Joseph Gray Honorably Acquitted; Burton Case Thrown Out of Court*Taken Away From the Jury by Justice Teetzel—The Evidence.

The Burton assault case with all its conflicting evidence and obnoxious details is at an end.

The case never went to the jury, Joseph Gray, the defendant, being honorably acquitted by Mr. Justice Teetzel, who is presiding at the assizes.

The evidence of a large number of witnesses was heard yesterday, and it was thought that the counsel's addresses to the jury would begin early this morning.

When court reopened this morning, however, his lordship stated that he did not think a case had been proven against the accused, and he could therefore see no reason why the jury should consider it further.

"Are you content that this man should be acquitted?" he asked the jury.

"We are," was the unanimous reply. And another criminal case which, according to developments, should never have reached the high court of justice, had gone into the annals of London court history.

The case for the defense was conducted by Mr. E. Meredith, K. C., Mayor Judd and Mr. R. M. C. Toth. The Osborne vs. Rolling Mills case is being argued this morning.

James R. Osborne, a former employee of the London Rolling Mills Company, is suing to recover $5,000 damages for the loss of an eye.

The evidence in the Burton case monopolized the entire attention of the assizes yesterday, and when court adjourned at 6 o'clock last evening the jury had not been addressed by either counsel, although all dressed by the exception of the witnesses, with the exception of the

London Stands Second on the List
In Population Increase for the Year*Amounted to About Seven Per Cent—Erroneous Figures Prepared in Woodstock.

A table prepared by the Woodstock Sentinel Review purports to show the percentage of increase in population of London and several other cities.

As a matter of fact, it only shows that the figuring is all wrong. The table states that London's increase for the year was 3.60 per cent, but the fact is the increase was about 7. It is easy enough to figure out. London's population of last year was 44,704. This year it is 47,759, an increase of 3,055 per cent, or a jump of about 7.

Erroneous Statement.

The Terrible Effects of Poison Ivy

One of the worst cases of ivy poisoning that has come to the notice of local physicians in many years is that of Mr. Henry Taylor, a well-known resident of Watford, who is at present in Victoria Hospital suffering from the effects of the poison.

Mr. Taylor became poisoned last week while on a little pleasure outing down near Lake Huron. He does not know just when he touched the ivy.

As in the course of a long walk along the shores of the lake he handled a number of different plants, one of which, it seems, must have been poison ivy.

It will take several days more before the disease will have developed fully, but everything is being done to check it and alleviate Mr. Taylor's pain. Dr. C. S. Moore has charge of the case.

Nothing for Publication Re McGuigan,
So Says Manager Hays of the G.T.R.*Negotiations With London Are Still Pigeon-Holed—Work on Tunnel.

Mr. Charles M. Hays, manager of the Grand Trunk Railway, in his handsome private car "Canada," passed through this city this morning, accompanied by Mr. Smithers, first vice-president; Mr. FitzHugh, third vice-president; Superintendent Brownlee and Gillen; Mr. Loud, manager of freight traffic; and Mr. Kelly, chief engineer.

"We have been inspecting the work going on at the tunnel," said Mr. Hays to The Advertiser, "and in the course of a few weeks will have a complete electrical outfit installed."

There is nothing for publication regarding the McGuigan case, as we have every reason to be satisfied with what we have seen, and are confident that traffic will be greatly expedited.

Nothing Re Negotiations.

"I can tell you nothing in regard to reopening negotiations with the city of London. We have completed a great work in eliminating the grade west of here, and the results are proving most satisfactory. It is likely that our attention will be occupied in the east end for some time now, as we are contemplating a number of changes there."

"There is nothing for publication regarding Mr. McGuigan just yet," said Mr. Hays.

The party spent nearly an hour going through the car shops and inspecting the new work in connection with it. All expressed themselves as well pleased with the work.

The Tigers Must Win Today

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Local enthusiasts and the 2,000 or more partisans of the Detroit team who came here to watch their favorites struggle for the baseball championship this morning anxiously studied the weather situation. The local Government forecast had promised fair and cool weather for the game.

Prophesies as to the batteries were vague. It is thought Reulbach will pitch for Chicago. Kling is certain to be behind the plate for the locals; his accurate throwing and good stickwork was of material assistance to his team in yesterday's victory.

Manager Jennings, of Detroit, is likely to send Siever into the box for the third game. The fact that Chicago now has a lead of one game has made him more determined than ever to return to Detroit on even terms. The catching department is worrying Jennings more than any other one thing. Schmidt and Payne have been tried and found wanting. Whether one of the men will again don mask and chest protector in the series, or whether Archer will be given an opportunity to show his worth has not been determined.

Thus far in the series the local team has shown a slight advantage over their opponents in fielding, while the hitting has been practically equal. Chicago's errors total five for the two games, but four of these came in the first game, and one of them was due to Evers' unfamiliarity with the short field, to which position he was moved when Tinker was taken out to allow a stronger batsman to hit for him. Detroit has made four errors in the two games, two in each contest. Each team has secured 18 hits. The preponderance of runs is, of course, in Chicago's favor, the locals have scored 6 times to their opponents' 4.

Today's probable batting order: Chicago—Slagle, c.f.; Sheppard, l.f.; Chance, 1b.; Steinfeldt, 2b.; Kling, c.; Evers, 2b.; Schulte, r.f.; Tinker, s.; Reulbach or Lundgren, p. Detroit—Jones, l.f.; Schaefer, 2b.; Crawford, c.f.; Cobb, r.f.; Rossman, 1b.; Coughlin, 3b.; Schmidt or Payne, c.; O'Leary, s.; Siever or Donovan, p. Umpires—O'Day and Sheridan.

As on the two previous days the throngs of would-be spectators began early to move towards the field of battle. The atmosphere, which was cold early in the day, gradually became more like baseball weather. The warmth of the sun was felt, but a west wind made light overcoats comfortable.

RIOTER SENTENCEDConviction in Vancouver Court—Aftermath of Japanese Troubles.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 9.—William Reed, formerly a British soldier, first of the nine rioters, was yesterday found guilty by a jury and sentenced to six months by Justice Clement. There was a crowded courtroom. Reed was throwing rocks through windows.

ARGUMENT WAS RATHER LIVELY*In the Case of Osborne vs. the London Rolling Mills Company.

While the case of Osborne vs. London Rolling Mills Company, which is being argued today before Mr. Justice Teetzel, at the assizes, is in itself not so interesting from a spectator's standpoint as some of the other cases which have come up at the big court, the battle between the two attorneys, Mr. Geo. C. Gibbons, K. C., for the plaintiff, and Mr. T. G. Meredith for the defense, is a most interesting one and the court room was well filled all day.

The action is one for $5,000 damages for the loss of an eye.

Trouble began as soon as the first witness, James Osborne, the plaintiff, took the stand, and began to give evidence which had not been brought out at the examination.

"Your lordship," began Mr. Meredith, "if you are going to allow this evidence I must have time to meet it. I would suggest an adjournment until tomorrow at least."

"They've had plenty of time to meet our testimony," exclaimed Mr. Gibbons, "and I seriously object to any postponement whatever."

The witness had not been talking two moments before the argument began.

By the time it had been concluded it was time for dinner and an adjournment was taken until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

MUST STAY AWAY
FROM HIS WIFE*Frederick Phillip Appears in Police Court and Is Given Walking Papers.

Frederick Phillips, of Hill street, was all alone in the limelight at the police court this morning in that he was the only case heard.

There was another case on the books but as the man was too drunk to appear Phillips had the stage—or rather the cage—altogether to himself.

Phillips was charged with being drunk, and admitted that he had been. Mrs. Phillips complained that when he came home he had called her a number of names that were anything but endearing. She also said that he was not in the best of temper, and Magistrate Love, in order to free her from being embarrassed by such a man in the future, told Phillips that if he would agree to stay away from Mrs. Phillips' house and pay her a certain sum every two weeks, he would not be sentenced; otherwise, he would be disposed of right away.

Phillips agreed to all these provisions and was told that he might go down and get his clothes this afternoon if he took a witness with him.

He said he would, and was bailed in the sum of $100 to appear again for sentence on Oct. 30, when, if he has kept his agreement, he will be allowed to go.

Copenhagen, Oct. 10.—The Arctic steamer Frithjoff, which accompanied the Wellmann-Chicago Record Herald expedition to Spitzbergen, was lost off Cape Langesund, Iceland, Oct. 5. The captain and fifteen of her crew drowned. The engineer clung to a plank, on which he was found.

The Frithjoff was homeward bound to Norway, having been damaged by ice and consequently was unable to withstand a storm which she encountered off Cape Langesund.

DEATH OF PIONEER
LADY OF LONDON*Mrs. Lucilla Taylor Passes Away
at the Home of Her Daughter.

The death took place yesterday at the residence of Mr. John Bowman, 625 Wellington street, of Mrs. Lucetta Taylor, a pioneer resident of this city, and mother of Mrs. Bowman.

Mrs. Taylor was a daughter of the late Jacob Manning, and was born in Lacolle, Quebec, in 1820. When she was a girl of 14 her parents moved to where the village of Belmont now stands. At that time London was a mere hamlet. In 1850 she was married to the late Henry L. Taylor, who died in 1875.

One of the early pioneers of the country, she saw its gradual changes from the wilderness to a richly cultivated country and prosperous villages and cities.

She is survived by her only child, Alicia E. Bowman, wife of Mr. John Bowman, who, with her grandchildren, mourn her loss. She will be buried at Mount Pleasant Cemetery on Friday afternoon. She was one of the best of those heroic souls who toiled and endured the hardships of the early days, and by her ministry to others won the affection of a host of friends.

Toronto, Oct. 10.—With harmony of purpose to settle the difficulty the board of conciliation investigating the trouble between the C. P. R. and their operators was again in session this morning, and will meet again this afternoon. The outlook in the words of Prof. Shortt, the chairman, was very hopeful but not certain. A number of concessions were made by both the company and their employees, with the result that the parties came nearer a settlement than ever before. If there is a unanimous agreement, the information will be made public here, but if the commissioners divide, the findings go to Ottawa.

London Man Found Dead in Cellar;
All Gas Jets Were Turned on Full*George Currell Apparently a Suicide While Despondent.

George Currell, a well-known resident of this city, aged 53 years, was found dead in the cellar of his home at 182 Horton street last night.

Currell, since the death of his wife, had been living alone, and, as he had been very despondent of late, there seems little doubt that the unfortunate man committed suicide to end his troubles.

All day yesterday there was a strong smell of gas in the neighborhood, and in the evening it became so strong that the neighbors investigated, and when they found that it was coming from Mr. Currell's house, notified the police. Sergeant Monaghan and P. C. Lucas went to the place. The policemen were almost overcome by the gas in the yard, but on raising the windows were forced to retreat, so full was the house of gas.

Body in the Cellar.

After a little while, however, they were able to get into the rooms and turn off a number of gas jets, which had been turned on full. In the cellar they found another gas jet open, and after turning it off groped about in the darkness and succeeded in finding the body of Currell. Coroner MacLaren was at once notified and after viewing the remains had them removed to the undertaking parlors of Smith, Son & Clarke.

Was an Old Resident.

The late George Currell was 53 years of age, and had resided in London practically all his life. For many years he and his wife kept a restaurant on Richmond street. About three years ago they sold the restaurant and since that time Currell has been doing odd jobs. He was intemperate in his habits, and when his wife died about a month ago became very despondent.

He is survived by two sons, neither of whom are at present in the city, and one sister, Mrs. Fields, of York street.

When seen by The Advertiser this morning Mrs. Fields had not heard of her brother's death, and his untimely end was a sad surprise to her.

Had Been Despondent.

"Mr. Currell spent Tuesday with me," she said, "and at that time was not at all well. He was also very despondent, saying that since his wife and some life was no longer worth living for him. He appeared to feel very bad and cried considerably at times. I told him to come and make his home with me and had fitted up a room for him in order that he might do so. In the afternoon he went out in the garden and remained there till nearly supper time digging potatoes. He complained of not feeling well at supper time, and ate very little. He said he would like to go out in the evening, but was afraid the police would get him as he declared they wanted to run him in. Later, however, he went down town, stating that he thought he would go to the show and perhaps it would cheer him up. I had intended to go down and see him yesterday, but I was too busy."

Coroner MacLaren, after investigating the matter thoroughly, decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

"I found no marks on the body and nothing to indicate that there had been foul play of any kind," said the doctor.

London Woman Seeks Detroit Divorce
Mrs. John Benenati Alleges Cruelty*Husband, She Says, Scarred Her Lips With a Red Hot Poker.

Pearl Benenati, a well-known young girl, who formerly lived in this city, told a pitiful story to Judge Brooke of the Wayne County (Michigan) court of Detroit yesterday, when she made application for a divorce from her husband, John Benenati, to whom she was married in 1904.

The wedding took place in London and from the girl's story, her life has been anything but a happy one.

Alleges Cruelty.

Her husband, she stated, had used her most cruelly, and had used inhuman means in his efforts to frighten her when she had threatened to prosecute him for his deeds.

Among other things that the girl says her husband did was to tie her up so that she was helpless and then pass red hot poker in front of her lips so close that the skin was scorched.

Naturally she was terrified, but he made her promise that she would say nothing to anyone about it.

Knife to Her Throat.

Another time, so the girl says, Benenati got a big knife and sharpened it until its edge was as keen as possible, then he passed the edge around her throat threatening to cut it.

Benenati is alleged to have done a number of other such stunts, and the unhappy pair finally agreed to separate.

Now Mrs. Benenati is seeking to free herself in the divorce courts.

Mrs. Benenati has a number of relatives living in this city at present.

Councilors Want Level Crossing
Where Grand Trunk Crosses Hale St.*Peculiar Motion Put and Carried by London Township Representative.

At a recent meeting of the London township council the question of what kind of a crossing should be placed by the Grand Trunk at the intersection of Hale and Trafalgar streets was considered.

The Grand Trunk was represented by Superintendent Gillen, Engineer Blacklock and Master of Bridges and Buildings Mitchell, who submitted plans of three methods of carrying the highway across the company's tracks at the point where Hale and Trafalgar streets meet.

After considerable discussion it was moved by Councillor John Gillson, seconded by Councillor S. F. Glass, that in the matter of the railway crossing at the intersection of Hale and Trafalgar streets it would be in the interests of the township to have a level crossing, providing that all obstructions to a full view of the tracks be removed by the railway to the satisfaction of the council.

It was moved in amendment to the above by Warden James H. Hodgins, that the council should not accept a level crossing at Hale and Trafalgar streets, and invited to attend.

The action of the council of London Township in deciding in favor of a level crossings for the G. T. R. at the intersections of Hale and Trafalgar streets, just east of the city, is likely to lead to an appeal to the railway commission.

A Serious Matter.

The action of the council of London Township in deciding in favor of a level crossings for the G. T. R. at the intersections of Hale and Trafalgar streets, just east of the city, is likely to lead to an appeal to the railway commission.

It was stated to The Advertiser today that this action of London Township Council is a bad blow to the arguments of farmers and others, who for many years have been appealing to the Government to abolish the deadly level crossing.

The council's action, it is alleged, will be the hands of the Dominion railway commission in a hundred places in Canada, unless it is repealed.

The Water Question.

A meeting will be held in Cronyn Hall this evening to discuss the water question. Among others who will speak are Sheriff Cameron, Dr. John D. Wilson and Dr. J. B. Campbell. Everyone interested in the question is invited to attend.

School Directress in Paris Arrested on Unusual Charge.

Paris, Oct. 9.—The unusual spectacle of a commissary of police, accompanied by three inspectors, making a raid on a girls' boarding school was the principal event in the French capital this week. The directress of the institution, which long has been regarded as a model of its kind, now is awaiting trial on a peculiar charge of fraud.

For years past it has been noticed that pupils of the school, passed the state examinations with remarkable facility, and secured the highest marks. Hence they were given the best positions open to women in the French civil service. The police have discovered the secret. Wherever possible, it one who was unfit to appear, had been examined and cross-examined. It was made painfully apparent before the case had proceeded any length that one side or the other was very much in error, as to dates, at least, for prosecution and defense were in direct contradiction to one another.

JOSEPH GRAY ACQUITTED

Mrs. Burton's Testimony.

Mrs. Burton, the complainant, testified that on the afternoon of July 8 last she had been assaulted by Joseph Gray, the defendant.

The defendant, she said, had been hauling wooden paving blocks for the city from Clarence street to the Dundas street dump in the rear of her house. He had given quarters to a man named Williamson, a former boarder of hers, with which to get a can of beer, and later the defendant and several of the men working on the dump had come into her woodshed and had drunk the beer out of some of her cups, which had been brought out by Williamson, whom she admitted had washed the dishes for her that afternoon. Last night the men departed with the exception of the defendant, who half dragged and half carried her to the front room, and in spite of her struggles, and the fact that she appeared to be at least 50 pounds heavier than himself, he carried her, after inserting a gag in her mouth.

The Cross-Examination.

After he had departed the witness had crawled across the room, abstracted a bottle from a dresser drawer, and crawling back to within a couple of feet of the outer door had thrown the bottle through the window of the door.

Mr. Meredith, in cross-examination, elicited the fact that the room in which the alleged assault took place was just off Dundas street, with a hearing distance of people passing. "When you were within a few feet of the door, why did you not open it and call for help instead of throwing the bottle through the window as you did?" he asked.

"I was too weak," was the reply. Two young lads, Percy Sullivan and Percy Merryless, testified to having heard the sound of the breaking glass and of having discovered Mrs. Burton lying on the floor with a gag in her mouth. Sullivan stated that when they rolled her over on her face the gag had dropped out on the floor. The gag consisted of a very dirty handkerchief. A string had been tied around her neck below the handkerchief in a very loose manner. Sullivan had cut the string with his jack-knife.

Other Witnesses.

The next two witnesses were John Osborne and James J. Macpherson, who swore to having been attracted by a crowd in front of the Burton house on the afternoon in question, and of having investigated and found the woman lying on the floor.

Ingram was positive that he had untied a string which he found tied around Mrs. Burton's neck. "Why, you just heard that little boy swear that he had cut the string from the woman's neck?" exclaimed Mr. Meredith. "Do you mean to say that he lied?"

"Yes, he lied," was the reply. Dr. E. Seaborn testified to having examined the complainant shortly after the alleged outrage. The witness admitted that it was possible for a person to sham excitability in such a manner as to deceive a physician.

The prosecution then called for Harry Williamson.

Witness Drunk.

"Your lordship, he is drunk," replied an attendant. "Bring him in until we see him," commanded his lordship.

Williamson was then brought in on the arms of two constables, and had to utilize all of their strength to hold him to his feet. Williamson was ordered placed in jail until the morning.

The Defendant.

The court room was hushed as the defendant took the stand as the first witness for the defense. He is a respectable-looking young man, and has borne a good reputation. He denied in toto all of Mrs. Burton's story in reference to the alleged assault, and stoutly maintained that he had never seen the complainant before the day in question, and that he had never set foot within her house. He was a teamster employed by the city to haul discarded paving blocks to the dump. On the afternoon of the alleged assault he had been called to the woodshed door of the Burton house by Harry Williamson, who asked him for the price of a can of beer, and suggested that he give Mrs. Burton and Mrs. Sullivan, who was also present, a load of the blocks for kindling wood.

Bought the Beer.

The witness had given Williamson 25 cents for the beer, and had replied that he would give Mrs. Burton the next load of blocks he hauled down to the dump. He then drove off for another load. Upon his return he found Williamson waiting for him with the can of beer. Witness, along with other workmen, was going to drink the liquor alongside of the wagon when Mrs. Burton called to them to come into her woodshed and drink it. They did so. Witness had taken one drink, and had then departed, never visiting the Burton home afterward. Mrs. Burton had, in his opinion, been in a state of intoxication.

After reaching his place of loading on Clarence street he had loaded up again and had driven toward his home. This was about 4:50. He had gone to the Britannia House at York and Wellington streets, and had had a drink or two. Just as he was leaving the place the whistles blew for 5 o'clock. Further on he had met a fellow teamster.

Was News to Him.

He arrived home about 6 o'clock, and did not hear of the alleged outrage until the next evening when he called up Detective Nickle and asked him if he was really charged with the offense as rumored. The detective replied that he was and requested him to report at a police court the next morning for a hearing.

Counsel Smith wanted to know if the prisoner could suggest any reason for Mrs. Burton bringing up such a serious charge if it were totally untrue.

"Go ahead and tell him," remarked Mr. Meredith.

Gray then went ahead and said that he had been informed by a certain man that a man fairly high up in street contracting matters had instigated a trumped-up charge in order to even up with the prisoner for some trouble the two had had one time. The same informant quoted Mrs. Burton as saying: "I sent the message and there was no money forthcoming. I shall have to swear Gray's life away."

"You had better bring the man up in court who told you that," suggested Judge Teetzel.

The Defense.

"I have known the prisoner for upwards of seven years," said Thomas Spence, a city street inspector, when placed in the box. "On the evening of July 8 Gray had left the job on Clarence street at about 4:45 or 4:50. Gray had not come to work the next morning."

"When teamsters are hired to work their own teams by the day they very often lay off," said Spence in conclusion.

Leon Macpherson, a young neighbor of Mrs. Burton, testified to having seen her shove some dark complexioned man into the rear door of her house early in the afternoon of July 8. She knew it was not the prisoner, and was positive she would know the man if she saw him. At 4:30 that day she had also seen the accused drive away toward the city. A few moments after 5 o'clock she had seen Mrs. Burton go out of the house with a water tap key in her hand.

Mrs. Burton at that time appeared to be drunk. So far as the witness knew Mrs. Burton bore a very unsavory reputation, and the witness had frequently heard the noise of drunken brawls at the Burton house from her boardinghouse a few doors away.

Testimony Corroborated.

John Morlin, a fellow teamster of Gray's, corroborated the previous testimony to the effect that Gray had left the Clarence street job around 5 o'clock.

The last witness for the defense was James Sigsworth, who told of having met the accused along the road to his (Gray's) home between 5 and 5:30 that afternoon.

LONDON, THURSDAY, OCT. 10.

DR. NESBITT AGAIN.

Will Dr. Beattie Nesbitt return to disturb the Government from which he was excluded? The doughty doctor was thought to be securely laid to rest in the registrarship of West Toronto, a most comfortable berth, but there has been always a feeling among politicians that so active a spirit, and one who played the game with such zeal, could not be permanently quiescent. This impression will be strengthened by his daring remarks at Gravenhurst. There could be no mistaking whom he had in mind in his reference to "one of Johnny Rockefeller's boys." The provincial secretary was pictured as the corporation Mephistopheles of the cabinet trying to seduce his virtuous colleagues from the path of duty on the power question. The inference is that either Dr.
Nesbitt is prepared for dismissal from office, or feels pretty certain that the Government will not or dare not lay a hand upon him.

The doctor's political methods suited
the City of Toronto, and he has still a following strong and loyal enough to insure his re-entrance into public life, if he is aiming that way. With a general election approaching, and several new seats to be given Toronto, he may think the time opportune. His cue would be to come forward as a champion of public ownership, and a savior of his party from corruption influences. It would be a great pose, and the doctor in such a role would cut an interesting figure in Ontario politics. He would not be a welcome apparition to the treasury benches, but what could the ministry do? He is stronger than the Government in his own ballistics.

ASYLUM PATRONAGE.

The Provincial Secretary contradicts the rumor that the asylum patronage in Brockville was manipulated
in the interests of the Conservative candidate. The story and its denial will afford amusement to those who recollect the old Provincial party cries.
"Asylum patronage" was for thirty years the shibboleth of the Provincial Opposition, as the citizens of London can testify. How the opponents of the Mowat, Hardy and Ross governments used to rail against the system of purchasing supplies for Provincial institutions! The merchants of London who sold goods to the asylum were pilloried as a gang of graters. The Government was told that the only honest and businesslike method was the purchase of all supplies by public tender.

The day after the general election of 1905 the asylum patronage in this city was entirely transferred to Conservative merchants, and from that day to this there has not been a suggestion from Government sources that the system should be altered and the ante-election promises of the party fulfilled. There are doubtless many supplies which can be purchased to better advantage by the existing method, and no one alleges that the Government is not getting full value for its money from the merchants of London who are so fortunate as to be on the patronage list.
The point is that by retaining the old system the men now in power at Toronto admit they were humbugging
the electors while in Opposition.

EVIDENCE OF CANADA'S GROWTH

Both timely and valuable was the paper read by Mr. Blue, chief of the Dominion census statistics bureau, on the growth of Canada in the twentieth century, before the recent convention of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association—timely, because at the moment the president, Mr.
Cockshutt, was making a plea for more adequate protection, and valuable for the reason that it gave the apostles of high tariff indisputable evidence of the country's growth and the expansion of its industries under the tariff inaugurated and maintained
by the Liberal Government.

Mr. Blue first quoted statistics to show the phenomenal growth of Canada's foreign trade since the opening of the present century. These show that, exclusive of coin and bullion, goods not the product of Canada, and exports estimated short, the foreign trade of the Dominion increased from $336,018,000 in 1900, to $518,800,000
in 1905. In the same period the chartered banks gained $418,800,000, the increase of deposits being from $305, 140,000 to $605,965,000, showing the great extent to which the banks were assisted above their own capital in maintaining the business of the country.

As illustrating the growth of the prairie provinces, it is shown that last year's area under cultivation was over three times the area of all crops in 1900, but the fact that it was only 28 per cent of the land occupied as farms
and but 7 per cent of the surveyed land in the provinces, shows what a vast tract is still in reserve for the settlers, who are pouring into that part of the Dominion.

At least equally interesting is the census of manufactures taken last year.
For purposes of comparison between 1900 and 1905, Mr. Blue takes the statistics of works employing five persons and over. In these works the capital employed in 1905 was $834,000,000—an increase of $387,000,000; the number of employees was 333,920—an increase of 124,747; amount of salaries and wages, $162,175,000—an increase of $48,926,000,
and the value of products, $706,446,000
—an increase of $225,393,000. Evidence of growth in industrial efficiency is furnished by the fact that in every group of Canadian industries there was a substantial increase in the average of production during the five years. In 1900 the average for all industries was $1,553, and in 1905 it was $1,990 per wage-worker, or, compared on the basis of all employees on salaries and wages, the average was $1,476 in 1900 and $1,803 in 1905. While the employer has thus profited by improved conditions, it is but right that the employee should share in the prosperity.
That he has done so the official figures as to cost of management and operation prove. In 1900 the average salary of managers, officers, clerks, etc., was $833 for males and $317 for females; in 1905 the figures were $925 for males and $362 for females. For wage-earners employed in the works, among whom are included men and women, boys and girls, the average in 1900 was $334 for males and $176 for females, and in 1905 it increased to $417
and $219.

Large increases are likewise shown in capital and products during the five years in every province, with the single exception of Prince Edward Island, Ontario and Quebec, showing the large-est figures. The greatest increase in production in this province was in flower and grist mill products, which amounted to over $14,000,000, while in Quebec the big increase was in car works and repairs—over $7,000,000. Of the thirteen chief industries of Ontario seven had values of $10,000,000 and over, while three of the nine in Quebec made a similar showing. In fourteen cities and towns the increase in the value of manufactures in the five years were $112,413,000, or 53 per cent.
Such growth and expansion as these figures furnish evidence of seem to give force to the prediction that the twentieth century is to be Canada's, and to justify Mr. Blue in declaring that "without international trade Canada could exist as a hermit nation."

The Lusitania appears to be catching her second wind.

Everyone knows what would happen to Dr. Beattie Nesbitt if he were a Grit.

Was Dr. Beattie Nesbitt talking through his tail silk hat, or does he carry some inside information under it?

Airships may become so common that it may soon be necessary to frame regulations as to whether they shall pass each other on the right or the left.

The dispute between the C. P. R. and its telegraphers appears to be a case for the Lemieux act. The public should have something to say in such a matter.

It may surprise outsiders who think that politicians in London live in their tents to learn that there is more activity here over a baseball match in Chicago than over the coming election.

POSITIVE CURE.

AN ELOQUENT PROPHECY.

[New York Times.]
That the deep waterways convention will result in some practical measures there is small doubt, and that Canada will build the Georgian Bay ship canal is also almost a certainty. And when the changes which the two schemes propose are realized, the true monument of Champlain will not be found in the 73 volumes of the "Jesuit Relations," nor in that gallant bronze figure whose sightless eyes look from the Dufferin Terrace at Quebec across the St. Lawrence River. It will be found in the ships that pass, after 300 years, from Quebec to New Orleans at last.

MOOF UP IN FRONT.

[By George V. Hobart ("Dinkelspiel") in the New York American.]
Der shades of night were falling fast
As up der city's avenues passed
A car which bore d's strange device:
"Der pupile it don'd out no ice!"
Moof up in front!"

Nine 'tousand souls miffin it rode;
Annuder 'tousand choined der load;
Den mit 'ten 'tousand souls on board
Der vide conductor vildly 'wroled:
"Moof up in front!"

"Try not to pass!" an old man cried;
"Get off my feet!" annuder sighd:
"Who has remooted my breathe from me?"
A lady asked, inquiringly:
Moof up in front!"

"Conductor!" set a lady sweet,
"Vy do you stop at ebery street?"
"Ye always stop ven ye vas full!"
He set, and gafe der bell a pull:
Moof up in front!"

"Vy is it dot an empty car
Goes much and many miles by far
Before it stops?" der lady cried;
Der fat conductor sniled mit glee:
"Moof up in front!"

"My healt' my vealt', my appetite
Haf gone!" a man set mit a fright.
Der fat conductor sniled mit glee:
"You go away back and sit down!"
Moof up in front!"

"Oh, pass me, please, a solid strap;
Dis vun is loose!" observed a chap.
Der fat conductor, yust for fun,
Up mit his fist and pessed him vun—
Moof up in front!"

Und still dey came by 'tousands till
Dey stood up on der window sill.
Der fat conductor sniled mit glee:
"Dare's money here tonight for me—
Moof up in front!"

Dey skveezed up tight, dey skveezed up
flat,
Till no vun knew vare he vas at;
As milk condensed dey stood, each man,
Like herrings in a sardine can—
Moof up in front!"

Den ven der rain got vet and poured Der fat conductor sweetly roared:
"Dis goes no further up!" he said,
"Get outid and took der car ahead—
Moof up in front!"

THE ALTERNATIVE.

To be a bride each maiden plans,

Then, if she cannot be a man's,
She strives to be a man.

TAKES A CHANCE, ANYHOW.

[Chicago News.]
It is folly for a man to marry a woman who is a good cook unless he is willing to supply the raw material.

THE LIMIT.

[Yonkers Statesman.]
"Caddy, how many strikes is that hole?"
asked the golfer with the plaid cap.
"I can't say, sir."
"Can't say?"
"No, sir; I can only count up to twelve,
sir."

LOVE WITH INTERPOLATIONS.

[La Touche Hancock.]
The sun is setting in the golden west (Quite probably);
The little children now have gone to rest
(Yes, some, maybe);
The stars are twinkling in the summer sky
(They always do);
And to their nests the birdsies homeward fly (Tu-whit! Tu-who!)

And in the gloaming side by side we sit (Well, that's quite right);
Our glowing eyes with love's sweet sunlight lit
(You said 'twas night);
We'll breathe our vows and swear that
we'll be true
(The same old bluff);
Naught in this world can come between us two (Oh, that's enough!)

NO EXCEPTIONS.

[Bobcaygeon Independent.]
The editor of the London Medical Press, speaking of English medicine, is a plain fact that the prettiest girls are notoriously the stupidest. That may be under English conditions, but in this great, glorious and free country all our girls are pretty and every one of them as bright and clever as they can be. Whatever differences of opinion there may be regarding styles of beauty, a stupid girl in Canada is unknown.

BOTH SIDES.

[Houston Post.]
Some girls who in the blossomed way
Of romance long have tarried,
Now sitting up take notice, and Start wishing they were married.

While other ones, who married young
And made of life a bingle,
Are wishing they had tarried some,
And that they now were single.

That thing the witty Frenchman said
Seems true, so don't forget it,
That if you marry, or do not,
In time you will regret it.

But from the standpoint of the man,
Staid business man or spooner,
When he is wed he wishes that
He had been married sooner.

NOT A HOMEOPATH.

"Dope, come, mact, what sile ye?"
"I'm jist tellin' ye a drop would be no good at all in a stummick like mine."

English Agriculturists Agitating

London, Oct. 9.—The importation of store cattle from Canada is a question which is coming very largely to the front in this country. It is the subject of talk at harvest dinners,
which are now being held in different parts of the country.

Much grumbling, too, is heard about the lack of interest shown in agriculture by the Liberal party, who at all times have posed as the farmers' friends and especially just before the last general election. They have been in power nearly two years and they have not yet done anything to benefit agriculture.

In the last 30 years the acreage in corn in Great Britain has lessened by over 3,000,000 acres. Corn crops have lessened by three-quarters of a million, and an enormous amount of land has passed from arable to pasture.

The stock of the country has on the whole diminished by something like 2,000,000 head of cattle, and farmers' capital has diminished by something like £200,000,000.

The consequence is that there has been less labor for workmen to do,
and the number of people cultivating land has decreased by over 600,000 in the last 30 years.

As a result of the poor harvest this year, the position of agriculture in Great Britain is more precarious than ever before, the farmers saying that the only prospect of relief is to permit the English farmer and cattle dealer to purchase store cattle in the one cheap market in the world, the market of Canada and the United States.

Farmers' clubs and agricultural societies are organizing agitations for the removal of the embargo against the importation of store cattle from the United States and Canada.

It is contended that to continue to deprive Great Britain of the vast supply of cheap raw material and drive Canada deeper and deeper into the dead meat trade, is to drive also the very last nail into the coffin of the British farmer.

Spring after spring there is an increase in the scarcity of store cattle
at the English fairs, this scarcity showing itself both in the famine rates
farmers have to pay for their store cattle and in the grass lands which are positively unemployed for the want of stock. Agriculturists say that the result of the cattle diseases acts has been to cheapen raw material for American and other competitors, while raising its price to British farmers.

The cattle breeders' Association of Great Britain has asked the prime minister to receive a deputation next month on the question of removing the embargo on the importation of live cattle. They will tell the Prime Minister that the possibilities of successful agriculture in Great Britain do not lie in the direction of an increased corn area, and they will contend that had the country during the past fifteen years been permitted to stock her acres up to the hilt from the breeding herds of America, British farmers could have adapted their agriculture to assimilate these imports, and they would have become year by year less dependent for their meat supply on foreign countries.

These hopeful people make bold to forecast that if the embargo on imported live stock is removed, they may in a few years produce all their beef at home, and possibly all their mutton.

It is complained that but for the restriction of the cattle diseases acts
the normal cattle export from the markets of Canada and the United States should be annually at least upward of 1,500,000 of live stock. It is contended that the export trade in live cattle, lean or half finished, is more profitable and economical than the trade in fat cattle or dead meat.

The great and growing danger to English agriculture is in the condition of the soil resulting from the ever-increasing trade in meat fattened for foreign farms; also in the impossibility without large helper importations from some new source of increasing at all considerably the British home stocks of cattle, the farmers being told to look to America as the one country which from the price of cattle and from the magnitude of its stock would supply British requirements very cheaply.

The most strenuous efforts are to be made to get the Government to remove the embargo so that Great Britain shall no longer be isolated by legislative enactment. Jam growing and her ranching are all very well in a way, but the leading agriculturists

are not so sanguine. They say that the embargo is a protection to the British farmer, and they contend that the removal of the embargo would be a disaster to the British farmer.

Stanfield's Underwear

(Chapter 1)

A Talk by the Maker to the Wearer.

Stanfield's Underwear is made of the best wool that grows on the best wool-bearing sheep in the world—the long, silky-fibred Nova Scotia wool.

The Wool

The founder of the Stanfield mills did more than anyone else to develop the wool industry throughout the Maritime Provinces. For half a century, the farmers of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island have saved their best wool for the Stanfields—first for C. E. Stanfield—and now for his sons, John and Frank, the President and Treasurer of Stanfields Limited.

The wear of a garment depends on the quality of wool from which it is made. Underwear may be PURE WOOL, and ALL WOOL—and still shrink, ravel and wear out in a single season. Because the underwear is not made of good wool in the first place.

Kingsmill's

Perhaps there is no article that requires more patience, experience and judgment than the manufacture of Ladies' Kid Gloves. Outside of the trade, few know of the great difficulties. The animal may be healthy and all right when killed. After the pelt is removed, through carelessness it may get wet before the first period of tanning, which means absolute loss, as no treatment will prevent the gloves made from such a skin being tender, and it is only after they are worn that they may be detected. After tanning, there is the great care in dyeing. A small portion too much of the chemicals will cause the gloves, when in wear, to become hard and brittle. After getting them tanned and dyed successfully, comes the cutting. If a glove is not cut on the most scientific principle it will not fit correctly; and then comes the sewing. A little carelessness in this branch causes a lot of trouble. These are some of the difficulties the best manufacturers using the best materials have to contend with. How is it with the lower and cheaper grades of gloves made in Austria and Belgium, where the so-called kid is either the pelt of rodent or other small animal, and many of them the pests of creation. Don't be disappointed if you don't get satisfaction from cheap gloves. It is to your advantage to buy only gloves every pair of which are guaranteed. From a long experience in the glove trade we can truthfully say that we have found Wertheimer's the best and most reliable. The thousands of lady customers we have throughout the Dominion from their experience say Wertheimer's are the most reliable. The first cost may be a trifle more. Certainly our profits are much less than what we could make from the sale of other gloves. A customer's confidence from long experience is worth a great deal.

AS A MAN SOWS

Copyright, 1907, by the North American Company.
BY HELEN WALLACE.
Author of "The Greatest of These," "Their Hearts' Desire," Etc.

At last, as if he could forbear no longer, the elder man paused. "But you don't know what you've done for me," he said. "I've never thanked you."
"I don't need any thanks. It means too much to me," said Conyers quietly.

Sir Donald laughed harshly, strangely. "Do you think I meant to thank you? My God, would a man thank another for lifting him out of hell? You don't know what you've done for me; you have not only given me back my child—no, no, I must speak—as the young man tried to say him—you've given me back my hope in life, my hope in God—a God who will have mercy on who will forgive a poor man's remorseless Fate to whom repentance is nothing, amendment nothing, which visits the sins of the fathers upon the children, which tortures you through the innocent, which demands payment in kind, but defers that exaction till the poor, deluded wretch thinks he has paid in full, that he has suffered enough, that the past is past, that though he can never forgive himself, he may be forgiven—and then, and then."
The light gray eyes under the heavy reddish brows blazed with wild excitement, the tall figure was strung tense, the hands nervously working. Suddenly he pulled himself together, passed his hand over his eyes with a long breath, like a man awaking.

"What was I saying, Basil? If it was nonsense, forget it. I'll be myself again soon. Life has been a horror, a nightmare these past days, but thank God—and thank you—that is over."
The door opened, and Lady Stormont came swiftly and lightly in. The burden of these terrible days, which still weighed so heavily upon her husband, seemed to have fallen from her. The cruel lines which suspense and anguish had drawn upon her face were lost to sight in the radiance of a deep and pure joy.

"I came away for a moment, though I could hardly bear to leave her. She is sleeping—really sleeping, in a whisper, as if she feared to disturb that blessed sleep. 'You must come see her, David; it will do you good and, oh, Basil, what do we not owe you?' and she turned to the young man with swimming eyes and outstretched hands, and for a while there was silence, for a mighty gladness, like a great grief, makes for itself a deeper, wider channel than our poor speech can ever afford."

"I have put aside the dreadful old clothes she was wearing, poor child," said Lady Stormont, and the great moment pause had lasted for a time, as if unconsciously she felt that emotion could not long remain at such altitudes, but must be helped back to a more normal level. "They may help us, by and by, to find out who it was who befriended her, for Dr. Purves says that we must not press her with questions, that it would be better if she could forget these past days altogether for a time. I am afraid that she must have fallen into cruel hands at first, for her rings—your ring, Basil—and many little trinkets she was wearing are gone, as well as her own clothes; but I think she must somewhere have met some kind people, some good people, for see what I found in her pocket—the only thing in it, indeed. Don't laugh at me," tremulously, "but I feel as if this had been a sort of amulet, a talisman, for—it is a mother's gift," her voice breaking in a sob of thankfulness as she held out to her husband a pocket Testament with the old-fashioned brass clasp. "See," she

Thinking perhaps they will cure catarrh—but no one ever heard of a genuine cure following such senseless treatments. There is just one prompt and thorough cure for catarrh and it is fragrant, healing Catarrhazone which goes right to the root of the trouble. It destroys the germs, heals the inflamed membranes and cures any case no matter how obstinate or long-standing. "I experimented for years with catarrh remedies but found Catarrhazone the most rational and satisfactory," writes W. J. MacEachern, of Waterville. "It cured me for all time." Strictly speaking, the guests were not Miss V's, but those of Jonathan Rudgeley, Esq., and Mr. Rudgeley, of Park street, Mayfair, of Horsley Manor, Hants, and of Balchallan, Heathshire, N. B.; but to most of the party that great commercial magnate and his spouse were little more than names. Mr. Rudgeley apparently only lived to make money—the money which had decorated the gilded house in London, had turned the beautiful, old-world home of a decayed family into a showplace, and had transformed a simple Highland shooting lodge into a "Scottish baronial" castle, with as many towers and bastions as the architect's ingenuity could work in—the money, in a word, which had launched Miss Vi into a society which asks few questions so long as its senses and appetites are lavishly enough pandering to. In the society Mrs. Rudgeley might have played her part, too, for she was at the age when a certain type of modern woman is at her giddiest; but she had been born in a class in which gay grandmothers do not exist, and in which the matrons retire early in favor of the young folks, and had never been able to adapt herself to any other.

Accustomed, therefore, to rule her own family socially with a rod of iron, and having established herself as a personage in her own set, Miss Rudgeley resented the consciousness that there were still certain circles in which she could obtain no sure footing. Of course, in time-honored fashion, she declared that such society was stodgy, dull, behind the times, not worth the trouble of conquering; still, the knowledge rankled, and specially so at Balchallan where she was always reminded of it by Lady Stormont's courteous but steady evading of her boldest advances.

The absent were not without their champions, however. Young Bob Lane was not yet so versed in the world's ways as to have learned that it is always wiser to agree with your hostess, and too honest to affect juvenile cynicism. He rolled round upon his elbow again.

"Oh, I say, Miss Vi, you're awfully down on them, Conyers is an awfully decent chap, and the girl's a nice little thing, with not a bit of harm in her—saw her once or twice in town; and when I heard of this, I thought it a beastly shame that anything should have happened to her, that she should be dead or drowned, and nobody know anything of it—horrid, you know. I was right down glad to hear that she had turned up again."

"Of course, you would, Bobby; a good child like you is sure to think what is right and proper," said Vi patronizingly, patting the uncovered curly head. "I never said there was any harm in her, indeed, I doubt if there is anything at all in her; good or bad," shrugging her handsome shoulders. "She's so well brought up, everybody says. Well, all I can say is, you men try to be devoted to me, that times are changed. It must have been precious dull when we were all well brought up. Thank goodness, no one can accuse me of that. I should like to have seen the material try her hands at it." And Vi laughed again as she lit her cigarette at the glowing tip of Mr. Ashe's cigar.

"What's the truth about this Stormont affair?" he asked, taking advantage of the brief check to the torrent of Miss Vi's volubility—the only means, as a rule, of carrying on the semblance of a conversation with her. "Of course, I've seen the girl." "At a distance, like the rest of us," broke in Vi, with a laugh, "as we saw her picture in the crowd on Private View day. I don't suppose you were any more privileged than the rest of us. We're not good enough yet, it would appear for Lady Stormont."

If Evelyn Ashe did not altogether relish being thus ruled out, even though it were in the company of his hostess, he was careful not to show it.

THE LITTLE GIRL'S SCHOOL DRESS—4254.

For the small girl who is just beginning her school career the little frock here pictured will be found most desirable. It is made in jumper effect, with a simulated guimpe, which may be composed, if preferred, of the same material as the dress, instead of a contrasting one, as shown. The frock is very simply made, both blouse and skirt being gathered to the prettily shaped belt. Scotch plaid is here suggested for modeling it, with red surah for the simulated guimpe, but this development is capable of many ingenious variations, as plain or as elaborate as one may choose to make them. The medium size calls for 1 1/2 yards of 27-inch material for the yoke and sleeves, and 2 1/2 yards of the same width for the overskirt and skirt. 4254—Five sizes, 3 to 7 years.

The price of this pattern is 10 cents.

A. N. Brady Tells How Metropolitan Bought Wall Street Franchise.

New York, Oct. 8.—Anthony N. Brady, testifying before the public service commission today, said that back in 1902 he had bought for $250,000 the franchise of a company having the right to build a railway through Wall street. He resold the franchise to William C. Whitney, then the leading spirit in New York's surface lines, at cost.

In payment Mr. Brady received a check for $250,000 from the Metropolitan Securities Company. Up to that time the Metropolitan, so far as Mr. Brady knew, had not entered into the transaction. Along with the check came instructions from the company's lawyers as to what was to be done with the balance of $715,000 over the cost price.

In accordance with the instructions, Mr. Brady drew his personal check as follows: $111,652.78 to Wm. C. Whitney, $111,652.78 to Thomas F. Ryan, $111,652.78 to Thomas Dolan, $111,652.78 to P. A. B. Widener, $111,652.78 to William L. Elkins and $134,028.92 to Moore & Schieff, bankers. These checks were all sent by Mr. Brady to Mr. Whitney.

Show Only Brady Deal.

The books of the Metropolitan Securities Company show only the transaction with Mr. Brady. The full expenditure is being carried now by the Metropolitan as an asset. An examination of the Metropolitan Securities Company's books since 1898 show that President H. H. Vreeland of the street railway lines, has received $200,000 over and above his salary for expenses. Of this amount more than $185,000 is unaccounted for by any vouchers, so far as the commission's experts have been able to discover.

The accounts have turned up two payments of $5,000 each to the Sergeant Cram in the spring of 1904.

These, it was said, were for legal services; both are charged to the "property and franchise" account, thus constituting an asset.

The Metropolitan Company made a roundabout loan of $250,000 to Thomas C. Quinn, back in August, 1904, which was just before the Hearst-McClellan campaign. The loan has never been repaid.

No Vouchers Are Found.

Two payments for which no vouchers can be found were made by the Metropolitan Securities Company to Thomas F. Ryan, one of $24,000 in June, 1905, and another of $28,500 in August of the same year. Both were charged to a general expense account. The latter payment was made through the Standard Trust Company and Mr. Ryan's name does not appear in the Metropolitan's books in connection with it. Paul D. Cravath, counsel for the Metropolitan interests declared that the $25,500 had been repaid.

Former Justice William Cohen sold to the Metropolitan Securities Company in February of the present year two blocks of Metropolitan Street Railway stock at 165 1/2 which was the price paid by his client two years before. The payment amounted to $33,000. Metropolitan was quoted about that time at 105 and a sale of 200 shares was made a few days ago at 35.

Several Stiff Problems In the York Loan Case

Liquation Brings Out Some Delicate Points of Law.

Toronto, Oct. 9.—Will the assets of the York Loan Company be depleted by the payment in full to one class of creditors of $23,000 in full of their shares, thus disposing in a lump of perhaps one-twentieth of the assets? This important question is involved in the claim of Mr. A. W. Briggs, who represented class C shareholders before Referee George Kappelle this morning, and who will present his argument tomorrow afternoon. Class C certificates contain a clause providing that they shall be a first charge upon all the assets of the company. This really places the class C shareholders in the position of preferred creditors if the referee rules that the clause is valid.

The liquidator claims that the clause is void. His contention is that such a clause really makes the certificates debentures, and that the provision would be illegal in a debenture; the clause therefore nullifying itself. The point, however, is said to be an extremely nice one, and capable of being argued at some length.

Another Interesting Point.

Another interesting fact was mentioned this morning. On practically all shares except those of class C2 (issued since September, 1902), it was possible to loan to the shareholders amounts up to 50 per cent of the value. This was done to such an extent that there is $100,000 outstanding on these loans on about $300,000 claims on the claim sheet. This money was lent to shareholders at 8 per cent interest. As collateral security they gave their stock and their promissory notes. This security is now held by the company, but, if the dividend paid should amount to less than 50 per cent, the shareholders will become debenture holders instead of shareholders. This somewhat complicates the situation. So far as the promissory notes are concerned, they are said to be worthless in most cases, as the people who borrowed the money are not wealthy, and indeed were borrowers largely because they felt the financial pinch.

At this morning's session of the referee's court, Mr. Briggs appeared for class C shareholders, Mr. W. M. Douglas for certain other classes, Mr. Home Smith for the National Trust, and also Mr. C. D. Scott for the liquidator. The only witness examined was Mr. Albert E. Harrington, accountant for the liquidator, at the conclusion of whose testimony Mr. Briggs was granted an adjournment until 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, when he will conclude his formal evidence and present his argument.

Mr. Briggs commenced this morning by securing evidence from the witness as to the calling of meetings at which by-laws were passed affecting the certificates in question. Some of these certificates are missing, and to expedite matters, the referee ruled that the minutes of such meetings would be taken as prima facie evidence that the by-laws had been called, subject to any proof to the contrary that might be offered.

Mr. Briggs then cited the various by-laws which he will use to verify the authority for issuing class C certificates.

Mr. Biggar, of Hamilton, will appear tomorrow morning on behalf of classes 5 and 6, respectively about $10,000. This comparatively small class were "caught on the wing," as it were. They were turning over their stock as against life insurance and plans, and it is a question whether they are creditors or shareholders. The delicate points of law involved do not seem to grow fewer as time advances.

The liquidator's accountant is still answering letters at the rate of about 50 per day. These are not claims, as has been stated, but letters of inquiry, and Mr. Kappelle is now getting a share of these as well.

WILTON GROVE ITEMS

A Special Series of Sermons by Rev. E. C. Currie.

Wilton Grove, Oct. 9.—Rev. Walter C. Nichol, B. A., of Priceville, who is under call to St. Mary's, has been visiting his friend and colleague Mr. Walter Laidlaw Nichol, B. A., of Westminster.

Rev. E. C. Currie, B. A., of Burns Church, Sarnia, will preach special sermons in Westminster next Sabbath in the morning in the First Presbyterian Church; in the afternoon at St. Andrew's, Glasgow; in the evening Mr. Currie will preach at Wilton Grove at 8 o'clock.

Mr. John Lawson is out again after his somewhat severe illness. His friends are pleased to see him again.

Rev. Dr. McCrue will preach at the jubilee services in Mr. Currie's congregation at Sarnia, next Sabbath, Mr. Currie is one of the ablest preachers among the younger men of the church.

The thank-offering meeting of the W. F. M. S. of the First Church, Westminster, was held in the church parlour on Wednesday afternoon, and was most successful. At the close a splendid tea was provided by the ladies.

In Brooklyn recently, according to Automobile Topics, 30 aged and infirm people who had not been able to go to church for years, were taken to the communion service in automobiles.

AFFIDAVIT FOR CAPELLI

A Companion Puts New Light on the Murder of McCormack.

Toronto, Oct. 9.—The affidavit upon which a reprieve was granted in the case of Frank Capelli, the Italian under sentence of death for the murder of Michael McCormack, at Parry Sound, was filed at Osgoode Hall today. It was sworn to by Albert Martuccio, a member of the Canadian Northern construction gang. Martuccio says that Capelli was dancing with Mrs. McCormack and the latter kissed him. McCormack was lying drunk on the bed and got up and attacked Capelli, and the latter killed McCormack in defending himself.

CAMBIE-NORDHEIMER

Fashionable Wedding in St. James' Cathedral at Toronto.

Toronto, Oct. 9.—The marriage of Miss Cecil Evelyn Nordheimer, daughter of Mr. Nordheimer, to Mr. Charles Cambie took place this afternoon at St. James' Cathedral before a large number of fashionable guests. Canon Welch, with the Lord Bishop of Niagara, officiated. The bride was given away by her father, the bridesmaids were Miss Athol Boulton, Miss Errol Nordheimer, Miss Viva Kerr, Miss Christobel Robinson, Miss Yvonne Nordheimer and Miss Phyllis Nordheimer. Miss Estelle Hodgins was flower girl. The best man was Mr. J. Cambie, and the groomsmen were Messrs. Roy Nordheimer, J. Leggett, G. Houston, Capt. Basil White, E. Cattannach, A large reception was held after the ceremony at "Glendethy" the home of the bride.

COULDN'T EXPLAIN IT

Standard Oil Auditor Ignorant as to Vanished Assets.

New York, Oct. 9.—Transcripts of the balance sheets and journals of the old Standard Oil trust and several of its subsidiaries, were placed in evidence today at the holding of the federal suit against the oil combine. Lawrence C. Fay, assistant auditor of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, was again in the witness stand today; Frank B. Kellogg, the Government's counsel, called attention to the balance sheets of the Standard Oil Company, on which the stocks of the Southern Oil Field, Mutual Oil Company, the White Golden Lubrication Company, C. P. Wagner & Co., H. Garlick & Co., and Protection Oil Company appeared as assets. Mr. Fay said he could not explain why the balance sheet of the following years did not show what had become of all these assets and why they were written off.

THE TRANSGRESSOR'S WAY

This Toronto Youth Finds It Is Not Always Easy.

Toronto, Oct. 9.—Just to show that the way of the transgressor is not always easy, William Ennis, a 15-year-old boy, was sent to the Children's Shelter by the police magistrate this morning for a week. Ennis was taken to the laundry of J. P. Sam, a Chinaman, said he was a civic plumbing inspector, and attempted to obtain $10 from Sam, saying he was a son of Detective Wallace, and that he would have the Chinaman arrested if he did not give up. The latter complained to the police.

TIGERS IGNORE C.A.A.U.

Team Decides to Stand by Inter-provincial Rugby Union.

Hamilton, Oct. 9.—At a special meeting of the executive of the Hamilton Football Club held at 1 o'clock today, it was decided to ignore the C. A. A. U. and to play out the schedule of the Inter-provincial Rugby Union. This will probably mean that the Tigers will all be placed under the ban by the C. A. A. U. after next Saturday's game with Montreal, but the players, with two exceptions, were all satisfied to take that chance. The feeling here is that the C. A. A. U. treated the Montreal club and the football union unfairly when it refused a certificate to Ernie Russell, and that it acted rather harshly in suspending the members of the Argonaut and Montreal teams.

THE RUSSIAN ELECTIONS

Peasants and Workmen Are Still Strongly for Radicalism.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 9.—The second stage of the parliamentary elections is in full swing. Nineteen hundred and three electors have to be chosen out of an ultimate total of 5,161. The party elected is officially characterized as 516 members of the opposition, 1,131 Motorists, Octoberists and Rights, and 256 owing allegiance to no party. The results of the elections indicate that the peasants, workmen and lower classes of the cities exhibit unabated radicalism, while the people of the city, particularly the landlords, are returning Conservative electors. The landlords so far elected representatives 62 members of the Right party, 91 Oppositionists and 96 without party.

THE GREYS AT QUEBEC.

Quebec, Que., Oct. 9.—The Governor-General and the Grey and the other members of the family, who have passed a month at the vice-regal quarters at the citadel, leave by C. P. R. train tonight for Ottawa. His Excellency, accompanied by Capt. Newton, A. D. C., Major-General Lake, Lt.-Col. Wood and Dr. Doughty, visited the Plains of Abraham and the Cove fields yesterday, and made an interesting inspection of this historic locality. His Excellency is greatly interested in the proposal to establish a national park on this site.

WHAT THE CLERGYMAN SAID.

Hanover, Ont., Oct. 10.—No other class of men have the opportunity to do as much good and be so helpful influences, as the clergy. Not only in their sermons, but in their daily life, they can teach us the better way of living. The example of the Rev. Mr. Brand, of Hanover, is one to be followed in every home in Canada. Owing to the arduous duties incidental to his parish, the reverend gentleman suffered severely with liver trouble, accompanied with constipation and indigestion. But he quickly found relief, and in a letter, tells how. "I can say I like Fruit-a-tives very much, as I am troubled with Liver Trouble—and shall continue to use them."

"Fruit-a-tives" are made of fruit juices and valuable tonics—and form the ideal food for the public, and the treatment of biliousness, constipation, headache and all stomach, bowel, kidney and skin troubles. 50 cents a box.

GREAT PLOT TO STEAL RELICS

Some of the Best Known Families in France Are Involved.

Paris, Oct. 8.—Astonishment amounting to consternation has been caused by the arrest at Clermont-Ferrand of a wealthy burglar manufacturing named Antoine Thomas, with his mother and brother. The immediate charge against them is stealing the historic reliquary which was reported in dispatches a few days ago from the church at Blanzac, Department of Haute-Vienne. Amazing discoveries made in connection with the theft threaten a vast scandal.

Thomas was a rich and respected local magnate to the public, but it seems that privately he was a practitioner of illegal operations, and even, it is alleged, a murderer.

The whole country is now ringing with the story. In Thomas' house the police found an array of deadly weapons, a bloodstained siletto, illegal surgical instruments, and a mass of correspondence implicating some of the best known families in France, and numerous Paris art dealers, some of them millionaires, are shown to have had dealings with Thomas as receivers of stolen goods. They had agents in England and the United States. They had a great conspiracy for the theft and sale of priceless relics secured from French churches.

It is stated that Thomas alone realized from the thefts the sum of $100,000. His mother and brother Francis were arrested on Oct. 5. Thomas himself, who has returned to Clermont-Ferrand, from London, where he sold the stolen Ambazac reliquary for $10,000, surrendered to a magistrate. He fully confessed the systematic theft of works of art, but was horrified to learn of the poisons and correspondence seized. He told the magistrate that he was without resources so far as his dealings in works of art were concerned, but the arrest of his mother and brother, who were innocent, and the possible implication of a married lady, whom he had adored for years, impelled him to surrender.

Her love letters, found in the house, would involve her ruin. He implored the magistrate to conceal the lady's name. He further told the magistrate that he did not care a straw about the other women whose guilt was proved by the correspondence, adding: "But they belong to a world you dare not asperse, and when you know all you will be glad to liberate me to avoid a frightful scandal."

Betrayed by Antiquary.

Thomas ascribes his betrayal to a rich Paris antiquary, to whom he refused to sell the reliquary. He rends his alleged accomplices in theft mercilessly. He says that one of these men two years ago proposed the plan of procuring church treasures. Many priests believed that the separation law would render them absolutely destitute, as the Government had inventoried all the church valuables.

The scheme was to offer the priests money to hand over their chief treasures and substitute cheap replicas furnished by Thomas and his friends. Scores of supposed church treasures, Thomas says, will be found upon examination to be not genuine. The most valuable objects, however, could not be duplicated, and the Paris dealers proposed that they be stolen. To this Thomas consented.

He describes various successful raids the proceeds of which were disposed of in London, where Thomas, accompanied by a friend named Faure, took them. He says that a London agent, who bought a reliquary stolen at Ambazac, acted for an American purchaser, who is awaiting its delivery.

The magistrate questioned Thomas about the persons, etc. He elicited information, but Thomas was extremely agitated, and he nearly fainted during the examination. It may be stated that one of the best known ladies in Clermont-Ferrand attempted to commit suicide upon learning that Thomas' house had been searched.

Cubs Down Tigers in Second Round for Championship

CATCHER JOHNNY KLING'S FAMOUS WHIP TOO MUCH FOR THE JENNINGS TIGERS

Cubs Were Outbatted, But Detroit Could Not Get Around.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—The second game of the world's championship series of 1907 has been played and for the nonce the Cubs are the world's champions. In the second game of the big series for the highest honors of the baseball world, the pennant winners of the National League this afternoon defeated the Tigers by a score of three to one.

The Cubs earned the victory. They outplayed the men from Detroit. They did not out-hit them but by clever work on the bases, through a little better break in the luck and, more especially, through the king of backstops—Johnny Kling—the Chicagoans took the first of the games which pave the way to the championship.

Mullin pitched grand ball for the Tigers. Two bad innings he had, and those two were too much for him in the latter part of the game he was invincible. In the last four of Chicago's innings, the fielding of the Tigers was irreproachable. Errors were charged against Payne and Schaefer in the first inning, but those errors did not assist to the final result. In the second and fourth innings the Cubs simply got to Mullin and the only wonder is that the score was not larger in favor of the Chicago.

Mullin in Tight Pinches.

In both of those innings it looked as though Mullin were in for disastrous sessions. After being hit almost at the will of the Cubs batsmen in

"WILD BILL" DONOVAN.

he got four hits. The first was a beautiful three-bagger. The others were singles, but had they been backed up by a little hitting by those who followed Ross, they might have meant a better score for Detroit. In only one inning did a hit follow the Philmont lad. That was in the second and then Ross scored.

The Cubs were not brilliant, they were simply better. In the opening inning they fell for that old hidden-ball trick just as though it were being worked for the first time in the history of baseball. Schaefer was the author of the stunt, and he did it so easily that about half of the spectators thought a normal put-out had been made.

Mullin opened the inning by walking Slagle. The Cub center fielder had no more than arrived at first when he attempted to take second. Payne threw to second, but his throw was low and hit Mullin on the head, nearly putting the twirler out of the game. While the ball was being run down by O'Leary, Slagle went to third. Schaefer had the ball by the time Mullin had his head rubbed and got back into the game.

Schaefer Puffs Off Old Trick. Nobody was watching the Dutchman particularly and any one who noticed him loitering around third base thought he was merely getting back to his position after examining Mullin's head. But when Slagle inadvertently left the sack, Schaefer shot the ball to Coughlin and the Cub was out.

It was a pretty piece of work on Herman's part, but the luster of the trick was tarnished somewhat when he fumbled Chance's grounder in the same inning and allowed the Chicago leader to arrive safely at first.

The National leaguers had one other spell of stupidity. That was in the third, when Chance ran from second on a fly by Kling, which didn't puzzle Crawford in the least.

The one who starred for the Cubs was Schaefer. He got the only extra base hit made on the Cub side, by driving a screamer down the first base field bleachers before Cobb could stop it. That hit brought in the Cub's third run.

In the seventh the left fielder shone again, when he got Payne's long, low fly to extreme left. It looked like a hit all the way, but Schaefer scooped it up, making one of the most spectacular catches of the day.

An odd coincidence of the game was the similarity of the hits made by Schaefer and Tinker in the second and fourth innings. Both of the Cubs drove at Mullin. Both were exceptionally hot and both hit the Tiger twirler and rolled off toward short.

With a fair break of luck neither would have gone for a single, but both took very nasty turns and counted as hits.

Cobb Has Another Bad Day. Cobb made his first hit of the series in the fourth inning, when he drove a clean single to center. It was a typical Cobb hit, but aside from that one instance, the great Georgian didn't have a very good day.

The first time up Cobb hit into a double play. Then he made the hit, around his base. In four times at bat, right which should have gone for a base hit, but which served to force Cobb at second. The third time up, Ty grounded to short. In the eighth he was hit by a pitched ball and got on, but Jones was caught trying to steal third, and the Georgian's opportunities were over.

Hitting brought in the Tigers' one run. Rossman started the second inning with that triple which went through Tinker, the ball taking a nasty bound and going into deep left. Coughlin followed with a strike out. Then Payne drove back of short, Schaefer ran in for it. It went for a hit and Rossman scored. O'Leary fouled to Steinfeldt and Payne stole second. Mullin fled to Slagle and the fun was ended.

Run Not Imminent.

In the other periods a run was never imminent. Jones opened the first with a single and Schaefer did likewise. Crawford struck out, but things looked promising. Then Cobb grounded to Tinker, who tagged second, getting Schaefer, and then threw to first in time to catch Ty. An error by Tinker let Jones on again in the third, but a force out and an attempt to steal which did not work put a crimp in that chance. In every inning afterward the Tigers got the men on, but there was nothing doing.

The Cubs' first run came in the second, through Mullin walking Tinker, after three hits had been made. Kling opened the inning with a single to left. Evers followed with a hit to O'Leary. Charley and Schaefer attempted to get Kling but O'Day called him safe. Schulte then hit the first of those liners that bounced off Mullin's shin, and the bases were full. Tinker waited patiently and Mullin walked him, forcing Kling over the plate. Pfeister and Slagle both struck ordered off the coaching line by Sheridan. Jennings insisted that the decision against Schaefer was unfair, but the decision stood. Crawford popped a high foul that Kling caught nicely. No run; no hit.

Chicago—Chance walked. Steinfeldt was hit by a pitched ball. Kling fled to Crawford, and Chance was doubled at second on a quick return of the ball to Schaefer by Crawford. Evers singled to right center. Steinfeldt going to third. Evers stole second. Schulte struck out. No run; one hit.

Fourth Inning. Detroit—Cobb lined a beauty to center field for a single. Rossman singled to right, and Cobb hesitated between first and second, thinking that Schulte would get the ball; Schulte made a pretty throw to Tinker, getting Cobb before he could reach second. Coughlin fled to Slagle. Payne fled to Slagle. No runs; two hits.

Chicago—Tinker singled, the ball being too hot for Mullin to handle. Pfeister made a neat sacrifice. Tinker stole third. Slagle hit to short, too hot for O'Leary to handle, and Tinker scored. Slagle stole second. Schaefer doubled to right, scoring Slagle. Schaefer out, trying to steal third. Payne to Coughlin. Chance fled to Rossman. Two runs; three hits.

Fifth Inning. Detroit—O'Leary singled to center. Schaefer made a pretty catch of Mullin's fly against left field fence. Jones hoisted a high fly back of third, Steinfeldt catching it. Schaefer bunted in front of the plate, the ball bounced high; Kling got it and touched Schaefer out. No run; one hit.

Sixth Inning. Detroit—Chance robbed Crawford of a hit by capturing his fierce liner. Cobb out. Tinker to Chance. Rossman singled over Tinker's head. Coughlin forced Rossman, Steinfeldt to Evers. No run; one hit.

Chicago—Schulte out, O'Leary to Rossman. Tinker out, O'Leary to Mullin. No run; no hit.

Seventh Inning. Detroit—Schaefer grabbed Payne's liner off his shoestrings, a great catch. O'Leary walked. Mullin struck out. O'Leary out, stealing, on a perfect throw by Kling to Evers. No run; no hit.

Chicago—Slagle singled to left. Schaefer laid out a perfect sacrifice. Mullin to Rossman. Chance out, O'Leary to Rossman. Slagle going to Detroit—Jones singled. Schaefer out. Tinker to Chance. Jones going to second. Crawford out on a high fly to Schulte. Cobb hit by pitched ball. Jones out, stealing. Kling to Steinfeldt. No run; one hit.

Chicago—Kling struck out. Evers fled to Jones. Schulte out, Schaefer to Rossman. No run; no hit.

Ninth Inning.

Detroit—Rossman hit to left for a base, this being his fourth hit today. Coughlin lined to Tinker and Rossman was doubled on a throw to Chance. Payne dropped a bunt in front of the plate and was thrown out. Kling to Chance. No run; one hit.

AMATEUR TEAM FOR ENGLAND

Toronto, Oct. 9.—Mr. F. Benjamin O. Hawes, hon. secretary of the English Lacrosse Union, is a visitor in the city, and today Mr. Hawes will have a conference with Mr. W. H. Hall, secretary of the Canadian Lacrosse Association, to make arrangements for the visit of an all-Canadian amateur lacrosse team to England next spring to compete in the lacrosse tournament in connection with the Olympic games, which are to be held during April next in London.

Mr. Hawes is an old player himself and is very enthusiastic over the game being of the opinion that at no distant date it will be a leader among the outdoor sports in England.

Mr. Hawes is thoroughly satisfied that the best teams of England cannot successfully compete against the professional teams of this country, but he feels very certain that against an amateur twelve the old country teams would stand an excellent chance.

WAR FOR AN INSULT

Japan Would Spend Last Penny To Uphold Dignity.

Yokohama, Oct. 8.—Count Okuma, leader of the Opposition, discussing the statements made by Mr. Taft when he was in Tokyo, says it is difficult to understand the transfer of the United States fleet to the Pacific, but he believes the matter can be settled amicably. Japan, although financially distressed, would go to war tomorrow with any power if her national pride were insulted. Her citizens would spend their last penny to uphold her national dignity.

General Watts Wins Over Todd

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 9.—The thirty-fifth annual meeting of the Kentucky Trotting Horsebreeders' Association was opened here this afternoon. The Kentucky futurity was the event of the day. It being worth $22,000 in two divisions.

The first day's division was for 2-year-olds, and worth $14,000. The second day's division is for 3-year-olds and is worth $8,000.

General Watts easily won in today's division in three straight heats. The only struggle was between Blis, Baron McKinney and Bonnie Way for second money. After driving General Watts to victory Mike Bowerman, his driver and trainer, was carried around the track in a floral horseshoe.

The heavy rains of late made the track three or four seconds slower. Kentucky Futurity, 2-year-olds, trot—General Watts, b. c. by Asworthy, Dam Carpet (Bowerman).....1 1 1

KING EDWARD IS DEAF

A High Grade Microphone Has Been Made for His Use.

New York, Oct. 8.—Three sets of artificial hearing instruments were shipped to Buckingham Palace, London, Saturday, says the London Times today, for the use of King Edward and Queen Alexandra. The latter has long suffered from deafness, but the fact that King Edward is hard of hearing, it is stated, will be a great surprise to the public generally.

The instruments have been made so as to enable the King and Queen to talk together without the use of a trumpet or horn. The transmitter, or sound concentrator, will be attached to the clothing of the royal couple. The sound is focused on the concentrator in the same manner that the rays of the sun are focused by means of an ordinary reading glass. At this point of focus is placed a super-sensitive microphone, which takes up the focused or magnified sounds and conveys them to the ear by means of a small silk-covered tinzel cord, through which an electric current is conveyed by a small battery to an earpiece, which is held to the ear.

The batteries are carried in the pocket, being about three inches high and an inch and a half in diameter. The earpiece is somewhat smaller than the ordinary telephone earpiece, but highly sensitized and can be hidden in the hand.

The only visible part of the instrument is a portion of the silk cord which connects the concentrator with the earpiece.

The conclusion of the Bureau of Statistics from the study of the champagne production in the United States is that the quantity of genuine fermented-in-the-bottle "champagne" wine produced in this country at present is nearly one-half as great as the importation of wine of the same general class; or, in other words, that about one-third of the genuine champagne wine now consumed in this country is of domestic production, and the proportion which the home product forms of the total is rapidly increasing.

Woodmen's C. P. R. Excursion to Detroit Will Carry Big Crowd.

Mr. Dan Bowen, of the C. P. R. telegraph service, who is conducting an excursion to Detroit Saturday on behalf of the Woodmen of the World, states that the postponement of the trip until Saturday will increase the sale of tickets fully one-third.

Local fans, who go by the C. P. R. route, will arrive in Detroit Saturday morning about 9 o'clock, Detroit time, and will have ample time to make arrangements for tickets to the contest. The tickets will be good until Monday night, but those desiring to return sooner can do so on any regular train.

HOSPITAL TRUST HOLDS MEETING

Routine Business Attended to Yesterday Afternoon.

The regular monthly meeting of the hospital trust was held at Victoria Hospital yesterday afternoon, when the accounts were passed and Superintendent Heard's report was submitted.

The report showed that during the past month 135 patients were admitted, of whom 57 were males, 53 females and 25 children; while 129 were discharged, of whom 63 were males, 41 females and 25 children.

There were 12 births, 7 deaths and 46 operations during the month.

The receipts amounted to $1,541.35, and disbursements to $5,796.38.

The trust acknowledges the following donations with thanks: Cut flowers, B. D. Birch; books for children's ward, Miss Stevenson.

Those present were: Chairman Seretson, Trustees Graham, Harris and Jackson, and Superintendent Heard.

HERMITAGE EXCURSION

At Least 500 of the Local Fans Going to Detroit.

It is expected that the postponement of the Hermitage excursion to Detroit will give many people a chance to make the trip that would otherwise have been unable to go.

To go on Thursday meant to break up half a week, while the trip on Saturday means losing but a day, with the added advantage of being able to stay over until Monday evening if so desired.

A through train has been procured for the journey, which will not occupy more than three hours at the most, leaving the local fans at this point of Brush street at 9 o'clock, Detroit time.

A large advance sale of tickets has been reported, and it is thought that not less than half a thousand people will take in the Hermitage excursion.

For returning the Grand Trunk offers great facilities, and the excursion tickets will be good on any train, with the exception of the Flyer.

The round trip rate will be $1.60, and the train will leave the G. T. R. station in this city at 7 o'clock sharp on Saturday morning.

LAST WEEK OF PIANO SALE

The Great Opportunity to Save Money by Selecting One of These Rented Pianos—Must Be Accepted on or Before Saturday.

MANY GOOD BARGAINS YET TO BE SECURED, BUT THEY ARE GOING RAPIDLY. BIG CUTS ON ALL REMAINING STOCK PLACED IN THIS SALE.

Gourlay, Winter & Leeming
195 DUNDAS STREET.

One cannot expect to have bargains in pianos such as are offered in this wonderful sale extended to them at any time; in fact, it is only once in a year that such opportunities come to you.

We had a lot of summer-rented pianos returned, and as space in our factory-store is limited, we just had to dispose of the rented pianos at once, regardless of cost. They were all marked at prices so tempting to one who has the slightest idea of buying that it simply means dollars made to buy now. Terms are arranged to meet the individual buyers. Of course, this is out of the ordinary way of selling pianos, but we must sell these pianos, and are selling them. They are going fast.

Pianos are being offered at prices that are from one-fourth to one-half their retail prices. Just stop and think what that means to the buyer. You ought to call in and select an instrument before Saturday, Oct. 12, and we assure you of a large saving in buying. Easy terms and guarantee on every piano offered for sale.

A FINE CLEAN BILL FOR LONDON FACTORY

Government Inspector Finds Local Cannery in Excellent Condition.

Dr. G. W. Bell, medical health inspector for the Government, visited the plant of the London Canning Company the other day and he had nothing but praise for the factory and the management.

The doctor bestowed quite a bouquet on the factory, stating that from a hygienic standpoint, which included cleanliness particularly, it was one of the most hygienic plants he had visited in Western Ontario. His jurisdiction covers all canning factories in Ontario.

The female help was considered A1, and it was entirely void of foreign labor. He was well pleased with the general surroundings outside of the buildings, the neat way the grounds are kept, particularly re the disposing of all refuse, which is immediately hauled away.

He said, upon leaving, that if all canning factories put up goods as cleanly as the London Canning and Evaporating Company there would be no occasion for Government inspection. He also said his greatest difficulty was with factories who hire foreign labor and also plants with no sewerage. The London plant is free from both these complaints.
