read him out of public life as utterly as though he were marooned on a desert island. He is through—completely through. Will the fate that has overtaken this man be a lesson to others? Will it teach other public men that the

Rod and Gun

(The April Issue.)

A good description of a canoe trip taken in the Kiamika lake district, Quebec, with a map showing the route, and full details concerning the trip, is written by J. Jenkins in the April issue of ROD AND GUN IN CANADA. This number also contains a good bear hunting story by T. C. Young who describes his bear hunt on the Goat River, British Columbia, and a big game hunt in Alberta by E. Hang, both of which are unusually good stories. Sportsmen will be interested in the fishing story by Mark McElhinney of Ottawa, and in the contributions of F. V. Williams, Bonnycastle Dale and Martin Hunter. H. W. Fry continues his series on shooting from the six point rest, while J. K. Mattern has another article, "What is in the High Velocity .30-30." Joseph Martin completes an interesting gun department with his account of the 22 Long Rifle at all Ranges. The other regular departments contain much of interest, and the April issue will be enjoyed by all those interested in Canadian sport.

NEWCASTLE, Wyo.—Cutting her own wood on her ranch, north of this city, Mrs. Lillian Portwood, seventy years old, is a familiar figure in Newcastle as she hauls the timber a distance of thirty miles from her ranch to Newcastle and returns on horseback in a single day. She performs all the work on the ranch. Mrs. Portwood came to Wyoming thirty years ago from Havana, Ill. She claims the distinction of having shaken hands with Abraham Lincoln when he was campaigning in Illinois for the Presidency.

Bolsheviks' War on Christianity

A THRILLING NARRATIVE—HOW A SAINT FACED THE REDS.

Captain Francis McCullagh, who acted as The Daily Mail correspondent in Russia, in circumstances of great peril, supplies unanswerable evidence in his magnificent book, "The Bolshevik Persecution of Christianity" (Murray, 18s.), that the Bolsheviks are still attacking Christianity and martyring Christians for their religion.

There are few finer passages in literature than his account of the trial of Mr. Budkiewicz, the heroic Roman Catholic ecclesiastic who was so foully murdered for his faith. Captain McCullagh, who risked his own life by showing sympathy for the victims of the Bolsheviks, describes in thrilling terms the whole tremendous scene when a saint confronted a gang of savage revolutionaries.

Callous Women. Conspicuous for their indecent conduct were the Bolshevik women.

They wore low-necked dresses and jewelry; and at the terrible end of the trial, when one could almost hear the Angel of Death beating his wings in that hushed and crowded court, they scrutinized the faces of the condemned men through their opera glasses as hungrily and insistently as they would have scrutinized the faces of great actors on the stage.

The execution was as hideous as the trial:

Mr. Budkiewicz was stripped naked and made to traverse a dark corridor leading to a cellar where an experienced executioner was awaiting him. On reaching the end of this corridor he found himself in a room which was suddenly lit up by a powerful electric light that made the unfortunate priest blink and stagger back. Before he had recovered himself the executioner had shot him through the back of his head.

Nothing could shake Mr. Budkiewicz's calm. His air was that of a courtly prelate, but he was strong as iron and true to death:

Not only was he immovable himself, but (in the opinion of the Bolsheviks) he made others immovable. His manner was for a Slav curiously cold and impassive. In speaking he used no gestures.

He went to his end sooner than deny his Lord, without a word of complaint. And by a strange coincidence, Lenin, "the man ultimately responsible for all the horrors which Russia has witnessed during the last six years," did not escape retribution:

On the night after the Archbishop and his companions were paraded in a motor car through the streets of Moscow, the terrible leader of the Reds gazed in horror on one, more terrible than himself, on a dread nocturnal visitor who, having passed swiftly through the triple guards and the bolted doors, had halted at his bedside and laid an icy hand on that proud and formidable brain. From that day Lenin was a living corpse.

At this hour the Christians of Russia have to face the very conditions "under which the study of candidates for the Christian priesthood was carried on at Rome in the time of Marcus Aurelius." Once more the Gallilean is pitted against the pagan—against the militant atheist. Captain McCullagh pays a great tribute to the devotion of the Roman Catholic Church, which still functions through out Russia, from which other Christians have fled. The Third International, as he says, has joined battle with "another International which is 2,000 years old and has weathered many a storm."

A great book, and a moving book, by a man who writes with conviction. —Daily Mail.

Trees for France

Progress is reported in the work of reforesting the devastated regions of France. It will be recalled that America offered at the close of the war to lend assistance in replanting these areas. The promise has been faithfully kept and millions of seeds have been sent to France and planted. These have grown satisfactorily and recently the first seedlings have been transplanted.

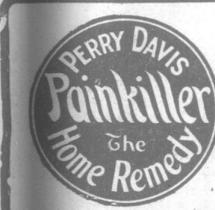

The selection of trees to be used in reforesting was made by experts with great care. It was finally decided to use the seeds of the cypress, honey locust, spruce, Colorado fir and the Monterey pine. More than enough seeds have been sent over than will be required to restore the entire devastated region and to spare. Special care is being taken to restore the historic Belleau Wood.

Invitation to the Women of Nfld.

Dear Sir.—The enclosed message has been forwarded to you from Headquarters of the International Women's Suffrage Alliance for publication in our local newspapers. It is to be hoped that Newfoundland women fortunate enough to be in England during the Empire Exhibition will make a point of seizing the opportunity to learn what women are doing the wide world over. Women of all nations will be there, every patriotic British woman on the farthest corners of the Empire fortunate enough to be in the Country at the time of the Exhibition, Eastern Section—North 30, Faithfully yours,
FANNIE McNEILL,
Hon. Sec. Nfld. Women's Franchise League.

MESSAGE

All Newfoundland Women Likely to visit the Old Country During the Empire Exhibition. Take notice! Women of Newfoundland that you will be expected and welcomed at the Pavilion of the International Woman Suffrage Alliance, the British Empire Exhibition. The British Overseas Committee of the Alliance wants to welcome you and to make you feel "at home." We want to see that you see things you ought to and meet the people you have perhaps heard of read about in your papers. We want to show you politics in practice and tell you and hear from you of the progress of women's politics; the conditions under which you live and work and bring up your children; what is being done to make the world happier and what you think could and should be done within and without the Empire.

Come and look us up at Wembley at the Alliance Pavilion Eastern Section, North 30.

WOMEN AT THE EMPIRE EXHIBITION.

Many people realize that apart from the perhaps more obvious purposes—trade, finance, publicity or amusement—the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley will have a big role to fill in emphasizing the home life of the Empire. We like to think of the Empire as an ideal of family life—a grown-up family now it is true,—but still held together by common ideals and common needs. No one holds this view more strongly than the International Woman Suffrage Alliance's British Overseas Committee who has just secured a site at the Exhibition for the erection of a Pavilion.

Some branches of this family have not met for years, and, perhaps, we may almost say that the daughters of our Empire have never met in such a way as this. The sons of the Empire met during the War; they shared dangers and hardships and proved the strength of the tie of blood. Now sons and daughters together have an opportunity of meeting which comes at a moment when prospects for the future are brightening, when constructive work in common is a shining possibility, and when the festivities which should mark the coming together of the scattered members of a large family are looming large in all our thoughts. Here is an opportunity for people of every sort and interest to make acquaintance; to exchange news and views; the Old Country is eager to stretch out a glad hand of welcome; to open its homes to its returning children; to give ample information about its own doings and to learn of their manifold activities overseas.

Women are to be well catered for, and many centres are to be opened by all sections of women's activities: philanthropical, social, hospitable, political, etc. Nowadays we cannot shove "politics" on one side as outside the sphere of ordinary folk; men and women alike know that politics mean the conditions under which we all live; they mean the home; they mean the children; they mean all those things which closely concern the woman whether as worker, wife, or mother. Moreover, the War and all the misery it brought in its train, has taught us that no country stands alone; we must think in wider terms; in terms of the common co-operation of all people of goodwill. We must envisage ourselves as fellow workers, not only in our own community or our own state, but the wide world over. Problems of daily life; nationality, marriage, children, war and peace, home-life—all these are the human and political interests of women and men everywhere, and it is this common interest, now so widely realized, that will make the Alliance Overseas Pavilion in the Exhibition a rallying point for thinking women of all lands. Our politics are not "party politics," for the Alliance is non-party,—that is of all parties; but they touch women at every point, and interest women of widely differing views. All women, be they workers in industry, in the professions or in the home, will find something of special interest, and will have the opportunity of hearing from each how the problems with all have to meet are being dealt with elsewhere. It does help to emphasize how unlike our lives really are when we find the same difficulties cropping up on opposite sides of the world. It is stimulating to learn how others have surmounted them, and perhaps, not without secret gratification, do we tell those still struggling with some particular problem, that "where we come from" we have found a glorious solution! They, in their turn, may shed light on what has seemed to other sections of the Empire family insurmountable difficulties. "Come and talk it over at Wembley" is the feeling, and who knows what encouragement and good results may eventuate from a friendly attitude backed by wide experience of woman's life the world over, which is the foundation of the British Overseas Committee Pavilion at the British Empire Exhibition.

Girl Passengers on Steamer Kyle

TELLS GRAPHIC TALE OF ICE CROSSING. They Were Accompanied by Newfoundland Dog, Which Fell in Water Several Times—Girls showed men They Weren't "Fraid Cats."

The Misses Campbell, the two women passengers who landed from the steamer Kyle via the icefield, at New Waterford Sunday, reported to the immigration officers in Sydney this morning and so far are the only irregularly landed passengers to comply with the regulations. A large number of the forty who walked across the ice left their heavy baggage on the ship and their inspection will follow as a matter of course when they seek to claim it.

Interviewed by the Post this morning, the Misses Campbell told a graphic story of their dangerous journey across the ice, and some idea of the risks they ran can be gained from the fact that a Newfoundland dog, belonging to the captain of the ship, which followed them, fell into the water several times by breaking through the treacherous slob ice, which, presenting a solid surface to the unwary, constituted a veritable death trap.

The young ladies essayed the perilous venture as a result of the twitting they received following their return from a short exercise walk on the ice Sunday morning. They had started in the direction of the shore and on their return to the ship the passengers remaining aboard twitted them for not continuing to the shore. Their Scotch-Newfoundland pride was further aroused when Mrs. T. Hollis Walker remarked that, with her experience in the Swiss Alps, she felt sure she could negotiate the journey. This was too much for a Newfoundland-land-raised girl, and mentally resolving that they weren't taking a back seat, the Misses Campbell quietly prepared for their venture.

The Path Is Lost.

Accompanied by several members of the crew who were setting out for a constitutional, they left the ship at 1.30 p.m., following the path marked out by the larger party that left the ship in the morning. All went well until, due to the shifting of the ice by the tide, the path was lost, and they had to strike out and pick a route for themselves. All but two of the crew returned to the ship, the remaining sailors agreeing to carry on and see the young women safely ashore. The men carried long poles and at times, on reaching a stretch of slob ice, the party was compelled to lay these across the death trap and use them as a bridge. In several places open water faced them and they were forced to make long detours in order to get around. The women were practically fagged out with their exertions in climbing over the hummocks, the ice being piled up as high as six feet in places. A number of times they had narrow escapes from being plunged into the icy waters through mistaking the skum of slob ice for solid footing. Finally, shortly after four o'clock, they succeeded in making land near New Waterford.

Visiting Brothers.

The Misses Campbell are visiting with their brothers, Murdoch and Joseph Campbell, of New Waterford, and the fact that for two nights they could see the lights of their destination was also a factor in their making the attempt to land. After a short visit, the elder of the sisters will leave for Providence, Rhode Island, where she has a position. She had been on a visit to her home at Little River, on the occasion of the death of her father, which occurred recently. The younger sister will remain in Cape Breton.

About twenty passengers for S. S. Kyle, who have been awaiting the arrival of the steamer here from Port aux Basques, left last night for Louisbourg via Sydney. The party included J. P. Powell, Chief Engineer of the Reid-Newfoundland Co., M. Rowell and W. H. Darrity, Grand Falls, Nfld., and Mrs. A. M. Close, Corner Brook, Humbermouth, Nfld.—Sydney Post.

Sir Philip Gibbs And the Only Way

"We are not going to move forward by the intolerance of autocratic government or by the revival of militarism. Unless the peoples of Europe regain the liberties of Parliamentary government, control of the political machine, freedom of speech and thought, and, above all, the old idealism which animated the liberal thought of all their leaders in the past, democracy will find itself enslaved," writes Sir Philip Gibbs in the Saturday Evening Post.

"As it stands now, bewildered, crippled, demoralized, and disillusioned, swinging back fast to reactionary ideas, democracy is not equal to its task or its destiny. It must be inspired by a new philosophy of life, beginning with tolerance of other peoples, rising to a spiritual plane of thought in which men shall master the tyranny of mechanism, dedicate science to life and not to death, and re-establish moral law in their own souls, not for national unity alone but for human service. "Democracy, the common will of common folk, believing in peace, desiring a better standard of life, ready for conciliation, loyal to fair play, not quick to quarrel, with Christian ethics, holding fast to a high code of honor, loving beauty and charity and human kindness, killing the brute in man and looking into the light of knowledge, can save civilization from that downfall which is threatened. I see no other way in which civilization can be saved, and no other way of escape from the danger of Europe which is creeping close."

Branding Fruit

When one sees his morning grapefruit stamped with the figure of a bird and the trade name under which it is marked, he may wonder how it is done. It is merely an example of the most recent application of electricity to industry.

The branding device takes its current from an ordinary lamp socket and is set up next to the grading belt in the packing house. The fruit rolls from the belt to a miniature escalator which carries it over electrically heated steel dies. These dies are kept at a temperature that will warm the natural wax in the peel or rind of the fruit and other dies, taking ink from a ribbon, imprint the desired mark.

The electrical fruit brander is now used on oranges, grapefruit, lemons, cantaloupes, watermelons, apples and English walnuts. A further use of electricity is in the protection of the sacks in which nuts are shipped from coddling worms and other insects, which have destroyed thousands of dollars' worth of sacks yearly by hiding in the seams. The sacks are now

Diamonds to be Mined in London

Thousands of tons of blue soil from the South African diamond mine country are being transported to London to be used as part of the South African exhibit at the Empire Exhibition. The earth from which comes the most valuable diamonds in the world is expected to yield thousands of dollars worth of the stones, which will be cut and polished before the public eye.

The destination of the ship and time of arrival are being kept secret and the earth will be guarded until the exhibition is opened in April. Another ship from Cape Town is bringing about 30 ostriches of both sexes, and it is hoped to hatch whatever eggs are laid at the exhibition.

Add diced cucumbers and sliced radishes to fish salad.

Spinning Tops at $200?

Seems expensive for a small child's toy, but a little tot's daddy recently tripped on a top at the head of a stairway and when he arrived at the bottom
he had a dislocated shoulder and a fractured forearm.

Summed up, this Company gave him $200 for his his eight weeks' disability and the toy is on display in our Home Office.
