S I R,

THE late Pamphlet, intitled Observations on the Conduct of Great-Britain, &c. being chieffy defigned as an Aniwer to my first Letter on the pretended Project of a TRUCE, it may be shought incumbent on me to justify what I have written; for though this Piece (which consists of nothing but Inconfistencies, Constadictions, Pravarications, and downright Excloseds) is already funk into that Contempt, which it deferves; yet when a prion Person launches into Politicks, it is his Duty to pay fome Regard to an Adverfory, who produces the least Marks of Authority, however mean and defpicable his Performance may be thought.

WT HE Shorthels of Time will, Thope, excule any little Inaccuracies of Stile, or trivial Mitakes, which I may happen to fall into through the Courfe of this Difquifition, which every Body will perceive required Hafte.

I SHALL

I SHALL pass over all this little Sophiftry on the Freedom of Writing, as well as his dirty Imputations of Libelling, Difetfection and ill Defigns against the Government (those trite, worn out Topicks of every wretched Scribbler against you for above these two Years produced come directly to the Points, upon which the whole Strets of his Arguments, then as they are, depends.

THE first Objection, which he undertakes to confute, is the fuppofed Inastivity of our Squadrons, and the Depredations committed by the Spaniards upon our Merchants in the West Indies.

IN order to do this, he hath given us, what he calls, the Infructions to Admiral Hofier, and the other Commanders of out Squadrons in those Parts.

I SHALL not enquire from whom he see ceived these Lights; though it seems the extraordinary that a little obscure Pamplin teer should be favoured with Papers, of first a private Nature, as have been sometimes tes fused, even upon Applications in Parlies ment.

NEITHER will I offer to diffoute what there Infiructions are geneine and and but it; though there are feveral Thoogs in theme which have a fufficious Affrica. By the first Orders given to Admiral Liefler, it looks as if These, where tent han, did not understand the Service they tent him upon; for they die ict rec in a p

NEITHER can I fee the Reafon for preferring the Galleons, in these Instructions, to the Flota; for if keeping the Spanish Treafure from going Home, was the Intent of that Expedition, the Flota was as material an Attention as the Galleons, having as much Money aboard them, and both might have been intercepted, had our Fleet been rightly stationed at first, ciz. in the Bay of Matanzas in the Eland of Cuba, where they might have stayed more conveniently than at the Bassis.

INDEED Ropping the Flota is made the next Point to Ropping the Galleons; but confidering the Port, from whence it comes, and the Courfe it fleers, it was almost impossible that a Squadron lying at the Bassimentos should intercept them, or gain any Intelligence of them. In another Part of these Orders, Admiral Hosier is instructed to persuade the Spaniards to let him take them, which I confess looks, at first Sight, somewhat remantick and ridiculous.

THESE Particulars, I fay, might render the whole liable to Sufpigion; but though I could not help taking tome Notice of them, I would not be thought to infer from thence the Impoflibility of their being authentick; for though I have a very bad Opinion of the Pamphleteer, I cannot think that he would dare to impose upon the World in a Matter of fuch Confequence; but fince it was thought necessary to give the Publick fome Satisfaction in this Affair, I could with he had favoured us with ALL thefe Instructions at Length and entire (for this does not appeir to be the Cafe) that we might have been able-to form a true Judgment upon a View of the H hele, which cannot be fo well done by Scraps and Pretratis.

"Howevex, it appears from these Orders themicites (as he hach thought fit to publish them) that stepping the Galleons was to be their chief Care, and that they were not to risque the Encosis of it upon any Account. "I will therefore leave it to the Judgment of Mankind, whether any prudent Officer, under such a firick and particular Injun-Esion, would run the least Hazard of failing in that main Point, by endeayouring

It is certain, at leaft, that the Spaniards did, and do ftill continue their Outrages with very little Moleftation, and without any confiderable Reprifals made on our Parts : Nay, the Commanders of our Squadrons were fo far from giving any Affiftance to our Merchants in those Seas, that it is well known the Exigences of the publick Service obliged them to make fuch an Imprefs on their Ships (to fupply the great Lofs and Destruction of the Men on Board our Squadrons) as rendered them unable to perform their Voyages.

His reafoning therefore on this Head is reduced to one of these Points; either first, that the Nacal Force font to those Parts was not fufficient to perform fuch different Service's; or fecondly, that our Admiral and Commanders did apprehend themselves to be confined or embarafied by fome Cautions and Limitations; or thirdly, that they eithes neglected, or did not understand their Duty; which would be fuch a Reflection upon the Skill, Courage and Integrity of those excellent Officers, as will not eafily pass upon the World.

Тне Pampbleteer hath produced Part of one Letter from Admiral Hofier; in which he gives an Account, contrary to the general Opinion here till this Time, that the Spaniards had difembarked their Treasure, and and fent it back to Panama, before he arrived in the Bastimentos: Upon which this Writer observes, that he could not have taken any Thing but empty Hulks; and then feems to think hindely very imart in asking, Whether fuch a Medge would have bad much Influence on the Chenfels of Spain? To which I reply, first, that this is nothing to the Purpofe; becaute it is plain, that the Admiral had no Power, to feize the Galleons, in cafe they had not been unloaded; fo that his Arrival could have no other Effect, than that of their own Advice-Boat, to make them fecure their Ireafure. Secondly, I do not think it would have been fuch bad Policy to have taken even the empty Hulks, or burnt them in the Port (fo that the Spa*mards* could have no farther use of them) and to have failed immediately to Vera Cruz, and feized the Flota, inflead of lying to long to watch empty Hulks, till our own Ships became rollen, and almost empty Hacks themfelves.

1 COULD wife, for the farther Information and Satisfaction of the Publick, that the Pempheteer had found it convenient to give us the Sight of all Admiral Hafter's Letters; for no doubt he mult have fent feveral during his long and difattrous Continuance on that Station; from whence perhaps we might have had fome farther Light into this Aflair, or collected at leaft what his Opinion was of the the Nature of his Inftructions, and the Conduct of that Expedition; however, it is well known in what Manner he expressed himself upon several Occasions, both at  $\mathcal{F}a$ maica, and in Letters to his Friends in England.

I A M ready to fubfcribe, with the greateft Pleafure and Sincerity, to all the Encomiums, which this Writer makes on Sir Charles Wager; whom I know to be a Gentleman of the most amiable Character both in publick and private Life. I am confident that no Difficulties or Dangers could deter him from doing his Duty ; that no Temptations could prevail upon him to betray his Truft, and that he did not want the greatest Skill and Abilities to execute it. I have the fame good Opinion of Sir 70hn Fennings, and other Commanders, who were fent upon those Services; and when the Pamphleteer was in his panegyrical Strain, I could with that he had done Juffice to their Characters, and likewife paid fome fmall Tribute of Gratitude to the Memory of those brave Officers, who had the Misfortune to perifh ( 1 was going to fay, were facrificed ) in the Service of their Country. ——But they are dead, and have it not now in their Power to justify themselves or to accuse others.

But to return — I do not find by the Orders given to Sir Charles Wager, the 22d of December 1726, that he was impowered :

to intercept any Ships with Stores, Ammunition or Provisions, bound for the Spanib Camp, then in Sight of Gibraltar, in order to beliege it; nor inftructed, even by the 10st Endeavours of Perfuation, or otherwife, to get them or their Cargo into his Poffeilion, in order to difable them from beginning Hostilities, notwithstanding the same Orders directed him to reinforce the Garrifon of Gibraltar, which was then going to be belieged, by fending the Land Forces then on board Admiral Hopfon's Squadron, and in cafe of Need, to give all the Relief and Affishance be was able to the faid Garrifon; though I have been credibly informed, the Spaniar ds were permitted to pais by our Squadron, even under the Stern of the Admiral, and fafely land Stores, Procisions, Ammunition and other Necessaries for the Siege of that Place.

I F this be true, as I am affured it is, I fhould be glad to know for what Reafons his Instructions ran in that foft Strain, or why to much Complaitance was fhewn to the Speniards, upon the Occasion of fuch an undifguited Defign against that important Fortrets. I am the more defirous to know this, because I am fure it could not proceed from any want of Vigilance or Zeas in that brave and excellent Officer, who is a Man of too established a Character to suffer in any Body's Opinion, by the oblique and ungenerous 77224-Ini lo rder ' the hcr-Pofginlame arriz to rces ron, elief arned, our Adions, the

THE Pamphieseer, having thus refuted the Objections as instance fappefed Inalticity of our Squade its, by producing loine Parts of the Inferences to the Commanders of them, and shown, as he tells us, that the Loffes of our Merchants have not been owing to any want of that Care, which the Government ought always to take for the Protection of our Trade; he proceeds in the next Place, to give us fome Account of those Captures, which he fays are not near so confiderable as they have been reprefented; and having prefaced this Part likewife, with a great many angry Reflections, he produces a Life of Twenty fire Ships, which he would have us believe to be ALL in cooking up this Account is very remarkable.

1. WE are told this is an exact Lift of all fuch Ships as have been taken by the Spaniards in the Weft Indics, fince the Conclution of the Treaty of Hanover. But why fhould he confine it thus to Place and Time? I mentioned, indeed, only three Years pafe, becaufe of the Frequency of the Captures during that Time; but it I had undertaken to give the Publick an Account of all our Loffes, I fhould certainly have begun my Ac-Count count a great deal farther back. Much lefs fhould I have limited it to the West Indies; fince I prefume that Ships taken in the Ocean and other Seas, are as much Losses to our Merchants, as those taken in America, and that they there the finne Right to expect Reparature is of them.

2. Thus is a Lift of fuch Captures only, as bace been, at any Time, conceyed to the Knowledge of the Government, either by the immediese Complaints of the Merchants concerned in these Capital es, their Representations to the Committeness for Trade and Plantations, or the Accounts transmitted by bis Majefy's Minifters and Confuls abroad; which is what I suppose he means by the most authentick Testimonies. But is it to be inferred from hence, as he feems to do, that no more Loffes have been fuffelned than what have been thus formerly complained of? I grant indeed, that no Merchant can expect Reparation, who does not give in the Particulars of his Loffes; but it is well known that many of these Sufferers did not do this, which might proceed from different Caufes. Several Merchants, who refide in our Plantations and Settlements abroad, might not have Opportunity to transmit the Particulars of their Loffes, and authorize their Agents to make a regular Complaint; for, if I am not misinformed, some Complaints ch lefs Indies; Ocean to our 1, and ct Re-plaints were actually brought in, after the Account was closed, and therefore not inferted in it. Others might neglect to do it, by defpairing of Success, and thinking, perhaps, that the Profpect of Reparation would not answer the Trouble of complaining.

The Publick, I believe, will foon fee a true Account of our Losses, by the Depredations of the Spaniards, both in the West-Indies and in other Seas, from a proper Period of Time, which will more fully them the Fallacy of this partial List, which cught to be refented with the utmost Indignation, as an Infult on the Misfortunes and Calamitics of the British Merchants.

LAM told that the Pampbleteer had a Defign to oblige us likewife, in this Picce, with a counter Liff of those Shipe which we have taken from the Spaniards, during the late Diffurbances, and that this was astaally printed, but afterwards cancelled and suppressed. I am forry to hear that any Motives could induce to impartial a Waller to reb us of this Catalogue, which was not only very proper, but would no Doubt give great Satisfaction to the Publick.

The only Objection, fave the Permpheteer, that remains to be enfround upon this Point of the Spanch Depresation, is with Regard to Letters of Marque and Reprizal, by which the Traders might have been authorized to make themfelves Reparation. He acknowledges ledges that the Merchants, in the Situation we were then in with Regard to Spain, had a Right, both by our own Law and that of Nations, to demand flich Letters. He then proceeds to juilify the Miniflery (which I hope wants no juilification) by thewing that fuch Letters were not refufed. Those are his Words. but how does he flew it? why, he gives us two Inflances of Owners of Ships, whe did apply for them (upon an Order publifhed in the Gazette) and were actually refufed, and does not produce one Inflance of any Man what loever, to whom they were granted.

H & tells us indeed, by Way of Apology for this Remain, that the Præliminary Treaty baving been j' former me acgorianing at Paris. bis late Interestation of proper to defer iffaing thefe town offens, will be foould fee the Success of used Negotiation. He adds, that the Production Articles were figned at Parts, the 20th of Midy, and that Drangues of Enclosed iens to the Lords of the Admirally, for granting Letters of Marque, were figned by his late Majelty after the 21ft of April. Is therefore the Proliminary Trease had been fome time negotiating at Paris, the Q chion is, whether this Treaty was not albuilly negotiating at the Time, when has Order was published in the Gazette; and if it was, why was the Order published at all? fince it could only tend to putting the MerI

Units therefore is fuch a Justification of the infiry, as I am fure you, Mr. D'Anvers, would be atraid to publish.

He proceeds, in the last Place, to expose the Chemour, that hath been railed against the Negotiations at Soiffons, and the Project of Accommodation, which hath caufed fo much Dispute.

1 CONFESS, it gives me some Pleasure to find that I was right in my Conjecture, that if any such Project were really in Agitation, it would not bear the Ivame of a Truce; for lo! it is not called a Truce; It is a provisional Treaty; though, for my Part, I am not able to discover any Difference between them, unlets it be in the Sound; for a Provisional Treaty does not seen to imply, any more than a Truce, a final Sector mination of all Differences (which is is some wanted) but only a Suspension of thera for a Time.

THE Preliminar Treaty was, properly fpeaking, a Precificial Treaty, as it was to provide for foresthing justifier at the Congrets; but that the Negotiations at this Affembly thous d end in a Provisional Treaty only, is not what we had Reason to expect from the Affarances to often given us. A which this Treaty hath paffed. At first we were promised a full, formal and established Peace; but ioon after the Conclusion of the Inst Selfion, it was called, in the Foreign Prints, a Pacification; and after that an Idea of a Pacification; then it was a Truce, and bore that Name in all Papers, Foreign and Domestick, for several Months together; at last, according to this Writer, it is neither a Peace, nor a Pacification, nor an Idea of a Pacification, nor a Truce, but a Provifional Treaty.

WELL! if a Peace could not be obtained, and a Truce would not go down; e'en let it be a Provisional Treaty, or what elfe they please. I form to infift upon Names with these Gentlemen; but will examine the Treaty it felf, as it is given us by the Pampbleteer.

It is fomewhat strange, that a Writer, who takes upon himielf such an Air of Authority, should condescend to borrow his Materials from the Post-Boy; and more strange, that he should charge me with affelling to call this Treaty a Truse, when he cannot be ignorant that the Post-Boy, from which he quotes the Articles, as well as the Dutch Prints, from whence the Post-Boy translated them, and all Papers, for at leass two Months before I wrote my first Letter, called it constantly by these Name.

WHEN I first undertook this Examination of the pretended Project of a Truce, I treated it as chimerical, or the Invention of ill defigning Men, and argued from the Defects of the Articles, that I could not believe them to be gennine. What therefore could induce this Writer to affirm, that we base not fo much as pretended to shew that this Project is deficient, in not providing for all those Points, that have been the Subject of the late Disputes between Great Britain and foreign Powers; when the whole Tenor of that Letter was to prove the Defects of it, by a very circumstantial Induction of Particulars? - But in this he not only advances a Fallbood, but contradias himfelf. as fuch Writers are apt to do ; for in the very Page before this Affertion, that we have not fo much as pretended to shew that this Project is deficient, he tells us, that he shall make forme Observations on the Objections which thefe Writers have made to it.

HEITHER can it furely be forgot, that the Author of the British Journal reprefented this Project, and these very Articles in the fame Manner as chimerical, and charged me with trumping them up, in order to asperse the Ministers with odious Designs. He called them besides unintelligible Projects, dark Things and ill aneant Reports, which bear no Sign of Credibility, and do not deserve the Name of Intelli-

Intelligence; fo that when thele Articles had been given up, in this Manner, by a Writer (who, I was informed, had Accefs to a Perfon in Authority) it would have been ridiculous to enter into a farther Detail of the Defects of them. --- But now ( according to the usual Intervisionary of these Men, and their defationy Method of Reafoning) we are to unbelieve every Thing which we were caught to believe about fix Weeks ago. Thete uninteringible Projects, which it was Desting at that Time even to mention, are now acknowledged to be really gennine ; the whole Succus of our Negotiations is put upon them, and they are made the Basis of our future Sytclement. ---- Some farther Observations therefore are now become feafonable and require .

HE tells us that, by this Treaty, we obtain the plainest and most direct Acknowledgment and Confirmation of cur Right to all our Possessions, and to all our Privileges in Trade, even those which had been difputed, in Opposition to preceeding Treaties. But in what Manner is this Acknowledgment and Confirmation obtained? The Pumphleteer proves it thus: By the second Article, the Treaties of Utrecht, Rastad and Baden, the Treaties of the Hague in 1717, together with the Quadruple Alliance, and ALL the Treaties and Conventions antecedent to 1725; the Preliminary Articles, and the Convention tion figned at the Pardo, which are made the Basis and Foundation of the present Treaty; and being expressly confirmed by it, without any Restriction of Time, whatsover/hath been stipulated in our Favour, in any of those Treaties and Conventions, receives a new and perpetual Sanction by This—upon which I observe,

1. THAT I cannot comprehend how a Temporary Treasy, which I take a Provisional Treasy to be, can give a perpetual Sanction to any Thing.

2. CAN a Treaty be properly called perpetual (though not expressly limited to any Time) or be faid to give a perpetual San-Etion, which does not finally adjust one Point in Dispute, but leaves them to the Determination of Commissioners, and consequently subject to future Debates?

3. SUPPOSING this Treaty leaves us upon the Foot of former Treaties, is it not well known that the Senfe of fome of these Treaties hath been disputed; and may they not be disputed again, and occasion the same Disturbances?

I WILL inftance only in the Cafe of Gibraltar. As the fecond Article of this Treaty is verbalim the fame with the fecond Article of the Præliminary Treaty (both of which relate to our Poffeffions in general; for Gibraltar is not particularly mentioned in either) I cannot fee how we are better fecured against the Pretensions of Spain to D this this Place, than we were by the Praliminary Articles; and is it not notorious that the Spaniards have infifted, and do yet infift, that their Pretensions, founded upon a Promise under the Hand of his late Majesty, in the Year 1721, is confirmed by the faid Praliminaries? And as they infift to have this pretended Promise cleared and adjusted in the Congress in their Favour; so as we maintain, on the other Hand, that these Pretensions to Gibraliar, however founded, are given up by this Jecond Article, it is equally incumbent upon us to infift that the Praliminaries should be fo explained in our Favour, as to exclude all Doubts and Queffions upon them for the future; for as this is the most important Point with Relation to Great-Britain, it is reasonable that it should be fecured to us, in this Treaty, by a particular Article to explain it, as some other Things of lefs Confequence have found, which feem to require no Explanation, and are as fully and clearly provided for, in the fecond Article of this Treaty.

It must be farther observed, fays the Pamphleteer, that by this Article, and by the third and ffth, we are effectually secured from all the dangerous Engagements, contained in the publick and private Treaties of Vienna.—. Those dangerous Engagements were, as he tells us,

1. I but the trading Subjects of the Emperor should be treated in the Dominious of Spain

Spain MORE FAVOURABLY than those of Great-Britain. But this appears to be false from the Treaty it felf, which mentions only that they should be treated as the most for courted Nations, which other Treaties provide for us, who are to be always looked upon as Gens amicifima; and confequently whatever Privileges the Emperor, or any other Prince, may obtain for their Subjects,... from his Catholick Majefty, must be conceded to us, at the fame Time, by Virtue of  $\langle \rangle$ those former Treaties. But how are we now fecured from the dangerous Engagements of the Vienna Treaty, unless by a Declaration of his Catholick Majefty, that he never understood to grant, by the faid Treaty of Vienna, any Privilege contrary to the Treaty confirmed with us, nor to give to the Subjects of his Imperial Majesty any greater Advantages than those enjoyed by any other Nations; This is no more than what both the Courts of Vienna and Madrid have from the Beginning declared. Yet as this hath been a laboured Point, and strenuoufly afferted by us, as well in Parliament as cliewhere, and made the Bafis of the Hanover Treaty, as of the utmost Importance to this Kingdom, a Declaration only in this Cate can be of no more Force and Virtue than it hath hitherto been, whilst the Vienna Treaty sublists in every Part as much as it did the first Day it was made.

Offices were ineffectual, would affift his Catholick Majefty to recover Gibraltar by Force — This likewile does not appear by the Treaty; nor did his Imperial Majefty, as far as I ever heard, give the Spaniards the least Afflitance, when they actually befieged that Fortrefs.

3. That Spain would by Arms affift the Emperor in carrying on the Offend Trade, which is to be fufpended by this Treaty. It must be owned indeed the Dutch are extreamly happy (if this Provision content them) in having fuch Advocates, or rather Champions, to support their Quarrels; whilit our Fleets and Armies, at the Expence of our Treasure, and the Lives of so many brave Men, have procured them these Concessions, and they remain unactive in all Parts, reaping the Benefit of our Quarrels, and driving on the Trade of the whole World, and at the fame Time courted ( to fay no more) to espouse their own Interest.

A N D here it must be repeated, that though it has been diffuted whether the Offend Charter is an Lafraction of former Treaties; yet fince it is mide a Point, and infilted upon to be prejudicial to our Commerce, and we are bound by Treaties to fupport the Dutch in these Pretentions, it might teem perhaps abfolutely necessary to have this Affair finally adjuited, fo as never to break out again, or at least to be received in any fhort Time, whereby Europe may be engaged in the like Quarrel,

But it is pretty extraordinary, that confidering the great Interest we have in this Affair (as it is affirmed) and the Point we have made of it, there should be no Notice taken of us, in the Article, which provides for its Suspension, nor to much as a Compliment made to us for our generous Interposition.

4 And lastly, (pray observe him!) our Apprehensions were, that there might be Engagements in Favour of the Pretender ---Alas! how do the Observations fall short of that Spirit, which appeared in the Enquiry. There we fee the Author rouzing up the Nation to a just Refentment of those dangerous Engagements in Favour of the Pretender. We fee him affirming, with the greatest Confidence, that foon after the Publication of the Vienna Treaties of Peace and Commerce, they had positive Intelligence, and Intelligence from more than one Perfon, and fuch as could be imircly depended on, that one express Article of this Alliance between the Himperor and Spain contained an Obligation In Facour of the Pretender. We have not his Authority for it only, but the Affurance of a certain Gentleman, in Parliament, that he know, and was abjolutely coverinced of the Truth

Truth of this. We had the Address of the whole Kingdom juftly inflamed on this Oc-We had his Excellency Mr. Ifaac cafion. Leheup's vigorous Remonstrances at the Diet of Ratisbon, in the very Teeth of the Emperor, concurring in and affirming the fame Charge. Nay, we had ftill much greater Authority, even Authority from the Throne; for did not his late Majefty declare that \* he had certain and undoubted Intelligence that it was refolved to attempt an Invalion of these Kingdoms, in Confequence of a *lecret Ar*ticle to this Purpofe, and was not the Imperial Minister ordered to depart the Kingdom, in a very abrupt Manner, for denying any fuch Engagement or Design in his Master's Name? And after all there repeated Affurances, after all these extraordinary Steps, are we fallen to low as to acknowledge that we had Apprehensions only that there might be Engagements in Favour of the Pretender? ---- If this Scribbler takes upon him to advance Facts of less Consequence, he may depart from them (as he generally does, when  $\hat{Exp}$  edients are wanting ) without hurting any Body; but in Affairs of this high Nature, he ought not to meddle, let who will be his Instructor, without good Grounds and fufficient Authority?

FOR my Part, I was always willing to believe (for the Honour of his late Majefty and the British Nation, as well as out of Regard to those who drew, or advised, or approved that Speech) that we had something more than bare Apprehensions to justify us in such Declarations and extraordinary Proceedings; for the Honour of the Crown is a Thing of a very facred Nature and ought not to be trifled with on any Occasion, or made an Instrument to serve ministerial Purposes.

KING James the first observes very justly (in a Speech to his Parliament, in the first Year of his Reign Which is, perhaps, the best that he ever made) that Speeches from the Throne Gould be plain and fincere. By Sincerity (fays he) I mean that U prightness and Honesty, which ought so be in a Kings whole Speeches and Actions; that as far as a King is, in Honour, above his Subjests, so far should be strive, in Sincerity, to be above them all; and that his Tongue should be the true Messer of his Heart.

YET this King, at the latter End of his Reign, was drawn in by Buckingham to make a falfe Reprefentation of the Spanish Affair to his Parliament; which had its Effect fo far, as to make Buckingham a little popular for the prefent, at his Majefty's Expence; but as foon as the People found themfelves impofed upon, they gave no Credit to the Affertions and Affurances of this lying Minifter any more.

NAY, we have a much later and more remarkable Instance of the Effect of any supposed Endeayours to prostitute the Honour of the the Crown; for it cannot be forgot that a certain Gentleman thought fit to make it an Article of Impeachment against the late Earl of Oxford, that he had corrupted the facred Fountain of Truth, and putfallboods into the Mouth of Majesty, in Order to obtain the Sanction of Parliament to bis traiterous Proceedings.

I HOPE this Digression, upon so important a Point, will not be thought unscalonable.--- I now return to the Provisional Treaty; the eighth Article of which is so very remarkable, that I must beg Leave to transcribe it at Length.

VIII. Commissioners (ball also be appointed on the Part of bis Most Christian Majesty, bis Catholick Majesty, and the States-General, who shall examine all Grievances whatever, without any Exception, which the faid Parties concerned, had to propose respectively, either for the Restitution of Ships feized or taken, or in Relation to Commerce: And the examining of what is fifpulated both by the prefent Article, and the toregoing (which relates likewise to Commerce and Prizes) must not exceed the Ierm of two Years.

THIS Article, I think, ftands in need of very little Animadversion. What Reason could there be why we are not included in this Commission, as well as the Spaniards, who are equally Parties, and are made, by this Article, Judges of the Dispute between themselves and us? I shall only observe farther, farther, that our Privileges in Trade will no doubt be very glorioufly adjusted and secured, when one Power, who is our worft Enemy, and two others, who are our most dangerous Rivals, are made the Arbitrators.

But, to conclude; if it is really true, that the Emperor and the King of Spain did enter into all, or any of these dangerous Engagements, I could with to see them formally renounced and annihilated; for I still think that a solution of the Treaties of Vienna, would secure these our most important Interests more effectually than is done by the fore mentioned Articles, which leave them upon the precarious Foot of former Treaties, which we have already found ineffectual to these Ends.

FOR, when different Interpretations have been put upon the fame Treaties by different Powers; when Objections have been ftarted on both Sides; when contrary Claims and Pretensions have been made, and embroiled Europe for feveral Years; what other effectual Method can be used to fecure us against the like Disputes and Disturbances for the future, than finally to adjust the Sense of such Treaties, and confirm the respective Rights, Privileges and Posses of the Powers concerned, in the plainest, most direct and explicite Manner?

AND if the Powers, with whom we are concerned, do really understand these Articles in the same Sense, which the Pamphle-E teer teer hath put upon them, why fhould they refuse to make us easy by a particular Explanation? Or, if they do actually refuse this, is there any Room to doubt, that they have some Reasons for preferring dark and ambiguous Terms?

BUT it may be objected, fays the Pamphleteer, That I bave milpent my Time and Labour, in endeavouring to filence the Clamours which have been taifed against that particular Form of a Peace, which hath been the Object of our late Negotications, funce it does not appear that the King of Spain is disposed to accept even of which the King of Spain is disposed to accept even of which determined Resolution, not to come to any Terms with us, after what hath passed, without obtaining his favourite Ends.

HE tells us indeed, but two Lines before, in his usual felf-contradicting Stile, that none of the Powers concerned have hitherto given just Cause to conclude that they will reject Now methinks where there is an appait. rent Disposition not to accept, there is some Caufe to conclude that they will reject it; but whatever Reasons there may be against it abroad, I am fure there are many at Home. IT is, at best, by his own Confession, only a Plan or a Project which is not yet accepted. But let us suppose it accepted, for Argument fake. Nay, let us go farther, and for Argument fake likewife, fuppose it to be a good a good one; the Question will still return, Whether we have taken the fbortest, the least dangercus, or the least expensive Methods to accomplish it. But to glory in Measures, which have not fucceeded, whether commendable or not, and have only a bare Frobability of Success, is certainly very extraordinary.

LASTLY, Let us examine this Affair with refpect to the Time we have been about it. The Pamphieteer indeed fays, and feems to triumph upon it, that this PROGRESS towards the Establishment of a general Peace bath been made in a few Months, after the opening of the Congress. But how much Time, as well as Money, did we fpend in Expeditions, Embassies, Negotiations, Preliminaries and Ratification's before the Congress was opened? Nay, though we date the present Disturbances but three Years back, it is certain that we have not been in a State of perfect Amity, and free Commerce with Spain for above these feven Years past. But by the great Sagacity and Penetration of certain Gentlemen (to fay nothing of fecret Service Money) we have at last (according to this Writer) fome Hopes of being, one Time or another, in almost as good a Condition as we were in, before our Affairs were thus enibroiled.

THIS puts me in Mind of Sir Epicure Mammon, in the Alchymist, who when he had ipent his whole Estate in fearch of the Philosopher's Stone, was comforted after after all his Coff, though diappointed of his main End, with the hopes of a little fomething to cure the Itch.

HE tells us, at the Conclusion, that this Nation never acted a Part more fuitable to its DIGNITY and CHARACTER; and that to the Firmmels and Fidelity of our Allies, and to these Measures are one our PRE-SENT TRANQUILITY. I shall fay nothing of that glorious, art, which we have been lately acting, nor of the rammels and Fideliny of our Aines. I neither know what they engaged to do, nor what they have actaally done for us. But to boast of the prefent Tranquility, when we are at best only in a State of Political Purgatory between Peace and War; when our Ships are every Week taken, as in time of War; when we are at all the Expenses and under almost all the Inconveniencies of a War; to talk and boast of Tranquility, I fay, at fuch a Time, and either be an egreptous Banter on the Minifiry, or an Infut on the Nation; and let the Pampbleteer take his Choice,

I HAVE but one thing more to mention, before I conclude, which is that the Author of this wretched Pannphire hath the Infolence to make the Regal Character fubfervient to his Defigns. Whatever Meafures, or whatewer Conduct he finds it neceflary to approve, are the King's Meafures, and the King's Conduct. This is a mean Artifice, which hath been conftantly practified of late, by these Men, when other Arguments are wanting. But I hope it will not put a Stop to your Enquiries; for every Englifbman hath a Right, by our Laws, to judge and debate these Affairs; and I am fure bis Majefly will abhor the Thoughts of abridging this Liberty, though weak and wicked Men endeavour to forcen themselves under the Protection of his facred Name. I am,
