Agriculture

Arabian Horses.

The following article on Arabian horses is from the notes of a British officer, written during the first Egyptian War:—

How to Judge the Age of a Horse.

In the horse as well as in most other animals, the age can frequently be approximately judged by the general appearance, the countenance, the position of the head, the gait, the restlessness, (falling in) of the temples and anus, and other indications. All these indications are, however, only general, and are liable to be entirely misleading in many cases.

Bees Keeping.

Eternal vigilance is the price of success in any pursuit, and in none more than in bee keeping. All who attempt it must remember that it is not only labor, but a science, and will make incessant demands, not only on patience, but on bodily strength and intelligence. Choose a place for your hives on sandy, dry ground, at a distance from the barnyard, or any drains or thick vines, and should be placed facing the south. The hives should be four inches from the ground. The Italian bees are hardy, work harder than the ordinary German black bees, are more prolific, and like industrious people, are likely to be amiable. They will find food for themselves in any fertile country where there are fruit trees, flower gardens and late wild blooms. Buckwheat gives a rank flavor to the honey, which injures its sale.

How to Choose a Horse.

The perfect horse is yet to be foaled, and we must be able to find all good qualities in any one horse. In dealing with a stranger rely largely on your own judgment and endeavor not to be misled by any questionable statements he may make. See that the horse stands squarely on its feet and that it does not lean out behind or toe in forward. Run your hand slowly and carefully down the inside of each leg. If there is a lurch there you will feel it. See that the feet are sound and well shod. A dark hoof, if sound, is always preferable to a white or streaked one. Look sharp at the eye. A bright, full eye denotes spirit; a mild, placid eye, a placid disposition, while an eye with a good deal of white denotes temper. There are many other ways to judge a horse's disposition so well as by a careful study of his eyes, and too much importance cannot be attached to this necessary of a good disposition. In this way many valuable cows are found and secured at only a little above average prices.

Our Farm Boys.

There is a frequently recurring complaint from the farm, of the reluctance of boys to remain in farming pursuits, indeed sometimes even to enter on such a life. What is the cause of this restless spirit? Are country employments odious in themselves? It is appalling to note the young lives wrecked in cities; youths who strain every nerve and use every means to obtain a profession, who just reach the threshold and then succumb, worn out in mind and crushed in body. Of the vast multitude who year after year leave their country homes to seek fortune in cities, how many succeed? The percentage is very small, even of those who find a moderate degree of success. The student mentally is a man too often lightened, none too capable, to cope with the many difficult problems of agriculture. The hardest part of farm life is its seeming monotony. We advise the young man to seek a profession or mechanical life. The four seasons bring to the farmer varied occupations and varied pleasures. The journalist, the lawyer, the doctor, in their callings know no seasons; three hundred and sixty-five days annually are the working days of those who toil in the paths of the higher professions. Artisans and mechanics enjoy rest on one day in every week. Railroad employees generally obtain two, sometimes three, Sunday's rest out of ten months of the year. During the three heat of the summer the public will travel, and the railroad men must be at their posts. Our counsel to boys is, before you decide to leave the farm for other work, seek information, and make sure as you can that you are more fitted for city than for country life. To the farmers we would say, if your boys are well treated they will recognize it; if your boys are overworked, poorly clothed, and poorly and harshly treated, make haste to change and to amend your ways. A bad employer gets an unwilling service. The best tempered boy can be made sullen; the most ambitious can be discouraged. When a boy is old enough to work for his father, and when his work is satisfactory, he earns his pay as fully as though he was a hired outsider.—American Agriculturist.

If there is a lurch there you will feel it. See that the feet are sound and well shod. A dark hoof, if sound, is always preferable to a white or streaked one. Look sharp at the eye. A bright, full eye denotes spirit; a mild, placid eye, a placid disposition, while an eye with a good deal of white denotes temper. There are many other ways to judge a horse's disposition so well as by a careful study of his eyes, and too much importance cannot be attached to this necessary of a good disposition. In this way many valuable cows are found and secured at only a little above average prices.

Our Farm Boys.

There is a frequently recurring complaint from the farm, of the reluctance of boys to remain in farming pursuits, indeed sometimes even to enter on such a life. What is the cause of this restless spirit? Are country employments odious in themselves? It is appalling to note the young lives wrecked in cities; youths who strain every nerve and use every means to obtain a profession, who just reach the threshold and then succumb, worn out in mind and crushed in body. Of the vast multitude who year after year leave their country homes to seek fortune in cities, how many succeed? The percentage is very small, even of those who find a moderate degree of success. The student mentally is a man too often lightened, none too capable, to cope with the many difficult problems of agriculture. The hardest part of farm life is its seeming monotony. We advise the young man to seek a profession or mechanical life. The four seasons bring to the farmer varied occupations and varied pleasures. The journalist, the lawyer, the doctor, in their callings know no seasons; three hundred and sixty-five days annually are the working days of those who toil in the paths of the higher professions. Artisans and mechanics enjoy rest on one day in every week. Railroad employees generally obtain two, sometimes three, Sunday's rest out of ten months of the year. During the three heat of the summer the public will travel, and the railroad men must be at their posts. Our counsel to boys is, before you decide to leave the farm for other work, seek information, and make sure as you can that you are more fitted for city than for country life. To the farmers we would say, if your boys are well treated they will recognize it; if your boys are overworked, poorly clothed, and poorly and harshly treated, make haste to change and to amend your ways. A bad employer gets an unwilling service. The best tempered boy can be made sullen; the most ambitious can be discouraged. When a boy is
