The lady got an enthusiastic reception. Mrs. Lake got home first in the heat, but as the ungallant Superior ran the whole distance she was put back to the last place, and in the following heats a man was put up in Mrs. Lake's place. With a stronger hand in control, Dan trotted all right after the change, and pushed the winner hard for first money. "A FAMILY AFFAIR"

Is What Consul Lee Calls the Havana Disturbance.

New York, Jan. 20 .- A special cablegram from Havana to the World today says: General Lee probably averted war between Spain and the United States by refusing to summon a warship during the recent riots here when beseeched to do so. He expects to ask for a war vessel quick enough to be present in case a future riot should take an anti-American turn. He is watching the situation closely, and is better informed of what is going on than is General Blanco himself. General Lee terms the disturbance a "family affair." He was beseeched by naturalized citizen of the United States and a very few native-born Americans to demand warships. He told the scared applicants that there would be no trouble, but he advised them to leave if they were too uneasy. Consequently some of them are bitter against him now. General Blanco has taken strong precautionary measures to suppress any further disturbance. He says he will not be another Dulce. The annexationist feeling is growing among the Spanish merchants. They themselves may soon ask Gen. Lee for protection.

Everything went well until the election of officers. The attendance was larger than usual, and at 7:30 Col. Leys, vice-president, took the chair, in the absence of President A. M. Smart. The secretary, Mr. Thomas A. Browne, read the minutes of last meeting, which were confirmed. Mr. Browne then read the 31st annual report. In reply to Mr. D. C. The reports were adopted. Secretary Browne then took the chair in order to proceed with the election of officers. Messrs, George T, Trebilcock and James Thorburn were unanimously elected scrutineers. The members were asked whether they would vote by ballot or by show of hands. They unanimously decided to vote openly. Col. Leys was nominated for the presidency by Mr. D. C. Macdonald, and Mr. A. M. Smart was proposed by Mr. A. E. McCormick.

Col. Leys asked his movers to consent to his withdrawal in favor of Mr. Smart. This was agreed to and Mr. Smart elected president. THE ROW BEGINS. So far all had gone along peacefully. Col. The uproar then began. A contingent from London township were the leaders of the opposition. There were cries and shoutings and calls for a ballot, and a general pandemonium. At this juncture the secretary proposed to read the roll, and let each man vote when his name was called. This was agreed to. A prominent Conservative's was the first name called. He voted for Col. The department is likewise receiving sections of white pine from various lumbering sections in Ontario, together with data showing the heights of the trees from which the sections were cut, and other particulars. The object of this is to enable an estimate to be formed of the earliest period at which white pine is available for the needs of commerce.

A Great Gathering at Toronto Last Night.

Sir Richard Cartwright on Progress Under Liberal Rule.

Canada's Trade Makes a Phenomenal Increase.

The Ontario General Elections Discussed by Sir Richard and Premier Hardy.

Bright Prospects for the Success of the Liberals in the Ensuing Contest.

Toronto, Jan. 20 .- The banquet of the Young Liberal Club last night was a great success. The principal speakers were Sir Richard Cartwright, minister of trade and commerce, and Premier thusiastic reception. The tone of the addresses proved that the national horizon is rapidly widening and that developments within the arctic circle. in far northwest Canada, and in the far east, with which we would have had but a remote connection in preconfederation days, are now of importance to every Canadian, whether of the east or of the west.

Sir Richard Cartwright made an exceedingly happy and inspiriting speech. He pointed with pardonable pride to the expansion of trade as an evidence that Liberal government had been very far from the disastrous thing predicted by the Conservatives eighteen months ago. In the first year of Liberal rule the expansion eral rule the exports had increased from $109,915,000 to $123,933,000, an increase of $14,000,000, the greatest with in a twelvementh within his knowledge. In the first five months of the present fiscal year the exports of Canadian products had reached the great total of $74,896,000, another increase of $14,000,000, as compared with the same five months of last year. In all, therefore, Liberal rule had been accompanied-he did not pretend to say it was wholly due to Liberal rule-by the enormous expansion of $28,000,000 in out exports within 17 months. This statement was greeted with tumultous cheering. In the latter part of his speech Sir Richard dealt with the problems of Klondike development, and of the relations of Canada as a North American state to the empire. The greatest fact of the century politically was that two-thirds of the Anglo-Saxon race found their homes in the North American continent. To the sentiment that the Anglo-Saxons north of the line were not prepared to barter their national existence for trade there was a splendid response, but he warned his hearers that it would Richard declared it to be the duty of anadians to the Anglo-Saxon race to do everything possible to remove all prejudices and misunderstandings between the two great branches of the race. Behind the words of Sir Richard was unquestionably the thought that some day it may yet be possible to realize the dream of an Anglo-Saxon world-wide confederacy, guiding men onward to that day when the war drum beats no longer and the battle flags

THE ONTARIO ELECTIONS. Sir Richard referred to the approaching provincial general elections. He would not say that Mr. Hardy or his colleagues were perfect, but the gov-ernment of Ontario was today held up as a pattern, and a model by from the avowed leadership of Tampolitical friends and opponents all many Hall, Richard Croker has reclaimed his own, and that tonight deserved very summary treatment on ance committee of the organization. inces they would be pleased to have half as good a government. If the government had held the reins of office for 27 years, and in that time had not incurred one single cent of public debt, and not been found guilty of any wrong-doing, that was seven and twenty excellent reasons for keeping them in power a good many years longer. He had been at some pains to examine into the matter of what was said against the government; he had examined the diatribes of Mr. St. John on political othics and great practical inconvenience of holding man responsible on the floor of the house for what he said in the country; he had noticed the lucubra-tions of Mr. St. John as to diseases to which hogs were subject and the inconvenience to which young piglings were subjected when deprived of their share of nourishment out of the public crib; the essays of Dr. Ryerson on anything and everything; but up to the present but one charge was proved, one that Mr. Hardy could not deny, that of being in power for 27 years, and this was 27 reasons for continuing them there. He was reminded of the divine, who, after partaking of a dish of straw- ginnings of what is commonly known berries, said, "Providence, in its wisdom, might have made a better berry, but Providence never did." He was free to say that in the abstract he could con ceive a better government, but he did not know where to find it, and of one thing he was sure, that it was not going to be found in the ranks of her Majesty's loyal opposition for Ontario. THE TIDE OF VICTORY. Since June 23 the tide of Liberal victory has gone on without break. The government's majority had increased 22 to something like 47. Since that time they had faced their foes on many occasions and had always been victorious. In Prince Edward Island they beat them in the ratio of two to one; in the sister province of Nova Scotia, the home of the Tuppers, be it remembered, he was creditably informed that it was the intention of the government to introduce an alteration of the rules of parliament in order to enable the present opposition to call for a division when they desired. The rule of parliament was that it required five to get a division. The opposition consisted of one leader, one private and one Tupperonian, and there were difficulties in obtaining a division unless the government lent them one of their supporters. Of Quebec he said that he would not speak. There were circumstances which might well call for a defeat on the part of the Liberals, but all knew how completely their political friends were overthrown. Could it be possible, he asked, that the great Liberal province of Ontario would be the first to check the tide of Liberal victory? (Cries of "No!") He could not think it, and if it were so all he could say was that the province of Ontario would show itself extremely ungrateful, to say the least of it, to the men who during the last quarter of a century had maintained an unblemished record in every sense, and who, if entrusted again with the reins of power would continue to pursue the same cour of good conduct that had disting them during all that period. The hollowness of the opposition policy, or lack of policy, was shown, and how the lion-like roar of the Conservatives in the country had been changed to a denial in the house of the words attributed to them by their own journalistic friends. His praise of the excellent candidates coming forward for the first time to carry the standard of Liberalism in the campaign—not a few of them of historic name—was a graceful tribute to companions in arms, and Sectarian Appeals Retained for the Opposition Canvass.

The Toronto Globe, referring to the hide-and-seek policy pursued by the Ontario Conservatives in the present campaign, says:

"For the first time in many years there is no sectarian issue in an On-tario election. We ought not to forget that this is a splendid vindication of the policy of the Ontario Government. Every valuable point, every point supposed to be valuable, has been carefully searched by its opponents. It was charged with appointing too many Catholics to public office, it was charged with neglecting Catholics. It was charged with strengthening the separate school law. It was charged with constructing a part of the ceiling of the Legislative Chamber in the form of a cross. It was charged with mutilating the Bible in collusion with the late Archbishop Lynch. It was fact. charged with giving too much money to Catholic hospitals. Mr. Whitney was once among the assailants of the Government on this very ground. By his silence now he simply says, 'All these years the Liberal Government of Ontario has been right on those ques-

That is true. Mr. Whitney now publicly is silent on many questions that formerly he and his friends raised a big row about. Let his attitude not misunderstood, however. The open ectarian cries were adopted because it was believed that the Opposition would profit by them. They hoped to excite enough prejudice to secure the defeat of the Liberal Administration. They failed, though we all know that they profited by the onslaught. Now the edict has gone forth to the Opposition workers, "Follow the example of your leader. Talk in glittering generalities on the platform. Claim the Government is extravagant. Say it has been too long in power. Say anything, but don't refer to past Conservative platforms. Imitate Mr. Whitney. Tell the electors that you have no policy now, but will get one if Mr. Whitney succeeds. Then suit your private canvass to the man you meet. If he is a Catholic, say you are in favor of separate schools, and that the attack made on the Ontario Government by your party at last election was not made in earnest. If he is an Orangeman, tell him that as soon as separate schools of Ontario will be the line of tactics to be put by the the board of managers, which was pub-Opposition managers in the canvas now entered on. A Distinguished Englishman's

Those people who say they are protectionists only because the people of other nations are, and would be ready to indorse trade freedom if foreigners did so too, will be especially interested to know that free trade already obtains in a third to a half of the world. Sir Robert Giffen pointed this out in a recent speech at Stoke, England. He said that the bulk of the industry of the world is carried on under free trade condition, i. e., each country is free trading internally within its own borders, even where there are conditions similar to those which would exist if there were unrestricted competition with all the world. Protectionists had not the courage of their convictions, he went on, for they would not set up tariff lines within a particular political area, although all the economic conditions were present which they plead as excusing such tariffs. The tariffs of the leading countries of the world still showed the marks of the great step which Great Britain took in 1860; there were none of the astonishing perversities and absurdities of the pre-Cobden period. Very noticeable in Germany and the United States was the growth of conditions such as those which existed in Britain when it became free trading. They were becoming great manufacturing states, as were most modern nations; such countries, so far as Europe was concerned, needed cheap food and raw materials, though they tried to prohibit their Importation by duties for the benefit of agriculturists. "But the game is plainly a lesing one, as they are finding out (what Britain found out long ago) that protection of this sort does not protect." As for the United States, it must very soon become nolens volens a country of international free trade. There was no question there of protection to agriculture, and the industries were growing independent of protection. No industry, Sir Robert declared, could live in the present age if it was not able to face the most unrestricted competition. Altogether he thought that the outlook for universal free trade was very bright. This view is combatted by protectionist advocates, but it is that of the most distinguished independent investigator of trade and commerce results in the British Empire.

St. Andrew's Church to Spend $18,000, in Building Improvements.

Managers and Committee's Reports Adopted Without Material Change.

Rev. Robt. Johnston Declines an Increase of Salary on Account of the Present Burdens of the Church-Officers Elected.

A large representation of the congreof St. Andrew's Preshyterian Church gathered in that edifice last abolished." Such, we are informed, is night to consider the annual report of lished in Monday's Advertiser, and also be anything to get into power. They mittee on church extension and improvement.

There was some discussion on the managers' report, but chiefly on a motion by Mr. George Anderson to limit the expenditure of the choir to $800. Mr. James Tytler could not understand where and how the choir got away with $995, and wanted the $400 in the estimates for the coming year struck out. The church had raised $100 more last year than in 1896, and had borrowed $991. They had been promised better singing, and it got worse and worse, Mr. Tytler continued. Mr. James Mills, in seconding Mr. Anderson's motion, said: "It's all right, but I know it will be voted down."

The motion was defeated. The managers' report was adopted as read, without further objection. The session clerk's report congratulated the congregation upon advances made, but the spiritual life of the church was below what they desired to see it. The prosperity of all the church organizations, the success of the work in the Sunday school, and the liberality of the members were all causes for great thanksgiving. Reference was made to the handsome collection of $1,400 toward the Indian famine fund. The establishment of the flourishing Pottersburg church under Rev. George Gilmore, was a branch of church work by St. Andrew's that strengthened the parent stem. A fitting reference was made to the death of the late Dr. Gardiner, senior member of the session. By his demise the church had sustained a serious loss. The session was pleased to again have the assistance of Mr. C. R. Somerville, the clerk, who had for some time been confined to his home by serious illness. The appended report showed the total membership on Dec. 31, 1896, to be 821. During the year 26 had joined the church by profession of faith and 54 by certificate-80 in all, making a total membership now of 901. Twelve members of the congregation had been removed by death and 16 by certificate; placed on a separate roll, 29. This list is of persons whose business will not permit of their regular attendance. The number removed without certificate was 42, making a total of 70 removed. and reducing the total membership on Dec. 31, 1897, to 831. The baptisms during the year were 26, 3 adults and 22

The following deaths have taken place in the congregation during the year: Jan. 21, Helen Loveless, aged 7 weeks; Feb. 2, Charlotte McGill, aged 29 years; March 8, Mrs. James McIntosh, aged 73 years; March 9, Mrs. Anthony Smith, aged 37, and Mrs. George Nichol, aged 86 years; April 18, Mrs. Robert Scott, 74 years; April 26, Miss Catharine McIntosh, 78 years; July 3, Mr. Hugh McKay, aged 49 years; July 12, Annie McNeil Cooper, aged 17 months; July 9, Mrs. James McDonald, aged 73; Aug. 12, Alfred Thomas Duff, aged 4 months; Aug. 14, Mr. Wm. The report of the committee on church improvements was as fellows: "Your committee having considered But in India an inventor has contrived and the work carried on, and that a some machines with which more varied results are accomplished. One of sufficient; and that therefore a new inclined floor should replace the present one, the gallery should be proved, and more exits provided for the church, which, with the necessary changes, will cost about $5,000. 3. They therefore recommend that the congregation authorize the raising of $18,000, to be spent thus: For new school building and church officer's house, $9,000; for church renovation, $5,000; to pay present congregational indebtedness, $4,000. They further remany years. And it is eminently in commend that subscriptions be at once secured, and that no work be commenced until an amount sufficient to cover the cost of the Sabbath school building be subscribed; that the Sabbath school building be the first work undertaken, and that the church improvement be then proceeded with." Mr. John Ferguson and Mr. James Mills moved the adoption of the re-

> Mr. Merchant said the report had been printed to save discussion. Sunday school was unsuited to the work carried on there, as the classes were so huddled together that teachers interfered with one another. Little children had been forced into furnace rooms where the temperature was 80 or 90 degrees, and coming out had caught cold. Others sat in rooms where there was no heat whatever. He supported the suggestion made by some members to have the caretaker on the grounds all the time after the renovations and the new Sunday school were completed. People forgot the importance of the Sunday school and that of every six members who joined the church five were from the Sunday school. The new building would meet all demands made on it for years to come. The floor of the church was in bad shape and the seats uncomfortable. The gallery was ab-solutely unsafe. Should it be crowded at any time, and the cry of "fire" raised, the exits were so limited that life would probably be lost in the struggle to get out. It was an unjust thing to saddle the congregation with an additional debt of $18,000, and for this reason $9,000 would be raised before the work was commenced. Mr. Purdom moved an amendment to the last clause of the report to raise the second $9,000 by placing a mortgage on the new school if necessary. This carried. Rev. Mr. Johnston said zeal, harmony and unity were the three es-sentials to the success of the undertaking, which he thought would go ahead at once.

Mr. Merchant said the object in completing the Sunday school first was to provide a place to worship in while the repairs to the church were being made

Mr. Frank Love moved to increase Mr. Johnston's salary by $500, making it $2,800. He eulogized Mr. Johnston, whose reputation, he said, was now becoming continental, and said the congregation should to some degree recognize the great pecuniary sacrifices their pastor had made during the year, refusing several tempting calls that erative than his present charge. Mr. G. A. McGillvray seconded.

Mr. Johnston vacated the chair to Mr. Houston, and in a short and pointed address thanked the congregation for their appreciation. He modestly declined to accept an increase of salary, more especially as the managers had not considered it, and because the additional burdens the church had just assumed would render it difficult for a time to meet the financial demands made upon the treasury. He could not accept an increase, if it were $200 instead of $500. It would be impossible to carry on his present work much longer the way he was doing it now. He would soon have to have a secre-tary and a horse, neither of which the congregation could afford just now. He had refused some calls, much better from a financial point of view than his present one. St. Andrew's did not BILIOUSNESS pay so much as most congregations its size in Canada paid, but the church was doing its best. So long as his efforts met with success he would stay with St. Andrew's. The question of salary was a minor matter. DAYS

RULING PRICES FOR THE PAST FOUR

Inspector Millar's report was very interesting. He had made 128 visits to 34 factories in his district, and spent most of the time giving instructions. The best percentage of butterfat yield-ed by test was 4.6; the poorest 1.02. Four samples gave between 1 and 2 per cent; 46 between 2 and 3; 575 beper cent; 46 between 2 and 3; 575 between 3 and 4 per cent, and 46 between 4 and 5 per cent. He hoped the day would come when cheesemakers would pay for milk according to the quality. Eight makers were fined for tampering with milk and were fined $5 and costs each. He regretted the fines were not larger. He urged the apwere not larger. He urged the appointment of more inspectors, so that they could spend more time in the factories and less in traveling. Mr. Millar was asked numerous ques-In reply to one he said that mouldy cheese was caused by too much moisture in the cheese or by improper ventilation of the curing room. In another Mr. Millar said the best

In all the factories the whey was returned in the milk cans, many of which were kept in improper condition. In the milk tests, 6 samples showed between 2 and 2.50 per cent of butterfat, 18 samples from 2.50 to seed yielded an average of ten por 3 per cent, 65 samples between 3 and 3.50 per cent, 24 between 3.50 and 4 per cent, and 17 over 4 per cent. Inspector Clark had inspected 39 factories, of which 2 were very clean, 11 clean, 19 fairly clean, 4 dirty and 3 very dirty. If a man was not clean in his habits or work he should have no place in a cheese factory. (Applause.) Prof. Robertson was received with applause. Perfection, it was said, was attention to small matters, and the speaker urged attention to small mat-ters if Canada was to hold her place in the British market. As an instance of this, in the stables of Sweden those who did the milking first put on a long frock, and, with a moist cloth, washed the belly of the cow, to prevent dust or dirt from falling. This small pre-caution had made an appreciable difference in the quality of Swedish butter, which was the keenest competitor of Canada in the British markets. The quality of Canadian cheese and butter was usually good when it started for the market, and cold storage was being provided so as to enable those goods to reach the market in the same condition as when they started. Prof. greatly helped anyone who really depreciation through failure to market them in first-class shape. In 1898 the branding of Canadian cheese would be compulsory.

Mr. Derbyshire said the milk should be separated at a temperature of not less than 100 degrees, or it might sour. Miss Rose, superintendent of the home dairy school at the Guelph college, gave a pleasing address. Miss Rose said she had spent the summers of 1895-6 in England, and the most of last summer she was in Oxfordshire, in perhaps the richest dairying district in England. The English were slow, but they were very sure, and got more real enjoyment out of life than the hard-working Canadians. We might well working Canadians. We might well take a lesson from the English in beautifying our homes. Miss Rose described entertainingly her visits to several English dairies. The processes that she saw were rather antiquated. The pignens were invariably poon the dairies. pens were invariably near the dairies, and the people seemed not to realize tee was appoint to report tomorrow morning for the officers: Robert John-ston S. G. Kitchen, G. Woodham, English did not make as good butter as Canadians, but they made better bread. Miss Rose invited the wives and daughters of dairymen to take a course at the Guelph college.

The president read a letter from Hon. Sidney Fisher, Dominion minister of agriculture, regretting his inability to attend the convention. The president said that the unavoidable absence of Mr. Fisher and Mr. Dryden was Mr. C. C. Janes, deputy minister of agriculture, made a practical address. He alluded to the fact that the gold discoveries in the Klondike which were expected to yield $10,000,000 next year, had set the world on fire, and way to dispose of the whey was to feed it at the factory and not return to the wealth of this country many to the wealth of this country many times the value that would be added which were not cleaned out more than once or twice in a season. He had found 9 in Canada's, so that it was within the per acre to the Canadian yield, which would mean $4,000,000. As a test, they seed yielded an average of ten per cent more than the inferior seed. Mr. James said that if proper spraying had been done last year the apple crop of province would have been increased in value $1,000,000. There was no reason why each tree should not be worth more than $1 or $2 instead of 50 or 60 cents. In the United States the poultry crop last year was six times the value of the gold crop. By a better selection of grain, better stock, better care of stock, and by more attention to orchards, to their poultry, milch cows, etc.-if by all these means each farmer could add only $100 to the value of his output, the addition to the wealth of the province would be $20,000,000. The convention adjourned until the CHEESE AND BUTTER MAKERS MEET.

Before the evening session a meeting of cheese and butter makers was held at the Richmond House, to consider certain grievances. Messrs. Edgar, of Culloden; Kennedy, of Aylmer; Brooke, of Ingersoll, and Mc-Adam, of London, were apopinted to interview all the cheese and butter makers possible. A meeting will be held today (Thursday) at the Grigg House and an endeavor will be made to occapize the makers with a view to organize the makers, with a view to rectifying the present grievances and securing an inspector, attached to the organization and responsible to the association. The complaint is that buyers having purchased cheese on the market, sometimes refuse to take cheese off the makers' hands except at a reduction in price, claiming that it is not up to the standard.

THURSDAY MORNING. The second day of the annual convention of the Butter and Cheese Association of Western Ontario found an increase of about 50 members in attendance at the opera house. The convention is perhaps the largest in the vention is perhaps the largest in the association's history. The morning session opened at 9:30 o'clock with a discussion on the reports submitted yesterday afternoon by Instructors Millar, Morrison and Clarke. Questions pertaining to the difficulties met with by the makers, patrons and buyers came from all parts of the house, and came from all parts of the house, and were ably and satisfactorily answered by the instructors.

Mr. R. Ballantyne, a cheese dealer, Stratford, thought that there was not as much reason for being pleased with the instructors' work as there might be, because of the desire of the in-structors to be well thought of. When they found a dirty cheesemaker they falled to "get on his neck," and there-fore did not do him any good. He believed, however, that the instructors

He then pointed out that dryness, sunlight and temperature over 100 and under 145 degrees Fahrenheit tended to check with germs. There are desirable and undesirable forms of bacteria—the former which work for a good quality of butter and cheese, and the latter producing deleterious effects. The speaker believed that the tendency in the ordinary factory practice was to a greater multiplicity of the undesirable forms than the desirable forms, a change which was evidenced in the fact that it was now much more difficult to make a uniform quality of but-ter and cheese than before dairying came general. As he concluded his address Dr. Cornell was warmly ap-

Mr. J. A. Ruddick, head of the Kingston dairy school, and the maker of the big cheese which was exhibited at the World's Fair, was the next speaker. The subject of his paper was "Cheese Curing Experiments," and from the standpoint of a practical cheesemaker he dealt largely with ome of the questions spoken of by Dr. Cornell. He held that a large saving could be made by preventing bad flavors from being developed in bad temperatures, which result from imperfect insulation and ventilation. A great majority of the curing rooms were much too dry. It was a waste of time, labor and money to attempt to control the temperature of the ordinary curing room by the use of ice; however, as they were not properly insulated. He estimated that the average curing room could be properly lined and fitted up for $271 80. Mr. Ruddick said that for a basement curing room a gement floor properly made ing room a cement floor properly made was the best.

If a Chinaman, usually regarded by us as a barbarian, can live to a healthy, hale old age, why cannot Americans, with their more advanced civilization, do the same? The reporters discovered during Li Hung Chang's stay in this country, that he took every thought for his health. He lived upon the simplest of diets and never passed a day without consulting his physician. He limited his toil to a reasonable number of hours, and would not deviate from his rule in this matter. American men follow just the opposite practice. They work to the limit of endurance, will not even take the proper time for eating, resting and sleeping, and never think of their health until it is gone. There is a wonderful medicine for hard-working men. It is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It takes the place of a physician. It keeps away ill-health and restores health when it is lost. It is the great appetite sharpener, blood-maker and flesh-builder. It makes the digestion perfect, the liver active and the blood pure and rich. Medicine dealers sell it.

Will Take the Cloud Route to the Klondike.

The U.S. Government Relief Expedition-Norwegians for the Gold Region.

San Francisco, Jan. 20.-C. W. Vosmer is planning to go to the Klondike by balloon. He proposes to use the big balloon made for the Chicago World's Fair, where it was held captive, and he will be accompanied by three experienced aeronauts. Portland, Ore., Jan. 20.-It is now proposed to start the government Yukon relief expedition from here on the steamer George W. Elder, which sails for Skaguay on Feb. 1. Major Jacobs, of Vancouver barracks, has engaged transportation on the Edder of the Indian Color This color of the Indian Color transportation on the Elder for 86 men, tons of supplies and 30 mules. The remainder of the mules will not be shipped until a week later. Washington, D. C., Jan. 20. - Dr. Jackson has cabled the war department from Norway that he has secured the services of 125 natives to drive the reindeer on the Klondike relief expedition. The United States war department expects to have the Klondike relief provisions alt Skaguay some time during the present month. If the steam sleds are a success they will be used. If not, the reindeer will be used. There is no doubt that there are provisions enough to last until the 1st of April. The pinch is going to be from that time until navigation opens, probably the last of June.

The Corona, which brought 20 passengers from Dawson City to Victoria, was the richest ship that has arrived yet laden with Klondike money, the 20 people having close to a million dollars in dust and drafts divided among them. One of the party was Lou Keller, a girl of 18, the second woman who has crossed the trail this season.

THE BOYCOTT IN DENVER.

Departmental Stores and Newspapers Clash-The Press on Top.

Denver, Jan. 20.-The boycott of the newspapers of Denver, begun ten days ago by fourteen departmental stores, was ended last night by the unconditional surrender of the stores. The stores made the demand that the papers reduce their advertising rates 30 ting the wood and $1 50 for cutting and per cent, or they would cease to advertise. The fight has stirred up the community greatly, the result being that the stores were almost forsaken by buyers, and the proprietors had to surrender or go out of the business. Labor unions have held meeting after meeting to contrive plans to spread the agitation and keep the people away from the departmental stores. At a late hour last night the newspaper offices were visited by a representative from each store. They acknowledged that they were beaten, and would resume their advertising contracts as soon as arrangements could be made.

Dr. Tweedle, the Conservative candidate for South Norfolk, has retired, and Mr. William Charlton has now no opponent.

The executive of the Young Liberal Club has made arrangements to tender Hon. A. S. "It was as I seemed to pass weeping from the cell that my husband, by a great effort, kept the attention of the men engrossed by describing and illustrating very elaborately the breaking of the window through which the murderer had passed into Abbotsmoor. Then, after a few minutes, a sudden recollection struck him, and he turned sharply round.

'Of course, you are watching,' he said, suspiciously, to one of the men. 'Of course,' was the answer,'though the man's eyes could not have done double duty. T've seen her pass backward and forward two or three times, but she is back to the cell now, and you had better go, for her time is up.' "They watched my husband pass into the cell and then lead me out, crying still. They watched him help me to my seat in the dog-cart and give me reins, and asked me if I feared to go alone. They all spoke kindly to me, and stood to watch me drive away -alone-as'I had come.

"And so the tale was told next day by others who had seen me. I had driven away alone, as I had come. CHAPTER XXXV.

For a few minutes after Royden had finished reading, he sat like one in a dream; then he slowly rose, and folding the two papers, placed them carefully in the breast pocket of the coat which he had worn all night over his evening dress. Then buttoning it, to guard as safely as he could the precious documents, he went softly into the farther room, and looking down for the last time upon the dead face, gave one backward glance along the marred life whose secrets had now been dis-

A step in the outer room aroused him; gently laying the sheet back over the worn, calm face, he went out to meet the woman who was now at liberty to take his place. A few minutes they talked there; and Royden waited, as if his time were of little value. But when all had been said and he had left the gloomy house, he glanced up at the dial on St. Paul's and hailed a passing hansom, as if his life depended upon speed.

True, it was possible to reach the Towers more readily by taking a bridle-path, which he had daringly taken once before, even though for several miles it ran between the sea and the cliffs, and was covered at high water. But then to walk this distance was impossible, with the tide upon the flow, and he had no

It was within this man's power; and an hour after the London train had passed on its way northward, Royden rode from the old farm where he had the cell, there had been one time when master had never hoped to sell so promptly bought a horse, which its their severest test, while a female fig- and strong, and fresh from the stable; ure weeping bitterly, had passed out and Royden had mounted with a piea-

The master of the farm as well as his oid father, urged Mr. Keith not to attempt to ride. The tide was treacherous, they said, and the distance across the bay much greater than it seemed. I feel that after my death horse when he saw one, there was no doubt about that and they had guessed at once that he must be Mr. Keith. He was just what they fancied the Squire of Westleigh Towers. "But," said the elder man, as they

But the horse that he had purchased was fresh and fleet, and the flood-tide two hours distant yet. Sitting straight and firm in his saddle, his fingers tight upon the rein, Royden galloped along the narrow and uneven path, while the passengers he met looked after horse and rider wonderingly. Mysterious Death of a Huron County Farmer. Blyth, Ont., Jan. 20 .- The people of this section are aroused to a high pitch of interest over the death of James Brown, a young farmer of Hullett township, which took place on July 31, 1897. The event did not excite more than a local interest at the time, because it was thought the death was due to suicide. Recent incidents, however, have created unrest among the neighbors, and have led to the opening of an investigation by the attorney-general's department. Within the past week Chief Inspector Murray, of the criminal investigation department, has visited Blyth, and has interviewed many of those who might be supposed to know something of the circumstances. What the result of his inquiries have been is, of course, not known, but it is unlikely that the case will be allowed to rest until all speculation regarding it has been quieted. The opera house block at Barrie, Vt., was burned on Tuesday. It contained the postoffice, city clerk's office and two grocery stores.

Great Danger Threatens Our Most Popular Sport - Skating Rink Proprietors Up In Arms.

Graceful skaters skimming fleetly over the cice is a pleasing picture which, alas! has a reverse side, for thousands of cases of Hasty Consumption are traceable indirectly to this sport. The youth of both sexes, and often persons of riper years, congregate in large numbers in our rinks and skate until their bodies are exhausted, their blood overtheir bodies are exhausted, their blood overtheir bodies are exhausted, their blood overheated and perspiration is oozing from every pore. In this condition they sit down to rest or else walk slowly home; and what is the result? A chill, a check of perspiration, a cold which settles on the weakest part of the larynx, the bronchial tubes or their ramifications in the chest, and, lastly, a cough more or less racking and severe. Common sense dictates that the pores should be opened and the circulation of the blood equalized at once by a hot foot bath, with opened and the circulation of the blood equalized at once by a hot foot bath, with mustard or wood ashes in it, and the inflamed throat and air-passages soothed by a medicine combining healing, expectorant and tonic properties. Too often has the generosity of the kind-hearted been imposed upon by undeserving supplicants, with the result that many deserving ones are made to suffer because of the duplicity of those whose tale of woe lacks the essential element of truth. As it is next to impossible for the charitably disposed to judge correctly on the spur of the moment as to the veracity of be put to a test, and made to demonstrate his fitness to receive aid, and that is, if the public will but give the scheme their hearty support, as it is fully expected they will. Coupon books have been printed containing ten coupons, each representing an order for the cutting of one quarter cord of wood. When a beggar presents himself at the door, if there be a disposition to helping him, one or more of these coupons may be given him, as the case may deserve. He will have to take it to Secretary Sanders, at the city hall, who will give him an order on one of a dozen wood yards whose owners have kindly consented to cooperate with the society in this work, and on the completion of this task he will be given a certificate by the wood dealer, which, on presentation to Secprice paid for such labor. Thus he will be made to give honest labor for honest pay, and will be helping pauperized, as is the tendency of

These coupon books will be sold at $1 each, and may be had from Secretary Sanders or any of the members of the society. The difference between the cost of each coupon to the purchaser, viz., 10 cents, and its value to the applicant about 20 cents, will be well spent in supplying work to the worthy poor and ridding the community of a class of men who will not work so long as they can secure cash or orders for meals by the depraving process of false representation. I sincerely hope that the public will take hold of this scheme in a hearty spirit, and thus lend a helping hand in the laudable endeavor to discriminate between the unworthy and the worthy seekers after aid, and dispense help that will uplift instead of degrade the recipient. By giving a coupon costing 10 cents, the applicant is assisted to the amount of 20 cents. In this connection I would again take
