It provides that the officers shall consist of a president, two vice-presi-dents, a secretary, three assistant secretaries, dents, a secretary, three assistant secretaries, a treasurer and an executive committee, enough offices in all to give every member a position. The initiation fee shall be $1. With a view of airing his loyalty, Mr. John A. Macdonnell wanted a clause inserted in the constitution for the maintenance of British connection. This gave rise to an animated discussion, during which Mr. L. Kribs took exception to the motion because there were a great many young men who could not accept it. As Sir John Macdonald in his speech at the Sir John Macdonaud in his sport the con-banquet had defined the position of the con-servative party regarding British connection, there was no occasion to insert the clause in the constitution. This was met by a storm of oppo-sition, one of the speakers saying that they could not support the party if it went twrong. Mr. Macdonnell then expounded the alarming doctrine that it was their duty to support the party whether right or wrong, and to this sentiment many of the audience gave assent by applause. The "young men" wrangled over this question for some time, and it also was allowed to drop. The names of several persons were then SUBMITTED AS OFFICERS, and the list will be augmented it a meeting to be held next week. This association met in their new rooms in the mechanics institute Saturday night. Mr. J. C. Black occupied the chair in the absence of the president. The nomination of officers was the principal James Patterson (the present president), W. J. McMaster, Warring Kennedy and J. C. Black were proposed for president. Mr. Black withdrew his name and was unanimonsly re-elected vice-president. For the office of second vice-president Joseph Bon-nick, T. P. Hayes, S. Caldecott and W. P. Garvin were nominated. The office of trea-surer fell to Hugh Blain by acclamation. There were thirty-nine nominees for the board of directors. The annual meeting of the association will be held on the 29th inst. The dinner will take place at the Royal hotel, Hamilton, the following day. WHAT THEY ARE SAYING.
